16. Improvement notice.-(l) If a Food Safety Officer has reasons to believe that any food operator has failed to comply with any provisions of this Act, the rules or the regulations, he may serve an improvement notice upon the food operator-

(a) stating the grounds for believing that the food operator has failed to comply with any provisions of the Act or the rules or the regulations;

(b) specifying the matters which constitute the food operator's failure so to comply; and

(c) intimating the measures which the food operator should take in order to secure compliance with the relevant provisions of the law.

(2) If the food operator fails to comply with the improvement notice within the prescribed time, the Food Authority may cancel or suspended his licence or take such other action as it deems appropriate.

52. Reward by the Food Authority.--The Food Authority may, in the manner prescribed by the rules, make payment of reward from the Food Authority Fund to any person who has made an exceptional effort towards accomplishing the objective of this Act.

Decision

10. The basic question before the Court is whether the Respondents were required to issue notice to the Petitioners and provide an opportunity of hearing before exercising powers under Section 13(1)(c) of the Act. The PFA was established under Section 3 of the Act to provide for the safety and standards of food under the Act. Its powers and functions include the appointment of food safety officers to regulate and monitor the food business in order to ensure the provision of safe food which is fit for human consumption. Section 2(f) of the Act defines "food" to mean anything used as food or drink for human consumption other than drugs, and includes

(i) any substance which is intended for use in the preparation of food:

(ii) any flavouring agent or condiment;

(iii) any colouring matter intended for use in food:

(iv) chewing gum, confectionary and other products of like nature;

(v) water in any form including ice, intended for human consumption or for use in the composition or preparation of food: and

(vi) any other thing prescribed as food

Section 2(i) of the Act defines food business to mean any undertaking, whether or not for profit, carrying out any of the activities related to any stage of manufacturing, processing, packaging, storage, transportation, distribution of food, import, export and includes food services, catering services, sale of food or food ingredients. Section 2(k) defines food operator to mean a person who manufactures for sale, transports, stores, sells, distributes, imports or exports food. Section 2(w) defines safe food to mean an article of food which is not unsafe. Hence the Act governs food operators in the food business to ensure that the food is safe for human consumption.

11. Section 12 of the Act empowers the PFA to appoint and notify the FSO in such areas as the Authority deems necessary. The function and powers of the FSO are laid out under Section 13 of the Act which enables the FSO to take immediate action to ensure that the food consumed or used by the public at large is safe and fit for human consumption. The Section authorizes the FSO to enter or seal any premises, collect samples of food or any substance which is intended for sale or has been sold as food, mark or seize any food, apparatus or utensils which is in contravention to the Act or any of the rules and regulations made thereunder. Specifically, the challenged Section 13(1)(c) of the Act empowers the FSO to enter and seal premises which are involved in preparation, preservation, distribution, packaging or sale of food. On 6.12.2016 the Regulations were notified in the official gazette. These Regulations provide for the procedure to be followed for sealing and desealing any premises in the food business and further provide that a sealing order can be challenged before the Director General, PFA. It is relevant to note that these Regulations were not in field when the Petitioner's Restaurant was sealed.

12. Section 16 of the Act provides for an enforcement mechanism to be adopted by the FSO where he believes that a food operator has failed to comply with any of the provisions of the Act, rules or regulations. Therefore Section 16 of the Act requires the FSO to issue an improvement notice to the food operator before taking any action. If the food operator fails to comply with the improvement notice, the PFA can cancel or suspend the license of the food operator. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argument that in order to invoke the powers under Section 13(1)(c) of the Act, the FSO has to issue an improvement notice under Section 16 of the Act before sealing the premises is totally misconceived as the power under Section 13 of the Act is totally independent of the power under Section 16, which is an enforcement power. This power is invoked when the food operator has failed to comply with the provisions of the Act, the rules and the regulations despite notice from the FSO. Section 13 of the Act on the other hand authorizes the FSO to carry out the functions of regulating and monitoring the food business. Therefore the fundamental difference between both the Sections is that one is an enforcement mechanism while the other is a regulatory tool allowing the FSO to ensure that the food provider provides safe food. Hence the FSO can exercise powers under Section 13 as well as under Section 16 of the Act in different situations as neither section is dependent upon the other. The significance of Section 13 of the Act is that it enables the FSO to take necessary and immediate action where he finds that the food operator is providing unsafe food in an unhygienic manner in contravention to the standards, procedures, processes and guidelines provided by the PFA. The FSO can immediately enter, seal, seize or examine the premises or any apparatus or utensils from the premises where it is considered to be harmful and unsafe for human consumption. Clearly the intent of the legislature was to give the FSO the ability to take action not only to stop the harm but also to prevent further harm in cases where imminent danger to public health is involved.

13. The spirit of Section 13 of the Act is based on the precautionary principle which enables public authorities to legitimately impose precautionary measures in response to situations that may lead to imminent harm or damage. The Rio Declaration and Agenda 21 in 1992 adopted the precautionary principle as an instrument of self-executing powers that allows immediate action where there is some hazard or harm, in the form of a current or proposed activity that could lead to environmental degradation. Jurisprudence developed by our Superior Courts has incorporated the precautionary principle and affirmed its commitment to sustainable development and the protection of the environment. The court in Ms. Shehla Zia and others v. WAPDA (PLD 1994 SC 693) first recognized this principle in the following terms:

> The rule of precautionary policy is to first consider the welfare and safety of the human beings and the environment and then to pick up a policy and execute the plan which is more suited to obviate the possible dangers or make such alternate precautionary measures which may ensure safety. To stick to a particular plan on the basis of old studies or inconclusive research cannot be said to be a policy of prudence and precaution.

Subsequently, this principle has been cited and considered by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the cases cited at "Imrana Tiwana v. Province of Punjab, etc (2015 CLD 983) and "Adeel ur Rehman v Federation of Pakistan, etc. (2005 PTD 172). Over the years, jurisprudence from around the world has expanded the use of the precautionary principle to the function and authority of food regulators and matters of public health. The World Trade Organization Agreement on the Application of Sanitary and Phytosanitary Measures (adopted in 1995) and Regulation (EC) No. 178/ 2002 both employ the precautionary principle as a necessary tool for the application of food safety and protection of the public health. Article 7 of the Regulation (EC) No.178/2002 elaborates on the use of the Precautionary Principle for food safety as follows:

> 1. In specific circumstances where, following an assessment of available information, the possibility of harmful effects on health is identified but scientific uncertainty persists, provisional risk management measures necessary to ensure the high level of health protection chosen in the Community may be adopted, pending further scientific information for a more comprehensive risk assessment.
> 2. Measures adopted on the basis of paragraph 1 shall be proportionate and no more restrictive of trade than is required to achieve the high level of health protection chosen in the Community, regard being had to technical and economic feasibility and other factors regarded as legitimate in the matter under consideration. The measures shall be reviewed within a reasonable period of time, depending on the nature of the risk to life or health identified and the type of scientific information needed to clarify the scientific uncertainty.

The expansion of the precautionary principle in food safety laws has reaffirmed the public interest and the objectives of the precautionary principle to empower regulators to act in anticipation of any harm that can be detrimental to the health of the people. In this regard the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has considered the right to life in the case cited at 2005 PTD 172 (supra) holding that:

> It is the duty of the State to see that the life of a person is protected to enable him to enjoy it within the prescribed limits of law. Pollution, > environmental degradation and impure food items also fall in the category of deprivation of life.

Essentially the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has cast a duty on the state to protect the public from unsafe food under the fundamental right to life. This being so the power under Section 13(1)(c) of the Act ensures that the public is protected from unsafe foods by enabling the regulator to keep a check on the food operator and the food business in order to achieve the mandate of the Act and protect the public interest.

14. The issue of protecting the public at large versus the rights of the individual must be addressed as well. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case Regarding Pensionary Benefits of the Judges of the Superior Courts (PLD 2013 Supreme Court 829) held that:

> The interest of the public at large is to be given priority and preference over the interest of individuals, therefore, interest of public at large cannot be sacrificed to extend profane benefits to some individuals.

In light of this, the sealing of a food operator providing harmful, impure or unhygienic food becomes necessary to protect the public from potential harm. While protecting the interest of the public is necessary, a question arises as to whether the use of the precautionary principle or other self-executing powers would violate the individual's right to due process. The right to fair trial and due process are enshrined within Article 10-A of the Constitution. Superior Courts have accepted that certain deviations are necessary even with respect to the rights guaranteed under Article 10-A of the Constitution. In this regard, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case cited at Justice Khurshid Anwar Bhinder v. Federation of Pakistan (PLD 2010 SC 483) affirmed that where a right to prior notice and an opportunity of hearing before an order is passed will obstruct the taking of a prior action such a right of notice and hearing can be excluded. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also held that the rule of audi alteram partem can be excluded if importing a right to hearing has the effect of paralyzing an administrative process or the need for a prompt or urgent action as the situation demands. Thus, deviation from the right to be heard is necessary in cases where there is an imminent threat or possibility of imminent threat to the public at large. It was held in the case cited at Warid Telecom (Pvt.) Limited v Pakistan Telecommunication Authority (2015 SCMR 338) that it is necessary to take precautionary measures, as such measures ensure that no harm will occur during the time spent in due process so the need for such measures does not violate the right to fair trial and due process. So far as the individuals rights are concerned, being the food operator in this case, the Regulations governing the process of sealing and dealing ensure that the FSO does not act arbitrarily. Hence in terms of the Regulations any grievance of the food operator against the FSO can be raised before the Director General PFA giving an opportunity to appeal against any wrongful act of the FSO.

15. It is pertinent to note that FSO or other officers must have self executing powers that allow them to act immediately. This is necessary to protect the overriding objective of public health and food safety. The temporary nature of the FSO's action and the ability to review any action taken by the FSO, satisfies the due process requirement. Hence no violation of Article 10-A of the Constitution exists, nor is there a need to hinder the good administration by limiting the powers of the FSO.

16. It was also argued that the FSO visits food operators at night, after closing the premises which is intended to harass the food operator. The counsel argued that there is no reason to visit premises after closing hours. While exercising its power and functions under the Act, the FSO can inspect restaurants at any time deemed necessary especially since they are checking on the cleanliness standards, food safety and hygiene matters. In fact it would defeat the purpose of the Act if the FSO could only perform his duties during a stipulated time of the day. The Act is concerned with the safety and standards of food and to fulfill this objective it does not matter what time the FSO performs his function as the standard of the food should be consistent across the board at all times. Further if there is an apprehension that the food operators will conceal facts during working hours, the FSOs late night inspections may be necessary to ensure that the food operators are in compliance with safety and hygienic requirements. Hence inspections do not offend any right of the Petitioners. At the same time needless to say the FSO must remain mindful of their functions and not overstep by publishing posts or pictures of food operators that have been inspected on the social media. The Law Officer stated that this practice has been abandoned and is no longer used by the FSO. However since people have a right to information, the PFA may develop a monthly reporting process which informs the public of the actions of the food operators and the consequences of such actions. The objective being to establish good practices and not to create unnecessary publicity in such cases.

17. With respect to the vires of Section 52 of the Act, the learned Law Officer explained that the procedure for giving rewards is under consideration and rules in relation there to are being proposed, hence this provision has not been executed to date. A plain reading of the Section makes it clear that it does not cater for reward to only public officers meaning the FSO but includes the food operator as well. The word 'any person' in this section has been used to mean persons other than the FSO and can include the food operator, hence it will not give rise to incentives to unnecessarily seal premises as argued by the counsel. To the contrary it will encourage food operators to apply under the reward scheme for recognition and acknowledgement of the clean and healthy standards maintained by them. Moreover the Petitioners have not placed on record any document to show that any such action has been taken adverse to their interest. Therefore, there is no merit in this objection.

18. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. The instant Petition is dismissed.

(a) Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Ordinance (XIII of 2002)-

----S. 14---Constitution of Pakistan, Arts. 73 & 19---Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority (Radio Broadcast Station Operations) Regulations, 2012. Reglns. 7 & 9---Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Rules, 2009, R. 9---Money Bill---Nature of procedure---"PEMRA Fund"---Grant of licence by Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority, (PEMRA)---Licence to operate radio broadcasting---Licence fee---Renewal of such licence fee---Nature of licence fee deposited into the PEMRA Fund in terms of S.14 of the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002---Scope---Petitioners, impugned vires of S. 14 of the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002, in reference to imposition of "licence fee" and renewal for the same, for radio broadcasting licences---Contention of petitioners inter alia was that "renewal fee" was a "tax" and not a fee, as there was no quid pro quo for the said fee, and that the same was not passed as a Money Bill within meaning of Art.73(3)(a) of the Constitution---Validity ----Per Art.73(3)(a) of the Constitution, it was clear that a "licence fee" or "fee" was not a "tax" and that a licence fee was distinct from a fee or a charge for services rendered and it was not necessary that every licence have a quid pro quo or that licence fee or renewal fee be passed through a Money Bill---Article 73(3)(a) of the Constitution distinguished between "licence fee" and a "fee for services rendered" which meant that a licence fee did not require any quid pro quo but there must exist a correlation between fee charged and cost of administration under the relevant law---Licence fee must commensurate with the cost of regulating although exact arithmetical equivalence was not expected and such licence conferred a right on the licence-holder to do something which it otherwise could not do---PEMRA, in the present case, was required to regulate the licence-holder to ensure compliance of the law and terms of the licence---High Court observed that per the terms of the Constitution, a licence fee could be regulatory in nature where the regulator imposed a fee for regulating activities of the licence-holder and hence licence fee and its renewal fee did not need to be passed through a Money Bill nor did it require any quid pro quo.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule "A" appended with the judgment as all the Petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. The Petitioners are all aggrieved by the excessive renewal fees charged by the Respondent Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority, Islamabad ("PEMRA") for renewal of their respective FM Radio licences. The Petitioners have impugned order dated 3.1.2013 issued by the General Manager (Licensing), PEMRA whereby the quantum of the renewal fees was upheld by Respondent No.1, PEMRA and it was decided that the Petitioners are required to pay the renewal fees as demanded by PEMRA in order to renew their FM Radio Station Licences.

3. The facts of these cases are that the Petitioners are private limited companies engaged in the business of broadcast media which includes establishing, running, operating and maintaining FM Radio Channels. Petitioners Nos.1 and 2 participated in the open bidding for grant of FM Radio Broadcast Station Licences and were granted the said Licence for 10 years on 18.10.2002 to establish and operate a radio station in the name of "Mast FM 103" in Karachi, Lahore, Faisalabad and Multan for Petitioner No.1 and FM Radio Station in the name of "Power FM 99" in Islamabad, Abbottabad and Vehari for Petitioner No.2. The Petitioner No.1 paid Rs.3.5 million for Karachi, Rs.2.5 million for Lahore, Rs.2.00 million for Faisalabad and Rs.1.25 million for Multan whereas Petitioner No.2 paid Rs.2.5 million for Islamabad, Rs.100,000/- each for Abbottabad and Vehari as licence fee in the year 2002. In July 2010 the Petitioners Nos.1 and 2 applied for renewal of their licences before the end of the stipulated 10 year period and Respondent No.1 provided them with the renewal fees such that an amount of Rs.45.3378 million for Karachi, Rs.57.178 million for Lahore, Rs.32.969 million for Multan and Rs.6.003 million for Faisalabad to Petitioner No.l. Whereas Rs.44.404 million for Islamabad, Rs.10.462 million for Abbotabad and Rs.1.000 million for Vehari to Petitioner No.2 for renewal of their licences. The Petitioners sought a personal hearing from Respondent No.1 to discuss the quantum of the renewal fees. The hearing was granted and on 3.1.2013, the Petitioners received the decision of Respondent No.1, being the impugned order, whereby they were required to pay the renewal fees as demanded, such that 25% of the renewal fee be paid in two installments within 30 days and 75% to be paid in five equal annual installments each of 15% of the total renewal fee.

4. The same set of facts exist in the other petitions except W.Ps. Nos.12908/2013 and 12909/13. The demand for renewal fee may be seen from the table below:-

WP No.	FM Station	Licence fee	Renewal Fee
2446/13	Mast FM 103 Power FM 99	Rs.3.5 million for Karachi, Rs.2.5 million for Lahore, Rs.2.00 million for Faisalabad and Rs.1.25 million for Multan (Petitioner No.1) Rs.2.5 million for Islamabad, Rs. 1.00 million each for Abbottabad and Vehari (Petitioner No.2)	Rs.45.378 million for Karachi, Rs.57.178 million for Lahore, Rs.32.969 million for Multan and Rs.6.003 million for Faisalabad (For Petitioner No.1). Rs.44.404 million for Islamabad, Rs.10.462 million for Abbottabad and Rs.1.000 million Vehari (For Petitioner No.2).
4366/13	HUM FM 106.2	Rs.3.8 million for Karachi, Rs.3 million for Lahore and Rs.0.575 for Sukkur.	Rs.45.378 million for Karachi, Rs.57.178 million for Lahore and Rs.3.893 million for Sukkur.
4367/13	FM 107	Rs.2.549 million	45.378 million.
4368/13	FM 91	Rs.3.850 million for Karachi, Rs.3.3 million for Lahore and Rs.2.75 million for Islamabad.	Rs.45.378 million for Karachi, Rs.57.178 million for Lahore and Rs.44.404 million for Islamabad and Rs.1.00 million for Gawadar.
4369/13	FM 89	Rs.2.5 million as licence fee for Islamabad, Rs.3.5 million for Karachi, Rs.3 million for Lahore and Rs.1 million for Faisalabad.	Rs.45.378 million for Karachi, Rs.57.178 million for Lahore and Rs.44.404 million for Islamabad and Rs.6.603 million for Faisalabad.

4370/13	FM 105	Rs.0.105 million as base price.	Rs.6.4 million.
4371/13	FM 96	Rs.0.35 million	Rs.45.378 million
29949/14	Not mentioned	Not mentioned	Rs.1.445 million for Sialkot and Rs.65,145 million for Petitioner

5. In W.Ps. Nos.12908/13 and 12909/13, both the Petitioners are aggrieved by orders dated 9.4.2013 issued by PEMRA whereby they cancelled the bid offered by the Petitioner in W.P. No.12908/13 for Islamabad, Lahore and Hassanabdal and PEMRA has forfeited the deposited amounts of the stated Petitioner. Vide the same order PEMRA has cancelled the bid offered by the Petitioner in W.P. No.12909/13 for Karachi, Murree and Sheikhupura and forfeited the deposited amounts of the stated Petitioner.

6. In W.P. No.29949/14 the Petitioner participated in the open bidding for grant of FM Radio Broadcast Station Licence and was granted five FM Radio Broadcasting Licences for 10 years on 18.2.2002 to establish and operate Radio Stations in Sialkot, Peshawar, Mardan, Bannu and Mansehra. On 26.3.2012 the Petitioner requested the Respondents for renewal of its licence for Peshawar. On 23.5.2012 Respondent PEMRA notified that the Petitioner's licence would be considered for renewal. Through letter dated 7.9.2013 PEMRA asked the Petitioner to withdraw one of the five licences on account of the fact that the maximum numbers of licences it can have are four as per rules. On 18.9.2012 the Petitioner explained to PEMRA that the rules came into force in 2009 while the Petitioner was rightfully given five radio broadcasting licences in 2002, therefore, the rules cannot be given retrospective application. On 11.9.2012 the Petitioner received a letter from PEMRA to deposit Rs.1.445 million as renewal fee for licence to establish in Sialkot and also to provide documents showing no foreign funding to be delivered by 18.9.2012. On 3.1.2013 the Respondent conveyed to the Petitioner that the payment amount for Peshawar is Rs.65.145 million. The Petitioner was also directed to intimate which four licences it will have to renew and which one will be withdrawn. Further directed that if the Petitioner failed to comply with the payments the Respondent would hold rebidding. Hence the Petitioners have challenged the vires of Section 14 of the Ordinance.

7. The common grievance of the Petitioners is that they have invested huge amounts of money in their businesses and there is no justifiable reason for demanding such excessive renewal fees as no services are being rendered by PEMRA against the fees imposed. Also there is no connection between the cost of administrating the sector and the renewal fees charged which can justify the excessive renewal fees. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that there is no set formula or mathematical calculation on the basis of which the renewal fee is being fixed. It is an arbitrary exercise of power by the regulator without any justification simply to generate revenue. Hence the renewal fee tantamounts to a tax. Learned counsel argued that the FM Radio Broadcast Stations use the air for transmitting FM frequency and that air is not the property of the Government. The Petitioners generate their own frequency and are required to essentially pay for the spectrum and bandwidth allocation. Learned counsel further argued that there is no criteria in the rules setting the parameters on the basis of which the renewal fee can be charged. Since there is no substantive difference in the market area or the way of doing business, there appears to be no justification for increasing the renewal fees one hundred times for larger cities and multiple time for smaller cities. In furtherance of their arguments, the Petitioners have challenged the vires of Section 14 of the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 ("Ordinance") being ultra vires to Article 73(3)(a) read with Item No.54 of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") and also for being in violation of Articles 18, 19 and 19A of the Constitution. The Petitioners have also challenged the process of rebidding for renewal of licences for being arbitrary and discriminatory in violation of Article 25 of the Constitution. In this regard, it is their case that once granted licences in the year 2002, there is no justification or reason to call for bidding for the purposes of renewal of the licences.

8. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned counsel for Respondent PEMRA argued that the contentions of the Petitioners that Section 14 of the Ordinance is ultra vires to Article 73(3)(a) read with Item No.54 of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution on the touchstone of Articles 18, 19 and 19A of the Constitution is incorrect as the Respondent PEMRA is demanding enhanced rates for renewal of licences as compared to licence fee charged over 10 years ago. Learned counsel further argued that such an assertion is vindicated from a bare reading of Paras 11-16 and the Grounds of the petition. Learned counsel stated that the law enunciated by the competent legislature cannot be declared ultra vires of the constitutional provisions merely because the renewal fees demanded from the Petitioners does not suit them. Learned counsel further stated that the renewal fee has been calculated in accordance with PEMRA laws that is last bid price plus inflation rate. For facilitation of the licence holders for payment of the renewal fees, installments were allowed. Learned counsel argued that the bidding process for renewal of licences is being called arbitrary exercise of power and allegedly based on consideration of revenue collection. However he argued that firstly, the bidding process for grant of licence for the cities is not alien to PEMRA law and is provided in the Ordinance, Rules and Regulations. Secondly the bidding process shuts the door for undue influence and arbitrariness in issuance of such licences and renewal. Thirdly, the grant of radio licence through bidding cannot be compared with TV licences on the touchstone of Article 25 of the Constitution as the two sets of licences are different and in no way belong to same classification. Lastly bidding is always open, excludes arbitrariness and ensures transparency. Learned counsel argued that PEMRA is working within the legal frame enunciated by the legislature and it cannot conceive of any detrimental step or negative action against any of the licensee including the Petitioners.

9. In terms of what has been argued, the issues before the Court are firstly with respect to the vires of Section 14 of the Ordinance and the vires of Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority (Radio Broadcast Station Operations) Regulations, 2012 ("Regulations"). Secondly the bidding process under Section 19 of the Ordinance with reference to the renewal process and finally the quantum of fees charged for renewal of radio licences.

10. The first issue before the Court is the vires of Section 14 of the Ordinance which is reproduced below:

> 14 Fund.- (1) There shall be established a fund to be known as "PEMRA Fund" which shall vest in the Authority and shall be utilized by the Authority to meet charges in connection with its functions including payment of salaries and other remunerations to the Chairman, members, employees, experts and consultants of the Authority.
> (2) The Fund shall consist of.-
>
> (i) Seed money by the Federal Government;
>
> (ii) fees for issuance and renewal of licences for establishing and operating broadcast or CTV stations;
>
> (iii) loans obtained with the special or general sanction of the Federal Government;
>
> (iv) foreign aid obtained with sanction of and on such terms and conditions as may be approved by the Federal Government; and
> (v) all other sums received by the Authority from any other source.
>
> (3) The Authority may open and operate one or more accounts in local, or foreign currency, in any scheduled bank.
> (4) The Authority may invest its funds in such investments as it may, from time to time, determine.

11. The basic argument of the Petitioners is that the impugned renewal fee is a tax and not a fee, therefore is violative of the requirements of Article 73(3)(a) read with Item No.54 of the Constitution. That Section 14 of the Ordinance is ultra vires to Article 73(3)(a) as it was not passed as a Money Bill within the meaning of Article 73 of the Constitution. It is also their case that the impugned renewal fee has no connection with they cost of regulating the Petitioners under the licence or the Ordinance and that all amounts collected under the garb of licence fee, annual fee and renewal fee are maintained in a Fund created under Section 14 of the Ordinance which is not maintained as per the requirements of the Constitution. In this regard the argument is that the amounts in the Fund are not made public nor is it subject to the control of the Auditor General of Pakistan as required under Article 169 of the Constitution. It was also argued that all amounts collected under the garb of fees go into the Fund but instead are required to be deposited in the Federal Consolidated Fund as required under Article 78 of the Constitution. Therefore, the impugned renewal fee is a tax and its quantum cannot be justified against the cost of administrating the Petitioners under the Ordinance. The arguments raised by the Petitioners are premised on the ground that the impugned renewal fee is in the nature of a tax because there is no quid pro quo for the fees charged meaning that PEMRA does not provide any service to the Petitioners against the renewal fee. It is the case of the Petitioners that PEMRA merely regulates the content and conduct of the Petitioners and does not provide any service for the purposes of radio broadcasting. It is also their case that fees for services rendered may be imposed under Article 73(3)(a) of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973, however where the fee charged has no correlation to the regulatory cost or when there is no quid pro quo then it is in the nature of a tax and not a fee.

12. Article 73(3)(a) of the Constitution reads as follows:

A Bill shall not be deemed to be a Money Bill by reason only that it provides:

> (a) for the imposition or alteration of any fine or other pecuniary penalty, or for the demand or payment of a licence fee or a fee or charge for any service rendered; or

A bare reading of this Article makes it clear that a licence fee or fee is not a tax and that a licence fee is distinct from a fee or a charge for services rendered. Hence it is not necessary that every licence have a quid pro quo. It is also not necessary that the licence fee or renewal fee be passed through a Money Bill. This question was considered by the Indian Supreme Court where similar provisions of the constitution were under discussion. In the case titled Secunderabad Hyderabad Hotel v. Hyderabad Municipal (AIR 1999 SC 635) it was held that:

> It is, by now, well settled that a licence fee may be either regulatory or compensatory. When a fee is charged for rendering specific services a certain element of quid pro quo must be there between the service rendered and the fee charged so that the licence fee is commensurate with the cost of rendering the service although exact arithmetical equivalence is not expected. However, this is not the only kind of fee which can be charged. Licence fees can also be regulatory when the activities for which a licence is given require to be regulated or controlled. The fee which is charged for regulation for such activity would be validly classifiable as a fee and not a tax although no service is rendered. An element of quid pro quo for the levy of such fees is not required although such fees cannot be excessive.

It was also held in the case titled A.P. Paper Mills Ltd. v. Govt. of A.P. and another (2000) 8 Supreme Court Cases 167) that:

> Licence fee can be a regulatory fee and not a fee for any special services rendered. The purpose of the licence is to enable the authorities to supervise, regulate and monitor the activities relating to factories in that case with a view to secure proper enforcement of the provisions of the law. In such cases the element of quid pro quo is not required.

Three Judges of the Indian Supreme Court in the case titled Sreenivasa General Traders v. State of A.P. (1983) 4 SCC 353: (1983) 3 SCR 843) held that:

> The traditional view that there must be actual quid pro quo for a fee has undergone a sea change. The distinction between a tax and a fee lies primarily in the fact that a tax is levied as part of a common burden, while a fee is for payment of a specific benefit or privilege although the special advantage is secondary to the primary motive of regulation in public interest. If the element of revenue or general purpose of the State > predominates, the levy become a tax. In regard to fees there is, and must always be, correlation between the fee collected and the service intended to be rendered.

In the case titled Corpn. of Calcutta v. Liberty Cinema (AIR 1965 SC 1107: (1965) 2 SCR 477) where the matter was again considered by the Indian Supreme Court as under:

> There is a distinction between the licence fee and fee for services rendered. While former is not intended to be a fee for services rendered, the latter will require an element of quid pro quo.

13. Article 73(3)(a) of the Constitution clearly distinguishes between licence fee and a fee for services rendered which means that a licence fee does not require any quid pro quo but there must be correlation between the fee charged and the cost of administration under the relevant law. Essentially the licence fee must commensurate with the cost of regulating although exact arithmetical equivalence is not expected. The licence confers a right on the licence holder to do something which it otherwise could not do and in this case PEMRA is required to regulate the licence holder to ensure compliance of the law and the terms of the licence. Therefore in terms of the Constitution a licence fee can be regulatory in nature where the regulator imposes a fee for regulating the activities of the licence holder. In such cases there is no quid pro quo. In the instant cases the Petitioners have challenged the impugned renewal fee on the ground that it is excessive and that the excessive quantum cannot be justified as there is no quid pro quo and because the cost of regulating the Petitioners cannot be so high. Further that PEMRA provides no service or facility to the licence holders to justify the excessive demand. In this context, with reference to the vires of Section 14 of the Ordinance the arguments made before this Court are totally misconceived as the Constitution itself draws a distinction between tax and licence fee or a fee charged for services rendered. Furthermore the Petitioners have challenged the renewal fee which is an extension of the licence fee for a renewal period. The licence fee is a regulatory fee as is the renewal fee. Hence the licence fee and the renewal fee do not need to be passed through a Money Bill nor does it require any quid pro quo. Hence the challenge to the vires of the Section on these grounds has no merit. Furthermore since it is not a tax the licence fee or the renewal fee does not need to go into the Federal Consolidated Fund. So far as the arguments with respect to the requirements of Article 169 of the Constitution are concerned meaning that the Fund under Section 14 should be subjected to the control and monitoring of the Auditor General of Pakistan, there is merit. Article 169 provides that the Auditor General shall in relation to the accounts of any authority or body established by the Federation or a Province perform such functions and exercise such powers as may be determined by or under an Act of Parliament or by an order of the President. Section 3 of the Ordinance provides for the establishment of the Authority by notification of the Federal Government meaning thereby that it is an Authority established by the Federation. Therefore the accounts and the Fund of PEMRA have to be maintained in terms of the requirements provided for under Articles 169, 170 and 171 of the Constitution.

14. The next issue is the challenge to the rebidding process for renewal of the licences issued to the Petitioners and.the quantum of the renewal fee determined by PEMRA on the basis of the rebidding process. In order to appreciate the arguments raised the basic scheme of the law must be understood.

Scheme of Law

15. The relevant law is the PEMRA Ordinance. The Ordinance was promulgated to regulate broadcast media in Pakistan. In terms of the preamble, it is the duty of PEMRA to enlarge the choice of information, education and entertainment available to the people through the media. The primary role of PEMRA is to improve access to mass media and ensure accountability, transparency and good governance by optimizing the free flow of information. Section 4 of the Ordinance provides that PEMRA shall be responsible for regulating the establishment and operation of all broadcast media and distribution services in Pakistan. Further that PEMRA shall regulate the distribution of radio channels and that PEMRA can make regulations for carrying out the purposes of the Ordinance. Section 19 of the Ordinance authorizes PEMRA to issue licences for broadcast media and distribution services through an open and transparent bidding process. Section 20 of the Ordinance provides for the terms and conditions of the licence and in terms of both Sections 19 and 20 for the purposes of issuance of a licence, PEMRA can charge licence fee and an application process fee. Section 39 of the Ordinance is the rule making section which requires PEMRA to make rules for issuance of licences, its terms and conditions including any fees to be charged in connection with licences and related matters. In terms of Section 39 of the Ordinance, PEMRA issued the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Rules, 2009 ("Rules"). The Rules prescribe the licence criteria and the process for issuance of the licence, its terms and conditions and the terms on which a licence can be renewed. The relevant provisions of the Rules for the purposes of renewal of licences are Rules, 5 and 8 which are reproduced below:

> 5. Duration and renewal of licences: (1) The licence shall be granted for a period of five, ten or fifteen years subject to payment of fee as set out in Schedule-B.
> (2) The licence shall be valid for the term for which it is granted subject to the payment of annual fee or any other charges as set out in the Schedule-B.
> (3) The fee relating to the grant of licence, renewal thereof, late payment surcharge and fine, if any, shall be deposited in the account of the Authority.
> 8. Fees and security deposits: (1) Each successful applicant shall, within time prescribed by the Authority and before the issue of the licence, deposit the applicable licence fee and make a security deposit, if applicable, as set out in the Schedule-B. The security deposit shall be refundable after the expiry of one year of operation of the station to the satisfaction of the Authority.
> (2) Every licencee shall follow the specified time line relating to the payment of any dues of the Authority.

In terms of these Rules PEMRA charges the applicable licence fee, an annual fee and a renewal fee. The process of renewal is provided under Rule 12 of the Rules which is reproduced below:

> 12. Renewal of licence on expiry of the licence term: (1) A licencee may, at least six months prior to the expiry of the licence, apply to the Authority for renewal of its licence and the Authority may renew the licence subject to:
> (a) satisfactory past performance of the licencee;
>
> (b) the opinion of the concerned Council if the Authority so requires;
>
> (c) payment of the prescribed fee prevalent at the time of renewal and payment of outstanding dues, if any, and
> (d) fulfillment of any other terms and conditions as prescribed, or varied in the public interest, by the Authority from time to time.
>
> (2) In case of refusal to renew a licence the Authority shall record reasons in writing.
> (3) The Authority may renew a licence for such term as the original term of the licence bringing from the date of expiry of the licence.

16. In terms of Section 4(3) of the Ordinance, PEMRA notified the Regulations on 31.1.2012. The Regulations further detail the processes for grant of licence and its renewal. The relevant provisions of these Regulations are as follows:

> 4. Application for grant of a licence: (1) The Authority may invite, by advertising through media, the expression of interest (EOI) or applications from the general public, interested in establishing and operating radio broadcasting stations in any particular category or area of coverage in Pakistan, for award of licences through bidding under Section 19 of the Ordinance.
> (2) The application for grant of a licence to establish and operate a radio broadcast station shall be made on the application form specified by the Authority for such purpose from time to time.
> (3) The applicant shall indicate the desired category of licence, in terms of the area of coverage from amongst the given category and shall also provide the details of equipment intended to be used.
> (4) Each application for grant of a radio broadcast station licence shall be accompanied by such application processing fee (not-refundable) as determined by the Authority from time to time.
> (5) The Authority may, where applicable, forward the application to the Frequency Allocation Board (FAB) through Pakistan Telecommunication Authority (PTA) for frequency allocation.
> (6) The application may be processed simultaneously, however, the licence shall be issued only after scrutiny clearance from the Ministry of Interior, allocation of the frequency by FAB where applicable and on completion of other legal requirements.
> (7) Base price for the licence shall be determined by the Authority.
> 6. Issuance and refusal of licence: (1) The Authority shall process each application and on being satisfied that the applicant(s) fulfills the eligibility criteria and requirements of the Ordinance, rules and regulations may, on receipt of the applicable licence fee and prescribed security deposit, issue licence to the applicant(s).

Provided that security deposit shall be refundable after one year of satisfactory performance by the licencee and may be forfeited where the licence has failed either to commence its operation within given time or show satisfactory performance for one year:

Provided further that if at any time it is found that the licencee had provided false or misleading information/ certificate/ documents for issuance of the licence, the licence shall be withdrawn.

(2) The Authority, if satisfied that the applicant is not eligible for grant of licence or the issuance of licence to a particular person is not in the public interest may refuse grant of licence to such person by recording reasons in writing.

(3) Any change in the particulars of the applicant provided in the application shall be notified to the Authority without any delay.

(4) The Authority shall take decision on the application for a licence within one hundred days from receipt of the application subject to fulfillment of all the legal requirements, security clearance from the Ministry of Interior, and frequency allocation by FAB in relevant cases.

Provided that if more time is consumed in the processing of the application, the same shall not be construed as an expectancy to get a licence merely by reason that the application was not decided within 100 days.

7. Fees and security deposits: (1) The licence fee, annual fee other charges and licence renewal fees payable pursuant to these regulations shall be as determined by the Authority from time to time.

(2) A surcharge at the rate of five percent per month, up to a maximum of fifteen percent, for late payment of annual fee or licence renewal fee as the case may be, shall be payable:

Provided that without prejudice to the power of the Authority to revoke a licence, if a licencee fails to pay the outstanding dues including surcharge after expiry of three months from the due date, the licence shall be suspended and equipment shall be seized. However, the licence may be reinstated and equipment may be returned on payment of outstanding dues and such fine as the Authority may impose:

Provided further that if the licencee shows sufficient and reasonable cause, the Chairman may relax the due date by a maximum of seven days in exceptional cases for the reasons to be recorded in writing.

(3) The annual fee payable pursuant to the Ordinance, Rules and Regulations shall include such percentage of the gross advertisement revenue as determined by the Authority from time to time.

9. Renewal of licence on expiry of the licence term: (1) A licencee desirous of getting its licence renewed may, at least six months prior to the expiry of the licence, apply to the Authority for renewal of its licence and the Authority may renew the licence for such terms as deemed appropriate subject to:

(a) Fulfillment of eligibility criteria and other conditions as provided in the Ordinance, rules, regulations or otherwise prevalent at the time of renewal of the licence;

(b) Satisfactory past performance;

(c) Security clearance of the applicant by the Ministry of Interior:

Provided that if decision of Ministry of Interior regarding security clearance of the applicant is not received within a period of six months or before expiry of the licence, whichever is earlier, subject to fulfillment of other conditions, the licence may be renewed conditionally subject to security clearance by the Ministry of Interior and if the security clearance is refused the licence shall be withdrawn immediately without incurring any liability on part of the Authority.

(d) proof of registration with tax authorities for income tax and sales tax;

(e) the applicant must not be a defaulter of any financial institution, Federal Board of Revenue or any organization/ entity owned or operated by the Government of Pakistan.

(f) payment of renewal fee as applicable at the time of renewal, and

(g) payment of outstanding dues in respect of all licences that are held by the applicant, directly or indirectly.

(2) Licence renewal fee shall be prevailing applicable licence fee for the respective area and category of licence plus rate of inflation calculated as prescribed by the State Bank of Pakistan:

Provided that if bidding has not been held for such licence, the renewal fee shall be determined by the Authority.

(3) The Authority may decide not to renew a licence beyond the expiry date of the ongoing term after recording reasons in writing.

17. In terms of the Ordinance, PEMRA issues licences for broadcast media through a bidding process as per the terms and conditions provided in Section 20 of the Ordinance. A licence is for five, ten or fifteen years and each successful applicant has to pay a licence fee and an annual renewal fee plus a renewal fee if it wants renewal of the licence. In the cases before the Court all licences have been issued for ten years. The Rules define applicable licence fee to mean the licence fee prescribed by the Authority or where determined through a bidding process. The quantum of the licence fee and the annual renewal fee is provided in terms of Rule 5 in Schedule B of the Rules. In terms of Schedule B, licence fee is paid on a base price. The base price for all those cities where TV licenses have been issued is the last applicable fee meaning the last paid licence fee. The quantum of the licence fee is determined on the basis of the type of licence, whether commercial or non-commercial and the area where it operates, whether national, provincial or local. Hence the base price is the minimum licence fee which must be paid and which fee will vary as per the size of the city, town or area. A licence is granted on the basis of a bidding process and the applicable licence fee will be the highest bid which cannot be below the base price. In the instant cases the dispute relates to the renewal fee which was determined on the basis of a bidding process. In terms of Rule 5(3) of the Rules PEMRA has to determine the renewal fee. Regulation 9 of the Regulations provides that the renewal fee shall be the applicable licence fee for the category and the respective area plus the rate of inflation as calculated by State Bank of Pakistan. In terms of what was argued by learned counsel for PEMRA, Mr. Salman Akram Raja, the renewal fee under dispute was determined through a bidding process held in 2012 and all existing licence holders, being the Petitioners in this case, were given the right of first refusal to match the highest bid. He argued that the bidding process was adopted to set the renewal fee because the value of the licence has increased due to the increased market value for bandwidth. As per his contentions market forces determine the value of the bandwidth, hence when the licence period expired the licensees along with others were offered to participate in the bidding process or match the highest bid. He argued that using market forces to set the renewal fee was fair, transparent and as per industry practice. The Petitioners did not participate in the bidding process, hence they were offered the right to match the highest bid. Instead of accepting or rejecting the offer by PEMRA they challenged the renewal process in this Court through these Petitions. As per his arguments the quantum of the fee is high because the Petitioners use radio spectrum which is a scarce and valuable property of the state. The utilization of spectrum is regulated by the International Telecommunication Union ("ITU") and Pakistan is required to follow ITU protocols and standards for spectrum utilization. Hence the renewal fee is totally justified because if the Petitioners want to use a scarce and valuable state resource they have to pay the market value. He further argued that there is no vested right of renewal and the Petitioners are subject to the process adopted by PEMRA to determine renewal fee.

18. So far as the bidding process is concerned, neither the Ordinance nor the Rules or Regulations prescribe for rebidding for the purposes of renewal of the licence. Section 24(5) of the Ordinance provides that PEMRA may renew a licence on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed and in case of refusal to renew a licence, reasons have to be recorded in writing. The process for renewal is given under Rule 12 of the Rules where a licence holder must apply for renewal at least six months prior to the expiry of the licence. Through its application the licence holder, for the purposes of renewal, has to show its performance over the duration of the licence that it has paid the prescribed fee and all other dues and that it has satisfied all terms and conditions prescribed by PEMRA. Rule 12(3) of the Rules prescribes that PEMRA can renew the licence on the same terms as the original licence and in case PEMRA refuses to renew the licence it shall give reasons in writing. Therefore under the Ordinance and the Rules the licence holder has to show satisfactory performance and fulfillment of all terms and conditions prescribed under the licence or by PEMRA in public interest for the purposes of renewal. Regulation 9 of the Regulations further details this process by requiring PEMRA to ensure that the licence holder still meets the eligibility criteria and other conditions for grant of renewal of licence prescribed under the Rules. In addition security clearance is required from the Ministry of Interior from the Tax Authority and that the licence holder is not a defaulter of any financial institution or any government organization. The Regulations reiterate the requirement that all dues and payments must be made in order for the licence to be renewed. Regulation 9(2) of the Regulations specifically provides that if bidding has not been held for such licence, the renewal fee shall be determined by PEMRA meaning thereby that where bidding took place for issuance of the licence, it is not required for renewal of the licence. Therefore in terms of the Rules and Regulations a clear process has been set out for renewal of a radio licence. The prescribed process does not contemplate rebidding for the purposes of determining the renewal fee or for the renewal of the licence. In these circumstances rebidding for renewal purposes tantamounts to issuance of a fresh licence which is clearly contrary to the statutory procedure. Rule 12 of the Rules and Regulation 9 of the Regulations when read together creates a statutory right for the licence holder to have the licence renewed on the terms and conditions provided. Correspondingly PEMRA is obligated to follow the prescribed Rules and Regulations and hence PEMRA cannot go beyond its delegated power and set out a new process to renew a licence.

19. During the course of arguments the emphasis of the counsel for PEMRA was that rebidding for renewal purposes is necessary because the licence holder is allowed to use valuable state property in the form of radio spectrum. Utilization of radio spectrum means that a licence holder must pay the market value of the spectrum and in order to ensure that the market value is determined fairly and through a transparent process PEMRA offered all radio licences for rebidding. Hence PEMRA in its wisdom and authority decided to determine the renewal fee through a bidding process. He explained that the electromagnetic spectrum is a unique natural resource, which carries a high value for its utilization and placed reliance on the case titled Pakcom Limited and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2011 SC 44). Hence the justification for the exorbitant renewal fee is spectrum utilization. In this regard, two questions arise. First who regulates spectrum; and second whether PEMRA is authorized to charge radio licence holders renewal fees for spectrum utilization. Radio spectrum has three dimensions which govern its utilization that is time, space and frequency. If two radio signals occupy the same time and space on the same frequency it will create interference and disturbance which will adversely affect the dissemination of information. Radio spectrum uses electromagnetic waves called radio waves which are regulated by the ITU. The ITU determines which parts of the radio spectrum are to be used by different radio transmissions. A band is a small section of the spectrum of radio frequency in which channels are used. ITU has divided radio spectrum into bands extending from Very Low Frequencies (VLF) to Very Ultra, Super and Extremely High Frequencies (EHF) and beyond. The lower frequencies of the radio spectrum are used for "point-to-point" communications and for navigational aids. AM radio is located in the range between 300 and 3,000 kHz, known as the Medium Frequency band (MF). FM radio and VHF television (channels 2-13) are in the Very High Frequency band (VHF) from 30 to 300 MHz. The Ultra High Frequency band (UHF) from 300 to 3,000 MHz, is the location of UHF television (channels 14-51). Still higher frequencies are used for microwave relays and communication satellites. Spectrum allocation of frequency allocation is the division of the electromagnetic spectrum into radio frequencies or bands. Within Pakistan the Frequency Allocation Board ("FAB") allocates frequency to the radio licence. FAB falls under the control of the Pakistan Telecommunication Authority ("PTA") and is the exclusive authority to allocate and assign portions of radio frequency spectrum to radio broadcasting operators. FAB has set out a table of Frequency Allocations showing the allocation of bands to various services. The Board has a National Frequency Management and Monitoring System ("NFMMS") to monitor the frequency spectrtim through its fixed and mobile monitoring stations. Hence it authorizes the use of the frequency and monitors its utilization as per the standards of the ITU.

20. In the instant cases the record shows that FAB allocated the frequency to the Petitioners for the establishment of FM radio broadcasting. In terms of letter dated 2.11.2005 by FAB the Petitioner in W.P. No.2446/2013 was allocated its frequency and the letter clearly stipulates that the frequency allocated is the property of the state. Regulation 4(5) of the Regulations also clearly provides that PEMRA shall forward an application for FM Radio Broadcasting to FAB through the PTA for frequency allocation. Similar letters have been issued to the other Petitioners in the connected writ petitions by FAB. Therefore the spectrum allocation and spectrum utilization is regulated by PTA through FAB.

21. In terms of the Ordinance the mandate of PEMRA is to issue broadcast licences so as to enlarge the choice of information, education and knowledge to the public through the media. PEMRA is the licensing authority which issues broadcast licence and thereafter regulates content and the conduct of media broadcasters. PEMRA is required to ensure the free flow of information and the access to mass media for the general public. Hence in terms of the Ordinance it is not within PEMRA's mandate to regulate or charge for spectrum utilization and frequency allocation. Its function is to provide the free flow of information and to regulate broadcast media licensed under its regime. Even the terms of the licences issued to the Petitioners clearly show that the licence regulates the content and conduct of the Petitioners. The licence provides for the programming mix, the advertising and sponsorship standards and its requirements as well as the technical specifications. In order to ensure that the standards and requirements and content mix is maintained the licence also provides for the terms on which PEMRA can monitor, regulate and investigate the licensee's performance. Hence as per the terms and conditions of the licence PEMRA's role is as content and conduct regulator. It is also noted that the licences provided for the same terms and conditions for renewal as given under the Rules and Regulations. Therefore there appears to be no justification to condition the renewal on a rebidding process and to charge the renewal fee for spectrum utilization or frequency allocation.

22. The manner in which the renewal fee is to be determined is clearly stipulated in the Regulations. Regulation 9 provides that renewal fee shall be the applicable licence fee plus the rate of inflation calculated by the State Bank of Pakistan. Interestingly the Regulations have been issued by PEMRA yet it has totally ignored the prescribed process. In terms of Regulation 9 of the Regulations, the applicable licence fee is the fee paid by the licensee and in order to meet the increased cost, PEMRA is entitled to the cost of inflation. In these cases, since the licence fee is a regulatory fee, hence its renewal means a continuation of the licence fee plus cost of inflation. In such cases where the licence fee is regulatory, where no service or privilege is granted by the government authority and where the only purpose of the licence is regulatory meaning for enforcement of statutory requirements, then such a fee cannot be excessive. In the instant cases the chart in para 4 clearly evidences how the renewal fee has exceeded the applicable licence fee and in no way justifies the applicable regulatory cost. In the instant Petition Rs.3.5 million plus Rs.2.5 million was the applicable licence fee for Karachi and Lahore whereas the renewal fee is Rs.45 million and Rs.32 million respectively. In the same way for Islamabad it was increased from Rs.2.5 million to Rs.44 million. The proportion of the increase in the renewal fee is the same in the cases of the other Petitioners as depicted in the chart in para 4 of this judgment. In this way the impugned renewal fees are excessive and contrary to the scheme of law.

23. The other issue raised by the Petitioner in W.P. No.29949/14 is that PEMRA be restrained from acting under the Regulations and allow the stated Petitioners to operate five licences whereas Regulation 5(2) of the Regulations provides that a licensee can only operate four licences. The argument is that placing restrictions on the number of total licences is a restriction on the Petitioner's right to do business which is not justifiable. In this regard, it is noted that it is well within the regulatory function of PEMRA to cap the total number of licences for a licence holder as it falls within the mandate to regulate and ensure the free flow of information, enlarge the choice and increase access to mass media at local and community level. Therefore no illegality is made out on these grounds. So far as the Petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.12908/13 and 12909/13 are concerned, they participated in the bidding process for the purposes of renewal. They have impugned letter dated 12.10.2012 wherein PEMRA rejected their demand for the licence fee and security fee to be paid in installments.

24. Therefore for the same reasons enumerated above, these Petitions that is W.Ps. Nos. 12908/13, 12909/13 and W.P. No.29949/14 are dismissed as the rebidding process has been held to be illegal. It is clarified that if the Petitioners were licence holders then they are entitled to renewal in terms of the Ordinance and Rules read with Regulation 9 of the Regulations.

25. Under the circumstances, W.Ps. Nos.2446/13, 4366/13, 4367/13, 4368/13, 4369/13, 4370/13 and 4371/13 are allowed and the rebidding process held in 2012 as well as renewal fees demanded by PEMRA are declared illegal and against the mandate of the law. The impugned orders dated 3.1.2013 in W.P. Nos.2446/13, 4366/13, 4368/13, 4370/13, 4371/13 and dated 15.1.2013 in W.P. No.4369/13 are set aside to the extent that the renewal fee shall be determined on the basis of the applicable licence fee plus cost of inflation as determined by State Bank of Pakistan.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This is an appeal under section 23 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 ("Act") challenging impugned order dated 23.2.2011 passed by Respondent No.1 in Complaint No.229/10.

2. The case of the Appellant is that he was running a poultry farm since 1976. The land on which the poultry farm was running was obtained on lease for a period of 50 years. The poultry farm is located in an isolated place in the hills about 4/5 kilometers away from village Nandkot. Learned counsel for the Appellant submitted there are no dwellings near the poultry farm nor any population close to the poultry farm. There is a shed which has been made and a furnace and husk/litter is available for the poultry farm. Learned counsel submitted that Environmental Protection Order ("EPO") dated 8.9.2016 was issued without hearing the Appellant and, when the Appellant found out about the EPO he challenged it and .stated in his reply that the poultry farm was not functional from 18.1.2011 to April 2011. Learned counsel further submitted that the Appellant's poultry farm was made prior to the promulgation of the Act, hence the Appellant is not required to obtain No Objection Certificate under the Act. Learned counsel further submitted that a committee was formed to inspect the poultry farm of the Appellant in terms of order dated 18.1.2011 of the Environmental Tribunal ("Tribunal"). The committee visited the poultry farm of the Appellant without any notice to the Appellant and without taking the independent statement of the two witnesses of the locality as required in the order of the Tribunal dated 18.1.2011. Learned counsel submitted that the facts stated in the impugned order are incorrect. He clarified that poultry farm has been closed since then and the Appellant is facing great loss and if his poultry farm cannot be permitted to continue on the given land the investment made by the Appellant will be totally wasted.

3. Learned Law Officer argued that EPO was issued on 8.9.2010. The Appellant was aware of the environment hazardous being caused and the pollution, generated yet he ignored the EPO. He was served notices for hearing but he did not appear. Respondent No.2 then filed a complaint under section 21(3)(a) of the Act wherein it is specifically mentioned that the Appellant was polluting the environment not only in the form of bad smell but also that he did not have any proper waste disposal mechanism of the dead birds. He argued that the Respondent damaging the environment which was hazardous to the health of the people residing in the area. Learned Officer submitted that it is a populated area having residences and industries in the area. The Appellant poultry farm polluting the water in the Korang River and Rawal Lake as the farm is located in the catchment area. Learned Law Officer submitted that the Appellant was present at the time when the order was passed by the Tribunal. He raised no objection nor did he present any defence on his behalf. Therefore he is bound to comply with: the requirement of the impugned order failing which he cannot maintain the poultry farm business at the given location.

4. Heard and record perused. The impugned order dated 23.2.2011 passed by the Tribunal requires the Appellant to shift its poultry farm business from the given location at least 500 meters away from the residential area and 500 meters away from the water channel. The record shows that this order was passed in presence of the Appellant who admittedly raised no objection at that time nor did he raise any objection against the maintainability of the complaint or the factual report presented by the committee to the Tribunal. The record also shows that the EPO was issued on 8.9.2010 requiring immediate stoppage of the business of the Appellant. Admittedly No Objection Certificate has not been obtained from the Environment Protection Agency ("EPA") for carrying out the poultry farm business and despite service of notice on the Appellant he did not appear in the proceedings leading up to the EPO. Although, the learned counsel has denied receipt of any notice to him which is not sufficient to refute the record, and the order of the EPA which states that notices were issued, service was effected but he opted not to appear. The record also shows that even for the purposes of the appeal in order to effectuate and ensure the attendance of the Appellant before the Tribunal warrant for his arrest was issued on the basis of which the Appellant appeared before the Tribunal. Therefore the Appellant's contention that he was not served with the notices or that he had no knowledge of the EPO is without any basis. We also note that the Appellant was present on 18.1.2011 when he received copy of the complaint and he filed his reply wherein he claimed that there was a separate room in the poultry farm for keeping the litter and the dead birds/chicks were being burnt in the furnace. He also stated that the farm is at a reasonable distance from the populated area. On the basis of his statement the Tribunal ordered inspection of the premises and required two witnesses of the locality to verify the reply of the Appellant. The inspection took place on 11.2.2011 by Inam ul Haq, Inspector, EPA, Rawalpindi and District Officer (Environment), Rawalpindi. Workers of the poultry farm were present at the site and in their presence report was prepared. In terms of the report there were heaps of burnt poultry waste near the poultry farm. There was no soakage pit available and the workers used the jungle as toilet. The distance of nearby houses is approximately 50 meters from the poultry farm and the water channel runs through the farm sheds. On the basis of the said report, the Tribunal passed its order on 23.2.2011 in the presence of the Appellant who apparently was unable to refute any of the observations made by the inspection team on 11.2.2011. The presence of the Appellant during the time of the inspection is not relevant or material to the case as the fundamental objective of the inspection was to determine the condition of the poultry farm, its distance from any residential area and to ascertain whether there was a proper waste management system. Under the circumstances, no illegality has been made out in the impugned order dated 23.2.2011 passed by the Tribunal.

5. In view of the aforesaid, the instant appeal is dismissed.

ORDER

Through this ICA, the Appellant has impugned order dated 5.9.2016 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.27414/2016.

2. The facts of the case are that the Appellant after passing the matriculation exam applied for admission into General Nursing Training Course in the School of Nursing Mayo Hospital, Lahore. The Appellant joined the school on 7.1.2013. After completion of three years at the school, the Principal School of Nursing, Mayo Hospital, Lahore issued a provisional certificate with reference to the general nursing course attended. On 27.8.2016 the Appellant was issued a show cause notice alleging therein that she did not meet the merit for admission, hence her admission would be cancelled. She challenged the notice through W.P. No.27414/2016 before the learned Single Judge which was dismissed vide impugned order dated 5.9.2016. Learned counsel argued that after the issuance of show cause notice, a notice for personal hearing was issued on 6.9.2016 to the Appellant. Learned counsel stated that in compliance thereof the Appellant appeared before the Inquiry Committee yet the Principal of School of Nursing, Mayo Hospital, Lahore is threatening to terminate the admission of the Appellant.

3. The learned Law Officer raised the objection that it is just a show cause notice in which the Appellant was asked to submit her reply and relevant documents. Learned Law Officer further argued that the writ petition was not maintainable as a show cause notice was challenged in the said writ petition. He also stated that the Inquiry Committee has forwarded its recommendations to the competent authority who has yet to decide the matter.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. Admittedly the case of the Appellant was heard and recommendations have been forwarded to the competent authority. In the first instance the writ petition was not maintainable and we are in agreement with the findings of the learned Single Judge. At this stage there is no adverse finding against the Appellant. She apprehends that the Respondents will take coercive action against her. This Court in constitutional jurisdiction does not act upon mere apprehension. Furthermore it is just a show-cause notice and no substantive right is being infringed. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has held in the case titled Deputy Commissioner of Income Tax/Wealth Tax, Faisalabad and others v. Messrs Punjab Beverage Company (Pvt.) Ltd. (2007 PTD 1347) that tendency of by-passing the remedy provided under law, and resort to Constitutional jurisdiction of High court was deprecated. In view of the contents of the notice the Department only contemplates to take action against them. The petitioner instead of rushing to the High Court and consuming sufficient time should have submitted reply before invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court. We have held in the judgment that such practice is to be deprecated because if merely on the basis of show-cause notice proceedings are started then in such position department would never be in a position to proceed with the cases particularly the recovery of revenue etc. Thus keeping in view the circumstances of the case we are of the opinion that respondent had wrongly availed remedy under Article 199 of the Constitution.

6. In view of the aforesaid, the instant appeal is dismissed. The impugned order dated 5.9.2016 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.27414/2016 is maintained.

ORDER
The Appellant, Muhammad Ashraf has impugned order dated 24.02.2016 passed in W.P. No.2423/2016 whereby corrigendum dated 11.01.2016 issued by Respondent No.2 was set aside to the extent of Respondent No.3, thereby changing the election result.
2. The facts as per the Appellant are that the Appellant and Respondents Nos.3 and 4 contested the local government election against the seat of General Councilor from Ward No.5, Union Council No.36 ("UC"), Bola Bajwa, District Narowal on 05.12.2015. After consolidation of result, the name of the Appellant was forwarded as returned candidate for Ward No.5, Union Council No.36. However, the name of Respondent No.3 was published in the Official Gazette on 21.12.2015 as the returned candidate for Ward No.5 UC No.36. The Appellant submitted an application before the Election Commission for rectification of the mistake made in the notification issued on 21.12.2015. The application was accepted and a corrigendum was issued on 11.01.2016 whereafter the Appellant took oath of office as General Councilor. Respondent No.3 filed an election petition before the Election Tribunal on 13.01.2016, which is still pending before the Election Tribunal. In the meanwhile. Respondent No.3 also filed WP No.2423/2016 against application filed by the Appellant apprehending action by the Election Commission.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the impugned order dated 24.02.2016 be set aside the corrigendum issued by Respondent No.1 declaring the Appellant to be the returned candidate without due consideration of the fact that the Appellant was the winning candidate and it was on account of some clerical mistake that the name of Respondent No.3 was notified as the returned candidate. Learned counsel further argued that since an election petition had been filed by Respondent No.3, which is still pending before the Election Tribunal, the impugned order could not have interfered in the matter nor could the corrigendum have been set aside. Essentially, the corrigendum was issued to correct a clerical mistake and therefore, it did not merit any interference through a constitutional petition.

4. On behalf of Respondents Nos.3 and 4 it is argued that Respondent No.3 was declared the returned candidate for Ward No.5 UC No.36 after the issuance of notification on 21.12.2015. Subsequent thereto neither the returning officer nor the Election Commission could interfere in the matter, hence the corrigendum dated 11.01.2016 issued was totally illegal and against the statutory requirement of the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 ("Act") and the Punjab Local Government (Conduct of Elections) Rules, 2013 ("Rules"). Learned counsel argued that against the proceedings of the returning officer no appeal lies before the Election Commission, hence Respondent No.3 filed WP No.2423/2016 alleging that Respondents Nos.1 and 2 acted totally without jurisdiction. The impugned order while considering the matter held that the returning officer had become functus officio after 21.12.2015 and the notification in favour of Respondent No.3 was issued. Any dispute subsequent thereof could only be raised by way of election petition before the Election Tribunal and the returning officer could not have issued the corrigendum. Therefore, the corrigendum was set-aside with the observations that the present Appellant can avail his remedy before the Election Tribunal by filing an election petition.

5. We have heard learned counsel for the parties at length. The record shows that the writ petition was filed by Respondent No.3 in January, 2016 praying for a restraining order against the returning officer from proceeding on the application filed by the Appellant to rectify the error made in notifying Respondent No.3. The case was heard on 27.01.2016 by which time, the corrigendum had already been issued on 11.01.2016. In fact the order impugned before the Court in the writ petition showed that the returning officer had dismissed the application of the Appellant on the ground that his recommendations have already been forwarded to the Election Commission on this issue. The returning officer in its report before the Court submitted that the name of Respondent No.3 was erroneously notified instead of the Appellant, hence he sought correction of the notified result from the Election Commission. Section 37 of the Act provides that every election result shall be notified and Sections 38 and 39 of the Act provide that an election to office can only be called into question through an election petition before the Election Tribunal. In this case, the notified election result was sought to be corrected by the Election Commission by way of a corrigendum in complete disregard of the law. Once the election result was notified in terms of Rule 38 (4) read with Section 38 of the Act, the only recourse that an aggrieved candidate has is before the Election Tribunal. The Appellant moved an application before the returning officer after the notification of Respondent No.3 in the official gazette as the returned candidate. The Election Commission issued a corrigendum and notified a new result which was against the provisions of the law. In this regard, we agree with the learned Single Judge that the returning officer had become functus officio and could not have entertained the application or recommendation to the Election Commission. In the same way, the Election Commission could not have issued a corrigendum to change the notified election result.

6. We are of the opinion that the Election Commission could not have issued the corrigendum and should have directed the parties to take their dispute before the Election Tribunal where a petition between the same parties was already pending. Furthermore, we note that Respondent No.3 filed writ petition after the corrigendum was issued by impugning the order of the returning officer and not the corrigendum. The learned single Judge set aside the corrigendum which declared the Appellant as the winning candidate by setting aside the declared and notified election result. In this way the Election Commission acted without jurisdiction as it has no power or authority under the law to set aside a notified election result and declare a fresh result. After the issuance of a notification in the Official Gazette under Section 37 of the Act an election dispute can only be resolved by way of an election petition before the Election Tribunal. In this case, Respondent No.3 was declared the winner and notified as the winning candidate on 21.12.2015. Subsequently, by way of the corrigendum the Appellant was declared as the winning candidate. Thereafter, the impugned order set aside the corrigendum and once again put Respondent No.3 in office as the winning candidate. Under the circumstances, since the situation is the same as it was when the result was declared on 21.12.2015, we are not inclined to interfere in the matter as it will not be in the interest of justice. The dispute arose when Respondent No.3 was declared the winning candidate. Therefore, if the Appellant is aggrieved by the declared result of Respondent No.3, his remedy lies before the Election Tribunal.

7. In view of the aforesaid, appeal is dismissed.

ORDER

Through this single order we intend to decide the instant Intra Court Appeal as well as I.C.A. No.392/2016 and I.C.A. No.393/2016 as the cause of action is similar in all the appeals.

2. Through the instant Intra Court Appeal as well as the above-mentioned appeals, the Appellants have called in question the legality of impugned orders all dated 29.02.2016 passed in Writ Petition No.10090/2015, Writ Petition No.10091/2015 and Writ Petition No.10092/2015 by the learned Single Judge whereby their writ petitions were dismissed.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellants argued that the learned Single Judge in the impugned orders has not appreciated the fact that the District and Sessions Judge could enjoy full powers to relax age limit in respect of their inferior appointments to any extent; that the case of the Appellants for relaxation of upper age limit has never been considered by the Respondent No.2; that the Appellants have been applying for the said posts in past but unfortunately have not been successful and now have become overage, as such exceptional circumstances duly emerged because stroke of bad luck was beyond their control; that during the pendency of the writ petition similarly placed children of serving/retired employees have been allowed relaxation of upper age limit but the Appellants have been deprived of the same, as such it is a clear case of discrimination. Learned counsel for the Appellants in support of his contentions has placed reliance on the case titled Government of Punjab through Secretary (S&GAD), Lahore and another v. Zafar Maqbool Khan and others (2012 SCMR 686).

4. On the other hand learned Law Officer contested the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Appellants and prayed for dismissal of all the appeals on the grounds that there is no illegality in the impugned orders; that the impugned orders have been passed in accordance with law as the Appellants have failed to establish exceptional circumstances.

5. We have heard the arguments of the learned counsel for the Appellant and learned AAG and examined the record.

6. Through these appeals the Appellants have sought a direction to the Respondent No.2 for considering the issue of relaxation of age and further their appointments as Process Server from the 20% quota of the serving /retired employees. From the perusal of record it reveals that the Appellants have filed their applications for relaxation of upper age limit on 18.03.2015 and 19.03.2015 whereas the advertisement for the questioned posts clearly mentions that for the post at Serial No.1 favour can be given in relaxation of upper age limit up-to five years as per the policies of Government of Punjab as well as this Court. It was also mentioned in the advertisement that to seek relaxation of upper age limit the candidates must append a separate application giving reasons for relaxation. The perusal of advertisement also reveals that the cutoff date for submission of applications was 28.04.2014 along with specific condition that the applications submitted after the cutoff date and incomplete applications will not be considered. So, in the attending circumstances, it was essential for the Appellants to submit applications for relaxation of upper age limit along with the application for the post of Process Server whereas the Appellants have filed the applications for relaxation of upper age limit much later to cutoff date i.e. on 19.03.2015. From the record it is clear that the District and Sessions Judge, Lahore on 18.03.2015 and 20.03.2015 referred the applications to the Senior Civil Judge/Chairman Recruitment Committee. However, on 30.03.2015 the Senior Civil Judge/Chairman Recruitment Committee dismissed the applications against which writ petitions were filed. It is further observed that the Appellants were well within their knowledge that they have exceeded the required age limit but even they did not bother to given applications for relaxation of upper age limit mentioning therein reasons for the same before the cutoff date. Therefore, suffice it to say that the Appellants are not entitled to seek relaxation of upper age limit at this stage. As observed above, neither the Appellants have given any reason for relaxation of upper age limit before the learned Single Judge and before use as well nor any exceptional circumstances have been established at this stage.

7. Furthermore, from the perusal of impugned order it reveals that the learned Single Judge has observed that the Appellants have failed to establish exceptional circumstances i.e. cases involving factors beyond human control for relaxation in upper age limit. The word 'exceptional circumstances' has been used by the Honourable Supreme Court in case titled Deputy Director Social Welfare v. Mohammad Laique (2004 PLC (C.S.) 595) in which it was held as follows:

"we cannot subscribe to this narrow interpretation of the judgment and irrespective of the fact whether this ground was taken in the Memo. of petition or not, would like to observe that exceptional situation must be spelt out from the record rather than recently accepted on erroneous assumptions."

8. We see no illegality or perversity in the impugned order which does not warrant any interference by us. The case law cited by the learned counsel for the Appellants is distinguishable to the case in hand as such has no relevancy.

9. In view of above, the instant appeal as well as abovementioned appeals, being devoid of any merit, are accordingly dismissed.

Mian Muhammad Mudassar Bodla, Advocate for Petitioners.

Date of hearing: 24.3.2017.

ORDER

Through this petition, the petitioners have impugned orders dated 21.6.2016 and 10.1.2017 issued by Respondents No. 2 and 3.

2. The basic grievance of the petitioners is that Respondent No. 3 has issued its order without considering the facts of the case, without considering any documents and without recording of evidence. Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that Respondent No. 1 challenged the bill for the months of May and June 2015 before Respondent No. 2, Provincial Office of Inspection/ Electric Inspector to Government of Punjab, Gujranwala. During the pendency of the case, Respondent No. 1 issued an affidavit that he will withdraw his petition before Respondent No. 1 that he will pay the bill as required by the petitioners and in this regard, he also submitted an affidavit. Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that Respondent No. 2 did not rely upon the affidavit and instead proceed with the merits of the case. Even on the merits of the case, a liability has been imposed on the petitioners which liability is contrary to the record. Learned counsel argued that the petitioners have been directed to refund certain amounts to Respondent No. 1 which refund is not made out and is contrary to the record.

3. The record shows that Respondent No. 1 filed a complaint before Respondent No. 2 in relation to its bill for the months of April, May and June 2015. It was the case of Respondent No. 1 that the meter was defective and that the metering equipment was slow. The record also shows that the petitioners do not deny the fact that display of the meter was not functional for the disputed months and that Respondent No. 1 was charged on estimation based on the consumption of corresponding months of the previous year. Respondent No. 2 heard the matter, considered various different documents including the test reports with respect to the meter and while relying on the admission of the petitioners that the display of the impugned meter and electromechanical backup meter was not functional and since April 2015, directed that an estimated bill be issued based on the readings of the corresponding months for the previous year. Respondent No. 2 found that the bill issued was not based on actual consumption but instead 100020 units were estimated as consumption. Furthermore for the disputed period no detection bill was issued and that the impugned meter was removed by Respondents themselves without issuing a detection bill. It was also stated that the impugned meter was not produced before Respondent No. 2, hence based on the consumption data, it was found that an incorrect bill had been issued to Respondent No. 1. Respondent No. 2 thereafter directed that the impugned bills be withdrawn, revised bills for the disputed months be issued based on the consumption recorded in the corresponding months of the previous year. This decision was upheld by Respondent No. 3, Appellate Board & National Electric Power Regulatory Authority who also found that the consumption relied upon by the petitioner is not correct as it is not made out from the record. The petitioners are aggrieved by these orders even though it is their own case that the bill is made on the estimation of the corresponding months for the previous years.

4. Under the circumstances, since this matter has been looked into by Respondent No. 2 and upheld by Respondent No. 3, no illegality has been made out. The matter has been properly looked at great detail by both the Respondents after going through the record before them and decided the matter based on the available record. The petitioners have failed to point out any illegality against the impugned orders especially since it is admitted that the meter was faulty for the disputed months.

5. In view of the aforesaid, the instant petition is dismissed in limine.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this consolidated order, I intend to decide upon the issues raised in W.Ps. Nos.6565/2015, 27554/2013, 2901/2014 and 40714/2016 as common questions of law arise in all the stated petitions.

2. The Petitioners are all taxpayers and their common grievance is that they did not file the withholding tax statement as required under section 165 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance"), hence the Respondents issued show-cause notices calling for an explanation and stating that they are liable to the penalty under Section 182 (1) of the Ordinance.

3. The Petitioners have challenged the vires of Section 182(1) of the Ordinance, which provides that a person who fails to furnish the statement as required under Section 165 of the Ordinance within the due date shall pay a penalty of Rs.2500/- for each day of default subject to a minimum penalty of Rs. 50,000/-. In the case of instant petition, show-cause notice was issued on 16.02.2015, which states that the Petitioner failed to file the statement under Section 165 of the Ordinance for the stated period and the Petitioner was asked to justify its failure to e-file the statement within the given time and to produce any document/information in support of its explanation before the Respondents for verification of the information provided. The Petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.27554/2013, 2901/2014 and 40714/2016 were issued show-cause notices on 26.09.2013, 17.01.2014 and 14.12.2016 providing the details of the days of default for not filing the statement, the penalty amount. The Petitioners have been asked to explain their failure to e-file monthly statement as per Section 165 of the Ordinance.

4. Counsel for the Petitioners argued that Section 182(1) of the Ordinance is ultra vires the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") as the Constitution only authorizes Parliament to make laws regarding tax on income and they cannot legislate on penalty for non-filing the statement under Section 165 of the Ordinance. Learned counsel further argued that Section 182(1) does not give the Petitioners any chance to have the delay condoned as the Respondents will operate in a mechanical way. They argued that the quantum of the penalty is excessive and not justified.

5. Report and para wise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned counsel for the Respondents argued that the Constitution provides under Article 73(2)(a) for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax and these subject matters fall within the definition of Money Bill. Learned counsel further argued that the definition of tax as given in Section 2(63) of the Ordinance, includes penalty, therefore, the legislature is competent to legislate on any matter for the purposes of regulating any tax. Learned counsel argued that for the purposes of the instant petitions show-cause notices have been impugned. The Petitioners are required to file their replies and explain the cause of the delay or non-filing the statements. In such cases, the Respondents undertake a verification process so as to determine whether or not the Petitioners non-filing was deliberate or technical and they also determine whether there was any loss of revenue and thereafter, determine whether minimum or maximum penalty should be levied. In such cases the competent authority looks into the matter and decides it as per the facts of the case.

6. Report and para wise comments have also been filed by the Federation of Pakistan. Learned Assistant Attorney General for Pakistan adopts the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Respondents.

7. The Petitioners are admittedly non-filers or late filers of the Statement required under Section 165 of the Ordinance. Consequently, show-cause notices were issued to them wherein they were asked to explain their failure in filing the statement under Section 165 of the Ordinance. In terms of Article 73 of the Constitution for the purposes of a Money Bill any provision dealing with the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax is included meaning thereby that any law relating to the regulation of any tax falls within the domain of Money Bill. The purpose of the penalty section is to ensure that the statutory provisions of the Ordinance are complied with and failure to do so will render a taxpayer liable under section 182 of the Ordinance. For the purposes of levy of penalty an exercise has to be carried out by the Respondents wherein they have to determine whether or not the non-filing was deliberate and whether it was done with mala fide intent. For the purpose of levy of penalty mens rea is an essential ingredient, which has to be established in terms of the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan rendered in a case cited at "D.G. Khan Cement Company Ltd and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others)" (2004 SCMR 456), therefore, as such any challenge to the vires of section 182(1) of the Ordinance is not made out. Furthermore, the Petitioners have impugned a show-cause notice in terms of which a reply was sought and the matter needs to be looked into by the competent authority. As so far there is no determination on minimum or maximum penalty which is contemplated in section 182(1) of the Ordinance itself. Hence no case for interference is made out.

8. The Petitioners are directed to file replies to the impugned show-cause notices raising all their contentions within seven days of receipt of certified copy of this order and if such replies are filed, the same will be decided strictly in accordance with law through a speaking order by the competent authority before taking any coercive action against the Petitioners. However, if such replies are not filed within the stipulated period, the Respondent FBR will be at liberty to proceed in the matter in accordance with law.

9. Disposed of in the above terms.

KMZ/A-77/L Order accordingly.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- This single judgment decides upon the issues raised in the titled Writ Petition as well as W.P. No.69026 of 2017 as common question of law and facts are involved.

2. The Petitioners are candidates for the post of Assistant District Public Prosecutor ("ADPP") for which the closing date for submitting applications was 14.09.2017. Their grievance is that in terms of the impugned advertisement candidates who are between the ages 25 to 35 years can apply for the post but the cut off date for determining the eligibility of age was mentioned as 01.01.2017

whereas for the purposes of experience the cut off date was 14.09.2017. The case of the Petitioners is that the cut off date for determining the eligibility of age is arbitrary and discriminatory. He argued that the Petitioners were underage on 01.01.2017 but become eligible prior to 14.09.2017. Learned counsel further argued that the cut off date as given in the advertisement is contrary to the requirements of law which has no justification. It is also argued that previously in the years 2011, 2012, 2015 and 2016 applications for the same post were advertised without any cut off date and suddenly in the impugned advertisement the cut off date is incorporated. Learned counsel argued that this is a case of blatant discrimination because there is no cut off date for determining age for any posts, including posts advertised in the last one week. In this regard various different advertisement issued by the Punjab Public Service Commission ("PPSC") have been placed on record.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by Respondents Nos.2 and 3. On behalf of the stated Respondents, it was argued that the fixation of the age is as per Policy Decision No.8.1 which is in line with the requirements of the Punjab Civil Servants (Appointment and Conditions of Services) Rules, 1974 ("Rules"), which also provides that the age shall be determined as on the first of January of the year in which the examination is proposed to be held.

4. Learned Law Officer on behalf of Respondent No.1 stated that the requirement of the law is given in Rule 18 of the Rules and the policy and practice must be in line with the requirements of the law. Learned Law Officer stated that so far as the allegation of discrimination is concerned, it is for Respondents Nos.2 and 3 to explain why they have acted in contravention to the requirements of the Rules which have been in place since 1976. He further highlighted that the Petitioners before the Court claim to be underage on 01.01.2017, however, there will be other candidates who will be prejudiced if the cut off date is changed to 15.09.2017 as they will become overage on the said date.

5. Heard and record perused.

6. The basic grievance of the Petitioners is with respect to the cut off date for the post of ADPP given in the advertisement dated 24.08.2017. In terms of the age requirement it is noted that this post was also advertised in the years 2011, 2012, 2015 and 2016 and no cut off date was prescribed in any of those years. Policy Decision No.8.1 came in October, 2016 and provides that in the case of Competitive/Combined Competitive Examination, the qualifying age shall be reckoned as on the first of January of the year in which the examination is proposed to be held. This Policy Decision is stated to be in terms of the requirement of Rule 18(2) of the Rules, which provides that where recruitment is to be made on the basis of a written examination, age shall be reckoned as on the first of January of the year at which the examination is proposed to be held and in all other cases it shall be on the last date fixed for submission of application for appointment. Admittedly, the Policy Decision came in October, 2016 and prior to October, 2016 despite the fact that Rule 18(2) of the Rules provided the requirement for determining age, it was not followed by the PPSC. The effect of this negligent act on behalf of the PPSC is that they have developed a practice of recruiting, for competitive posts and in this case for the post of ADPP, without resort to cut off date of first of January of the year in which the examination is proposed to be held. Consequently, aspiring applicants to this post pursuant to the impugned advertisement 2017 are not aware of the requirement of Rule 18(2) of the Rules or Policy Decision 8.1. The Respondent PPSC in October 2016 incorporated the requirement of the Rules in its Policy Decision and on the basis of the same has issued the impugned advertisement with the cut off date without any notice or information to the public.

7. The PPSC is a statutory authority which is required to conduct test and examination for recruitment to provincial services and posts connected with the affairs of the Province. Recruitment is based on the requisition of the department which stipulates its requirements and number of vacant posts. The PPSC is required to fill the vacant posts in a transparent manner through competitive examination. In doing so the Rules are binding on the PPSC and neglecting to follow the Rules is failure on its part to do its job with care and attention as required under the PPSC Act. As per the record, the PPSC over the years has evolved its own mechanism for recruitment to the post of ADPP which is not in accordance with the specific requirement of Rule 18 of the Rules. Counsel for the PPSC was unable to explain the past practice and why PPSC has neglected to ensure that recruitment to the post of ADPP did not prescribe the cut off date stipulated clearly in Rule 18 of the Rules. Under the circumstances due to the irresponsible acts of the PPSC the present Petitioners along with all applicants for the post of ADPP cannot be burdened with discriminatory treatment on account of an established practice of PPSC. The PPSC brought about a sudden change in its Policy in October, 2016 wherein Policy Decision 8.1 was introduced for the first time, be in line with the requirements of the Rules. Even this Policy Decision was never made public or properly announced well before the recruitment process. Hence the Petitioners and other applicants were not aware of the Policy Decision. Therefore as a one time exemption, in order to ensure that the Petitioners along with all other applicants are not prejudiced in any manner, they be allowed to compete for the post of ADPP wherein the cut off date 01.01.2017 will not be made applicable and instead the cut off date of 14.09.2017 will be relevant for the purposes of determining age. In this regard, it is clarified that the applicants who were underage as on 01.01.2017 and/or who have become overage after 01.01.2017 will be eligible to compete for the post of ADPP so long as they are eligible with reference to age as on the cut off date of 14.09.2017. However, as a future course of action the PPSC will ensure to public its Policy Decision No.8.1 not only on the website but also in leading newspapers so that the public at large is informed that the policy requirement as of October, 2016 for the purposes of recruitment made on the basis of written examination, the age shall be determined as on first January of the year in which the examination is proposed to be held.

8. For what has been discussed above, both these petitions are allowed and it is ordered that the benefit of this judgment shall be extended to all applicants by the Respondents for the post of ADPP who are not party to this case or before the Court yet fall in the category as explained above, with reference to the cut off date for age determination, in order to avoid multiple litigation.

Tariq Masood for Appellant.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--The Appellant is aggrieved by the judgment dated 18.06.2015 passed in W.P. No.3693/2014 wherein his petition challenging the grant of Khula by Judge Family Court, Lahore dated 03.01.2014 was dismissed by learned Single Judge.

2. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the impugned judgment has upheld the order of Judge Family Court, Lahore dated 03.01.2014 wherein Khula was granted to Respondent No. 2 without following due process. Specifically Respondent No.2 was required to return the Haq Mehr which included 40 tolas gold ornaments given to her at the time of marriage in lieu of the decree for dissolution of marriage. In support of his contention, learned counsel has placed reliance on the cases cited at Muhammad Zafar v. Judge Family Court and another (2005 CLC 1844) and Mst. Ishrat Bano v. Noor Hussain and 2 others 2010 YLR 2452.

3. We have gone through the record as well as the impugned judgment and find that no case for interference is made out. Respondent No.2 filed a suit for dissolution of marriage on the basis of Khula, which was decreed by Judge Family Court, Lahore on 03.01.2014. In terms of the order dated 03.01.2014 Respondent No.2 was required to return the amount of Rs.1,000/- to the Appellant as Zar-e-Khula. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that Respondent No.2 was also required to return 40 tolas gold ornaments, which was given to her by the Appellant at the time of marriage. In this regard, he has relied upon Nikahnama, which provides in clause 17 as a special condition that the Appellant will provide Respondent No.2, 40 tolas gold which will be in the ownership of Respondent No.2. Learned counsel has argued that clause 17 of the Nikahnama is a special condition for Haq Mehr as provided in clauses 13 to 16 of the Nikahnama. Learned counsel further argued that clauses Nos.13,14, 16 and 17 have to be read together as a whole, meaning thereby that at the time of Khula, Respondent No.2 was to return Rs.1,000/- as prescribed in clause 13 along with 40 tolas gold as prescribed in clause 17. We find that the arguments of the learned counsel for the Appellant are misconceived and contrary to the terms and conditions of the Nikahnama. Clause 13 deals with the quantity of Haq Mehr, clause 14 requires the payment to be offered prompt or deferred, clause 15 contemplates whether any part of the payment will be made at the time of marriage and clause 16 provides whether the whole Mehr or in lieu thereof any part of the property has been given. Clause 17 is an independent clause, which provides ( ) which means any special condition attached to the contract of marriage. This special condition is not related to Haq Mehr but is an independent clause, meaning thereby that any item given through this clause to Respondent No.2 does not have to be returned by Respondent No.2 for grant of Khula. The amount of Haq Mehr and its payment is a specific condition of the contract contained in clauses 13, 14,15 and 16 of the Nikahnama. Clause 17 is an independent clause, which is not related to the amount of Haq Mehr. It allows the parties to make any special condition at the time of the Nikah. Therefore, we are of the opinion that no illegality is made out in the impugned judgment of a learned Single Judge in this connection. We note that the cases relied upon are judgments of a learned Single Judge of this Court and are not binding on this Court. Even otherwise they are not relevant to the issue at hand. Appeal is dismissed.

East and West Steamship Co. v. The Collector of Customs and others PLD 1976 SC 618 rel.
Mian Abdul Bari Rashid for Petitioner.
Muhammad Anwar Khan for Respondents.
Date of hearing: 25th September, 2017.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner seeks a declaration that S.R.O. 563(I)/2017 dated 01.07.2017 ("Impugned SRO") whereby the S.R.O. 499(I)/2009 dated 30.06.2009 was amended cannot be made applicable on the goods of the Petitioner, which were imported prior to the issuance of Impugned SRO.

2. The relevant facts of the case are that the Petitioner imported goods of old and used auto parts from Japan for which invoice packing list was prepared on 30.05.2017. The goods were shipped for Pakistan vide bill of lading dated 23.05.2017 and reached Karachi Seaport on 29.06.2017 in terms of the Import

General Manifest ("IGM"). The goods were then transshipped to Lahore Dry Port, Thokar Niaz Baig Lahore on 01.07.2017. The Petitioner requested for examination of the goods, which was done on 05.07.2017 and subsequently the Goods Declaration ("GD") was filed on 08.07.2017 for clearance of the goods. The Petitioner was informed that the entire consignment cannot be released in terms of S.R.O. 499(I)/2009 dated 30.06.2009 on account of amendment made in the Impugned SRO. Hence this Petition.

3. The grievance of the Petitioner is that Impugned SRO is not applicable to the Petitioner as the goods were imported into Pakistan prior to 01.07.2017. Learned counsel argued that the import of goods will be taken from the time when the goods enter the territorial waters of Pakistan. Learned counsel further argued that the IGM clearly shows that the goods were imported into Pakistan on 29.06.2017 whereas the Impugned SRO was issued on 01.07.2017. Learned counsel argued that the GD is made for the purposes of determining the amount of duty payable under the Customs Act, 1969 ("Act") and the rate at which the duty is payable. Therefore, the Impugned SRO cannot be made applicable on the goods imported by the Petitioner.

4. Report and para wise comments have been filed by the Respondents. It is their case that the relevant date for determining the applicability of the Impugned SRO is the date when the GD was filed being 08.07.2017. Learned counsel explained that used goods were imported by the Petitioner. After confiscation of the goods under section 181 of the Act it was found that eight used front/half cut show fitted with engines, dash boards and other accessories could not be redeemed on payment of redemption fine in lieu of confiscation under section 181 of the Act on account of their exclusion from clause (e) of Serial No.2 of the table in SRO 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009, which was amended by the Impugned SRO on 01.07.2017. Learned counsel further argued that since the Federal Government has prohibited the import of chassis of used automotive vehicles cut into minimum of two pieces, eight goods of the Petitioner cannot be released.

5. Heard and record perused.

6. The basic issue before the Court is whether the goods of the Petitioner being eight used front/half cut show fitted with engines, dash boards and other accessories can be released under S.R.O. 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009. Or whether the Impugned SRO is applicable on the stated goods imported by the Petitioner. The record shows that the Petitioner imported old and used auto parts having a total US$ 3,904.00. The goods were imported from Yokohama Japan to Karachi through one container by sea. The goods arrived at Seaport Karachi on 29.06.2017 as per the IGM, which is evident from GD filed by the Petitioner. It is noted that the date of IGM is not disputed by the Respondents. As per the Act an IGM is issued to the carrier when the ship is anchored at an allocated port. The IGM provides details of the goods aboard the vessel containing information relevant for the custom authority such as name of the sender, name of the receiver and the description of the shipped goods. Therefore, once the goods arrive within the territorial waters of Pakistan, they become chargeable to custom duty and thereafter, the importer has to declare the goods for the purposes of levy of custom duty. Section 18 of the Act provides that custom's duty shall be levied at such rate as prescribed in the First Schedule on goods imported into Pakistan. The dispute between the parties is with respect to the application of SRO 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009 in its original form and not through its amended form vide the Impugned SRO. SRO 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009 provides that in terms of Section 181 of the Act, Federal Board of Revenue ("FBR") can require the importer to pay a fine in lieu of confiscated goods named within the SRO. Accordingly in clause 2(e) of the SRO auto parts imported in used or second hand condition can be released on payment of redemption fine of 20% on custom value. This SRO was amended through Impugned SRO in which the clause 2(e) was amended such that it excluded front cabin/half cut HTV/LTV/Cars, with or without chassis number such that these parts could not be redeemed on payment of redemption fine. Hence the dispute is about the chargeability of the goods imported. The record shows that the Petitioner on the import of the goods, invoked Section 181 of the Act which prescribes for the option to pay fine in lieu of confiscated goods. The imported goods were redeemed by the Petitioner on payment of redemption fine at the rate of 20% of the customs value along with payment of duty and taxes applicable under the law. A penalty of Rs,10,000/- was also imposed on the Petitioner which was duly paid. The dispute before this Court is limited to the import of eight used parts which were not redeemed on payment of redemption fine in lieu of confiscation, on account of their exclusion from SRO 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009 vide the Impugned SRO.

7. The question before the Court is whether the Impugned SRO is applicable to the goods of the Petitioner? The relevant Section of the Act is Section 18 which provides that customs duty shall be levied at the prescribed rates on goods being imported into Pakistan. In terms of this provision the liability to pay customs duty shall accrue the moment the goods enter into the territory of Pakistan. This means that the taxable event is the import of the goods which has nothing to do with ascertaining the value of the imported goods under section 25 of the Act or determination of the rate of import duty under section 30 of the Act. Admittedly, in this case the goods were imported into Pakistan prior to the issuance of the Impugned SRO on 01.07.2017 which is evident from the date of IGM which is not disputed by the Respondents and shows that the goods of the Petitioner entered into the territorial waters of Pakistan at the allocated port in Karachi on 29.06.2017. As per the record the goods were shipped for Karachi in May 2017 from Japan and the packing list and invoice was issued on 30.05.2017. Therefore, when the goods were shipped for Karachi the applicable SRO was SRO 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009. The goods entered into the territorial waters of Pakistan on 29.06.2017 on which date the import was still permissible as per SRO 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009. For the purposes of determining which SRO is applicable, the relevant date will be the date of import that is the date when the goods enter into the territorial waters of Pakistan and not the date of the Goods Declaration. In "East and West Steamship Co. v. The Collector of Customs and others" (PLD 1976 SC 618), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the word "import" carried the meaning of "bringing in" or "to bear or carry into" and an imported articles was one which was brought or carried into a country form abroad and it did not necessarily entail the entire process of filing bill of entry, discharging the goods from the vessel at a wharf, the assessment of the value of the goods and the duty payable on them. No sooner, therefore, the vessel touches a Pakistan Port, the goods can be stated to have been imported. Section 43 of the Act provides that the Import Manifest is issued to signify that the vessel has arrived at the designated port which signifies entering into the territory of Pakistan. Furthermore, the Bill of Lading was issued on 23.05.2017 being prior to the issuance of the Impugned SRO. Therefore, the Respondents are bound to treat the goods of the Petitioner under S.R.O. 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009.

8. Under the circumstances, this petition is allowed and the Respondents are directed to release the goods of the Petitioner in terms of SRO 499(I)/2009 dated 13.06.2009.

KMZ/V-1/L Petition allowed.

Income Tax Ordinance (XLIX of 2001)---

----Ss. 122(5) & 133---Amendment of assessment---Jurisdiction of High Court under S.133 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001---Nature---Question of Law---Scope---Question before the High Court was "whether Appellate Tribunal was justified in holding that amendment of taxpayer's assessment was not justified in the circumstances of the case"---Held, wealth statement, Bank statements and other document were filed by taxpayer in his reply to the Department and entries referred to by Department were all duly explained, and therefore there was no occasion for amending assessment of taxpayer under S.122(5) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 and no question of law arose in the present case---High Court declined to exercise jurisdiction under S.133 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001, in circumstances.

Liaqat Ali Chaudhry for Appellant.
Ch. Qamar uz Zaman for Respondent.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This is a Reference under section 133 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance").

2. Following question of law is pressed for our opinion, which is asserted to have arisen out of order dated 12.05.2016 passed by the Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue, Lahore ("Appellate Tribunal"):-

> "Whether the learned ATIR is justified in holding that other provisions of Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 including section 122(5) become inapplicable if statement under section 115(4) read with section 113A of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 is filed?

3. The basic case of the Applicant is that an order was passed under Section 122 (5) of the Ordinance for amendment of assessment of the income tax for the year 2007. Proceedings were initiated to probe into the allegations that the Respondent taxpayer, who is not filing his return and has bank accounts in Askari Bank and Al-Faisal Bank, Paris Road, Sialkot but has not disclosed the same. The Respondent taxpayer filed his reply along with relevant documents which included bank statements for the relevant period, wealth statement as on 30.06.2007 and copies of sale deeds of the properties owned in Sialkot. The Applicant concluded that the taxpayer had concealed the particulars of his income especially with reference to the bank accounts maintained with Askari Bank and Al-Faisal Bank, Paris Road, Sialkot and with reference to the properties owned in Sialkot. Hence an order to award the assessment was issued on 30.06.2012. Feeling aggrieved, the taxpayer filed an appeal before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals), Multan (Camp at Sialkot), who found that the taxpayer has disclosed all his wealth through wealth statement and has also disclosed bank accounts which show that a loan has been obtained for the purposes of properties which were also duly disclosed. Therefore the appellate authority came to the conclusion that there was no justification to amend the assessment order as there was no information before the department on the basis of which any loss to revenue could be explained. The department filed an appeal before the Appellate Tribunal, which agreed with the decision of the Commissioner and found that the taxpayer had filed its statement for final taxation under Section 113A of the Ordinance and in such circumstances, an amendment order could not be issued under Section 122 of the Ordinance.

4. We have heard learned counsel for the parties at length and find that the basic reasons with the Commissioner for accepting the appeal of the taxpayer was that there is no definite information on the basis of which the department could have concluded that the loss was caused to revenue by concealing income. Admittedly, wealth statement, bank statements and proper documents were filed and the entries referred to by the department were all duly explained. Under the circumstances, we are in agreement with the orders of the Commissioner as well as the appellate authority in that there was no occasion to issue an order for amending the assessment under section 122(5) of the Ordinance. Therefore, the question of law raised by the Applicant is not made out from the orders impugned.

5. Under the circumstances. we decline to exercise our jurisdiction. Reference application is decided against the Applicant Department.

6. Office shall send a copy of this order under seal of the Court to the Appellate Tribunal as per section 133(5) of the Ordinance.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This judgment decides upon the issues raised in W.Ps. Nos.4311/16, 30920/16, 36734/2016, 3829/2016 and 3399/2016 as all the Petitions raise common questions of law and facts. In W.Ps. Nos. 4311/16, 30920/16,

2. All the Petitions have been filed in public interest. Writ Petitions Nos. 4311/16, 30920/16, 36734/2016, 3829/2016 only impugn the S.R.O. whereas the Petitioners in W.P. No. 3399/2016 have also impugned through various applications subsequent S.R.Os. dated 29.1.2016, 29.2.2016, 31.3.2016, 29.4.2016, 31.5.2016, 30.6.2016, 31.7.2016, 31.8.2016, 30.9.2016, 31.10.2016, 30.11.2016, 31.12.2016, 15.1.2017, 31.1.2017, 15.2.2017, 28.2.2017, 31.3.2017, 30.4.2017, 31.5.2017, 30.6.2017, 31.7.2017, 5.8.2017 through C.Ms. Nos. 5/2016, 7/2016, 9/16, 11/2016, 13/2016, 15/2016, 2840/2016, 19/2016, 21/2016, 23/2016, 1/2017, 3/2017, 5/2017, 7/2017, 9/2017, 11/2017, 1-3399-16/2017, 3/2017, 5/2017 and 7/2017 issued by the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Finance, Economic Affairs, Statistics and Revenue (Revenue Division), Islamabad levying the sales tax collected on import and supply of certain petroleum products.

3. With respect to the vires of the S.R.O. and the subsequent S.R.Os., the case of the Petitioners is that the Federal Government has encroached upon the jurisdiction of Parliament by fixing sales tax on petroleum products which is in violation of Section 3 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 ("Act"). It is their case that the Federal Government does not have jurisdiction to levy or collect sales tax without the approval of Parliament and without the approval of the Cabinet which is in absolute violation of "Messrs Mustafa Impex, Karachi and others v. The Government of Pakistan through Secretary Finance, Islamabad and others" (PLD 2016 SC 808). Counsel for the Petitioners argued that the S.R.Os. were issued without getting the approval of Parliament as required under Articles 77 and 162 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"). Furthermore the Federal Government by issuing various subsequent notifications manipulates the price of petroleum products by increasing them regularly, therefore burdening the public at large with high prices. Counsel argued that the aim behind this unlawful fixation is to extort money from the consumers without lawful justification. It was also argued that this is in absolute disregard of the constitutional mandate, hence all the S.R.Os. should be struck down.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondent Secretary, Finance Division, Government of Pakistan Islamabad, Respondent Secretary, Ministry of Petroleum, Oil Gas and Natural Resources, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad and Respondent Federal Board of Revenue. Learned DAG on behalf of the Ministries argued that the Petitioners have totally misconceived the constitutional mandate and the requirements of the Act. He has relied on Article 77 of the Constitution along with section 3 of the Act to urge that the Federal Government has acted in accordance with law and the Constitution and has not exceeded its jurisdiction in any manner. He further argued that the Petitioners have failed to show how the general public is aggrieved in any manner on the basis of which the instant Petitions have been filed.

5. In W.P. No.3399/2016, the other grounds raised and argued by the Counsel at great length is with reference to petroleum prices and the manner in which they are fixed. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that there is no mechanism for the fixation of petroleum products. Further that the Government in an arbitrary manner increases the prices of petroleum products every month under the garb of the impound SROs and illegally levy of the sales tax. He further argued that in doing so the Federal Government has encroached upon the function of the regulator that is Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA") and without following due process, arbitrarily fixes the prices of the petroleum products. Further argued that sales tax is charged up to almost 55% of the value of the taxable supply which is sheer violation of the constitutional mandate as well as Section 3 of the Act. Learned counsel argued that under the garb of sales tax, the price of petroleum products are increased which is unconstitutional as the Federal Government has no authority or jurisdiction to fix the petroleum prices which exclusively lies with OGRA. In this regard, the entire argument of the Petitioners is premised on the levy of sales tax through various SROs which is being presented as fixation of petroleum prices. On the other hand, learned DAG argued that there is nothing arbitrary in the manner in which the price for petroleum products is fixed nor has the Federal Government acted in a manner which is against the mandate of the Constitution or the Act. Learned DAG argued that the Federal Government has acted in accordance with law.

6. Heard and record perused.

7. The basic and common question in all these Petitions is the authority of the Federal Government to issue the impugned SRO as well as SRO No.57(I)/2016 dated 29.1.2016 and SRO No.(I)/2016 29.2.2016 (impugned in CM No.5/2016), SRO No.268(I)/2016 dated 31.3.2016 (impugned in CM No.7/2016), SRO No.369(I)/2016 dated 29.4.2016 (impugned in CM No.9/16), SRO No.(I)/2016 dated 31.5.2016 (impugned in CM No.11/2016), SRO No.490(I)/2016 dated 30.6.2016 (impugned in CM No.13/2016), SRO No.(I)/2016 dated 31.7.2016 (impugned in CM No.15/2016) and SRO No.806(I)/2016 dated 31.8.2016 (impugned in CM No.2840/2016), SRO No.925(I)/2016 dated 30.9.2016 (impugned in CM No.19/2016) and SRO No.1011(I)/2016 dated 31.10.2016 (impugned in CM No.21/2016), SRO No.1127(I)/2016 dated 30.11.2016 (impugned in CM No.23/2016), SRO No. (I)/2016 dated 31.12.2016 (impugned in CM No.1/2017), SRO No.21(I)/2017 dated 15.1.2017 (impugned in CM No.1/2017), SRO No. (I)/2017 dated 31.1.2017 (impugned in CM No.3/2017), SRO No. (I)/2017 dated 15.2.2017 (impugned in CM No.5/2017), SRO No. (I)/2017 dated 28.2.2017 (impugned in CM No.7/2017), SRO No. (I)/2017 dated 31.3.2017 (impugned in CM No.9/2017), SRO No.292(I)/2017 dated 30.4.2017 (impugned in CM No.11/2017), SRO No. (I)/2017 dated 31.5.2017 (impugned in CM No.1-3399-16/2017), SRO No. (I)/2017 dated 30.6.2017 (impugned in CM No.3/2017), SRO No. (I)/2017 dated 31.7.2017 (impugned in CM No.5 /2017) and SRO No. (I)/2017 dated 5.8.2017 (impugned in CM No.7/2017). Article 77 of the Constitution reads as follows:-

> "No tax shall be levied for the purposes of the Federation except by or under the authority of Act of Parliament."

In terms of this Article, no tax can be levied except by the authority of the Act of Parliament or under the authority of an Act of Parliament. This means that there must be an Act of Parliament which either levies the tax or grants the authority to levy the tax.

Section 3(1) of the Act provides as under:--

> Subject to the provisions of this Act, there shall be charged, levied and paid a tax known as sales tax at the rate of (seventeen) percent of the value of
> (a) taxable supplies made by a registered person in the course or furtherance of any (taxable activity) carried on by him; and > the Federal Government may, subject to such conditions and restrictions as it may impose, by notification in the official Gazette, declare that in respect of any taxable goods, the tax shall be charged, collected and paid in such manner and at such higher or lower rate or rates as may be specified in the said notification.

Section 3(2)(b) of the Act reads as follows:

Section 3(6) of the Act reads as follows:

> The Federal Government or the (Board) may, in lieu of the tax under subsection (1), by notification in the official Gazette, levy and collect such amount of tax as it may deem fit on any supplies or class of supplies or on any goods or class of goods and may also specify, the mode, manner or time of payment of such amount of lax.

The said provisions authorize the Federal Government to impose conditions and restrictions by way of notification in the official gazette on the manner in which the tax is to be charged, collected and paid and it can also specify higher and lower rates in the notification. The Federal Government is also authorized that in lieu of the tax levied under sub-section (1) of section 3, it may levy and collect such amounts as it may deem fit on any taxable supplies or goods in the manner prescribed by it. The impugned SROs have all been issued pursuant to Section 3(2)(b) read with subsection (6) of the Act wherein the Federal Government has been authorized by the Act means authorized by Parliament to impose conditions and restrictions on the levy and collection of sales tax and to set rates in lieu of sales tax. Hence the argument that the Federal Government has encroached upon the jurisdiction of Parliament is without basis as Parliament, through its Act has authorized the Federal Government and the Federal Board of Revenue to levy such amounts and collect in lieu of sales tax as it may deem fit and to specify the mode and manner and time to collect the amount. It is also noted that the Federal Government issues such notifications periodically, hence SRO No.57(I)/2016 dated 29.1.2016 impugned in W.P. No.4311/2016 was replaced by the subsequent SROs which have been impugned through numerous C.Ms. in W.P. No.3399/2016.

Therefore to the extent of the SRO it has become infructuous and even otherwise with respect to the other SROs, there is no merit in the petitions.

8. With reference to the argument that there is no prescribed method for fixing petroleum prices and that they are being increased arbitrarily, there is nothing on the record to establish this point. The Petitioners have relied upon the SROs to show that prices are being increased whereas the SROs show the levy of sales tax or amounts in lieu of sales tax as prescribed under Section 3 of the Act. The power has been delegated through an act of Parliament and the Federal Government can raise or lower the rates. The levy of the tax cannot be declared unconstitutional or against public interest if it increases or lowers the price. Even otherwise it is the Federal Government stance that prices have not been increased and that the Petitioners have attempted to mislead the Court by relating it to the levy of sales tax under the Act.

9. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out.
All the petitions are dismissed.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This is a Reference under Section 47 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 ("Act").

2. Following question of law is pressed for our opinion, which is asserted to have arisen out of order dated 8.6.2017 passed by the Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue, Lahore ("Appellate Tribunal"):--

(a) "Whether on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the impugned order having been passed by the Appellate Tribunal after the laps of three months and fourteen days from the date of hearing, could stand the test of judicial efficacy and can hold field as a lawful order, in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court, in the case reported as 2015 SCMR 1550 in re: M/s. MFMY Industries Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan?"

(b) "Whether on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the learned Appellate Tribunal has failed to pass a speaking and a reasoned order in consonance with the requirements of section 24A of the General Clauses Act, 1897?"

3. We have heard the learned counsel and have gone through the record and find that show cause notice was issued to the Applicant on 19.1.2015 wherein the main allegation was that the Applicant has collected sales tax through the electricity bills along with electricity charges from steel melters and re-rollers for the tax period July 2014 against 72,672,922/- kwh whereas it has deposited amounts against 4,169,138 kwh. Therefore the short fall amount of Rs.479,526,978/- is liable to be recovered from the Applicant. The Applicant filed its reply and the matter was heard at length and was decided against the Applicant by the Deputy Commissioner Inland Revenue vide his order dated 14.9.2015. The Applicant appealed the said order and the matter was heard by the Commissioner Inland Revenue who also dismissed the case vide his order dated 25.11.2015. Both the orders of the Deputy Commissioner Inland Revenue and the Commissioner Inland Revenue have explained in great detail that the tax paid by the steel melters and re-rollers has to be deposited with the government exchequer on the basis of tax collected and not on the basis of billed amounts. After going through the record both the Deputy Commissioner Inland Revenue and the Commissioner Inland Revenue found that the Applicant has short paid sales tax amounting to Rs.479,526,978/- for the tax period of July 2014 which stands recoverable from the Applicant along with the surcharge. The Applicant filed an appeal before the Appellate Tribunal. The Appellate Tribunal heard the matter and vide order dated 8.6.2017 upheld both the orders passed by the Deputy Commissioner Inland Revenue and the Commissioner Inland Revenue stating therein that sales tax has to be deposited on the basis of the collected amount and that the Applicant had declared less units in its sales tax return as compared to the number of units declared in its bill which were actually supplied to the consumer. Hence the Applicant was required to pay the full amount of sales tax which was charged through the electricity bills.

4. Under the circumstances, we find no substance in this Reference, hence decline to exercise our jurisdiction. Reference application is decided against the Applicant.

5. Office shall send a copy of this order under seal of the Court to the Appellate Tribunal as per section 47(5) of the Act.

Through this petition, the Petitioners have impugned orders dated 02.01.2015 and 04.04.2016 passed by Respondents No. 1 and 2 respectively and seek a declaration against Respondent No. 3 not to interfere with the peaceful possession of the Petitioners.

2. The facts of the case are that the Petitioners filed an application on 01.11.2014 before Respondent No. 3 for registration of rent agreement/deed and then issuance of gate pass. Feeling aggrieved against the said order, the Petitioners filed an appeal before Respondent No. 2, which was also dismissed vide order dated 04.04.2016. Hence this petition.

3. The basic grievance of the Petitioner is against Respondent No. 3, who admittedly is a private housing-society against whom a writ cannot be issued. Reliance is placed upon the case titled Messrs Millat Tractors Ltd. through Deputy General Manager v. Muhammad Munir Ahmad and 3 others (PLD 2015 Lahore 507). Date of hearing: 3rd November, 2017.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--Through this petition, the Petitioners have impugned letter dated 1.11.2012 issued by Respondent No.1, Advocate General, Punjab, Lahore whereby permission sought under Section 29 of the Mental Health Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") was declined.

2. The instant petition is filed through special attorney Muhammad Arshad Parwaiz, who is the father of the Petitioners. The mother of the Petitioners Naghmana Akhtar is statedly suffering from mental disorder and she is unable to take care of herself and her property. Consequently the Petitioners seek appointment of a manager of the property of Naghmana Akhtar under the Ordinance. In this regard, the Petitioners filed an application under Section 29 of the Ordinance before Respondent No.1 seeking his consent, which application was rejected on the ground that Naghmana Akhtar did not reside within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court of Protection. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the consent required under Section 29 of the Ordinance is a clerical function and the Respondent No.1 is not allowed to seek the presence of the Petitioners or their mother for the purposes of giving his consent. He argued that in doing so he has usurped the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection. Learned counsel further argued that the Court of Protection as per Section 30 of the Ordinance may decide whether it requires the attendance and examination of any person including the person with mental disorder and this power lies exclusively with the Court of Protection and not the Advocate General's Office. Learned counsel further argued that the mother of the Petitioners cannot travel, therefore cannot come to Pakistan. Moreover the Petitioners are entitled to take care of her property, hence they seek permission to be appointed as manager of her property under Section 33 of the Ordinance so that they can manage the affairs of the property. Learned counsel concluded that while permanent residence of the Petitioners is in Pakistan, currently they live in New York, hence the impugned order is illegal.

3. On behalf of the Respondents, Mr. Anwaar Hussain, Additional AG argued that the "consent" required under Section 29 of the Ordinance is not a clerical or post office function. It is a substantive function, in order to ensure that the objectives of the Ordinance are achieved. He argued that a mentally disordered person who does not reside within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection cannot be given consent under Section 29 of the Ordinance. He further argued that the "consent" under Section 29 of the Ordinance is meaningful consent whereby the office of Respondent No.1 is to ensure that prima facie there is a mentally disordered person, who resides within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection. Further that the applicant seeking to be appointed manager under Section 33 of the Ordinance is a relative who also resides within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection. He explained that since neither of the parties have presented themselves before the Respondent No.1 nor do they reside within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection, the application of the Petitioners was turned down.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The issue before the Court is the role of the Advocate General's Office under Section 29 of the Ordinance. The stated Section reads as follows:-
Whenever any person is possessed of property and is alleged to be mentally disordered, the Court of Protection, within whose jurisdiction such person is residing may, upon application by any of his relatives, having obtained consent in writing of the Advocate General of the Province concerned, by order direct an inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining whether such person is mentally disordered and incapable of managing himself, his property and his affairs.
In terms of this Section if a person applies to be appointed as manager under Section 33 of the Ordinance, an application must be made before the Advocate General's Office seeking his consent to file the application before the Court of Protection. If a person is alleged to be mentally disordered, the Advocate General's Office must satisfy itself that there is a mentally disordered person, residing within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection for whose property, a manager is sought to be appointed under Section 33 of the Ordinance. As per the Section, it is only upon receipt of this "consent" that the application can be placed before the Court of Protection. The question that arises in this case is whether consent under Section 29 of the Ordinance is a substantive function and whether the applicant must reside within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection.

6. The preamble of the Ordinance provides that it is an Ordinance relating to mentally disordered persons with respect to their care and treatment and the management of their property. Chapter V of the Ordinance deals with judicial proceedings for appointment of guardian of person and manager of the property of the mentally disordered by the Court of Protection. The proceedings are regulated by Sections 30 and 31 of the Ordinance, in terms whereof the Court may require the alleged mentally disordered person to attend the proceedings in order to check the mental capacity and condition of that person. The Court can also call for personal examination of such person and inquire in the matter in order to ascertain whether that person is capable of managing his or her affairs or whether a guardian is required under Section 32 of the Ordinance. In order to achieve this purpose the presence of the mentally disordered person is necessary. The office of the Advocate General's Office, at the time of issuance of his consent, ensures that the mentally disordered person as well as the relatives who have applied for guardianship or managership are available to present themselves before the Court of Protection. The legislature in its wisdom created a first level of inquiry through the Advocate General's Office to ensure on the genuineness of the application as well as the fact that prima facie there is a case to be placed before the Court of Protection. This heightened protection is given to protect a person who cannot coherently protect his or her rights or property. It is, therefore, a substantive function carried out by the Advocate General of the Province to protect the person alleged to be mentally disordered and to protect his or her property. If this function is considered to be a ministerial function, the mandate of the law, which essentially is to protect mentally disordered persons and their property would be defeated.

7. Furthermore the consent sought under Section 29 of the Ordinance means that the Advocate General's Office has to agree that the pre-requisites of Section 29 are satisfied. The word "consent" means to agree to do something, hence the Advocate General's Office has to agree that the application under Section 29 of the Ordinance may be filed. The requirement of giving his consent therefore cannot be considered mechanical as it requires some degree of probe and reasoning before acceptance of the request for filing the application. In this regard, the consent sought for under Section 29 of the Ordinance is limited to three aspects, first to ensure that the mentally disordered person and the relatives who seek guardianship/ managership reside within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection, secondly that there is a mentally disordered person for whose property an application under Section 32 or 33 has been made and finally that the relatives of such person have moved the application. The Advocate General's Office has to satisfy himself on all elements before he can agree to the filing of such an application. This means that he has to in the first instance ensure that the mentally disordered person and the applicant reside within the jurisdiction of the court of Protection.

8. It is a settled law that the language of statute must be given meaning which is consistent with the objectives of the Ordinance. The Ordinance under review was promulgated to protect mentally disordered persons and their property. The purpose of the consent given by the Advocate General's Office therefore is a meaningful function which is clear from a bare reading of Section 29 of the Ordinance and which is in furtherance of the protection given under the Ordinance. The Court of Protection has to administer the property of a mentally disordered person which requires constant monitoring and supervision. Section 36 of the Ordinance requires the manager to seek permission of the Court with reference to the property of the mentally disordered person. Section 37 of the Ordinance requires the manager to furnish an inventory of all immovable property, all assets and other moveable property to the Court of Protection. It also provides that all transactions with reference to the property of the mentally disordered person shall be through an authorized bank approved by the Court. The Court of Protection fixes all fees and expenses to be paid, releases payment for treatment of the mentally disordered person and supervises the investment of his or her assets. Under the circumstances the Court of Protection is required to constantly manage the affairs of the property and to supervise the care of the mentally disordered person. This can only be done if the mentally disordered person and the guardian or manager reside within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection. Therefore the consent required by the Advocate General's Office ensures that the guardian or manager and the mentally disordered person are residing within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection so that both can be regularly supervised and monitored. In this case, since neither the mentally disordered person nor the proposed manager reside within the jurisdiction of the Court of Protection, the application was rightly dismissed.

9. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. The instant petition is dismissed.
KMZ/A-102/L Petition dismissed.

which exercised and supervised control over the PMDC and regulated all policies with respect to the medical profession---Language of Art.154 of the Constitution requiring the CCI to formulate and regulate polices in relation to matters in Part II of the Federal Legislative List meant that there must be a deliberative process before the CCI wherein objectives of relevant policy were discussed along with manner in which it was to be effectuated; which would include the framework of any regulation---Article 154 of the Constitution required the CCI to exercise supervision and control over medical institutions and any regulation with reference to the medical profession could fall within the control and supervision of the CCI---High Court held that all standards, guidelines and recommendations issued by PMDC in furtherance of its mandate, which is to regulate the medical profession, must be approved by the Council of Common Interests.

(d) MBBS and BDS (Admissions, House Job and Internship) Regulations, 2016---

----Regln. 9(6)(7)(8)(11)---Medical and Dental Council Ordinance (XXXII of 1962), Ss. 33, 10 & 3---University of Health Sciences, Lahore Ordinance (LVIII of 2002), Ss. 37 & 4---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 18---Regulatory function of the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council (PMDC)---Eligibility criteria for admission in MBBS and BDS Courses in Pakistan and abroad---Academic requirements enforced by PMDC via regulations framed under S. 33 of the Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 1962---Matters in respect of which PMDC could exercise its powers to make Regulations---Regulation of admission into private medical colleges by the PMDC---Scope---Question before the High Court was "whether prescribing conditions for admission, allowed the PMDC to takeover the right of various affiliated medical colleges to choose their students as per eligibility criteria and replace the same with a centralized system managed by the University of Health Sciences"---Held, right of granting admission to students was a matter inter alia between an affiliated medical college and University of Health Sciences ("UHS")---Allowing an affiliated college to admit students on given criteria in terms of permissible intake was a right that such college had whilst being affiliated with UHS and PMDC had nothing to do with said right nor did the right to admission within private medical colleges fell within the regulatory control of PMDC---While PMDC could provide the eligibility criteria and the standard of merit on which admissions should be granted, it could not take away the right to admit students in private colleges as the same was beyond the mandate of the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 1962 and encroached upon fundamental right of private colleges to carry out their business---Legislature delegated its authority to prescribe conditions for admissions in medical and dental institutions and the same was a facilitative power given to PMDC to retain control over the medical profession and did not allow PMDC to go beyond the intent of the primary Legislation nor did it allow PMDC to deal with any subject matter not specifically enumerated in the enabling statute---High Court held that Reglns. 9(6), 9(7), 9(8), 9(11) of the MBBS and BDS (Admissions, House Job and Internship) Regulations, 2016, framed by the PMDC, were ultra vires the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 1962 and were struck down accordingly --- Intra-court appeal was allowed, accordingly.

(e) Delegated Legislation---

----Rules and Regulations---Nature and exercise of the power to frame regulations/rules under a parent statute---Scope---Power to make rules being delegated legislation was simply for advancement of basic objective of the law and no more---Parliament delegated its Legislative function to regulators where it may not have the required expertise on technical matters or it may be unable to respond to change in a timely manner or to a specific need and therefore it gave flexibility in the application of the law by delegating its power to legislate---Statutory Rules and Regulations could enlarge the scope of the section of the statute under which they had been framed and a statutory authority must make Regulations/Rules in order to effectuate intention of the Legislature within the limits of the mandate given to such an authority---Rules framed, if inconsistent with the provisions of the statute and if the same defeated intention of the Legislature, would become invalid.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant ICA along with connected ICAs and Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule "A" and "B", appended with the judgment, as all appeals and petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. There are two sets of Appellants/Petitioners before the Court. The first are students who are desirous of admission in medical and dental colleges in the 2017-18 session. They completed their A level in June 2017 and obtained their equivalence certificates from the Inter Board Committee of Chairman, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad ("IBCC"). Thereafter they appeared in the SAT II subject test on 3.6.2017 and 1.10.2017 and out of abundant caution also sat for the MDCAT exam in October, 2017 on account of the pending litigation. The case of these Appellants/Petitioners is that on completion of their O level in June 2015 and while opting to study A level, the Appellants/Petitioners planned and took necessary steps over the next two years in preparation for admission in medical and dental colleges. The Appellants/Petitioners at the time were guided by the Admission in MBBS/BDS Courses and Conditions for House Job/Internship/ Foundation Year Regulations, 2013 ("2013 Regulations") in terms of which they were eligible for admission in medical and dental colleges on the basis of their SAT II score in lieu of the MDCAT exam. In October, 2016, the 2013 Regulations were repealed by the MBBS and BDS (Admissions, House Job and Internship Regulations, 2016 ("2016 Regulations") in terms of which the Appellants/Petitioners could no longer rely on the SAT II result for the purposes of admission in medical and dental colleges and were compelled to take the MDCAT exam. The grievance of the Appellants/Petitioners is that when they commenced their A level in June 2015, the 2013 Regulations were in place and all of a sudden the Respondent PMDC brought about major changes in the admission criteria through the 2016 Regulations without any notice, making the MDCAT exam mandatory and doing away with the SAT II score. The 2016 Regulations were challenged by students who had taken their A level in June, 2016 and ultimately they were given a concession such that their admissions were made under the 2013 Regulations. It is the case of the Appellants/Petitioners that they are entitled to the same treatment as they had already completed one year of their A level in October 2016 and had planned the entire year on the understanding that they would be governed by the 2013 Regulations. Therefore, since they had al ready taken the SAT II subject tests for the purposes of admission in medical and dental colleges, before the 2016 Regulations were promulgated they had legitimate expectation to be admitted on the basis of the SAT II score. Being aggrieved the Appellants challenged the 2016 Regulations before the learned Single Judge who dismissed the petitions vide the common order dated 16.10.2017 passed in W.P. No.70036/2017. During the pendency of these ICAs, other students in similar position to that of the Appellants filed writ petitions, as detailed in Schedule B, which were heard along with the connected ICAs.

3. The other set of Petitioners before the Court are private medical and dental colleges. The Petitions were filed by the Pakistan Association of Private Medical and Dental Institutes ("PAMI") and Shalimar Medical and Dental College, who have also challenged the 2016 Regulations as they are aggrieved by the Centralized Admission Program ("CAP") prescribed thereunder. It is their case that 2016 Regulations require all private and medical dental colleges to submit to CAP on the basis of which Respondent University of Health Sciences ("UHS") will receive all applications for admission in private medical and dental colleges, process the same on the basis of preferences given by the students and thereafter, finalize a merit list for the private medical and dental colleges. The colleges will then admit the students on the merit list. These Petitioners have called into question inter alia the vires and actions of the Respondents under the impugned 2016 Regulations on the touchstone of their fundamental right to do business under the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 1962 ("1962 Ordinance") and it being contrary to the mandate of Article 18 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"). It is also their case that in an earlier round of litigation when the vires of 2016 Regulations were challenged, several opportunities were given to PAMI and PMDC to resolve the issues with respect to CAP and other regulations on the basis whereof the parties entered into an understanding whereby the matter would be deemed pending and in the meantime, for the 2017-18 session, private medical and dental colleges can admit students of their choice in terms of the given criteria by PMDC. It is also their case that PMDC unilaterally disregarded and abandoned all points of negotiations and deliberations, which are documented in the minutes of meeting held on 18.9.2017 at PMDC Office, Islamabad and instead set out to enforce the mechanism prescribed under the 2016 Regulations. Private medical and dental colleges have commenced their admission process, however the UHS has also issued advertisements calling for applications for admission in private and medical dental colleges which has created absolute chaos for students as they are unsure of the manner in which admissions will progress this year.

Submissions of the Appellants/Petitioners Counsel

4. Mr. Munawar us Salam argued on the vires of the 2016 Regulations on behalf of the Petitioners/Appellants. He argued that the 2016 Regulations have been framed by a Council constituted under the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council (Amendment) Ordinance, 2015 ("Amendment Ordinance") which ceased to exist on 25.4.2016 being the date of repeal of the Amendment Ordinance as per Article 89 of the Constitution. Therefore he argued that the 2016 Regulations were framed and notified by a Council on 27.10.2016 which in fact did not exist on that date. He argued that even otherwise neither the Amendment Ordinance nor the purported Council established under the Amendment Ordinance stood approved by the Cabinet in terms of the constitutional requirement pronounced by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Mustafa Impex, Karachi and others v. The Government of Pakistan through Secretary Finance, Islamabad and others (PLD 2016 SC 808). He further argued that the implementation of 2016 Regulations for the year 2017-18 tantamounts to retroactive application of the 2016 Regulations which is violative of the Constitution. He explained that students had already completed one year of their A level and taken decisive steps towards preparing for admission in medical and dental colleges in terms of the 2013 Regulations. Hence a vested right has accrued in their favour and the Respondents cannot unilaterally, without any notice take away this vested right. He further explained that the 2016 Regulations brought about a sea change in the manner of admission and the criteria from the earlier 2013 Regulations, and were made applicable to the Appellants/Petitioners without any regard of the adverse implications it would have on students who had already taken positive steps in furtherance of their desire to participate in the admission process for medical and dental colleges. He argued that it is a case of legitimate expectation when a certain course will be followed for the purposes of admission in medical and dental colleges whereby it would be unfair if the competent authority were allowed to change that course midstream, as it would adversely affect the rights of the students. Learned counsel argued that mere existence of the 2016 Regulations does not take away the vested rights accrued in favour of the students once they had decided and invested their two years towards pursuing the career in medicine and dentistry. It was also argued that in terms of Article 154 of the Constitution read with Entry 2 of Part II of the Federal Legislative List in the Fourth Schedule of the Constitution, all regulations have to be approved by the Council of Common Interests ("CCI"). In this case the 2016 Regulations have not been routed through the CCI hence are ultra vires to the Constitution.

5. Mr. Khalid Ishaq argued that private medical and dental colleges are registered with the PMDC and affiliated with the UHS and as a term of their affiliation, they have the right to make their own admissions. He argued that PM DC without due consideration of the 1962 Ordinance or its authority mandated CAP under the 2016 Regulations whereby al l rights of admission have been taken away from the private medical and dental colleges and placed in the hands of the UHS. He added that the PMDC can only set the conditions for admission under Section 33 of the 1962 Ordinance and cannot make admissions for the private colleges. This he argued was beyond the scope of authority given to PMDC under the 1962 Ordinance. He reiterated that if at all, a change is to be brought about in the admission policy, sufficient notice and time must be given to all stakeholders to ensure full participation in the rule making process and for smooth transition. He argued that after challenging the 2016 Regulations, negotiations took place with PMDC where they conceded to the fact that 2016 Regulations will not apply to the 2017-18 admissions and that private colleges will continue with the admission policy as per practice under the 2013 Regulations until the matter is settled with PMDC over the future course for private medical and dental colleges as well as for students. He also argued that PMDC has gone beyond its mandate and is not competent under the Constitution or the 1962 Ordinance to control admissions of private medical and dental colleges.

Submissions of the Respondents Counsel

6. Mr. Noshab A. Khan on behalf of the PMDC argued that the 2016 Regulations are in accordance with law and that permission from the Federal Government is not required in terms of Section 33 of the 1962 Ordinance. He argued that SAT II score has never been relevant for the purposes of admission on merit seats in medical and dental colleges. Private colleges were admitting students in contravention to the 2013 Regulations which necessitated the promulgation of the 2016 Regulations. He accepted that the waiver was given to the A level students last year on account of the pending litigation and on behalf of the Council offered the same waiver to the students before the Court meaning thereby that they could be given admission against the 15% reserved seats but not on the open merit seats. The learned counsel argued that the PMDC is the regulatory body which is responsible for the quality of education and training imparted in colleges in order to ensure that the quality of the medical profession is maintained and does not fall prey to substandard entry. He further argued that time and again students have challenged the eligibility criteria for entry in medical and dental colleges, however the courts have never accepted such challenges as there is no vested right on the basis of which students can claim admission in medical and dental colleges.

7. Mr. Imran Muhammad Sarwar argued on behalf of Respondent UHS that the 2016 Regulations are binding on them and that in compliance thereof relevant steps were taken to ensure that the changes brought about in 2016 were duly implemented. It was also argued that the Appellant students who have participated in the entry test cannot now attempt to take the benefit of their SAT II result as they were well aware of the admission policy under the 2016 Regulations. Learned counsel explained that even under the 2013 Regulations, the MDCAT entry test was compulsory for all candidates seeking admission in the medical and dental colleges and it was only limited to the 15% seats reserved for foreign that the SAT II result was accepted. Hence the students have no case and they are bound by the decision of PMDC. Reliance was placed on Mst. Attiyya Bibi Khan and others v. Federation of Pakistan (Ministry of Education), Civil Secretariat, Islamabad and others (2001 SCMR 1161), Mian Muhammad Afzal v. Province of Punjab and others (2004 SCMR 1570), Junaid Intzar v. UHS and others (2009 MLD 684) and Muhammad Zubair and 5 others v. Government of Pakistan through Secretary Health, Islamabad and 22 others (2012 CLC 1071). So far as the case of PAMI and private medical and dental colleges is concerned, learned counsel argued that most of the private medical and dental colleges are affiliated with the UHS and since they are regulated by the PMDC they are obligated to comply with the regulations of PMDC. Reliance was placed on the order of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan dated 11.10.2010 passed in Civil Petition No.1720-L of 2010 to urge the point that the regulations issued by PMDC under the 1962 Ordinance are binding on all institutions vis-a-vis the mechanism for determining the merit of the candidates for admission in medical and dental colleges. He further argued that since the students before the Court have taken the MDCAT exam hence are not entitled to any relief from this Court.

8. With respect to the vires of the law, on behalf of the Federation Mr. Tahir Mehmood Ahmad Khokhar, DAG argued that the 1962 Ordinance was amended in 2012 and again in 2015. The amendments were never challenged, hence at this stage the Appellants/Petitioners are barred from challenging the same and the petitions are hit by laches. With respect to the argument that the approval of CCI is required it was argued that it is not obligatory for PMDC to place its regulations before the CCI for approval, as only policy matters are considered by the CCI and not legislation. It was argued that the final and conclusive forum for law making is Parliament which has validated the 1962 Ordinance along with the Amendment Ordinance and has delegated its legislative function to PMDC. It was also argued that the Federal Government has given its approval for the regulations vide its letter No.1-76/2016-SO (PMDC) dated 25.10.2016, hence the 2016 Regulations are fully endorsed by the Federal Government. So far as reliance on Mustafa Impex (supra) is concerned, it was argued that it will have prospective effect and not retrospective effect. He stated that the Federal Government supported the view of PMDC that CAP will improve transparency and ensure fairness in the admission process and that admissions in private medical and dental colleges should be made as per PMDC regulations. In this regard, it was argued that no illegality has been made out and that the impugned order is in accordance with law.

Facts

9. A Standing Committee of the Ministry of Health Services Regulations and Coordination held its meeting in June, 2016 wherein it decided to introduce a central induction system for admission in medical and dental colleges through a uniform admission policy, with a collective merit list for all private medical and dental colleges. Thereafter on 7.9.2016 the Council of the PMDC approved the 2016 Regulations in its 145th session. On 25.10.2016 the Ministry of National Health Services Regulation and Coordination vetted the draft regulations and approved the same stating therein that the Council is competent to make the regulations. On 27.10.2016, the 2016 Regulations were notified in the official gazette. On 28.10.2016 the admission boards as provided for under the 2016 Regulations were duly nominated. In the meantime, several writ petitions were filed challenging the 2016 Regulations and vide order dated 19.12.2016 passed in W.P. No.35526/2016 titled Ms. Mashal Salam v. PM&DC etc. along with other connected matters, the operation of the 2016 Regulations qua the admissions in medical and dental colleges, for the years 2016-17, in terms of the admission criteria contained therein were suspended. At the time students as well as private medical and dental colleges challenged the vires of the 2016 Regulations which brought about a number of changes in the admission process from the 2013 Regulations. Amongst others, the main challenge was that the SAT II score was no longer relevant for local students who have taken the A level exam as they were required to take the MDCAT exam for admission in medical and dental colleges. Private medical and dental colleges were also aggrieved by the 2016 Regulations on account of the CAP introduced which denied them the right to make admissions in their respective institutes and instead required the UHS to compile a merit list on the basis of which private medical and dental colleges could admit students. The Court directed the parties to attempt to resolve their disputes and ultimately on 4.8.2017 PMDC conceded to the demands of the petitioners and decided to apply the 2016 Regulations prospectively for the 2017-18 session. It was also stated by the Counsel for the medical and dental colleges that a deliberative process was underway with PMDC to iron out other grievances of PAMI with the 2016 Regulations. The Court disposed of the petitions allowing the private colleges to approach the Court in case their grievances were not redressed by PMDC. Therefore, as per the record, the 2016 Regulations were suspended from 19.12.2016 to 4.8.2017 with respect to admission in medical and dental colleges. In September 2017 writ petitions were filed by the Appellants challenging the 2016 Regulations essentially on the same grounds as raised in the earlier round of litigation, seeking the same relief. Ultimately the impugned order was passed on 16.10.2017 in WP No.70036/2017 and connected cases.

10. The record also shows that several meetings were held between PMDC and PAMI to settle the dispute that has arisen consequent to the 2016 Regulations. As per the minutes of the meeting held on 18.9.2017 at the PMDC office at Islamabad a Memorandum of Understanding ("MOU") was prepared on the basis of which several changes were made to the central entry test and the process of admission. In terms thereof all private medical and dental colleges were allowed to advertise for admission after the declaration of the entry test result and grant admission as per the given criteria. It was also agreed that a private medical and dental college has the right to refuse admission to any candidate who does not have the financial ability to pay for the full course over the five years. A procedure to appeal against merit violation was set out and the parties also agreed to increase the tuition fees. The MOU was signed on 18.9.2017 by members of PMDC and PAMI.

Issues

11. We have heard the counsel and find that the issues argued before us can be divided into two broad challenges: the constitutional challenge and the challenge to the regulatory function of the PMDC. The three constitutional grounds are; first that the Amendment Ordinance lapsed on 25.4.2016, hence the 1962 Ordinance as it stood before the amendment was revived and since there was no Council at the time, any actions taken by the purported new Council formed under the Amendment Ordinance are without any legal effect; second that the 2016 Regulations were not approved by the CCI and third that the requirements stipulated in the case Mustafa Impex (supra) have not been followed. The vires of the 2016 Regulations have also been challenged with reference to the regulatory function of PMDC such that PMDC has exceeded its given mandate under the 1962 Ordinance and that the 2016 Regulations to the extent that it denies private medical and dental colleges the right to admit students of their own choice is beyond the competence of PMDC and tantamounts to exercise of power beyond the prescribed authority under the 1962 Ordinance. Also in dispute is the applicability of the 2016 Regulations that is whether it is to be applied retroactively as the Appellants and the Petitioners have taken decisive steps since June 2015 in accordance with the 2013 Regulations and therefore cannot be made to comply with the changes in the 2016 Regulations, especially due to the MOU between PAMI and PMDC on the basis of which it was agreed that the 2016 Regulations would not be made applicable for the 2017-18 admission process.

Opinion of the Court
Vires of the 2016 Regulations

12. The 1962 Ordinance constituted a Council under Section 3 and an Executive Committee under Section 10 to exercise powers given under the law. In August 2012 through the Amendment Act 2012 certain amendments were made to the 1962 Ordinance including a substitution in Section 3 of the 1962 Ordinance dealing with the constitution and composition of the Council. The existing Council vide Section 36B of the Amendment Act 2012 was dissolved and the Executive Committee of the Council assumed the powers of the Council until a new Council was elected. On 26 August 2015 the Amendment Ordinance was promulgated under which a new Council was elected. In terms of Article 89 of the Constitution on 11.12.2015 an extension of 120 days was granted to the Amendment Ordinance. On 22.4.2016 the Amendment Ordinance was placed before the Senate, which resolved that the matter be placed before the CCI which is the competent forum to approve the regulations. This was never done and the Amendment Ordinance lapsed on 25.4.2016. On 6.10.2016 as per the agenda, a joint session of the National Assembly was required to consider the Amendment Ordinance, however the matter was never taken up. Consequently, it is the case of the Appellants/Petitioners that the new Council, as constituted under the Amendment Ordinance did not exist in October 2016 meaning thereby that the 2016 Regulations could not have been framed and notified on 27.10.2016 by that Council. In support of his contentions, learned counsel placed reliance on the cases "Syed Fayyaz Hussain Qadri Advocate v. The Administrator, Lahore Municipal Corporation, Lahore and 4 others" (PLD 1972 Lah. 316), Government of Punjab through Secretary, Home Department v. Ziaullah Khan and 2 others" (1992 SCMR 602), "Muhammad Naeem alias Naeema v. The State" (1992 SCMR 1617), Muhammad Arif and another v. The State and another" (1993 SCMR 1589), "Peer Sabir Shah v. Federation of Pakistan and others" (PLD 1994 SC 738), Federation of Pakistan and others v. M. Nawaz Khokhar and others (PLD 2000 SC 26) and Air League of PIAC Employees through President v. Federation of Pakistan M/O Labour and Manpower Division, Islamabad and others (2011 SCMR 1254).

13. The applicable provision of the Constitution is reproduced hereunder:-
Article 89
(1) The President may, except when the (Senate or) National Assembly is in session, if satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary to take immediate action, make and promulgate an Ordinance as the circumstances may require.
(2) An Ordinance promulgated under this Article shall have the same force and effect as an Act of (Majlis-e-Shoora Parliament) and shall be subject to like restrictions as the power of (Majlis-e-Shoora Parliament) to make law, but every such Ordinance -

(a) shall be laid-
(i) before the National Assembly if it (contains provisions dealing with all or any of the matters specified in clause (2) of Article 73), and shall stand repealed at the expiration of (one hundred and twenty days) from its promulgation or , if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Assembly, upon the passing of that resolution:
Provided that the National Assembly may by a resolution extend the Ordinance for a further period of one hundred and twenty days and it shall stand repealed at the expiration of the extended period, or if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Assembly, upon the passing of that resolution:
Provided further that extension for further period may be made only once.
(ii) before both Houses if it (does not contain provisions dealing with any of the matters referred to in sub-paragraph (i), and shall stand repealed at the expiration of (one hundred and twenty days) from its promulgation or, if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by either House, upon the passing of that resolution.
(Provided that either House may by a resolution extend it for a further period of one hundred and twenty days and it shall stand repealed at the expiration of the extended period, or if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by a House, upon the passing of that resolution.
Provided further that extension for a further period may be made only once; and)
(b) may be withdrawn at any time by the President.
(3) Without prejudice to the provisions of clause (2),-
(a) an Ordinance laid before the National Assembly under sub-paragraph (i) of paragraph (a) of clause (2) shall be deemed to be a Bill introduced in the National Assembly and
(b) an Ordinance laid before both Houses under sub-paragraph (ii) of paragraph (a) of clause (2) shall be deemed to be a Bill introduced in the House where it was first laid.)

14. In terms of Article 89(2) (a) (i) and (ii) of the Constitution, an Ordinance shall stand repealed on the expiration of 120 days from the date of its promulgation or in case of an extension from the date of expiry of the extended period. In 1992 SCMR 602 (supra) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that where a law is repealed or deemed to have been repealed by or under or by virtue of the Constitution the repeal shall not affect the operation of the previous law except where otherwise provided. In 1993 SCMR 1589 (supra) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan discussed the distinction between temporary enactments and permanent enactments. The general principle of law that emerges from the cases relied upon is that an Ordinance being temporary legislation expires with the efflux of time and the earlier permanent statute automatically stands revived.

15. In this case the Amendment Ordinance made certain amendments by way of substitution to the 1962 Ordinance essentially with respect to the constitution and composition of the Council and the election process. In this regard, it is noted that the Amendment Ordinance was temporary legislation which amended the 1962 Ordinance by way of substitution. The amendments took effect immediately and remained effective on the statute books until the lapse of the Amendment Ordinance on 25.4.2016. With the lapse of the Amendment Ordinance, the amendments made to the 1962 Ordinance also lapsed and the position prior to the amendments was restored meaning thereby that the 1962 Ordinance was restored as it existed prior to 26 August 2015 when the Amendment Ordinance was promulgated. The question that arises under these circumstances is what is the effect of the lapse of the Amendment Ordinance on the new Council constituted thereunder. In terms of the dicta laid by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan the Amendment Ordinance was temporary legislation which remained in force for a limited period of time and ceased to operate after its expiry period on 25.4.2016. Article 89(2)(a) of the Constitution provides that an Ordinance promulgated under this Article shall have the same force and effect as an Act of Parliament and shall be subject to the same restrictions as the power of Parliament to make law, but every such Ordinance must be laid before the National Assembly before its expiration period of 120 days from the date of its promulgation. The National Assembly may by resolution extend the Ordinance for a further period of 120 days and the Ordinance shall stand repealed at the expiration of the extended period. Since the National Assembly extended the Amendment Ordinance on 11.12.2015 it stood repealed on 25.4.2016 after the expiry of the extended period. Therefore as per the Constitution an Ordinance is only a stop gap arrangement and a temporary measure which must be placed before the National Assembly if it pertains to matters specified in Article 73(2) of the Constitution and in all other cases before both Houses within four months of the date of its promulgation unless earlier withdrawn by the President or disapproved by the National Assembly or Parliament as the case may be. Reference is made to Sabir Shah v. Shad Muhammad Khan (PLD 1995 SC 66) and Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs, Islamabad v. Dr. Mubashir Hassan and others (PLD 2012 SC 106). Since the Amendment Ordinance ceased to exist on 25.4.2016 the new Council elected thereunder also ceased to exist as of 25.4.2016. Consequently the new Council could not function thereafter and exercise any powers as per the 1962 Ordinance as it was not constituted as per the 1962 Ordinance. We are informed that the present position is that the same Council continues even today and if all decisions and actions of the Council are declared unconstitutional and illegal, it will have a devastating effect on the medical profession and will halt the entire admission process which is underway. It was also stated that the future of students already admitted to medical and dental colleges is at stake including the future of students seeking admission in the 2017-18 session. At this juncture we are mindful of the fact that PMDC operates through its Council which carries out the functions of PMDC with respect to the recognition, registration and monitoring of medical and dental colleges and their qualifications as well as being the registering authority of all medical and dental practitioners. During the period after 25.4.2016 the new Council acted under the bona fide belief that they were duly constituted and had the legal authority to perform their duties under the 1962 Ordinance and regulations made thereunder. Many decisions were taken including decisions under the 2016 Regulations pertaining to the admission process, holding of the MDCAT exam and the preparation of the final merit list for admission in medical and dental colleges not to mention the process of registration and recognition of colleges and their qualifications. We are therefore compelled to invoke the de facto doctrine, out of necessity, to protect the decisions of the Council from 25.4.2016 in order to prevent chaos and inconvenience to the public as well as the students and medical and dental colleges who fall under the regulatory control of PMDC and are directly effected by their decisions. The de facto doctrine is an established principle invoked by the superior courts to bring regularity and prevent confusion in the conduct of public business which may be created by persons not legally entitled to perform such duties yet have continued to do so without any objection. Reliance is placed on Malik Asad Ali and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs, Islamabad and others (PLD 1998 SC 161), Mehram Ali and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 1998 SC 1445), Chairman, Pakistan Broadcasting Corporation, Islamabad v. Nasir Ahmad and 3 others (1995 SCMR 1593) and Managing Director, Sui Southern Gas Company Ltd., Karachi v. Ghulam Abbas and others (PLD 2003 SC 724). In this regard, we are of the opinion that the 2016 Regulations could not have been framed by the Council elected under the Amendment Ordinance since the Council did not exist in October 2016. However in order to give continuity to the regularity regime overseeing the admission process already under way and in order to protect the interest of the colleges and students, all decisions taken including the decisions of framing the 2016 Regulations shall remain intact and valid until they are not placed before the competent authority in accordance with the law and Constitution for due consideration and approval. It is noted that we have deliberated on this aspect in the later part of the judgment. In saying so we clarify that the given position has to be corrected at the earliest in terms of this judgment.

16. The second argument made was with respect to applicability of the mandatory provisions of Article 154 of the Constitution which is reproduced hereunder:

Article 154 of the Constitution:

[(1) The Council shall formulate and regulate policies in relation to matters in Part II of the Federal Legislative List and shall exercise supervision and control over related institutions].

(2) The Council shall be constituted within thirty days of the Prime Minister taking oath of office.

(3) The Council shall have a permanent Secretariat and shall meet at least once in ninety days:

Provided that the Prime Minister may convene a meeting on the request of a Province on an urgent matter.]

[(4)] The decisions of the Council shall be expressed in terms of the opinion of the majority.

[(5)] Until [Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) makes provision by law in this behalf, the Council may make its rules of procedure.
[(6)] [Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting may from time to time by resolution issue directions through the Federal Government to the Council generally or in a particular matters to take action as [Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may deem just and proper and such directions shall be binding on the Council.
[(4)] If the Federal Government or a Provincial Government is dissatisfied with a decision of the Council, it may refer the matter to [Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in a joint sitting whose decision in this behalf shall be final .
Fourth Schedule of Federal Legislative List Part II Item 11 is reproduced as under:
Legal, medical and other professions.

17. Part II of the Federal Legislative List provides for all those subject matters the supervision and control of which has been entrusted to the CCI. The CCI is a constitutional forum equally represented from the Provinces as well as from the Federal Government which takes decision on the basis of the opinion of the majority. The CCI is answerable directly to both houses of a Parliament in a joint sitting through the Prime Minister. In the case cited at Messrs Gadon Textile Mills and 814 others v. WAPDA and others (1997 SCMR 641) the role of the CCI was duly considered and the august Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded as follows:--
The Council of Common Interests is an independent Constitutional body, with an important Constitutional role to play, answerable directly to the Parliament "without any interference from the Cabinet or the executive Government of the Federation.
The executive authority of the Federation stands, to the extent defined in Article 154, abridged, and to that extent, it stands vested in the Council; and
The provisions of Article 154 are mandatory in character.
If a matter falls within the powers of the Council of Common Interests under Article 154, it must be placed before it. It is wrong to think that the function of the Council is to resolve disputes and that it is to be activated only when there is a dispute to be resolved. Secondly, the policy decision by the Council of Common Interests must precede any decision by the Federal Government or for that matter any of its instrumentalities such as the Authority.
Thirdly, if the Council has made a policy decision in the performance of its functions under Article 154, it is binding upon the Federal Government and the Authority. That is the necessary result of Article 154 being a constitutional provision and it being of mandatory character.

18. As per the 1962 Ordinance the mandate of PMDC is to establish uniform minimum standard of basic and higher qualifications in medicine and dentistry. In order to carry out its regulatory function PMDC must recognize all medical and dental qualifications granted by medical or dental institutions in Pakistan, which institutions must also be recognized by PMDC and should be included in the First Schedule of the 1962 Ordinance. Similarly PMDC recognizes medical and dental qualifications granted by medical or dental institutions outside of Pakistan which institutions should be included in the Second Schedule of the 1962 Ordinance. Furthermore all medical licenses or diplomas granted by medical institutions are stipulated in the Fourth and Fifth Schedule of the 1962 Ordinance. PMDC is also required to maintain a register of all medical and dental practitioners possessing qualifications which are recognized under the 1962 Ordinance. In terms of Section 29 of the 1962 Ordinance no one other than a registered medical or dental practitioner can practice medicine or dentistry in Pakistan. Therefore PMDC regulates the medical profession by ensuring that all medical and dental education in Pakistan is imparted by recognized medical or dental institutions which issue recognized degrees and thereafter registers the medical or dental practitioner giving them the right to practice medicine or dentistry in Pakistan. The objective of the law is therefore to ensure that the medical profession maintains the standards prescribed by PMDC and that entry in the medical profession is also as per the prescribed standards. Hence the emphasis of the law on recognizing institutions that impart medical education and training and award MBBS/BDS degrees is to ensure that a given standard is maintained in the profession right from the inception while admitting students to medical and dental colleges. PMDC sets the standards for education and admission in medical and dental colleges in order to ensure that the minimum threshold is maintained which is in furtherance of the ultimate progression and development of the medical profession. Since laws related to the medical profession are covered under Part II of the Federal Legislative List, anything done in relation thereto must be placed before the CCI as it is the constitutional forum which exercises and supervises control over the PMDC and regulates all policies with respect to the medical profession.

19. We were informed by the DAG that the concerned Ministry has never referred any matter to the CCI which includes all regulations made so far including the 2013 Regulations and the 2016 Regulations. The case of the Federation is that it is not obligatory for PMDC to have its regulations approved by the CCI as the CCI only regulates policies and not legislation. So far as regulations are concerned, since Parliament has delegated this function to the PMDC under Section 32 (2) of the 1962 Ordinance, PMDC is competent to make its regulations without CCI approval. It was also argued that the CCI cannot act against the decision of Parliament which is the final authority so far as legislative competence is concerned.

20. We have heard both the parties and find that we are not in agreement with the stance taken by the Federation. The mandatory provisions of the Constitution are clear from a bare reading of Article 154 with Item 11 of Part II of the Federal Legislative List whereby all matters related to the medical profession have to be approved by the CCI. Hence we are of the opinion that all standards, guidelines and recommendations issued by PMDC in furtherance of its mandate, which is to regulate the medical profession, must be approved by the CCI. We are also of the opinion that the language of Article 154 of the Constitution requiring the Council to formulate and regulate policies in relation to matters in Part II of the Federal Legislative List means that there must be a deliberative process before the Council wherein the objectives of the relevant policy are discussed along with manner in which it is to be effectuated. This will include the frame work of any regulation because the regulations are the regulatory tools on the basis of which the objective of the law is achieved. Furthermore Article 154 requires the Council to exercise supervision and control over related institutions meaning thereby that all decisions are supervised and controlled by the CCI. Consequently the objectives and framework of any regulation with reference to the medical profession will fall within the control and supervision of the CCI. The wisdom behind this constitutional provision is to ensure that all Provinces participate and agree upon the standards set by PMDC to regulate the medical profession. The different standards of education within the country and the different mediums of instruction make it essential that there is a uniform standard for training doctors and dentists. Hence the creation of a federal authority to develop uniform standards ensures on the quality that can be expected from the medical profession. In doing so all Provinces must participate in the process so as to ensure that the standards set can be applied and that they will cater to the requirements of the medical profession as a whole throughout the country. Therefore if in furtherance of its policies regulations are framed they will have to be approved by the CCI. In this context, it is clarified that in the very least there must be a CCI approval of the policy on the basis of which the regulations were framed. Notwithstanding the fact that Section 33 of the 1962 Ordinance authorizes PMDC to make regulations with respect to the subject matter provided in the stated section, the constitutional mandate in Article 154 must be followed. By ignoring the constitutional mandate the right given to the Provinces to participate in the decision making where minimum standards are to be set is denied and matters which in the wisdom of the Constitution are considered to be crucial and vital for the Provinces has not been considered by them. Consequently PMDC has not been able to achieve its objective successfully as it has never worked on the basis of a consensus with all the Provinces. This fact is highlighted by the diverse manner in which PMDC carries out its regulatory function in the Provinces. As per the data provided to us the centralized entry test has been carried out in the Province of Punjab since 2008. It was introduced in the Province of Sindh for the first time this year and was immediately challenged. The matter is now sub judice before the Sindh High Court. So far as KPK and Balochistan are concerned the representative of PMDC Professor Dr. Aamir Bandesha, Member, Executive Committee of PMDC informed us that said Provinces have not started the centralized entry test through an affiliating university as yet. Even with respect to the dispute before us regarding a centralized admission program, he clarified that it is only being implemented in the Punjab and nowhere else. Hence we find that PMDC has not been able to successfully regulate the admission process because the relevant Ministry has never taken the approval of the CCI and has neglected to consider the opinion of the Provinces or the stakeholders nor has it taken account different education systems and standards available on the strength of which students ultimately, through a common pool, all compete for admission in medical and dental colleges. Even otherwise we note that the participation of the Provinces is meant to be without any interference from the cabinet or the executive government of the Federation, therefore we are of the opinion that Mustafa Impex (supra) is not applicable to this case as the said judgment declared that the executive authority of the Federal Government must be exercised through the Cabinet and in this case the matter falls within the domain of the CCI and not that of the Cabinet.

Challenge to the Regulatory Function

21. The Pakistan Medical and Dental Council is a body corporate established under Section 3 of the 1962 Ordinance. It is the regulatory body responsible for establishing uniform minimum standards of basic and higher qualifications in medicine and dentistry. Not only are all medical and dental institutes recognized by PMDC but essentially in terms of the 1962 Ordinance, the medical or dental qualification must also be recognized by PMDC. In doing so any aspirant who wants to provide medical and dental education must apply to the Federal Government through the PMDC for recognition. The Federal Government after consulting the Council may grant recognition to the medical or dental institution, for such period and upon such conditions as may be specified. Section 33 of the 1962 Ordinance gives PMDC the power to make regulations to carry out the purpose of the 1962 Ordinance which includes making regulations for providing uniform minimum standard of the courses for training and for obtaining graduate and postgraduate medical and dental qualification which are included in the First, Third and Fifth Schedule. It also requires the Council to set the minimum requirement for the content and duration of the course to study and to prescribe the conditions for admission to courses of training. The Council is also required to prescribe the minimum qualification and experience required for teachers in the medical and dental institution as well as to set the standards of examination and the matter related thereto including the qualification and experience required for the examiners for professional examination. The Council is therefore, required to make regulations which will set a uniform standard in medical education so as to achieve standardized education in medicine or dentistry throughout the country. In 2012, the 1962 Ordinance was amended by the Medical and Dental Council Amendment Act, 2012 ("2012 Act") in terms of which Section 33 of the 1962 Ordinance was amended to include prescribing regulations which lay down the criteria for university affiliation, conditions and requirements for recognition and continuation of recognition and for the grant of status of a teaching institution.

22. The legislature in its wisdom created the PMDC to ensure that uniform standards were followed throughout the country by institutions imparting training in the field of medicine or dentistry. Section 33 of the 1962 Ordinance authorizes the PMDC to make regulations in furtherance of this objective. A bare review of Section 33 reveals that setting minimum standards for qualification in medicine and dentistry means prescribing the requirements for the course content and the duration of the courses, setting the criteria for examination/professional examination and all related requirements including prescribing the eligibility criteria for examiners and the teaching staff of the institutions. Effectively PMDC is required to structure education in the field of medicine and dentistry by planning, implementing and evaluating medical programs, setting the curriculum and developing programs for continued professional development. It also involves setting procedures related to assessment, examination, appraisement and certifying the completion of the training program. Essentially the standards serve as the regulatory tool for improving the quality of the medical profession. In order to ensure that standards are maintained the 1962 Ordinance requires that the institution as well as its degree be recognized and registered with the PMDC. This requirement is equally applicable to qualifications granted by institutions outside of Pakistan. It also requires all medical and dental practitioners to be registered with the PMDC. Recognition status is a quality measure which confers the understanding that the quality of medical education is a recognized institution is as per required standards. Adherence to the PMDC standards is therefore the first lens through which quality can be assessed and improved. It also helps to safeguard the medical profession and the workplace by ensuring a minimum standard of entry into profession.

23. The 2016 Regulations have been in dispute by students as they make the MDCAT exam mandatory and does away with the SAT II option for local A level students. It is the case of the students that the 2013 Regulations allowed the SAT II exam in lieu of the MDCAT exam. The Appellants before this Court filed various different writ petitions challenging the 2016 Regulations before the learned Single Judge. The impugned judgment dismissed the petitions on the ground that the Appellants had sufficient knowledge of the 2016 Regulations, which were notified on 27.10.2016. The impugned judgment also finds that under the 2013 Regulations, A level students could not get admission on open merit seats in private medical and dental colleges on the basis of SAT II result. As per the judgment the practice followed by the private medical and dental colleges of admitting A level students on the open merit seats was contrary to Regulations 5(2)(c) of the 2013 Regulations. The judgment finds that SAT II examination was reserved for quota seats only. The judgment also finds that there is no vested right of the students on account of the 2013 Regulations on the basis of which the Appellants before the Court claim admission in private medical and dental colleges on the basis of SAT II result.

24. The relevant provisions of the 2013 Regulations are reproduced hereunder:-
3. Rules of the Central Entry Test (1) An entry test shall be mandatory for admission in MBBS/BDS course in Pakistan and shall be taken of only the eligible candidates. The eligibility criteria of the candidates to sit in the entry is given in these regulations.
(2) The Provincial Government shall make arrangements for holding a central entry test for admission in MBBS/BDS for both private and public institution in their respective provinces in order to determine the order of merit and no admission shall be given to the resident of that Province without it unless specified below. The Provincial Government shall by notification constitute the Central Admission Authority for admission to the Public Colleges of that Province. At least two paper setters from A-level teaching institutions shall be co-opted in the paper setting team by the provincial/NTS authorities. The entry test of one Provincial Authority/NTS shall be acceptable for admission in other provinces in private colleges and public colleges in territories not conducting their own entry tests. The Provincial Central Entry/NTS test shall be held as soon as possible after declaration of F.Sc. result by the Higher Secondary Education/Intermediate Boards. The Provincial Authority/NTS shall complete all formalities, including holding of the entry test and declaration of its result for admission of public medical and dental colleges before 31st October each year or within four weeks of declaration of the result of F.Sc by the Higher Secondary Education/Intermediate Boards whichever is earlier so that the final merit list of public colleges reaches PM&DC before 31st October. The Provincial Central Admission Authority/NTS shall form the final merit for admission in medical and dental colleges by after giving due weightage to Matric/equivalent, F.Sc. Intermediate/HSSC equivalent and the entry test marks as given in these regulations.

(3) Private medical and dental institutions in all provinces shall advertise for admission of students only after the determination of final order of merit by the respective provincial testing/admission authorities or 31st October whichever is earlier. They will not conduct their own entry test and shall form final merit by utilizing the Provincial/Government/NTS test result in their province/territory, however they may conduct the aptitude test and interview as per these rules.

(4) For admissions in medical and dental institutions located in the Islamabad Capital Territory, a central entry test shall be held by the Federal Government under the arrangements of NTS.

(5) All admissions for both public and private colleges shall be completed by 30th November each year and lists of admitted students shall be submitted to PM&DC for their registration by PM&DC. Students admitted after due date shall not be registered by PM&DC.

5. Minimum Academic Requirements for Admission in the MBBS/BDS Course:

(2) Admission on Merit Seats/Pakistani Seats in Private Colleges and Foreign Seats/Self Finance Seats in Public and Private Colleges:

a. Admission in a private college and in a public medical or dental college on reserved seats/self finance/special seats/ quota seats shall given only to a candidate who has passed an examination equivalent to intermediate level of Pakistan from a foreign university or examining body or foreign education system with three subject out of which Biology and Chemistry are essential subjects with 60 % marks in aggregate as certified by IBCC to be equivalent to F.Sc./HSSC/intermediate. The equivalence by IBCC in the above terms shall be accepted in aggregate and the candidate shall be eligible for admission the MBBS/BDS course with any study group whichever the IBCC may write.

The candidate shall have to appear in the provincial entry test or in lieu of the entry test of the admission authority, the candidates is required to have passed SAT II examination score with minimum 550 marks in each of the three subjects of which two have to be Biology and Chemistry or MCAT with minimum aggregate score of 24. The candidate is required to present a valid TOEFL or IELT with a minimum score of 500 or 5.5 only if the medium of instruction of study two years prior to application for admission/entry test is not English. An alternate to TOEFL and IELT is a certification by NUML Islamabad after a one year English language course.

b. No admission shall be given in MBBS/BDS course on the foreign admission/self finance seats or any other such Government or private scheme, without an entry test or the requisite SAT II examination score with minimum 550 marks in each of the three subjects of which two have to be Biology and Chemistry or MCAT with minimum aggregate score of 24 and other conditions laid down in 5(2) a above.
c. Upto 15% of seats in college shall be allowed to be foreign admission/self finance. The foreign admission shall be filled only by person who meet the Council criteria for admission on such seats. If foreign admission/self finance seats are left vacant in any college, a local student can be admitted on such seat subject to fulfillment of eligibility criteria for admission as given in regulation 5(2)a above.

Eligibility Criteria for Admission on Foreign/Overseas Seats:

Background

A. The principle is to encourage foreign students and ex-pats to explore and come for their medical and dental education to Pakistan which offers a wide range of exposure to medical issues and a very cost effective and time effective completion of medical and dental education. Countries like India and Far East are rapidly offering facilitation to students who wish to explore the possibility, a huge Diaspora of Pakistani origin overseas families wish for their children to get this education in Pakistan but are forced to look elsewhere because of various hurdles and restrictions in our system. This deprives the students the opportunity of pursuing their profession of choice and the foreign remittance that is so dearly needed to boost our economy. One classical example is the rigid stance of the IBCC for various subjects and undue underscoring of individuals coming from abroad.

B. There are well reputed and well established international examinations which test the competency of students and are use world over to determine eligibility for admission to university programs, including medicine and dentistry. These examinations are significantly superior to many of our local systems and are much more discriminatory in identifying high performing students.

Based on the above points following eligibility criteria are laid down:

1. All students applying on foreign students quota will be eligible to sit in the entry test for medical and dental seats if they have any of the following prerequisites.

a. A SAT-II score of equal or more than 550 in three subjects two of which should be biology and chemistry, the third may be a science or of a humanities subject

b. A score of greater or equal to 24 in the MCAT exam.

OR

c. IBCC equivalence certificate with a score of equal to or greater then 60%.

2. Such students will sit in an entrance test offered by the institution based on institutional practice and priorities (these might be composed of various science subjects, English language and aptitude).

3. The institutes will utilize the scores in the test and the eligibility exams scores as per their policies to determine the merit order so that the most deserving candidates are selected.

Note:

This option will not be available to students who have completed their education within Pakistani systems within Pakistan or overseas, who will need to present their intermediate scores or IBCC equivalence certificate.

25. In terms of Regulation 3(1) the MDCAT exam is mandatory for admission in MBBS/BDS courses be it public or private colleges. The MDCAT is organized by the Provincial Government through a Central Admission Authority who draws up the final merit list in public colleges as per the regulations. In terms of Regulation 5(1) of the 2013 Regulations, the minimum academic requirement for admission in MBBS/BDS for admission in public colleges is that a candidate has passed the F.Sc/HSSC examination (premedical group) securing 60% marks in aggregate or a candidate who has passed an exam equivalent to F.Sc/HSSC exam from a foreign university or examining body or foreign education system with three subjects out of which biology and chemistry are mandatory with 60% marks in aggregate as certified by the IBCC to be equivalent to the F.Sc. Therefore, a candidate who has passed the F.Sc or A level is eligible for admission, on merit in public colleges. In terms of Regulation 5(2) admission in private and public colleges on merit seats, foreign seats, self finance seats can only be given to candidates who have passed an exam equivalent to F.Sc from a foreign university or examining body or education system with three subjects out of which biology and chemistry are essential with 60% aggregate marks. Candidates have to appear for the MDCAT or in lieu thereof be admitted on the basis of their SAT II exam score with a minimum of 550 marks. Therefore, for the purposes of admission in medical or dental colleges on merit seats the MDCAT exam or in lieu thereof the SAT II option was available. It is noted that under the 2013 Regulations if the 15% reserved seats are left vacant then the remaining seats can be admitted upon as per the criteria given in Regulations under 5(2) meaning thereby on the open merit. We are therefore of the opinion that the SAT II option was available for local A Level students under the 2013 Regulation. The 2013 Regulations also provide for the criteria of candidates applying on the foreign seats. The general principle was to encourage foreign students and expatriates to pursue medical and dental education in Pakistan. The eligibility criteria given was again based on the SAT II score. The Note added provided that this option will not be available to students who have completed their education within Pakistan or overseas who will need to present their intermediate score or IBCC equivalence certificates. It is on the basis of this Note that the learned Single Judge held that the 2013 Regulations do not permit local A level students to get admission on the basis of their SAT II score. We are of the opinion that the Note is applicable with respect to the eligibility criteria for admission on foreign seats meaning thereby that the criteria given will not be applicable to students who have studied within Pakistan an examination equivalent to F.Sc from a foreign university or examining body or foreign education system. Therefore, we find that the interpretation given to the 2013 Regulations in the impugned judgment is not in accordance with the reading of the 2013 Regulations and the learned Single Judge has erred in holding that a local A level student could not opt for the SAT II exam for seeking admission in medical colleges on open merit as this option was available only to the extent of the 15% reserved seats. It is also an admitted fact between the parties that local A level students were admitted to private medical and dental colleges on the strength of their SAT II score and that PMDC never took any notice of this practice nor did it ever suggest any other understanding of the 2013 Regulations. We believe that this is relevant as PMDC has alleged that medical colleges were admitting local A level students in contravention to the regulations and have further justified and defended the changes made by virtue of the 2016 Regulations due to non-compliance of private medical and dental colleges of the 2013 Regulations. It appears that PMDC deemed it necessary to change the entire process of admission because it was unable to regulate the private medical and dental colleges to ensure compliance of its admission criteria. This is so notwithstanding the fact that the PMDC can take penal action against an institution for not complying with its regulations. In this regard PMDC may call for information from the medical and dental institution regarding the process of admission in order to ensure that the given Regulations are being followed. Furthermore, in terms of Section 22 of the 1962 Ordinance if a recognized institution is violating any provision of the Ordinance or the Regulations made thereunder the PMDC can take steps to withdraw the recognition.

26. The 2016 Regulations changed the eligibility criteria for admissions in medical and dental colleges. The relevant provisions are reproduced hereunder:

7. Eligibility criteria for MBBS and BDS courses in Pakistan and abroad:- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other regulations of the Council no Pakistani student shall be eligible for admission to medical and dental courses in Pakistan or abroad and shall not be registered with the Council as student or practitioner, as the case may be, unless he fulfills the following eligibility criteria namely:-

(a) he must have obtained minimum sixty percent marks in higher secondary school certificate (HSSC) or F.Sc (Pre-medical) or equivalent examination having minimum twelve years of education; or

(b) he must have passed, obtaining minimum sixty percent marks in aggregate in, an examination of a course from a foreign university or examining body or foreign education system in at least three subjects i.e. compulsory subjects of biology, chemistry and either physics or mathematics and such course must have been duly certified by the inter-boards committee of chairman (IBCC) as equivalent to higher secondary school certificate (HSSC) or F.Sc or intermediate level of Pakistan.

(2) Foreign or dual nationality holders or overseas Pakistani students desirous of taking admission in MBBS or BDS courses against open merit or foreign quota seat in any public or private institution of Pakistan must have passed, obtaining minimum 60% marks in aggregate in an examination of a course from a foreign university or its examining body or its education system in at least three compulsory subjects of biology, chemistry and either physics or mathematics and such course must have been duly certified by IBCC as equivalent to HSSC, F.Sc or intermediate level of Pakistan.

(3) Equivalence by IBCC under sub-regulations (1) and (2) shall be accepted in aggregate and the candidate shall be legible to take the admission test for MBBS or BDS course with any study group irrespective of the recommendations of the IBCC.

(4) Without prejudice to any other eligibility criteria under these regulations, a foreign or dual nationality student or overseas Pakistani students desirous of taking admission to MBBS and BDS course against open merits or foreign quota or self finance seats in any public or private institution of Pakistan shall have to meet the following additional eligibility criteria, namely:
(a) English language proficiency test e.g. valid TOEFL or IELTS with a minimum score of 500 or 5.5 or a certification by National University of Modern Languages (NUML) after one year English language course; and
(b) candidates having foreign or dual nationality or overseas Pakistani students and qualified from abroad may also apply if they have passed a foreign SAT II examination with minimum 550 marks in each of the three subjects including compulsory subjects of biology, chemistry and either physics or mathematics or a foreign MCAT with minimum aggregate score of 24 as an alternative to provincial or regional admission test.
8. Self-finance seats and foreign quota seats.---(1) .. (2) .. (3) No candidate shall be eligible for foreign quota seats in public and private medical and dental institutions under sub-regulations (1) and (2) unless he holds a permanent foreign nationality or dual nationality or overseas Pakistani students and who has physically studied and passed secondary school certificate (SSC) and HSSC passing 12th grade examination or equivalent from outside Pakistan during his stay abroad and having a certificate from the institution last attended to this effect.
(4) Where any set of foreign or self-finance quota remains vacant due to unavailability of eligible candidates or otherwise, it shall stand transferred to open merit quota and the student shall be charged fee and charges prescribed for open merit seat. An ineligible candidate shall not be admitted against such seats.
(5) ..
9. Medical and dental institution admission test.--(1) Unless otherwise provided in these regulations, no candidate shall be admitted to any public and private medical and dental institution unless he, in addition to other eligibility criteria under these regulations, passes admission test for this purpose.

27. In terms of the 2016 Regulations the eligibility criteria for MBBS and BDS courses in Pakistan requires F.Sc/HSSC (pre-medical) or students having passed an examination from a foreign university or examining body or foreign education system in three subjects of which biology and chemistry are mandatory and physics and mathematics as the third subject duly certified as equivalent to F.Sc/HSSC by the IBCC. In terms of Regulation 7(4) foreign or dual national students or overseas Pakistani students can rely on their SAT II score with minimum 550 marks in each of the three subjects amongst other things. Regulation 7(3) further provided that no candidate shall be eligible for foreign quota seats in public and private medical dental institutions unless he holds a permanent foreign nationality or a dual nationality or is overseas Pakistani who has physically studied outside of Pakistan having a certificate from the institute last attended to this effect. This provision changed the earlier provision which all owed local A level students to apply on the basis of the SAT II score in lieu of the MDCAT.

28. During the course of arguments the counsel for the students explained that local students who have studied A level should be given the option to get admission on the basis of SAT II score simply because there is a vast difference in the curriculum of F.Sc/HSSC with that of A level. Furthermore since the MDCAT exam is based totally on the F.Sc syllabus it puts the A level students at a disadvantage. In this regard, the impugned judgment finds that the MDCAT exam is designed to cater for both F.Sc students as well as A level students and no prejudice is made out to the A level students. The learned Single Judge called for a list of paper setters and the question answer sheets on the basis of which he concluded that the content of the MDCAT exam covers F.Sc and A level syllabus and that the A level students are not placed at a disadvantage. The same arguments were advanced before us and comparative charts were placed before us along with question papers and the text books of both F.Sc and A level by which the students demonstrated that more than 80% of the MDCAT is based on the F.Sc syllabus and less than 20% is based on the A level syllabus. It was also asserted that the A level students having achieved high merit in their O level and A level lose marks on the basis of the equivalence formula applied by the IBCC which is then compensated by relying on the SAT II score for entry in medical and dental colleges. If the students are compelled to take the MDCAT exam they are placed at a further disadvantage of having to then study for the MDCAT exam independent of their A level in order to compete in the entry test. It is their case that this is unfair and does not allow them to compete on a level playing field with the F.Sc students. It is also their case that the PMDC should consider the various different systems of education offered in the country and place all students on equal footing for the purposes of entry in medical and dental colleges.

29. The Appellants and Petitioners have also relied upon several documents to show that after the issuance of 2016 Regulations when the same were challenged before the Court, PMDC entered into negotiations with students in order to resolve the dispute. Consequently local A level students who appeared for their final exam in June 2016 were given admission on the basis of the SAT II exam on the understanding that since the 2016 Regulations were issued in October 2016 they would not apply to the students who graduated in June 2016. PMDC issued a notification on 28.11.2016 after an emergent session in November 2016 and allowed local A level students admission in medical and dental colleges on the basis of their SAT II result. PMDC does not deny offering the waiver, however it is their case that the SAT II score was only relevant with reference to the foreign quota seats and not for the open merit seats. However, in terms of the 2013 Regulations and on the basis of the data placed before us it is clear that local A level students were given admission on open merit seats on the basis of their SAT II score as it could be done under the 2013 Regulations. The learned Single Judge denied the Appellants admission on the basis of their SAT II score given that these students had sufficient knowledge of the 2016 Regulations and given that the 2013 Regulations did not permit admission on open merit on the basis of SAT II score in lieu of the MDCAT exam. We, however have a slightly different view. Although the Appellants and Petitioners before us had knowledge of the 2016 Regulations in October 2016 that does not amount to a reason to deny them a benefit that others in similar position were allowed. The A level program is a two year program and the students before the Court completed one year of their A level in October 2016 when the 2016 Regulations were issued. By this time they had taken several steps in progression of their desire to get admission in medical and dental colleges and had planned their two years post their O level exam in order to achieve the desired merit. We find that these students are entitled to be treated in the same way as the students who graduated in June 2016 as a vested right had accrued in their favour under the 2013 Regulations. These students had taken decisive steps before the promulgation of the 2016 Regulations such as the SAT II exam in preparation for admission to medical and dental colleges under the 2013 Regulations. We also find that even though the Appellants sat for the MDCAT in October, 2017, it was done out of abundant caution to save their future careers and as such does not mean that they had accepted the 2016 Regulations as they were under challenge before the learned Single Judge. Even otherwise due to the challenge to the 2016 Regulations which started in October 2016 there was confusion as to how the 2017-18 admissions would take place. Therefore we grant the same benefit to the Appellants/Petitioners before us in order to protect their interests and future careers as medical and dental practitioners. In this regard we note that most students who opt to enter the medical profession decide to become doctors very early in their lives. Preparing for admission in medical and dental colleges is not a random or last minute decision but requires planning and preparation with years of hard work. Furthermore entry into colleges being so competitive requires that this is a thought through decision. Students are therefore eager and highly charged in their desire to get admission in medical and dental colleges and plan for the same very early in life.

30. As the primary function of PMDC is to create a uniform standard in medical education it is also necessary to look at the manner in which PMDC brought about the 2016 Regulations. They were notified on 27.10.2016 which in our opinion is surprising given that as per the 2013 Regulations and the 2016 Regulations the entire admission process commences in October and is finalized in November. It appears that the PMDC thought it advantageous to change or improve the admission process with no notice to the stakeholders, just before the MDCAT exam was to take place. Naturally the regulations were challenged and by order dated 19.12.2016 were suspended allowing the admission process to continue under the 2013 Regulations. In our opinion this was a highly irresponsible decision on the part of PMDC which should have thought about the best interest of the students and the devastating effect changes would bring not to mention the confusion it would cause to the admission process. It is unfortunate that PMDC being responsible for the future of candidates interested in pursuing a career in medicine or dentistry has shown very little interest in the motivation and merit that these candidates bring when they apply for admission in medical and dental colleges. Equally disturbing is the fact that PMDC while devising uniform standards did not cater to the various different systems and standards in education up to F.Sc level or its equivalent and instead has made this an issue of the "haves and have not". By creating standards a system must be put in place which enables all students to compete equally for admission in medical and dental institutions to ensure that the best students were selected. PMDC being the standard making authority cannot give preference to one particular system of education over the other as this is not its mandate. To the contrary it is required to ensure that all candidates are able to compete for admission on equal footing, hence the requirement to create a uniform criteria for admission. In this case since there are two definite systems of education on the strength of which students apply for admission to medical and dental colleges it is necessary to balance the eligibility criteria for admissions as well as the centralized entry test to ensure that no one system is put to a disadvantage. We therefore are of the view that the Appellants/ Petitioners have made a compelling argument with respect to their disadvantaged position which should be considered compassionately by PMDC to ensure that ultimately the best students enter into medical and dental institutions. In this regard we note that the court in its constitutional jurisdiction cannot replace the opinion of experts by commenting on the content of the MDCAT exam. The learned Single Judge therefore has erred while expressing his satisfaction that students of A level are not placed in a disadvantaged position in relation to those who have undergone the F.Sc exam. This matter is best considered and decided by the forum which is authorized to make policies on such issues.

31. This brings us to the challenge raised by PAMI on behalf of private medical and dental colleges against CAP, consequent to which they do not have the ability to admit students in their medical and dental institutions. It is their case that PMDC cannot take over the right of admitting students and that this function is regulated by the UHS which is the affiliating university. We are told that there are three affiliating universities in the Punjab for medical and dental colleges. The question before us is whether prescribing the conditions for admission allows PMDC to take over the right of colleges to choose their students as per the eligibility criteria and replace it with a centralized system managed by the UHS. As we have already noted that all medical and dental institutions are recognized and registered with the PMDC. Private medical and dental colleges have to be affiliated with a recognized degree awarding university which in this case is the UHS. The UHS was established under the University of Health Sciences, Lahore Ordinance 2002 ("2002 Ordinance") and Section 4 provides for the power to affiliate or disaffiliate colleges and other medical institutions in the prescribed manner. Section 37 provides for the prescribed manner which medical institutions are required to follow for affiliation with UHS. Section 34 of the 2002 Ordinance provides that Statutes may be made to prescribe and regulate the affiliation and disaffiliation of medical institutions and related matters. The Statutes for Affiliation of Medical Institutions, 2011 provide for the terms and conditions on which affiliation to medical colleges is granted. In terms of Clause 13 admissions are to be made in accordance with the eligibility criteria, notified by the UHS and any one admitted in violation of the prescribed criteria can be restrained from making admission for the next academic session. The clause further provides that admission shall not be in excess of the approved intake and private medical and dental colleges shall admit students only after the final order of merit for public colleges is determined. Further that no institution in the private sector can charge a fee more than that prescribed by the UHS and any violation against the Statutes can be reported to the Syndicate for action in exercise of power under Section 27 of the 2002 Ordinance. Therefore the right of granting admission to students is a matter inter alia between the affiliated colleges and the UHS. Allowing the affiliated college to admit students on the given criteria in terms of the permissible intake is a right that the college has whilst it is affiliated with the UHS. This right is given by UHS to the affiliated college under the statute for the duration of the affiliation. PMDC has nothing to do with this right nor does the right to admission in private colleges fall within its regulatory control. As per its mandate PMDC is required to prescribe the conditions for admission in courses of training in medical and dental colleges which criteria will be followed by the UHS. The regulations that were issued from time to time in order to achieve this purpose essentially provided the eligibility criteria for admission, the timeline on the basis of which the admission process is to commence and end and the order of merit while allocating weightage to the components that make up the merit. Hence, the admission process is regulated by the criteria laid down which ensures that entry into medical and dental colleges is not below the given merit, in terms of the prescribed process within the given time. The counsel for PMDC argued at length to explain the manner in which private colleges were exploiting students by charging a donation from them in order to guarantee admission. He argued that in doing so private colleges were compromising the merit set out by PMDC and admitting students well below the merit while students who had achieved the merit were unable to get admission in private colleges because they could not afford to pay the donation. A large number of documents were placed before us to show the letters that were issued by PMDC requiring colleges to implement the 2016 Regulations. We have gone through the documents and find that they are simply letters issued from October 2016 informing different colleges of the 2016 Regulations and requiring them to comply with the same. Despite the numerous allegations raised against private colleges before us neither PMDC nor UHS were able to show a single letter or cite a single example of any action taken against any college for allegedly violating the prescribed merit or the admission process.

32. From what has been argued before us and is evident as per the minutes of meeting of the Standing Committee of the Ministry of Health Services Regulations and Coordination held on 16.6.2016, one of the prime factors for creating a centralized admission program was to control the practice of overcharging students in the name of donation by private colleges. After due consideration of the arguments and the record before us we are of the opinion that there are three fundamental flaws in the CAP as introduced under the 2016 Regulations. First that it was done in haste, without consulting stakeholders; second that it was done without considering the rights of the students to choose a college of their liking and convenience and finally it was done without considering the fact that both PMDC and UHS have sufficient powers to curtail and prevent violations of the 1962 Ordinance or the regulations framed thereunder. If at all the issue is to control the merit given by the PMDC while admitting students in private colleges clearly there were more effective ways of achieving this purpose. Notwithstanding the aforesaid

we are also of the opinion that granting admission in private colleges is a condition regulated under the Statute for Affiliation of Medical Institutions under the 2002 Ordinance and does not fall within the domain of the PMDC. While PMDC can provide the eligibility criteria and the standard of merit on which admissions should be granted, it cannot take away the right to admit students in private colleges. Not only is this beyond the mandate of the 1962 Ordinance it also encroaches upon the fundamental right of private colleges to carry out their business and admit students of their choice. We are also of the opinion that in order to facilitate the regulatory requirement of creating standards the legislature delegated its authority to prescribe for the conditions for admissions in medical and dental institutions. In doing so PMDC can make regulations setting out the conditions for admission, meaning that it can set the criteria on which admissions should be made but the law maker in its wisdom did not require PMDC to control the admissions of private institutions in totality because in order for the medical profession to develop and grow both public and private colleges have to play their roles. In this regard, the Federal Government has allowed the establishment of private medical and dental colleges to meet the growing demand. Furthermore by delegating the authority to prescribe the conditions for admission and affiliation, regulatory control is given to PMDC through which it can fulfill the mandate of the 1962 Ordinance. Again the law maker in its wisdom deemed it necessary to allow PMDC to set the criteria for admission so that the criteria can be adjusted as per the demands of the market. It is a facilitative power given to PMDC to retain control over the medical profession and does not allow PMDC to go beyond the intent of the primary legislation nor does it allow PMDC to deal with any subject matter not specifically enumerated in the enabling statute. The power to make rules being delegated legislation is simply for the advancement of the basic objective of the law and no more. It is often seen that Parliament delegates its legislative function to regulators where it may not have the required expertise on technical matters or it may be unable to respond to change in a timely manner or to the specific needs. Therefore it gives flexibility in the application of the law by delegating its power to legislate. This Court has already held in the case cited at Independent Newspapers Corporation (Pvt) Ltd and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2017 Lahore 289) that whenever there is delegated legislation the regulator may run the risk of overstepping its boundary and going beyond the authority delegated to it. That is why superior courts need to examine the question as to whether the rules and regulations under the statute are inconsistent with the statute itself and whether the rules and regulations achieve the purpose of the statute. Reliance is also placed on Khawaja Ahmad Hassan v. Government of Punjab and others (2005 SCMR 186) wherein the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:

The subordinate power of framing rules granted by the statute cannot be exercised to override the expression provisions of the statute itself. It is well settled by now that a statutory rule cannot enlarge the scope of the section under which it is framed and if a rule goes beyond what the section contemplates, the rule must yield to the statute. The authority of executive to make rules and regulations in order to effectuate the intention and policy of the Legislature must be exercised within the limits of mandate given to the rule making authority and the rules framed under enactment must be consistent with the provision of the said enactment. The rules framed under a statute, if are inconsistent with the provisions of the statute and defeat the intention of Legislature expressed in the main statute, same shall be invalid.

33. In the case cited at Pakistan through Secretary Finance, Islamabad and 5 others v. Aryan Petro Chemical Industries (Pvt) Ltd. Peshawar and others (2003 SCMR 370) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that statutory rules and regulations cannot enlarge the scope of the section under which they have been framed. The authority must make the regulations in order to effectuate the intention of the legislature within the limits of the mandate given to the authority. The rules if inconsistent with the provisions of the statute and defeat the intention of the legislature shall become invalid. The rule making authority cannot clothe itself with powers that has not been given to it. On the basis of the dicta of the Superior Courts we are of the opinion that Regulation 9(6)(7)(8) and (11) of the 2016 Regulations are ultra vires the mandate of the 1962 Ordinance and the Constitution, therefore liable to be struck down.

34. Counsel for the UHS also relied upon various judgments of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan to urge the point that time and again students have challenged the criteria set by the PMDC with respect to admission in medical and dental colleges and the court has repeatedly disallowed such challenges holding that the PMDC is competent to set the criteria and merit for admission into medical and dental colleges. Reliance was placed on 2004 SCMR 1570 (supra) in which the court held that there was no vested right to medical colleges nor was the authority debarred from setting a maximum age limit for taking such courses. This is purely an administrative matter relating to a policy decision of the government which the courts are always reluctant to interfere with. Reliance was also placed on 2012 CLC 1071 (supra) in which the court held that the weightage criteria set by the PMDC for admissions falls within the domain of their regulatory function and no vested right was available to students on the basis of any previous weightage criteria. The court also found that the regulations framed by the PMDC are neither arbitrary nor discriminatory and required weightage to be measured through mathematical calculation and exactness. We have gone through the cases relied upon and find that they are distinguishable from the instant case. In this case the students do not claim any quota or special treatment nor do they require that the admission criteria be changed. They simply require equal and fair treatment under the law given that the 2016 Regulations changed in October, 2016 when they had completed one year of their A level and hence are entitled to the same treatment as the A level students of June, 2016. Even otherwise, the students have demonstrated the havoc caused when policies are changed without any thought on the rippling effect it will have. Any change in policy must be made keeping in mind the rippling effect that change will bring in the months or years to come. In this case PMDC failed to take into consideration the impact of the 2016 Regulations on the students who were in the midst of their A level in October 2016 and had taken decisive steps under the 2013 Regulations. Given that the 2016 Regulations cater to the admission process for medical and dental colleges and given that the PMDC regulates the admission criteria it was incumbent upon them to bear in mind the various different systems from which candidates would eventually come to take the MDCAT exam and the impact on those students. It is on account of such sudden decisions, without any consultative process that gives rise to unnecessary litigation and in this case unpleasant litigation initiated by students fighting for a chance to compete for admission in medical and dental colleges. As the standard making authority, PMDC must consider and appreciate the time and effort put in by students to compete for admissions in medical and dental colleges because at the end of the day the purpose of the standards they set is to regulate the admission process and ensure that the prescribed merit enters into the profession.

35. For the above reasons we hold and declare as under:
(i) that the Council constituted under the Amendment Ordinance ceased to exist as of 25.4.2016 with the lapse of the Amendment Ordinance and the constitution and composition of the Council as under the 1962 Ordinance stood revived as on 25.4.2016. However the constitution of the Council and all acts, orders and decisions including the 2016 Regulations taken by the Council after 25.4.2016 shall remain protected under the de facto doctrine until the legal Council is constituted as per law;
(ii) that the Federal Government shall constitute the Council in terms of Section 3 of the 1962 Ordinance within three months' time;
(iii) that the existing Council shall carry out the day to day business of PMDC till the constitution of the new Council and shall not frame any new regulations or amend existing regulations under the 1962 Ordinance;
(iv) that Regulations 9(6)(7)(8) and (11) of the 2016 Regulations qua the centralized admission program is beyond the authorized mandate of PMDC under the 1962 Ordinance and inconsistent with the intent of the stated Ordinance, hence declared to be without lawful authority and of no legal effect, therefore struck down;

JUDGMENT

Through this Writ Petition, the Petitioner has impugned letter dated 30.11.2016 issued by Respondent No. 1 whereby the Petitioners have been blacklisted by the Lahore Development Authority ("LDA") for five years, such that they will not be able to participate in any tender of the LDA.

2. The Petitioners are engaged in the business of construction and development and are three separate legal entities, each of whom have executed and completed different projects including projects of the Respondent LDA. Petitioner No. 3 which is joint venture company of Petitioners No. 1 and 2, after a competitive bidding process was awarded the contract for works on the Orange Line Metro Train Project, Package-II ("Project") which works had commenced. However, a dispute arose between the parties which is now pending before an Arbitrator.

3. Counsel for the Petitioners argued that the Respondent LDA issued the impugned order of blacklisting without following due process. A show-cause notice was issued on 3.11.2016 to Petitioner No. 3, to which reply was filed on 10.11.2016. However, the impugned order of blacklisting was issued to all three Petitioners on 30.11.2016. Hence no due process was followed with respect to Petitioners No. 1 and 2 and they were simply blacklisted. In this regard, learned counsel has relied upon the case titled Messrs Habib Rafiq (Pvt.) Ltd. through Authorized Representative v. Government of Punjab through Chief Secretary and another (2015 CLD 72). Counsel for the Petitioners further argued that the subject matter of the blacklisting is pending before the Arbitrator which arbitration was referred with the consent of the parties. Therefore, he argued that the Respondents cannot impose any liability on the Petitioners given that the Arbitrator still has to decide on whether Petitioner No. 3 is liable for the alleged faulty works on Grids No. 358 and 359 of the Project. Learned counsel further stated that the reasons provided in the impugned order for blacklisting the Petitioners are not available to the Respondents as there is no proof whatsoever that Petitioner No. 3 failed to perform the contract or attempted to undermine the safety, security and stability of the structure of the project by constructing 22 piles of lesser length at Grids No. 358 and 359. He explained that so far as the dispute of 22 piles in Grids No. 358 and 359 is concerned, the deficiency pointed out by the Respondent LDA was corrected and by May 2016 the sixth bill with reference to the stated Grids was paid and cleared by the stated Respondents. Thereafter simply to harass the Petitioners, the Respondents took up the issue of Grids No. 358 and 359 in order to justify terminating the contract and to initiate a campaign of maligning the Petitioners by registering an FIR against them and initiating inquiries against them.

4. On behalf of the Respondent LDA, learned counsel explained that the Petitioners did not fulfill their contractual obligation with reference to the Project and that the Petitioners compromised in the quality of works which is evident from the construction of Grids No. 358 and 359, hence the contract was terminated. Therefore he explained that show cause notice was issued on 3.11.2016 to which reply was filed on 10.11.2016 and ultimately the blacklisting order was issued on 30.11.2016. Learned counsel argued that due process was followed and no illegality is made out against the impugned order. Learned counsel further stated that the dispute is pending before the Arbitrator, however the pendency of that dispute does not affect the blacklisting order as the blacklisting order is a penal consequence for non-compliance of the contract with the Respondent LDA which cannot be stopped on account of pendency of the civil dispute.

5. Heard and record perused.

6. The impugned blacklisting order has been issued under Rule 21 of the Punjab Procurement Rules, 2014 ("Rules") which provides that:

> Subject to sub-rule (3), if a procuring agency is satisfied that a contractor has acted in a manner detrimental to the public interest or good practices or has consistently failed to perform his obligation under the contract or his performance has not been up to mark or he is found indulging in corrupt or fraudulent practice, the procuring agency may, after affording him an opportunity of hearing and through a notification, debar him from participating in any public procurement process of the procuring agency for such period as the procuring agency may determine in the light of the circumstances of the case.

In terms of the Rules, a mechanism for blacklisting is provided in the schedule appended with the Rules which provides that:

1. The procuring agency may, on information received from any resource, issue show cause notice to a bidder or contractor.
2. The show-cause notice shall contain:

(a) precise allegation, against the bidder or contractor;

(b) the maximum period for which the procuring agency proposes to debar the bidder or contractor from participating in any public procurement of the procuring agency; and

(c) the statement, if needed, about the intention of the procuring agency to make a request to the Authority for debarring the bidder or contractor from participating in public procurements of all the procuring agencies.

3. The procuring agency shall give minimum of seven days to the bidder or contractor for submission of written reply of the show cause notice.
4. In case, the bidder or contractor fails to submit written reply within the requisite time, the procuring agency may issue notice for personal hearing to the bidder or contractor/authorize representative of the bidder or contractor and the procuring agency shall decide the matter on the basis of available record and personal hearing, if availed.
5. In case the bidder or contractor submits written reply of the show-cause notice, the procuring agency may decide to file the matter or direct issuance of a notice to the bidder or contractor for personal hearing.
6. The procuring agency shall give minimum of seven days to the bidder or contractor for appearance before the specified officer of the procuring agency for personal hearing.
7. The procuring agency shall decide the matter on the basis of the available record and personal hearing of the bidder or contractor, if availed.
8. The procuring agency shall decide the matter within fifteen days from the date of personal hearing unless the personal hearing is adjourned to a next date and in such an eventuality, the period of personal hearing shall be reckoned from the last date of personal hearing.
9. The procuring agency shall communicate to the bidder or contractor the order of debarring the bidder or contractor from participating in any public procurement with a statement that the bidder or contractor may, within thirty days, prefer a representation against the order before the Managing Director of the Authority.

10. The procuring agency shall, as soon as possible, communicate the order of blacklisting to the Authority with the request to upload the information on its website.

11. If the procuring agency wants the Authority to debar the bidder or contractor from participating in any public procurement of all procuring agencies, the procuring agency shall specify reasons for such dispensation.

12. The Authority shall immediately publish the information and decision of blacklisting on its website.

13. In case of request of a procuring agency under para 11 or representation of any aggrieved person under Rule 21, the Managing Director shall issue a notice for personal hearing to the parties and call for record of proceedings of blacklisting. The parties may file written statements and documents in support of their contentions.

14. In case of representation of any aggrieved person or procuring agency under Rule 21, the Chairperson shall issue a notice for personal hearing to the parties and may call for the record of the proceedings. The parties may file written statements and documents in support of their contentions.

15. In every order of blacklisting under Rule 21, the procuring agency shall record reasons of blacklisting and also reasons for short, long or medium period of blacklisting.

16. The Authority shall upload all the decisions under Rule 21, available with it, on its website. But the name of a bidder or contractor shall immediately be removed from the list of blacklisted persons on expiry of period of blacklisting or order of the competent authority to that effect, whichever is earlier.

17. An effort shall be made for electronic communication of all the notices and other documents pursuant to this mechanism or process.

In terms of the record show cause notice was issued to Petitioner No. 3 on 3.11.2016, to which reply was filed on 10.11.2016. Thereafter personal hearing was given to Petitioner No. 3 after which the impugned order for blacklisting was issued on 30.11.2016. No show cause notice was issued to Petitioners No. 1 and 2, no hearing was given to them nor has any order been passed against them. The impugned order under "Copy for information to" states as follows:

i. The Director General, LDA.

ii. Managing Director, PPRA, S&GAD, GoP with a request to upload the information on the website. It is further requested to debar both the contractors from participating in any public procurement of all procuring agencies in Punjab for the reasons specified in Para 2 above.

ii. The Project Coordinator, PMU, LDA.

iv. The Engineer/Project Director, LOLMTP (Package-Il), LDA.

v. The Registrar, M/s Pakistan Engineering Council (PEC), Ataturk Avenue (East) G-5/2, Islamabad with a request not to renew the enlistment of contractors M/s Ch. A. Latif & Sons (Pvt.) Ltd ad M/s Maqbool Associates (Pvt) Ltd.

vi. The Project Manager, NESPAK-CEC(JV), LOLMTP.

vii. Office Copy.

7. Interestingly it is through the 'CC' that the Respondent LDA directed the Respondent Punjab Procurement Regulatory Authority ("PPRA") to debar all three Petitioners from participating in public procurement of any procuring agency in Punjab. In this regard, there is absolutely no provision of law that allows Respondent LDA to pass any such direction to Respondent PPRA nor can they through the "CC" of the impugned order direct PPRA to take action against the Petitioners. Not only is this a glaring violation of due process but is absolutely contrary to the requirements of the Punjab Procurement Regulatory Authority Act and the Rules. It is also noted that the Respondent LDA in the "CC" at No. 1 directed the Pakistan Engineering Council not to renew the enlistment of the three Petitioners. Again there is no legal basis for making such a direction. Learned counsel for Respondent LDA when confronted with the basis for directing Respondent PPRA as well as Pakistan Engineering Council was unable to explain under what provision of law, LDA draws the authority to make such a request. Therefore to the extent of Petitioners No. 1 and 2, there is no blacklisting order. The 'CC Note' at the end of the impugned order cannot be considered as a blacklisting order against Petitioners No. 1 and 2 as due process was not followed for blacklisting the stated Petitioners. Hence implementation of the impugned order against Petitioners No. 1 and 2 is illegal and therefore set aside. Furthermore the directions given to Respondent No. 2, PPRA and Respondent No. 3, Pakistan Engineering Council are also without any legal basis and the Respondent No. 1, LDA is cautioned from resorting to such practices as it cannot direct Respondent PPRA or the Pakistan Engineering Council from not fulfilling their statutory obligations.

8. So far as Petitioner No. 3 is concerned, the grounds mentioned in the impugned order dated 30.11.2016 for blacklisting are as follows:--

(a) There is no doubt that the contractor failed to perform his contractual obligation under various clauses of the contract document.

(b) The contractor has not raised the issue of Black listing in any Court of law.

(c) As per "Schedule" (sub-section (6) of Rule 21) para 1 to 8, all actions, such as issuance of show-cause notice, personal hearing and decision, are to be taken by the "procuring agency."

(d) The Contractor' attempt to undermine the safety, security and stability of the structure of the project by constructing lesser length of 22 piles at two grids (358 & 359) is a solid ground to black list him besides other reasons.

The issue of Ground (a) is admittedly in dispute before the Arbitrator, hence it cannot be used as a basis to blacklist Petitioner No. 3 as the Arbitrator has yet to determine whether the Petitioner No. 3 failed to perform its contractual obligations or whether Respondent LDA was at fault and illegally terminated the contract. Ground (b) is astonishingly a novel concept which finds no basis in the law as Petitioner No. 3 is not required to raise the issue of blacklisting in any Court of law prior to the issuance of any notice or order of blacklisting. Hence there is no legal basis for this ground. The main ground relied upon by the Respondent LDA is Ground (d) which holds Petitioner No. 3 liable for the safety, security and stability of the structure of the project with reference to Grid Nos. 358 and 359. This matter is also in dispute before the Arbitrator and at this stage it is premature for the Respondents to levy this allegation because so far as Grids No. 358 and 359 are concerned, admittedly the lesser length issue was corrected and improved upon and thereafter certified by the Engineer as required under the contract. The allegation, if any, against Petitioner No. 3 is that it intended to compromise on public safety and security in collusion with the staff of LDA as well as that of NESPAK. This issue was also considered in WP No. 40127/2016 titled Maqbool Associates (Pvt.) Limited etc. v. Anti-Corruption Establishment Lahore through its Director General etc wherein the same Petitioners challenged an inquiry initiated by the Federal Investigation Agency with reference to the same Grids No. 358 and 359. It was mentioned in that case that during the pendency of the writ petition, FIR No. 2/2017 dated 27.1.2017 was registered against the petitioners which was also with malafide intent to harass the petitioners. The issue in the FIR is of whether the lesser lengths were made with malafide intent in collusion with LDA and NESPAK employees which issue is under investigation. Therefore at this stage it cannot form a ground for blacklisting Petitioner No. 3. Furthermore the impugned order does not explain how public safety and security was compromised nor does it explain that how the lesser length impacted the entire project and resulted in a safety or security hazard. It appears that the blacklisting order was issued simply to deny the petitioners the right to participate in public tenders. Therefore, the impugned order of blacklisting is not sustainable under the law.

9. In view of the aforesaid, the instant Writ Petition is allowed and impugned order of blacklisting dated 30.11.2016 issued by Respondent LDA to the Petitioners is set aside. The Respondents are directed to immediately remove the blacklisting order against the Petitioners from the LDA and PPRA website.

Convention for Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination Against Women--

----Art. 4--Constitution of Pakistan 1973, Arts. 4 & 25--Gender discrimination--Duties of signatory states highlighted--International law--Recruitment process--Quota system explained--Due representation--Counter-terrorism department--Art. 4 of Convention for elimination of all forms of discrimination against Woman ("CEDAW") obligates member states to take temporary measure, such as quotas, to neutralize effect of barriers hindering women's participation in public sector--Art. 5 of CEDAW also requires that appropriate measures are taken to modify social and cultural patterns of conduct for men and women with a view to achieve elimination of prejudices, customary and other practices which are based on idea of inferiority of women or on stereotype roles for men and women--Government is required to devise policies which will remove obstacles and barriers for participation of women in all walks of life, be it political, social, economic or cultural--This participation is based on fundamental principle that men and women must be treated equally and there can be no discrimination on basis of gender--Government of Punjab amongst other measures took some positive steps when introducing Punjab Women Empowerment Package 2012 which required quota for women in public service employment to be increased--However essence of fixing such quota and commitment under CEDAW has been compromised by relegating female candidates who competed on open merit and satisfy merit criteria, yet are adjusted against reserved seats--Essence of fixing quotas for women in public service was to enhance their participation and to ensure that equal opportunity is given to women applying for public sector jobs.

----Arts. 4, 18, 19 23 & 25--Gender discrimination--Convention for elimination of all forms of discrimination against women--Fundamental Right of Employment--Violation of constitutional mandate--By reducing participation to their respective quotas, appellants had in fact created another quota of abled bodied Muslim men, ensuring that open merit seats were filled by abled bodied Muslim men--When women are reduced to only reserved seats, quota acts as a bar to employment and loses its facilitative objective as well as created another group or class which is given employment--By denying female candidates their right to employment on merit, respondents have ensured that post of corporals is filled by men--Equal opportunity and equal access has effectively been denied, hence constitutional mandate violated--Seats were filled up by those who did not necessarily meet merit--By reducing female candidates to 5% quota, merit is compromised as candidates who satisfy merit are ousted on account of their gender and candidates who do not meet merit or lower in merit are included--In effect mediocracy is promoted and very purpose of setting up a rigorous induction plan is compromised--Competence cannot be measured through gender lens--Competence must be seen strictly on basis of standards set--High Court also deprecated practice by not allowing female field work by holding that even though female corporals are hired, they are not assigned field work because they are considered to be vulnerable and weak, hence they are given office jobs and no field work--This justification cannot be appreciated or given legal sanctity because if women have applied for post of corporals in CTD and have qualified physical and mental tests set by appellants then those who fall on merit must be trained along with their male counterparts and must be allowed to participate in field work--Reasoning given is precisely kind of gender stereotyping which Art. 5 of CEDAW requires to be prevented--Instead of treating male and female candidates as equal appellants have devised their own understanding of how to appoint female corporals--Gender stereotyping or classification based on stereotype roles or social expectations tantamount to discrimination which is not permissible under Constitution and goes against constitutional mandate of equality. JUDGMENT

Mrs. Ayesha A. Malik J.--The instant appeal along with connected ICAs No. 475/17, 487/17 and 488/17 arise out of the common order dated 2.3.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in WP No. 1134/2015.

2. In November, 2013 the Government of Punjab (Appellant here) invited applications for the post of corporals in the Counter Terrorism Department, Punjab ("CTD"). In terms of the advertisement both men and women could apply. Accordingly the Respondents before this Court applied for the post of corporals. They cleared the tests and interview and came on the merit list. However, they were not appointed as the Appellants were of the opinion that female candidates could not be appointed against the open merit seats. The Appellants appointed 75 female corporals against a 5% quota for women and denied the Respondents' appointment because they did not fall within the merit of the top 75 female candidates. The Respondents challenged the decision of the Appellants and vide order dated 5.11.2014 passed in WP No. 22217/2014, a direction was given to the Appellants to hear the Respondents and pass a speaking order. The Home Secretary, Punjab heard the Respondents and through order dated 6.1.2015 rejected the representation of the Respondents on the ground that the top 75 female candidates were selected and since the Respondents did not fall within the merit of the top 75 female candidates, they cannot be appointed. In this regard, the Appellants relied upon notification dated 30.9.2014 issued by the Secretary, Government of Punjab, Home Department which provides that Competent Authority has been pleased to fix 5% female quota in the recruitment process of Corporals in Counter Terrorism Department, Punjab, in view of approval of the Chief Minister dated 11.11.2013. The Respondents challenged the order of 6.1.2015 by filing WP No. 1134/2015 wherein the learned Single Judge set aside the order of 6.1.2015 and directed the Appellants to appoint the Respondents.

3. The Government of Punjab has impugned order dated 2.3.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. Nos. 1134/2015, 190/2015, 13326/2015 and 3687/2015 on the ground that 5% quota was fixed for the recruitment of female corporals in the CTD. 75 female candidates were adjusted against the 5% quota out of 1500 corporals and the Respondents before this Court being female applicants could not be appointed because their merit was less than the 75 female candidates who were appointed against the women quota. The impugned order, however directed the Appellants to appoint the Respondents and send them for training. Hence these appeals.

4. Mr. Muhammad Ijaz, AAG on behalf of the Appellants argued that the recruitment process commenced after the advertisement was issued in November 2013. However inadvertently the advertisement did not mention the 5% quota allocated for women applicants. He explained that 1500 corporals were to be appointed out of which 1425 would be male corporals and 75 female corporals. The quota was fixed by the competent authority much before the advertisement keeping in mind the nature of the job and the practical risks involved. In this regard Rai Muhammad Tahir, Additional IG Police/CTD explained that CTD is a counter terrorism force which plans and executes counter terrorism measures, operations and investigations. A transparent recruitment process was undertaken to select the best candidates in which written test, psychological test, medical examination and physical test were carried out in order to ensure that the appointees are not only physically but mentally capable to meet the challenges of the job. Given the strenuous and dangerous requirements of the job, it was decided that out of the total strength of corporals being appointed, 5% should be women. He explained that the women corporals are not sent out in the field, as they are considered to be vulnerable and at risk. However in order to ensure that women are represented in the CTD, the required quota is maintained. As per his explanation, the CTD cannot appoint women beyond the given quota as the department needs corporals who will go into the field to carry out counter terrorism operations from time to time, whereas the female corporals are given desk jobs and cannot be sent out to do field work. As per his contentions it is a high paying job which should be given to men who are well suited for the job.

5. On behalf of the Respondents, learned counsel argued that the Respondents before this Court applied for the post of corporals and came on the open merit for the said post. The Appellants selected the top 75 female candidates and appointed them thereby restricting the other female candidates who came on the merit, simply on account of notification dated 30.9.2014. It is the case of the Respondents that fixing a female quota and restricting the female recruitment to the extent of the quota is discriminatory and prevented the Respondents from being appointed on merit.

6. Heard and record perused.

7. The Appellants issued an advertisement in November 2013 for the post of corporals in the CTD. Subsequent to the advertisement, notification dated 30.9.2014 was issued fixing a quota of 5% for female candidates. It is the case of the Appellants that female candidates can only be adjusted against the 5% quota and that the remaining seats being 1425 must be allocated to male candidates. As per their understanding even though the Respondents came on the open merit, they cannot be appointed because their merit was below the merit of the 75 female candidates who were appointed against the women quota. The impugned order finds that for the process of recruitment of corporals, the advertisement published in the newspaper did not stipulate a 5% quota for women. The quota was notified on 30.9.2014, after the advertisement even though it was approved by the Chief Minister on 11.11.2013 through a summary placed before him. Therefore, since the notification came much after the advertisement and after the commencement of the recruitment process, the Court set aside the impugned order dated 6.1.2015 and directed the Appellants to appoint the Respondents and to send them for their training with the remaining batches.

8. We have heard the case at length and are of the opinion that while the learned Single Judge has relied upon the notification dated 30.9.2014 and held that it was not applicable to the recruitment process, the act of the Appellants of not appointing the Respondents even otherwise is discriminatory. We are of the opinion that the matter in issue goes beyond the issuance of the notification of 2014 fixing a 5% quota for women candidates. We find that the general understanding of the Appellants for recruitment against reserved seats is totally misconceived and goes against the spirit of reserving seats. Article 25(3) of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") permits seats to be reserved for women, as a special measure for the protection of women. This special measure was considered necessary to ensure equal opportunity for women to encourage their participation in the public sector. The rationale of Article 25(3) was considered in Mst. Attiyya Bibi Khan and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary of Education (Ministry of Education), Civil Secretariat, Islamabad and others (2001 SCMR 1161) wherein the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, while striking down a quota fixed for doctors' children for admission in medical colleges, upheld the requirement of reservation of seats for women and for those who are socially or educationally backward or are considered under- developed classes in order to ensure their advancement in society. Therefore in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan reservation of seats can be made with the objective to secure genuine equality amongst different classes or groups. In order to ensure substantive equality the Constitution required measures to be taken to overcome the disparity and barriers which permit substantive equality. Therefore reservation of seats for women in public sector employment is an affirmative action to ensure that women get equal opportunity and equal access while applying for public sector jobs.

9. Article 4 of the Convention for the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination against Woman ("CEDAW") obligates member states to take temporary measure, such as quotas, to neutralize the effect of barriers hindering women's participation in the public sector. Article 5 of the CEDAW also requires that appropriate measures are taken to modify social and cultural patterns of conduct for men and women with a view to achieve the elimination of prejudices, customary and other practices which are based on the idea of inferiority of women or on stereotype roles for men and women. Pakistan is a signatory to CEDAW since March, 1996, hence is required to take positive steps to achieve the standards set by CEDAW. The Government is therefore required to devise policies which will remove obstacles and barriers for the participation of women in all walks of life, be it political, social, economic or cultural. This participation is based on the fundamental principle that men and women must be treated equally and there can be no discrimination on the basis of gender. The Government of Punjab amongst other measures took some positive steps when introducing the Punjab Women Empowerment Package 2012 which required quota for women in public service employment to be increased. However the essence of fixing this quota and the commitment under CEDAW has been compromised by relegating female candidates who competed on open merit and satisfy the merit criteria, yet are adjusted against reserved seats. In our opinion, the essence of fixing quotas for women in public service was to enhance their participation and to ensure that equal opportunity is given to women applying for public sector jobs. The objective was never to reduce female participation to a quota.

10. In the present cases 49272 candidates applied out of which 9679 were female candidates. 12101 candidates passed the physical test, out of which 3544 were female candidates. 11835 appeared in the written test out of which 2948 candidates qualified including 730 female candidates. 1889 candidates were shortlisted out of which department chose only 75 female candidates and the remaining were all men. The Respondents before the Court came within the merit of the 1500 who were to be selected, in fact they were placed within the first 400 on the merit. They qualified at every level yet were denied appointment. The understanding of the Appellants on this issue totally negates the purpose of fixing reserved seats and the objective of encouraging women to apply to such posts. When a candidate meets the merit, he or she cannot be placed on a quota list simply because of their gender, disability or being a minority. The quota is fixed to facilitate and encourage representation from groups which are considered to be under represented and cannot be deemed as the maximum representation from that group. We are of the opinion that the 5% reserved seats for female candidates means that the department should ensure that at least 5% of all candidates employed by CTD are female candidates and it does not bar them from employing all female candidates who fall within the merit. The fixation of quota for women in no way bars female candidates from competing on the open merit and being appointed on account of their succeeding on the open merit. The concept of a quota is to ensure representation and participation of females in the public sector and the quota represents the critical value below which it will be deemed that females are under represented. Essentially the quota ensures that in the very least 5% of the candidates should be women which will signify the very minimum representation of females in that department. Hence a quota does not bar the department from appointing female candidates beyond 5%. Since the Respondents fall within the required merit, in fact were on the higher side on the merit, it was incumbent upon the Appellants to appoint them.

11. We are also of the opinion that the act of the Appellants runs contrary to the very spirit of creating reserved seats, be it for women, disabled or minorities. By reducing the participation of the aforementioned classes to their respective quotas, the Appellants have in fact created another quota of abled bodied muslim men, ensuring that the open merit seats are filled by abled bodied muslim men. When women are reduced to only the reserved seats, the quota acts as a bar to employment and loses its facilitative objective as well as created another group or class which is given employment. By denying female candidates their right to employment on merit, the Respondents have ensured that the post of corporals is filled by men. Equal opportunity and equal access has effectively been denied, hence the constitutional mandate violated. Also it means that the seats are filled up by those who do not necessarily meet the merit. By reducing the female candidates to the 5% quota, the merit is compromised as candidates who satisfy the merit are ousted on account of their gender and candidates who do not meet the merit or lower in merit are included. In effect mediocracy is promoted and the very purpose of setting up a rigorous induction plan is compromised. Competence cannot be measured through the gender lens. Competence must be seen strictly on the basis of the standards set. In this case, the standard was the combined result of the written test, psychological test, physical test, medical examination and interview. The selected female corporals all satisfied the merit. The Respondents also fulfilled the criteria but were ousted simply because they are women. Reserved seats or quotas are positive actions required to achieve substantive equality. It is a measure taken for promoting equality and is the bedrock of international conventions providing for protection against discrimination on the basis of sex, race and disability. Hence the act of the Appellants of employing only 75 women when the Respondents being female candidates were eligible on merit is discriminatory and against the spirit of the Constitution.

12. We also find it necessary to comment on the justification offered to us for restricting the employment of female corporals to 75. We were informed that even though female corporals are hired, they are not assigned field work because they are considered to be vulnerable and weak, hence they are given office jobs and no field work. This justification cannot be appreciated or given legal sanctity because if women have applied for the post of corporals in the CTD and have qualified the physical and mental tests set by the Appellants then those who fall on the merit must be trained along with their male counterparts and must be allowed to participate in the field work. The reasoning given is precisely the kind of gender stereotyping which Article 5 of the CEDAW requires to be prevented. Instead of treating male and female candidates as equal the Appellants have devised their own understanding of how to appoint female corporals. In our opinion this justification given amounts to discrimination because female corporals are being treated differently simply on account of their gender. Therefore gender stereotyping or classification based on stereotype roles or social expectations tantamount to discrimination which is not permissible under the Constitution and goes against the constitutional mandate of equality.

13. For what has been discussed above, all the appeals are dismissed and impugned order dated 2.3.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No. 1134/2015 is maintained.

----Art. 199--Constitutional petition--Advertisement for post of Lecturer (Deaf field)--Equivalence of degree--Disqualification--Validity--Degree of MA (Special Education) cannot be equated with M.Ed. Mr. Hassan Fareed, Advocate for Petitioner.
Mr. Anwaar Hussain, Addl. A.G. for Respondent No. 1.
Mr. Faisal Mukhtar, Law Officer for Respondent No. 2.
Date of hearing: 28.9.2017.

ORDER

Through this petition, the petitioner seeks a direction to Respondent No. 1 to appoint her on the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field) BS-17.

2. The facts of the case are that the petitioner applied for the post of 'Lecturer (Deaf Field) BS-17' through proper channel with reference to the advertisement issued by Respondent No. 1. Provisional interview call letter was also issued to the petitioner after fulfilling the requirements prescribed by Respondent No. 1. The petitioner being second on the merit list was recommended to the Provincial Government for the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field) on contract basis for five years in the Punjab Special Education Department on 29.4.2016. Subsequently Respondent No. 2 forwarded the appointment of selected candidates including the petitioner to Respondent No. 1 by stating that selected candidates are not qualified for the post as per rules and regulations of Special Education Department. The petitioner approached Respondent No. 1 through application dated 24.8.2016 stating that her degree of Masters in Special Education is equivalent to the degree of M. Ed Special Education but till date no reply has been given by Respondent No. 1. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the petitioner was selected and appointed to the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field) after fulfilling the requirements/criteria, hence she cannot be denied the post.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondents No. 1 and 2. Learned Law Officer argued that as per the Service Rules the required qualification for the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field) was MA (Special Education) whereas Respondent No. 1 recommended the candidates for the post who possess degree of M.Ed Special Education. Respondent No. 1 considered the request of the Administrative Department and revised its earlier recommendation through letter dated 15.8.2016. The recommendation of the petitioner was also withdrawn along with two other recommendees. Learned Law Officer further submitted that Qualification Equivalence Determination Committee ("QEDC") vide its minutes dated 16.5.2016 has also decided the issue and declared that M.A Special Education is not equivalent to M.Ed (Visually Impaird). Therefore in the light of QEDC's decision the petitioner was not eligible for the said post.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The basic grievance of the petitioner is that she possesses the degree of M.Ed which is equal to MA (Special Education) degree which should be considered for the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field). The petitioner has relied upon letter dated 23.1.2017 issued by the Higher Education Department to show equivalence of MA (Special Education) with M.Ed. Special Education. The letter of 23.1.2017 reads as follows:

> The Higher Education Commission recognizes Master of Education in Special Education degree held by you from University of Education, Lahore after 'Post Graduate Diploma in Teaching the Deaf/15-year schooling' as equivalent to corresponding Master's degree in the relevant field involving 16 years of schooling.

The aforesaid letter of 23.1.2017 issued by the Higher Education Department does not provide that M.Ed. Special Education as equal to MA (Special Education), hence cannot be applied to this case. Furthermore the degree of MA (Special Education) cannot be equated with M.Ed. Special Education as per the QEDC since MA (Special Education) is a four year degree programme and has 66 credit hours whereas M.Ed Special Education is one year degree programme and has only 36 credit hours.

6. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- This judgment decides upon the issues raised in I.C.As. Nos.72076/2017, 72070/2017 and 72080/2017 as all the appeals arise out of the same order dated 30.8.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.Ps. Nos.12840/2017, 10883/2017 and 5885/2017. The Appellant before the Court is Senior Member Board of Revenue through Director General, Punjab Land Record Authority, Lahore who is aggrieved by the order of the learned Single Judge dated 30.8.2017 passed in W.Ps. Nos.12840/2017, 10883/2017 and 5885/2017 whereby the termination of the Respondents' contracts was declared illegal.

2. The relevant facts are that the Government of Punjab through the Project Management Unit of the Board of Revenue launched the Land Record Management and Information System Project to digitalize the land records of the Province. For this purpose, the recruitment process for Service Centre Officials ("SCO") against 477 vacant posts was initiated and posts were advertised on 6th and 7th October 2015. The Respondents and others applied for the posts. All candidates were called for computer based typing test and interview wherein as per the policy, one of the qualifying requirement was a typing speed of 40 words per minute. 452 SCOs were selected and assigned to different Arazi Record Centres in the Tehsils of the Province. All SCOs were employed on contract for a period of one year and the contract was to expire on 30.6.2017. Subsequently several complaints were lodged against the working of the SCOs, hence the department probed into the matter and decided to re-take the typing test to evaluate the performance of the SCOs. The re-take results showed that only 9% of the SCOs were able to type at 40 words per minute. The majority were unable to type at 40 words per minute with more than 51% having a speed of below 20 words per minute. The matter was entrusted to the Anti-Corruption Establishment ("ACE") for proper investigation. After a preliminary investigation, the ACE registered FIR No.11/2016 against the accused officials who had compromised on the merit in the recruitment process. The ACE recommended judicial action against the delinquent officials in terms of its report dated 9.6.2017. Apprehending their possible removal 44 of the SCOs filed W.P. No.4050/2017 wherein the Court vide its order dated 10.2.2017 transmitted the petition to the Director General, Punjab Land Record Authority to treat it as a representation and decide it after providing a hearing to all through a speaking order within a period of four weeks. As a result of this direction, 452 SCOs were issued notice for personal appearance for 16.3.2017. 438 SCOs appeared before the competent authority. They were given a hearing and were confronted with their typing test from the re take examination. They were unable to explain their poor performance, hence the competent authority terminated their contracts in terms of clause 17 of the contract with payment of one month's salary in lieu of notice.

3. Mr. Muhammad Shan Gul, Addl. AG on behalf of the Appellant argued that the Respondent SCOs were all contract employees whose contracts were terminated simplicitor without any stigma in terms of clause 17 of the contract which clearly provides that your contract shall be liable to termination on one month's notice or on payment of one month's pay in lieu thereof on either side, without assigning any reason. He further argued that the impugned judgment has ignored the settled principle laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan that contract employees cannot enforce their contract through a writ petition, that the terms and conditions of service of the SCOs are not governed by any statutory rules and further that the contract itself contemplates that it can be terminated with or without notice and one month's salary in lieu of notice. In this regard, he has placed reliance on the cases titled Abdul Wahab and others v. HBL and others (2013 SCMR 1383), Pakistan Defence Officers' Housing Authority and others v. Lt. Col. Syed Jawaid Ahmed (2013 SCMR 1707), Syed Nazir Gillani v. Pakistan Red Crescent Society and another (2014 SCMR 982), Muhammad Yusuf Shah v. Pakistan International Airlines Corporation (PLD 1981 SC 224), Anwar Hussain v. Agricultural Development Bank of Pakistan and others (PLD 1984 SC 194) and Raziuddin v. Chairman, Pakistan International Airlines Corporation and 2 others (PLD 1992 SC 531). He further argued that even otherwise the contract period ended on 30.6.2017 after which the Respondents have no right to continue in service nor do they have any right to regular appointment in terms of clause 11 of the contract. Reliance was placed on the cases titled Pakistan Telecommunication Co. Ltd. through Chairman v. Iqbal Nasir and others (PLD 2011 SC 132), Nadeem Shahid and another v.

Chairman, State Life Insurance Corporation of Pakistan and 3 others (2003 PLC (C.S.) 719), Agha Salim Khurshid and another v. Federation of Pakistan and others (1998 SCMR 1930), The Secretary, Government of the Punjab, through Secretary Health Department, Lahore and others v. Riaz ul Haq (1997 SCMR 1552) and Aurangzeb v. Messrs Gool Bano Dr. Burjor Ankalseria and others (2001 SCMR 909). Finally the learned Law Officer argued that the impugned order is even incorrect on the facts as the learned Single Judge held that no personal hearing was given and that no complaint was given from the public or from any official and further that the petitioners had passed their typing test yet their services were dispensed with. Learned Law Officer argued that all three findings of the learned Single Judge are contrary to the record and the facts. He has relied upon order dated 28.3.2017 issued by the Director General, Punjab Land Records Authority to urge the point that the Respondents were given a personal hearing, that they were confronted with their typing test result and that Annexure-C of the appeal shows the nature of some of the complaints that were filed against the SCOs.

4. Mr. Muhammad Ahsan Bhoon, Mr. Talaat Farooq Sheikh, Malik Muhammad Awais Khalid and Mr. M. Mansoor Humayun, Advocates for the Respondents argued that the Respondents were treated in an arbitrary manner with mala fide intent. All candidates qualified the recruitment process and were appointed after following of codal formalities. The Appellant has not been able to show any illegality in the recruitment process. Learned counsel further argued that there is no provision for re-take of typing test nor was there any justification for terminating the contract through an omnibus order without considering the case of each and every SCO on his individual merit. It is their case that all Respondents were qualified and even project employees can be regularized in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled Rizwan Javed and others v. Secretary Agriculture Livestock and others (2017 PLC (C.S.) 712). It is also their case that they were never heard and that they were never given a fair chance to defend themselves and that the Appellants have misconducted themselves and abused their authority. Reliance has been placed on the cases titled Collector of Customs and Central Excise, Peshawar and 2 others (2004 SCMR 303), District Coordination Officer, District Dir Lower and others v. Rozi Khan and others (2009 SCMR 663) and Jawad Ali and others v. Superintendent Jail and others (2017 PLC (C.S.) 587).

5. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

6. The Respondents do not dispute that they are contract employees nor do they dispute that the contract was for one year which expired on 30.6.2017. It is their case that the contract was terminated arbitrarily without due process and it is also their case that not only should they be reinstated in service but they should be treated as regular employees. The contract period ended 30.6.2017 and at this point there is no contract between the parties and furthermore in terms of what has been argued before us there is no will of the employer that is the Appellant, to extend the contract of the Respondents. In terms of the impugned order dated 30.8.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge, the order dated 28.3.2017 issued by the Director General, Punjab Land Records Authority being the order of termination of contract was set aside and all consequent acts were declared to be illegal as they were without affording the Respondents a fair trial as required under Articles 4 and 10-A of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973. We are of the opinion that the impugned order has failed to take into consideration the settled principle of law on the subject by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan. In the case titled 'Federation of Pakistan, Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Karachi v. Ali Ahmed Qureshi' (2001 SCMR 1733), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that a contract employee is governed by the principle of master and servant and there is no right for seeking reinstatement under the contract and in the event of arbitrary dismissal or unwarranted termination of employment, an employee is entitled to sue for damages. In the case titled 'Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs v. Muhammad Azam Chattha' (2013 SCMR 120) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that there is no vested right on the basis of which the respondents employed on contract can seek reinstatement through a constitutional petition. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that a contract employee instead of pressing for his reinstatement of service for the left over period can at best claim damages to the extent of the un-expired period of service. It has also been held that contract of service cannot be specifically enforced. A contract employee is governed by the doctrine of master and servant and in the event of arbitrary dismissal or unwarranted termination of employment, the employee can sue for damages equal to wages, allowances and other benefits which would have been otherwise been payable under the contract of employment. It has also been held by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled 'Abdul Wahab and others v. HBL and others' (2013 SCMR 1383) that where service grievance is agitated by a person who is not governed by statutory rules of service, before the High Court, in terms of Article 199 of the Constitution, such petition shall not be maintainable. Furthermore in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, a contract employee has no right to be in service beyond the contract period. Reliance is placed on the cases titled 2001 SCMR 909 (supra) and PLD 2011 SC 132 (supra).

7. Therefore for what has been argued before us, the Respondents do not have any right to continue under the contract as the contract expired on 30.6.2017. With respect to the termination, the contracts were terminated in terms of clause 17 which reads as under:-

You shall be on probation for three months. During probation your contract shall be liable to termination without notice. After expiry of the probation period your contract shall be liable to termination on one month' notice or on payment of one month's pay in lieu thereof on either side, without assigning any reason.

The Respondents were paid one month's salary in lieu of notice. Some of the Respondents filed W.P. No.12840/2017 wherein an interim order was issued on 3.5.2017 with a direction that until the next date of hearing operation of impugned order shall remain suspended. Consequent to the said order, the Respondents were paid their salaries for the months of May and June, 2017 hence have been paid their salaries under the contract and were also given a hearing pursuant to an order of the Court. The Respondents have no vested right after the expiry of the contract to seek renewal or regularization. Furthermore even with reference to the challenge to the termination of the contract the Respondents could not have been reinstated as per the law laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan.

8. Under the circumstances, all the appeals are allowed and the impugned order dated 30.8.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.Ps. Nos.12840/2017, 10883/2017 and 5885/2017 is set aside.KMZ/S-72/L

Order accordingly.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J. --- This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule "A", appended with the judgment as all the Petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. The Petitioners are primarily importers of ceramics tiles, steel, hardware, chemicals, packaging and paper material, amongst other things from China who have challenged the Notice of limitation, Notice of Preliminary Determination and Notice of Final Determination, collectively referred as ("The Notices") issued by Respondent No. 2, National Tariff Commission ("Commission"). The common grievance of the Petitioners is that the Commission could not issue the Notices essentially on account of the fact that the Commission does not exist in accordance with the provision of the National Tariff Commission Act, 2015 ("Act") as the Chairman and the Members of the Commission have not been appointed by the Federal Government as required under the Act and in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled "Messrs Mustafa Impex, Karachi and others v. The Government of Pakistan through Secretary Finance, Islamabad and others" (PLD 2016 SC 808). It is also the grievance of the Petitioners that the Chairman and the Members of the Commission do not fulfill the requirements of Section 5, of the Act and were not eligible to be nominated Chairman or Members of the Commission.

3. The counsel for the Petitioners argued that the Notices were required to be issued by a duly constituted Commission, however since it was not constituted in accordance with the requirements of the Act as per the dicta laid down in Mustafa Impex, hence there was no lawfully constituted Commission which could have issued the Notices. The Counsel further argued that the orders of the Commission are all coram non judice and without jurisdiction. Therefore, the Petitioners have prayed that their writ petitions be accepted, the Notices and consequent proceedings be set aside for being without lawful jurisdiction. It was also argued that the Members and the Chairman of the Commission do not qualify the criteria given in Section 5 of the Act for the position of Member and Chairman of the Commission. The specific argument was that the Chairman does not qualify as per the given criteria since he holds a B.Sc. (Honour) degree and does not have a Master's degree in the relevant specialization as contemplated under the Act. It was also argued that the Notification appointing Chairman and Members dated 05.09.2016 did not satisfy the requirements of Mustafa Impex and since the matter was never placed before the Federal Cabinet, therefore the said Notification and the appointments are illegal for being contrary to the Act. Learned counsel argued that neither the decision of the Cabinet dated 22.03.2017 specifically contemplates nor can the cabinet give retrospective applicability to the Notification dated 05.09.2016 as it is in violation of the Constitutional requirement that the matter be duly considered by the Cabinet.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed by Respondent Commission in W.P. Nos. 38543/16 and 38544/16. Learned counsel for the Commission stated that the same report and parawise comments will be applicable in all the petitions. Report and parawise comments have also been filed by Respondent International Steels Limited in W.P. Nos. 18847/2016 and 4168/2017. In W.P. 38543/16, report and parawise comments have also been filed by the Respondent Century Paper and Board Mills Limited, Karachi. Arguments were made on behalf of the Federation in support of the appointment process, the constitutionality of the decision making process for appointing the Members and Chairman of the Commission and with respect to their satisfying the eligibility criteria.

5. The Petitioners have raised two issues before the Court; the first is with respect to the appointment of the Commission and the second is with respect to the illegality of the Notices on account of the fact that a lawful Commission has not issued the Notices. The entire case of the Petitioners is premised on the ground that the Commission was not appointed or notified as required under the law.

6. With respect to the eligibility of the Chairman and the Members of the Commission Section 5 of the Act reads as follows:--

Qualification and eligibility of members. (1) All members of the Commission shall be citizens of Pakistan and shall be employed with the Commission on a full-time basis.

(2) A member of the Commission shall:--

(a) have at least a masters or professional degree or qualification from an accredited university or institute in international trade laws, business and commercial laws, economics, accountability, tariffs and trade, commerce and trade, or a trade-related subject; knowledge of trade remedy Laws would be an advantage; and

(b) have at least fifteen years of professional work experience in international trade law, business and commercial laws, economics, accountability, harmonized tariffs, commerce and trade, tariffs and trade or other trade-related technical field; direct work experience in trade remedy laws would be an advantage.

(3) The Federal Government shall select upto two members from the Commission's experiences technical officers provided that they meet the eligibility and qualification requirements specified in sub-sections (1) and (2).

The Petitioners have argued that the Chairman is not duly qualified as he holds a B.Sc. (Honours) degree and therefore, did not fulfil the requirements of Section 5 (2)(a) of the Act. They argued that the Chairman did not have a Master's degree or a Professional degree or qualification from an accredited University or Institute in international trade law, business or commercial law. In response to this argument, the Deputy Attorney General for Pakistan, Mr. Nasar Ahmad placed on record the curriculum vitae of the Members as well as of the Chairman. He stated that all the Members of the Commission are fully qualified to hold the post and that their appointments were processed through a Selection Committee which considered all the requirements of Section 5 of the Act. With respect to the Chairman Mr. Qasim M. Niaz has a Master's degree in Strategic Studies with BA (Honours) in Economics from the London School of Economics. This degree is equivalent to a Master's degree obtained from any institute in Pakistan. He also has 40 years of experience in the civil service including acting as Secretary Commerce, Joint Secretary Commerce and Economics and Minister of Pakistan to the European Union. Mr. Abdul Khaliq the Member has a degree in Economics and Law and he is also a fellow of Cost and Accounts. He has worked with the Commission since 1990 in different capacities and has experience with regard to the working of the Commission. Ms. Rubina Athar Ahmad the Member is M. Phil. (Economics) and a Master's degree in Economics. She has worked with the Federal Board of Revenue; the World Bank and with the IMF and has helped to formulate several tax policies. She has also served as Joint Secretary (Commerce), Government of Pakistan. Mr. Tipu Sultan the Member has a Master's degree in Applied Economics with emphasis on International Trade. He has worked with the Trade Development Authority of Pakistan; the Ministry of Commerce; Export Promotion Bureau and with the Commission itself. He stated that all Members of the Commission are qualified and that no specific allegation has been levelled against the Members, yet their CVs are being relied upon. Counsel for the Petitioners when confronted with this material were unable to refute the same, therefore, with respect to their allegations on the eligibility of the Chairman and the Members no illegality has been made out. And it is found that the requirements of Section 5 of the Act are fulfilled with respect to the appointment of the Chairman against whom specific allegations were issued.

7. The next issue is with regard to the appointment process of the Commission which as per the allegation was in contravention to the requirements of Mustafa Impex. The Counsel argued that the dicta of Mustafa Impex has not been followed as the Notification dated 05.09.2016 was issued without consulting the Cabinet. On the other hand, the learned DAG Mr. Nasar Ahmad stated that the Cabinet deliberated on the appointments of the Chairman and the Members and approved the same on 22.03.2017. In this regard, a summary was first place before the Cabinet detailing the process undertaken, prior to the judgment of Mustafa Impex, when the Prime Minister approved the recommendations for the Chairman and Members. All relevant documents showing the decision of the Cabinet and the summary placed before the Cabinet are available on the record. In terms of the record a summary was placed before the Cabinet on 22.03.2017 to confirm/ratify the nominations made. The Cabinet considered the matter and approved the nominations in the following terms:--

The Cabinet disposed of the Summary dated 20th March, 2017 submitted by Commerce Division by circulation in terms of rule 17(1)(b) read with rule 19(1) of the Rules of Business, 1973 on the subject regarding Reforming the National Tariff Commission (NTC) Ministry of Commerce, Islamabad and accorded approval.

8. The process of appointments including the advertisement and short listing was completed prior to the pronouncement of Mustafa Impex which was 18th August, 2016. The Prime Minister gave his approval to the recommendations of the Special Selection Committee on 03.09.2016 and accordingly the Notification was issued on 05.09.2016. Therefore in this particular case the selection process was completed prior to Mustafa Impex. Subsequently in order to comply with the requirements of Mustafa Impex the matter was placed before the Cabinet for its approval. The Petitioners argued that the subsequent approval does not cure the defect of not placing the recommendations before the Cabinet in the first instance. However, it is noted that since the selection process was completed prior to Mustafa Impex, the Cabinet was required to comply with the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan and cure the defect. Therefore the Cabinet deliberated on the appointments of the Members and Chairman and approved the same. The de facto doctrine is applicable to the decision of the Cabinet in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case cited at Chairman, Pakistan Broadcasting Corporation, Islamabad v. Nasir Ahmad and 3 others (1995 SCMR 1593) wherein it has been held that this doctrine is intended to avoid confusion which may be created by acts of officers and persons not legally entitled to perform such duties and have in fact continue to do so without any objection. In another case titled Malik Asad Ali and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs, Islamabad and others (PLD 1998 SC 161) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that this de facto doctrine is a doctrine of necessity to bring about regulatory and prevent confusion in the conduct of public business and promote security of private rights. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also held in the case cited at Mehram Ali and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 1998 SC 1445) that the principle of de facto exercise of power by a holder of the public office is based on sound principles of public policy to maintain regularity in the conduct of public business, to save the public from confusion and to protect private rights which a person may acquire as a result of exercise of power by the de facto holder of the office. In another case cited at Managing Director, Sui Southern Gas Company Ltd. v. Ghulam Abbas and others (PLD 2003 SC 724) it has been held by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan that de facto doctrine is doctrine of necessity to bring about regularity and prevent confusion in the conduct of public business and promote security of private rights. In Mushtaq Ahmed Korai v. Zarai Tarqiati Bank Limited through President and another (2007 PLC (CS) 663), the Hon'ble Division Bench of Sindh High Court held that the bona fide actions of public functionaries in ordinary discharge of their duties should not be struck down merely on the ground of subsequent findings as to any legal infirmity either in the appointment or with respect to the powers of the Tribunal exercised in the ordinary course of business and declared otherwise in subsequent findings. Therefore the argument that the Cabinet could not have subsequently ratified the decision of the Prime Minister in this case holds no force and is without merit.

9. Another argument raised by the Petitioners was that the Cabinet could not have given effect to the Notification dated 05.09.2016 retrospectively and that at best the appointments of the Chairman and Members would have to be notified afresh meaning thereby that all acts and decisions taken by the Commission prior to the decision of the Cabinet dated 22.03.2017 were null and void. This argument is also misconceived not only on account of the de facto doctrine as discussed above but also on the basis of the dicta held in the case cited at Sindh High Court Bar Association through its Secretary and another v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Law and Justice, Islamabad and others (PLD 2009 SC 879) wherein the august Supreme Court of Pakistan declared the appointments of various Judges of the High Court as illegal but saved all acts and judgments pronounced by them on the basis of the de facto doctrine. It is also noted that the Act provides under Section 4 that there shall be a Commission comprising of five members appointed by the Federal Government in the prescribed manner. The Section however does not require that the appointment of the Chairman or the Member be notified for the purposes of constitution of the Commission under Section 4 of the Act. In the same way the National Tariff Commission Rules, 1990 ("Rules") does not require for the Member or Chairman of the Commission to be notified to be valid appointments as per Section 4 of the Act. Therefore the Notification dated 05.09.2016 is the effective date of appointment of the Commission and a fresh Notification was not required after the Cabinet's ratification.

10. The next point that was argued before the Court was with respect to the Notices and their legal effect. Prior to the filing of the instant Petitions some of the Petitioners had in an earlier round challenged the appointment of the earlier Chairman Mr. Muhammad Abbas Raza and Member Mr. Niamatullah Khan and the proceedings undertaken by them at the time. The argument was the same that since a validly constituted Commission had not initiated the Notice of Initiation or subsequent proceedings, hence the entire process undertaken by that Commission was illegal and without lawful authority. The Court in W.P. No. 28351/16 vide judgment dated 24.10.2016 set aside the appointments of the Chairman Mr. Muhammad Abbas Raza and in W.P. No. 4735/16 vide judgment dated 15.03.2016 directed that the Federal Government to appoint a National Tariff Commission as per the requirements of the Act within three months' time and till such time a duly constituted Commission was appointed, the Notice of Initiation already issued by the Commission will remain intact. The Court further directed that once a proper Commission was appointed it shall proceed further on the basis of the Notice of Initiation already issued. In fact the Notice of Initiation was held in abeyance until the appointment of a lawfully constituted Commission. The said Commission was appointed on 05.09.2016 which Notification has been impugned in these Petitions. The judgment dated 15.03.2016 passed in W.P. No. 4735/16 was impugned before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Civil Petitions No. 1262-L to 1265-L of 2016 which judgment was upheld by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan by holding that the points raised have been properly taken care by the learned proceedings are protected under the de facto doctrine as has been held in numerous judgments of this Court. The commission which has been constituted now shall examine the imitation of proceedings in question and if those are found to be valid it may continue with them. Therefore the challenge to the Notices is also without merit.

11. During the course of arguments learned counsel for the Respondent Commission stated that the Petitioners in W.P. No. 6042/2017 had earlier filed Petitions which are also pending before this Court in the matters being heard. While their Petitions were pending these Petitioners filed W.P. No. 6042/2017 in order to obtain interim orders from the Court which they were earlier denied. He explained that the Petitions were argued at length and interim order earlier granted were withdrawn after the Court was informed of the saving of the Notice of Initiation in W.P. No. 4735/16 vide judgment dated 15.03.2016. He specifically referred to W.P. No. 5240/17, 5242/17 and 5236/2017 and stated that every Petitioner in the W.P. No. 6042/2017 is a Petitioner in one of these petitions. He stated that the Court while hearing the cases did not grant any interim relief relating to these petitioners in the afore-mentioned writ petitions and instead heard arguments on day to day basis that too with the consent of all the parties. However, the Petitioners with mala fide intent filed a fresh petition before another Court without disclosing the pendency, the arguments made and the fact the interim relief was not granted. They managed to get an interim order from this Court by misrepresenting the facts before the Court to take the benefit of an order which they were otherwise not entitled to. In response counsel for the Petitioners argued that even though the certificate does not disclose pendency of other writ petitions, the fact that other writ petitions are pending is contained in Ground (k) of W.P. No. 6042/2017. However learned counsel when confronted with the fact that the petitions are identical and the relief sought is also identical tried to rationalize this act of Petitioners, however, was not able to justify why a fresh petition was filed and interim order was sought given that the Petitioners have already filed petitions and were not granted any interim order by this Court. He also could not show the difference between the instant Petition and that filed by the Petitioners earlier.

12. It is noted that these cases are contested cases which were part heard by this Court on regular basis from 22.02.2017 to 18.04.2017. On 10.03.2017 an adjournment was granted to the Federation in order to respond to the issues raised with respect to the constitution of the Commission and the eligibility of the Members. The cases were argued at great length in W.P. No. 39536/2016 alongwith connected Petitions and interim relief was either not granted in fresh cases or withdrawn in earlier cases. It is also noted that the day to day arguments proceeded with the consent of the parties given that the Court did not grant interim relief. This fact was not disclosed by the Petitioners in W.P. Nos. 5240/17, 5242/17 and 5336/17 being the Petitioners in W.P. No. 6042/17 and instead they portrayed inconsistency in the Court's order. These acts of the Petitioners were mala fide with the intent to abuse the process of the Court and to obtain an order without disclosing the proper facts. Under the circumstances, the Petitioners in W.P. No. 6042/17 are imposed cost in the amount of Rs. 100,000/- each for filing a petition without disclosing the earlier W.P. Nos. 5240/17, 5242/17 and 5236/17, which will be deposited with the Deputy Registrar (Judicial) of this Court within one week's time positively on account of frivolous petition and abusing the process of the Court. If the Petitioners fail to deposit the cost within the stipulated period of time, the same shall be recovered from them as arrears of land revenue.

13. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. All the Petitions are dismissed.

(b) Punjab Environmental Protection Act (XXXIV of 1997)--

----S. 12---Pakistan Environmental Protection Agency (Review of IEE and EIA) Regulations, 2000, Regln. 3 & Sched. 1---Punjab Poultry Production Act (XLVII of 2016), Ss. 12, 13 & 14---Control poultry shed---Initial environmental examination and environmental impact assessment, requirements of---Scope---Plea of petitioner (owner of poultry control shed) that he was not required to file any Initial environmental examination and environmental impact assessment as his project fell below rupees one million, as given in Sched. 1 of the Pakistan Environmental Protection Agency (Review of IEE and EIA) Regulations, 2000; held, that petitioner commenced construction of his project without an approval from the Environment Protection Agency---Said Agency made two site visits but failed to consider the

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--Through this Petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 21.7.2017 issued by Respondent No.1, Punjab Environmental Tribunal, Lahore.

2. The facts of the case are that the Petitioner was constructing a control poultry shed under the name of Chaudhary Protein Farm Control Shed at Chak No.8/11-L, Tehsil Chichawatni, District Sahiwal. A notice was issued to the Petitioner under Section 21(3)(b) of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 ("Act") on 1.3.2017 stating therein that construction of the poultry farm is illegal and in contravention to the provisions of the Act. The Petitioner responded to the show cause notice on 20.4.2017 denying all allegations. In the meanwhile, Respondent No.3, Assistant Director Environment, Sahiwal carried out a site inspection of the poultry farm and issued its report on 24.1.2017 in terms of which it was stated that the land on which the shed is being constructed is agriculture land on which commercial/industrial activity is being undertaken without any permission or conversion of the status of the land. It was also stated in the report that within 100 meters is a residential colony which is in violation of the requirements of the law which prescribes a minimum of 500 meter distance.

3. With respect to the environment approval, it was stated in the report that no environment approval has been sought, hence it was recommended that action be taken against the Petitioner. Notices were issued to the Petitioner by the Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA"), however the Petitioner did not respond. Another complaint was filed by Respondent No.4 before the Environmental Tribunal on 23.5.2017. The Environmental Tribunal took notice of the matter and ultimately issued the impugned order dated 21.7.2017. In terms of the impugned order, the EPA was restrained from granting any approval to the Petitioner with respect to the poultry farm until the matters in issue raised in the complaint were decided. One of the disputes pending before the Environmental Tribunal is with respect to the value of the unit as the Petitioner alleged that he was not required to take any environment approval since his unit fell under Regulation 3 read with Schedule 1 of the Pakistan Environmental Protection Agency (Review of IEE and EIA) Regulations, 2000 ("Regulations"). Subsequent thereof the EPA in compliance with the order issued by the Environmental Tribunal on 19.7.2017 again carried out another site inspection to determine the construction cost of the unit. As per the report 90% of the work is completed and the unit has been converted from a control shed to a semi control shed to reduce cost. Consequently the estimated cost has been reduced from Rs.120,000,000/- to Rs.5,000,000/-. It was also stated in the report that measures should be adopted to prevent adverse effects on the environment which are likely to be caused by the operation of the poultry shed and that there should be some plantation as well to improve the environment of the area.

4. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Environmental Tribunal has no jurisdiction in the matter as it cannot hear the complaint directly when the matter is pending before the EPA. He also argued that no environmental approval was required as the cost of the project was less than rupees one million which is the basic cost for the purposes of an Initial Environmental Examination ("IEE"). So far as the Environmental Impact Assessment ("EIA") as per Section 12 of the Act, it is also not required as the project does not fall under Schedule II of the Regulations. Therefore it was argued that the impugned order is without jurisdiction and illegal.

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by Respondents Nos.2 and 3 and Respondent No.4. In terms of the arguments made by the Counsel, the Environmental Tribunal acted under the law and passed a restraining order on 21.7.2017 directing Respondent No.2 to refrain from issuing an environmental approval until the next date of hearing along with a direction to the Petitioner for not making his project functional. It was also argued that in terms of the Punjab Poultry Product Act, 2016 ("Poultry Act"), a poultry farm must be at least 500 meter away from nearby human settlement and that the Petitioner's poultry farm was in breach of this requirement. The Counsel argued that the Petitioner's farm is located in an agricultural area without any permission to do commercial/industrial activity and the same would cause an adverse impact on the environment. Further that the poultry farm is being constructed in violation of the Poultry Act.

6. The basic issue in the instant Petition is with respect to the jurisdiction of the Environmental Tribunal and the requirement of IEE and EIA as stipulated in Section 12 of the Act read with the Regulations. For ease of reference Section 12 of the Act read with Regulations 3 and 4 of the Regulations are reproduced below:

12. Initial environmental examination and environmental impact assessment.-
(1) No proponent of a project shall commence construction or operation unless he has filed with the Provincial Agency an initial environmental examination or where the project is likely to cause an adverse environmental effect, an environmental impact assessment, and has obtained from the Provincial Agency approval in respect thereof.
(2) The Government Agency shall:
(a) review the initial environmental examination and accord its approval, or require submission of an environmental impact assessment by the proponent; or
(b) review the environmental impact assessment and accord its approval subject to such conditions as it may deem fit to impose, or require that the enviromnental impact assessment be re-submitted after such modifications as may be stipulated, or reject the project as being contrary to environmental objectives.
(3) Every review of an environmental impact assessment shall be carried out with public participation and no information will be disclosed during the course of such public participation which relates to
(i) trade, manufacturing or business activities, processes or techniques of a proprietary nature, or financial, commercial, scientific or technical matters which the proponent has requested should remain confidential, unless for reasons to be recorded in writing, the Director General of the Provincial Agency is of the opinion that the request for confidentiality is not well-founded or the public interest in the disclosure outweighs the possible prejudice to the competitive position of the project or its proponent; or
(ii) international relations, national security or maintenance of law and order, except with the consent of the Government; or
(iii) matters covered by legal professional privilege.
(4) The Provincial Agency shall communicate its approval or otherwise within a period of four months from the date the initial environmental examination or environmental impact assessment is filed complete in all respects in accordance with the prescribed procedure, failing which the initial environmental examination or, as the case may be, the environmental impact assessment shall be deemed to have been approved, to the extent to which it does not contravene the provisions of this Act and the rules and regulations made thereunder.
(5) Subject to subsection (4) the Government may in a particular case extend the aforementioned period of four months if the nature of the project so warrants.
(6) The provisions of subsections (1), (2), (3), (4) and (5) shall apply to such categories of projects and in such manner as may be prescribed.
(7) The Provincial Agency shall maintain separate registers for initial environmental examination and environmental impact assessment projects, which shall contain brief particulars of each project and a summary of decisions taken thereon, and which shall be open to inspection by the public at all reasonable hours and the disclosure of information in such registers shall be subject to the restrictions specified in subsection (3).

Regulations 3 and 4

3. A proponent of a project falling in any category specified in Schedule I shall file an IEE with the Federal Agency and the provisions of section 12 shall apply to such project.

4. A proponent of a project falling in any category specified in Schedule II shall file an EIA with the Federal Agency and the provisions of section 12 shall apply to such project.

In terms of Section 12 of the Act, no project shall commence construction or operation unless it has obtained permission from the Provincial Agency after having filed either an IEE or EIA. The Regulations provide for the instances when an IEE is to be filed, however, Section 12 clearly mandates that if a project has an adverse impact on the environment an EIA must be filed. Adverse effect on the environment has been defined in Section 2(i) of the Act as follows:-

Impairment of, or damage to, the environment and includes:

(a) impairment of, or damage to, human health and safety or to biodiversity or property;
(b) pollution; and
(c) any adverse environment effect as may be specified in the regulations.

In this case, the contention of the Petitioner is that he is not required to file any IEE or EIA as his project falls below rupees one million, as given in Schedule 1 of the Regulations. Schedule I provides that poultry, livestock, stud and fish farms with a total cost of more than rupees one million requires an IEE. However, irrespective of the requirement given in the Regulations Section 12 clearly mandates that an EIA.is to be filed if there is an adverse impact on the environment. The question therefore is whether the poultry farm will have an adverse impact on the environment. In terms of the complaint filed by Respondent No.4, there are two major grievances which show that there is an adverse impact on the environment. The first is that the surrounding area is an agricultural area and the Petitioner has commenced construction of his project without any permission from the competent authority. The second grievance is that the poultry farm is 100 meter from a human settlement and will have an adverse impact on the environment and compromise the health and living conditions of the residents of the area. There is merit in both grounds however, the EPA did not consider any of the aspects of running a controlled or semi controlled poultry shed which will impact the environment. In terms of the information provided by the Respondents, poultry farms are a source of odor and smell as well as flies, rodent and other pests. These can give rise to diseases such as cholera, typhoid, malaria and dengue. Furthermore improper disposal of waste water can pollute the water and soil. The proponent of a project must provide a detailed dead bird management plan which should not adversely impact the environment. Unfortunately both the site reports relied upon failed to consider these aspects which are essential for the establishment of a poultry farm. The close proximity of the poultry farm from human settlement is a cause of great concern. Poultry facilities are undoubtedly a source of odor and smell which adversely affects the life and health of the people living in the vicinity. Flies, rodents and other pests are an additional menace to the local area, its health and well being. Their presence is mainly related to the manner in which the feed is managed and stored for which proper areas must be made and control mechanisms put in place to avoid flies and other pests. Furthermore water pollution and use of pesticides will damage the surface water and ground water and give rise to water borne diseases. Other serious impacts on the environment are the disposal of waste water and dead birds. Both issues call for proper measures to be adopted to ensure minimum impact on the environment. Under the circumstances the EPA must in the first instance look at the impact a project has on the environment, before it considers the cost of the project. In such cases Section 12 of the Act is clear that the object of the assessment reports is to ascertain whether there is an adverse impact on the environment. This being mandatory in nature cannot be avoided.

7. In the case cited at Ms. Imrana Tiwana and others v. Province of Punjab and others (2015 CLD 983), a Full Bench of this Court held:
EIA is nature's first man-made check post, nothing adverse to the environment is allowed to pass through. It is for this reason, that environmental assessment is an onerous function. It is through the tool of EIA that EPA gets to regulate and protect the environment and as a result the life, health, dignity and well being of the people who inhabit the environment. Environmental Assessment is, therefore, a substantive exercise as every step in this process cautiously guards the fundamental rights of the people. Review of EIA is not inter parties or an adversarial , exercise but are inquisitorial proceeding carried out under the public gaze and open to public scrutiny. The review process is incomplete without effective public participation and technical advice of the experts.

In this case the Petitioner commenced construction of his project without an approval from the EPA. The EPA made two site visits but failed to consider the nature of the project and its impact on the environment and instead recommended in a cursory manner, that measures be adopted to prevent an adverse impact on the environment. This direction was given without any mention of the probable causes of the impact on the environment. In this regard a bare review of the Poultry Act reveals that the establishment of a poultry farm has a direct bearing on the environment and therefore will impact the environment. Sections 12, 13, 14 and 15 set out the requirements for establishment of a poultry farm and call for bio-security measures, poultry waste management and reporting in case of poultry disease. All these requirements are directly related to the well being of the local inhabitants and the environment. These requirements directly impact the environment, hence the Petitioner was required to file an EIA prior to the construction of his project.

8. Furthermore, in this case the distance of the Petitioner's poultry farm is 100 meters from a human settlement which is in contravention to the requirement of Section 12 of the Poultry Act which clearly stipulates that the poultry farm must be 500 meters from human settlements. This ground in itself was sufficient to restrain the construction of the poultry farm of the Petitioner as it is in contravention to the law. In such a situation, there are no remedial measures which can be adopted as the poultry farm is in close proximity to human settlement putting the health of the residents to risk and polluting the environment.

9. The other ground urged by the counsel for the Petitioner is with respect to the jurisdiction of the Environmental Tribunal on proceeding with the complaint of Respondent No.4. Section 21 of the Act provides for the jurisdiction and powers of the Environmental Tribunal. As per Section 21 an Environmental Tribunal can take cognizance of any offence under Section 17(1) on a complaint filed by the Provincial Agency or an aggrieved person, who has given notice of not less than 30 days to the Provincial Agency of the alleged contravention and his intention to complain before the Environmental Tribunal. Section 17(1) provides for the penalties imposed if a person contravenes any provisions of Sections 11, 12, 13 or 16 or any other order issued thereunder. In this case the contravention alleged is of Section 12 and the requirement of filing an IEE or EIA. In fact the Petitioner did not obtain any approvals from the Environmental Protection Agency or the relevant authority, to carry out commercial/industrial activity in an agriculture area. Respondent No.4 issued notice to the Director General, Punjab Environmental Protection Agency, Lahore clearly informing him that he will be filing a complaint before the Environmental Tribunal for redressal of his grievance. The complaint was then filed on 23.5.2017. Therefore as per Section 21 of the Act, the Environmental Tribunal has jurisdiction to hear a complaint of an aggrieved person who has issued notice, as required, to the EPA.

10. Under the circumstances no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J. --- Through this Petition, the Petitioner seeks adirection to Respondent No. 1 to appoint her on the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field) BS-17.

2. The facts of the case are that the Petitioner, applied for the post of 'Lecturer (Deaf Field) BS-17' through proper channel with reference to the advertisement issued by Respondent No. 1. Provisional interview call letter was also issued to the Petitioner after fulfilling the requirements prescribed by Respondent No. 1. The Petitioner being fourth on the merit list was recommended to the Provincial Government for the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field) on contract basis for five years in the Punjab Special Education Department on 29.4.2016. Subsequently Respondent No.2 forwarded the appointment of selected candidates including the Petitioner to Respondent No. 1 by stating that selected candidates are not qualified for the post as per rules and regulations of Special Education Department. The Pensioner approached Respondent No. 1 through application stating that her degree of Masters in Special Education is equivalent to the degree of M.Ed. Special Education but till date no reply has been given by Respondent No. 1. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Petitioner was selected and appointed to the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field) after fulfilling the requirements/criteria, hence she cannot be denied the post.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondents No. 1 and 2. Learned Law Officer argued that as per the Service Rules the required qualification for the post of Lecturer (Deaf Field) was MA (Special Education) whereas Respondent No. 1 recommended the candidates for the post who possess degree of M.Ed. Special Education. Respondent No. 1 considered the request of the Administrative Department and revised its earlier recommendation through letter dated 15.8.2016. The recommendation of the Petitioner was also withdrawn alongwith two other recommendees. Learned Law Officer further submitted that Qualification Equivalence Determination Committee ("QEDC") vide its minutes dated 16.5.2016 has also decided the issue and declared that M.A.Special Education is not equivalent to M.Ed. (Visually Impaird). Therefore in the light of QEDC's decision the Petitioner was not eligible for the said post.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The basic grievance of the Petitioner is that she possesses the degree of M.Ed. which is equal to M.A. (Special Education) degree which should be considered forthe post of Lecturer (Deaf Field). The Petitioner hasrelied upon letter dated 23.1.2017 issued by the Higher Education Department to show equivalence of M.A. (Special Education) with M.Ed. Special Education. The letter of 23.1.2017 reads as follows:---

The Higher Education Commission recognizes Master of Education in Special Education degree held by youfrom University of Education, Lahore after 'Post Graduate Diploma in Teaching the Deaf/15-year schooling' as equivalent to corresponding Master's degree in the relevant field involving 16 years of schooling.

The aforesaidletter of 23.1.2017 issued by the Higher Education Department does not provide that M.Ed. Special Education as equal to M.A. (Special Education),hence cannotbeappliedtothiscase.FurthermorethedegreeofM.A. (Special Education)cannotbeequatedwith M.Ed. Special Educationas per the QEDC sinceM.A. (Special Education) is a four year degree programmeand has 66 credit hours whereas M.Ed. Special Education is one year degree programme and has only 36 credit hours.

6. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J. --- Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 25.10.2013 passed by Respondent No. 4, Governor of Punjab, whereby the order dated 30.08.2012 passed by Respondent No. 5, the Provincial Ombudsman was modified to the extent that the Petitioner shall be entitled to claim payment of his final bill subject to removal of defects in the execution of civil work.

2. The grievance of the Petitioner is that he entered into a contract for improvement and renovation of Medical blocks with Respondent No. 1 for the benefit of Respondents No. 2 and 3. The work was completed and completion certificate was issued by the Government ofPunjab, however payment was not made by the stated Respondents. The Petitioner filed a complaint before the Provincial Ombudsman, who vide its order dated 30.08.2012 decided the complaint in favour of the Petitioner while directing Respondents No. 1 to 3 to make payment to the Petitioner. However the Respondents filed an appeal before Respondent No. 4, the Governor of Punjab who decided the matter against the Petitioner vide order dated 25.10.2013. Hence, this petition.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Petitioner completed the work in time and was issued completion certificate on 28.10.2009. Subsequent thereof, the Petitioner has been waiting for his payment, however, no payment has been made. Further argued that the Petitioner seeks payment from the Government of Punjab who is party to the contract with the Petitioner which is due since 2008.

4. Learned Law Officer submitted that Government of Punjab is not required to make any payment. The payment is due from Respondents No. 2 and 3. Further stated that the Government of Punjab only acts on behalf of the Agency, however the Agency is required to clear all bills and all payments must be made in this case by Respondents No. 2 and 3. In terms of the report and parawise comments filed on behalf of Respondents No. 2 and 3, the work was incomplete, there were many deficiencies which the Petitioner was informed and he was given time to complete the work and remove all the deficiencies, however no positive action was taken by the Petitioner. In this regard a survey was also carried out and the Building Research Station submitted its report on 15.02.2012 which concluded that the work was deficient as the specification given was not complied with by the Petitioner.

5. The basic issue in the instant petition is one of payment in lieu of the services rendered by the Petitioner for improvement and renovation of Medical Blocks, as per contract. The Petitioner has based his entire case for payment on the ‘inspection certificate’ which shows that the work is completed. It is noted that since the cost of the contract and administrative approval was granted by Respondents No. 2 and 3, and the work was for their benefits, therefore, they are the competent authority to issue completion certificate, on the basis of which the payment can be made to the Petitioner. The Petitioner has placed on record inspection certificate which is issued by Sub-Engineer, however, it is not completion certificate on the basis of which payment could be made.

6. With respect to the payment sought by the Petitioner, learned counsel for Respondents No. 2 and 3 submitted that the amount in dispute has not been paid on account of deficient work and no completion certificate has been issued on the basis of which the Petitioner can take its payment. The order of Respondent No. 4 (Appellate Forum) has relied upon the report dated 15.02.2012 issued by Building Research Station on the basis of which it is concluded that the work was not completed. This is a billing dispute which cannot be determined by this Court in Constitutional petition. The Appellate Forum has decided the matter in its entirety.

7. Under the circumstances, no illegality is made out in the impugned order. The petition stands dismissed.

Petition dismissed.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J. --- Through this Petition, the Petitioner hasprayed that the exemption with reference to 13 Marlas land befinalized and the Petitioner be issued an allotment letter for his plot alongwith all relevant documents and possession of the same.

2. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Petitioner is owner in possession of land measuring 1 kanal, 14 Marlas falling in Khasra No.779, situated in the revenue estate of JhugianNagra. This land was acquired and against 1 Kanal, 1 Marla the Petitioner was granted exemption in the SabzaZar Housing Scheme. The present dispute relates to 13 Marlas land for which the exemption matter remained pending. The Petitioner relied upon the Revenue Officers report dated 21.12.2016 on the basis of which the 13 Marlas of land is mutated in favour of the LDA vide mutation No.17472 on 13.08.2016. The Petitioner also relied upon the working paper for exemption cases of the scrutiny committee issued by the Deputy Director DLD-IV, LDA, which shows that the Petitioner is entitled to exemption against remaining land measuring 13 Marlas.

3. Report and parawisecomments have been filed by the Respondent LDA. Learned counsel for the stated Respondent argued that the matter is still pending before the Civil Court and the Petitionerhas filed a Civil Revision before the Additional District Judge, Lahore titled "Muhammad Ismaeelv. Muhammad Munir and LDA" and presently the plot does not stand in the name of the LDA.

4. Arguments heard and record perused.

5. In terms of the record, the Petitioner is entitled to exemption against 13 Marlas land against his previous ownership of 1 Kanal, 14 Marlas. The Respondents are denying the exemption onaccount of alleged dispute over the same land and on the ground that the land is not mutated in the name of the LDA. In terms of the report issued by the Revenue Officer dated 21.12.2016, the 13 Marlas land was mutated in favour of the LDA vide mutation No. 17472 on 13.08.2016. The claim of the Petitioner is also strengthened from theworking paper for exemption cases by the security committee Ref.File No.SZR-JN/3503+A issued by Deputy Director, LDA, in which it was clarified that the case titled "Muhammad Munirv. LDA" pending before the Court has no nexus with the property of the Petitioner and the process of exemption cannot be denied on the basis of that dispute.

6. In view of the above, this Petition is allowed and the Respondents are directed to grant exemption against deficient land measuring 13 Marlaswithin one month's time of the receipt of certified copy of this order alongwith all related consequences. Compliance report shall be submitted to the Deputy Registrar (Judicial) of this Court.

Petition allowed.

ORDER
AYESHA A. MALIK, J. --- Through this petition, the Petitioner seeks an amount of Rs.401,934/- which is stated to be due to him for the works that is construction of 04 new c/rooms (24' x 16') and boundary wall in Government Higher Secondary School, Midhranjah, Tehsil Bhalwal, DistrictSargodha.

2. At the very outset, it is noted that in terms of orders dated 16.6.2015 and 14.10.2015, the only grievance of the Petitioner is that letter of EDO, Works and Services, Sargodha dated 8.10.2013 was not being implemented and the learned Law Officer at the time sought time to seek instructions with respect to release of funds pursuant to the letter of 8.10.2013. Learned Law Officer sought several dates and on 16.11.2017 again sought time to file a fresh report and parawise comments. Today the learned Law Officer stated that the Respondents will rely upon the earlier report andparawise comments which have been filed by Respondents No. 3 to 6 and do not wish to file fresh report and parawise comments.

3. In terms of the report and parawise comments filed by Respondents No.3 to 6, the Petitioner is entitled to receive the price variation of Rs.401,934/-. Learned Law Officer argued that this admission was made on the wrongful understanding of order of the Ombudsman, Punjab dated 6.6.2013 wherein the Ombudsman ordered the Petitioner to avail the remedy available under the contract including arbitration and thereafter appeal to the competent authority. Learned Law Officer argued that the letter of 8.10.2013 while relying on the order of the Ombudsman directed that the funds in the amount of Rs.401,934/- be released for payment to the Petitioner. However on 25.10.2013 this letter of 8.10.2013 was withdrawn as the District Officer Building stated that he did not have knowledge of the order of the Ombudsman when the letter of 8.10.2013 was executed. Hence the Petitioner was advised to avail his remedy under the contract.

4. I have gone through the record and it appears that the Petitioner filed a complaint before the Ombudsman for release of payment of price variation. The Ombudsman on 6.6.2013 ordered that the Petitioner can avail his contractual remedy which includes arbitration.In this case, the Respondents do not deny the price variation sought by the Petitioner. They only want theimplementation of the order of the Ombudsman or else avoid payment on account of the order of theOmbudsman. Given that there is a clear admission of the liability owed to the Petitioner in the report and parawise comments, there is no reason to the Petitioner to availany remedy under the contract asarbitration is invoked if there is a dispute with reference to the amounts due under the contract. In this case the liability is admitted and there is no dispute, hence the Petitioner is entitled to the payment of Rs. 4,01,934/-.

5. In view of the aforesaid, the instant petition is allowed and the Respondents are directed to release the amount of Rs. 401,934/- to the Petitioner immediately.
Petition allowed.

ORDER
AYESHA A. MALIK, J. --- The basic grievance of the Petitioner is that his D-Class Bus Stand license has been suspended on 08.12.2016 and that his premises have also been sealed by the Respondents. Learned counsel for the Petitioner stated that the Petitioner is willing to ensure compliance of all the requirements for issuance of D-Class Bus Stand License. However, in order to fulfill the requirements the premises have to be desealed so that the Petitioner can upgrade all facilities as per the requirements. Learned counsel further stated that the Petitioner will not ply any bus or carriage from the D-Class Bus Stand until it does not meet with the requirements of the license to the satisfaction of the Respondents.

2. On behalf of the Respondents, learned Law Officer, on instructions, stated that the license of the Petitioner has been suspended giving the Petitioner an opportunity to upgrade all facilities and ensure that the amenities available at the stand are in accordance with the requirements of the license. Learned Law Officer argued that the premises of the Petitioner will be desealed and the Petitioner should ensure that all the facilities are upgraded whereafter an application can be moved to the Respondents for site inspection and restoration of the license of the Petitioner.

3. ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J. --- Through this petition, the Petitioner, who runs a medical college by the name of Sahara Medical College, seeks a direction from this Court that the Respondent No. 3, Federation of Pakistan be directed to issue a notification granting recognition of the Medical College for the Session 2015-16.

2. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Petitioner applied for recognition of its medical college for the session 2015-16, pursuant to which the college was inspected and a recommendation was issued in favour of the Petitioner for its registration to Respondent No. 3, Federation of Pakistan. The matter was delayed considerably. In the meanwhile, the Petitioner filed W.P. No. 3606/2016 praying therein that Respondent No. 3 be directed not to wait for the formal issuance of the Notification and to complete its process for the affiliation of the Medical College, as per its letter dated 16.04.2015, wherein it had been stated that the affiliation shall be granted subject to recognition by the PMDC. This Court through its order dated 30.03.2016 noted that the Petitioner medical college was recommended by Respondent No. 2, Pakistan Medical and Dental Council ("PMDC") for inclusion of its name in the First Schedule in terms of Section 11 of the Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 1962 ("Ordinance"). Subsequently with the change in the Council of the PMDC the matter was delayed. This Court thereafter, directed PMDC to allow the process of admission and required PMDC to re-inspect the premises and forward its recommendations. Consequently, the recommendations were issued for 28.07.2016. Learned counsel argued that the recognition letter recommends recognition for the session 2016-17 whereas the Petitioner also sought recognition for the session 2015-16. Learned counsel argued that inadvertently 2015-16 session has not been notified whereas 2016-17 has been notified. Through this petition, learned counsel argued that a direction is sought to the Federation of Pakistan to notify the recognition for the session 2015-16 in order to streamline admission process and the registration of the students. Learned counsel argued that given the judgment of this Court in "Muhammad Fahad Malik v. Pakistan Medical and Dental Council, etc." (PLD 2018 Lahore 75) and in terms of the order dated 12.01.2018 passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Civil Appeals No. 3 and 4 of 2018 an Civil Petitions No. 3412 of 2017 and 45 of 2018, there is no PMDC and all matters pending there have been placed in the hand of Executive Committee. However in this case since the college has been recommended it does not need to be referred to the PMDC.

3. On behalf of the Federation of Pakistan, learned DAG argued that the role of the Federation of Pakistan is simply to notify the session recommended by the PMDC. In this case, the college was inspected twice and was recommended both time for recognition and the fact that college was recommended 2016-17 session suggest that the college has been recognized for 2015-16 session as the college has been verified during this period. Therefore, this Court can direct the Federation of Pakistan to issue recognition and the same in no way infringes upon the duty cast on the Executive Committee formed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan through its order dated 12.01.2018.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The basic grievance of the Petitioner is that its session for the year 2015-16 has not been notified by the Federation of Pakistan even though it has been recommended by the PMDC in its letter dated 28.07.2016. In terms of the said letter, the college was recommended for recognition for the year 2016-17, meaning thereby that Federation of Pakistan was to issue a notification for the 2016-17 session. In the backdrop of this recommendation in W.P. No. 3606/2016 which was filed by the Petitioner with respect to session 2015-16 and this Court passed an order dated 30.03.2016 in which it noted that the Petitioner applied for recognition on 11.03.2015 and affiliation on 29.03.2015 and was recommended for recognition on 15.01.2016. However, the Federation of Pakistan did not issue the notification in a timely manner. In the meanwhile, PMDC held its elections and a new Council was introduced on 05.12.2015. The new Council wanted to satisfy itself with respect to all pending applications for recognition, which included the application of the Petitioner. PMDC therefore, once again carried out another inspection and issued its recommendation on 28.07.2016 in favour of the Petitioner. These facts are not disputed by the PMDC or the Federation of Pakistan, hence the only question before this Court whether based on the recommendations, the Federation of Pakistan is required to issue a notification in terms of Section 11 of the Ordinance.

6. The record shows that the recommendation process started on 2015 for the 2015-16 session. The College was inspected and recommended however it was not notified. The College then underwent a second inspection in 2016 and was again recommended for registration for the 2016-17 session. At this time for 2015-16 session probably was inadvertently not mentioned in the letter dated 28.07.2016. It goes without saying that if the College is recommended for the 2016-17 session based on two inspections one in 2015 and one in 2016 the College was in fact recommended for both the 2015-16 and 2016-17 session. There is nothing on the record and nothing advanced by the counsel for PMDC expressing any reservations for the registration of the 2015-16 session.

7. For what has been stated above, this petition is accepted and Federation of Pakistan is directed to issue notification letter in favour of the Petitioner medical college for the session 2015-16 for inclusion of its name in the First Schedule in terms of Section 11 of the Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 1962 within one week of receipt of certified copy of this order. Compliance report shall be submitted to Deputy Registrar (Judicial) of this Court. Copy DASTI on payment of usual charges.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J. Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned the actions of the Interview Committee wherein the Petitioner was asked to be re-measured for the post of Constable in the Punjab Police Department, Lahore.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that he applied for the post of Constable. He appeared for the running test and for the measurement test. He passed both the tests and was interviewed. During the process of the interview, the Interview Committee required that his measurement be retaken as they were of the opinion that he did not fulfill the measurement criteria. The measurement was retaken and there was a difference of a few centimeters on the basis of which the Petitioner did not fulfill the criteria, hence he no longer was qualified, for the, post of Constable. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that once the running test and measurement test was completed and the Petitioner was declared successful, there was no reason for the Interview Committee to require re-measurement.

3. Report and parawise comments have been, filed by Respondent No, 2. Learned Law Officer argued that many of the candidates were asked to be re-measured. He stated that it is well within the discretion of the Interview Committee to have a candidate re-measured if it was of the opinion that the candidate did not fulfill the measurement requirement.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The basic grievance of the Petitioner is that he passed the measurement test. However when the measurement was taken in the presence of the Interview Committee he did not pass the said test. The Petitioner is aggrieved by the decision of the Interview Committee requiring re-measurement. However the grievance of the Petitioner is totally misconceived. The Interview Committee can call for remeasurement if on seeing the candidate it is of the opinion that the candidate does not seem to fulfill the measurement requirement. In this regard, learned Law Officer informed the Court that 17 other candidates were re-measured and many of them did not meet the criteria, though they were declared successful. Hence no case of discrimination or malice on the part of the Interview Committee is made out.

6. Under the circumstances, the instant Petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J. --- Through this petition, the Petitioner has called in question the recruitment process for the post of driver (BS-4) as advertised on 30.08.2014 in the Daily Nawa-e-Waqat Lahore.

2. The grievance of the Petitioner is that he has the requisite qualification and did exceptionally well in the written test, however, in order to accommodate Respondent No. 2, the Petitioner was given less marks in the interview reducing his overall merit so that Respondent No. 2 could be appointed. Learned counsel for the Petitioner further argued that Respondent No. 2 was overage at the time he applied and was not qualified for the post. However, since he was from the department and already working as Qasid, he was accommodated by Respondent No. 1 and offered the post of driver.

3. Reply and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondent No. 1. Learned Law Officer explained that there were two vacancies for the post of driver (BS-4) which were advertised on 30.08.2014. Written test was conducted on 17.09.2014. Sixty-two candidates appeared out of whom thirty-three passed. Thereafter a driving test was conducted and only seven candidates qualified. These seven candidates were interviewed whereafter the merit list was prepared. The post was filled up by appointing the top two candidates. Respondent No. 2 was the top candidate securing seven more marks than the Petitioner. Learned Law Officer further pointed out that Respondent No. 2 secured highest marks in the driving test as well as in the interview. So far as the allegation that Respondent No. 2 was overage, he was already serving as a process server in the District Judiciary and applied for the post of driver when it was advertised. Therefore, he was given the benefit of Rule 3(v) of the Punjab Civil Servants Recruitment (Relaxation of Upper Age Limit) Rules, 1976 ("Rules") on the basis of which he is entitled to the benefit of age relaxation. Reliance was placed on the judgment dated 04.12.2013 passed in W.P. No. 19421/2012.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The basic issue before the Court is whether the recruitment for the post of driver (BS-4) was illegal and whether Respondent No. 2 was appointed illegally without following the due process. The first allegation raised by the Petitioner is that he did exceptionally well and was deliberately given less marks in the interview. As per the marks sheet provided, Respondent No. 2 secures 35 marks in the interview whereas the Petitioner secures 10 marks in the interview. There is nothing on the record to establish that any mala fide or deliberate effort was made by Respondent No. 1 to reduce the marks of the Petitioner. The interview was carried out by a committee and as such there is nothing on the record on the basis of which the Petitioner has been able to satisfy the Court that he was deliberately given less marks. Even otherwise, in comparison with Respondent No. 2, the Petitioner has higher qualification marks, however the written test marks are the same and Respondent No. 2 has more marks in the driving test. Therefore, for the purpose of this allegation, there is no merit in the same.

6. The second allegation raised by the Petitioner is with respect to age relaxation given to Respondent No. 2. Learned counsel argued that minimum age relaxation for Respondent No. 2 is five years, however, he is admittedly 47 years of age, therefore, being overage he cannot be employed. The Respondents have relied upon the Rules where the period of continuous service can be excluded from the upper age limit for the benefit of Government servant. The relevant Rule 3(v) of the Rules is reproduced below:

In the case of a candidate already working as a Government servant, the period of his continuous service as such shall for the purpose of upper age limit prescribed under any service rules of the post for which he is a candidate, be excluded from his age:

Provided that the upper age limit shall not exceed 35 years for recruitment to any post to be filled in on the recommendations of the Punjab Public Service Commission on the basis of the combined competitive examination.

In terms of this Rule, where a candidate is already working as a Government Servant, the period of his continuous service must be excluded from the upper age limit. This is beneficial legislation which entitles those who are already working as Government Servants to have the total length of service excluded from their age, in order to bring them within the ambit of age requirement. Essentially serving candidates are given the benefit of their continuous years of service to the Government. In the event of any ambiguity, since it is beneficial in nature, it must be interpreted favourably to give benefit to the candidate. In this case, Respondent No. 2 was appointed as process server on 19.09.1991 and the last date of receipt of applications was 13.09.2014. The period that must be excluded from his age is from 19.09.1991 to 13.09.2014 being 22 years, 11 months and 26 days. Respondent No. 2's date of birth is 01.01.1967 and at the time of submission of applications his total age was 47 years, 8 months and 12 days, therefore, when 22 years, 11 months and 26 days are excluded from his age, he is more than 25 years of age bringing him within the ambit of the Rule. Even otherwise, it is noted that since this is beneficial legislation, the object of the Rules is to exclude the length of service from the age of the applicant so that the age of the candidate does not exceed 35 years for recruitment to any post to be filled in on the recommendations of the Punjab Public Service Commission. Essentially it means that a Government Servant should fall between the age given in this case being 25 years upto the upper age limit, which is 35 years. Therefore, as such no illegality is made out as Respondent No. 2 has been given the benefit of Rule 3(v) of the Rules in accordance with law.

7. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. This petition stands dismissed.

Petition dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition as well as the connected petitions detailed in Schedule "A" and "B", appended with this judgment, as all the petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. There are two sets of Petitioners before the Court, cane growers and Banks. The common Respondents before the Court are the Cane Commissioner, Punjab and three sugar mills being Brother Sugar Mills, Darya Khan Sugar Mills and Pattoki Sugar Mills ("the Sugar Mills").

3. The case of the cane growers is that they supplied sugarcane to the respective Sugar Mills for the year 2014-15 and 2016-17 yet no payment has been made to them. In this regard, their debt has been verified by the Cane Commissioner, Punjab yet no payment has been made to them. It was argued that the cane growers earn their bread and butter from payment of sugarcane delivered to the Sugar Mills. That the cane growers have fulfilled their obligation of supplying sugarcane to the Sugar Mills, however the Sugar Mills have not fulfilled their obligation to make payment for the sugarcane delivered. It was also alleged that this has become regular practice that payments are delayed and that the cane growers are compelled to approach the Cane Commissioner and the courts for payments due to them. In these cases since the Sugar Mills refused to make payment to the cane growers, the Cane Commissioner took action under the Punjab Sugar Factories Control Act, 1950 ("Act") read with the Punjab Sugar Factories Control Rules, 1950 ("Rules") whereby bags of sugar lying in the godowns of the Sugar Mills were seized so as to sell them, in order to settle the debt of the cane growers. The learned counsel also argued that it is a gross violation of their fundamental right to do business and earn their livelihood, protected under the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 as the Sugar Mills have taken the sugarcane from the cane growers, produced tons of bags of sugar, yet made no payment to the cane growers.

4. In the cases of the cane growers, who are to receive payment from Brother Sugar Mills, it was argued that if the amount which is lying in the custody of the Court from the sale of the bags of sugar is handed over to the Banks there is no chance of recovering any amount from the said sugar mill as it stopped operations in 2016 and all its assets have since been mortgaged with the Bank. It is important to note that the bags of sugar lying with Brother Sugar Mills in W.P. No.4562/2016 filed by Al-Baraka Bank (Pakistan) Limited were auctioned under the supervision of this Court vide order dated 21.03.2017 and the amount has been placed in the custody of the Deputy Registrar (Judicial) of this Court. So far as Darya Khan Sugar Mills and Pattoki Sugar Mills are concerned, the possession of the bags of sugar has been restored in favour of the Banks vide interim orders dated 14.9.2017 and 29.8.2017 passed in W.Ps. Nos.67851 and 63883 of 2017. It is also maintained that through a lengthy exercise this Court has verified the claims of all the cane growers before the Court, with respect to amounts due to them and a detailed report has been filed by the Cane Commissioner which is not disputed by the Sugar Mills.

5. The case of the Banks is that the Sugar Mills before the Court have pledged bags of sugar with the Banks against finance facilities availed by them and the creation of the pledge is not denied. The Cane Commissioner illegally and unlawfully evicted the respective muqadams of the Banks and forcibly took possession of the bags of sugar lying in the godowns of the Sugar Mills. The Banks have challenged the orders of the Cane Commissioner who seized the bags of sugar to satisfy the debt of the cane growers. It is their stance that the bags of sugar being pledged stock are in the possession of the Banks, who are secured creditors and no claimant including the cane growers has a right superior to that of the Bank. That the Bank is a secured creditor and has preferential rights which cannot be defeated by any claim especially that of an unsecured creditor such as the cane growers. Learned counsel for the Banks argued that the Banks in terms of Section 173 of the Contract Act, 1872 ("Contract Act") have the right to retain the pledged bags of sugar and keep it in their possession until the repayment of the debt. In the event that there is a default, the Bank can recover its debt under the Contract Act through sale of the pledged stock, without recourse to the courts. Hence the Bank must always retain possession over the bags of sugar in order to maintain its security against finances availed. Essentially the counsel argued that the pledged security is a continuing security until all sums are paid to the Banks and the Banks are secured creditors consequent to the pledge.

6. On behalf of the Cane Commissioner, Punjab, Mrs. Samia Khalid, Additional Advocate General argued that the cane growers are before the Court for the protection of their statutory right whereas the Banks are before the Court for the protection of their contractual rights. She argued that the Cane Commissioner is obligated under the Act and the Rules to ensure payment is given to the cane growers for the sugarcane supplied and in the event that the sugar mill defaults in paying the cane grower, the Cane Commissioner has specific powers under the Act and the Rules to take necessary action in order to settle the debt of the growers. She argued that it was incumbent upon the Banks before creating the pledge, to ensure that the Sugar Mills have no liability against the bags of sugar offered for pledge especially with reference to payment of the cane growers. She further argued that in these cases the Banks extended finance facilities to the Sugar Mills to pay the cane growers, however the Sugar Mills did not utilize the funds as per its given purpose and the cane growers were never paid. She clarified that the amount sought by the cane growers is not a government due and the role of the Cane Commissioner is the performance of his statutory obligation. It is her submission that the law provides for a mechanism to be adopted by the Cane Commissioner to recover payments for the cane growers in the event of default. This obligation of the Cane Commissioner does not translate into recovery of government dues. Moreover the purpose of the Act and the Rules must be given effect to by the Courts in order to ensure that the cane grower does not suffer at the hands of the Sugar Mills and the Banks.

7. On behalf of Brother Sugar Mills, the Counsel did not deny the claim of the cane growers, however it is their contention that against the sale proceeds lying in the custody of this Court all amounts should be given to the Banks to settle the debts of the sugar mill and that the cane growers have no right to claim the price of the sugarcane from the pledged stock of the Banks. He explained that in terms of order dated 24.6.2016 in W.P. No.4562/2016 the total amount claimed by the cane growers is around Rs.820 million and the amount claimed by the Banks is more than Rs.800 million. That the sugarcane bags were auctioned by the orders of this Court and some stock of brown sugar remains to be auctioned. The counsel adopted the arguments of the Banks and pressed for release of all amounts in favour of the Bank.

8. From what has been argued before the Court, the basic issue which needs to be decided is whether the cane growers are entitled to recover amounts due to them through sale of bags of sugar by the Cane Commissioner under the Act or whether the Banks have priority over the bags of sugar for the settlement of their debt. In this regard, it is also in issue that if the bags of sugar are sold, priority of payment out of the sale proceeds, will be given to the Banks and not to the cane growers. Furthermore the parties dispute the role of the Cane Commissioner and whether the Cane Commissioner can forcibly take possession of bags of sugar, in order to settle the debt of the cane growers. In order to resolve the disputes before the Court, it is necessary to first understand the nature of the rights sought to be protected and enforced.

Right of the Banks

9. The case of the Banks is that the Sugar Mills pledged bags of sugar with them, hence by virtue of being a secured creditor they have the right to retain possession of the bags of sugar and the right to sell the bags to recover amounts due to them against the finance facilities availed. The right of the Banks is provided under Section 172 of the Contract Act which defines and prescribes the conditions applicable to a pledge such that it is the bailment of goods as security for payment of debt. Bailment as per Section 148 of the Contract Act is the delivery of goods by one person to another person, which goods are either returned or otherwise disposed of as per the direction of the person delivering them. Effectively bailment is for a purpose and includes the power to retain the goods until the purpose for which delivery was given is achieved. Therefore Section 172 read with Section 148 of the Contract Act establishes the conditions for creation of a pledge such that the delivery of goods is necessary and that the pledgee retains the right to keep possession of the goods till repayment of the debt. Section 173 of the Contract Act gives the pledgee the right to retain the pledged goods, meaning thereby that the Bank has the right to retain the bags of sugar in their possession until the repayment of the debt. Hence the basic contention of the Banks is that the pledged stock maintained in the godowns of the Sugar Mills cannot be sold by the Cane Commissioner for settlement of any debt of the cane growers as the pledge of the bags of sugar in favour of the Banks is protected under the law. The other argument of the Banks is that they are all secured creditors whose rights are protected under the law and can only be curtailed if there is any other secured creditor who has priority or preference over the right of the Banks. In this case the debt of the cane grower, as argued by the Counsel for the Banks, is an unsecured debt meaning thereby that the cane growers do not have preference over the rights of the Banks. Reliance is placed on the case The Bank of Bihar v. The State of Bihar and others (AIR 1971 SC 1210). It was also argued that the Act does not give the cane grower any priority over secured creditors and that even the general law does not give them priority. That at best the debt of the cane grower is a government due, which does not get preferential rights over secured creditors. Reliance is placed on M/s Industrial Development Bank of Pakistan v. M/s Maida Limited and others (1994 SCMR 2248), United Bank Limited v. P.I.C.I.C and others (1992 SCMR 1731) and Collector of Customs, Karachi v. Naya Daur Motors (Pvt.) Ltd. and others (2015 SCMR 1376).

10. In terms of the law laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 1992 SCMR 1731 (supra) a secured creditor is free to deal with its security and to realize it for the repayment of the debt as it chooses. Furthermore a secured creditor has first priority for recovery of its dues from the sale of the security, in this case being pledged goods and that even government dues do not get preference over secured creditors. Reliance is placed on In Re: Saifee Development Corporation Ltd. (1989 MLD 3909), Orix Leasing Pakistan Limited v. Sunshine Cloth Limited (2001 PTD 3146), Polyolefins Industries Ltd. (In liquidation) v. Kosmek Plastics Manufacturing Co. Ltd. (2002 PTD 1638) and 2015 SCMR 1376 (supra). The gist of the law from the cases relied upon is that the pledged goods cannot be attached or sold for the satisfaction of claims other than the claim of the Bank being a secured creditor. Therefore, as per what was argued, the Banks' case is that the Cane Commissioner could not seize the bags of sugar because they have been pledged with the Banks and if the pledged bags are sold then the sale proceeds will be given to the Banks by way of priority over all other claimants. Hence the Banks seek protection and enforcement of their rights as pledgees under the Contract Act and seek priority as secured creditors in terms of the law pronounced by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan.

Right of the Cane Growers

11. As per the arguments of Mrs. Samia Khalid, Additional Advocate General, Sections 13 and 16 of the Act read with Rule 14(2) of the Rules imposes a statutory duty on the sugar mill to pay the cane grower the price of the sugarcane within fifteen days of delivery of the cane. She argued that sugar is an essential crop and that the sugar industry is regulated by a special law. That the supply of sugarcane and the payment of the said supply is an integral part of the whole transaction which is regulated under the Act. She argued that the purpose of the Act is to ensure that supply and payment of sugarcane is made. Hence the cane growers have a statutory right to receive the price of the sugarcane, within fifteen days of delivery, in accordance with the mandate of the Act and the Rules. Syed Ali Zafar, Advocate differed with this view and argued that Rule 14(2) does not confer a statutory obligation on the sugar mill nor do the Rules give the Cane Commissioner the right to recover payments due to the cane grower. As per his arguments Rule 14(2) merely confirms a contractual obligation of the sugar mill to make payment for the sugarcane supplied. He also argued that Rule 14 does not give priority to the cane growers over the rights of the secured creditors being the Banks. Hence as per his arguments the obligation to pay the cane growers is contained in the agreement between the parties for supply of cane at a given price and the cane growers have a contractual right to receive payment. Consequently in the event of non-payment the cane growers' remedy, at best is a suit for recovery of amounts due.

12. Mr. Anwaar Hussain, Additional Advocate General argued that the Act and the Rules provide for a comprehensive procedure for delivery and payment of sugarcane because the lawmaker needed to balance the relationship between the cane grower and the sugar mill. The cane growers do not have any bargaining power as they have to deliver sugarcane to the sugar mill. Under the circumstances the legislature deemed it necessary to protect the cane growers interest by ensuring that the minimum price for sugarcane is fixed by the Provincial Government and that the sugar mill pay that price to the cane grower without any deductions. In this regard the Cane Commissioner was given the required powers under Section 6 of the Act to recover amounts due to the cane growers.

13. The relevant Act is the Punjab Sugar Factories Control Act, 1950 and the Rules framed thereunder. The preamble of the Act provides that the scope of the Act is to regulate the supply of sugarcane and the price at which the sugarcane may be purchased. As per Section 6 of the Act, the Provincial Government may appoint any officer, not below the status of a Collector, to be a Cane Commissioner to exercise the powers and duties conferred upon him under the Act and all powers and duties that may be prescribed by the Provincial Government from time to time. In terms of the Act, the Cane Commissioner ensures that sugarcane is purchased by the sugar mill during a crushing season. In this regard, Section 8 of the Act requires a sugar mill to inform the Cane Commissioner of its intent to start crushing, one month before the crushing season commences. As per the section, the crushing season begins on the 1st day of October and ends on the 30th day of June of the following year. Under Section 9, the sugar mill must provide an estimate of the quantity of sugarcane it requires for a particular crushing season. In terms of Section 10, the Cane Commissioner confirms the request and once the quantity of sugarcane is confirmed, he may after consulting the Board, declare any area to be a reserved area for the purposes of supply of sugarcane to a particular sugar mill, during a particular crushing season. Under Section 13 of the Act, the sugar mill is required to purchase quantified amount of sugarcane from the cane grower in the reserved area. The terms and conditions of the purchase are provided by the Cane Commissioner stipulating the quantity of cane to be delivered within a prescribed time, at the agreed to price. The price is fixed by the Government of Punjab through a notification in terms of Section 16 of the Act. Furthermore sugarcane from a reserved area must be purchased by the sugar mill and the cane grower must supply to the designated mills. The sugar mill is required to pay to the cane grower the amount fixed by the Provincial Government as the price of sugarcane without any deductions. Section 16 of the Act specifically states that no deduction shall be made from the price of the sugarcane due to a cane grower. In terms of Section 16-A, any person who fails to comply with the provisions of Section 16 of the Act, shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend up to two years or with fine which may extend to twice the price of the sugarcane or twice the amount of quality premium due, as the case may be.

14. The Rules were framed under Section 23 of the Act. Rules 11 and 12 provide for the general provisions related to the purchase of sugarcane through a purchase centre and a licensed purchase agent. Rule 13 provides that the cane grower must receive the minimum price. In terms of Rule 14, the sugar mill must provide adequate facilities to the satisfaction of the Cane Commissioner for payment of the price of sugarcane and all payments for cane must be made within fifteen days of the delivery of sugarcane. Payment is to be made on the basis of the recorded weight, directly to the cane grower and the occupier or purchasing agent shall be liable for all payments due for sugarcane supplied to him or on his behalf. In case a purchasing agent fails to make payment for the sugarcane purchased, the sugar mill shall be responsible for making such payments. Rule 14(6) provides that no deduction shall be made by way of fine or otherwise from the price of the sugarcane purchased, which would reduce such price to a figure below the prescribed rate. The only amount that can be deducted is a loan amount given to a grower to help with the cultivation. In case payment is not cleared within fifteen days, the occupier or purchasing agent shall be liable to pay interest at the rate of eleven percent per annum.

15. In terms of the Act and the Rules, the supply of sugarcane for a particular crushing season is regulated such that the quantity of sugarcane to be supplied is fixed by the Cane Commissioner and the price for the sugarcane is fixed by the Provincial Government. The Act and the Rules provide for a rational distribution of sugarcane to sugar mills so as to ensure that the requirement for sugar is met with. The sugar mill is bound to pay the price fixed by the Government and can make no deduction from the notified price. The entire process for weightment including the scales and weights used is regulated under the Rules through the Cane Commissioner. The Act and the Rules ensure that sugarcane is supplied to the sugar mill during a given crushing season and that the cane grower is paid for the sugarcane at the notified price. The Act and the Rules set out the terms and conditions for the purchase of sugarcane and require the Cane Commissioner to ensure that the mill is supplied sugarcane on time and that the cane grower is paid in a timely manner. The terms and conditions of the purchase are prescribed under the Rules whereby Rules 13 and 14 deal with weighments, scales, weights, purchasing centres and payment requirements. The stated Rules protect the rights of the sugar mills who are guaranteed supply of the required sugarcane from a particular area and particular cane growers. Conversely the cane growers have agreed to supply sugarcane to a particular sugar mill at a given price and are ensured payment under the law. Therefore the right of the cane growers to receive payment is not dependent on any contract or negotiated terms and conditions rather the Act requires the sugar mill to pay the price fixed by the Government under Section 16 of the Act. Furthermore Section 13(2)(3) and (4) requires the sugar mill to purchase the sugarcane from the cane grower on the prescribed terms and conditions which are provided for in the Rules. Hence the right to recover the price of the sugarcane is a statutory right and the cane growers before the Court seek protection of their statutory right to receive payment for the sugarcane purchased by the sugar mill.

16. One of the arguments raised by the Banks with reference to the nature of the cane growers right is that amounts due to the cane grower are government dues as the Cane Commissioner can only recover government dues, and government dues have no priority over the rights of secured creditors. This argument is totally misconceived as the cane grower has a statutory right to receive payment for the sugarcane delivered. The Act and the Rules create a regulatory framework which recognizes the necessity of the sugar mill to receive sugarcane during a crushing season in order to meet the demand for sugar being an essential commodity. The Act and the Rules ensure that the sugar mill receives the desired quantity of sugarcane from the cane grower at a given time. The Act also requires that the cane grower be paid the minimum price for the sugarcane supplied. Hence the rights and obligations with reference to the supply of sugarcane are of the sugar mill and cane grower. As part of the scheme of the regulatory framework, keeping in mind the relationship of the sugar mill and cane grower, a regulator oversees the entire process of supply and delivery and a mechanism is created under the Act to recover amounts due to the cane grower through the Cane Commissioner. The powers of the Cane Commissioner for the purposes of recovery are the same as a Collector under the West Pakistan Land Revenue Act, 1967 ("LRA") as provided in Section 6 of the Act. This power as and when exercised by the Cane Commissioner is not to recover government dues but to recover amounts due to the cane grower. The regulatory framework puts the Cane Commissioner in a pivotal position to regulate the supply and delivery of sugarcane as well as to ensure that the cane grower is paid. Hence the Cane Commissioner while exercising power under Section 6 of the Act can recover amounts due to the cane grower and this power does not translate into recovering government dues. The Cane Commissioner acts as the regulatory authority who is empowered under the law to protect the rights of the cane grower in the same way as he is empowered under the Act to protect the rights of the sugar mills. Therefore the cane growers right to recover amounts due to them through the Cane Commissioner does not make their debt a government due.

The Law and Regulatory Framework

17. The Act is a special law specifically designed to regulate the purchase and delivery of sugarcane. The Rules were framed under Section 23 of the Act and must be read as an integral part of the Act itself. In this regard the Supreme Court of India held in the case titled National Insurance Company Limited v. Swaran Singh and others [(2004) 3 Supreme Court Cases 297)] that rules validly made under a statute become part of the statute and such rules are to be read as part of the main enactment. The Rules are statutory rules made in accordance with the powers conferred under the Act and have the force of law. Since the parties before the Court seek protection and enforcement of their rights, that is the Banks seek protection of their rights as secured creditors and the cane growers seek protection of their statutory rights to receive payment, the law, its purpose and the regulatory framework must be considered in order to appreciate the rights and the remedies available to the parties.

18. Sugarcane is an important cash crop and food crop being a vital source of income and employment for the farming community of Pakistan. Sugarcane contribution in the agriculture sector is 3.4% and to the Gross Domestic Product ("GDP") is 0.7%. Furthermore Pakistan occupies an important position globally in sugarcane producing countries, ranking within the top five producing countries.

Sugar is termed as an essential commodity under the Essential Commodities Act, 1957 ("1957 Act") meaning thereby that it is a regulated commodity in terms of price, trade and commerce and falls at Serial No.xxvii of the Schedule to the 1957 Act. Hence the Act is a special law which regulates the supply and purchase of sugarcane in order to meet the demand for sugar. The Act regulates the supply of sugarcane to sugar mills such that a specific quantity of sugarcane is grown in one crushing season by the cane growers and utilized by the sugar mills. This ensures that the desired production of sugar is achieved. The extent of regulating production of sugarcane is evident from Section 18 of the Act wherein the sugar mill can distribute approved seeds in order to control the quality of sugarcane. The preamble of the Act clearly sets out the purpose of the Act as regulating the supply of sugarcane intended for use in such factories and the price at which it may be purchased and for such other matters as may be incidental thereto. The lawmaker in its wisdom deemed it necessary to ensure that sugarcane is purchased during the given dates in the required quantity as agreed between the parties. Purchase of sugarcane is not a one sided obligation where the cane grower is compelled to deliver the sugarcane and the sugar mill is not compelled to make payment. The Act and the Rules recognize that the sugarcane must be purchased by the sugar mill at the notified price. The word 'purchase' is all encompassing, including both delivery and payment of price as its necessary ingredients. Without payment of the price the 'purchase' remains incomplete. Undoubtedly the purpose of the Act and the Rules will be frustrated if the price of the sugarcane is not paid to the cane growers within the contemplated time, as the law clearly envisions payment of the sugarcane being an integral part of the purchase of sugarcane by the sugar mill. Even otherwise it is noted that there can be no sale or purchase of sugarcane without payment of the price. To argue that the law focuses and ensures only delivery in favour of the sugar mill suggest that an undue advantage is given to the sugar mill to receive the sugarcane without any commitment or obligation to pay for the sugarcane. This cannot be the objective of the law because the Act regulates the entire business of the cane grower right from selection of seeds up to the delivery of the sugarcane. The cane grower is bound under the statute to deliver the sugarcane to the designated sugar mill. The objective behind regulating the business of the cane grower is that the cane grower delivers the required quantity of sugarcane for the price fixed by the government under Section 16 of the Act. This ensures that the land used for cane growing is used efficiently to match the demand for sugarcane to a given mill. It also ensures optimum and efficient use of milling capacity. The regulatory framework aims to provide certainty to the cane grower and the mill that sugarcane will be supplied and purchased. Hence the Act and the Rules when read together create a regulatory system within which the supply and payment of sugarcane are supervised and controlled by the Cane Commissioner. Consequently it goes without saying that the purpose of the Act and the Rules is to ensure that the cane grower is made payment for the sugarcane delivered.

19. For ease of reference Sections 13 and 16 of the Act and Rule 14 of the Rules being the relevant provisions are reproduced here under:

Section 13 Purchase of Cane in a Reserved Area

(1) A cane grower or a Cane Growers' Co-operative society in a reserved area may, if required to do so by the Cane Commissioner shall, offer in the form and by the date prescribed, and supply to the occupier of the Factory, for which the area is reserved, such quantity of cane grown by the cane grower or by the members of such Cane Growers' Co-operative Society, as the case may be as is generally prescribed for, or specially directed by the Cane Commissioner, for such cane grower or Cane Growers' co-operative Society.

(2) The occupier of a factory, for which an area is reserved, shall enter into an agreement in such form by such date and on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed to purchase the cane offered in accordance with subsection (1), provided that he shall not purchase or enter into an agreement to purchase cane from a person who is a member of a Cane Growers' Co-operative Society.

(3) Unless the Provincial Government otherwise directs, cane grown in a reserved area shall not be purchased by a purchasing agent or by any person other than the occupier of the Factory for which such area has been reserved except by any other grower for the bona fide purpose of seed.

(4) Cane grown in a reserved area shall not be sold by any person other than a cane grower or a Growers' Co-operative Society, provided that a cane grower or a Cane Growers' Co-operative Society may deliver cane intended for a factory through another cane grower of that area, or through a carrier.

(5) During the crushing season, the Provincial Government may, if it is satisfied that there is likely to be in the area reserved for a Factory any quantity of cane available for sale to the occupier of the Factory in excess of the quantity for which he is required to enter into an agreement, direct that cane shall not be purchased outside the reserved area until the occupier of the Factory enters into agreements to purchase all the cane offered to him in the reserved area.

Section 16 Power of Provincial Government to fix minimum price

(i) The Provincial Government, after consultation with the Board, may by notification, determine in respect of any area the minimum price to be paid by occupiers of Factories or purchasing agents for cane purchased in that area either generally or related to the sugar contents of the cane or direct that such minimum price shall be calculated in the manner prescribed.

(ii) The Provincial Government may from time to time vary by notification, the price fixed under subsection (i).

(iii) The occupier of a Factory or a purchasing agent shall not make any deduction from the amount due for cane sold to him by a cane grower or a Cane Growers' Co-operative Society, except such deductions as may be prescribed or as the Provincial Government may, by notification, from time to time, allow.

(iv) The Provincial Government may, after consultation with the Board, by notification, direct that in addition to the minimum price to be paid for cane, the occupier of a factory shall pay for special varieties of cane to be specified in the notification and which the cane grower or Cane Growers' Co-operative Society has agreed to supply, such additional price as the Provincial Government may direct.

Rule 14 Payments

(1) The occupier or purchasing agent shall provide adequate facilities to the satisfaction of the Cane Commissioner for the payment of the price of cane.

(2) The occupier or purchasing agent shall make all payments for cane at the purchasing centre within fifteen days of the delivery of cane:

Provided further that when a purchasing centre is closed, all payments must be made at the centre within a week of the closing of the centre and if any growers do not appear to receive payments within a week of the closing of the centre, payments to them should thereafter be made at the factory within 24 hours of demand.

(3) Payments shall be made on the basis of the recorded weight of the cane at the purchasing centre.

(4) Payments for cane purchased for a factory shall not be made to a representative of the growers (or to a representative of the person representing himself to be such grower) unless he is duly authorised by him in writing to received such payments:

Provided that no person who has purchased the cane from the grower, or who is employed by an occupier or a purchasing agent and no person who has lent money to the grower and no agent of such person, shall take such payments.

(5) An occupier and purchasing agent shall be liable for all payments due for cane supplied to him or on his behalf. If a purchasing agent fails to make payment for cane purchased by him for a factory, the occupier of such factory shall be responsible for making such payments:

Provided that notice or complaint of non-payment is given, or made in writing, to the occupier of the factory concerned, within three months of the date on which the purchasing centre at which the cane was supplied is closed.

(6) Except as provided in sub-rules (7), (8), (9) and (10) no deduction shall be made by way of fine or otherwise from the price of the cane purchased which would reduce such price to a figure below that calculated at the prescribed minimum rate. Recoveries of the dues of a Cane Growers' Co-operative Society may be made by deduction from the price payment for cane.

(7) When transport is provided by the occupier of the factory he may deduct the cost of transport according to the rate fixed by the Cane Commissioner.

(i) Deduction may be made, if cane is definitely below the average of standard cane for the area on account of delay in transport or natural causes, e.g., serious water logging, intensive insect attach, disease, or sever frost. The Cane Commissioner will issue general instructions for the guidance of the occupiers in regard to the extent to which such deductions are to be made and in cases of dispute the decision of the Cane Commissioner will be final.

(8) The Provincial Government, if satisfied that in any local area substantial quantity of cane will remain standing and unsold on the 1st June, and is not likely to be purchased at the prescribed minimum price, may by notification in the Gazette direct that in such area such deduction as may be specified in the Notification may be made from the price of the cane purchased after that date.

(9) If any loan has been advanced by an occupier or a purchasing agent for meeting the expenses of cultivation to the persons from whom cane has been purchased, the amount of such loan, together with simple interest thereon at a rate not exceeding 10 percent per annum for the period the loan has been outstanding may, subject to the terms of the agreements between the lender and the borrower, be deducted from the amount paid for the cane:

Provided that the amount of the loan is disproportionate to the area to be sown, or the assistance necessary to sow it, or the value of the cane to be delivered, and that no deduction is made in respect of a loan given more than three years previous to the date of the purchasing of cane.

Explanation - A loan for the purpose of this rule shall mean only an advance made in pursuance of an agreement to sow a definite area of sugarcane, and for enabling or assisting such area to be sown, or in pursuance of an agreement to deliver a certain amount of cane. The Cane Commissioner will decide on application from the occupier or purchasing agent concerned, whether a loan is proportionate to the area to be sown, or the assistance necessary to sow it, or the value of the cane to be delivered.

(10) The occupier or purchasing agent shall be liable to pay interest at the rate of eleven percent per annum or unpaid balance of payment for cane, from the date of delivery of the cane, in case where such payment is not cleared within fifteen days of its delivery.

20. In terms of Section 13 of the Act, the cane grower offers the sugar mill such quantity of sugarcane, as is required by it. The sugar mill can accept the offer and purchase the sugarcane at the prescribed price as per the fixed terms and conditions provided by the Cane Commissioner. Rule 9 of the Rules provides for the general terms and conditions which govern the sale transaction. The offer by the cane grower is made in terms of Appendix II Form 6 of the Rules. The acceptance is made as per Appendix II Form 7 and Form 8. Rule 9(4) requires that purchase is made after issuance of a requisition slip. Therefore the basic terms, quantity and price are fixed by the Cane Commissioner and Government of Punjab respectively and the details being the time and date of delivery is agreed between the parties as approved by the Cane Commissioner. Even otherwise Section 13 read with Rules 10 and 14 and Forms 7 and 8 clearly establish that the sugarcane has to be purchased by the sugar mill and that the price of sugarcane has to be paid within fifteen days of the delivery of the cane. The word 'purchase' as per Black's Law Dictionary Tenth Edition, means the act or an instance of buying meaning to acquire something by paying for it. Furthermore Sections 13 and 14 of the Act controls the terms and conditions of purchase of sugarcane from a reserved area or assigned area. Purchase of the sugarcane involves a commitment on the delivery of cane and payment of the price, as fixed by the Government of Punjab. The sugar mill has to pay the price fixed by the Government and the cane grower must supply the sugarcane as per the agreed quantity. Hence the statute creates a clear obligation on the sugar mill to purchase the sugarcane delivered to it, meaning thereby to pay for the cane delivered to it. Rule 14(2) grants a fifteen day period within which the payment must be made. Consequently there is a clear statutory obligation on the sugar mill to pay the price of the sugarcane received by it within fifteen days of its delivery.

21. Section 16 of the Act grants the Provincial Government power to fix the minimum price at which sugarcane is purchased and ensures that the cane grower receives the minimum price. Section 16(iii) of the Act prohibits the sugar mill to deduct any amounts from the price fixed by the Government of Punjab meaning thereby that the cane grower is entitled to the price of the cane without any set off or deductions as further elaborated upon in Rule 14(6). The intent of Section 16 is to ensure that the cane grower is paid a fixed price for the sugarcane delivered to the sugar mill. It also ensures that the sugar mill is cognizant of its obligations to pay the price for the sugarcane purchased and does not leave anything to be negotiated between the parties. Since the lawmaker deemed it necessary to regulate the purchase of sugarcane through the Act, they intentionally gave the power to fix the price of the sugarcane to the Government so that the cane grower is ensured payment of the price of the sugarcane delivered. Section 16 of the Act effectively protects the cane grower from any unfair dealing by the sugar mill as it does not allow the mill to negotiate the price of the sugarcane.

22. Rule 14 provides for all matters relevant for the purposes of payment to the cane grower. Rule 14(1) and (2) requires that the Cane Commissioner satisfy himself that payment can be made and that payment is made within fifteen days of delivery of cane. In the event of delay or non-compliance of Rule 14(2), the sugar mill is liable to pay interest at the rate of 11% per annum or unpaid balance of cane from the date of delivery till payment is cleared. Rule 14(4) and (5) ensure that payment for cane purchased by a sugar mill is made to the grower even if through a representative or an occupier of the sugar mill. Rule 14(6) emphasis that no deduction can be made from the price of the cane purchased meaning thereby that sugar mill cannot settle any debt or payment due from the grower against the price of the sugarcane supplied. The only exception provided is in Rule 14(9), that too as per the prescribed conditions. Hence the objective of Rule 14 is to ensure that payment guaranteed under Section 16 of the Act is made to the cane grower for the sugarcane supplied to the sugar mill. It is noted that Rule 14 is in furtherance of the purpose of the Act which regulates the supply of sugarcane and the price at which it can be purchased.

23. Furthermore as per the arguments of Mrs. Samia Khalid, Additional Advocate General the prevailing practice is that a sugar mill issues a Cane Purchase Receipt ("CPR") to the cane grower providing the specific date, time and weight of the cane supplied along with the total amount due to the cane grower for the sugarcane supplied. Copies of the CPRs were placed on file. The CPR is an acknowledgement by the sugar mill that it has received sugarcane from the mentioned cane grower and is liable to pay for the delivery of the sugarcane. The issuance of the CPR by the sugar mill signifies that the cane grower has fulfilled its obligation under the Act and the sugar mill is obligated to pay the price as given in the CPR. Therefore the right of the cane grower to receive the price of the sugarcane delivered is a statutory right which has been recognized and acknowledged by the sugar mill when issuing a CPR.

24. Having examined the Act, the Rules and the regulatory framework, it is important to deliberate on the relevance of the purpose of the law and the context in which it must be examined. Time and again, in different cases, cane growers have approached the Court seeking payment from sugar mills to whom sugarcane has been delivered. The cane growers have argued on the strength of the purpose of the Act and the powers given to the Cane Commissioner under the Act, which is to regulate the delivery of sugarcane and ensure payment to the cane grower. This Court has seen, more often than not, cane growers in Court seeking a direction that the Cane Commissioner do his job and recover payments for the cane grower. The powers and duties of the Cane Commissioner are repeatedly invoked to recover amounts due to the cane grower in furtherance of the objectives of the Act and the Rules. The Courts have considered the regulatory framework under the Act in order to balance the rights of the sugar mills and the cane growers so that one does not take advantage of its position over the other. In the dispute before the Court the issue is not simplicitor recovery for amounts due to the cane growers from the Sugar Mills. The rights of the Banks as secured creditors must be seen in their own independent context in order to conclude who gets priority with reference to the value of the bags of sugar.

Role of the Cane Commissioner

25. The role of the Cane Commissioner is in dispute, hence it must be examined so as to determine whether the Cane Commissioner is the competent authority to recover the cane growers' dues under the Act. The Cane Commissioner is appointed under Section 6 of the Act and as per Section 6(2) the Cane Commissioner is deemed to have powers of a Collector/DCO under the LRA and the Punjab Tenancy Act, 1887. The Cane Commissioner is the regulator under the Act who has been authorized to ensure that a sugar mill having declared its estimated quantity of cane required will start crushing during the crushing season. As per the Act the Cane Commissioner shall ensure that the sugar mill is supplied with sugarcane from the reserved area declared for this purpose. The Cane Commissioner has to notify the quantity of sugarcane required by a sugar mill during a crushing season one month before the crushing starts. Estimated quantity required by the sugar mill is declared and a commitment is taken from the cane growers in the area for the supply of sugarcane to a particular sugar mill. Section 13 prescribes for the procedure to be undertaken for the purchase of sugarcane in a reserved area wherein the cane grower has to supply sugarcane to a sugar mill. The Cane Commissioner can also by an order in writing prohibit the cultivation of any variety of sugarcane declared by the Government of Punjab to be unsuitable for distribution. It is noted that the cane grower can only use seeds of the variety permitted by the Government of Punjab. Section 21 provides for the penalties in the event that any person contravenes any provision of the Act or the Rules made thereunder.

26. The relevant power in these cases with reference to the Cane Commissioner is under Section 6(2) of the Act which gives the powers of the Collector/DCO as under the LRA to the Cane Commissioner. This Court has already held in judgment titled Haji Bashir Ahmad and others v. Cane Commissioner (PLD 2013 Lahore 81) that the Cane Commissioner can collect amounts due as arrears of land revenue for the benefit of the cane grower. The counsel for the Banks argued that the Cane Commissioner has no power to recover dues of the cane growers and that neither the Act nor Rules authorize the Cane Commissioner to recover the price of the sugarcane from the sugar mills. Furthermore that even if the Cane Commissioner can recover for the benefit of the cane growers, it cannot be given priority over the dues of the secured creditors. The basic argument is that the Cane Commissioner cannot declare the dues of the cane growers to be arrears of land revenue. Therefore he cannot recover the dues of the cane growers in terms of Section 6(2) of the Act. The counsel for the Banks argued that although the Cane Commissioner has been given powers of the Collector under Section 6(2) of the Act, there is no enabling provision in the Act which provides that sums due to the cane growers are recoverable as arrears of land revenue. In this regard Section 6(2) of the Act clearly provides that the Cane Commissioner has the powers of a Collector/DCO under the LRA and Punjab Tenancy Act, 1887. Section 80 of the LRA provides for the procedure to be adopted by the Collector in order to recover arrears of land revenue. It was argued before the Court that the powers under Section 80 of the LRA are for the purposes of recovering arrears of land revenue meaning thereby that the powers can only be exercised to recover arrears of land revenue. Section 11 of the Act provides for surveys of reserved areas and authorizes the government to recover the cost of the survey from the sugar mill as arrears of land revenue. In view of Section 11 of the Act it was argued that the powers under Section 6(2) of the Act can only be read in conjunction with the requirement of Section 11 of the Act. I am of the opinion that the arguments are misconceived given that the basic role of the Cane Commissioner under the Act is regulatory, with the objective to ensure that sugarcane is delivered by the cane grower within time and that payment is made to the cane grower within fifteen days of delivery. Under the Act the Cane Commissioner is obligated to ensure that the purchase of sugarcane is completed within the crushing season. In terms of the Rules the Cane Commissioner regulates the entire process from cultivation to sale, including issuance of licenses for purchasing agents, weightment and payments made to the cane grower. In the event of a dispute the matter is referred to the Cane Commissioner as per Rule 17 who then settle the claims of the cane growers. In the event of non-compliance with any of the provisions of the Rules the Cane Commissioner can impose penalties under Rule 18. Hence the role of the Cane Commissioner as the regulator requires that he has powers to ensure that the mandate of the Act and the Rules is fulfilled such that the cane growers supply sugarcane and the sugar mill pays the price of the sugarcane.

27. The Act mandates the Cane Commissioner to recover the price of the sugarcane if the sugar mill does not pay the same within fifteen days' time by exercising powers under Section 6(2) of the Act. In order to effectuate the purpose of the Act the objective of Section 6(2) cannot be limited to be construed as collection of arrears of land revenue that too when Section 11 (4) of the Act, itself stipulates that the cost of the survey can be recovered as arrears of land revenue. The purpose of Section 6(2) of the Act is to empower the Cane Commissioner to recover the price of the sugarcane as mandated under the Act. Since the Act is a special law, a special mechanism has been created under the Act to enable the cane grower to recover its due. The lawmaker did not want the cane grower to pursue its dues through recovery suits and instead designed a mechanism where the role of the Cane Commissioner is such that it can exercise all the powers of the Collector in order to recover the cane growers' dues. Accordingly the Cane Commissioner is the competent authority and forum under the Act for the recovery of all dues of the cane grower. So for example, the Cane Commissioner by virtue of Section 6(2) of the Act can adopt the procedure and process given under Section 80 of the LRA to recover the dues of the cane grower. Interestingly the enabling provisions referred to by the counsel for the Banks, such as Section 54(A) of the Electricity Act, 1910, Section 55 of Provincial Employees' Social Security Ordinance, 1965, Section 41 of Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 and Section 29-A of the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 do not give the powers of the Collector under the LRA to some authority for recovery of arrears of land revenue. Instead the laws simply by reference provide that amounts due are to be recovered as arrears of land revenue. By contrast Section 6(2) of the Act specifically gives the powers of the Collector as prescribed under the LRA to the Cane Commissioner so as to enable him to fulfill his obligation with respect to recovering the dues of the cane growers. In this regard Section 11(4) of the Act by reference requires recovery of dues for survey of reserved area as arrears of land revenue. Both the Sections when read together indicate the clear intent of the legislature to empower the Cane Commissioner in order to fulfill the mandate of the Act. As a result, the Cane Commissioner can adopt the powers and procedure provided under the LRA to recover the price of the sugarcane for the cane grower. If the Cane Commissioner did not have the power to recover the dues of the cane grower, the purpose of the Act would be defeated and would in fact give an unfair advantage to the sugar mill by compelling the cane grower to give delivery of sugarcane without any payment. This Court has on numerous occasions recognizes the critical role of the Cane Commissioner and upheld the powers of the Cane Commissioner with respect to recovery of amounts due to the cane growers. Reliance is placed on the judgments of this Court dated 9.2.2011 passed in W.P. No.21226/2010, 26.4.2010 in W.P. No.5664/2010, 20.5.2010 in W.P. No.8821/2010, 19.7.2012 in W.P. No.10238/2012, 29.5.2015 in W.P. No.16190/2015 and PLJ 2013 Lahore 9 (supra). Hence the Cane Commissioner is the competent authority through which the cane grower can recover its dues and the Cane Commissioner can exercise all the powers of the Collector under the LRA to recover these amounts.

The Dispute

28. The dispute as argued by the learned counsel is one of competing rights that is whether the Banks get priority over the bags of sugar because of the pledge in their favour or whether the cane growers get priority to receive payments due to them for the sugarcane delivered on account of their statutory right. The dispute arose because the cane growers were not paid for sugarcane purchased by the Sugar Mills since 2014 and 2016. Ultimately the Cane Commissioner took possession of the pledged bags of sugar to auction the same in order to settle outstanding dues of the cane growers. In W.P. No.4562/2016 the bags of sugar of Brother Sugar Mills were auctioned under the supervision of the Court vide order dated 12.7.2016 as there were allegations that the pledged stocks were being illegally removed by the mill owners. An amount of Rs.669,215,411/- is lying with the Deputy Registrar (Judicial) of this Court against which all Petitioners are claimants. With respect to the petitions of the Banks, the position of the Banks vis- -vis the pledge stock is as follows:

W.P. No.	Bank	Sugar Mill	Date of Pledge	Status

4562/16	Al-Baraka Bank (Pakistan)	Brother Sugar Mills	18-2-20-14	Suit Pending
4650/16	JS Bank Limited	Brother Sugar Mills	1-12-2014	Suit Pending

29. The rights of the Banks as secured creditors are long standing and established starting from Federation of Pakistan v. Pioneer Bank Limited and others (PLD 1958 Dacca 535) where the court held that the attachment or sale to satisfy a government debt would not affect a mortgage which was created prior to the attachment or sale up to 2015 SCMR 1376 (supra) where the court held that the government will not get any preferential right over the right of the secured creditors, where a mortgage is created prior to government due. The rights of secured creditors are protected when the property is sold by any creditor or when the property is sold in liquidation proceedings as held in 1992 SCMR 1731 (supra). In Orix Leasing Pakistan Limited v. Sunshine Cloth Limited (2001 PTD 3146) it was held that no one could lay claim on the mortgaged property or on the proceeds realized from the sale thereof. The rights of secured creditors can only be curtailed and priority or preference can only be given when another secured creditor has a right prior in time to a secured creditor. Reliance is placed on 1994 SCMR 2248 (supra). Therefore so far as the rights of the Banks as secured creditors are concerned, there is no denying the legal position that secured creditors get priority over government dues and unsecured creditors.

30. Indian Courts have also examined the cane growers right to recover the price of sugarcane. The first judgment cited before the Court was State of Bihar v. Bank of Bihar Ltd. (AIR 1963 Patna 344) in which the court held that the acts of the rationing officer/cane commissioner of seizing the pledged sugar was lawful. This judgment was subsequently overruled in AIR 1971 SC 1210 (supra). The facts of this case are the Sugar Mill obtained a cash credit facility by pledging sugar with the bank. The bags of sugar were kept in the godowns of the banks under the control of the bank. The rationing officer forcibly seized the sugar bags claiming that he would recover all dues against the sugar bags and that the cane growers had priority over the banks. The Supreme Court of India held that the rationing officer did not have any right of priority over the secured creditors as an unsecured creditor did not have a higher right than that of the pledger. In this case the cane growers' debt was unsecured, hence he did not have any priority. In another case State of M.P v. Jaora Sugar Mills Ltd and others (1997) 9 Supreme Court Cases 207) in a dispute over price and interest on delayed payment the Supreme Court of India held that the cane commissioner has the power to compel cane growers to supply sugarcane to the factory unit and has the incidental power to ensure payment to the cane grower. That the price fixed or agreed is a statutory price and bears the stamp of a statutory list charge on the sugar and assets of the factory over any other liability. In Rashtriya Kisan Mazdoor v. State of U.P. and another (2017) dated 9.3.2017 in a public interest case the court of Allahabad required that the price of the sugarcane be paid together with interest. The court held that the cane growers had a statutory entitlement to receive payment as of right and interest in the event of delayed payment. The court also held that the cane commissioner was duty bound to recover amounts due to the cane growers. In Agauta Sugar and Chemicals v. State of U.P and others (1997) 10 Supreme Court Cases 99, the appeal of the sugar mill was dismissed and the cane commissioner was directed to recover the price of the sugarcane by selling the sugar stock in hand, which would be sufficient to meet the price of the sugarcane and the interest on delayed payment. Hence most of the cases recognize that the cane grower must be paid the price of the sugarcane along with interest for delayed payment.

31. The aforementioned cases clarify that whilst banks have a right to possession over the bags of sugar pledged, the cane grower has a statutory right to recover the price of sugarcane delivered. This right of the cane grower is on account of the fact that he is the owner of the sugarcane delivered to the sugar mills. The cane grower sells sugarcane to the sugar mill as owner and the Act and the Rules envision a framework which protects the cane grower ownership rights as well as ensures that the right is enforceable. Hence in order to resolve the dispute this Court proceeds to examine the scheme of the Act and the Rules in the context of the cane grower's right as owner of the sugarcane.

32. As already stated the Act sets out to regulate the supply of sugarcane to sugar mills and the price at which the sugarcane shall be purchased. As per the preamble of the Act the mandate of the Act is to ensure that sugarcane is supplied to the sugar mills and that the cane growers are paid the price of that sugarcane. The purchase of sugarcane is regulated under Section 13 of the Act which clearly requires sugar mills to purchase from the cane grower a specified quantity of sugarcane and further requires the cane grower to supply sugarcane to a specified sugar mill within a specified period. Section 16 of the Act regulates the price of the sugarcane such that the provincial government sets the minimum price and the sugar mill is required to pay the fixed price to the cane grower without any deduction. Rule 14(2) of the Rules requires the sugar mill to make all payments within fifteen days of the delivery of the cane and also provides that the sugar mills will be liable for all payments without any deductions. Rule 14(2) is a mandatory provision which imposes an obligation on the sugar mills to make payment for the sugarcane in fifteen days' time. Effectively the cane grower has the right to receive the price from the sugar mill within fifteen days' time. This right is a statutory right which ensures that the owner of the sugarcane is paid the price of the sugarcane delivered to the sugar mill. In the event that the payment is not made the sugar mill, in terms of Rule 14(10) is liable to pay interest at the rate of 11% per annum from the date of delivery of the cane till the date when the payment is made. Therefore the Act and the Rules when read together make it evident that the legislature in its wisdom, deemed it necessary to balance the rights of the cane grower and the sugar mill so that the supply of sugarcane is not delayed and the price of the delivered sugarcane is made on time. The special regulatory scheme ensures delivery and payment of sugarcane which is an essential crop and does not aim to achieve unjust enrichment to the benefit of the sugar mill.

33. Title is a significant element in a sale transaction as it impacts upon the rights, remedies and obligations of the seller and the buyer. Section 19 of the Sales of Goods Act, 1930 ("Sales of Goods Act") provides that where there is a contract for the sale of specific and ascertained goods the property in them is transferred to the buyer at the time when the parties to the contract intend it to be transferred. As per the Section for the purposes of ascertaining the intention of the parties the terms of the contract, the conduct of the parties and the circumstances of the case will be considered. Where the intent is not specified it will be for the court to ascertain the intent of the parties. With reference to transfer of title of the goods, Sections 20 to 24 of the Sales of Goods Act provides for the different rules to ascertain the intention of the parties, as to the time at which the property in the goods is to pass to the buyers. Section 20 provides where there is an unconditional contract for the sale of specified goods the property in the goods passes when the contract is made. Section 21 provides that where is a contract for sale of specified goods, and the seller is bound to do something in order to put the goods in a deliverable state the property in the goods does not pass until the seller has done what he is required to do. Section 22 provides where there is a contract for sale for specified goods and the seller is bound to weigh, measure or test the goods, the property in the goods will not pass until the seller has done what he is required to do. Section 23 pertains to unascertained or future goods. The property in the goods will pass when the goods are appropriated by the seller or by the buyer. Finally Section 24 provides that where the goods are delivered to the buyer 'on approval' or on return the property in the goods will pass when the goods are approved or accepted by the seller. Sections 20 to 24 lay down the circumstances on the basis of which the intent of the parties can be given effect to with respect to the transfer of the title in the goods. Consequently these sections when read together, make it clear that delivery of goods and passing of title are two separate events and it is not necessary that title is transferred when delivery is made to the buyer. Reliance is placed on Messrs Alfarooq Shipping Co. Ltd. v. Messrs Vasa Shipping Co. Ltd. and 4 others (1980 CLC 1228), Pakistan Mercantile Corporation Ltd. v. Madan Mohan Oil Mills (1966 Dacca 181), Commissioner of Income Tax v. H.K.Patil (1994 PTD 330) and Ghulam Mustafa v. Officer on Special Duty, Federal Land Commission and another (1984 CLC 824). It is also important to note that as per the Sales of Goods Act payment and delivery are concurrent in terms of Section 32 whereby unless otherwise agreed, the buyer must pay the seller when possession of the goods is taken. Hence the general rule is unless otherwise intended, payment must be made when the goods are delivered.

34. The crucial test in these cases is therefore the intent of the law and the intent of the parties with reference to transfer of title when the goods are delivered to the buyer. So far as the intent of the parties is concerned that is often documented in the form of an agreement between the parties. In the cases before the Court, the intent of the parties is undisputed and evident from the CPRs that are issued by the Sugar Mill to the cane growers. The CPRs specify the quantity and the weight of the sugarcane delivered and the price which is to be paid to the cane grower. The CPRs evidence that the sugarcane has been received by the Sugar Mill and that the amount specified therein is due to the cane grower for the sugarcane delivered. Hence the CPR acknowledges the obligation of the Sugar Mill to pay the price of the sugarcane to the cane grower. Since Rule 14(2) of the Rules requires payment to be made in fifteen days, the issuance of the CPR is an acknowledgement of the obligation to pay the cane grower in fifteen days from the delivery.

35. With respect to the intent of the law that must be construed in the context of the purpose of the Act and the rights and obligations created under the Act. Essentially the construction of the intent of the law must be such that it gives effect to the meaning of the law. Justice Antonin Scalia of the US Supreme Court in Reading Law: The Interpretation of Legal Texts by Antonin Scalia and Bryan A. Garner (2012) expounded that the words of the law are given meaning to by their context and the context includes the purpose of the law. First, the purpose must be derived from the text, not from extrinsic sources such as legislative history or an assumption about the legal drafter's desire. Second, the purpose must be defined precisely and not in a fashion that smuggles in the answer to the question before the decision maker. Third, the purpose is to be described as concretely as possible not abstractly. More importantly the authors explain that purpose sheds light on deciding which of the various textually permissible meanings should be adopted. Similarly in the case of National Workers' Union v. P.R. Ramakrishnan [(1983) 1 SCC 228), the Supreme Court of India held that the law must be construed in accordance with the needs of the changing society, in the following words:

We cannot allow the dead hand of the past to stifle the growth of the living present. Law cannot stand still; it must change with the changing social concepts and values.

If the bark that protects the tree fails to grow and expand along with the tree, it will either choke the tree or if it is a living tree, it will shed that bark and grow a new living bark for itself. Similarly, if the law fails to respond to the needs of changing society, then either it will stifle the growth of the society and choke its progress or if the society is vigorous enough, it will cast away the law which stands in the way of its growth. Law must therefore constantly be on the move adapting itself to the fast changing society and not lag behind.

The principles of interpreting an ongoing statute have been very succinctly set out by the leading jurist Francis Bennion in his commentaries titled Statutory Interpretation, 2nd Edition, page-617, as follows:

It is presumed Parliament intends the court to apply to an ongoing Act a construction that continuously updates its wordings to allow for changes since the Act was initially framed. While it remains law, it has to be treated as always speaking. This means that in its application on any day, the language of the Act though necessarily embedded in its own time, is nevertheless to be construed in accordance with the need to treat it as a current law.

In construing on ongoing Act, the interpreter is to presume that Parliament intended the Act to be applied at any future time in such a way as to give effect to the original intention. Accordingly, the interpreter is to make awareness for any relevant changes that have occurred since the Act's passing, in law, in social conditions, technology, the meaning of words and other matters. That today's construction involves the supposition that Parliament was catering long ago for a state of affairs that did not then exist is no argument against that construction. Parliament, in the wording of an enactment, is expected to anticipate temporal developments. The drafter will foresee the future and allow for it in the wording.

An enactment of former days is thus to be read today, in the light of dynamic processing received over the years, with such modification of the current meaning of its language as will now give effect to the original legislative intention. The reality and effect of dynamic processing provides the gradual adjustment. It is constituted by judicial interpretation, year in and year out. It also comprises processing by executive officials.

The intent of the Act and the Rules in specifying the time for payment is to ensure that the cane grower is paid and that the price owed to the cane grower is not only secured but also remains enforceable under the Act. This is because the supply of sugarcane to the sugar mill is not an ordinary sale of goods. The legislature considered it to be a special transaction which required regulation and control and also required protection so far as the rights of the cane growers are concerned. The Act is designed to protect the suppliers and buyers of sugarcane which is a fast moving commodity due to its essential and perishable nature. The mandatory period for making payment secures the price of the sugarcane for the benefit of the cane grower while giving the sugar mill the benefit of a fifteen day credit. Doing business on credit is an acceptable mode, however in the case of the sale of sugarcane the Act, while regulating and controlling the sale transaction cannot be interpreted so as to leave the cane grower helpless at the hands of the sugar mill. In such eventuality the entire scheme of the law is defeated if the rights of the cane growers are not protected such that their right to receive payment is not enforceable. The purpose of requiring the cane grower to deliver on credit, is to facilitate the buyer sugar mill, so that it can use the goods. This does not suggest that the Act leaves the cane grower without any remedy to recover its dues. Therefore to the mind of the Court, by specifying the time within which payment must be made the intent of the law is to protect the cane grower so as to secure his payment and to ensure that the cane grower's right to recover his dues from the sugar mill will not be subservient to any other right.

36. Sugarcane is a regulated crop from its cultivation to the sale made to the sugar mill and the statutory regulations which cast obligations on the cane grower and the sugar mill are to be interpreted in order to advance the purpose of the statute. The purpose of the statute as already stated is to ensure that sugarcane is supplied/delivered to the sugar mill within a specified time in the given quantity required and that the sugar mill pays the cane grower for the sugarcane delivered. Hence the terms and conditions are all regulated by the law. Despite the same the nature of the trade is such and the practice over time has shown that the cane grower delivers the sugar cane on time and yet the sugar mill delays payment considerably given the perishable nature of the goods once the sugarcane is delivered to the sugar mill, its crushing is almost immediate for the production of sugar meaning thereby that the buyer will immediately put the sugarcane to use without payment to the cane grower. Hence while recognizing the ownership rights of the cane growers the Act recognizes that a debt is created with respect to the price of the sugarcane in favour of the cane grower which must be paid within fifteen days. Consequently by construing this requirement to be a statutory retention of title clause in favour of the cane grower the special purpose of the Act is achieved. Sections 13, 16 of the Act and Rule 14 of the Rules gives special treatment to the purchase transaction, such that the unpaid cane grower does not transfer title in the sugarcane supplied until payment is made in order to ensure compliance of the statutory condition to make payment in fifteen days.

37. A statutory retention of title provision gives the unpaid seller of goods priority over other creditors (secured or unsecured) in the event that the buyer fails to pay for the delivered goods. Essentially an owner having a right to payment, looses control over the goods yet retains title so as to ensure that in case the price is not paid within time, title of the goods will not pass to the buyer. Hence the goods do not become the property of the buyer nor does it become part of the assets of the buyer. In this way the right of the unpaid seller to recover the price of its goods is secured because the buyer cannot transfer title or security interest over the goods since he does not have title in the goods. In terms of the Nemo Dat Qui Non Habet

Rule, (he who hath not cannot give) the law protects the unpaid seller as the buyer cannot give that which he does not have i.e. title in the goods. Retention of title clause is one of legally acceptable modes in which a merchant supplying goods to a retailer or a manufacturer on credit can secure his payment by retaining title to the goods until payment is made.

An RT clause is virtually the only way a trade creditor. For example, a merchant supplying goods to a retailer or a manufacturer on credit can obtain security for the credit she extends to her customer. These clauses are therefore significant to business people, lawyers, academics and others interested in commercial sales transaction.

RT clauses are also of considerable importance in a broader social and economic context. As a recent report on insolvency law in England observed, "credit is the lifeblood of the modern industrialized economy." A significant proportion of business credit is supplied by trade creditors. It is therefore vital to the health and free-flow of this "lifeblood" that sellers wishing to extend credit to merchant buyers be able to obtain security. Where a trade creditor requiring security has little option but to rely on an RT clause, as is currently the case in England, the effectiveness of such a clause becomes extremely important.

The significance of retention of title clauses is the priority it is given over all other creditors, including secured creditors because amounts are recovered as owners and not as creditors. Furthermore the retention of title ensures that payment is made to the seller even if the goods cannot be recovered, because the seller is seeking to recover the value of his goods which he gave to the buyer on the condition that the price will be paid within a specified time. Hence title is retained even though delivery is made which means that the buyer is not the owner of the goods until payment is made.

In its simplest form, an RT clause in a contract for the sale of goods is relatively uncomplicated to create. It merely provides that the seller supplies goods to the buyer on the condition that ownership of the goods (title) will not pass to the buyer until the goods have been paid in full. The reason for including this clause in a sales contract is to assure the seller that payment will ultimately be made. This assurance derives from the fact that an RT clause "allows the owner/supplier of goods to seize the property should the debtor fail in one of his primary obligations, notably, payment of the price". If the seller cannot get her money from the buyer, she can get her goods back.

However, it is not so much the possibility of reclaiming goods supplied that inspires sellers to include RT clauses in their contracts. In general, sellers are probably more interested in payment than the return of their goods. The principal significance of an RT clause from the seller's perspective is the potential priority it may give her vis- -vis other creditors in the event of the buyer's insolvency:

The broad purpose of an agreement that a seller retains title to goods pending payment of the purchase price and other moneys owing to him is to protect the seller from the insolvency of the buyer in circumstances where the price and other moneys remain unpaid. The seller's aim in insisting on a retention of title clause is to prevent the goods and the proceeds of sale of the goods from becoming part of the assets of an insolvent buyer, available to satisfy the claim of the general body of creditors (supra).

38. Several jurisdictions such as English, USA, Germany, Australia and Hong Kong recognize retention of title clauses as being a commercially viable way to do business on credit. The courts of these jurisdictions have held it to be a practical tool to secure payment of goods, sold on credit, where the goods are delivered prior to payment being made. In many jurisdictions it is left to the parties to agree contractually on a retention of title clause, however in order to secure the interest of unpaid sellers in a trade where sale on credit is common practice, the courts have stepped in to interpret the statute such that an implied retention of title arrangement is read into the law. The United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit in Nickey Gregory Company, LLC; Poppell's Produce Incorporated v. AgriCap, LLC, a/k/a AgriCap Financial Corporation (No.09-1130) held that the Perishable Agriculture Commodities Act, 1930 ("PACA") was enacted to suppress unfair business practice and was amended in 1984 to provide a unique credit protection to sellers of perishable commodities whereby during the credit period a trust for the benefit of the unpaid seller of the commodities was created and termed as a non-segregated floating trust, wherein title in the commodities stays with the unpaid seller, giving the seller the right of recovery, which right is superior to all other creditors. In another case the United States District Court for the Southern District of Texas Houston Division, Benny's Farm Fresh Products, Inc. v. Vine Ripe Texas, Inc., et al. (Civil Petition No.H-08-2669), found that the PACA trust includes all commodities received and all products derived from these commodities and any proceeds due from the sale of these commodities. The court held that PACA was designed to protect producers of perishable agricultural products most of whom entrust their products to a buyer and are dependent upon the buyers business acumen and fair dealing with respect to payment. Hence to give effect to the intent of the law the proceeds from the sale of the commodities were also to be held in trust until payment was made. In this way it is not uncommon even for the lawmaker to recognize the burden on commercial activities where sellers suffer a high risk of not being able to recover amounts due to them. Retention of title is read into the provisions of the law to give effect to the law and secure its purpose. The effect thereof is that the goods are held by the buyer in trust for the benefit of the unpaid seller until full payment is made. The trust includes all commodities, received and accepted but not paid for and will include products derived from the goods. Once the trust comes into being, by operation of law, the suppliers rights are preserved are protected. It is now for the buyer to ensure that payment is made and any omission on the part of the buyer will not deprive the unpaid seller the price of the goods. The goods of the unpaid seller do not come into the ownership of the buyer until payment is made. Hence the goods do not become part of the assets of the buyer until payment is made. The buyer therefore cannot treat the goods as his own and create a security interest on them or sell them. In the event that the buyer does either of the two the unpaid seller has the right under the retention of title clause to claim the value of the goods as owner of the goods. This is especially so where the nature of the trade is such that the goods are purchased on credit and the seller requires some security before delivering the goods. Sellers of perishable commodities often suffer at the hands of the buyers who immediately utilize the goods but fail to make the payment leaving the unpaid seller with little or no hope of recovering payment. Hence the assumption that parties in a contract of sale for moveable items, agree impliedly on a retention of title structure will help to bridge the gap between the written law and the practical reality.

39. In some cases the original goods to which title belongs to the unpaid seller are no longer identifiable or the goods lose their original identity and the question that arises is the manner in which the retention of title clause is enlarged to cover the resulting products. In the case titled Aluminum Industries Vaassen B.V. v. Romalpa Aluminum Ltd. [1976] 1 WLR 676, the retention of title clause was interpreted to cover ownership rights in the new objects. In this case a Dutch exporter sold aluminum foil to an English company under a sales contract containing a retention of title clause. When it appeared that the English company was about to be placed under receivership, the Dutch company filed a petition to recover both the aluminum foil still in the buyer's possession and the proceeds from the sale of the foil. By virtue of the retention of title clause, the Dutch company succeeded on both counts. The court held that in order to give effect to the retention clause it must be construed as conferring on the English company a power to sell unmixed foil and at the same time imposing on them an obligation to account for proceeds of sale in favour of the Dutch company. The court was of the opinion that even though the English company sold the unmixed foil so far as the Dutch company was concerned, the foil was the Dutch company's property which the English company was selling as agents of the Dutch company, to whom they remain accountable. Consequently the court was of the opinion that the Dutch company was entitled to trace the proceeds of sale of the unmixed foil and recover them in priority to secured and unsecured creditors. The court emphasized upon the relationship between the parties which gave rise to an obligation to pay the Dutch company and held that the business purpose of the retention of title clause was to secure the Dutch company against risk of non-payment after they had parted with possession of the goods and since the price of the goods was verified and certified by the receiver, the value of the foil was ascertained traceable, whether or not those goods retained their identity after delivery. After this landmark judgment the retention of title clause is commonly referred to as the Romalpa clause. Following the Romalpa case a variety of retention of title clauses have developed in international trade. Enforcement of the more complex cases where goods change hands or no longer retain their original composition have led to an expanded understanding of the retention of title clause. The right of the unpaid seller is extended such that retention of title is applicable despite the fact that the goods were no longer identifiable or have lost their original identity to a new item. In the case Re Weldtech Equipment Ltd. (1991 BCC 16

(Eng. Ch. 1990), the enlarged retention of title clause was made applicable to the resale of goods supplied by the company. In the case Tatung (U.K) Ltd. v. Galex Telesure Ltd. (1989 BCC 325 (Eng. Q.B. 1988), the enlarged retention of title clause was made applicable to the sale proceeds even though the goods had lost their identity. In Associated Alloys Pty Limited v. CAN 001 452 106 PTY Limited (in Liquidation) [2000] HCA 25), High Court of Australia held that in the event that the buyer uses the goods of the seller then the buyer shall be liable from the proceeds of the goods to pay the unpaid seller even though the goods are totally converted goods. In all these cases the courts recognized that modern commercial practices required a shift from a basic retention of title clause to a more enlarged or expanded version of the same so as to ensure that the value of the goods are received by the seller.

40. In the cases before the Court the cane growers have delivered the sugarcane to the Brother Sugar Mills but have not received any payment for the sugarcane delivered. In the case of Brothers Sugar Mill delivery was made in 2014 and to date no payment has been made. In the other cases delivery was made in 2016-17 and the cane growers are still waiting for payment. The Sugar Mills on receipt of the sugarcane have utilized it, processed it and have sold bags of sugar. As per the record the Sugar Mills have obtained loans from the Banks to repay the cane growers and as security for these loans they have pledged the sugar bags with the Banks. However despite the same no payment has been made. The Sugar Mills have defaulted in their payment to the cane growers and in some cases with the Banks. It is important to note that the cane grower seeks recovery of the price of the sugarcane as owner of the sugarcane as the cane grower retains title in the sugarcane until payment is made and not as a creditor. Hence for the cane growers the cases before the Court seek enforcement of their right as owners of the sugarcane such that the real owners of the sugarcane assert their right of title against the pledge to the extent that the pledgee cannot take the property of the owners without their consent and knowledge and pledge it with the Banks. The enforcement of this right in no manner prejudices the rights of the secured creditor because the cane growers' sugarcane could not have been pledged with the Banks in the first case. The right of the Banks to recover as a secured creditor remains intact and is enforceable in accordance with law. However the rights of the cane grower as owner of the sugarcane are enforceable under the Act and the Rules which means its right to recover the price of the sugarcane will trump all other rights.

41. All the Sugar Mills before the Court admit and accept payments to the cane growers which have been verified by the Cane Commissioner under the supervision of the Court. The Sugar Mills have failed to pay the cane growers and despite the same expect the cane grower to keep delivering sugarcane in each crushing season. The Sugar Mill also entered into a financial relationship with the bank mortgaging its property and pledging all bags of sugar so that in the event of a default all money will go to the bank and the cane grower is left with nothing. The case of Brother Sugar Mills before the Court amplifies the plight of the cane grower. Sugarcane was sold in the year 2014 and since then not a penny has been paid to the cane grower. The sugar mill has closed and the Banks are in the process of recovering all its money from the sugar mill through the sale of all its securities which includes sale of the pledged bags of sugar. With respect to the other banks recovery suits have been filed and decreed in some cases against Brother Sugar Mills. Consequently the Banks will take all the money and the cane grower will have no chance of recovering any amounts from the sugar mill or its owners. It is precisely for this reason that Rule 14(2) of the Rules requires payment to be made within fifteen days' time and these fifteen days are to be construed as being an implied retention of title on the sugarcane which means that title will not pass on to the buyer being a condition attached to the sale of the sugarcane. In fact Rule 14(1) of the Rules facilitates Rule 14(2) as it provides that the occupier or purchasing agent shall provide adequate facilities to the satisfaction of the Cane Commissioner for the payment of the price of cane. In terms of this Rule in order to ensure payment the Cane Commissioner can require that the bags of sugar produced by the cane of a specific cane grower be stored separately so as to identify the specific bags of sugar produced by specific cane growers or to mark the bags for identification purposes. The Cane Commissioner can also order for regular inspections to ensure that the cane growers' bags are separate or marked. In this way the connection between the goods, the title and the purchase price remains clear cut. Title is retained by the cane grower and will not transfer until the sugar mill pays its dues. The result is that the cane grower is not left as an unsecured creditor and instead has the necessary security by virtue of the law to ensure payment is made for the sugarcane delivered.

42. Another important aspect of this case which cannot be ignored is the reasons for the creation of the pledge. The reasons clearly go to intent of the parties. In some of the cases before the Court (W.Ps. Nos.25932/16, 19515/16, 63883/17, 64911/17, 64254/17), the sanction letters issued by the Banks to the Sugar Mills clearly stipulate that the loan is being advanced to the Sugar Mills to make payments to the cane grower for the sugarcane purchased. So effectively the Sugar Mill requests for money from the Bank for a stated purpose. However, the cane growers were not paid and instead the Sugar Mills utilized the loan money elsewhere. Although the Banks deny any responsibility towards the manner in which the facilities are utilized, in the very least the sanction letters evidence the obligation of the Sugar Mills to pay the cane grower which obligation is recognized by the Banks and of which they have been put to notice. The Sugar Mills being cognizant of its obligation and borrows finance from the Bank to fulfill its obligation. The Bank approves the facility knowing that there is an obligation to pay the cane grower. Hence the right of the cane grower to receive payment is one which is neither denied nor disputed by the Banks or the Sugar Mills. The only issue for the Banks is with respect to the recovery of unpaid amounts from the pledged bags of sugar.

43. Pledge is defined in Section 172 of the Contract Act to be as follows:-

The bailment of goods as security for payment of debt or performance of a promise is called "pledge". The bailor is in this case called the "pawnor". The bailee is called the "pawnee".

The key ingredients of a pledge are bailment of goods and security for repayment of a debt. Bailment is defined in Section 148 of the Contract Act as follows:-

A "bailment" is the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose, upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them. The person delivering the goods is called the "bailor". The person to whom they are delivered is called "bailee".

Bailment requires delivery of goods for a purpose and the right to retain the goods until the purpose is achieved. Section 173 of the Contract Act provides that the pawnee may retain the goods pledged not only for payment of the debt but also for the interest of the debt and all necessary expenses incurred in respect of the possession or preservation of the goods. So the right of the pawnee is the delivery of goods which it can retain in its possession till the debt is paid. If the pawnor makes a default in payment of the debt, the pawnee can file a suit against the pawnor to recover his dues or else he can sell the pledged goods after giving the pawnor reasonable notice under Section 176 of the Contract Act. The right to sell the pledged goods arises only in the event of a default which means that the pawnee requires physical possession of the pledged goods if it is to be sold in the event of default. Reliance is placed on A.M. Burq and another v. Central Exchange Bank Ltd. and others (PLD 1966 Lahore 1). Hence the essential characteristic of the security interest of the pledgee is the right to possession of the goods and the right to sell the goods in case of default.

44. The Cane Commissioner took possession of the bags of sugar which as per the Bank were pledged with the Banks and lying in the control of the muqadum. However even this needs to be seen in the perspective of the Act and the Rules. The Banks have taken bags of white refined sugar as pledged security. The Banks require the Sugar Mills to maintain the stock value of the pledge so as to ensure that the security is intact. As per the regular stock reports filed with the Banks the quantity of the bags of sugar keeps fluctuating meaning that the bags of sugar are sold by the Sugar Mills with an effort to retain as close as possible to the secured amount and the Banks ensures that the value of its pledged stock is retained. Essentially as per market practice, the actual delivery of goods is not entrusted to the Bank and only constructive possession of the pledged goods is handed over. In this way the pledger can utilize the pledged goods in the ordinary course of business. Examples of such forms of pledge include the pledge of raw material and stock in trade where the goods cannot be kept in their original form for long and have to be consumed by the pledger in the normal course of business. Consequently there are fluctuations in the inventory which is constantly replenished by the pledgee. Hence the character of the pledge is not lost merely because of the fact that actual physical possession is not with the pledger or because the pledgee consumes the pledged goods. Reliance is placed on Messrs World Trans Logistics and others v. Silk Bank Limited and others (2016 SCMR 800). The stock reports filed in the Banks cases, reflect that bags of sugar retained by the Banks under the pledge at the time of the pledge have not stayed in the physical custody of the Banks since. In fact the letters of pledge allow usage of the stock within an 18% margin. The Sugar Mills have been utilizing the bags of sugar while at the same time trying to retain the stock of the pledged bags of sugar. This goes to show that in normal course of business the character of the pledge remains intact at all times even if the stock position with respect to the bags of sugar are not reflective of the actual quantity pledged with the Banks. The relevance of this point is only to emphasize that the security interest of the Banks so far as the pledge is concerned does not diminish or deplete if the stock position is not maintained by the Sugar Mills. It also emphasizes the point that the Bank has the right to recover its debt at the time of default and in order to secure that right it is the objective of the Banks that the pledged security is maintained with the Sugar Mills. Therefore whether or not the Banks have actual physical possession of the pledged bags of sugar will in no manner infringe upon its rights as a secured creditor. Furthermore in the cases where the Sugar Mills are in default of their financial obligations to the Banks, recovery suits have been filed and in one case decreed. In these cases the Banks are before the court of competent jurisdiction which has the power to recover amounts secured by way of the pledge. This means that for the satisfaction of the decree by sale of pledged bags of sugar will be seen by the Court where the cases are pending. In the cases where there is no default the objective of the Bank is simply to retain possession of the bags so as to protect its security interest. In the event that the stock position is depleted the Bank can require the Sugar Mills to replenish the stocks to maintain its security. Hence no prejudice is caused to them.

45. Having found that the cane growers have the right to claim the value of the sugarcane delivered to the Sugar Mills, the right of the cane growers as the owner of the sugarcane is a superior right to all other rights, on the basis of which the cane grower is entitled to recover the value of the sugarcane from the sale of the bags of sugar. The security interests of the Banks remain intact, however the cane growers debt must be paid as provided under the Act and the Sugar Mills cannot shy away from this obligation by seeking protection of the bags of sugar for the benefit of the Bank. The cane growers before the Court have fulfilled their statutory obligations and delivered the sugarcane to the Sugar Mills yet the Sugar Mills have not fulfilled their obligation to pay the price of the sugarcane that was delivered to it. This Court cannot interpret the intent of the Act and the Rules so as to give the Sugar Mills an undue advantage over the cane growers, especially since the Act does not allow the sugar mill to take advantage of the cane grower and mandates the sugar mill to make payment of the sugarcane delivered. Therefore in order to ensure that the purpose of the Act is upheld, it is necessary to ensure that the cane grower is paid the value of the sugarcane. In the event that the Court does not maintain and enforce the purpose of the law and the cane growers are not paid, the purpose of the law will be defeated.

46. It is important to note that in the case of Brother Sugar Mills (W.P. No.4562/2016), the Court vide order dated 24.6.2016 sealed the premises to secure the bags of sugar from the illegal removal of the bags by the mill owners. On 12.7.2016 the Court ordered that the bags of sugar be sold and the amounts deposited in Court. These orders were made in the presence of the parties with the consent of the Banks, Mill Management and cane growers to secure the value of the bags of sugar, until this case was finally decided. On 27.3.2018 this Court was informed that in the Execution Application No.92313/2017, an application under Order XXI, Rule 52 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (C.M. No.1/2017) was moved by Al-Baraka Bank (Pakistan) Limited on 6.12.2017 for the attachment of the property in the custody of the Court in W.P. No.4562/2016. The Court vide its order dated 19.3.2018 attached these amounts subject to the question of title or priority arising between the Bank and any other person subject matter of the petitions before the Court. Needless to say that order dated 19.3.2018 passed in banking jurisdiction cannot be made applicable to the proceedings of this Court in constitutional jurisdiction, especially with respect to the amounts in the custody of this Court from the sale of the bags of sugar. However the order of attachment itself reflects that the attachment is subject to decision of this Court with respect to title and priority of the amounts attached.

47. Therefore in view of the aforesaid, this Court holds that:

i) The Cane Commissioner is the competent authority under the Act and the Rules to recover all dues of the cane growers, that is specifically to recover the price of the sugarcane delivered to the Sugar Mills;

ii) The cane growers are entitled to the recovery of the value of the sugarcane delivered to the Sugar Mills under the Act and the Rules by sale of the bags of sugar lying in the Sugar Mills;

iii) In this regard, the rights of the Banks with respect to their pledged security is not prejudiced by the acts of the Cane Commissioner as they have adequate remedy available to them for the recovery of their dues as well as for the recovery of the bags of sugar pledged by the Sugar Mills, from the court of competent jurisdiction;

iv) Consequently all amounts lying with the Deputy Registrar (Judicial) of this Court in W.P. No.4562/2016 is to be released to the Cane Commissioner for disbursement to all the cane growers of Brother Sugar Mill as per the verified CPRs;

v) Furthermore the Cane Commissioner shall immediately exercise powers under Section 6(2) of the Act to recover the dues of the cane growers with respect to Pattoki Sugar Mill and Darya Khan Sugar Mill;

iv) Accordingly the Writ Petitions as detailed in Schedule A, filed by the cane growers are allowed and the Writ Petitions as detailed in Schedule B filed by the Banks are dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK J.--- This single judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant petition as well as connected WP Nos.154849 and 160181 of 2018 as common questions of law and facts are involved in these petitions.

2. The Petitioners in all the petitioners are members of the Cooperative Model Town Society ("Society") and some have served on the Managing Committee ("M.C.") of the Society. A dispute has arisen between the Petitioners and the Society with reference to the upcoming 2018 elections for the MC of the Society. In the instant case, objection was raised by Respondent No.6 before the Election Sub-Committee ("ESC") with respect to the membership of the Petitioners. The ESC heard the objection and passed order dated 24.01.2018 whereby the names of the Petitioners were directed to be deleted from the voter list. The reason given in the order was that the Petitioners were not the original allottees of the settlement department and are subsequent purchasers, hence, their membership is hit by clause 13 (i) and (ii) of the Bye Laws of the Cooperative Model Town Society (1962) Limited, Lahore ("the Byelaws"), meaning thereby that they cannot be members of the Society and their names were directed to be deleted from the voters list of the Society. The Petitioners filed a revision petition before the Secretary Cooperative, who passed order dated 25.01.2018 suspending the order of ESC dated 24.01.2018. Against the order of 25.01.2018 Respondent No.6, Arif Majeed filed WP No.154849/2018 on the ground that the Secretary Cooperative did not have jurisdiction as an appeal against the order of ESC lies before the Registrar Cooperative and not before the Secretary Cooperative. The order of 25.01.2018 was suspended by this Court vide order dated 29.01.2018 passed in WP No.154849/2018. The Petitioners in the instant petition withdrew the revision petition filed before the Secretary Cooperative and filed a petition under Section 64-A of the Cooperative Societies Act, 1925 ("Act") before the Registrar Cooperative, who vide order dated 30.01.2108 declined to interfere in the matter on account of the pendency of the present petitions before this Court. The said order was impugned before the Secretary Cooperative on the same day who also declined to interfere on the same ground vide order dated 30.01.2018. Both these orders of 24.01.2018 and 30.01.2018 have been impugned in the instant petition along with the order dated 24.01.2018 of ESC.

3. The Petitioner in WP No.154849/2018 is a member of the society, who is aggrieved by the participation of the Petitioners of WP No.156887/2018 in the upcoming election on the ground that they do not qualify as members of the Society and therefore, cannot contest the election. The Petitioner, Arif Majeed filed WP No.154849/2018 challenging the order of 25.01.2018 passed by the Secretary Cooperative, however, subsequently since the revision petition pending before the Secretary Cooperative was withdrawn as such the prayer to the extent of the impugned order has become infructuous. The Petitioner also questions the participation of Respondents Nos.6 and 7 (Petitioners in WP No.156887/2018) in the election.

4. The Petitioners of WP No.160181/2018 are members of the Society, who have actively taken part in the affairs of the Society. They are desirous to contest the upcoming election of the Society. However, their names have also been deleted from the voters list by ESC on the basis of some objections. They are aggrieved by orders dated 24.01.2018 and 30.01.2018 passed by Respondents Nos.1 to 3 whereby the names of the Petitioners were directed to be deleted from the voters list.

5. Counsel for the Petitioners argued that the order of ESC failed to take into consideration the fact that both the Petitioners are members of the Society since long and that they have contested and participated in the previous elections for the Managing Committee. That the ESC does not have jurisdiction to terminate or expel any member of the Society as a member of the Society enjoys substantive rights which cannot be adjudicated upon by the ESC. Further that the election schedule gives no time to a member whose name has been deleted to file an appeal before the Registrar and have decided the matter before the nomination process commences.

6. Counsel for Respondent No.6 argued that ESC has jurisdiction in the matter and in terms of the election rules the ESC hears all objections against the voters list and passes a final order making all additions and corrections to the electoral rolls. Learned counsel has placed on record the election schedule and the notifications appointing the ESC. Against the order of the ESC the right of appeal lies before the Registrar Cooperative which is the proper forum to hear the matter. Both counsel in WP No.160181/2018 and WP No.154849/2018 prayed that the matter be referred to the Registrar Cooperative for a decision on merits.

7. Convener ESC present in Court stated that as per his understanding the ESC passed the orders of deletion as per its jurisdiction and that it was competent to delete the names of members who do not qualify to be members.

8. Heard and record perused. The basic issue in these petitions is the role of the ESC when considering objections against the voters list. The relevant rules are the Election Rules of the Cooperative Model Town Society. In terms of the Election Rules preliminary list of members is prepared blockwise, sixty days before the date on which the election is scheduled to be held. A Sub-Committee consisting of the President and two members is appointed by the Managing Committee who will hear and pass orders on the objections raised on the voting list within ten days of the last date fixed for filing objections. After the objections are filed and finally disposed of by the ESC, the list of additions and corrections of the electoral rolls is published and a final voter list is made available. In terms of the election schedule issued by the ESC, the last date for filing objections against the voter list was 23.01.2018, which were to be decided within two days and the final voters list was displayed on 27.01.2018. In terms of the Election Rules the ESC hears objections on the voters list for the purposes of addition and correction in the voters list. Basically this entails a verification process wherein the ESC has to finalize the voters list on the basis of which the election can take place. The voters list provides for the names of the members and the relevant block number, the membership number, the CNIC number and a comment as to whether the member is a defaulter. This information on the list has to be verified and confirmed by the ESC and additions and corrections are made to the information provided. Therefore, the scope of work of the ESC so far as hearing objections on the voters list is limited to verification of the contents of the list to ensure that every name on the list is that of a member from the given blocks. The ESC can pass orders to the extent that it can make corrections and additions to the list to remove duplications, correct mistakes in the details given and delete the name of persons who have died. The ESC however cannot pass orders with respect to the qualification and eligibility of a member and cannot pass orders on whether a person is entitled to be a member. Membership and the rights attached thereto are controlled by the Byelaws of the Society as well as by the Act. In terms of the Byelaws of the Society the process to make members is provided under Byelaws Nos.1 to 18. Byelaw No.19 provides for the termination of membership and Byelaw No.20 provides for the expulsion of a member. So far as expulsion of a member is concerned, in terms of Byelaw No.20 (1) a member may be expelled from membership by a vote of not less than two-third of the members present which took place in general meeting of the Society. Therefore, the power of expulsion of any member as per Byelaw No.20 lies with the General Body of the Society. In terms of Section 17 (b) of the Act, the Registrar can expel a member, who is a defaulter of the dues of the Society. Hence to the extent of expulsion of members, all parties before the Court agree that it can only be done through a meeting of the General Body or in terms of Section 17 (b) of the Act.

9. Respondent No.6 and the Chairman of the ESC relied upon Byelaw No.19 (c) to urge the point that ESC can terminate membership in terms of Byelaw No.19. However this argument is misconceived and against the spirit of the Act and Election Rules. A bare reading of Rules (iv), (v) and (vi) of the Election Rules makes it clear that ESC can only make additions and corrections in the voters list. The ESC cannot adjudicate upon the qualifications of a member and order to terminate the membership. In the cases before the Court the ESC passed orders on objections filed against the voters list (WPs Nos.156887 and 160181 of 2018) wherein it was stated that the Petitioners are not qualified to be members of the Society in terms of Byelaw No.13 (2) of the Society. In order to determine whether the Petitioners stand terminated from their membership consequent to the qualification provided in Byelaw No.13(2) of the Society, the matter has to be placed before the General Body/Managing Committee which has to hear the matter and pass an order whereafter right of appeal will be available to such a person before the Registrar Cooperative.

10. It is noted that in terms of the election schedule the last date for filing objections was 23.01.2018 and the objections had to be decided within two days. During this time in a situation such as in the instant petition where an order has been passed deleting the names of the Petitioners from the voter list because they are not qualified to be the members, leaves the Petitioners remediless as they are unable to appeal the order of the ESC within the required time as per the election schedule. Hence the Petitioner came to this Court seeking interference in the matter.

11. In view of what has been stated above, WPs Nos.156877 and 160181 of 2018 are accepted and the order dated 24.01.2018 and 30.01.2018 passed by ESC are set aside. The Petitioners may proceed with the nomination process and participate in the election for the Managing Committee of the Society. So far as WP No.154849/2018 is concerned, the same is dismissed.

ORDER

Chief Secretary, Government of Punjab through this ICA has impugned judgment dated 08.05.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.11181/2013.

2. The case of the Appellant is that Respondent No.1 was a retired government servant and after his retirement his daughter fell ill and required her liver transplant. A special medical board recommended her treatment abroad and referred the matter to the Appellant for further instructions. Respondent No.1 took his daughter to Indraprastha Apollo Hospital Delhi, India where she was given a liver transplant and regained her health. Respondent No.1 in terms of the West Pakistan Government Servants (Medical Attendance) Rules, 1959 ("Rules") applied for reimbursement of the medical expenses incurred for the liver transplant. The total expenditures came to Rs.4,744,760/- out of which the Appellant reimbursed Rs.2,000,000/-. Respondent No.1 moved a representation seeking the balance amount of Rs.2,744,760/- which remained outstanding and should be reimbursed to him. The Appellant refused reimbursement of the said claim vide order dated 14.01.2013 stating that Rs.2,000,000/- was granted to Respondent No.1 as financial assistance on compassionate grounds which was otherwise not allowed. Further that reimbursement of medical charges for treatment abroad was not permissible under the Rules. Respondent No.1 challenged the said order in W.P. No.11181/2013 alleging discrimination pointing out that others in similar position, especially Mr. Jahanzeb Burki, a retired Inspector General of Police, Punjab who was reimbursed an amount of Rs.7.140 million for his medical treatment in Texas, USA, hence the Respondent No. 1 claimed entitled to reimbursement. The learned Single Judge decided the case on the grounds of discrimination while holding that several persons were granted reimbursement of medical expenses including Mr. Jahanzeb Burki, hence Respondent No.1 is also entitled to reimbursement of medical expenses for the treatment of his daughter.

3. Learned Law Officer argued that there are ten examples cited in the impugned judgment, however all ten persons were treated in Pakistan, hence their case is distinguishable. So far as the case of Mr. Jahanzeb Burki is concerned he was granted full reimbursement of his medical treatment in the USA as it was for his own treatment being a high ranking officer owing his performance which made it necessary to reimburse him for his treatment.

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at length and find no illegality in the impugned order. Admittedly Mr. Jahanzeb Burki was granted full reimbursement of the medical expenses incurred in the USA despite the ban imposed on reimbursement of medical expenses since 1997. The Rules provide for relaxation in cases of special hardship and in terms of the Policy for Treatment Abroad of Punjab Civil Servants dated 7.9.1986 ("Policy") if a patient is suffering from a disease or disability for which no treatment is available in Pakistan then he is entitled to treatment abroad and reimbursement as per Rules. In this case, a special medical board was constituted to examine the case of the daughter of Respondent No.1. In terms of its report dated 17.3.2010 the patient was in dire need of liver transplant, which had to be carried out immediately and the report categorically stated that the liver transplant was not available anywhere in Pakistan. Therefore, Respondent No.1 followed the process as provided under the Rules, got necessary approval and took his daughter to a hospital in India for immediate treatment.

5. On the ground of discrimination admittedly Mr. Jahanzeb Burki was reimbursed the full amount for treatment abroad. The Appellant cannot formulate its own criteria stating that a person of a higher rank whose performance was considered good was more deserving than someone of lower rank. The criteria would be the genuineness of the medical assistance required and the fulfillment of the criteria given in the Rules and the policy. The governing Rules are West Pakistan Government Servants (Medical Attendance) Rules, 1959 which allow treatment to family members, which includes son and daughter of a government servant. The treatment was certified as not being available in Pakistan as per the special medical board. We note that in fact the policy specifically prohibits treatment in the USA in view of higher value of the dollar than that of Pakistani Rupee and the expenses that could be incurred in the USA. Notwithstanding the same, Mr. Jahanzeb Burki was treated in USA and was reimbursed the full amount.

6. Under the circumstances, we find the impugned order well reasoned, hence the instant appeal is dismissed and impugned order dated 08.05.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.11181/2013 is maintained.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioners have laid challenge to illegal method of procurement in a non-competitive manner undertaken by the Respondent Punjab Curriculum and Textbook Board, Lahore ("PCTB") by allocation of work order for printing of textbooks.

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Petitioners are all publishers engaged in the business of publishing and printing textbooks and are duly registered with the Respondent PCTB. For the purposes of printing and publishing textbooks for government schools, the Respondents invited tenders. For the purposes of private schools the publishing and printing work is allocated among the publishers and printers on the basis of their strength and capacity. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that this is an arbitrary practice and that the Respondents are obligated to follow the Punjab Procurement Regulatory Authority Act, 2009 ("Act") and the Punjab "Procurement Rules, 2014 ("Rules"). Learned counsel further argued that the Respondents are procuring agents who are procuring services from the Petitioners for the purposes of printing and publishing textbooks for private schools, hence they are obligated to follow the procedure laid down in the Act and the Rules. Learned counsel further argued that this is a discriminatory practice which is against the nouns of fairness and transparency and defies the objective of public procurement to bring value for money.

3. Report and para wise comments have been filed by Respondents Nos. 2 and 3. Learned counsel for the stated Respondents submits that the Petitioner are all registered publishers with the stated Respondents. They entered into contracts with the Respondents for the purposes of printing and publishing textbooks for private schools. Learned counsel argued that the price and the quantum of textbooks that are to be printed and published is negotiated with the Petitioners and as such there is no arbitrary practice involved. Learned counsel also explained that all printers and publishers are registered with the Respondents based on their experience and capacity and work is allocated through balloting. The parties negotiate the terms of their contracts. The Petitioners before the Court have entered into contracts with the Respondents over the years including this year. For the purposes of government schools the Act and Rules are followed as the service of printing and publishing has to be procured in order to give free distribution of textbooks. For the purposes of private schools contracts are entered into with the candidates on the basis of negotiated price and negotiated quantum for printing and publication as no public procurement is involved. That the entire method of allocation is done with due care and diligence. Further that the process for the purposes of private schools is not financed from the Provincial Consolidated Fund nor is anything purchased, acquired or retained from the public exchequer on the basis of which the Act and the Rules must be followed.

Learned Law Officer supported the arguments made by learned counsel for Respondents Nos.2 and 3.

5. Heard and record perused.

6. After hearing the parties, it appears that the Petitioners' relationship with the Respondent PCTB is contractual in nature as the quantum and price is negotiated before settling the terms for providing textbooks for private schools. Furthermore as per the arguments made by the counsel for Respondent PCTB and the learned Law Officer for the purposes of government schools, the Act and the Rules are followed as public provision is involved. However, for the purposes of private schools, the Act and the Rules are not followed because there is no public procurement involved as the services are not financed wholly or partly out of the public fund. In terms of Section 2(n) of the Act, public procurement means acquisition of goods, services or rendering of works financed wholly or partly out of the Public Fund, unless excluded by the Government. In this case, clearly there is a contractual relationship in which the Petitioners negotiate the terms and conditions at which they will print and publish the textbooks for the private schools. Since there is no element of public procurement involved, there is no obligation on the part of the Respondents to call for public procurement for the purposes of private schools textbooks.

7. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J:--- This judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant I.C.A. along with connected I.C.As. Nos.729/2013, 762/2013, 730/2013 and 766/2013 as all appeals impugn the same order dated 20.5.2013 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.902/2013 along with connected petitions.

2. The Appellants before the Court are dental surgeons (BDS) who were appointed on different dates and have been working in different government hospitals since 2009 as ad-hoc appointees. At the time when the writ petitions were filed in 2013 the Appellants applied for regularization against 110 seats for which their cases were considered by the Punjab Public Service Commission ("PPSC"). Although the Appellants qualified, however being lower in merit, they were not selected against the 110 seats. The grievance of the Appellants before the learned Single Judge was that they were entitled to be regularized since they had been working on ad hoc basis for several years as dental surgeons; that they qualified the process undertaken by the PPSC for the purposes of filling up the vacancies against permanent seats and that they were discriminated against. The learned Single Judge dismissed the writ petitions on the ground that there is no vested right of the Petitioners to be regularized and that the appointment letters of the petitioners unequivocally states that they would compete with other candidates on open merit for regularization against the said post.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellants argued that the learned Single Judge failed to consider the decisions of the Superior Courts in identical cases being Ch. Iftikhar Ahmad v. Chief Secretary Punjab and others (2012 PLC (C.S.) 1470) and Chief Secretary, Government of Punjab and others v. Ch. Iftikhar Ahmad (2013 SCMR 392). That the learned Single Judge also did not appreciate that a clear case of discrimination was made out particularly when the Appellants provided Notification dated 17.12.2009 issued by the Health Department whereby ad hoc Hospital Pharmacists (BS-17) were regularized by taking the posts out of the purview of the PPSC under Rule 5 of the Punjab Public Service Commission (Functions) Rules, 1978 and in relaxation of Rules 4, 16, 17 (to the extent of upper age limit) of the Punjab Civil Servants (Appointment and Conditions of Service) Rules, 1974. Similarly Notification dated 3.8.2009 issued by the Health Department for the post of Specialist Doctors (BS-18) and Notification dated 6.5.2009 issued by the Health Department for the posts of Medical Officers/Women Medical Officers/Registrars/Assistant Anesthetists/Demonstrators/Blood Transfusion Officers (BS-17) were relied upon amongst other notifications to establish discrimination. Learned counsel argued that the Appellants have been working as dental surgeons for a considerable number of years and that they qualified the selection process but were not regularized as they were lower in merit. Learned counsel further argued that the selection process of the PPSC was simply a short interview in which a few questions were asked hence the marking process was arbitrary with no competitive or qualitative formula for selecting deserving candidates.

4. On behalf of Respondents Nos.1, 2 and 3 learned Law Officer argued that the Appellants were employed on ad hoc basis as a stop gap arrangement until the regular seats were filled up. In terms of the appointment letters the ad hoc appointment will not confer any right for regular appointment to the same post nor will the service count towards seniority. For the purposes of regular appointment, ad hoc employees had to compete with other candidates as per the procedure set out by the PPSC. Learned Law Officer further argued that the Appellants accepted the terms and conditions of their ad hoc appointments and were very well aware of the fact that they had to compete with others for the regular posts, hence their contention that they qualified but were lower in merit is without any justification. Further argued that the Appellants all appeared before the PPSC and failed to come within the ambit of 110 candidates on merit. So far as the allegations of discrimination are concerned, learned Law Officer submitted that no post for dental surgeon has been filled up without recourse to the PPSC. Therefore, the Appellants are not entitled to the relief claimed and the impugned order should be upheld. Learned Law Officer has relied upon Dr. Anwar Ali Sahto and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2002 SC 101), Muhammad Younus Aarin v. Province of Sindh (2007 SCMR 134), Muhammad Bilal Khan v. Azad Government of the State of Jammu and Kashmir (2010 PLC (C.S) 1060), Ejaz Majeed Bhatti and 5 others v. Punjab Public Service Commission (2011 PLC (C.S) 1049), Ameer Solangi and others v. WAPDA and others (2016 SCMR 46), Government of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa v. Ihsan Ullah and others (2017 SCMR 1201) and Abdul Ghaffar and others v. The President National Bank of Pakistan and others (2018 SCMR 157) in support of his contentions.

5. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at length and have gone through the record. It is an admitted fact that the Appellants were appointed on ad hoc basis as a stop gap arrangement until the arrival of regular incumbents. It is also an admitted fact that their appointments were extended from time to time and that the Appellants continued to work as ad hoc employees with the Respondent Department without any complaint or disruption. It is also not in dispute that the Appellants appeared before the PPSC after applications were invited for making regular recruitment against 110 posts of dental surgeons. The issue before the Court is that the Appellants did not fall within the selected 110 candidates as their merit was lower. Learned counsel for the Appellants argued the case on the strength of Dr. Naveeda Tufail and 72 others v. Government of Punjab and others (2003 SCMR 291) in which it was held that the benefit of regularization shall be given to candidates who fulfill the minimum criteria of appointment established in the tests administered by the PPSC and that cases of ad hoc employees shall not be tagged with direct recruits and shall be treated separately by the PPSC. In the cases before us the PPSC carried out a simple interview of all Applicants on the basis of which the merit list was prepared. Learned Law Officer admitted that a few questions were asked on the basis of which marks were allocated and a merit list was prepared. However, he could not identify the criteria on which the selection was made. Interestingly while the experience of the Appellants was before the PPSC, given that they had been working on ad hoc basis, they were not given any credit or benefit of the same. In this regard we are of the opinion that the interview process was totally subjective based on the personal opinion of the interview committee with no objective criteria. We further note that where a test is competitive in nature, with a large number of applicants, the criteria for determining merit must be based on measurable data so as to ensure transparency and fairness. In this context even through the interview process marks must be allocated on an objective criteria which enables the interview committee to evaluate the candidate in a fair and transparent manner. In this case a few general questions were asked with no objective criteria whatsoever on the basis of which the ad hoc employees were conveniently made lower in merit.

6. With respect to the Appellants' grievance on discrimination, learned Law Officer did not deny the Notifications relied upon. The only argument raised before us was that no dental surgeon was appointed without recourse to the PPSC. There cannot be two different standards for filling up similar posts. There is no explanation or justification as to why the posts of Hospital Pharmacists (BS-17), Specialist Doctors (BS-18) and Medical Officers/Women Medical Officers/Registrars/ Assistant Anesthetists/ Demonstrators/ Blood Transfusion Officers (BS-17) among others have been filled up without recourse to the PPSC. Yet at the same time, similar posts as of the Appellants required the PPSC to interview the candidates. Hence a clear case of discrimination is made out. In this case the Appellants are not seeking regularization as of right. They followed the process carried out by the PPSC but were not regularized because they were lower in merit. We note that public functionaries must act within the four corners of law and must not discriminate in their decision making process. They must be consistent in their decisions in similar circumstances and if there is deviation there must be plausible justification for the same. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan has repeatedly held that the government is not supposed to discriminate between the citizens and its functionaries cannot be allowed to exercise discretion at their whims, sweet will or as they please rather they are bound to act fairly justly and evenly. Reliance is placed on Nizamuddin and another v. Civil Aviation Authority and 2 others (1999 SCMR 467).

7. With reference to the question of regularization, the learned Law Officer has relied on several cases to urge that the Appellants cannot be regularized as there is no vested right. In a recent judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan dated 1.3.2017 passed in Civil Petitions Nos.833 to 840 and 858-L of 2013, the regularization of Pharmacists (BS-17) was considered and the august Supreme Court of Pakistan directed for the regularizations of the Pharmacists as they had successfully qualified the process undertaken by the PPSC while taking into consideration the factum of discrimination with other employees of the health department who were regularized by taking the post out of the purview of the PPSC. The facts are similar to the instant appeals before us. In another judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan dated 8.12.2017 passed in Civil Petitions Nos.409-K to 414-K of 2017 the process of regularization was also upheld for similar reasons. We have also gone through the judgments relied upon by the learned Law Officer being 2016 SCMR 46 (supra) and 2017 SCMR 1201 (supra). These cases are distinguishable from the cases before us because in the cases before us the Appellants were appointed on ad hoc basis against permanent seats whereas in the cases relied upon the posts were project posts being temporary in nature and with the completion or abandonment of the project there was no posts against which those candidates could have been regularized. Hence the reliance on the aforementioned two cases does not help the case of the Respondents. During the course of hearing learned Law Officer informed us that the 110 seats were filled up during the pendency of the appeals and currently the process of filling up 320 seats has been advertised for which the interview process is underway. However, he admitted that the direction given in the 2003 SCMR 291 (supra) has not been made applicable to the present recruitment process which is underway. Therefore, we are of the opinion that the Respondents being obligated to follow the clear cut direction given by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2003 SCMR 291 (supra) must separately consider the case of the Appellants for the purposes of recruitment.

8. Under the circumstances, all these appeals are allowed and the impugned order dated 20.5.2013 passed by the learned Single Judge is set aside and the Respondents are directed to regularize the services of the Appellants for the posts of dental surgeons.
ZC/Z-6/L Appeals allowed.

----Ss. 60(2), 110(2), 137(1)---Constitution of Pakistan, Arts. 62, 63, 218---Nomination forms to be submitted by candidates for the General Election, 2018---Form A (Nomination form for election to an Assembly or the Senate) and Form B (Statement of assets and liabilities) ['Impugned Forms']---Lack of disclosure and information in Impugned Forms preventing voters from ascertaining necessary information about candidates---Contention of petitioner that Impugned Forms lacked sufficient information and omitted mandatory declarations required under

Arts. 62 & 63 of the Constitution as well as under the law; that the lack of information about candidates in the Impugned Forms with respect to their educational qualification, income tax and agriculture tax payments, dual nationality, pending criminal cases, contribution and expenditures undertaken during the election campaign, would impede the voter from getting an idea about the credibility, bona fides, honesty and truthfulness of the candidate---Validity---

Impugned Forms did not contain certain information and declarations that were a part of the nomination forms for the General Elections, 2013 including educational qualifications of the candidate, current occupation/ job/profession/business of the candidate, dual nationality, National Tax Number/Income tax returns/ and payment of income tax, agriculture tax returns and payment of agriculture tax, criminal record, assets and liabilities of dependents, declaration pertaining to election expenses, declaration pertaining to any default in loan or government dues by dependents, declaration that the candidate would abide by the code of conduct issued by Election Commission---Supreme Court over the years had developed jurisprudence with reference to the qualification and disqualification of members of Parliament and Provincial Assemblies and declared most of said information as mandatory for the purposes of disclosure and declarations in the election nomination forms---Such information and its disclosure were part of the law and required compliance for the purposes of inclusion in the nomination forms---Lack of disclosure and information in the Impugned Forms essentially meant that a voter would not have the required information on the basis of which an informed decision could be made---To make an informed decision voters required basic information about a candidate which included information about educational qualifications, profession and/or business/jobs held, travel abroad---Voters also required information to establish the credibility of a candidate meaning thereby information about dual nationality, income tax paid, agriculture tax paid, loan default, government due defaults, criminal record and information of assets and liabilities---Finally the third set of information required was information which enabled a voter to assess the track record of the candidate, in terms of what he had done, especially if he or she had served as Member Parliament or Senate, hence information such as major contributions made, issues raised, and positions taken by the candidate over the years was relevant for the voter---Furthermore, for the purposes of raising objections and scrutinizing the nomination forms, the lack of information and declaration essentially eroded the constitutional mandate and the whole purpose of scrutiny was diluted---Requirement of Art. 218 of the Constitution, casting a duty on the Election Commission to organize and conduct honest, just and fair elections as per law, included the duty to ensure that all necessary and required information, disclosure and declarations were made by a candidate---Election Commission was responsible to ensure that a voter was able to make an informed decision and that the nomination forms achieved such objective---High Court declared that the Impugned Forms did not provide for mandatory information and declarations as required by the Constitution and the law and, therefore, the Election Commission was directed to ensure that all mandatory information and declarations were included in the Impugned Forms --- Constitutional petition was disposed accordingly.

AYESHA A. MALIK J.---The instant Petition along with W.Ps. Nos.215470/18 and 177513/18 have been filed in public interest to safeguard the constitutional as well as statutory rights of the citizens of Pakistan with reference to general elections.

2. The Petitioners have challenged the vires of Form A and Form B ("Impugned Forms") appended with the Election Act, 2017 ("Act") being the nomination form for participation in the election to an assembly and the statement of assets and liabilities under the Act on the ground that the Impugned Forms were drafted by Parliament who is not competent to enact the same as the competent authority is Respondent No.3, Election Commission of Pakistan ("ECP"). In this regard, reliance is placed on the case cited as Workers' Party Pakistan through Akhtar Hussain, Advocate, General Secretary and 6 others v. Federation of Pakistan and 2 others (PLD 2012 SC 681). Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the conduct of elections is governed under Articles 213 to 226 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"). The sole responsibility to organize and conduct elections and to make all arrangements as are necessary so as to ensure honest, just and fair elections is of the ECP. Articles 218 and 219 of the Constitution enumerates the duties of the ECP and this Article has been interpreted in the case cited at PLD 2012 SC 681 (supra) such that Parliament cannot abridge the powers of the ECP and that the ECP has exclusive powers to conduct the elections. Learned counsel further argued that in terms of the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, drafting of nomination forms falls within the ambit of the ECP and it no longer requires the assent of the President of Pakistan. Learned counsel also argued that historically in all elections carried out in Pakistan, the ECP has made the nomination forms and this is the first time that Parliament has taken it upon itself to draft the nomination forms. In this regard, Mr. Saad Rasool, Advocate argued that Article 222 of the Constitution provides for the law making power of Parliament with reference to election matters. In terms of the stated Article, Parliament can make laws for the purposes of elections, however the said Article is subject to the Constitution and in terms of the proviso to the Article, no such law shall have the effect of taking away or abridging any power of the ECP. Hence it is his case that the Parliament cannot draft the nomination forms as it falls within the exclusive mandate of the ECP. Reliance is placed on Election Commission of Pakistan through its Secretary v. Javaid Hashmi and others (PLD 1989 SC 396), PLD 2012 SC 681 (supra) and Workers' Party Pakistan through General Secretary and 6 others v. Federation of Pakistan and 2 others (PLD 2013 SC 406). Mr. Muhammad Asif, Advocate argued that the nomination forms must include information and details of income tax paid, citizenship of any other country, criminal record and the assets and liabilities of all dependents of the candidate. He argued that information in the nomination forms should be maximized for the sake of transparency and democracy and to encourage informed decision making by the voter. Hence collectively the Petitioners pray that the Impugned Forms be declared unconstitutional for being in violation of Articles 218, 219 and 222 of the Constitution and for being an infringement on the constitutional authority of the ECP.

3. The second challenge to the Impugned Forms is with respect to the lack of sufficient information and for omitting mandatory declarations required under Articles 62 and 63 of the Constitution as well as under the law and as per the dicta of the superior courts of Pakistan. Learned counsel argued that the Impugned Forms fail to provide for mandatory declarations as provided in Article 63 of the Constitution with specific reference to Articles 63(i)(n) and 63(i)(o) of the Constitution wherein the declaration includes the disclosure of the liabilities of the candidate, his spouse and his dependents. Mr. Saad Rasool argued that the Constitution specifically states that the declarations will be made with reference to dependents whereas under the Act, Sections 60, 110 and 137 and the Impugned Forms specifically uses the term dependent children. Consequently the requirement of the Constitution for declaring liabilities with reference to dependents has been done away with by reducing the declaration to the extent of dependent children. Learned counsel also raised an objection on the lack of information with respect to the educational qualification, income tax and agriculture tax payments, dual nationality and information as to whether any criminal offences are pending against a candidate or were pending against a candidate. He argued that the contribution and expenditures undertaken by the candidate during the election campaign also requires a declaration which is missing in the Impugned Forms. Learned counsel argued that these disclosures and information are crucial for demonstrating the legitimacy and bona fides of a candidate, his credibility, his economic resources and also reflects on the honesty and truthfulness of the candidate. Reliance is placed on Rai Hassan Nawaz v. Haji Muhammad Ayub and others (PLD 2017 SC 70). Learned counsel further argued that family business and resources, payment of taxes, educational qualifications, dual nationality are all vital and basic information which every voter has a right to obtain in order to enable him to decide how to cast his vote. Furthermore he stated that the declarations in the Impugned Forms are neither testified on oath nor under solemn affirmation, hence it will become difficult to hold any candidate responsible and liable for any mis-declaration. In support of his arguments counsel for the Petitioners has provided a comparative chart showing the difference between the 2008, 2013 and 2018 forms which as per his contentions clearly demonstrates that vital information is missing from the Impugned Forms.

4. In response to the notices issued by this Court, report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondent ECP. Chaudhary Umer Hayat, Director Legal, Election Commission of Pakistan appeared and stated that historically the ECP has always made the nomination forms and in terms of PLD 2012 SC 681 (supra) and PLD 2013 SC 406 (supra), this falls squarely within the mandate of the ECP. However, without adhering to the mandate of the law, the Parliamentary Committee on Electoral Reforms opted to draft the Impugned Forms. In this regard, the ECP voiced its opinion and complained through letter dated 18.5.2017 wherein it is requested that the ECP, in the very least, be heard by the Parliamentary Committee for Electoral Reforms before any draft is prepared. However, this request was not adhered to. He further argued that the ECP is not satisfied with the disclosure element in the Impugned Forms as mandatory provisions of the law have been ignored and information which is vital and fundamental for just and fair elections have not been provided for in the Impugned Forms. In this regard, he supported the arguments made by the learned counsel for the Petitioners and agreed with the contents of the comparative chart provided by the learned counsel for the Petitioners. He further clarified that the ECP can rectify the disclosure requirements within one week, if required.

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Federation of Pakistan. Mr. Muhammad Zikria Sheikh, learned DAG argued that no mala fide can be attributed to the legislature. The drafting of the Impugned Forms was a consultative process, with all the political parties over period of three years and ultimately with every one's consensus, Forms A and B were drafted as the nomination forms for the election and statement of assets and liability, as required under the provisions of the Act. He argued that the nomination papers are an integral part of the election process and the current Form A and B ensures that all necessary and relevant information is available for the voter so as to establish the credibility of the candidates in a transparent way. He stated that the same matter was challenged before the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court in W.Ps. Nos.476/2018 and 696/2018, of which the learned counsel before this Court was the counsel in W.P. No.476/2018 and the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court has passed its order dated 25.5.2018 which has not been disclosed before this Court. He argued that due to non-disclosure the mala fide of the Petitioners is apparent and this Court should dismiss their petitions with costs. He further argued that the Petitioners have no vested right and there is nothing wrong with the nomination forms. He stated that every effort should be made to save the law and that the law should not be struck down by this Court. He placed reliance on Mehr Zulfiqar Ali Babu and others v. Government of Punjab and others (PLD 1997 SC 11), Dr. Tariq Nawaz and another v. Government of Pakistan through the Secretary, Ministry of Health, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad and another (2000 SCMR 1956), Engineer Iqbal Zafar Jhagra and another v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2013 SCMR 1337) and Lahore Development Authority through D.G and others v. Ms. Imrana Tiwana and others (2015 SCMR 1739).

6. There are two questions before the Court; (i) who is competent under the Constitution to draft the nomination forms and whether the Impugned Forms as drafted by the legislature are ultra vires to the Constitution; (ii) whether the Impugned Forms fail to provide for mandatory information and declarations as required under the law and whether there are substantial deficiencies in the Impugned Forms. In this context it is also in issue as to whether there is reduced disclosure in the Impugned Forms such that it violates Articles 62 and 63 of the Constitution.

Constitutional Competence

7. To answer the first question, the relevant constitutional provisions are Articles 218, 219 and 222 of the Constitution which read as follows:--

218. Election Commission.-(1) For the purpose of election to both Houses of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), Provincial Assemblies and for election to such other public offices as may be specified by law, a permanent Election Commission shall be constituted in accordance with this Article.

(2) The Election Commission shall consist of

(a) the Commissioner who shall be the Chairman of the Commission; and

(b) four members, one from each Province, each of whom shall be a person who has been a judge of a High Court or has been a senior civil servant or is a technocrat and is not more than sixty-five years of age, to be appointed by the President in the manner provided for appointment of the Commissioner in clauses (2A) and (2B) of Article 213.

(3) It shall be the duty of the Election Commission to organize and conduct the election and to make such arrangements as are necessary to ensure that the election is conducted honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law, and that corrupt practices are guarded against.

219. Duties of Commission.--- The Commission shall be charged with the duty of---

(a) preparing electoral rolls for election to the National Assembly, Provincial Assemblies and local governments, and revising such rolls periodically to keep them up-to-date;}

(b) organizing and conducting election to the Senate or to fill casual vacancies in a House or a Provincial Assembly; and

(c) appointing, Election Tribunals;

(d) the holding of general elections to the National Assembly, Provincial Assemblies and the local governments; and

(e) such other functions as may be specified by an Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament);
Provided that till such time as the members of the Commission are first appointed in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (b) of clause (2) of Article 218 pursuant to the Constitution (Eighteenth Amendment) Act, 2010, and enter upon their office, the Commissioner shall remain charged with the duties enumerated in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this Article.
222. Electoral laws.---Subject to the Constitution, Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may be law provide for ----
(a) the allocation of seats in the National Assembly as required by clauses (3) and (4) of Article 51;
(b) the delimitation of constituencies by the Election Commission [including delimitation of constituencies of local governments];
(c) the preparation of electoral rolls, the requirements as to residence in a constituency, the determination of objections pertaining to and the commencement of electoral rolls;
(d) the conduct of elections and election petitions; the decision of doubts and disputes arising in connection with elections;
(e) matters relating to corrupt practices and other offences in connection with elections; and
(f) all other matters necessary for the due constitution of the two Houses, the Provincial Assemblies and local governments;
but no such law shall have the effect of taking away or abridging any of the powers of the Commissioner or the Election Commission under this Part.

8. The basic argument is that the drafting of nomination papers falls within the scope and competence of the ECP. In this regard reliance has been placed on PLD 2012 SC 681 (supra) in which it has been held as follows:
38. The Constitution provides a comprehensive mechanism to ensure minimal deviation from these dictates. It identifies and regulates one of the key aspects of democracy, the election process. In Article 218, the Constitution constitutes the Election Commission and empowers it to organize and oversee the election process and to ensure, inter alia, that it is conducted "honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law and that corrupt practices are guarded against".
39. The phrase "the election is conducted honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law, and that corrupt practices are guarded against" as used in Article 218(3) of the Constitution informs the content and scope of powers conferred by it on the Election Commission.
40. A bare reading of Article 218(3) makes it clear that the Election Commission is charged with the duty to 'organize' and 'conduct the election'. The language of the Article implies that the Election Commission is responsible not only for conducting the election itself, but also for making all necessary arrangements for the said purpose, prior to the Election Day. By conferring such responsibility on the Election Commission, the Constitution ensures that all activities both prior, on and subsequent to Election Day, that are carried out in anticipation thereof, adhere to standards of justness and fairness, are honest, in accordance with law and free from corrupt practices. This Court in Election Commission of Pakistan v. Javid Hashmi and others (PLD 1989 SC 396), observed that "(generally speaking election is a process which starts with the issuance of the election programme and consists of the various links and stages in that behalf, as for example, filing of nomination papers, their scrutiny, the hearing of objections and the holding of actual polls. If any of these links is challenged it really (is) tantamount to challenge the said process of election". It interpreted that the phrase 'conduct the election' as having "wide import" and including all stages involved in the election process. These observations subject all election related activities that take place between the commencement and the end of the election process to the jurisdiction conferred on the Election Commission under Article 218(3). The Election Commission therefore has to test all election related activities that are carried out in the relevant period, both individually and collectively, against the standards enumerated therein.

9. In terms of the dicta of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, while interpreting Articles 218 and 219 of the Constitution in the Workers' Party Case, the primary function of the ECP is to organize and conduct the election and for the purposes therein, it can make all necessary arrangements so as to ensure that elections are conducted honestly, justly and fairly, in accordance with law and that corrupt practices are guarded against. The ECP is therefore required to ensure that the election process does not suffer from any corrupt or illegal practices and that it is free and fair. In order to achieve this purpose all executive authorities of the Federation and the Provinces are to assist the ECP in the discharge of its function. Consequently the ECP is independent, having exclusive jurisdiction to conduct elections with no interference by any party, government or law enforcing agency. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also held that the ECP can be directed to fulfill its constitutional and legislative mandate by inter alia bringing all political practices into conformity with the Constitution and the law. On the strength of these findings, the Petitioners have urged that the drafting of nomination papers falls exclusively within the purview of the ECP and that Articles 218 and 219 gives absolute power to the ECP to organize and conduct the elections, which by necessary implication includes drafting the nomination papers. I am of the opinion that the argument raised with respect to interpreting the legislative competence of Parliament on the basis of necessary implication is misconceived. The legislative competence of Parliament is clear from reading Article 222 of the Constitution which provides that Parliament can make all laws with respect to elections and includes laws related to the conduct of elections, but it cannot make law which effectively takes away or abridges any power of the Commissioner or the ECP. There is nothing in the Constitution or the cases cited which specifically provides that the ECP shall make the nomination forms. This is being constructed as being part of the function of organizing and conducting elections. No doubt historically nomination forms have been drafted by the ECP, however if Parliament has provided for the nomination forms in the Act, it cannot be declared to be beyond their legislative competence. Parliament is the supreme law making authority and the only restriction the Constitution places on Parliament, while framing elections laws is that it does not curtail or abridge any power of the ECP. When interpreting legislative competence, the Court cannot assume that Parliament is not competent to draft the nomination forms because presumption lies in favour of the constitutionality of the Act unless shown specifically that it violates the constitutional mandate. In this case there is no specific power given to the ECP for drafting nomination forms rather it is a role attributed to the ECP in the function of organizing and conducting the elections. Nomination forms are an integral part of the election process, as it is on the basis of the information provided in the forms that a candidate is declared qualified to compete in the election. Since Parliament is competent to legislate on all electoral laws including the conduct of elections and since the Act was made to amend, consolidate and unify all laws relating to the elections, Parliament is competent to draft the nomination forms. In this regard, it is noted that the pith and substance of the constitutional mandate as provided in Article 222 is that Parliament shall make all electoral laws including laws to provide for the conduct of elections which will include making the nomination forms. Where the law fulfills its mandate and is within the legislative competence of the legislature, then such a law cannot be declared ultra vires on the basis of assumptions and implications. Furthermore even if in the past Parliament did not draft the nomination forms, it does not suggest that it lacks legislative competence. At the same time it is important to note that in order to safeguard the rights of the voters and to ensure free and fair elections, the ECP is fully empowered to make any additions to the nomination forms, if in its opinion it is necessary for a candidate to disclose information to ensure that elections are conducted honestly, justly and fairly and in accordance with law. In the case cited as PLD 2013 SC 406 (supra), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the ECP is fully authorized to make additions to the nomination forms and that there is no hard and fast rule to make improvement in a pro forma or nomination paper, particularly when the objective is to enforce Article 218(3) of the Constitution. The Court further held that detailed information about a candidate is essential as the mandate of the Constitution is that the people of Pakistan are governed by chosen representatives. Therefore a candidate must provide complete credentials to enable a voter to cast a vote in favour of such a person who he believes is free from disqualification under Article 63 and qualified under Article 62 of the Constitution. Consequently the ECP can improve upon the nomination forms as per its constitutional mandate. In this regard Chaudhary Umer Hayat, categorically stated that in the opinion of the ECP the Impugned Forms do not meet with the disclosure requirements such that basic information of a candidate is missing, which information is the fundamental right of a voter. In support of his contentions he referred to the disclosure requirements in the 2013 forms, being of a higher standard. To this effect, he stated that if directed by the Court, the ECP will amend Form A and B and include all the required information, disclosures and declarations. Under the circumstances there is no merit in the challenge to the constitutional competence of Parliament.

10. The second ground of challenge is with respect to the lack of disclosure in the Impugned Forms which prohibit and prevent a voter from ascertaining all necessary information about credible candidates who are to participate in the election. There are two basic objections of the Petitioners. The first is that the Impugned Forms do not contain vital information and specific declarations which are required under the Constitution and the law. The other objection is the challenge to the phrase 'dependent children' as given in Sections 60, 110 and 137 of the Act along with Form A and B.

Challenge to missing information and insufficient declarations

12. In order to appreciate the arguments made before the Court it is necessary to consider the general scheme of the Act with reference to nomination and the prescribed process. The Act was passed by the National Assembly on 2.10.2017 and in terms of its preamble the Act aims to amend, consolidate and unify laws relating to the conduct of elections and matters connected therewith or ancillary thereto. In terms of Section 241 of the Act, eight electoral laws were repealed so as to achieve the purpose of consolidation and unification of election laws. Section 60 of the Act prescribes for the procedure for nomination of a candidate and requires that every nomination shall be made by separate nomination paper on Form A, signed by the proposer and the seconder and shall be on solemn affirmation made and signed by the candidate. Section 231 of the Act provides for the qualification and disqualification of a person elected or chosen as member of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) to be as provided in Articles 62 and 63 of the Constitution. Consequently Form A contains a general declaration that the candidate fulfills the qualifications specified in Article 62 and is not subject to any of the disqualifications specified in Article 63. Section 110 of the Act provides for similar requirements for nomination for election to the Senate. Section 137 of the Act specifically requires that every member of the Assembly and the Senate submit a copy of his statement of assets and liabilities, which includes the assets and liabilities of his spouse and dependent children in the manner prescribed in Form B. Section 230 of the Act requires the Prime Minister, Chief Minister or the Minister or any other member of a caretaker Government to also submit to the ECP a statement of assets and liabilities including the assets and liabilities of his spouse and dependent children on Form B and that is to be published in the official gazette. Section 232 of the Act provides for the disqualification of a candidate on account of offences, however no declaration to this effect is required in the Impugned Forms. Consequent to the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan cited as Zulfiqar Ahmed Bhutta and 15 others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs and others (PLD 2018 SC 370), this section has been made subject to Articles 62, 63 and 63(a) of the Constitution. Importantly Section 62(7) of the Act provides that a Returning Officer while scrutinizing the nomination papers of a candidate shall not ask any question which has no nexus with the information supplied in the nomination paper or does not arise from the objections raised by any person or from information received by him under this Section. It also provides that the declaration submitted under Section 60(d) with respect to statement of assets and liabilities can only be questioned if there is tangible material to the contrary available on the record.

13. The working of the Act is such that the nomination process is a two-step process. As a first step the nomination forms are filled by the candidate and the second step is that the information provided in the Forms is subject to scrutiny. The Returning Officer shall scrutinize the Forms in terms of the requirements of Section 62(7) of the Act whereby based on the information provided in the Forms he will question the candidate. Form A provides for a generalized statement by the candidate that the requirements of Articles 62 and 63 are met with, without any specific declarations or information from the candidate with reference to the provisions of Article 63 of the Constitution. Consequently relevant information will not be made available on the nomination forms and the Returning Officer may be constrained to fulfill his statutory requirement of scrutinizing the nomination forms due to the restriction imposed in Section 62(7) of the Act. Hence in terms of Article 63 of the Constitution, a person can be disqualified for being elected or chosen as Member Parliament amongst others, if he ceases to be a citizen of Pakistan or acquires a citizenship of foreign state is in the service of a statutory body owned or controlled by the government has been convicted by a court of competent jurisdiction involving moral turpitude. These disqualifications require information and disclosure from the candidate in order to state with certainty that the disqualification is not attracted. Effectively information pertaining to matters covered under Article 63 requires detailed information so as to ascertain whether the disqualification is attracted or not. Furthermore there are five declarations in Form A which are solemnly affirmed by the candidate. For the purposes of the election to the National Assembly there is no information regarding education, degrees or diplomas or professional experience or present occupation. This information is found in the additional information for the Senate elections but not in Form A for the National Assembly. Consequently for the purposes of election to the National Assembly the voter will not have the benefit of such basic information so as to be able to make an informed decision and express his or her true choice. 14. In this regard, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan over the years has developed jurisprudence with reference to the qualification and disqualification of members of Parliament and Provincial Assemblies. Issues with reference to fake or bogus degrees, concealment of dual nationality, of assets and liabilities of the candidate, spouse and dependents as well as submission of false declarations have resulted in the development of law with reference to what is considered necessary and mandatory for the purposes of the nomination forms. Consequently the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has declared certain information as mandatory for the purposes of disclosure and declarations in the election nomination forms and time and again has emphasized on full and credible disclosure. In the cases "Dr. Shaukat Ilahi v. Ch. Mubashar Hussain and another" (2008 CLC 341), "Muhammad Nasrullah v. Election Commission of Pakistan and 9 others" (2009 CLC 1167), the Court held that declaration of criminal record is necessary. In PLD 2013 SC 406

(supra), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan requires a candidate to provide his complete credentials for the benefit of the voter. In "Muhammad Ahmad Chattha v. Iftikhar Ahmad Cheema and others" (2016 SCMR 763), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that declaration of banks accounts of candidates and their dependents are mandatory. In the case "Muhammad Ijaz Ahmad Chaudhry v. Mumtaz Ahmad Tarar and others" (2016 SCMR 1) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan requires that correct educational qualification be declared. In the case Ms. Shamuna Badshah Qaisarani v. Khawaja Muhammad Dawood and others (2016 SCMR 1420), the Court held that declaration of property, income and assets is necessary along with information regarding travel abroad and foreign residency or "iqama" which is also necessary. In the case "Imran Ahmad Khan Niazi v. Mian Muhammad Nawaz Sharif, Prime Minister of Pakistan/Member National Assembly, Prime Minister's House, Islamabad and 9 others (PLD 2017 SC 265), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan declared that family business and resources which include assets of a candidate and his family members must be disclosed in the nomination forms. These requirements are now part of the law and require compliance for the purposes of inclusion in the nomination forms. I am cognizant of the fact that these cases pertain to different elections over the time, however the issue is not election specific, rather it relates to necessary information and declaration in order to ensure that the voter is able to take an informed decision and chose the candidate that he or she thinks is most suited for the position.

15. Another aspect that requires attention is with respect to the declarations regarding election expenses. In terms of Section 132 of the Act, election expenses of a candidate shall include all expenses incurred by any person or a political party on behalf of the candidate or incurred by a political party specifically for the candidate. The election expenses includes expenses of stationery, postage, advertisement, transport or any other item deemed to be the election expenses incurred by the candidate for the election purposes. Section 132 of the Act limits election expenses up to one million rupees for the National Assembly and requires a candidate to provide bills, receipts and documents for every payment made in respect of election expenses. If election expenses are disputed, the ECP can conduct an inquiry to resolve the dispute. A candidate in terms of Section 133 of the Act must open an exclusive account with the scheduled bank before the date fixed for scrutiny of nomination papers and maintain a register of receipts and expenditures. A candidate cannot make any transaction towards the election from any other account and a candidate must provide a return of all election expenses on Form C within thirty days from the date of publication of his name as a returned candidate. The co-relating statement is provided for in Form A in the form of a declaration that the candidate has opened an exclusive account for the purpose of election expenses with the name of a scheduled bank. This declaration does not fulfill the mandatory requirements of Sections 132 and 133 of the Act. A candidate must make a declaration that he did not exceed the amount given in Section 132 of the Act with respect to election expenses and also that this is the only account from which all election expenses have been made. Without these declarations the purpose of providing the bank account information is of no use as it does not bind the candidate to the declarations specifically provided for in Sections 132 and 133 of the Act.

16. The lack of disclosure and information in the Impugned Forms essentially means that a voter will not have the required information on the basis of which an informed decision can be made. To make an informed decision voters require basic information about a candidate which includes information about educational qualifications, profession and/or business/jobs held, travel abroad. Voters also require information to establish the credibility of a candidate meaning thereby information about dual nationality, income tax paid, agriculture tax paid, loan default, government due defaults, criminal record and information of assets and liabilities. Finally the third set of information required is information which enables a voter to assess the track record of the candidate, in terms of what he has done, especially if he or she has served as Member Parliament or Senate. Hence information such as major contributions made, issues raised, and positions taken by the candidate over the years is relevant for the voter. There are two important aspects to this issue. First that a voter must be well informed about all the credentials of a candidate on the basis of which he or she can decide how to cast their vote. Decisions should not be based on campaign slogans and posters. Second is that when candidates present themselves for the National Assembly it is incumbent upon them to declare vital and relevant information which establishes their credibility and remains the barometer against which it can be determined whether the candidate is honest and fulfills the qualification requirements of Article 62 of the Constitution.

17. Furthermore while drafting nomination forms the lack of accessible and objective information in the public domain must be considered. In this regard it is also noted that it is not necessary that every member of the public or every voter is aware of the qualifications and disqualifications specifically enumerated in Articles 62 and 63 of the Constitution. Hence by generalizing the declaration for the purposes of Articles 62 and 63 of the Constitution a voter is deprived of essential information and required disclosure on the basis of which an informed decision can be made. Additionally for the purposes of raising objections and scrutinizing the nomination forms, the lack of information and declaration essentially erodes the constitutional mandate and the whole purpose of scrutiny is diluted. Parliament consists of political actors who have a keen interest in the quantity and quality of information available in the public domain. They are also interested in the nature of the disclosure and quantity of information that is required to be made in the nomination forms. It is for this reason that the Constitution protects the rights of the voters through the ECP, to ensure that at the time of election an informed decision is made. The requirement of Article 218, casting a duty on the ECP to organize and conduct honest, just and fair elections as per law, includes the duty to ensure that all necessary and required information, disclosure and declarations are made by a candidate. While Parliament can make the laws to regulate the conduct of elections, the ultimate authority and responsibility to ensure free and fair elections is of the ECP. Hence ECP is responsible to ensure that a voter is able to make an informed decision and that the nomination forms achieve this objective.

18. In the book titled International Principles for Domestic Elections, published in June 2008, Chapter 2 by Patrick Merlone on Human Rights-The basis for inclusiveness, transparency, accountability and public confidence in elections, the author states that for elections to be genuinely democratic, the right to freedom of political expression, includes the freedom to seek, receive and impart information and ideas in order to develop informed choices. In support thereof the author explains that transparency is the byword of democratic elections and the basis for the requirement of transparency is the freedom to receive and impart information. The right to vote and to be elected cannot be exercised without the right to receive information. In the electoral process where those who seek to be elected do not impart necessary information to the electoral or where the voters go to the polls without receiving necessary information it cannot be called a democratically held free and fair election. The voter has the right to know basic information about the candidate along with relevant information to establish the credibility and honesty of a candidate.

19. Therefore based on the aforesaid the Impugned Forms do not provide for the following mandatory information and declarations which should be made on integral part of Form A and Form B. In this regard, it is noted that the stated information and declarations were available in the 2013 Forms:
(i) Educational qualifications of the candidate
(ii) Current occupation/job/profession/business of the candidate
(iii) Dual nationality, if any
(iv) National Tax Number/Income tax returns/ and payment of income tax
(v) Agriculture tax returns and payment of agriculture tax
(vi) Criminal record, if any
(vii) Assets and liabilities of dependents
(viii) Declaration pertaining to election expenses
(ix) Declaration pertaining to any default in loan or government dues by dependents
(x) Declaration that the candidate will abide by the code of conduct issued by the Election Commission

Challenge to the phrase 'dependent children'

20. The basic challenge is that the Constitutional requirement is for information to be provided with respect to assets and liabilities of all dependents whereas the Act only calls for declarations with respect to the assets and liabilities of dependent children. For ease of reference the relevant constitutional provisions and provisions of the Act are reproduced hereunder:
Article 63 Disqualifications for membership of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament).- (1) A person shall be disqualified from Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), if -
(n) he has obtained a loan for an amount of two million rupees or more, from any bank, financial institution, cooperative society or cooperative body in his own name or in the name of his spouse or any of his dependents, which remains unpaid for more than one year from the due date, or has got such loan written off; or

(o) he or his spouse or any of his dependents has defaulted in payment of government dues and utility expenses, including telephone, electricity, gas and water charges in excess of ten thousand rupees, for over six months, at the time of filing his nomination papers;

Sections 60, 110 and 137 of the Act are also reproduced below:
60 Nomination for election (1) Any voter of a constituency, may propose or second the name of any qualified person to be a candidate for Member for that constituency;
Provided that no voter shall subscribe to more than one nomination papers either as proposer or seconder.
(2) Every nomination shall be made by a separate nomination paper on Form A signed both by the proposer and the seconder and shall, on solemn affirmation made and signed by the candidate, be accompanied by
(a) a declaration that he has consented to the nomination and that he fulfills the qualifications specified in Article 62 and is not subject to any of the disqualifications specified in Article 63 for being elected as a Member;
(b) a declaration that he has opened an exclusive account with the scheduled bank for the purpose of election expenses;
(c) an attested copy of his National Identity Card; and
(d) a statement of his assets and liabilities and of his spouse and dependent children as on the preceding thirtieth day of June on Form B.

110 Nomination for election.---(1) A voter may propose or second the name of any person qualified for election to the Senate from a Province, Islamabad Capital Territory or the Federally Administered Tribal Areas, as the case may be.
(2) Every nomination shall be made by a separate nomination paper on Form A signed both by the proposer and the seconder and shall, on solemn affirmation, be made and signed by the candidate and shall be accompanied by---
(a) a declaration that he has consented to the nomination and that he fulfills the qualifications specified in Article 62 and is not subject to any of the disqualifications specified in Article 63 for being elected as a Member of the Senate;
(b) a declaration that he is a technocrat or aalim, if the nomination papers are filed for a seat reserved for technocrat or aalim;
(c) a declaration that he has opened an exclusive account with a scheduled bank for the purpose of election expenses;
(d) an attested copy of his National Identity Card; and
(e) a statement of his assets and liabilities and of his spouse and dependent children as on the preceding thirtieth day of June on Form B.

137 Submission of statement of assets and liabilities.__(1) Every Member of an Assembly and Senate shall submit to the Commission, on or before 31st December each year, a copy of his statement of assets and liabilities including assets and liabilities of his spouse and dependent children as on the preceding thirtieth day of June on Form B.

21. As per the constitutional mandate a person shall be disqualified from being elected or chosen as a member of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) if he, his spouse or dependents are in default of a loan of an amount of two million or more from any bank for more than one year or if he has gotten that loan written off. The Constitution provides that the loan can be in his own name or in the name of his spouse or any other of his dependents. In the same way if a person or his spouse or any of his dependents are in default of government dues, utility expenses, telephone, electricity, gas and water charges at the time of filing of the nomination papers, he stands disqualified in terms of Article 63(1)(o) of the Constitution. However as per the Act, a candidate is to make declaration with respect to his dependent children. Affectively the phrase 'dependent children' has diminished the scope of the constitutional requirement to make declaration with regard to 'dependents' be they children or any other relative which can include parents, siblings or any other dependents. A bare reading of the Constitution shows that the requirement for declaration is of spouse or any dependent. There can be no cavil with the legal sanctity of the constitutional mandate and the fact that all laws must be in consonance with the Constitution. By requiring the statement of assets and liabilities for dependent children, the legislature has in fact ignored the constitutional mandate. The learned DAG with reference to this omission argued that no mala fide can be imputed to the legislature while considering the vires of law. However, in this regard, I am reminded of the findings of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case cited at "Contempt Proceedings Against Chief Secretary, Sindh and others: In the matter of (2014 PLC (C.S) 82) wherein it has fairly commented that while it is true that judicial precedent available thus far declares that mala fide cannot be attributed to the legislature but if a legislature deliberately and repeatedly embarks upon a venture to nullify considered judicial verdict in an unlawful manner, trample the constitutional mandate and violate the law in the manner it was done in the present case then it is difficult to attribute bona fide to it either. In a recent judgment cited as Messrs Sui Southern Gas Company Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2018 SCMR 802), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:

It is well established by this Court, while considering the vires of a legislative enactment under its powers of judicial review, can consider not only the substance of the law but also the competence of the legislature. Further, though it is an accepted principle that no mala fide can be attributed to the legislature, however, the bona fides of the legislature as also the purpose and object of a statute may also be considered in the determination of the vires of a statute. The vires of a statue can also be determined on the ground that the legislation is colourable. In the instant case, the only issue involved in the legislative competence of the Parliament vis- - vis the legislative authority of the provincial legislature. In this regard it is to be noted that there is always a presumption in favour of the constitutionality of a legislative enactment unless ex facie it appears to be violative of any of the constitutional provisions and in a case where two opinion with regard to the constitutionality of an enactment are possible, the one in favour of the validity of the enactment is to be adopted. Meaning thereby that when a law is enacted by the Parliament, the presumption lies that Parliament has competently enacted it (law), and if the vires of the same (law) are challenged, the burden always lies upon the person making such challenge to show that the same (law) is violative of any of the fundamental rights or the provisions of the constitution. It is also a cardinal principle of interpretation that law should be interpreted in such a manner that it should be saved rather than destroyed. The Courts should lean in favour of upholding the constitutionality of a legislation and it is thus incumbent upon the Courts to be extremely reluctant to strike down laws as unconstitutional. This power should be exercised only when absolutely necessary for injudicious exercise of this power might well result in grave and serious consequences.

22. Therefore with respect to the challenge of the use of the phrase 'dependent children' instead of 'dependent' in Sections 60, 110 and 137 of the Act, there is merit as the said Sections are in clear derogation of the constitutional mandate. Under the circumstances the words dependent children shall be read down such that it will be read to be in conformity with the constitutional requirement of Articles 63(1)(n) and (o) of the Constitution.

23. One of the objections raised by the learned DAG is with respect to the disclosure of filing a similar petition before the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court by the same Petitioner, in which his petition along with connected petitions were decided through a short order passed on 25.5.2018. There appears to be no merit in this objection as the instant Petition has been pending since 2017 and in fact, it took more than six months for the Federation to file its reply. Furthermore the counsel for the Petitioner did disclose the pendency of several petitions before the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court with similar prayers, however at that time there was no order in the said petitions. In terms of the short order of the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court the vires of Form A and Form B were challenged and the Court through a short order, while relying on the Workers' Party Case held that the ECP was empowered to add any information or improve Form A and Form B.
24. In view of the aforesaid, these petitions are partially allowed in the following terms:
(a) The challenge to the drafting of the Impugned Forms by Parliament so as to become a part of the Act, is dismissed having no merit;
(b) The term 'dependent children' used in the Act, specifically in Sections 60, 110 and 137 and in Form A and Form B is held to be read down to be construed and interpreted in terms of the constitutional requirement provided for in Articles 63(1)(n) and (o) of the Constitution;
(c) The Impugned Forms do not provide for mandatory information and declarations as required by the Constitution and the law and the ECP is directed to ensure that all mandatory information and declarations are included in the Impugned Forms;
(d) The ECP is empowered to add or improve Form A and Form B of the Act so as to fulfill its constitutional mandate of ensuring honest, just and fair elections

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner Bank has impugned order dated 01.11.2017 passed by Respondent No.1, Judge Banking Court No.VII, Lahore.

2. The basic grievance of the Petitioner is that it moved an application under section 16 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances), Ordinance 2001 ("F.I.O.") for attachment of the property of Respondent No.4, Irshad Butt which was dismissed by Respondent No.1 vide order dated 01.11.2017, impugned before us.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner stated that the Petitioner Bank has filed a recovery suit, in the amount of Rs.52,118,209.44 in which PLA has been filed by the defendants and the case is now pending at the stage of arguments on the PLA. In the meanwhile, the Bank has also moved an application under section 16 of the F.I.O. on the ground that its securities were insufficient to secure the facilities and in order to ensure that the Petitioner Bank will be able to recover the amounts due to it, the Petitioner traced property of Respondent No.4 for which it sought attachment.

4. The Respondents Nos.2 to 6 filed their reply to the application. Subsequently Respondent No.1 dismissed the application on the ground that the property cannot be attached as the judgment and decree has not yet been passed. As such there is no material available on the record to suggest that there is any real danger that the Respondent will remove himself from the jurisdiction of the court. The court also found that there was no reason to accept that the mortgaged property is insufficient to secure the finance facility and in the event of judgment and decree in favour of the Bank, it will not be able to recover the decretal amount from the mortgaged property. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that section 16 of the F.I.O. permits the court to pass order for attachment before passing its judgment, grant injunction and appoint receiver. He stated that in this case the Petitioner moved an application seeking attachment before judgment in order to ensure that the Petitioner will be able to recover the amount due to it.

5. On behalf of Respondent No.7 it is argued that the subject property is mortgaged with Respondent No.7 Bank by way of mortgage deposit of title document, therefore the Petitioner is not entitled to the relief sought in the application.

6. On behalf of Respondents Nos.2 to 6 it is argued that the application filed by the Petitioner is vague, without any details. Also there is no proof of any shortfall or insufficient security. There is also no apprehension that the Respondent will run away or will alienate any property. Learned counsel further submitted that the application was rightly dismissed for being premature as the suit is still pending and as such at this stage the Respondents being guarantors/owe no liability which can be presumed against them.

7. We have heard the learned counsel at length and have gone through the record.

8. We note that the learned Judge Banking Court has rightly dismissed the application of the Petitioner Bank being premature. A bare review of the application itself shows that no reasons have been provided whatsoever in the application as to why the Petitioner Bank wants to secure its finance facility and how it claims that it has insufficient security to secure the facilities provided to the Respondents. Furthermore, the suit is still pending and at this stage it cannot be said that the suit will be decreed in favour of the Petitioner Bank. The impugned order considered the arguments of the Petitioner and dismissed the application on the ground that there is no prima facie case made out nor is there any apprehension or probability expressed in the application for alienation of the property or that the Respondent will remove himself from the jurisdiction of the court.

9. Under the circumstances no illegality is made out in the impugned order. The instant petition is dismissed.

Iftikhar Ahmad Qureshi for Appellant.

ORDER

Through the instant Appeal, filed under section 22 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 (the "Ordinance"), the Appellant seeks setting aside of order dated 21.05.2018, passed by the Banking Court, Sargodha (the "Banking Court") whereby his application for reevaluation of the property as per market price for the year 2018, was dismissed.

2. Learned counsel for the Appellant inter alia submitted that the Banking Court has not taken into consideration the true facts and circumstances of the case while dismissing the application of the Appellant; that the impugned order is against law and facts; that the Banking Court while allowing the auction schedule has ignored the present market value of the mortgaged property which is Rs.2,50,00,000/- and the Respondent No.1 itself assessed the value of the property which is against the law.

3. We have heard the arguments and perused the record.

4. The perusal of record reveals that the valuation of the property was assessed by the 'Premier Engineering Consultants (Regd.) and in this regard its evaluation report is on file which is dated 12.12.2013. The record does not show that at the time of filing this report, the Appellant has ever filed an objection regarding the said evaluation report. The Appellant's contention is that as per the report of the Patwari the market value of the property is Rs.2,50,00,000/- which is latest and liable to be considered for auction of the property. The bare reading of the report of Patwari depicts that it assessed the value of the property without any detail of each and every item rather mentioned that the total market value of the land, machinery, building, boundary wall is Rs.2,50,00,000/-. As such, the Banking Court has rightly observed that the reserve price was properly fixed on the report of evaluator whereas the report of Patwari does not give any detail regarding price of property, building and machinery separately, hence the report of Patwari does not appear to be reliable. Furthermore, the Appellant himself filed application dated 12.05.2018 to the Tehsildar concerned for market value of the property and in pursuance of which the Patwari submitted his report on the same day i.e. 12.05.2018. Whereas the application to the Banking Court for reevaluation of the property as per market price was filed on 14.05.2018 after obtaining the report of Patwari; meaning thereby that he himself resorted to the revenue hierarchy for obtaining present market value of the property rather than through process of law i.e. Banking Court. Therefore, this report can also not be given any weight. Moreover, the Patwari is not the competent authority to assess the market value of the property consisting of land, machinery, building and boundary wall owing to lack of expertise in this regard.

5. We, therefore, fully agree with the findings of the Banking Court which rightly dismissed the application of the Appellant and do not see any illegality or perversity in the impugned order which has been passed strictly in accordance with law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the Appeal in hand, being devoid of any merit, is hereby dismissed in limine.

well as ensure to that protected measures were taken to prevent any harm to persons who would require healthcare---Precautionary Principle addressed uncertain risk and enabled action to take place before any harm was caused and enabled an authority to take preventive measures---Said principle required the system to ensure that its decisions were safe and efficient with public safety and health as its primary concern---Words "necessary steps" used in S.4 of the Punjab Healthcare Commission Act, 2010 included an inherent power to sealing an establishment as a preventive measure---Regulations issued under S.40(1) of the Punjab Healthcare Commission Act, 2010 prescribed procedure to be adopted when the Healthcare Commission was to seal a healthcare establishment---Such power of sealing exercised by the Commission was in furtherance of the mandate of the Punjab Healthcare Commission Act, 2010---Power exercised prior to the framing of the said regulations fell within the inherent power to seal healthcare establishment and hence no illegality existed---Constitutional petitions were dismissed, in circumstances.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---The instant petition filed by the Punjab Healthcare Commission challenges order dated 16.10.2015 issued by Respondent No.2, District and Sessions Judge, Toba Tek Singh whereby the sealing order against the clinic of Respondent No.1, Mushtaq Ahmad Chaudhary was set aside and it was held therein that the Punjab Healthcare Commission ("Commission") did not have any power under the Punjab Healthcare Commission Act, 2010 ("Health Act") to seal a healthcare establishment. In the first round the case was heard on 20.11.2015 and a judgment was rendered by a learned Single Judge of this Court holding therein that the action of sealing a healthcare establishment is without any backing of law, hence without lawful authority. Accordingly the order passed by the District and Sessions Judge, Toba Tek Singh dated 16.10.2015 was upheld. This judgment was challenged before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.A 213/2016 and C.M.A 816/2016, C.A. 214/2016 and C.M.A. 818/2016 and C.Ps 768, 997 and 998 of 2016 wherein with the consent of the parties the following order was passed on 14.2.2017:

Both the Appeals are allowed and the cases are remanded to the learned High Court to be tagged and heard along with Writ Petition No.2427/2017, filed by the Respondents challenging the vires of the Punjab Health Care Commission Act, 2010. The learned High Court will hear the parties and decide the matter in accordance with law.

2. The instant petition was being heard along with two other petitions. Firstly W.P. No.31831/2015 filed by the Punjab Dental Practitioners Association wherein it is prayed that the Commission should not illegally harass the members of the Association and it seeks a declaration that all persons registered under the Unani Ayurvedic and Homoeopathic Practitioner Act, 1965 ("Unani Act") be authorized to practice as dental technicians and dental hygienists, if they possess the appropriate diploma by the Skill Development Council. The second petition being W.P. No.2427/2017 is also filed by the Punjab Dental Practitioners Association and Mushtaq Ahmad Chaudhary. In this petition, the vires of the Health Act have been challenged essentially on the ground that the Provincial Government is not competent to legislate on the subject of healthcare. The aforementioned three petitions are being heard as per the remand order, along with connected matters being W.Ps. Nos.28593/15, 21753/15, 19597/15, 38582/15, 79690/17, 11158/16 and 30210/16 (Details given in Schedule "A"). Essentially all these petitions either challenge the vires of the Health Act or challenge the act of sealing healthcare establishments by the Commission. In some petitions a declaration is sought against the Respondents from stopping the Petitioners from practicing as Hakeem or Homoeopathic doctors or in terms of their registration under the Unani Act.

3. In terms of the above, there are two main issues before this Court; (i) vires of the Health Act and (ii) whether the Commission has the power to seal healthcare establishments under the Health Act.

Vires of the law

The arguments

4. Mr. Mohammad Ahmad Qayyum, Advocate for the Dental Association and Mushtaq Ahmed Chaudhary explained that the Petitioners are qualified and registered under the Unani Act. That they are carrying out their lawful business in the field of traditional medicine, essentially as tibbs and homoeopaths, yet are being unlawfully harassed by the Commission. He argued that the Petitioners are regulated under the Unani Act, which essentially falls within the subject of medical profession. He argued that the Provincial Government is not competent to legislate on matters related to medical profession. He argued that in terms of Entry 11, Part 2 of the Federal Legislative List ("FLL"), the subject of legal, medical and other professions falls within the domain of the Federal Government, meaning thereby that only the Federal Government can legislate and regulate the medical profession. He further argued that the Health Act attempts to regulate the medical profession, hence it is ultra vires to the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"). Further that it requires all medical practitioners to register with the Commission which is against the law as the Petitioners as with other medical practitioners are registered under a federal law, hence are not liable to register under a provincial law. The learned counsel contended that the Petitioners are also dental technicians and dental hygienists duly qualified from Skill Development Council and therefore competent to practice as dental hygienists or technicians. However, the Commission is creating hurdles in the way of the Petitioners from practicing as dental hygienists or technicians and as tibbs and homoeopaths. In this regard the Commission requires registration of the Petitioners under the Health Act irrespective of the registration under the Unani Act. Learned counsel stated that in the event that a practitioner is not registered with the Commission, it can at best impose a penalty, yet in these cases the Respondents have resorted to illegally sealing the establishments of the Petitioners. Learned counsel argued that the Respondents have initiated a crackdown on quackery and have included the clinics of the Petitioners who are not quacks, rather they are qualified dental technicians and dental hygienists as well as homoeopaths and tibb. Learned counsel further argued that the Respondents have failed to take into consideration that the Petitioners are qualified and duly registered with their respective Councils under the Unani Act, meaning thereby that they are not quacks. He argued that non-registration under the Health Act does not qualify as being a quack and that the Respondents have no authority to interfere in the lawful business of the Petitioners. Consequently, the Petitioners seek a declaration that they be allowed to practice if they are registered under the Unani Act and have the appropriate diploma by the Skill Development Council, as additional qualification.

5. On behalf of the Commission, Khawaja Issam Bin Haris, Advocate argued that the Health Act was promulgated with the mandate to improve healthcare services and ban quackery. This subject, he argued falls squarely within the competence of the Provincial Government as healthcare services do not fall within the federal subject of medical profession. Learned counsel argued that the Petitioners' case is based on the false assumption that the medical profession is wide enough to cover and regulate healthcare services or healthcare establishments. He argued that the falsity of this assumption is apparent from the constitutional history on the subject of medical profession which has been a distinct subject from public health, sanitation, hospitals and dispensary which was always within the provincial domain. The former regulates the individual while the latter regulates the health care environment. Further that even with the widest of definitions the phrase medical profession cannot include healthcare services, the service provider or the establishment. Learned counsel explained that the Health Act regulates healthcare services, healthcare service providers and healthcare establishments and therefore calls for registration and licensing by the same. In such a situation, it may be that a healthcare service provider or establishment is a qualified doctor or as in the cases before the Court a homoeopath or tibb. However, since the doctor, homeopath or tibb is running a clinic or hospital or a diagnostic centre, as the case may be, then such an establishment will fall under the definition of a healthcare establishment and healthcare service provider which requires registration and licensing under the Health Act. He argued that such an overlap if any with the Unani Act does not render the law unconstitutional. Therefore it is his case that the Health Act is in accordance with the Constitution as the Provincial Government is competent to legislate on the subject matter. Reliance is placed on Inamur Rehman v. Federation of Pakistan and others (1992 SCMR 563), Messrs Elahi Cotton Mills Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary M/o Finance, Islamabad and 6 others (PLD 1997 SC 582) and Syed Aizad Hussain and others v. Motor Registration Authority and others (PLD 2010 SC 983) in furtherance of the point that the Court shall interpret in favour of the constitutionality of a statute.

6. On behalf of the Provincial Government, Mr. Anwaar Hussain, Additional Advocate General argued that there is always a presumption in favour of the constitutionality of a statute unless the statute is not declared to be unconstitutional, which situation only arises if there is no way of reconciling or harmonizing the statute with the Constitution. In the instant cases, the subject of healthcare falls within the domain of the Provincial Government and requires the Provincial Government to legislate. Learned Law Officer further argued that historically the matter has always been with the Provincial Government and he agreed that the subject medical profession does not include healthcare services, service provider or establishment. He argued that if a medical professional or in this case a homoeopath or tibb is in the business of providing healthcare services then the services provided along with the establishment where the services are provided all fall within the domain of Provincial legislation. He explained that the intent of the Constitution is clear, such that the profession is regulated at the federal level, to maintain uniformity in education, training and standards throughout the country but the service provider and the establishment is regulated through Provincial legislation in order to ensure that the federal standards are maintained and public health is protected. He argued that in pith and substance the Health Act aims to improve performance and quality of healthcare and consequently prevents quackery. Consequently all service providers and establishment have to be regulated at a Provincial level and cannot be regulated at a federal level.

7. On behalf of the Federal Government, Mr. Nasar Ahmad, Deputy Attorney General argued that the primary function of the Health Act is to improve the quality of healthcare services, clinical governance and to ban quackery in the Punjab. The Commission is empowered to take all necessary steps to fulfill the mandate of the law. He argued that a bare reading of the Health Act shows that the objective of the law is to regulate healthcare services and not the profession. He further argued that Federal legislature regulates the profession, meaning thereby that it regulates the practitioner or the education and not hospitals, clinics, dispensaries, allied staff, essentially the entire ambit of the healthcare environment. He further argued that the requirement of registration under the Health Act is not violative of the Constitution as the Federal Government seeks registration of medical professionals whereas the Commission seeks registration and licensing of the healthcare service provider and the healthcare establishment. Hence there is no overlap or conflict. He also argued that the healthcare is a broader subject whereas the medical profession is a more concise subject and does not include healthcare.

The law

8. The law under challenge is the Health Act. In terms of the preamble of the Health Act, the mandate of the law is to improve the quality of healthcare services and to ban quackery in all its forms and manifestation and to provide for ancillary matters. Section 4 of the Health Act provides for the functions and powers of the Commission, which includes the function to improve the quality of healthcare services and clinical governance and to ban quackery. Subsection (2) of Section 4 of the Health Act provides that the Commission has all the powers it requires in furtherance of this function. Section 2 (xv) defines healthcare establishment to mean a hospital, diagnostic centre, medical clinics, nursing home, maternity home, dental clinic, homeopathy clinic, tibb clinic, acupuncture, physiotherapy clinic or any other premises or conveyance. Section 2 (xvi) defines healthcare services to mean services provided for diagnosis, treatment or care of persons suffering from any physical or mental disease, injury or disability including procedures that are similar to forms of medical, dental or surgical care but are not provided in connection with a medical condition and includes any other service notified by the Government. Section 2 (xvii) provides for healthcare service provider to mean an owner, manager or incharge of a healthcare establishment and includes a person registered by the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council ("PMDC"), Council for Tibb, Council for Homeopathy or Nursing Council. Section 13 of the Health Act calls for registration of the healthcare service provider and Section 14 calls for licensing of a healthcare establishment. Section 19 of the Health Act provides that a healthcare service provider can be guilty of medical negligence if it does not have the required human resource and equipment, which it professes to have or if its employees do not have reasonable competency or skill that they possess. Section 20 of the Health Act requires the Commission to set standards for healthcare services and under Chapter-V, the Commission can inspect any healthcare establishment as per the procedure laid down.

9. In terms of the provision of the Health Act and its preamble, the Health Act regulates healthcare which essentially is the provision of services related to treatment, diagnosis and care including procedures, processes involved in the diagnosis, treatment and care. Consequently, the Health Act regulates the healthcare service provider being the person who is responsible for the provision of the services and the healthcare establishment being the space within which such services are provided such as a hospital, diagnostic centre, medical clinic, nursing home, maternity home, dental clinic, homeopathy clinic, tibb clinic and so on. Therefore the question that arises is what is healthcare and clinical governance and whether healthcare falls within the subject of medical profession.

10. The Health Act regulates the healthcare environment which includes regulating the service provider, the establishment and the services. The Commission is mandated to ensure that all those in the business of providing healthcare are following the prescribed standards and are working towards improving the health of the people. Section 4 of the Health Act provides that the Commission shall improve the quality of healthcare and clinical governance. Neither healthcare nor clinical governance are defined under the Health Act as they are evolving concepts which cover the entire spectrum of the healthcare environment. Healthcare in its simplest of understanding is the maintenance or improvement of health through diagnosis, treatment, testing and will include all procedures and manner of care undertaken for the treatment or care of persons suffering from any physical, mental or emotional injury or disability. Clinical governance is the creation of a system to ensure that optimum quality of healthcare is given to everyone. The term was used for the first time by the World Health Organization ("WHO") in 1983 to encapsulate the provision of high quality healthcare on four important dimensions; professional performance, risk allocation, risk management and patient satisfaction. Over time this concept evolved to mean a system which is responsible, accountable and provides qualitative services and establishments, providing the highest standards of care to people. It essentially puts the principles of good governance in healthcare so as to ensure that all those involved in healthcare, the service provider, the establishment and those providing services are efficient, effective, responsive and accountable. Consequently the Commission addresses complaints, undertakes inspections and investigations to check poor performance, negligence and compromise in standard. Hence the primary function of the Commission under the Health Act is to govern the healthcare environment to maintain quality, safety and ensure that optimum level of care is experienced by the people.

11. In this context healthcare services cover a broad spectrum, involving the process and procedures, the medicine and staff involved in diagnosis, treatment and care. It is therefore not limited to just the practitioner, but instead covers the entire establishment which includes the staff, the equipment, the establishments and all the services provided there. It also takes into its fold persons who own, manage or run the establishment where the services are provided. This is necessary to ensure that persons who are in the business of healthcare take full responsibility of their involvement in the provision of healthcare. Therefore healthcare covers a broad spectrum of services and people, all of whom have a role to play in delivering quality healthcare. This includes amongst others administrators, technicians, nurses, pharmacists, therapist, assistances Lab technicians, sonographers, radiologists, dental technician, dental hygienists. A wide range of regulatory bodies and system will therefore regulate the healthcare environment, at all levels, federal, provincial and even local. Essentially the regulatory framework is geared to protecting public well being and health. Therefore, the argument that healthcare regulations are limited to the federal legislature is totally misconceived.

12. When seen in the context of the constitutional history of Pakistan, medical profession and public health, sanitation, hospitals and dispensaries have been two separate and distinct legislative subjects. Under the 1956 Constitution the subject of medical profession was included in Entry 1 of the Concurrent Legislative List ("CLL") and public health, sanitation, hospitals and dispensaries was Entry 26 of the Provincial Legislative List ("PLL"). Under the 1962 Constitution, neither the subject of medical profession nor public health figured in the Third Schedule to the Constitution which provided for matters falling in the executive domain of the Federation and enumerated the powers of the Federal legislature. Therefore, the subject of medical profession and public health fell within the domain of Provincial legislature under the 1962 Constitution. Under the interim Constitution of 1972 medical profession was again included in the CLL thereby empowering the Federal as well as Provincial legislatures to make laws regarding the same whereas public health, sanitation, hospitals and dispensary figured in Entry 30 of the PLL giving exclusive powers to the Provinces. So far as the 1973 Constitution, prior to the 18th Amendment medical profession was Item 43 in the CLL and the subject of public health was neither in the FLL nor in the CLL, hence fell within the domain of the Provincial Government. After the 18th Amendment, medical and legal profession is found in Entry 11, Part 2 of the FLL being a federal subject and since the subject of public health, sanitation, hospitals and dispensary is not included in the FLL it means that this subject falls within the domain of Provincial government. Therefore, in terms of constitutional history, medical profession and public health, sanitation, hospitals and dispensary are two different and distinct subjects. Furthermore, it shows that the constitutional mandate requires the medical profession be governed by the Federal law and matters related to public health, sanitation, hospitals and dispensary be regulated by the Provinces.

13. When seen in the context of its meaning there is sound logic in the fact that the subject of legal and medical profession is a federal subject. The subject regulates educational qualifications and requires uniformity of standards in training and qualification for the purposes of education and for the purposes of entry into the profession. In this regard, the Punjab Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 1962 ("1962 Ordinance") regulates the minimum standards of higher educational qualification in medicine and dentistry. The law as amended from time to time essentially recognizes medical institutions as well as medical and dental qualifications. It recognizes hospitals or institutions for house jobs internship or foundation courses. It recognizes all medical and dental qualifications whether obtained in Pakistan or outside of Pakistan. It calls for the registration and licensing of medical and dental practitioners and all matters related to the establishment and running of medical and dental institutions including its recognition are regulated by the PMDC. Hence any person professing to be a medical or dental practitioner must be recognized, registered and licensed with the PMDC under the 1962 Ordinance. Various different regulations have been issued under the 1962 Ordinance including the Regulations titled Pakistan Registration of Medical and Dental Practitioners Regulations, 2008 ("Regulations"). In terms of these Regulations, compilation, maintenance and publication of registers which contain the registration of medical and dental practitioners are maintained as well as processes for removal of names from the registers. It provides for the procedure of filing a complaint against a medical or dental practitioner and provides for the procedure to be followed in such complaints. The 1962 Ordinance therefore, governs the medical and dental profession meaning thereby that it governs the individual who is qualified to practice as a doctor or dentist in Pakistan. It also regulates the institution from which the professional degree for qualifying as a doctor or dentist is obtained. The 1962 Ordinance does not regulate any of the healthcare services or establishments which will be used by the medical or dental practitioners during the process of providing medical or dental services. Hence the 1962 Ordinance clearly does not regulate clinics, dispensaries and diagnostic centres or testing procedures or any other related area which forms part of the ambit of healthcare services as defined under the Health Act.

14. The practice of Unani, Ayurvedic and Homoeopathic system of medicine are essentially traditional or alternate medicine which are popular within the country and play a significant role in providing healthcare to a large part of the population. Each system of medicine has its own unique characteristics and basis on which it provides cure and promotes good health. The argument of the Petitioners is that they are governed by the Unani Act which essentially means that their services along with their qualifications are regulated under the said Act. In order to appreciate this argument, it is necessary to examine the objective and mandate of the Unani Act. In terms of its preamble, it is an Act to regulate the qualifications and to provide for the registration of practitioners of Unani, Ayurvedic and Homoeopathic system of medicine. The Unani Act provides for a National Council for Tibb and National Council for Homoeopathy. The function of the Council as per Section 14 is to consider applications for recognition made by the institutions imparting or desiring to impart instruction in the system of medicine with which the Council is concerned. The Council also maintains adequate standards of education in recognized institutions and call for the registration of duly qualified persons. Teaching institutions and examinations are regulated under Chapter-II of the Unani Act and the registration of practitioners is provided for under Chapter-III. In terms of Section 24, every person who passes the qualified examination in the Unani, Ayurvedic or Homoeopathic system of medicine from a recognized institution must be registered in the respective register. Essentially there is a separate register for each system of medicine being Unani, Ayurvedic or Homoeopathic, hence practitioners of each system of medicine are required to be registered accordingly. Section 33 of the Unani Act provides for the privileges of a registered practitioner which entitles them to hold any appointment as physician or medical officer in any Unani, Ayurvedic, Homoeopathic dispensary, hospital, infirmary or as the case may be. It also allows them to vote for the election of members of the Council and to recover fees from the courts. In terms of this Section, such practitioners cannot use, sale or stock any drugs or medicine except for those which are stipulated by the Council for the purposes of Unani, Ayurvedic or Homoeopathic system of medicine or pharmacopoeia as approved by the Federal Government. In terms of Section 37 of the Unani Act, no person other than a person registered or listed as a practitioner shall practice or hold himself out to be practicing Unani, Ayurvedic and Homoeopathic system of medicine. The said Section also clearly prohibits Homeopaths from practicing surgery. Therefore the mandate of the Unani Act is to regulate and maintain quality in the field of education and practitioners of Unani, Ayurvedic and Homoeopathic system of medicine, similar to the manner in which the 1962 Ordinance regulates medical and dental practitioners. It regulates individual practitioners through registration under the Unani Act so as to ensure that their qualifications are from recognized institutions and that they are duly qualified to practice in their given field. The Unani Act does not regulate healthcare services or establishments where these traditional system of medicine are practised. Nor does it hold the service provider responsible in any manner. It is important to note that healthcare is not limited to the work of the practitioner. It is the entire environment within which diagnosis treatment and care are provided. The Unani Act governs the licensing and registration of individuals who practice in the field of Unani, Ayurvedic and Homoeopathic system of medicine but does not regulate healthcare services, service providers or establishments. It is important to note that the profession along with healthcare environment both need to be regulated because a person who requires any kind of healthcare will be subjected to the practitioner along with others such as the support staff, technicians, procedures, equipment, hospitals and clinics. The term medical profession does not cover the entire healthcare environment. It only regulates the profession. The federal laws being the PMDC Ordinance and the Unani Act provide for the system of licensing and registration of individuals and is totally different from the licensing and registration called for under the Health Act. Sections 13 and 14 of the Health Act calls for registration of the service provider and licensing of the healthcare establishments. This is separate and distinct from the registration called for of the practitioners under Section 24 of the Unani Act. Therefore the Unani Act does not regulate healthcare services, service provider or healthcare establishments, rather it regulates the individual practitioner.

15. In this regard, even Section 19 of the Health Act which provides for medical negligence, confines its application to the healthcare service provider and not the practitioner. However, if in a given case, the healthcare provider or his employee did not exercise reasonable competence or skill which they claim to have, they can be made liable for medical negligence. There may be situation where the service provider and practitioner are the same individual as a doctor or dentist or homoeopath or tibb is running the clinic or diagnostic centre or hospital, however in such a situation each law will operate within its given sphere and the registration under one law will not mean that registration under the other law is not required. Hence the practitioner can be made liable under the federal law as well as under the provincial law not only in the capacity of practitioner but also for being a healthcare service provider or establishment. It is important to note that a practitioner is registered and licensed to practice in his or her individual capacity and registration or licensing which regulates the profession will not include regulating all healthcare services as it includes those services that are not provided by the practitioner himself. The general scheme of healthcare law and clinical governance requires efficiency, responsibility and accountability at every level where healthcare is provided. Hence the practitioner, the services, the establishment and the service provider are all regulated to ensure that healthcare works at its optimum for the benefit of the people.

16. To conclude it is clear that the Health Act does not regulate the medical profession as the provision of healthcare services, establishment and service providers are to be regulated by the Commission. These subjects do not fall under the subject of medical profession rather falls within the ambit of public health or healthcare which requires the sector to be regulated. Standardized and accountable. In any regulatory regime registration and licensing is fundamental for the authority to fulfill its objective and mandate. In these cases the Commission is required to create system of clinical governance and healthcare so that it can effectively monitor the work of all services, service provider and establishment in healthcare. This is distinct and separate from registering the profession of the practitioner, therefore the Health Act is not ultra vires the Constitution and the mandate of the Health Act falls squarely within the provincial domain.

Sealing Power

17. When the instant petition along with connected petitions were filed pursuant to the anti-quackery drive, the question of whether or not the Commission has the power to seal healthcare establishments arose. At the time it was decided in terms of the judgment delivered by the learned Single Judge that the Commission did not have the power to seal healthcare establishments as there were no rules or regulations on the basis of which the act of sealing derived legal sanctity. The Commission exercised this power on the basis of the Standing Orders of the Commission for banning quackery in all its forms and manifestations for dealing with quacks which were duly approved by the Board of the Commission. However, the Court held that the Standing Orders were administrative directions of the Commission which are not enforceable against an individual or third party. Further that they deal with internal governance and at best regulate the internal working of the Commission. The Court concluded that there was no subordinate or delegated legislation as authorized by the parent legislation which empowers the Commission to exercise the power of sealing. Hence it was declared that the Commission did not have the power to seal a healthcare establishment. After the judgment was passed, the Commission framed regulations being the Punjab Healthcare Commission

Regulations for Banning Quackery in all its Forms and Manifestations for Dealing with Quacks, 2016 which were duly published in the official gazette on 26.10.2016 and thereafter amended in the official gazette on 9.3.2017 ("Regulations"). Accordingly the Commission now acts under the Regulations which provide for the mode and manner in which the power of sealing is to be exercised.

18. The Petitioners have questioned the authority of the Commission to seal clinics and to take action against quacks on two grounds. The first ground for challenge is that the power of sealing is not provided for in the parent statute being the Health Act, hence the Commission can at best levy a fine but does not have the power to seal any healthcare establishment. The second ground is that the Commission could not have taken any action against the Petitioners since they are not quacks.

19. Learned counsel for the Commission argued that the mandate of the Health Act is to ban quackery in all forms and manifestations and in terms of Section 2(xxix) of the Health Act, a quack is a person who pretends to provide healthcare services without the required registration of the PMDC, Council for Tibb, Council for Homoeopathy and Nursing Council. These are the relevant federal authorities which register and license a practitioner in the respective field. Without this registration and licensing a person cannot practice in that field and if he or she does then they fall under the definition of a quack. In terms of the functions and powers of the Commission as provided under Section 4 of the Health Act, the Commission has the power to take all necessary steps to ban quackery. The Respondents counsel argued that the power of sealing is inherent in the statutory requirement to take necessary step as sealing is a necessary step in the prevention and eradication of quacks and quackery. Notwithstanding the same, the Commission has framed the Regulations which clearly provide for the power of visit, seizure and sealing. It also provides for the power to deal with complaints and prescribes for the steps that may be taken thereafter. Learned counsel for the Respondents explained to the Court that in each case pending before the Court the individuals were served with notices and were given ample opportunity to appear before the Commission to provide their registration and licenses to operate as healthcare service providers and to run healthcare establishments. However, they failed to do so, hence necessary action was taken by the Commission after following due process which included visits to the clinics before sealing the clinics of some of the Petitioners for want of registration and licenses.

20. Learned counsel for the Respondents also brought the attention of the Court to the orders passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Human Rights Case No.19921-P/2018 and Civil Misc. Applications Nos.1140-L, 1142-L, 1265-L, 1512-L and 4389/2018, where the august Supreme Court of Pakistan vide order dated 3.6.2018 has directed the Commission to ensure that all healthcare service providers and healthcare establishments are registered in terms of the requirement of the Health Act and that no person can operate an establishment or act as a service provider without registration and licensing under the Health Act. Learned counsel stated that in terms of the case pending before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, homoeopaths, tibb, rehabilitation centre, diagnostic centres, dispensaries, all have been directed to register with the Commission. Furthermore in terms of Suo Motu Case No.1 of 2010 and H.R.C. No.27813-Petitioner of 2017, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan vide order dated 14.4.2018 directed the Commission to take immediate steps to ban all such businesses including sealing of premises where quackery is being practised. Consequently the Commission has been actively pursuing the directions of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan and has taken necessary action in the event of non-compliance of the requirements of registration and licensing.

21. Notwithstanding the directions of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, since the question of the authority of the Commission to seal clinics is before this Court consequent to the remand order dated 14.2.2017 by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the cases before this Court require consideration on the question of whether or not the Commission has the power to seal healthcare establishment.

Opinion

22. As already stated the mandate of the Health Act is to ban quacks and quackery. It goes without saying that any person who is not registered or licensed under the federal law is not entitled to practice or hold themselves out to be practitioners as they are not recognized or authorized under the relevant law to practice in that profession. Therefore any person holding himself or herself out to be a practitioner, who is not duly licensed and registered under the relevant law is a quack and has to be stopped from practising. The Commission has also as part of its anti-quackery drive, initiated action against healthcare service providers and healthcare establishments which are not registered or licensed under the Health Act. It is their contention that without registration and licensing the Commission is unable to enforce its standards and will not be able to investigate and inspect the service providers and establishments. It also means that people are practicing in the health sector without any regulatory influence and are not answerable to any quality checks. This puts the public at risk as they can be treated by establishment which are not answerable in the quality of services they provide. Hence the requirement of registration and licensing of the service providers and establishments is mandatory under the Health Act and any person providing healthcare services or running healthcare establishment, without registration or licensing can be deemed to be indulging in quackery as they are not in compliance with the Health Act and are avoiding making themselves liable to the standards and the Code of Conduct issued by the Commission. This is a manifestation of quackery as the service provider or establishment is not authorized to provide healthcare. In this regard the preamble of the Health Act mandates that the Commission shall improve the quality of healthcare services and ban quackery in all its forms and manifestations. Therefore the meaning of all forms and manifestations will include persons providing healthcare services or running a healthcare establishment without being duly registered or licensed. Such a person is also a pretender who is providing services without permission from the required authority. Such persons may not necessarily fall within the definition of a quack as per Section 2(xxix) of the Health Act, but the power to seal that establishment or service provider is exercised to ensure compliance of the law.

23. The Petitioners have argued that the only power that the Commission has is to impose a fine and that sealing is not authorized under the Health Act. The primary objective of the Commission while regulating healthcare and clinical governance is public safety and public health. Any matter which puts the public health at risk or which compromises the health and care of a person, must be protected through preventive action. This Court has already held that the precautionary principle is applicable to the Punjab Food Authority while regulating food safety laws in the case cited as Lung Fung Chinese Restaurant through Atiq Ahmed and 2 others v. Punjab Food Authority through Secretary and 6 others (PLD 2017 Lahore 545) as the precautionary principle enables public authorities to legitimately impose precautionary measures in response to situations that may lead to imminent harm and danger. In the same way the concept of precaution and prevention lies at the heart of public health practice, Dealing in public health means identifying and avoiding risks to the life and health of a person as well as ensure that protected measures are taken to prevent any harm to persons who will require healthcare. The precautionary principle addresses uncertain risks and enables action to take place before any harm is caused, so as to prevent irreversible harm to the health of a person. The precautionary principle therefore enables an authority to take preventive measures to prevent the damage and the irreparable harm that can be caused. The WHO has published several reports on this issue starting from 2003 when the report of "Dealing with uncertainty: How the precautionary principle can help protecting the future of our children". In continuation thereof the WHO has successively published reports on the use of the precautionary principle as a means to promote protection to public health. The power of seizing and sealing is one of the preventive measures that is recognized as being essential to prevent continuous harm and has been given priority and preference so as to allow an authority to act immediately. It is seen that the precautionary principle and the preventive powers exercised thereunder essentially enable the authority to shift its response from re-action to precaution. It requires taking preventive action in the face of uncertainty and shifting the burden of proof to the proponents of the activity. It requires the system to ensure that its decisions are safe and efficient with public safety and health as its primary concern. By allowing the wrong to continue not only is public health at risk but the safety of persons who are being treated by pretenders is totally compromised. Therefore necessary steps as per Section 4 of the Health Act includes the inherent power of sealing as a preventive measure. The Regulations issued under Section 40(1) of the Health Act in 2016 prescribe the procedure to be adopted when the Commission is to seal a healthcare establishment. Hence the power of sealing exercised by the Commission is in furtherance of the mandate of the Health At and the powers given to it under the law. In this regard the power exercised prior to the framing of the Regulations falls within the inherent power to seal healthcare establishment to prevent any further risk or harm to persons under treatment or care by a healthcare establishment or healthcare service provider. Hence no illegality is made out against the act of sealing.

On the merits of the cases against sealing clinics

24. With respect to the merits of the individual cases before the Court, so far as due process is concerned, the record shows that due process in each case was duly followed. Notices were issued to the Petitioners calling for their registration or license under the Health Act. Since they did not produce either license or registration, their clinics were sealed. As per the arguments made and the record produced, sufficient time and opportunity was granted to the Petitioners to appear before the Commission to show their licences or registration, however they failed to do so. It is noted that in all these cases the Petitioners who essentially practice homoeopathy or tibb are also dental hygienists and dental technicians who believe that they do not require any kind of registration or licensing under the Health Act. It is their contention that since they are licensed and registered under the Unani Act, no further license or registration is required to run the clinic or to do the work of dental hygienists and dental technicians. In this regard, it has already been stated while discussing the vires of the Health Act that public health is regulated at different levels which will mean regulating the individual as well as regulating the services, the service provider as well as the healthcare establishment. Since the requirement of registration and licensing under the Health Act is mandatory, its compliance is necessary and any person who fails to comply with the law will face the consequences as described under the Health Act.

25. The Petitioners have also raised issues with respect to their qualifications and ability to practice as dental practitioners. Writ Petition No.79690/17 is filed by Zameer Ali Shah who states that he is a homoeopath as well as tibb practicing at Gojra for the last two decades; that he obtained a diploma as dental hygienists from Skill Development Council and therefore provides the services of a dental hygienists at his clinic. Initially his clinic was sealed, however after the orders of the Additional District Judge, the clinic was de-sealed. His grievance is that since he is registered under the Unani Act, the Respondents are illegally harassing him and stopping him from providing services of dentistry and surgery. Learned counsel for the stated Petitioner relied upon the diploma issued by the Skill Development Council and the registration under the Unani Act to argue the point that the Petitioner is qualified to practice dentistry. He further argued that the sealing power exercised by the Respondents was totally illegal; that the sealing report issued on 16.8.2017 shows that the Petitioner was not carrying out any invasive procedure and that it falls within the permitted functions of a homoeopath and tibb. He further argued that the Petitioner is allowed to use dental equipment even under the tibb and homoeopathic procedure, hence as such no illegality is made out against the Petitioners.

26. Writ Petition No.28593/2015 is filed by Naghma Ashraf who claims to be homoeopath duly registered under the Unani Act and challenges the sealing of her clinic. Learned counsel in this case stated that in terms of the letter issued by Hakeem Nazeer Ahmed Asad who is Assistant Director (Homeo and Unani), homeopaths and Tibb are allowed to use instruments for diagnosis such as thermometer, blood pressure apparatuses and stethoscope in their clinics, hence on account of usage of the same the premises should not be sealed.

27. Writ Petition No.2427/2017 is filed by the Punjab Dental Practitioners Association as well as Mushtaq Ahmad who is a homoeopath and tibb and has a diploma from Skill Development Council as a dental hygienists and dental technician. His clinic was sealed on 4.9.2015 which was ultimately de-sealed on 16.10.2015 by the District and Sessions Judge, Toba Tek Singh. In this case also the Respondents stated that due process was followed, several notices were issued, however, the Petitioner Mushtaq Ahmad did not respond, hence the healthcare establishment was sealed. Learned counsel for the Respondents stated that the Petitioner was running an establishment under the name of "Teeth Hospital" and during the visit to the establishment it was noticed that he was practicing dentistry; that he was unable to produce any registration under the 1962 Ordinance nor a license under the Health Act.

28. Writ Petition Nos.19597/2015, 38582/2015 and 21753/15 are filed by some homoeopaths and tibbs. In Writ Petition Nos.19597/2015, 38582/2015, the Petitioners have only challenged the vires of the Health Act. They hold diplomas from the Skill Development Council and they seek a direction that the Respondents should not interfere in the lawful business. Writ Petition No.31831/2015 is filed by the Punjab Dental Practitioners Association wherein it is prayed that the Commission should not illegally harass the members of the Association. It also seeks a declaration that all persons registered under the Unani Act be authorized to practice as dental technicians and dental hygienists, if they possess the appropriate diploma by the Skill Development Council.

29. The case of the aforementioned Petitioners is that they are qualified and permitted to act as dental hygienists and dental technician and that this falls within the scope of their practice as registered and licensed under the Unani Act. Chaudhary Muhammad Umar, Advocate for the Commission during the course of arguments highlighted the nature and issues with reference to the diploma issued by the Skill Development Council. He argued that while the Petitioners have placed reliance on the diploma issued by the Skill Development Council, the Respondents have taken strong exception to the same. He explained that the Skill Development Council is not authorized under the National Training Ordinance, 1980 as amended by the National Training (Amendment) Ordinance, 2002 ("Training Ordinance") to provide training in paramedical courses or courses for allied health professionals which includes dental hygienists and dental technician. He further submitted that a dental hygienists and dental technician falls within the definition of allied health professionals and such persons are not authorized to practice independently without the supervision of a qualified dentist. Learned counsel further argued that the Punjab Medical Faculty is the examining body which conducts various examinations of paramedics and allied health professionals including dental hygienists and dental technician. On the basis of the certificates issued by the Punjab Medical Faculty, it is clearly provided that the holder of such certificate is not permitted to practice independently or to open a private clinic. They can only work under the supervision of qualified dentists. This is not disputed by the Petitioners, yet they argued that their respective Councils under the Unani Act permit them to use dental equipment and as part of traditional medicine working on the gums and teeth falls within their prescribed areas of practice.

30. The Unani Act provides for the constitution and function of a Council for Homoeopathy and a Council for Tibb. The function of the Councils are prescribed in Section 14 of the Unani Act as follows:

14. Functions of the Council.- The following shall be the functions of the Council, namely:-
(a) To consider applications for recognition under this Act made by institutions imparting or desiring to impart instruction in the system of medicine with which the Council is concerned;
(b) To secure the maintenance of an adequate standard of education in recognized institutions;
(c) to make arrangements for the registration of duly qualified persons in accordance with the provisions of this Act;
(cc) to appoint committees or sub-committees, each having due representation of all the Provinces, for a specific period, to perform any specified function concerned with the functions of the Council;
(d) to provide for research in the system of medicine with which the Council is concerned; and
(e) to do such other acts and things as it may be empowered or required to do by this Act or the rules.
Whilst the Councils are regulating the practice of the practitioners, the Councils cannot authorize or recognize any training in scientific medical practice as it tantamounts to encroachment in the jurisdiction of the authorities regulating the scientific medical practice. In these cases the issue is specifically related to the practice of dental hygienists or dental technicians. The individual practitioners and the Dental Associations before the Court want to practice as dental hygienists and dental technicians on the basis of their diplomas from Skill Development Council. This permission or recognition cannot be granted by the Council as it falls under the scope of the Training Ordinance and the Punjab Medical Faculty who are duly authorized to train dental hygienists or technicians. The Councils are bound by the directives prescribed by the Punjab Medical Faulty and cannot prescribe anything to the contrary. So if a homoeopath or tibb, as the case may be, want to practice as dental hygienists and dental technician they will have to follow the directives issued under the Training Ordinance and by the Punjab Medical Faculty. They will have to be trained by the recognized institution and are bound by the restrictions prescribed by the competent authority, in this case being the Punjab Medical Faculty. Consequently the Petitioners cannot practice as dental hygienists or dental technician based on their diplomas issued by the Skill Development Council because these programs are not recognized programs nor is the Skill Development Council permitted to train allied health professionals. In this regard, it is necessary to note that only authorized programs and trainers can offer such professional training and if additional training is taken then all regulatory requirements attached to the professional training must be followed.

31. As is apparent from reading the prescribed function, the Council regulates education standards, qualifications and the institutions which provide training in homeopathy and tibb. Section 18 of the Unani Act provides for the maintenance of standard of efficiency of recognized institutions, authorizing the Councils to inspect the institutions and to provide necessary information. Section 21 of the Unani Act allows the Councils to regulate admission to the recognized institutions and Section 24 calls for registration of practitioners. So essentially the Unani Act regulates professional education, the institutions and the practitioner. In doing so they form opinions on the practice of homoeopathic and tibb system of medicine by practitioners registered under the Unani Act. The Council considers matters related to the practice and issues directives accordingly. In these cases, the Petitioners are all specifically reliant on their Skill Development Council diplomas as dental hygienists and dental technicians and on the basis thereof want to provide these services in their clinics. The risk in these cases are that the Petitioners being trained and licensed under the Unani Act, are seeking to use scientific or modern methods of healthcare without any regulatory compliance. This cannot be permitted as it puts public health at risk and compromises public safety. The field of dental hygienists and technicians is regulated under the Bye-laws of the Punjab Medical Faculty as these fields fall under the definition of Allied Health Professionals and are registered accordingly. The Council therefore is not competent to permit or recognize Allied Health Professionals practice nor can they allow practitioners registration under the Unani Act to indulge in such practices.

32. Therefore in view of what has been discussed, W.Ps. Nos.79690/17, 2427/17, 31831/15, 19597/15, 38582/15, 28593/15, 11158/16 and 21753/15 are dismissed and W.P. No.32150/2015 is allowed and the impugned order dated 16.10.2015 is set aside.

33. Writ Petition No.30210/2016 is filed by seven Petitioners who are not registered under the Unani Act. The Petitioners have passed the examination of professional education two years Diploma course in Dental Hygienist from Skill Development Council and on the basis of which they are allowed to practice dentistry. In this petition, the Petitioners seek a direction that the Respondents should not interfere in the lawful business of the Petitioners and should not harass or humiliate them.

34. At the very outset, it is noted that these Petitioners are not registered under the Unani Act. The only question is that they have diplomas from Skill Development Council as dental hygienist. So far as these Petitioners are concerned they clearly fall under the definition of quack under the Health Act and any action taken by the Respondents with respect to their establishment is on the basis of the fact that they are not registered under the Unani Act and are not qualified to practice dentistry. Hence this petition is dismissed.

35. WP No.28517/2016 is filed by Mian Abdul Majeed who seeks a direction to Respondent No.1 for the issuance of license. This relief as such cannot be granted by this Court in its constitutional jurisdiction. The Petitioner may apply for the required license and registration, if so advised which will be duly considered by the competent authority in accordance with law. Hence this petition is also dismissed.

ORDER

Through the instant Appeal, filed under section 22 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 (the "Ordinance"), the Appellant seeks setting aside of order dated 14.03.2018, passed by the Banking Court, Sargodha (the "Banking Court") whereby his application for setting aside ex parte judgment and decree was dismissed.

2. Learned counsel for the Appellant inter alia submitted that the Banking Court has not taken into consideration the true facts and circumstances of the case while dismissing the application of the Appellant; that the impugned order is against law and facts; that the Appellant has never signed on the Wakalatnama of Mr. Khaliq Dad, Advocate who pleaded the case on her behalf without any authorization; that there is much difference between the signatures of the Appellant on the power of attorney as well as on the petition for leave to Appeal; that the Banking Court has not taken into consideration the fact that no proper service of summons was ever made upon the Appellant; that the Appellant remained unheard and a decree of heavy amount, which otherwise is not proved, has been passed against her, as such the ex parte judgment and decree is against the principle of natural justice; that if the impugned order is not set aside the Appellant shall suffer an irreparable loss.

3. We have heard the arguments and perused the record.

4. The perusal of record reveals that the judgment and decree was passed against the Appellant on 20.02.2017. It was clearly mentioned in the judgment and decree that the Appellant moved application for leave to defend the suit raising certain objections on legal as well as factual side. The said application is also part of the record. The main contention of the Appellant is that neither she was properly served upon personally nor the application for leave to defend was ever filed by her and that too the signatures on the power of attorney allegedly filed by Ch. Khalid Dad Warraich, Advocate on her behalf are also fake and fabricated. The whole record does not show that the Appellant has ever filed any complaint against the said lawyer (Ch. Khalid Dad Warraich, Advocate) i. for submission of power of attorney on her behalf ii. for fake signatures and iii. for filing of application for leave to defend without her permission despite the fact that a decree of heavy amount has been passed against her. Moreover, the Appellant's contention regarding service of summons also does not have any weight because the Banking Court has observed in the impugned order that infact two separate suits were filed by the Respondent i.e. one against her and the other against her husband and the said lawyer contested both the said suits on their behalf. Nothing is on the record which could show that at the time of service of summons there is separation between the husband and wife.

5. The grounds for filing application for setting aside the said ex parte judgment and decree were that the ex parte judgment and decree has been obtained on the basis of fraud and misrepresentation. It is well settled principle that if fraud is alleged in an application for setting aside ex parte judgment and decree, its necessary ingredients must be pleaded, so as to subsequently prove the same. Mere general and bald allegations of fraud and misrepresentation, could not form basis to upset a decree, otherwise validly passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction. From the material made available with this file, no case for interference in the impugned order is made out. The Appellant has failed to prove the fraud and misrepresentation by the Respondent Bank for obtaining impugned judgment and decree against her. It is evident from the record that the judgment and decree was passed on the basis of banking documents appended with the plaint including the finance agreement etc. In Ireno Wahab v. Lahore Diocesan Trust, (2016 CLC Note 85) this Court held that Applicant was required to prove that fraud and misrepresentation was procured during proceedings in the court; that alleged fraud was due to false statement and concealment of facts and that judgment was obtained on the basis of forged documents and decree was collusively obtained. The Applicant had not proved the ingredients of fraud and misrepresentation. Reliance is placed on Mst. Nasir Khatoon's case (2003 SCMR 1050) and Dadabhay Cement's case (PLD 2002 SC 500). Reliance in this regard can also be placed on the case titled Riaz Ahmed v. Bank of Punjab (2016 C L D 596) in which the Division Bench of this Court held that the application filed under section 12(2), C.P.C. did not mention any particulars constituting fraud and misrepresentation on the part of respondent bank in obtaining the judgment and decree from the Banking Court. The fact that the respondent bank had applied to the insurance company for realization of the insurance claim had no bearing on the recovery suit filed by it against the appellants which was only concerned with the determination of liability against the appellants. It is also not necessary for a Court to always prove issues on an application filed under section 12(2), C.P.C. more so when the particulars of fraud and misrepresentation are missing.

6. We agree with the findings of the Banking Court which rightly dismissed the application for setting aside of ex parte judgment and decree filed by the Appellant and do not see any illegality or perversity in the impugned order which has been passed strictly in accordance with law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the Appeal in hand, being devoid of any merit, is hereby dismissed in limine.

ORDER

Through the instant First Appeal Against Order, filed under section 22 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 (the "Ordinance"), the Appellants seek setting aside of the order dated 28.10.2017, passed by the Banking Court-II, Lahore (the "Banking Court") whereby their objection petition was dismissed.

2. Learned counsel for the Appellants inter alia submitted that the Banking Court has not taken into consideration the true facts and circumstances of the case while dismissing the objection petition of the Appellants; that the interim relief was granted by the Banking Court on 23.05.2017 and the next date of hearing was fixed as 30.05.2017 but the auction was completed on 25.05.2017 which is totally in contravention of order dated 23.05.2017; that the impugned order is against law and facts; the objection petition was dismissed without affording proper hearing to the Appellants; that the Banking Court has failed to appreciate the fact that the Appellants are in possession of the disputed property and if they are ousted without proper adjudication of the lis, they would suffer an irreparable loss; that the judgment and decree was obtained on the basis of misrepresentation and fraud.

3. On the other hand, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the Respondents Nos.1, 4 and 5, vehemently controverted the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Appellants and prayed for dismissal of the Appeal on the ground that impugned order has been passed strictly in accordance with law and as such does not call for any interference by this Division Bench.

4. We have heard the arguments of both the sides and perused the record.

5. The record reveals that the Appellants have laid much stress on the point that the Banking Court vide order dated 23.05.2017 granted interim relief to the Appellants that subject to deposit of 50% cash of the decretal amount in the Court account or Bank surety, the auction proceeds shall remain suspended. He further contended that as the next date of hearing was fixed as 30.05.2017, therefore, the Appellants were to deposit the 50% till 30.05.2017 but the Banking Court dismissed the objection petition against the law and facts. The bare examination of the order dated 23.05.2017 reflects that it has two parts. In the first part although the Banking Court fixed the next date of hearing as 30.05.2017 yet the same was for submission of reply to the application and arguments but not for the deposit of 50% of the decretal amount. Whereas in the second portion conditional interim relief was granted that if the Appellants deposit 50% cash of the decretal amount in the Court account or Bank surety, the auction proceeds shall remain suspended otherwise it will continue. Meaning thereby, that no time till 30.05.2017 was afforded to the Appellants for deposit of 50% cash of decretal amount or Bank surety, therefore, subsequently conducting auction proceedings i.e. on 25.05.2017 are not in defiance with the Court's order. Furthermore, the Banking Court has also observed in the impugned order that the Appellants have failed to point out any irregularity or fraud in publication or conducting the auction of mortgaged property. If fraud is alleged in an objection application, its necessary ingredients must be pleaded, so as to subsequently prove the same. Accordingly, general and bald allegations of fraud etc. could not form basis to upset the proceedings otherwise validly conducted by a Court of competent jurisdiction. From the material made available with this file, no case for interference in the impugned order is made out. The Appellants have failed to prove the fraud by the Respondent Bank.

6. Moreover, after the dismissal of application under section 12(2), Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (C.P.C.), the Appeal (F.A.O. No.46/2017) filed by the Appellants before the Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court was withdrawn in order to file objection petition before the Banking Court, as such the judgment and decree had attained finality and cannot be now agitated. The contention of the Appellants to this extent has badly failed.

7. We, therefore, agree with the findings of the Banking Court which rightly dismissed the objection petition filed by the Appellants and do not see any illegality or perversity in the impugned order which has been passed strictly in accordance with law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the Appeal in hand, being devoid of any merit, is hereby dismissed.

ORDER

Through the instant Intra Court Appeal the Appellant has called in question the legality of impugned order dated 09.08.2017 passed in Writ Petition No.58785/2017 by the learned Single Judge whereby his petition was dismissed in limine.

2. The main grievance of the Appellant is that he was employed in Sargodha Cattle Market Management Company on contract basis for one year w.e.f. 13.04.2016 and his contract was extended till 30.06.2017 but in subsequent Board Meeting held on 22.07.2017, it was decided that the contract period of the Appellant shall not be further extended. The Appellant was informed about this decision vide letter dated 24.07.2017. Feeling aggrieved thereby the Appellant filed writ petition which was dismissed in limine by the learned Single Judge vide the impugned order. Hence, the instant Appeal.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellant contended that the contract period of the Appellant has not been extended further on the basis of his alleged poor performance, as such a stigma has been made on his character; that the Appellant should have been provided opportunity of persona hearing which has not been afforded to him; that the learned Single Judge in the impugned order has not appreciated the fact of discrimination as the contract period of the other colleagues of the Appellant has been extended while the Appellant has been deprived of the same. Learned counsel also argued that the Appellant has not been afforded opportunity of fair trial, as such he has been condemned unheard on the basis of mala fide.

4. We have heard the arguments of the learned counsel for the Appellant and examined the record available with this Appeal.

5. The main grievance of the Appellant is that his contract period be extended and his case be considered for regularization of his services. The Appellant was appointed on purely contract basis in the Respondents/Department vide appointment letter dated 13.04.2016. The Appellant after accepting the terms and conditions of his contract employment submitted his joining report. Specific terms in the employment contract, containing certain terms and conditions, are inserted which explicitly reveal that initially this offer of appointment is only for a period of One Year which will be extended further as per government policy and on watching your output as General Manager Operation and in case of poor performance the services of the Petitioner can be terminated at any time without assigning any reason. Moreover, allegedly the behavior of the Appellant remained unsatisfactory toward his superiors which resulted into not extension of his contract.

6. It is an established principle that where employment is on contract, there is a relationship of master and servant and in such like cases the Constitutional petition under Article 199 of the Constitution is not maintainable. Reliance in this regard can be placed on Lt. Col. Rtd. Aamir Rauf v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary M/o Defence and 3 others (2011 PLC (C.S.) 654) and Nadeem Ahmed v. Pakistan State Oil Company Limited and another (2005 PLC (C.S.) 1447). In view of the settled principle, the learned Single Judge has rightly held that the Appellant has no vested right on the basis of which he was entitled to relief in a Constitutional petition by holding that the Petitioner has failed to pinpoint any statutory Rules and Regulations which have been violated by the Respondents in issuing letter dated 24.07.2017 for not extending his employment contract.

7. So far as the contention of the learned counsel for the Appellant that he was terminated on the basis of stigma of poor performance and no opportunity of fair trial has been afforded to the Appellant is concerned, in this regard the impugned letter shows that the Appellant was not terminated rather his contract has not been extended further after the expiry of cutoff date. The Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court in case titled Dr. Abid Ali v. Chief Secretary, Government of Punjab and 3 others (2017 PLC (C.S.) 488) has held that the employee, after accepting terms and conditions of his contract employment had submitted his joining report. Service of such employee could be terminated without assigning any reason. Employee had no right to claim extension in his contract period as a vested right. Behaviour of employee remained unsatisfactory towards his superior which resulted into his termination. In Case titled Mubashar Majeed v. Province of Punjab and 3 others (2017 PLC (C.S.) 940) the Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court has also held that employee could not claim extension of the contract as a matter of right rather it was the prerogative of the competent authority either to dispense with services of such employee or continue with the same by tending the contract.

8. Furthermore, learned Single Judge has rightly observed in paragraph 4 of the impugned order that the reply to displeasure letter was filed by the Appellant and that too the Appellant was provided opportunity to put across his point of view which he did on 21.07.2017 however, his explanation was not found satisfactory. As such, the Appellant cannot say that he has not been afforded opportunity of hearing.

9. In view of above, we see no illegality or legal infirmity in the impugned order which has been passed by the learned Single Judge in consonance with the spirit of law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the instant Appeal is devoid of any merit and is accordingly dismissed in limine.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner has challenged order dated 12.9.2018 passed in Election Appeal No.354-A of 2018. It may be noted that the instant petition is fixed as urgent, for today. Counsel for Respondent No.3, Mian Sulan Tanvir Ahmad is present before the Court as are Mr. Nasar Ahmad and Mr. M. Javaid Kasuri, DAGs. Since the parties present before the Court have no objection to the request of the Petitioner to the case to be heard in its entirety, given the urgency in the matter, we proceed to decide the issues raised in this Petition.

2. The basic facts are that the Petitioner is the sitting Chairperson of District Council, Toba Tek Singh. While holding the office of Chairperson, she filed nomination papers for the Bye-Election of the Provincial Assembly in PP-I18, Toba Tek Singh-I. Objections were filed by Respondent No.3 against the nomination papers on the ground that she is barred under Section 28 (1) of the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 ("PLGA") to contest the Bye-Election as she has not tendered her resignation from the post of Chairperson, District Council, Toba Tek Singh. The Returning Officer rejected the objections vide order dated 3.9.2018 on the ground that the matter has been decided in Election Appeal No.6 of 2018 titled "Al-Haaj Azhar Iqbal Satti v. Returning Officers and others" and since scrutiny has to be conducted in terms of Articles 62 and 63 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitutions") and Section 231 of the Elections Act, 2017 ("Elections Act"), the Petitioner is qualified and allowed to contest the Bye-Election. Against this order, Respondent No.3 filed an Election Appeal before the Election Tribunal which was allowed and the order of 3.9.2018 was set aside. Consequently, the nomination papers filed by the Petitioner were rejected. Being aggrieved by the order dated 12.9.2018, the Petitioner is now before this Court essentially on the ground that Section 28 of the PLGA is not a precondition to the filing of nomination papers and that the Petitioner is not required to tender her resignation until the last date for withdrawal of candidature and publication of revised list of contesting candidates. As per the schedule provided for the Bye-Election, the last date of withdrawal of candidature is 15.9.2018, hence the urgency in the matter.

3. Mr. Muhammad Shahzad Shaukat, counsel for the Petitioner argued that the impugned order has treated Section 28(1) of the PLGA as a precondition to the filing of the nomination papers. Learned counsel argued that in terms of Section 2 of the Elections Act a candidate is a person whose name is proposed and seconded for election to the Assembly or the Senate and a validly nominated candidate is a candidate whose nomination papers have been accepted. A contesting candidate is a validly nominated candidate who has not withdrawn his candidature. Learned counsel argued that in terms of these definitions, the Petitioner was a validly nominated candidate as her nomination papers were accepted and since she was not a contesting candidate, she had the right to withdraw her candidature on 15.9.2018 or tender her resignation as the case may be. Learned counsel argued that Section 28 (1) of the PLGA, allows a Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Chairman or Vice Chairman to contest the election for any political office after resignation from the aforesaid office. The option of may contest means that the Petitioner has the right to contest elections once she becomes a contesting candidate. Therefore, in terms of Section 28(1) of the PLGA she must tender her resignation before becoming a contesting candidate. It is the case of the Petitioner that she had the option to tender her resignation by or before 15.9.2018 being the last date for withdrawal of candidature meaning thereby that the order of the Returning Officer was in accordance with law and the Appellate Tribunal failed to appreciate this point. Learned counsel placed reliance on the judgment dated 25.6.2018 passed in Election Appeal No.6/2018 titled "Al-Haaj Azhar Iqbal Satti v. Returning Officer - and another", judgment dated 12.9.2018 passed in W.P. No.231135/2018 titled "Muhammad Riaz v. Appellate Authority" and "Rana Salman Mahmood Khan v. Returning Officer and another" (2008 CLC 316).

4. On behalf of Respondent No.3, it is argued that the bar contained in Section 28 (1) of the PLGA is applicable at the time of filing nomination papers as the purpose of the bar is to prevent a person holding office of Chairman or Vice Chairman, Mayor or Deputy Mayor from participating in the election and influencing the election on the basis of their being office holders of the local government. Learned counsel further argued that in such cases the office holder as mentioned in Section 28 (1) of the PLGA can exert influence over the electoral process, which will defeat the entire election process. He also argued that in this case, the Petitioner is travelling on official duty and the instant Petition has been filed by her husband and that she has not tendered her resignation to date whilst she seeks the opportunity to tender her resignation by 15.9.2018 without being present in person. Learned counsel argued that once the scrutiny process is over and the Petitioner being the Chairperson of District Council, Toba Tek Singh is declared fit to contest the election, there is no further mechanism under the Elections Act on the basis of which it can be determined whether or not the Petitioner tendered her resignation before publication of the list of contesting candidates. Consequently if the relief claimed by the Petitioner is allowed those who are barred under Section 28 of the PLGA may very easily contest the elections rendering the purpose of Section 28(1) of the PLGA as redundant.

5. In rebuttal, learned counsel for the Petitioner explained that the Petitioner is out of the country on official duty and has issued a special power of attorney in favour of her husband to file the instant petition. The original special power of attorney was produced before the Court. He also showed a copy of the resignation prepared by the Petitioner, which he stated is being presented to the Court to show the bona fides of the Petitioner that in the event she is allowed to contest the election she will tender her resignation immediately. Learned counsel stated that he can also provide an undertaking before this Court that the Petitioner will tender her resignation, if the Court allows the instant petition.

6. Mr. Nasar Ahmad, DAG supports the contentions raised by the learned counsel for the Petitioner. He argued that the right to participate in elections is a fundamental right and the PLGA cannot curtail this right by reading the bar in Section 28 (1) of the PLGA as a precondition for filing nomination papers.

7. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at length. The basic issue before the Court is the time frame within which a resignation should be tendered by the Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Chairman and Vicc Chairman in order to contest elections for any other political office, in terms of the bar contained in Section 28 (1) of the PLGA. For ease of reference Section 28 of the PLGA is reproduced below:-

28. Bar against dual membership. (1) A Mayor, a Deputy Mayor, a Chairman or a Vice Chairman may contest election for any other political office after resigning from the office of the Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Chairman or Vice Chairman.

(2) A member of a local government, other than the Chairman of a Union Council, may contest election for any other political office without resigning from the membership of the local government but any such member shall not simultaneously hold more than one office.

(3) If a member of a local government is elected to any other political office, on the notification of election of that political office, his seat as member of the local government shall become vacant.

(4) If a Chairman of a Union Council is elected as the Mayor or a Deputy Mayor, or as the Chairman or a Vice Chairman of the District Council, he shall cease to be the Chairman of the Union Council and the seat of the Chairman of the Union Council shall stand vacated.

(5) Nothing in this section shall apply to bar a member of a local government to contest the election of Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Chairman or Vice Chairman of a local government or a member of an Authority.

The Section calls for resignation by the names of the office in the local government scheme in the event that the holder of such office opts to contest elections of any other political office. The spirit behind the bar imposed on dual membership is that the holders of specific positions being Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Chairman and Vice Chairman should not be allowed to contest for any other political office due to the nature of their post. They sit at the highest level in the local government and are in a position to use the resources from the mentioned offices, including their staff for campaigning purposes and can influence the election process. The mandate of Section 28(1) of the PLGA is to prevent a single person from holding office whilst contesting for another political office as it is necessary to ensure that an office holder should dedicate his or her time to their official duties and not towards personal advancement. The bar ensures that office holders do not unfairly leverage their present position against other candidates or that they maintain public offices as a fall back.

8. In terms of the judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the Petitioner, two of the judgments are by the Election Tribunal in which it is stated that the use of the expression 'may contest election' does not include the stage of filing of nomination papers and a person is considered to be contesting the election once they become a contesting candidate as defined under the law. In another case in W.P. No.231135/2018, the Court considered the bar contained in Section 28 of the PLGA and while relying on 2008 CLC 316 (supra) the Court finds that mere filing of nomination paper is not sufficient for the purpose of being qualified to contest the election and it is only after the nomination papers are accepted that a validly nominated candidate, who has not withdrawn his candidature, is ready to contest the election. There is no cavil to the fact that every person has a right to contest elections and that this being a fundamental right can only be reasonably curtailed. The legislature was mindful of the fact that the named office holders in Section 28 of the PLGA exert power and influence at the local government level and have a large amount of resources available to them. Therefore, in order to prevent any influence over the electoral process it is required that they resign from their office prior to contesting the election. We find that the word contest is not a defined term in the PLGA and should therefore be given its plain meaning, which is to compete and engage in competition. In this case, the competition is the election process and to contest the election means to participate in the election process. The election schedule for the Bye-Election dated 17.8.2018 reveals that the election process started when public notice was issued by the Returning Officer on 27.8.2018 and ends on the polling day being 14.10.2018. The entire process as per the schedule is a step by step procedure towards the holding of the Bye-Election. For the purposes of a candidate the schedule reflects the stages at which the candidate will participate in order to contest the election. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan in "Muhammad Khan v. Obaidullah Jan Babat and others" (PLD 2016 SC 492) has already declared that elections stand for a step by step process towards a certain result and is a continued process consisting of a series of steps which are to be taken at different stages as per the schedule contained in the notification published in the official gazette. Hence as per the plain meaning a candidate who 'may contest' in the elections means that a candidate takes part in the step by step process leading up to the polling date.

9. The Petitioner before the Court seeks interpretation of the word 'may contest' to be read in conjunction with the defined term contesting candidate under Section 2

(xiii) of the Elections Act. The meaning given to contesting candidate in the Elections Act is specifically for the purposes of giving meaning to the provisions of the Elections Act contained in Sections 64, 65, 66, 67 and 68 which set out the process where a validly nominated candidate can withdraw its candidature prior to his or her name being published in the list of contesting candidates. A contesting candidate for the purpose of Elections Act is one who has not withdrawn his or her candidature, who is allotted an election symbol under Section 67 of the Elections Act and is named in the list of contesting candidates. Therefore, the fact that a validly nominated candidate can withdraw its candidature under Section 65 of the Elections Act does not create a right in favour of the Petitioner to contest the election whilst holding office of Chairperson, District Council, Toba Tek Singh simply because she has the right to withdraw her candidature under Section 65 of the Elections Act. The Petitioner is required to file her nomination papers with all necessary declarations which will include her decision to resign from Chairperson, District Council, Toba Tek Singh. The Returning Officer at the stage of scrutiny must consider the bar contained in Section 28 of the PLGA because a Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Chairman and Vice Chairman cannot participate in the election process while retaining the named office. The entire process of participating and contesting election is for the benefit of the voter and the intent of Section 28 of the PLGA is to create a level playing field to all candidates who participate in the election. In this regard, we are fortified by the view given in "Syed Sarfraz Hussain Shah v. Additional District and Sessions Judge/Returning Officer and 16 others" (PLD 2008 Karachi 64).

10. We are of the opinion that the bar contained in Section 28(1) of the PLGA becomes applicable when a Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Chairman and Vice Chairman decides to contest a political office, in this case being the Bye-Election, at the stage of filing the nomination papers. In terms of Section 60 of the Elections Act, a candidate shall file its nomination papers with a declaration that he fulfills the qualifications specified in Article 62 and is not disqualified under Article 63 of the Constitution for being elected as a member. Every nomination paper is delivered to the Returning Officer who shall make the nomination along with annexures open to inspection by the public. In terms of Section 62 of the Elections Act any voter of the constituency may file objections to the candidature at the time of scrutiny. The Returning Officer shall decide upon the objections raised and may either of his own motion or upon any such objection conduct a summary enquiry and reject the nomination papers if he is satisfied that a candidate is not qualified to be elected as a member. The purpose of the scrutiny process and the right of filing an objection is to give the voter the chance to participate and ensure that all candidates who participate in the election are qualified and have made full disclosure under the law. It ensures that the voter is informed at the time when the vote is cast and that all relevant information is available to help the voter make an informed decision. After the scrutiny process if a candidate's nominations papers are accepted, there is no further scrutiny of the candidates as the name of the candidate is published in the list of contesting candidates, provided that the candidate has not withdrawn his or her nomination papers. Thereafter a candidate will be able to contest the election as the process is completed by allocation of electier symbol and polling takes place on the polling date. If a candidate holding dual office is not required to resign at the time of filing nomination papers and it is left to choice that he or she may tender resignation once they become a contesting candidate, there is a very strong risk that such a candidate may contest the election without resigning. In such a scenario the candidate who happens to be Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Chairman or Vice Chairman will effectively contest the election whilst holding office, which goes against the spirit of Section 28 of the PLGA. It also means that the factum of dual membership is left unchecked since a candidate will of its own vocation either tender resignation or not. The outcome is that not only does this complicate the election process and subject it to disputes and challenge but it also means that the purpose of the bar contained in Section 28 of the PLGA is totally defeated.

11. We also find that if the issue of dual membership is left unchecked prior to the elections and it is questioned after the elections it will render the candidate disqualified under the Elections Act. When confronted with this question, learned counsel for the Petitioner informed the Court that if, at all, such a situation arises then the objection can be taken post-election and the matter can be looked into at that point. However, we are not satisfied with this response as it means that a person, who could not have contested the election in the first case, contested the election without fulfilling the requirements of Section 28 of the PLGA. It also means that if any objection is made post-election on this issue, the candidate stands to be disqualified for holding dual membership. If dual membership is a disqualification in the post-election scenario it stands to reason that it is a disqualification in the pre-election scenario.

12. Another aspect of this issue is the burden placed on the election process and the voter, simply because the holder of the offices mentioned in Section 28 of the PLGA has to make a choice and where the decision involves the risk of loosing the present office. If the holders of the barred offices do not resign before filing nomination papers, they can be declared successful in the elections for the other political office. This means that the candidate is able to exercise his or her choice after going through the entire election process. If the candidate is successful they resign from the present office and if unsuccessful they go back to their present office. In all situations the issue is one of personal choice and the risk attached with such choices. A candidate cannot use the offices named in Section 28(1) of the PLGA as a fall back position in the event that he or she is not successful in the run for some other public office, in this case the Provincial Assembly. We are of the opinion that the Petitioner has the right to choose between either offices and cannot require the entire process to bear the burden of her 'risk'. Time and again we have been informed by her counsel that she will resign if she can contest the Bye-Elections. In this regard, we are of the opinion that a wrong precedent cannot be set to comply with the wishes of one candidate.

13. The 'resign to run' principle is premised on encouragement to run for public office and to make the process of election more competitive. It creates a level playing field and ensures that a person holding public office does not, divert its resources for personal advancement. It is also a check on those holding public office and ensures that they do their jobs and can account for the time spent in office. Public resources and functions are safeguarded and the sanctity of the election process is maintained.

14. In view of the aforesaid, we find no illegality in the impugned order. Petition stands dismissed in limine.

the manner in which the income of the father was spent and balance the income and capacity with the reasonable requirements of the minors seeking maintenance.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This judgment decides upon the issues raised in W.Ps. Nos.154537/2018 and 194641/2018 as both the petitions raise common questions of law and facts arise out of the same impugned judgment dated 11.1.2018 passed by Respondent No.1, Additional District Judge, Ferozewala.

2. Facts of the case are that Petitioner No.1 filed a suit for recovery of maintenance allowance for herself as well as for three minors. The suit was decreed on 21.5.2014 such that each minor was given Rs.7000/- per month as maintenance along with 10% yearly increase. Subsequently, the Petitioner No.1 filed an application for enhancement of maintenance of the minors on 14.6.2016 which was rejected vide order dated 17.3.2017 for the reason that it is not open to the applicant, decree holder now to contend that maintenance allowance has not been correctly assessed or determined. If it were permissible, there will be no end or finality to the judgment and decree dated 21.5.2014 which had become final. The Petitioner No.1 then filed a second application seeking enhancement of maintenance allowance from Rs.7000/- to Rs.300,000/- per child per month, which was dismissed vide order dated 26.7.2017 for the reason that neither the petitioners assailed the judgment passed by learned trial court nor challenged their earlier filed petition dismissed by learned transferor court and now again despite availing efficacious, proper remedy filed the petition in hand which in no sense maintainable. On 25.9.2017 the Petitioner No.1 filed an appeal before Respondent No.1 against order dated 26.7.2017 who vide judgment dated 11.1.2018 partially accepted the appeal and enhanced the monthly maintenance of the minors from Rs.7000/- to Rs.12,000/- per head per month plus 10% yearly increase. The Petitioners are aggrieved by the fixation of maintenance of Rs.12000/- per month per minor. Hence this petition.

3. The case of the Petitioners is that Respondent No.3 was capable of paying far more than Rs.12,000/- per month per child which is reflected from the documentary evidence produced with the application which included Respondent No.3's tax returns and property documents. It is their case that the court should have given proper consideration to the evidence while fixing maintenance.

4. Respondent No.3 who is the Petitioner in W.P. No.194641/2018 is aggrieved by the impugned judgment on account of the fact that the same has been passed in a time barred appeal, which as per the contention of the learned counsel, Respondent No.1 could not have condoned the delay. Learned counsel also argued that the conduct of the Petitioners by repeatedly filing enhancement applications shows that she did not have a genuine requirement of enhancement but only wants to harass Respondent No.3. With respect to the amount fixed by the court at Rs.12,000/- per child per month, learned counsel submitted that this amount is arbitrary, without due consideration of the relevant facts or record; that the court did not take into consideration the monthly income of Respondent No.3 nor did it take into consideration the fact that Respondent No.3 is married and has six children, hence he is not able to pay Rs.12,000/- per month per child.

5. In terms of the impugned judgment dated 11.1.2018 passed by Respondent No.1 on the question of condonation for delay, the court accepted the contention of the Petitioner No.1 that she was not aware that the District and Sessions Court was open in August, hence she did not file the appeal . The court also found that since the real issue is with reference to the welfare of the minors and Respondent No.3 is responsible to provide for the upbringing of his children. The court condoned the delay and proceeded to hear the appeal against order dated 26.7.2017. In this regard, since the ultimate consideration is the welfare of the minors, there appears to be no reason to interfere with the discretion exercised by the court while condoning the delay as the same was done with due consideration of the facts and the law.

6. The real issue in this case is the manner in which maintenance allowance to be paid by the father is fixed by the court. The Petitioners prayed for enhancement of maintenance at the rate of Rs.300,000/- per month per child on account of the financial status of Respondent No.3. In the reply, Respondent No.3 explained that he was unable to pay the amount sought by the Petitioners as the demand is not justifiable. The Judge Family Court considered the application for enhancement of maintenance and dismissed the same on the ground that the suit was decreed on 21.5.2014 and it was never challenged by the Petitioners before any forum, hence the minors are not entitled to enhancement of maintenance. It is noted that this decision of the Judge Family Court is flawed and totally contrary to the law. It is settled law that an application for enhancement of minor's maintenance allowance may be filed subsequent to a judgment and decree. Reliance is placed upon the case cited at Muhammad lqbal v. Mst. Nasreen Akhtar (2012 CLC 1407) wherein the Court held that:
On the issue whether a suit for enhancement of maintenance is maintainable under the Schedule, the answer is that the same is maintainable. The Schedule provides for the matter over which the family court should have jurisdiction. Maintenance is provided at serial No.3. As such there is no bar on filing a suit for enhancement of maintenance. There are bound to be changes in the circumstances and changes in the requirements of the children. Naturally, as the children will grow their needs will also grow. Reliance is placed on a case titled Arab Mir Muhammad v. Mst. Iram Iltimas and 4 others (1999 CLC 1668). It is noted that this is an unrealistic approach that the maintenance allowance should remain fixed throughout the growing period of the minor or that the 5% increase should be considered sufficient.

A father is legally bound to maintain the minor in terms of the requirement of the minor and the cost of living.

Hence the Petitioners could claim enhancement of the decreed maintenance allowance. Notwithstanding the same, the Appellate Court while considering the appeal of the Petitioners enhanced the maintenance from Rs.7000/- to Rs.12,000/- per month per child, with 10% annual increase. The reason given was the financial status of Respondent No.3 and the daily growing requirements of the minors. However there is no discussion on their enhanced requirements of the minors nor is there any discussion on the earning capacity of Respondent No.3. A bare reading of the order shows that the court assumed that Rs.12000/- per child was sufficient. There is no discussion on the ages of the minors, on the needs of the minors nor any finding on the enhanced claim for the minors.

7. As per settled law, maintenance with respect to the muslim children shall be governed by the injunctions of Islam and in other cases as per applicable personal law. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan has considered this issue in "Humavun Hassan v. ArsIan Humayun and another" (PLD 2013 SC 557) and held as follows:
4. There can be no cavil with the proposition that the maintenance issue(s), in relation to Muslim relatives shall be governed and regulated by the principles/injunctions of Islam i.e. as per the personal law of the parties. In this context, according to section 369 of the Muhammadan Law by D.F. Mullah, maintenance means and includes food, raiment and lodging. However, it may be observed that from the very language of the above section, such definition is neither conclusive nor exhaustive, and in our view it undoubtedly has a wider connotation and should be given an extended meaning, for the purposes of meeting and catering for the present days social, physical, mental growth, upbringing and well being of the minor, keeping in mind the status of the family, the norms of the society and his educational requirement, which has now attained utmost importance; but obviously corresponding to and commensurating with the means and the capacity of the father to pay. Anyhow, the same jurist in section 370 of the book has elucidated the liability of the father to pay the maintenance to his children as follows:-

"370. Maintenance of children and grandchildren.---(1) A father is bound to maintain his sons until they have attained the age of puberty. He is also bound to maintain his daughters until they are married. But he is not bound to maintain his adult sons unless they are disabled by infirmity or disease. The fact that the children are in the custody of their mother during their infancy (section 352) does not relieve the father from the obligation of maintaining them. But the father is not bound to maintain a child who is capable of being maintained out of his or her own property.

(2) If the father is poor, and in capable of earning by his own labour, the mother, if she is in easy circumstances, is bound to maintain her children as the father would be.

(3) If the father is poor and infirm, and the mother also is poor, the obligation to maintain the children lies on the grandfather, provided he is in easy circumstances." Again in interpreting the word "maintenance" some reasonable standard must be adopted. Whilst it is not confined merely to food, clothing and lodging, it cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be extended to incorporate within it education at higher levels ad infinitum. What is necessary to decide in this connection is to find out as to what amount of education has to be attained by the child concerned, having regard to the status and other circumstances of his family, to enable it to earn a complete livelihood by honest and decent means. Thus it may not be sufficient to say that the child of a tradesman can maintain itself by working as coolly or by thieving. What is required is that the child must be maintained until it is in a position to earn its own livelihood, in an honest ad decent manner in keeping with its family status.

Hence a father is obligated to maintain his children and a reasonable standard must be assumed for determining quantum. It is seen that more often than not family courts and appellate courts while exercising jurisdiction in cases requiring determination of maintenance tend to fix the quantum of maintenance without discussing the factors considered or the reasons for concluding so. Hence one has to wonder on what basis did the court formulate its opinion whilst fixing maintenance. It goes without saying that a judicial order must be a speaking order where the reasons are clearly stated by the court. In this case the Appellate Court has not discussed the earning capacity of Respondent No.3 nor the requirements of the minors, yet enhanced the maintenance from Rs.7000/- to Rs.12000/- per month.

8. It goes without saying that the court while considering the quantum of maintenance will take into consideration the fundamentals being the minors education, status, general expenses as has been clearly set out in PLD 2013 SC 557 (supra). The court must also take into consideration reasonable probability of obtaining education and the ability to take care of the minors in a stable, safe and healthy environment. Without due consideration of all these factors, the court cannot conclude positively the quantum of maintenance. There is no hard and fast formula for determining quantum of maintenance and the main consideration for the Court is the ability of the father to maintain the minors. A father is obligated under the law to take care of his minor children and the quantum has to be determined as per his earning, financial and social status and the ability that he may have to take care of the minors. This way merely stating that he is jobless will not discharge him of his obligation. The basic objective for determining maintenance is to ensure that in all probability the minors are maintained by the father in dignified manner with reasonable comfort and that the mother of the child is not left to bear the burden of taking care of the minors.

9. Quantum of maintenance requires due consideration of all factors on the basis of which the court can determine the actual need of the minor. In this regard, it is important for the court to first determine the expenses incurred or likely to be incurred on the minors. For this purpose the court must look into the living conditions of the minor and the manner and means by which the mother is maintaining the minors which will include factors like where they reside, whether the mother is dependent upon her family, if so what is the income on the basis of which the minor is also being cared whether she has a job and whether she has any source of independent income. Special needs of the minor which will include medical or physical needs or special educational needs should also be seen. Special needs will vary from case to case, if relevant, as it is unique to the situation and individual. Yet for the purpose of maintenance it is the obligation of the father to fulfill these special needs. In the case of enhancement, the court must also determine as to what extent the maintenance already fixed meets the requirement and expenses of the minor and for what purpose, further enhancement is required. At the same time the court must determine the income of the father either through proper documentary evidence or on the basis of the social status and earning capacity of the father. In order to ensure that proper information is before the court, it may always require the father to produce documents such as his salary slips or any bank statement or property document on the basis of which he is able to show his monthly income or earning or his financial status. In this regard, the assets owned by the father are relevant as it contributes towards establishing the financial status of the father that has to be probed into by the court and based on attending circumstances the court can conclusively establish the means through which the father will be able to maintain the minors. It is also important to take into consideration any liability of the father, that is whether he is paying any bank loan or debt, whether he has remarried or has other children or whether his parents are dependent on him. In this way the court can determine the manner in which the income of the father is spent and balance the income and capacity with the reasonable requirements of the minors seeking maintenance.

10. In this regard, it is noted that Section 17(A) of the West Pakistan Family Courts Act, 1964 specifically provides in subsection (4) that for the purposes of fixing maintenance, the court may summon the relevant documentary evidence from any organization, body or authority to determine the estate and resources of the defendant. The purpose of this provision is to facilitate the court to determine the financial position of the father. The court therefore is not dependent on documents or information provided by the father and can call for relevant documents or information be it from the relevant department or organization or as the case requires, in order to determine the income of the father. In "Khadeeja Bibi and others v. Abdul Raheem and others" (2012 SCMR 671) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that even on the question of determining the annual increase in maintenance in the absence of any evidence on the point of annual increase the court should refrain from imposing such annual increase in the payment of maintenance to the minor, which is not in co-relation to the income of the father and the capacity of the father with respect to income. Therefore where the court is required to look into the future need of the minor that too must be done on the basis of reasonable and likely increase that can be made based on age, needs and on the maintenance that is being fixed for the present day.

11. The judgment under challenge has failed to make any determination on the requirement and need of the minors and also on the income of the father. Under the circumstances, impugned judgment dated 11.1.2018 passed by Respondent No.1 has not considered the evidence properly nor has any determination been made on the income of the father. Under the circumstance, both the petitions are accepted, the impugned judgment dated 11.1.2018 to the extent of quantum of maintenance is set aside and the matter is remanded to the Appellate Court to consider all relevant facts and documents as prescribed in this judgment and make a proper determination with respect to fixation of the maintenance of the minors, after hearing both the parties and pass a speaking order in accordance with law.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This Judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition along with connected W.Ps. Nos.54146 and 60723 of 2017 whereby the Petitioners have challenged the jurisdiction of the Federal Ombudsman for Protection Against Harassment of Woman at the Work Place ("Federal Ombudsman") while hearing a complaint filed by Respondent No.5, Amna Tahir under the Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace Act, 2010 ("2010 Act").
Facts and arguments

2. The common facts are that Respondent No.5 filed a complaint, before the Federal Ombudsman, against Saqib Rasheed, Petitioner in W.Ps. Nos.54146 and 60723 of 2017 and Imran Maqbool, Petitioner in W.P. No.71556/2017 along with five other officers of MCB Bank Limited on 23.6.2017 under the 2010 Act. The Petitioners along with others filed their replies before the Federal Ombudsman and raised an objection with respect to the jurisdiction of the Federal Ombudsman on two grounds; firstly, that the matter stood decided by the case cited at PLD 2016 Lahore 433 titled "Salim Javed and others v. Federal Ombudsman and others" ("Salim Javed Case") in which it was stated that jurisdiction in such cases lies with the Provincial Ombudsman and secondly that Respondent No.5 had also invoked the jurisdiction of the Provincial Ombudsman and therefore, could not seek remedy before both the Ombudsman at the same time.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that Respondent No.5 has never filed any complaint against the Petitioners before the Bank and that the entire proceeding before the Federal Ombudsman was filed with a view to damage their reputation and to blackmail and harass them. Learned counsel also argued that the Federal Ombudsman does not have jurisdiction in the matter and despite various different restraining orders from this Court she proceeded with the matter having no regard whatsoever of the orders of this Court. In another W.P. No.54146/2017 filed by Saqib Rasheed, an interim order was passed on 24.07.2017 in which the Federal Ombudsman was restrained from proceeding with the matter yet despite issuance of the interim order, the orders of 4.8.2017 and 24.8.2017 were passed by the Federal Ombudsman. Learned counsel further argued that in the instant petition, repeated interim orders were passed by this Court, however, the Federal Ombudsman despite the warnings continued to proceed with the matter and ultimately passed judgment on 18.12.2017. Learned counsel argued that this is in total defiance of the orders of this Court which attitude was also displayed earlier by the same Federal Ombudsman in the Salim Javed Case. While relying on the said judgment, learned counsel argued that the question of jurisdiction has been decided, therefore the Federal Ombudsman could not proceed with the matter.

4. Respondent No.5 in person argued her case. She stated that she filed a complaint before the Bank, however, they did not respond to her complaint. She then filed a complaint before the Provincial Ombudsman, however, subsequently withdrew it on 22.6.2017 believing it to be a matter for the Federal Ombudsman. She then filed a complaint before the Federal Ombudsman, who proceeded with the matter and at that time she had no knowledge of the Salim Javed Case. She argued that the Bank is a trans-provincial entity and as per the law is governed by Federal law, hence the Federal Ombudsman has jurisdiction in the matter. She also stated that this case is distinguishable from the Salim Javed Case, which was a case of an advocate whose offices are in Lahore, hence the court concluded that in such cases jurisdiction vests with the Provincial Ombudsman.

5. On behalf of the Federal Government Mr. Nasar Ahmad, DAG argued that the Federal Ombudsman has jurisdiction to entertain all complaints which have a federal character including complaints of trans-provincial organizations. He explained that the Provincial Ombudsman cannot exercise jurisdiction over a federal organization or its officers as they transcend the provincial boundaries and can be transferred out of the Province at any time rendering the claim before the Provincial Ombudsman as redundant. Further explained that the Salim Javed Case did not take these factors into consideration as the issue was with a local advocate. He further argued that the Federal Legislative List, Item No.13 provides for Federal Ombudsman, meaning thereby that if the subject matter in which a Federal Ombudsman is to be created falls within the domain of the Federal Government than the Federal Government is competent to make a Federal Ombudsman. In this case, the subject matter pertains to harassment at the work place for which the Federal Government has ratified several international conventions and treaties. Furthermore in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Messrs Sui Southern Gas Company Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2018 SCMR 802) ("NIRC case"), jurisdiction lies with the Federal Ombudsman.

6. The stance of the Province/Respondent No.3 as submitted by Mrs. Samia Khalid, Additional Advocate General and Mr. Anwaar Hussain, Additional Advocate General is that jurisdiction vests with the Provincial as well as the Federal Ombudsman. It is argued that the complainant has a choice of forum based on convenience as well as cause of action. In the event that the organization is a federal organization, the Provincial Ombudsman can still hear the matter and present its recommendations to the federal government. Reliance is placed on Article 141 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") to urge the point that the Parliament can make laws for the whole or any part of Pakistan and that the Provincial Government shall ensure its compliance. Further argued that even after the Province adopted the 2010 Act in the year 2012, the 2010 Act still holds the field, meaning that jurisdiction continues to vest with both Ombudsman. It is also argued that both the Federal and Provincial laws are beneficial legislation, hence the doctrine of convenience is applicable and if considered necessary the place of occurrence can be the place where the complaint is filed.

The law and its purpose

7. The 2010 Act was promulgated as Act No. IV of 2010 and notified in the official gazette on 11.3.2010. In terms of its preamble it is an Act to make provisions for the protection against harassment of women at the workplace. Harassment is defined in Section 2(h) of the 2010 Act describing certain kinds of behaviour and attitude to be harassment because it causes interference with work performance or because it creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment. The law is premised on the fundamental right of equal opportunity, for both men and women, to earn their livelihood and in furtherance of this right an obligation has been created on the employer at the workplace to create a safe working environment where both men and women can contribute and work efficiently and safely without discrimination and harassment.

8. The 2010 Act was passed in pursuance of Pakistan's obligation under the Universal Declaration of Human Rights ("UDHR"), the Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women ("CEDAW"), the International Labour Organization Convention 100 ("ILO 100") which is the Convention for Equal Remuneration for Men and Women for Work and Convention 111 ("ILO 111"). Pakistan ratified all the above mentioned treaties and conventions which provide equal opportunity at the workplace and necessitate a safe work environment. The 2010 Act extends to the whole of Pakistan. It defines the term 'Employer' to mean an organization, a person or body of persons whether incorporated or not and includes an authority, office bearer or proprietor run by the Federal Government or Provincial Government. The word 'Organization' is defined to mean Federal or Provincial Government Ministry, Division or a Department, a corporation or any autonomous or semi-autonomous body and medical institutes and faculties established or controlled by the Federal or Provincial Government or the District Government or privately managed and includes private sector organization and institutions. The term 'workplace' defines the place of work or the premises where the activity of the organization or the employer are carried out and includes work at the premises or official activity outside the office. Hence the 2010 Act is applicable over the entire gambit of workplace, employer and organization including all employees, organization and workplace in the public and private sector. In terms of Section 7 of the 2010 Act, the respective Federal and Provincial Governments are to appoint an Ombudsperson at the Federal and Provincial level. On 5.1.2013 the Government of Punjab adopted this law which is called the Punjab Protection Against Harassment of Woman at the Work Place (Amendment) Act, 2012 (III of 2013). Effectively the Provincial Assembly adopted the federal law with some changes so as to make it functional at the provincial level. Hence there is a federal law and a provincial law on the subject of protection against harassment of women at the workplace.

9. The basic issue in these petitions is with respect to the jurisdiction of the Federal Ombudsman and the Provincial Ombudsman and in particular whether Respondent No.5, Amna Tahir was to file her complaint before the Provincial Ombudsman or the Federal Ombudsman. In terms of the Salim Javed Case the Federal Ombudsman does not have jurisdiction to hear the complaint of Respondent No.5 as the matter falls within the ambit of the Provincial Ombudsman. The facts of the Salim Javed Case are that a female advocate filed a complaint against advocate Salim Javed before the Federal Ombudsman. The respondent in that case objected to the assumption of jurisdiction by the Federal Ombudsman as it was his case that the cause of action arose in Lahore, hence the Provincial Ombudsman was competent to hear the complaint. The opinion of the Court is that the Federal Ombudsman exercises jurisdiction only to the extent of the federal capital area and jurisdiction in all other situations vests with the Provincial Ombudsman. The Court concluded that the federal law lost its federal character and stands converted into a provincial law after the 18th Amendment. For ease of reference relevant paragraphs are reproduced hereunder:

8. I have considered the arguments addressed at the bar and have examined the law. The fundamental constitutional cum legal question that requires determination by this Court is the scope of Article 270AA(6) of the Constitution and the effect of the omission of the Concurrent List on the nature and character of the existing federal law. In the present facts, the Court has to determine the extent of jurisdiction enjoyed by the Federal Ombudsman under the Federal Act. In other words, whether Federal Ombudsman, under the Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace Act, 2010 can assume jurisdiction over a complaint in which the cause of action arose in Punjab or whether, in such like matters, the jurisdiction vests with the Provincial Ombudsperson under the Punjab Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace Act, 2012 ("Provincial Act") post 18th constitutional amendment.

9. The Federal Act was promulgated on 11.3.2010 with jurisdiction extending to the whole of Pakistan under Section 1(2) of the Federal Act. Constitution (Eighteenth Amendment) Act, 2010 was introduced on 20.4.2010. The said amendment omitted the Concurrent List from the Fourth Schedule to the Constitution, thereby enlarging and expanding the legislative domain of the provincial legislature and more importantly reinvigorating the constitutional theme of federalism and provincial autonomy. The preamble to the Amendment Act echoes the promise to establish "a Federal ... State wherein ... the Provinces have equitable share in the Federation." Admittedly, the Federal Act drew its legislative competence from entry 25 i.e. social welfare, of the erstwhile Concurrent List. Post 18th Amendment, this area stands devolved onto the Provinces. Under Article 270AA(6) of the Constitution, the Federal Act remains in force (as a Provincial Act, as discussed later) irrespective of the omission of the Concurrent List until such time that the Federal Act is altered, repealed or amended by the Competent Authority (legislature). Any such alteration or amendment in the law by the competent legislature does not affect its continuity and the law continues to be in force, albeit, as a provincial law, not because of the alteration or amendment but because of the constitutional declaration under the 18th amendment. It is only on repeal that the law comes to an end.

10. The Punjab Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace (Amendment) Act, 2012 (Act III 2013) has amended and altered the Federal Act (interestingly retaining the same title). It is actually the constitutional declaration of devolution, the underlying constitutional theme of federalism and provincial autonomy under the 18th Amendment which has metamorphosed the Federal Act into a Provincial Act. Alteration and amendment by the competent provincial legislature is a legislative exercise to align the law according to the wishes of the provincial legislature and has no bearing on the character of the law which already stands transformed into provincial law by the constitutional declaration on the promulgation of the Amendment Act.

11. Considering it from another angle, if the federal law under Article 270AA (6) can only be subjected to alteration, amendment and repeal by the provincial legislature, it means that the Federal law has lost its federal character and stands transformed into a Provincial law. What if the appropriate legislature does not carry out any amendment or alteration in the federal law, it still automatically stands converted into provincial law and remains in force as such. This is also because with the omission of the Concurrent List, the federal legislature looses its legislative fiat and command over the areas in the Concurrent List to the provincial legislature and as a consequence the federal law is deprived of its federal character. It is important to underline, that with the legislative shift from federal to provincial, the executive authority, under Article 97 also gets realigned and changes hands from federal executive to the provincial executive.

12. The Amendment Act, as well as, the Punjab Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace (Amendment) Act, 2012 constitutionally trims the Federal Act and restricts its jurisdiction to territories of Pakistan that fall outside the Provinces in terms of Article 1(2) of the Constitution. The continuance of the Federal Act in federal areas finds support under Article 142(d) of the Constitution that provides that the Federal Legislature has the exclusive power to make laws with respect to all matters pertaining to such areas in the Federation as are not included in any Province. The territorial jurisdiction of the Federal Act under Section 1(2) extends to the whole of Pakistan. This geographical extent has to be pruned according to the constitutional mandate under the 18th amendment. The best interpretational tool to apply is that of reading down. Reliance is placed on Messrs Chenone Stores Ltd. through Executive Director (Finance Accounts) Federal Board of Revenue through Chairman and 2 others (2012 PTD 1815) and Nadeem Asghar Nadeem and others v. Province of the Punjab and others (2015 CLC 1509). Therefore, in order to align the Federal Act with the constitutional scheme, section 1(2) of the Federal Act is read down thereby limiting the extent of the Federal Act to areas which do not form part of any province. Reliance is also placed on Syed Imran Ali Shah v. Government of Pakistan and 2 others (2013 PLC 143).

13. The complaint filed by respondent No.2 on 14.9.2015 is based on cause of action arising in Lahore, the alleged accused also reside in Lahore, therefore, the jurisdiction to entertain and hear the complaint of respondent No.2 is with the Provincial Ombudsperson under the Provincial Act and the Federal Ombudsman has no jurisdiction to entertain the said complaint. The impugned judgment dated 4.1.2016 passed by the Federal Ombudsman along with all the prior orders assuming jurisdiction in the matter are hereby declared to be unconstitutional, illegal and without lawful authority and therefore set aside. The complaint shall be deemed to have been returned to respondent No.2, who may file the same before the Provincial Ombudsperson, if so advised. Considering that the Federal Ombudsman has no jurisdiction to entertain the complaint, other grounds agitated by the petitioners need not be gone into.

10. The findings of the Court are based on the understanding that the subject of harassment against women has devolved onto the Provincial Government post 18th Amendment. The Court considered the subject matter of harassment against women to be covered under Item No.25 of the Concurrent Legislative List ("CLL") being Population, Planning and Social Welfare. As the CLL was abolished by way of the 18th Amendment on 20.4.2010 all areas provided for under the CLL devolved on to the Provinces. Consequently the Court concluded that jurisdiction vests with the Provincial Ombudsman and only to the extent of the federal capital territory, jurisdiction vests with the Federal Ombudsman. We have considered the reasoning advanced in the Salim Javed Case, however we are not persuaded by the same. Harassment, whether verbal or physical is a behavioral issue that adversely affects the work environment. It manifests itself in many different forms of unethical and unwelcomed behaviour which renders the workplace hostile or offensive. Hence it violates the right to a safe and healthy work environment. The right to work is a multifaceted right which is recognized under different international treaties and conventions for creating a safe work environment especially for women. Article 23 of UDHR declares the right to work and the right to favourable conditions of work as a human right. Article 11 of CEDAW specifically requires States to ensure women have equal work opportunity and safe working conditions. As Pakistan has ratified these treaties and conventions it is obligated to protect the right to work and to ensure a favourable work environment. Since the 2010 Act was promulgated pursuant to Pakistan obligations under the international treaties and conventions, the subject matter of protection of the workplace for women falls under Item 3 read with Item 32 of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution which includes implementing international treaties and conventions. It is also noted that harassment laws aim to regulate behaviour and attitudes which can be subjected to criminal punishment as well as civil liability. Section 509 of the Pakistan Penal Code, 1860 ("P.P.C.") criminalizes behaviour conduced with the intention of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or behaviour which creates an intimidating hostile or offensive work environment. Therefore the subject of harassment at the workplace being a crime under the P.P.C. means that Parliament and the Provinces both are competent to make laws with respect to the crime, procedure or evidence. Hence we find that the subject of protection of women from harassment does not fall under 'population, planning and welfare' of the CLL, rather it falls under the federal domain consequent to its international obligations and to the extent that the subject relates to criminal law.

11. We also find that the Salim Javed Case is not applicable to this case because the issue of trans-provincial organization was not taken into consideration by the Court in that case. This issue was considered by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the NIRC case at great length. The term 'trans-provincial organization' means an organization which operates at a trans-provincial level, that is they operate in more than one province. In terms of the NIRC case the federal legislature has extra territorial authority to legislate on matters which pertain to trans-provincial organizations. The Court relied on Item No.13 in Part II of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution which provides for inter-provincial matters and coordination, meaning that, the Federation has to make laws relating to inter-provincial matters. Therefore in the NIRC case, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded that the federal legislature has extra territorial authority to legislate, however the same authority does not lie with the provincial legislature. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also held that in order to preserve and regulate a right which transcends provincial boundaries, only the Federation is competent to legislate on such matters and Item Nos. 58 and 59 of the Federal Legislative List provide the relevant entries to bring it in the federal domain. The Provincial legislature does not have extra territorial legislative competence, therefore it cannot legislate with regard to rights which transcend its provincial boundaries. In the NIRC judgment, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the federal legislature is competent to legislate on all matters in order to discharge its obligations created under international treaties and conventions. In the case, the matter involved was with respect to trade unions and labour disputes, hence it was found that it was a federal obligation created under the International Labour Organization Convention, hence covered under Item Nos.3 and 32 of the Federal Legislative List. In the case of a trans-provincial establishment, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the Federation is competent to interfere in such matters because trans-provincial establishments transcend provincial boundaries. Therefore we are of the opinion that the wisdom enumerated in the NIRC case is applicable to the instant case. Where the organization is clearly a trans-provincial organization, as in this case as it is a bank with branches all over Pakistan, the Federal Ombudsman is competent to look into the complaint of Respondent No.5. The jurisdiction of the Federal Ombudsman is not limited to the federal capital area, rather the Federal Ombudsman has jurisdiction in relation to all employers, organizations, institutions and workplaces which have a federal character or are established under a federal law or are directly consequent to an international obligation under an international treaty or convention. The Federal Ombudsman jurisdiction cannot be limited to the federal capital area and can be exercised all over Pakistan over a federal employer, institution, organization or workplace.

12. The question which needs consideration is whether the Provincial Ombudsman has concurrent jurisdiction with the Federal Ombudsman on account of the fact that the harassment committed or complainant reside in the province who sought to complain before the Provincial Ombudsman. Although Mrs. Samia Khalid, Additional Advocate General and Mr. Anwaar Hussain, Additional Advocate General argued that being beneficially both the Provincial and Federal Ombudsman have jurisdiction, however, we are of the opinion that the intent of the law is to create a forum where harassment can be reported, inquired and penalized. If both the Provincial and Federal Ombudsman are given jurisdiction then there may be instances where the Provincial Ombudsman will have to deal with a complaint against a trans-provincial organization, or where the employer or the organization is federal in character making it difficult for the Provincial Ombudsman to proceed with the complaint or to impose penalty on the employer or organization since it falls within the federal domain. Under the circumstances, we hold that if the employer or organization and its workplace falls strictly within the territorial boundaries of the Provincial Ombudsman, then jurisdiction vests with the Provincial Ombudsman and where the employer or organization transcends provincial boundaries such as in this case then jurisdiction vests with the Federal Ombudsman. To clarify we add that for the reasons stated herein we disagree with the findings in the Salim Javed Case that the Federal Ombudsman jurisdiction is limited to the federal capital area as the Federal Ombudsman is competent to hear complaints related to trans-provincial organizations, institutions, employers and workplace.

13. So far as the proceedings conducted by the Federal Ombudsman, we find that they were done in utter disregard of the orders of this Court. On 24.7.2017 an order was passed in W.P. No.54146/17 directing that the proceedings before the Federal Ombudsman shall remain stayed. She ignored the order and proceeded with the matter. In another order dated 9.10.2017 passed in W.P. No.71556/17 she was again restrained, however she proceeded with the case. Thereafter a series of orders were issued by the Federal Ombudsman including the final order on 18.12.2017 without any consideration of the orders of this Court. It was only when the Court restrained Respondent No.5 from proceeding with the execution of the final order that the proceedings were stopped. We note that the Salim Javed Case categorically addressed the issue with reference to the Federal Ombudsman obligation and to obey the orders of the High Court. However, displaying the same attitude as was discussed in that case, the Federal Ombudsman (Justice (R) Yasmin Abbasey) showed no regard whatsoever to the orders of this Court. Under the circumstances all orders passed after 4.8.2017 including the final order dated 18.12.2017 are illegal and void, hence set aside. The complaint of Amna Tahir shall be treated as pending before the Federal Ombudsman who shall decide the same in accordance with law, expeditiously, after hearing all necessary parties.

14. In view of the aforesaid, W.Ps. Nos.71556/2017, 54146 and 60723 of 2017 are allowed to the extent that the impugned orders and the final order dated 18.12.2017 passed by the Federal Ombudsman are set aside. However, the parties are directed to appear before the Federal Ombudsman on 4.10.2018 so as to proceed with the compliant on its merit. The Registrar of this Court is directed to inform the Registrar of the office of the Federal Ombudsman of the orders of this Court.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----Through this ICA, the Appellant has impugned order dated 16.5.2016 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No. 16261/2016.

2. The facts of the case are that the Appellant is the owner of land measuring 95 Kanals 14 Marlas situated in Chak No.187/EB, District Vehari Under 'Lambardari Grant'. The grant was confirmed pursuant to an order dated 5.6.2014 passed in W.P. No.1055/2014 and thereafter through order dated 21.10.2015 passed by Respondent No.1, Member (Colonies), Board of Revenue, Punjab. The matter in issue with respect to the proprietary rights of the Appellant therefore came to an end and the Respondents if aggrieved should have challenged the order of the Board of Revenue dated 21.10.2015. Instead of challenging the said order, the Respondents issued show-cause notice dated 2.5.2016 raising the same allegations which had already been adjudicated upon in the order of the Member Board of Revenue. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the matter has been adjudicated upon by the proper forum and the Respondents cannot revive a matter again through a show-cause notice. Further argued that the impugned order finds that the Appellant has challenged a show-cause notice and since no final order has been passed in the show-cause notice, the Appellant can appear before the competent authority and raise its objections. Explains that the show-cause notice is patently illegal and the Respondents cannot be allowed to re-open a case which has already been adjudicated upon in finality. Furthermore by requiring the Appellant to appear before the Respondents and submit its objections against the show-cause notice in fact means that the Respondents will re-open the case and will have to decide whether or not they accept the arguments of the Appellant. Learned counsel argued that this will mean that whenever the matters are adjudicated upon by the competent jurisdiction in government department they can re-open the matter by simply issuing show-cause notice without any regard to the orders of the Court which would be inherently wrong.

3. On behalf of the Respondents, learned Law Officer argued in support of the impugned order. He stated that show-cause notice was issued as there is no record available with respect to the application filed by the father of the Appellant on the basis of which the Respondents anticipate a fraudulent transaction. He argued that at this stage no adverse order has been passed against the Appellant. The Appellant should file his reply and any objection that he may have can be decided by the Respondents in the first instance before taking up the case on its merits. Learned Law Officer further stated that it is just a notice and no substantive right of the Appellant is prejudiced

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and find that the impugned order has failed to consider the fact that the issue with respect to proprietary rights of the Appellant has already been adjudicated upon by this Court vide order dated 5.6.2014 passed in W.P. No.1055/2014, on the basis of which the matter was remanded to Respondent No. 1. Respondent No.1 on the basis of direction given, heard all the parties and passed an exhaustive order dated 21.10.2015. In terms of the order, it is an admitted fact that an application for grant of proprietary rights was filed by the father of the Appellant well within time on 27.8.1976. It was also admitted in that order that the Appellant has stepped into the shoes of his father and was entitled to the grant of proprietary rights. We note that the findings of

Respondent No.1 have created substantive rights in favour of the Appellant on the basis of an application moved by his father within the prescribed time. The Respondents have now re-opened the matter requiring the Appellant to once again prove that an application was moved by his father. This is neither permissible under the law nor the Appellant can be forced to face such proceedings given that the competent forum has conclusively held in favour of the Appellant that he is entitled to proprietary rights on the basis of the application moved by his father. The learned Single Judge in the impugned order while recognizing that Respondent No.1 has declared that the Appellant has proprietary rights with reference to the land in question, has required the Appellant to defend himself before the Respondents on account of the fact that it is merely a show-cause notice. We are of the opinion that requiring the Appellant to defend himself before Respondent No.1 tantamounts to re-opening the case. The Respondents have had ample opportunity to deal with this issue and prove it to the contrary before Respondent No.1. Having failed to do so, they cannot issue a fresh show-cause notice on matters which are adjudicated upon in finality by the competent forum. This would amount to a travesty of law giving the Respondents the ability to re-open matters which have been adjudicated upon in finality.

5. Under the circumstances, the instant appeal is accepted and the impugned order dated 16.5.2016 passed by the learned Single Judge in WP No.16261/2016 is set aside.

JUDGMENT
AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 7.10.2016 passed by Respondent No. 1.

2. The Petitioner is a registered taxpayer with the Federal Board of Revenue ("FBR") is aggrieved by the actions of Respondent No.4 who attached the bank account of the Petitioner maintained at Soneri Bank Limited, Main Branch, Mall Road, Lahore. The money was withdrawn from the account of the Petitioner on the misconception that the Petitioner is the owner/partner of Idara-e-Kissan which is a special project of Punjab Livestock and Dairy Development Department. In terms of the impugned order, the Respondent Department admitted that the Petitioner was a paid employee of Idara-e-Kissan Project and was made a member of the Association of Partnership ("AOP") as a special administrative arrangement and that he was not actual partner for the benefit of the AOP. Further that he only withdrew his salary from Idara-e-Kissan. Instead of recovering sales tax from Idara-e-Kissan, Respondent No.4 attached the bank account of the Petitioner under Section 48 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 ("Act") without issuing any notice or following due process. The Petitioner challenged these actions before the Federal Tax Ombudsman ("FTO") who ordered in his favour. The Respondents challenged the order of the FTO before the President of Pakistan which is impugned in this Petition. The impugned order set aside the order of the FTO dated 25.3.2016 on the ground that remedy of appeal is available to the Petitioner.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that remedy of appeal is not available to the Petitioner because he is neither the owner of Idara-e-Kissan nor does he figure in the assessment of tax for Idara-e-Kissan. He further argued that Idara-e-Kissan was a joint venture, a special project of Punjab Livestock and Dairy Development Department and the Petitioner was merely an employee of this project and was shown as a partner of the AOP just for administrative reasons. The Respondents without issuing any notice to the Petitioner attached his bank accounts and recovered Rs.403,066/-. Learned counsel argued that the FTO recommended that the amount be refunded to the Petitioner within 10 days' time. However against this/ order, the Respondents filed a representation before the President of Pakistan in terms of Section 32 of the Federal Tax Ombudsman Ordinance, 2000 ("FTO Ordinance"). The matter was heard at length and decided on the question of jurisdiction.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondents Nos.1, 4 and 5. As per the record, the Petitioner was an employee of Idara-e-Kissan earning a salary of Rs.23,000/-. He resigned from Idara-e-Kissan on 15.12.2010. On 1.10.2015 Respondent No.4 issued a letter to Respondent No.5 for attachment of bank account of the Petitioner which is the personal account of the Petitioner. The reason for attachment is an assessment order passed on 27.5.2015 in which Idara-e-Kissan was held liable in the amount of Rs.2,015,323/-. In terms of the report and parawise comments filed, the Respondents have not denied the allegation that no notice was served to the Petitioner. They also not denied the allegation that the Petitioner was in fact an employee of Idara-e-Kissan who resigned from his post in 2010. These factual contentions have been deliberated upon by the FTO and the President where clear finding on the facts in favour of the Petitioner have been given. Learned counsel for Respondents Nos.3 and 4 argued that in terms of Taxpayer Registration Profile, he has been shown as owner of Idara-e-Kissan. She further submitted that the impugned order is in accordance with law and the remedy of appeal is available to the Petitioner.

5. The question before this Court is whether the Petitioner has remedy available to him under the Act to recover amounts illegally extracted from his personal account. In terms of the Act, against an assessment order, remedy of appeal is available to the taxpayer under Section 45-B of the Act within 30 days. In this case the assessment order is that of Idara-e-Kissan and has nothing to do with the Petitioner. Therefore the remedy under Section 45-B of the Act in the form of an appeal is neither effective nor efficacious for the Petitioner. On the other hand Section 9(1) of the FTO provides for the jurisdiction, functions and powers of the FTO. As per the Section, the FTO may on a complaint by any aggrieved person, or on a reference by the President, the Senate or the National Assembly, as the case may be, or on a motion of the Supreme Court or a High Court proceed on matters by way of investigation into any allegation of maladministration on the part of the Revenue Division or tax employee. Maladministration is defined in Section 2(3) of the FTO Ordinance to include a decision, process, recommendation, act of omission or commission which is contrary to law, rules or regulations or is a departure from established practice or procedure, unless it is bona fide and for valid reasons and includes coercive methods of tax recovery in cases where default in payment of tax or duty is not apparent from the record. The case of the Petitioner as argued is one of maladministration for which the FTO has jurisdiction.

6. In this case, there is admittedly no tax default on the part of the Petitioner and the recovery made against the account of the Petitioner was in fact recovery of amounts owed by Idara-e-Kissan based on the assessment order dated 27.5.2015. The FTO in its order dated 25.3.2016 made the following recommendations:
i) refund the amount recovered from bank account of the Complainant within 10 days; and
ii) report compliant within one week thereafter
The record shows that the Petitioner resigned from his position as Manager Accounts on 15.12.2010 and that he had nothing to do with the Idara-e-Kissan. The Department does not dispute these facts and admits that the Petitioner was never the owner or partner of Idara-eKissan and his name was only placed there for administrative reasons. Therefore the deduction made was against the law.

7. In view of the aforesaid, the instant petition is allowed and impugned order dated 7.10.2016 is set aside. The Respondents are directed to refund the amounts of the Petitioner recovered from his bank account within two weeks time of receipt of certified copy of this order.

Date of hearing: 26th April, 2018.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This appeal under section 22 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 ("FIO") is directed against judgment and decree dated 16.3.2016 passed by the Judge Banking Court-I, Gujranwala/Camp Office at Sialkot.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the Respondent filed a suit for declaration, rendition of accounts along with permanent injunction praying herein that the plaintiff is only entitled to pay the principal amount which she has already paid and that there is nothing due to the Respondent. Further that she is not liable to pay appreciation charges. The Appellant filed its application for leave to defend the suit ("PLA") against which reply was filed by the Respondent. It is stated in the PLA that the Respondent in terms of the agreement is bound to pay the appreciation charges as per the State Bank Regulations. The Banking Court on the first date of hearing dismissed the PLA vide the impugned order dated 16.3.2016 and found that the Appellant is not entitled to claim appreciation charges from the Respondent and the suit of the Respondent was decreed in her favour.
3. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the suit could not have been decreed on the first hearing. It was a suit for rendition of accounts in which the Respondent had also challenged appreciation charges. Learned counsel further argued that the terms and conditions of the finance facility are in accordance with law and were agreed to by the Respondent. Therefore she could not have required anything contrary to the contractual terms. Furthermore there was nothing before the court on the basis of which it gave the finding that the charging of appreciation charges are illegal and against the State Bank Regulations.

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for the Respondent argued that the Respondent has paid the principal amount and is not liable to pay appreciation charges which are contrary to law. Learned counsel further argued that the Appellant cannot charge excessive markup or make money at the cost of the Respondent. Further that the Respondent is liable to pay the principal amount but not liable to pay any other charges.

5. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at length and have also gone through the record. In terms of the original record, we note that the suit for declaration, rendition of accounts along with permanent injunction was filed on 12.12.2011. PLA was filed on 17.3.2012. The suit was heard by the Judge Banking Court on 16.3.2016 on which date the court dismissed the PLA and decreed the suit. The prayer of the Respondent in the suit was that she is only entitled to pay the principal amount which she has already paid and that there is nothing due from her. Further that she is not liable to pay appreciation charges. The Banking Court vide the impugned order dated 16.3.2016 allowed this prayer without considering the arguments raised by the Appellant in the PLA being that it was entitled to charge appreciation charges as per its requirements and that she agreed to the same in the contract and that the said charges were not in violation of any State Bank Regulations. We also note that there was nothing before the court on the basis of which it concluded that appreciation charges are contrary to the State Bank Regulations.

6. In view of the above, the instant appeal is allowed. The impugned order dated 16.3.2016 passed by the Judge Banking Court-I, Gujranwala/Camp Office at Sialkot is set aside. The case is remanded back to the Banking Court before whom the PLA shall be deemed pending and is directed to decide the same within a period of three months of receipt of certified copy of this judgment, after hearing all the necessary parties, in accordance with law.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this ICA, the Appellant has impugned order dated 23.11.2015 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.36074/ 2015.

2. The grievance of the Appellant is that the learned Single Judge has dismissed the petition of the Appellant on the ground that alternate, efficacious remedy is available to the Appellant with reference to its grievance against the Provincial Employees Social Security Institution ("PESSI"), hence the petition is not maintainable. The Appellant is a Trust registered under the Voluntary Social Welfare Agencies (Registration and Control) Ordinance, 1961. It runs schools and hospitals for public benefit. On 23.11.2000 a notification was issued in favour of the Appellant under subsection (3) of Section 1 of the West Pakistan Employees Social Security Ordinance, 1965 whereby Chaudhry Rehmat Ali Memorial Model Girls College, Township, Lahore was de-notified from notification of 24.7.1998. The notification of 24.7.1998 notified all those institutions which were required to pay social security contribution under subsection (3) of section 1 of the Provincial Employees Social Security Ordinance, 1965 ("Ordinance"). Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the Appellant provided an undertaking to the Respondents explaining that it was a charitable trust and that all employees of this trust have been provided medical facilities. Hence it should be exempted from complying with the requirements of the Ordinance, which request was duly acceded to vide notification dated 23.11.2000. Subsequently the Appellant was issued letters dated 25.4.2013 and 14.9.2013 in which demand was raised from the Appellant to pay social security contribution under the Ordinance, in terms of a subsequent notification issued on 18.7.2013. Learned counsel argued that the Appellant was exempted in terms of a special notification issued by the competent authority and a general notification cannot take away the rights accrued in favour of the Appellant without following due process. Learned counsel further argued that no remedy is available to the Appellant under the Ordinance for redressal of its grievance as the Appellant seeks a decision on the applicability of the notification issued on 23.11.2000 as opposed to the notification issued on 18.7.2013. In this regard, Social Security Institution cannot look into the vires of a notification nor can it decide which of its notification is applicable. Learned counsel has relied upon section 1(3) of the Ordinance which provides that the Ordinance shall apply to such classes of establishment as may be specified by notification and is not applicable to such classes of establishment as may be specified by notification. Since a notification was issued in favour of the Appellant, hence a general notification issued subsequent thereof cannot repeal or replace a special notification. Reliance has been placed on State Life Insurance Corporation of Pakistan through Chairman and others v. Mst. Sardar Begum and others (2017 SCMR 999); Raja Industries (Pvt.) Ltd. through General Manager v. Central Board of Revenue, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad through Chairman and 4 others (1996 MLD 980), Neimat Ali Goraya and 7 others v. Jaffar Abbas, Inspector/Sargent Traffic through S.P., Traffic, Lahore and others (1996 SCMR 826) and Messrs Standard Printing Press v. Sindh Employees' Social Security Institution (1988 SCMR 91).

3. On behalf of the Respondents, it is argued that the Appellant is liable to pay social security contribution in terms of the requirements of law and the notification of 18.7.2013. It is also argued that the notification of 23.11.2000 is only for the benefit of Chaudhry Rehmat Ali Memorial Model Girls College, Township, Lahore and not for the trust in general. Learned counsel further argued that the Appellant falls within the ambit of the Ordinance, hence the notification of 18.7.2013 is mandatory and requires compliance.

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and are in agreement with the learned counsel for the Appellant that alternate, efficacious remedy under the law was not available to him. We further agreed with the grievance of the Appellant that vide notification dated 23.11.2000 rights have accrued in its favour, which it has been enjoying since the year 2000. The Respondents admit that this notification has not been set aside by any subsequent notification particularly with reference to the Appellant. Therefore, we are of the opinion that since the notification holds the field, at least the Respondents were obligated to inform the Appellant through a notice that the notification of 18.7.2013 is applicable and that the trust now fell within the purview of the Ordinance. Without giving any notice or a right of hearing the Respondents proceeded on the assumption that the notification of 18.7.2013 is applicable on the Appellant. In this regard we noted that notification dated 23.11.2010 is a special notification issued with specific reference to the Appellant. Notification dated 18.7.2013 is general in nature issued subsequently which defines the jurisdiction of PESSI and the benefits available for employees working within the province of Punjab in terms of the Ordinance. As per this notification employees in the Punjab are entitled to the benefits under the Ordinance. Hence as per the Respondents, the Appellant also falls within its jurisdiction. The Appellant was exempted from social security contribution since 2000 in terms of the notification of 23.11.2010. At that time the Appellant raised a request before PESSI which was permissible under the law. The request was heard and on the basis of an undertaking by the Appellant notification dated 23.11.2010 was issued. The issuance of the notification created rights in favour of the Appellant which cannot be withdrawn without giving the Appellant an opportunity of hearing without disclosing the reasons for withdrawal of a right granted and without giving the Appellant an opportunity to file a representation to explain why it is entitled to continue under the notification of 23.11.2000. Furthermore we also note that admittedly the Appellant was given this benefit and not just the girls school, hence the right accrued under the notification of 23.11.2010 cannot be taken away through a general notification issued on 18.7.2013.

5. Under the circumstances, the instant appeal is accepted and the impugned order dated 23.11.2015 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No. 36074/2015 is set aside. The Respondents are directed to follow due process if in their opinion the Appellant falls within their purview before raising any demand.

JUDGMENT

Mrs. Ayesha A. Malik J.--This Judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition along with connected WP Nos. 54146 and 60723 of 2017 whereby the Petitioners have challenged the jurisdiction of the Federal Ombudsman for Protection Against Harassment of Woman at the Work Place ("Federal Ombudsman") while hearing a complaint filed by Respondent No. 5, Amna Tahir under the Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace Act, 2010 ("2010 Act").
Facts and arguments

2. The common facts are that Respondent No. 5 filed a complaint, before the Federal Ombudsman, against Saqib Rasheed, Petitioner in WP Nos. 54146 and 60723 of 2017 and Imran Maqbool, Petitioner in WP No. 71556/2017 along with five other officers of MCB Bank Limited on 23.6.2017 under the 2010 Act. The Petitioners along with others filed their replies before the Federal Ombudsman and raised an objection with respect to the jurisdiction of the Federal Ombudsman on two grounds; firstly, that the matter stood decided by the case cited at PLD 2016 Lahore 433 titled "Salim Javed and others v. Federal Ombudsman and others" ("Salim Javed Case") in which it was stated that jurisdiction in such cases lies with the Provincial Ombudsman and secondly that Respondent No. 5 had also invoked the jurisdiction of the Provincial Ombudsman and therefore, could not seek remedy before both the Ombudsman at the same time.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that Respondent No. 5 has never filed any complaint against the Petitioners before the Bank and that the entire proceeding before the Federal Ombudsman was filed with a view to damage their reputation and to blackmail and harass them. Learned counsel also argued that the Federal Ombudsman does not have jurisdiction in the matter and despite various different restraining orders from this Court she proceeded with the matter having no regard whatsoever of the orders of this Court. In another WP No. 54146/2017 filed by Saqib Rasheed, an interim order was passed on 24.07.2017 in which the Federal Ombudsman was restrained from proceeding with the matter yet despite issuance of the interim order, the orders of 4.8.2017 and 24.8.2017 were passed by the Federal Ombudsman. Learned counsel further argued that in the instant petition, repeated interim orders were passed by this Court, however, the Federal Ombudsman despite the warnings continued to proceed with the matter and ultimately passed judgment on 18.12.2017. Learned counsel argued that this is in total defiance of the orders of this Court which attitude was also displayed earlier by the same Federal Ombudsman in the Salim Javed Case. While relying on the said judgment, learned counsel argued that the question of jurisdiction has been decided, therefore the Federal Ombudsman could not proceed with the matter.

4. Respondent No. 5 in person argued her case. She stated that she filed a complaint before the Bank, however, they did not respond to her complaint. She then filed a complaint before the Provincial Ombudsman, however, subsequently withdrew it on 22.6.2017 believing it to be a matter for the Federal Ombudsman. She then filed a complaint before the Federal Ombudsman, who proceeded with the matter and at that time she had no knowledge of the Salim Javed Case. She argued that the Bank is a trans-provincial entity and as per the law is governed by Federal law, hence the Federal Ombudsman has jurisdiction in the matter. She also stated that this case is distinguishable from the Salim Javed Case, which was a case of an advocate whose offices are in Lahore, hence the Court concluded that in such cases jurisdiction vests with the Provincial Ombudsman.

5. On behalf of the Federal Government Mr. Nasar Ahmad, DAG argued that the Federal Ombudsman has jurisdiction to entertain all complaints which have a federal character including complaints of trans-provincial organizations. He explained that the Provincial Ombudsman cannot exercise jurisdiction over a federal organization or its officers as they transcend the provincial boundaries and can be transferred out of the Province at any time rendering the claim before the Provincial Ombudsman as redundant. Further explained that the Salim Javed Case did not take these factors into consideration as the issue was with a local advocate. He further argued that the Federal Legislative List, Item No. 13 provides for Federal Ombudsman, meaning thereby that if the subject matter in which a Federal Ombudsman is to be created falls within the domain of the Federal Government than the Federal Government is competent to make a Federal Ombudsman. In this case, the subject matter pertains to harassment at the work place for which the Federal Government has ratified several international conventions and treaties. Furthermore in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Messrs Sui Southern Gas Company Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2018 SCMR 802) ("NIRC case"), jurisdiction lies with the Federal Ombudsman.

6. The stance of the Province/Respondent No. 3 as submitted by Mrs. Samia Khalid, Additional Advocate General and Mr. Anwaar Hussain, Additional Advocate General is that jurisdiction vests with the Provincial as well as the Federal Ombudsman. It is argued that the complainant has a choice of forum based on convenience as well as cause of action. In the event that the organization is a federal organization, the Provincial Ombudsman can still hear the matter and present its recommendations to the federal government. Reliance is placed on Article 141 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") to urge the point that the Parliament can make laws for the whole or any part of Pakistan and that the Provincial Government shall ensure its compliance. Further argued that even after the Province adopted the 2010 Act in the year 2012, the 2010 Act still holds the field, meaning that jurisdiction continues to vest with both Ombudsman. It is also argued that both the Federal and Provincial laws are beneficial legislation, hence the doctrine of convenience is applicable and if considered necessary the place of occurrence can be the place where the complaint is filed.

The law and its purpose

7. The 2010 Act was promulgated as Act No. IV of 2010 and notified in the official gazette on 11.3.2010. In terms of its preamble it is an Act to make provisions for the protection against harassment of women at the workplace. Harassment is defined in Section 2(h) of the 2010 Act describing certain kinds of behaviour and attitude to be harassment because it causes interference with work performance or because it creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive work environment. The law is premised on the fundamental right of equal opportunity, for both men and women, to earn their livelihood and in furtherance of this right an obligation has been created on the employer at the workplace to create a safe working environment where both men and women can contribute and work efficiently and safely without discrimination and harassment.

8. The 2010 Act was passed in pursuance of Pakistan"s obligation under the Universal Declaration of Human Rights ("UDHR"), the Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women ("CEDAW"), the International Labour Organization Convention 100 ("ILO 100") which is the Convention for Equal Remuneration for Men and Women for Work and Convention 111 ("ILO 111"). Pakistan ratified all the above mentioned treaties and conventions which provide equal opportunity at the workplace and necessitate a safe work environment. The 2010 Act extends to the whole of Pakistan. It defines the term 'Employer' to mean an organization, a person or body of persons whether incorporated or not and includes an authority, office bearer or proprietor run by the Federal Government or Provincial Government. The word 'Organization' is defined to mean Federal or Provincial Government Ministry, Division or a Department, a corporation or any autonomous or semi-autonomous body and medical institutes and faculties established or controlled by the Federal or Provincial Government or the District Government or privately managed and includes private sector organization and institutions. The term 'workplace' defines the place of work or the premises where the activity of the organization or the employer are carried out and includes work at the premises or official activity outside the office. Hence the 2010 Act is applicable over the entire gambit of workplace, employer and organization including all employees, organization and workplace in the public and private sector. In terms of Section 7 of the 2010 Act, the respective Federal and Provincial Governments are to appoint an Ombudsperson at the Federal and Provincial level. On 5.1.2013 the Government of Punjab adopted this law which is called the Punjab Protection Against Harassment of Woman at the Work Place (Amendment) Act, 2012 (III of 2013). Effectively the Provincial Assembly adopted the federal law with some changes so as to make it functional at the provincial level. Hence there is a federal law and a provincial law on the subject of protection against harassment of women at the workplace.

9. The basic issue in these petitions is with respect to the jurisdiction of the Federal Ombudsman and the Provincial Ombudsman and in particular whether Respondent No. 5, Amna Tahir was to file her complaint before the Provincial Ombudsman or the Federal Ombudsman. In terms of the Salim Javed Case the Federal Ombudsman does not have jurisdiction to hear the complaint of Respondent No. 5 as the matter falls within the ambit of the Provincial Ombudsman. The facts of the Salim Javed Case are that a female advocate filed a complaint against advocate Salim Javed before the Federal Ombudsman. The respondent in that case objected to the assumption of jurisdiction by the Federal Ombudsman as it was his case that the cause of action arose in Lahore, hence the Provincial Ombudsman was competent to hear the complaint. The opinion of the Court is that the Federal Ombudsman exercises jurisdiction only to the extent of the federal capital area and jurisdiction in all other situations vests with the Provincial Ombudsman. The Court concluded that the federal law lost its federal character and stands converted into a provincial law after the 18th Amendment. For ease of reference relevant paragraphs are reproduced hereunder:

8. I have considered the arguments addressed at the bar and have examined the law. The fundamental constitutional cum legal question that requires determination by this Court is the scope of Article 270AA(6) of the Constitution and the effect of the omission of the Concurrent List on the nature and character of the existing federal law. In the present facts, the Court has to determine the extent of jurisdiction enjoyed by the Federal Ombudsman under the Federal Act. In other words, whether Federal Ombudsman, under the Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace Act, 2010 can assume jurisdiction over a complaint in which the cause of action arose in Punjab or whether, in such like matters, the jurisdiction vests with the Provincial Ombudsperson under the Punjab Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace Act, 2012 ("Provincial Act") post 18th constitutional amendment.

9. The Federal Act was promulgated on 11.3.2010 with jurisdiction extending to the whole of Pakistan under Section 1(2) of the Federal Act. Constitution (Eighteenth Amendment) Act, 2010 was introduced on 20.4.2010. The said amendment omitted the Concurrent List from the Fourth Schedule to the Constitution, thereby enlarging and expanding the legislative domain of the provincial legislature and more importantly reinvigorating the constitutional theme of federalism and provincial autonomy. The preamble to the Amendment Act echoes the promise to establish "a Federal ... State wherein ... the Provinces have equitable share in the Federation." Admittedly, the Federal Act drew its legislative competence form entry 25 i.e. social welfare, of the erstwhile Concurrent List. Post 18th Amendment, this area stands devolved onto the Provinces. Under Article 270AA(6) of the Constitution, the Federal Act remains in force (as a Provincial Act, as discussed later) irrespective of the omission of the Concurrent List until such time that the Federal Act is altered, repealed or amended by the Competent Authority (legislature). Any such alteration or amendment in the law by the competent legislature does not affect its continuity and the law continues to be in force, albeit, as a provincial law, not because of the alteration or amendment but because of the constitutional declaration under the 18th amendment. It is only on repeal that the law comes to an end.

10. The Punjab Protection Against Harassment of Women at the Workplace (Amendment) Act, 2012 (Act III 2013) has amended and altered the Federal Act (interestingly retaining the same title). It is actually the constitutional declaration of devolution, the underlying constitutional theme of federalism and provincial autonomy under the 18th Amendment which has metamorphosed the Federal Act into a Provincial Act. Alteration and amendment by the competent provincial legislature is a legislative exercise to align the law according to the wishes of the provincial legislature and has no bearing on the character of the law which already stands transformed into provincial law by the constitutional declaration on the promulgation of the Amendment Act.

11. Considering it from another angle, if the federal law under Article 270AA(6) can only be subjected to alteration, amendment and repeal by the provincial legislature, it means that the Federal law has lost its federal character and stands transformed into a Provincial law. What if the appropriate legislature does not carry out any amendment or alteration in the federal law, it still automatically stands converted into provincial law and remains in force as such. This is also because with the omission of the Concurrent List, the federal legislature loses its legislative fiat and command over the areas in the Concurrent List to the provincial legislature and as a consequence the federal law is deprived of its federal character. It is important to underline, that with the legislative shift from federal to provincial, the executive authority, under Article 97 also gets realigned and changes hands from federal executive to the provincial executive.

12. The Amendment Act, as well as, the Punjab Protection Against Harassment or Women at the Workplace (Amendment) Act, 2012 constitutionally trims the Federal Act and restricts its jurisdiction to territories of Pakistan that fall outside the Provinces in terms of Article 1(2) of the Constitution. The continuance of the Federal Act in federal areas finds support under Article 142(d) of the Constitution that provides that the Federal Legislature has the exclusive power to make laws with respect to all matters pertaining to such areas in the Federation as are not included in any Province. The territorial jurisdiction of the Federal Act under Section 1(2) extends to the whole of Pakistan. This geographical extent has to be pruned according to the constitutional mandate under the 18th amendment. The best interpretational tool to apply is that of reading down. Reliance is placed on Messrs Chenone Stores Ltd. through Executive Director (Finance Accounts) Federal Board of Revenue through Chairman and 2 others (2012 PTD 1815) and Nadeem Asghar Nadeem and others v. Province of the Punjab and others (2015 CLC 1509). Therefore, in order to align the Federal Act with the constitutional scheme, section 1(2) of the Federal Act is read down thereby limiting the extent of the Federal Act to areas which do not form part of any province. Reliance is also placed on Syed Imran Ali Shah v. Government of Pakistan and 2 others (2013 PLC 143).

13. The complaint filed by Respondent No. 2 on 14.9.2015 is based on cause of action arising in Lahore, the alleged accused also reside in Lahore, therefore, the jurisdiction to entertain and hear the complaint of Respondent No. 2 is with the Provincial Ombudsperson under the Provincial Act and the Federal Ombudsman has no jurisdiction to entertain the said complaint. The impugned judgment dated 4.1.2016 passed by the Federal Ombudsman along with all the prior orders assuming jurisdiction in the matter are hereby declared to be unconstitutional, illegal and without lawful authority and therefore set aside. The complaint shall be deemed to have been returned to Respondent No. 2, who may file the same before the Provincial Ombudsperson, if so advised. Considering that the Federal Ombudsman has no jurisdiction to entertain the complaint, other grounds agitated by the petitioners need not be gone into.

10. The findings of the Court are based on the understanding that the subject of harassment against women has devolved onto the Provincial Government post 18th Amendment. The Court considered the subject matter of harassment against women to be covered under Item No. 25 of the Concurrent Legislative List ("CLL") being Population, Planning and Social Welfare. As the CLL was abolished by way of the 18th Amendment on 20.4.2010 all areas provided for under the CLL devolved on to the Provinces. Consequently the Court concluded that jurisdiction vests with the Provincial Ombudsman and only to the extent of the federal capital territory, jurisdiction vests with the Federal Ombudsman. We have considered the reasoning advanced in the Salim Javed Case, however we are not persuaded by the same. Harassment, whether verbal or physical is a behavioral issue that adversely affects the work environment. It manifests itself in many different forms of unethical and unwelcomed behaviour which renders the workplace hostile or offensive. Hence it violates the right to a safe and healthy work environment. The right to work is a multifaceted right which is recognized under different international treaties and conventions for creating a safe work environment especially for women. Article 23 of UDHR declares the right to work and the right to favourable conditions of work as a human right. Article 11 of CEDAW specifically requires States to ensure women have equal work opportunity and safe working conditions. As Pakistan has ratified these treaties and conventions it is obligated to protect the right to work and to ensure a favourable work environment. Since the 2010 Act was promulgated pursuant to Pakistan obligations under the international treaties and conventions, the subject matter of protection of the workplace for women falls under Item 3 read with Item 32 of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution which includes implementing international treaties and conventions. It is also noted that harassment laws aim to regulate behaviour and attitudes which can be subjected to criminal punishment as well as civil liability. Section 509 of the Pakistan Penal Code, 1860 ("PPC") criminalizes behaviour conduced with the intention of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or behaviour which creates an intimidating hostile or offensive work environment. Therefore the subject of harassment at the workplace being a crime under the PPC means that Parliament and the Provinces both are competent to make laws with respect to the crime, procedure or evidence. Hence we find that the subject of protection of women from harassment does not fall under 'population, planning and welfare' of the CLL, rather it falls under the federal domain consequent to its international obligations and to the extent that the subject relates to criminal law.

11. We also find that the Salim Javed Case is not applicable to this case because the issue of trans-provincial organization was not taken into consideration by the Court in that case. This issue was considered by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the NIRC case at great length. The term "trans-provincial organization" means an organization which operates at a trans-provincial level, that is they operate in more than one province. In terms of the NIRC case the federal legislature has extra territorial authority to legislate on matters which pertain to trans-provincial organizations. The Court relied on Item No. 13 in Part II of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution which provides for inter-provincial matters and coordination, meaning that the Federation has to make laws relating to inter-provincial matters. Therefore in the NIRC case, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded that the federal legislature has extra territorial authority to legislate, however the same authority does not lie with the provincial legislature. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also held that in order to preserve and regulate a right which transcends provincial boundaries, only the Federation is competent to legislate on such matters and Item Nos. 58 and 59 of the Federal Legislative List provide the relevant entries to bring it in the federal domain. The Provincial legislature does not have extra territorial legislative competence, therefore it cannot legislate with regard to rights which transcend its provincial boundaries. In the NIRC judgment, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the federal legislature is competent to legislate on all matters in order to discharge its obligations created under international treaties and conventions. In the case, the matter involved was with respect to trade unions and labour disputes, hence it was found that it was a federal obligation created under the International Labour Organization Convention, hence covered under Item No. 3 and 32 of the Federal Legislative List. In the case of a trans-provincial establishment, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the Federation is competent to interfere in such matters because trans-provincial establishments transcend provincial boundaries. Therefore we are of the opinion that the wisdom enumerated in the NIRC case is applicable to the instant case. Where the organization is clearly a trans-provincial organization, as in this case as it is a bank with branches all over Pakistan, the Federal Ombudsman is competent to look into the complaint of Respondent No. 5. The jurisdiction of the Federal Ombudsman is not limited to the federal capital area, rather the Federal Ombudsman has jurisdiction in relation to all employers, organizations, institutions and workplaces which have a federal character or are established under a federal law or are directly consequent to an international obligation under an international treaty or convention. The Federal Ombudsman jurisdiction cannot be limited to the federal capital area and can be exercised all over Pakistan over a federal employer, institution, organization or workplace.

12. The question which needs consideration is whether the Provincial Ombudsman has concurrent jurisdiction with the Federal Ombudsman on account of the fact that the harassment committed or complainant reside in the province who sought to complain before the Provincial Ombudsman. Although Mrs. Samia Khalid, Additional Advocate General and Mr. Anwaar Hussain, Additional Advocate General argued that being beneficially both the Provincial and Federal Ombudsman have jurisdiction, however, we are of the opinion that the intent of the law is to create a forum where harassment can be reported, inquired and penalized. If both the Provincial and Federal Ombudsman are given jurisdiction then there may be instances where the Provincial Ombudsman will have to deal with a complaint against a trans-provincial organization, or where the employer or the organization is federal in character making it difficult for the Provincial Ombudsman to proceed with the complaint or to impose penalty on the employer or organization since it falls within the federal domain. Under the circumstances, we hold that if the employer or organization and its workplace falls strictly within the territorial boundaries of the Provincial Ombudsman, then jurisdiction vests with the Provincial Ombudsman and where the employer or organization transcends provincial boundaries such as in this case then jurisdiction vests with the Federal Ombudsman. To clarify we add that for the reasons stated herein we disagree with the findings in the Salim Javed Case that the Federal Ombudsman jurisdiction is limited to the federal capital area as the Federal Ombudsman is competent to hear complaints related to trans-provincial organizations, institutions, employers and workplace.

13. So far as the proceedings conducted by the Federal Ombudsman, we find that they were done in utter disregard of the orders of this Court. On 24.7.2017 an order was passed in WP No. 54146/17 directing that the proceedings before the Federal Ombudsman shall remain stayed. She ignored the order and proceeded with the matter. In another order dated 9.10.2017 passed in WP No. 71556/17 she was again restrained, however she proceeded with the case. Thereafter a series of orders were issued by the Federal Ombudsman including the final order on 18.12.2017 without any consideration of the orders of this Court. It was only when the Court restrained

Respondent No. 5 from proceeding with the execution of the final order that the proceedings were stopped. We note that the Salim Javed Case categorically addressed the issue with reference to the Federal Ombudsman obligation and to obey the orders of the High Court. However, displaying the same attitude as was discussed in that case, the Federal Ombudsman (Justice (R) Yasmin Abbasey) showed no regard whatsoever to the orders of this Court. Under the circumstances all orders passed after 4.8.2017 including the final order dated 18.12.2017 are illegal and void, hence set aside. The complaint of Amna Tahir shall be treated as pending before the Federal Ombudsman who shall decide the same in accordance with law, expeditiously, after hearing all necessary parties.

14. In view of the aforesaid, WP Nos.71556/2017, 54146 and 60723 of 2017 are allowed to the extent that the impugned orders and the final order dated 18.12.2017 passed by the Federal Ombudsman are set aside. However, the parties are directed to appear before the Federal Ombudsman on 4.10.2018 so as to proceed with the compliant on its merit. The Registrar of this Court is directed to inform the Registrar of the office of the Federal Ombudsman of the orders of this Court.

Mr. Sheraz Zaka, Advocate for Petitioner.
Kh. Salman Mehmood, AAG for Respondents.
Mr. Mehboob Azhar Sheikh, Advocate for Respondent No. 4.
Mr. Jamil Khan, Legal Advisor NADRA for Respondent No. 3.
Date of hearing: 18.1.2018.

JUDGMENT

Through this petition, the Petitioner seeks a declaration that the requirement of producing B-form issued by National Database and Registration Authority ("NADRA") for the purposes of appearance in the 9th class examination carried out by Respondent No. 4, Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Lahore ("BISE") be declared illegal and unconstitutional.

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Petitioner is a student of class nine and has challenged the requirement of submission of B-form for the purposes of appearance in the class nine board exam, as he along with other students are facing difficulties in obtaining the B-form. The B-form is required as proof of age for registration with Respondent No. 4 who carries out the board exam. During the pendency of this writ petition the Petitioner was registered with Respondent No. 4 and has taken the ninth class exam. However, the learned counsel for the petitioner stated that notwithstanding the same since the matter is of public interest the Petitioner wants to pursue the matter.

3. Counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Petitioner is entitled to free education under the Punjab Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2014 ("Act"). That Section 15 of the Act requires all applicants to produce their birth certificates for the purposes of admission to a school. That as per Section 15 only the birth certificate is required and Respondent No. 4 cannot require the B-form, which requirement is extraneous to the Act. Learned counsel further argued that the requirement of B-form is an unreasonable requirement and imposes a financial burden on the students. The fee charged by NADRA for issuing B-form is Rs.500/- which is exorbitant and causes unjust enrichment.

4. On behalf of Respondent No. 4, BISE it is argued that the requirement of B-form by the BISE is getting for proof of age of the student. Uptill 2017 it was never mandatory as it was agreed by the BISE that students can be given admission without the B-form due to the difficulties faced by them to obtain the B-form from NADRA. In this regard he has placed reliance on the decisions of the Punjab Board Committee of Chairman dated 12.02.2012, 15.02.2013, 13.06.2014, 07.10.2015 and for the year 2016 held on the issue of B-form. He explained that initially the requirement was relaxed to facilitate and encourage submission of B-form and it is only for the year 2017 that it became mandatory to encourage transparency in proof of age. So far as the Petitioner is concerned, he has been given admission and has taken his examination before the 2017 decision, therefore, he has no genuine grievance to be adjudicated upon by this Court.

5. Counsel for NADRA stated that they are the issuing authority for the B-from. Learned counsel argued that B-form is mandatory under the National Database and Registration Authority Ordinance, 2000 ("Ordinance") and ensures that all candidates produce a reliable document for proof of their age. He further stated that the regular fee for issuance of B form is Rs.50/- and urgent fee is Rs.500/- which is quite reasonable. He further stated that a regular form is issued within two weeks and urgent within five days and no complaints have ever been received.

6. Heard and record perused.

7. The basic issue in the instant case is whether the requirement of submission of a Child Registration Certificate ("CRC") also known as a "B-form" for appearance in the class nine BISE exam is unconstitutional. The Petitioner has relied upon Section 15 of the Act. The mandate of the said Act is to provide for free and compulsory education to all children of the age of five to sixteen years. Section 15 of the Act provides for the documents required as proof of age at the time of admission. In terms of the said section for the purposes of admission in a school, the age of a child is determined on the basis of a birth certificate or any other document as may be prescribed but a child shall not be denied admission in a school for lack of proof of age. In the event that a child is admitted without producing the birth certificate, the school authority will be responsible for obtaining the particulars of the birth registration of a child. In the first instance it is noted that as per Section 15 of the Act in order to prove age the competent authority may ask for a birth certificate or any other document as may be prescribed. Furthermore the Act itself provides that admission will not be denied for lack of proof and that the school may obtain the required particulars. The Petitioner seeks registration for the class nine board exam for which proof of age is required. Respondent No. 4 being the competent authority requires that a student provide his or her CRC as proof of his or her age. Respondent No. 4 has justified its demand on the ground that requirement of CRC means that there is a document which is unanimously relied upon by all the BISE in the Punjab for the purposes of determining the correct age of the candidates. Also that it is very difficult to verify birth certificate issued by private clinics and hospitals. The requirement of a CRC does not violate Section 15 of the Act as the said Section itself provides that it may be a birth certificate or any other document, as may be prescribed. Furthermore the explanation given by Respondent No. 4 for requiring the CRC to ensure transparency and exactness with respect to proof of age is also reasonable. Therefore, on this account requirement of CRC/B-form is not unconstitutional.

8. It is also noted that in the Ordinance every citizen must be registered with NADRA such that if he or she has attained the age of eighteen years they shall be issued a Computerized National Identity Card ("CNIC"). In the event any citizen who has not attained the age of eighteen years he or she will be issued a Registration Certificate as may be prescribed by the competent authority. In this case the prescribed certificate is the CRC. NADRA maintains the citizens database and CRC is the relevant document under which children under the age of 18 are being registered. The issuance of a CRC also means that the information contained therein is valid and correct. Under the circumstances, it is a valid document to be required for registration for the class nine board exam. In terms what has been stated by learned counsel for NADRA the procedure for applying for the CRC certificate is simple and not costly. The application has to be filled, required documents submitted and CRC is issued within five days' time. The ordinary registration fee is Rs.50/- and urgent fee is Rs.500/- which neither seems exorbitant nor does it suggest unjust enrichment.

9. Under the circumstances, no illegality has been made out. Resultantly, this petition is failed and stands dismissed.

Dr. A. Basit and Malik Muhammad Awais Khalid for Respondents/Petitioners (in W.P. No.22283 of 2016).
Date of hearing: 15th May, 2018.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant I.C.A. as well as in I.C.A. No.189/2013 arising out of the judgment dated 19.09.2012 passed in W.P. No.23977/2011 as well as on the issues raised in W.P. No.22283/2016 as they are all interconnected.

2. The Appellant in I.C.A. No.188/2013 is the Government of Punjab whereas the Appellants in I.C.A. No.189/2013 are regular employees of Bureau of Statistics working in BS-17 and BS-18. The Petitioners in W.P. No.22283/2016 are contract employees, who were appointed as Assistant Director in BS-17 and Deputy Director in BS-18 in the Development Scheme titled Restructuring/Revamping and Strengthening of Punjab Bureau of Statistic ("the Project").

3. The dispute before the Court is with regard to the right of regular employment against the post in BS-17 and in BS-18 versus the right to promotion of the regular employees. The Government of Punjab is aggrieved by the impugned judgment dated 19.09.2012, which allowed W.P. No.23977/2011 filed by contract employees working for the Project, who sought regularization against their seats in BS-17 and BS-18, as the Project was transferred from the development side to non-development SNE i.e Schedule of New Expenditure and consequently 126 posts were created w.e.f. 01.07.2011 out of which 30 posts are gazetted. The dispute pertains to the ten gazetted posts in BS-17 and ten seats in BS-18.

4. The Respondents in I.C.A. No.188/2013 and the Petitioners in W.P. No.22283/2016 claim that they were recruited for the Project on a one year contract, which was subject to extension on annual basis. Their contracts were regularly extended uptil 30.12.2011 after which it is their case that since the posts were transferred to the non-development side, meaning thereby that their posts have become permanent, hence their employment is deemed to have become permanent as well. The Respondents and the Petitioners rely upon judgment dated 05.05.2014 passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.As. Nos.275 and 276 of 2014 in which it is held that where development project is transferred to the non-development side and it becomes a permanent department of the Government, the employees having been appointed through a regular process are entitled to be considered for permanent employment against their seats. It is the case of these Respondents and the Petitioners that they are entitled to be treated as regular employees against their seats and at best a scrutiny committee can check their credentials for the purposes of permanent employment.

5. The Appellants in I.C.A. No.189/2013 are aggrieved by the impugned judgment as they are regular employees of Bureau of Statistics who are in line for promotion to BS-17 and BS-18. It is their contention that in terms of Punjab Bureau of Statistics Recruitment Rules, 1985 ("Rules"), the seats in the Bureau of Statistics are subject to 75:25 ratio wherein 75% of the seats are to be filled in by promotion from amongst the Assistant Directors in BS-17 and BS-18 and only 25% of the seats are to be filled in by initial recruitment. It is their case that with respect to the seats for BS-17 and BS-18 they are entitled to be promoted against the 75% seats and any vacancy that is to be filled in through initial recruitment is limited to 25% of the seats. Therefore, they claim a right of promotion against the post of Assistant Director BS-17 and Deputy Director BS-18 and if their 20 seats are allocated in favour of the Petitioners of W.P. No.22283/2016 and Respondents in I.C.A. No.188/2013 such that they are regularized against these posts, their right of promotion will be adversely prejudice, which is against the spirit of the law.

6. On behalf of the Government of Punjab, it is argued that on 31.01.2008 the posts of BS-17 and BS-18 were advertised for the Project initially for a period of one year, however, the contracts were extended from time to time uptil the completion of the Project on 30.06.2011. On 28.05.2011 one hundred and twenty-six (126) posts were created as the Project moved from the development side to the non-development side. Out of these seats, 30 seats are for gazetted officers, out of which the dispute relates to ten seats in BS-18 and BS-17 respectively. It is the case of the Government of Punjab that on the creation of these 126 seats SNE posts are to be filled in accordance with the Rules meaning thereby that they are subject to the 75:25 ratio such that only 25% of the seats are to be filled in by initial recruitment. Hence, the Respondents in I.C.A. No.188/2013 and the Petitioners in W.P. No.22283/2016 can be adjusted against 25% of the seats and no more. They rely on a Summary for the Chief Minister dated 23.06.2011 in which it is stated that the gazetted staff working in the Project on contract basis including Assistant Director BS-17 and Deputy Director BS-18 may be referred to the Punjab Public Service Commission ("PPSC") for determining their suitability for appointment against SNE posts. The proposal in the summary was approved such that the posts in BS-16 and above may be filled as per service Rules and on the recommendations of the PPSC through open competition. Hence as per their contention, the vacant seats are subject to the Rules where the 75:25 ratio is applicable. They also rely on Appointment Policy dated 10.11.2010 for contract employees, who are to be appointed on a regular basis and are to be appointed on the recommendations of the selection committee as per the provision of the service Rules. It is their case that the policy also shows that the Rules are relevant. It is also argued that the impugned judgment did not consider the fact that vacancies in the Bureau of Statistics against the newly created posts in BS-17 and BS-18 are to be filled in accordance with the Rules and that the contract employees can be considered against the permanent post subject to the requirement of the Rules. Therefore, the impugned judgment failed to take into consideration the fact that the contract employees can only be considered against 25% seats for initial recruitment as 75% of the seats must be filled through promotion. Learned Law Officer argued that effectively the impugned judgment requires all the seats to be filled in through initial recruitment which means that the employees of the department, who are waiting for promotion will not be promoted, hence being against the mandate of the Rules. It is their case that the contract employees have to appear before the PPSC as only the seats have been regularized and made permanent and the contract employees at best have a right to be considered against those seats subject to the Rules.

7. Heard and record perused.

8. The basic issue before the Court is with respect to filling up of the permanent seats in BS-17 and BS-18 in Bureau of Statistics. The contention of the Respondents in both the appeals and the Petitioners of W.P. No.22283/2016 is that they are entitled to be considered for the purposes of regularization against the seats, which have been made permanent because they were all Project employees and since the Project is now on the non-development side, they have a right to be considered for permanent employment. In this regard, they have relied upon the judgment dated 05.05.2014 passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.As. Nos.275 and 276 of 2014 wherein it has been held that contract employees are entitled to be considered for permanent employment for the non-development department. In that case, the Court held that since the department has become a permanent department of the Government the contract employees must be considered for regular appointment against the vacant seats. We are of the opinion that there is no cavil to the findings of the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan and that contract employees may be considered against the available vacant seats in the department, however there will be subject to the Rules. The Rules clearly prescribes a 75:25 ratio in terms of which only 25% of the seats can be filled in through the recruitment process and the remaining 75% of the seats have to be filled in through promotion. Therefore, the contract employees will be considered against 25% of the seats being the available seats for regularization of the contract employees. The Appellants in I.C.A. No.189/2013 are permanent employees of the department, who have been waiting for their promotion and they have a right under the Rules to be considered for promotion against available vacant seats as per the given ratio. Under the circumstances, we find that although the impugned judgment gives the Respondents in both the appeals and the Petitioners of W.P. No.22283/2016 a right to be considered against the vacant seats, it is clarified that the department can only fill up 25% of those seats while the remaining will have to be filled up through promotion as prescribed under the Rules.

9. In this regard, we have also looked at the Appointment Policy dated 10.11.2010 and the summary for the Chief Minister dated 23.06.2011, which is specifically with reference to the approval of the Project under transfer to the non-development side which also proposes that vacancies should be filled in as per Rules. It goes without saying that the Rules prescribe for the manner in which the seats of the department are to be filled up and simply because a Project has been converted and shifted to the non-development side it does not mean that recruitment to the permanent department will not be subject to the Rules. Once the Project becomes permanent and 126 seats were made regular then the regular seats are subject to the Rules of the department. The contract employees have a right to be considered which they will be by the PPSC, however, the seats will be filled as per the Rules which means PPSC will recommend candidates to fill up 25% of the seats. In this regard the judgment dated 05.05.2014 passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.As. Nos. 275 and 276 of 2014 simply finds that contract employees have a right to be considered, however it does not provide that the recruitment process shall be contrary to the prescribed Rules.

10. Under the circumstances, I.C.As. Nos. 188 and 189 of 2013 are accepted and W.P. No. 22283 of 2016 is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule "A", appended with the judgment, as all petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. The Petitioners are all customers of different financial institutions who have availed some form of finance from the Respondent Banks. Respondent No.1 is the State Bank of Pakistan which is arrayed in all the Petitions. The other Banks are the Bank of Punjab, Askari Bank Limited, JS Bank, MCB Bank Limited, National Bank of Pakistan, Punjab Provincial Cooperative Bank Limited, Saudi Pak Industrial Company, NIB Bank, Summit Bank and Habib Metropolitan Bank Limited ("the Banks"). The Banks allege that the Petitioners owe money to the Banks for which, in some cases suit for recovery of finance have been filed before the competent court. During the pendency of the aforementioned suits the Banks also filed complaint before the State Bank of Pakistan, which then filed reference under section 31D of the National Accountability Ordinance, 1999 ("NAB Ordinance") before the National Accountability Bureau ("NAB") calling for an inquiry into the matter of willful default by the Petitioners. In some cases direct notices were issued to the Petitioners alleging willful default calling for immediate payment under the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 ("FIO").

3. Consequently, the Petitioners have challenged; (a) notices issued under section 5(r) of the NAB Ordinance which called upon the Petitioners to show cause within seven days as to why they should not be proceeded against as willful defaulters under the NAB Ordinance; (b) notices under section 2(g) of the FIO calling upon the Petitioners to pay their liability within thirty days failing which the Bank shall approach the investigating agency nominated by the Federal Government in terms of sections 20(7) and 20(8) of the FIO to proceed against the act of willful default as defined under section 2(g) of the FIO; and (c) notices under section 19 read with section 31D of the NAB Ordinance which calls upon the Petitioners to provide information for the investigation with reference to the amounts owed to the Banks. The notices call upon the Petitioners to provide documentation and details for the benefit of the combined investigation team, which is inquiring into the matter of willful default and in some cases called upon the Petitioners to show cause as to why proceedings should not be initiated against them under the NAB Ordinance for willful default. The Petitions also challenged the vires of sections 5(r), 9, 19, 23, 27 and 31D of the NAB Ordinance seeking declaration that these provisions are ultra vires of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") and are in direct conflict with the provisions of the subsequently promulgated special law, the FIO. Some Petitioners have challenged the vires of sections 2(g) and 20(8) of the FIO for being ultra vires the Constitution giving unguided and excessive power to the Government appointed agency to investigate into the matter of willful default.

4. All the Petitioners before the Court are therefore aggrieved by various actions taken by NAB at the behest of the State Bank of Pakistan and the Banks who for the purposes of recovering amounts stated to be due from the Petitioners have alleged willful default in order to enable NAB or the Federal Investigating Agency ("FIA") to recover and settle the debt of the Banks. The Petitioners' case is that the act of initiating inquiry or investigation or calling upon them to show cause on allegations of willful default is illegal and contrary to the mandate of the FIO. It is their case that the question whether there is default by a customer of a financial obligation to a financial institution in such cases, jurisdiction vests with the Banking Court established under the FIO. It is for the Banking Court to determine whether there is default in the repayment of financial obligations and if the Banking Court makes a determination on the issue of default then the question whether the default was willful be decided. In support of their arguments, learned counsel have relied upon "Syed Mushahid Shah and others v. Federal Investment Agency and others" (2017 SCMR 1218) where the issue of parallel jurisdiction has been decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan with specific reference to the FIO and the Banking Courts established thereunder. It is also their case that NAB and the FIA's inquiry and interference is an infringement of their fundamental right to fair trial under Article 10A of the Constitution. With respect to the provisions of the FIA under section 20(8), the case of the Petitioners is that the FIA has no jurisdiction in such matters and the impugned provision grants immense discretionary powers to the FIA or any nominated Government agency so as to prejudice the basic rights of the customer. Their argument is the same as that for NAB, that parallel action by the FIA or any Government Agency, for pursuing criminal charges before the conclusion of the civil proceedings will seriously prejudice the rights of the Petitioners. It was argued that this power amounts to unfettered discretion at the hands of the government agency allowing them to harass and coerce the customer into paying amounts which are not due to the Banks.

5. On behalf of the State Bank of Pakistan, the Bank of Punjab being the Respondents in most of the cases, along with other Banks, report and parawise comments have been filed. Learned counsel stated that the Governor State Bank of Pakistan can issue show cause notice under section 5(r) of the NAB Ordinance alleging therein the offence of willful default and subsequently, can make recommendations to the Chairman NAB for proceedings against a willful defaulter in order to ensure recovery of defaulted amounts. As per the NAB Ordinance, the Governor State Bank of Pakistan makes a tentative assessment of the liability and issues notices under section 31D of the NAB Ordinance. Due process is followed and a decision with respect to the willful default is made under the NAB Ordinance. Hence there is no violation of Article 10A of the Constitution. Furthermore, it is their case that the NAB has concurrent jurisdiction with the Banking Court which jurisdiction has been rightly exercised by the Respondents. Even otherwise they argued that civil and criminal proceedings can be conducted at the same time. Hence there is no merit in these petitions which are liable to be dismissed.

6. Notice in terms of Section XXVII-A of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 has been issued to the Federation of Pakistan. On behalf of Federation, learned DAG stated that the Ministry of Law and Justice is not involved in these issues and no relief is claimed against the Federation. The issues raised in these petitions relate directly to the recovery of outstanding loans, which is a matter inter se the customer and the financial institutions and the State Bank of Pakistan. As to the vires of the law challenged, the learned DAG argued that the laws are in consonance with the Constitution and the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has settled the issues related to the challenge against the vires of the NAB Ordinance in Khan Asfandyar Wali and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Cabinet Division, Islamabad and others (PLD 2001 SC 607).

7. On behalf of Respondent No.3 NAB, report and parawise comments have also been filed. So far as the vires of the offence of willful default are concerned, these have been upheld by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in PLD 2001 SC 607 (supra). It was argued that in terms of the judgment certain recommendations were made with reference to amending the NAB Ordinance which recommendations were duly implemented and the NAB (Amendment) Ordinance, 2001 and 2002 were promulgated on 10.8.2001 and 13.11.2002 respectively; that the purpose of the NAB Ordinance and the FIO is totally separate and distinct and each will work within the ambit of its own objective. It is their case that no harassment is made out to the Petitioners and that NAB had acted strictly in accordance with law. Further these cases relate to misappropriation and criminal breach of trust along with corruption and loss of amounts due to financial institutions, which falls within the ambit of the jurisdiction vested with NAB. Moreover the State Bank of Pakistan upon a request by the Bank of Punjab and the Respondents Banks probed into the matter of willful default by the Petitioners who were not paying the amounts due to the Banks. A joint investigation team was formed to calculate the outstanding liability of the Petitioners and after a determination was made by the investigation team, notices were issued to the Petitioners giving them a fair chance to respond and explain why action should not be taken against them under the NAB Ordinance for willful default.

8. On the basis of what has been argued, the issues before the Court are the vires of sections 5(r), 19 and 31D of the NAB Ordinance and whether NAB can conduct an inquiry or investigation into willful default by a customer of a financial institution especially if a suit for recovery of defaulted amount is pending before the competent Banking Court. The question of jurisdiction is also involved that is whether the NAB Ordinance and the FIO have parallel jurisdiction to determine the issue of willful default or whether FIO's jurisdiction takes precedence over NAB Ordinance. With respect to the FIO, the vires of sections 2(g) and 20(8) are under challenge and whether sections 20(7) and (8) give unfettered discretion to the government agency nominated to investigate the offence of willful default.

Relevant Law

9. The basic law under challenge before this court is the NAB Ordinance specifically the powers contained in sections 5(r), 19 and 31D. For ease of reference, these provisions are reproduced hereunder:-

Notwithstanding anything contained in this Ordinance or any other law for the time being in force, no inquiry, investigation or proceedings in respect of imprudent loans, defaulted loans or rescheduled loans shall be initiated or conducted by the National Accountability Bureau against any person, company or financial institution without reference from the Governor, State Bank of Pakistan:
Provided that cases pending before any Accountability Court before coming into force of the National Accountability Bureau (Second Amendment) Ordinance, 2000, shall continue to be prosecuted and conducted without reference from the Governor, State Bank of Pakistan.

10. The NAB Ordinance is a special law, promulgated in 1999 to eradicate corruption and corrupt practices and to hold people accused of such practices accountable. The objective of the law is to protect public money and ensure its recovery. The nature of investigation and inquiry under the NAB Ordinance is therefore a kind of special dealing with offences which are deemed necessary in order to protect public money and ensure that the public exchequer is not deprived of amounts due to it. It also ensures that cases of corruption and corrupt practices are duly investigated in order to hold accountable persons involved in the abuse of authority and office. At various different times, the provisions of the NAB Ordinance have been challenged for being ultra vires the Constitution and the fundamental rights enshrined thereunder. However, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in PLD 2001 SC 607 (supra) has upheld the provisions of the NAB Ordinance stating therein that they are not ultra vires the fundamental rights or the Constitution.

11. The FIO is also a special law promulgated in 2001 to provide effective remedy for the recovery of finances extended by Banks and for the fulfillment of obligation defined in section 2(e) of the FIO in favour of the financial institution. The FIO prescribe the procedure to be adopted for the purposes of invoking the jurisdiction of the Banking Court for recovery of amounts due to the financial institution or breach of any obligation as defined under the FIO. The law prescribes for a special procedure to be followed when filing a suit under the FIO and also prescribes for certain offences which are triable before the Banking Court. Hence the Banking Court is a specialized court where the issue of 'default' can be contested which established for the purposes which pass judgment and decree for recovery of outstanding amounts in cases of default.

12. So far as the question of vires of the various provisions of the NAB Ordinance are concerned, in particular section 5(r) and section 31D of the NAB Ordinance, the matter in issue has already been decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case of PLD 2001 SC 607 (supra). The petition before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan sought to challenge the vires of the NAB Ordinance, as amended from time to time, on the ground that the NAB Ordinance is ultra vires of the Constitution and is in violation of the fundamental rights guaranteed under the Constitution. The Court considered several questions, of which two of the questions have again been raised in the Petitions before this Court that is whether there is parallel judicial system created under the NAB Ordinance for recovery of amounts due in disregard to the provision of the Constitution and whether section 5(r) of the NAB Ordinance which defines "willful default" is ultra vires the constitutional provisions. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan examined the law in great detail on the question of parallel jurisdiction, holding therein that there is no bar under the Constitution to investigate and criminalize or prosecute the conduct of those who are guilty of not discharging their contractual obligation in repayment of loans. The Court while relying on Syed Zafar Ali Shah and others v. General Pervez Musharraf, Chief Executive of Pakistan and others (PLD 2000 SC 869) held that there is no bar to promulgate legislation to make such conduct an offence, which should be duly investigated and prosecuted through fail trial. The Court also found that the provisions of the NAB Ordinance, in particular with reference to the creation of the offence of willful default and the punishment given thereunder did not offend Article 12 of the Constitution. With specific reference to section 5(r) of the NAB Ordinance guidelines were provided so as to ensure that due process was followed and those accused of willful default get a fair trial. Consequently section 31D of the NAB Ordinance was inserted whereby calling for a report from the Governor State Bank of Pakistan was made necessary before any inquiry or investigation under the NAB Ordinance. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded that by adopting the given guidelines an investigation may reach a logical conclusion and it will ensure that in cases of willful default due process is followed for the purposes of the investigation. Therefore we find that the issue of the vires of the NAB Ordinance is settled on the basis of the judgment cited at PLD 2001 SC 607 (supra).

13. On the issue of concurrent jurisdiction of the FIO and the NAB Ordinance, in a case before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the trying of offences under a special law as opposed to the general law was considered in 2017 SCMR 1218 (supra). The question before the Court was whether the Banking Courts constituted under the FIO have exclusive jurisdiction to try offences mentioned therein, to the exclusion of the special courts constituted under the Offences in Respect of Banks (Special Courts) Ordinance, 1984 ("ORBO"), the courts of ordinary criminal jurisdiction under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 ("Cr.P.C.") read with Pakistan Penal Code, 1860 ("P.P.C.") and the inquiry and investigation by the FIA under the Federal Investigation Agency Act, 1974 ("FIA Act"). In these cases financial institutions filed complaints before the Special Courts constituted under the ORBO and the FIA Act as well as registered FIRs under the P.P.C. with respect to cheques that had been dishonoured. The customers approached the High Court challenging the exercise of jurisdiction under ORBO, P.P.C. and FIA Act on the ground that the Banking Courts established under the FIO have exclusive jurisdiction in such cases. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan considered the case at length and held that as a consequence of section 4 of the FIO, the Banking Courts have exclusive jurisdiction to determine whether an offence has been committed by a customer in terms of section 20 of the FIO. The Court also held that the FIO shall have an overriding effect on all those cases which are covered by it, concomitantly the offences not covered by the FIO would be triable under the ORBO. The reasons explained by the Court in para 16 of the judgment are as follows:-

Were both laws to apply concurrently and permit of parallel platforms for the adjudication of offences under both laws then banks/financial institutions would always choose to initiate proceedings under the more onerous law, in this case the ORBO. Such an interpretation would give banks/financial institutions unbridled power to choose the forum before which trial of offences should take place, and they would obviously choose the Special Courts under the ORBO being more burdensome and prejudicial to the accused (as demonstrated above). A natural corollary is that in such circumstances the Ordinance, 2001 would, in effect, be rendered redundant. This is not permissible under any principle of interpretation of law when the Courts are trying to reconcile two potentially conflicting laws; our duty is to bridge the gap between what is and what was intended to be. We are not willing to attribute redundancy to the legislature. We do not wish to give financial institutions the unrestricted power to choose, when there has been an alleged dishonor of a cheque, between section 20(4) of the Ordinance, 2001 and section 489-F of the P.P.C., as they would of a certainty opt to initiate proceedings under the latter which offence carries a greater punishment than the former.

Hence in the opinion of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan financial institution cannot choose whether to initiate proceedings under ORBO, P.P.C. or FIA Act or whether to proceed under the FIO as the ability to make such a choice means giving unfettered power to the financial institution enabling them to exert unfair power over the customer. The Court also opined that to allow ORBO, P.P.C. or the FIA Act to operate concurrently with FIO would offend the provision of Article 25 of the Constitution which guarantees that all citizens are equal before the law and are entitled to equal protection of law. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also relied on Article 4 of the Constitution holding that customers cannot be left to speculate on which offence they will be charged with, under which law and before which forum. That the rule of law requires law to be intelligible, clear and predictable for it to be accessible to citizens. Hence the court held that FIO would have an overriding effect over ORBO and P.P.C. and the FIA Act.

14. On this premise we now set out to examine the question of 'willful default' and whether the offence of willful default is to be decided under the FIO or can it be decided, in parallel proceedings under the NAB Ordinance. Section 5(r) was inserted in the NAB Ordinance on 3.2.2000 by Ordinance IV of 2000 and the 3 provisos were inserted in the NAB Ordinance vide the National Accountability

Bureau (Amendment) Ordinance, 2001 promulgated on 10.8.2001. This definition in section 5(r) of the FIO has been interpreted in The State through Chairman NAB and others v. Muhammad Asif Saigol and others (PLD 2016 SC 620) by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan to mean a deliberate and calculated refusal to pay. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that to constitute the offence of "willful default" the prosecution, in addition to establishing default, has to prove that the default was willful, that is an intentional and conscious act. Consequently mere inability to pay will not constitute the offence of "willful default" meaning thereby that the element of willfulness must be present where there is a default. 'Willful default' is also defined in Section 2(g) of the FIO as follows:

2(g) willful default

(i) deliberate or international failure to repay any finance, loan, advance or any financial assistance received by any person from financial institution after such payment has become due under the terms of any law or an agreement, rules or regulations issued by the State Bank of Pakistan;

(ii) Utilization of finance, loan advance or financial assistance or a substantial part thereof, obtained by any person from a financial institution for a purpose other than that for which such finance, loan, advance or financial assistance had been obtained and payment in part or full not made to the financial institution; or

(iii) Removal, transfer, misappropriation or sale of any assets collateralized to secure a finance, loan advance or financial assistance obtained from a financial institution without permission of such institution."

As per section 2(g) of the FIO, "willful default" is with reference to the three separate situations. It is an intentional or deliberate failure to repay any finance, loan, advance or financial assistance received by a person which is due under the terms of an agreement or under a law. It also includes the wrongful use of finance that is not as per the purpose for which it was given and the misappropriation or sale of collateral or security given to a financial institution. Hence it prescribes three different cause of actions for willful default. Willful default is also an offence under section 20 of the FIO in the following terms:

20 Provisions relating to certain offences

20(7) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary provided in any other law for the time being in force, action in respect of an offence of wilful default shall be taken by an investigating agency, to be nominated in this behalf by the Federal Government, on a complaint in writing filed by an authorized officer of a financial institution after it has served a thirty days notice upon the borrower demanding payment of the loan, advance or financial assistance.

(8) An offence of willful default shall be cognizable, non-bailable and non-compoundable and punishable with imprisonment which may extend to seven years or fine not exceeding the amount of default or with both.

(9) Any person convicted of the offence of willful default by a Banking Court shall not be eligible to receive any loan, advance or finance from any financial institution for a period of ten years and shall not be permitted to contest any election as a member of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), any Provincial Assembly or a local body for a period of five years, after serving out a sentence after conviction.

In terms of the Section, the offence of willful default is with reference to the three situations stipulated in the definition under section 2(g). Hence for the purposes of Section 20, three separate offences are defined in section 2(g) which are triable under sections 20(7)(8) and (9) of the FIO. In terms of section 20, an offence is to be investigated by an investigating agency nominated by the Federal Government. After the investigation agency completes its investigation, it shall tender its findings before the Banking Court and thereafter the offence of willful default is triable by the Banking Court. Therefore the Banking Court may take cognizance of a deliberate failure to re-pay any finance, loan, advance or financial assistance received by a person which is due under the terms of an agreement or under a law or the wrongful use of finance being an offence where finance is not used for the purpose it was given. And finally the offence of removing, transferring or misappropriating or selling any of the security provided to the financial institution to secure the loan. These offences can be looked at separately and are to be tried as individual offences for the purposes of section 20(7), (8) and (9) of the FIO. Essentially this means that a customer can be tried for the offence stipulated in section 2(g)(i) or 2(g)(ii) or 2(g)(iii) of the FIO. In the majority cases before us the issue is that notwithstanding the powers of the Banking Court to investigate and try the offence of willful default under section 20 of the FIO, NAB also has the power to investigate and try the offence of "willful default". Hence the question is which law will take priority over the other and whether section 20(7) can be invoked prior to a determination on the civil liability of default.

15. The FIO was promulgated on 30.8.2001 and section 20(7), (8) and (9) were inserted vide Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) (Amendment) Act (XXXVII of 2016) in 2016. Section 2(g) of the FIO defines the offence of willful default and was also inserted in 2016 vide the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) (Amendment) Act (XXXVIII of 2016). Prior to 2016 willful default was an offence investigated only under the NAB Ordinance. However after 2016 it is a specific offence triable by the Banking Court. From what has been argued before us, the NAB Ordinance and the FIO are both special laws dealing with the offence of "willful default". The only difference is that the NAB Ordinance deals with the offence to pay that which is stated to be due by a financial institution whereas the FIO gives the Banking Court jurisdiction to determine if a customer has committed any default of an obligation with regard to any finance and has added the offence of willful default as stipulated in section 2(g) of the FIO. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2017 SCMR 1218 (supra) examined the question of concurrent jurisdiction with reference to the FIO, P.P.C. and ORBO in great detail. Para 9 of the stated Judgment reads as follows:

Section 7(4) of the Ordinance, 2001 confers exclusive jurisdiction on the Banking Courts with respect to certain matters albeit subsection (5) creates an exception to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Banking Courts. This confers a right on the financial institution to seek any remedy before any court or otherwise which may be available to it under the law by which the financial institution may have been established [Section 7(5)(a)]. According to section 4 of the Ordinance, 2001 reproduced above, its provisions "shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force." This is essentially a non obstante clause which is defined as "A phrase used in documents to preclude any interpretation contrary to the stated object or purpose. 'Notwithstanding' means despite, in spite of or regardless of something. In this respect Justice G. P. Singh has aptly explained:-

"A clause beginning with 'notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or in some particular provision in the Act or in some particular Act or in any law for the time being in force', is sometimes appended to a section in the beginning, with a view to give the enacting part of the section in case of conflict an overriding effect over the provision or Act mentioned in the non obstante clause. It is equivalent to saying that in spite of the provision or Act mentioned in the non obstante clause, the enactment following it will have its full operation or that the provisions embraced in the non obstante clause will not be an impediment for the operation of the enactment."

In the judgment reported as Packages Limited through its General Manager and others v. Muhammad Maqbool and others (PLD 1991 SC 258) this Court observed:-

"In our opinion a 'non abstante' clause operates as an ouster of the earlier provisions only where there is a conflict and inconsistency between the earlier provisions and those contained in the later provision and, therefore, must be read in the context in which it is operating. Accordingly, a non obstante clause will operate as ouster only if an inconsistency between the two is found to exist."

In the judgment reported as Muhammad Mohsin Ghuman and others v. Government of Punjab through Home Secretary, Lahore and others (2013 SCMR 85), this Court cited with approval a passage from Interpretation of Statutes by N. S. Bindra which reads as under:-

It has to be read in the context of what the legislature conveys in the enacting part of the provision. It should first be ascertained what the enacting part of the section provides on a fair construction of words used according to their natural and ordinary meaning and the non obstante clause is to be understood as operating to set aside as no longer valid anything contained in relevant existing law which is inconsistent with the new enactment. The enacting part of a statute must, where it is clear, be taken to control the non obstante clause where both cannot be read harmoniously, for even apart from such clause a later law abrogates earlier laws clearly inconsistent with it.

The proper way to construe a non obstante clause is first to ascertain the meaning of the enacting part on a fair construction of its words. The meaning of the enacting part which is so ascertained is then to be taken as overriding anything inconsistent to that meaning in the provisions mentioned in the non obstante clause. A non obstante clause is usually used in a provision to indicate that that provision should prevail despite anything to the contrary in the provision mentioned in such non obstante clause. In case there is any inconsistency between the non obstante clause and another provision one of the objects of such a clause is to indicate that it is the non obstante clause which would prevail over the other clauses. It does not, however, necessarily mean that there must be repugnancy between the two provisions in all such cases. The principle underlying non obstante clause may be invoked only in the case of 'irreconcilable conflict'."

From the above it is clear that the non obstante clause of section 4 of the Ordinance, 2001 has been used by the legislature to give the provisions of the said Ordinance an overriding effect over any other law for the time being in force which may be contrary thereto. The use of the word 'notwithstanding' in section 4 ibid indicates the legislative intent to avoid the operation of conflicting provisions, by providing that in the event of such conflict, the provisions of the Ordinance, 2001 would take precedence over any such inconsistent law.
In terms of these findings, the FIO is a special law which gets priority over the ORBO, the Cr.P.C. and the P.P.C. to try the same offence, hence the Banking Court has exclusive jurisdiction to try such cases. On the same analogy the FIO will have exclusive jurisdiction to try the offence of "willful default" where the matter is between a customer and a financial institution. In terms of section 7(4) of the FIO, the Banking Court has exclusive jurisdiction with all matters falling within its domain under the FIO. Not only does the FIO prevail on account of being promulgated later in time but also because the FIO is a special law which gives exclusive jurisdiction to the Banking Court to establish whether or not there has been a "default" by a customer in the fulfillment of any "obligation" with regard to any finance as defined under section 2 of the FIO. The definition of "obligation" as given under the FIO includes a vast number of situations which tantamount to a breach and includes the issue of determining whether any amounts are due to the financial institution. Since the Banking Court has exclusive jurisdiction to determine the question of "default" it also has exclusive jurisdiction to try the offence of "willful default" under section 20 of the FIO. In the event that there are two different forums adjudicating or investigating on the question of "willful default" at the same time, means that there is a likelihood of conflicting judgments or findings not to mention that parallel proceedings can prejudice the rights of a customer charged for willful default against whom the issue of default is yet to be established. Hence in the context of the definition given in section 2(g)(i) of the FIO, "willful default" is an intentional failure to pay that which is due to the financial institution. In all such cases, the element of "default" precedes the criminality of the offence of willfulness, meaning thereby that the question of default must be established first as per the prescribed procedure under the FIO, before it can be alleged that the default was deliberate or intentional.

16. In this regard NAB is a special law which is to look into corruption and corrupt practices and hold the persons involved in such practices as responsible. Section 5(r) of the NAB Ordinance was inserted by way of Ordinance No. IV of 2000 dated 3.2.2000. The Section provides for the offence of "willful default" which offence is limited to the extent of payment of amounts stated to be due by a financial institution, giving the Accountability Court jurisdiction to decide cases of willful default and giving investigative powers to the NAB against any customer complained against by the financial institution through the Governor State Bank of Pakistan as per section 19 or section 31D which was also inserted on 5.7.2000 vide Ordinance No.XXIV. At the time the FIO did not include the definition of willful default nor was willful default an offence under section 20 of the FIO, hence NAB had jurisdiction in such cases. However as we have already held that the FIO will take priority over the NAB Ordinance with respect to the offence of "willful default". Consequently section 5(r) or section 31D of the NAB Ordinance and any other related proceedings cannot be invoked by NAB simultaneously with the FIO or prior to the determination of default of an obligation to pay under the FIO. We find that this gives unfettered power to the financial institution to use the NAB Ordinance as a means to exert unfair pressure on customers to pay amounts which may be disputed or which they are not in default of, for which adjudication is necessary. Furthermore it allows financial institution to bypass the mechanism prescribed under the FIO and compel customers to pay amounts alleged to be due to financial institutions without any chance of exercising their rights under the FIO. Even otherwise as we have already observed that the offence of willfulness will come after the civil liability of default, in an obligation to pay, is determined as there has to be an obligation to pay before it can be alleged that the obligation to pay was deliberately avoided. Section 20(7) of the FIO can only be invoked once the civil liability of default has been established.

17. So far as the offences in section 2(g)(ii) and (iii) of the FIO are concerned, they provide for independent offences which can be tried under section 20 of the FIO independent of any determination of a default in an obligation to pay. Neither offences are dependent on the civil liability of 'default' under section 9 of the FIO as they are offences due to the very act of the customer. So if a customer utilizes the finance obtained from a financial institution for purposes other than for which it was given for or if a customer removes, transfers or misappropriates collateral or security of the financial institution, then the act of such removal, transfer or misappropriation constitutes an offence for which criminal proceedings can be initiated under section 20 of the FIO. A lot has been argued with reference to the power given to a government agency for investigating into the offence of "willful default" under section 20(7). However, we find that the power is simply to investigate, that too on a complaint filed in writing by the Bank and after securing a thirty days' notice. Hence it is neither unconstitutional nor excessive. The Banking Court being the special forum to try offences under the FIO is the proper forum to try the offence of willful default and in this regard in terms of the provisions of section 20(7) once the civil liability of default is established the offence of willfulness can be investigated by the FIA or any other nominated Federal Government Agency. Offences under section 2(g)(ii) and (iii) however are not dependent on the determination of the civil liability and can be investigated in terms of section 20(7) by the nominated government agency. In all such cases the Banking Court will try the offence of willful default as per section 20 of the FIO.

18. Writ Petitions Nos. 28883/14, 31141/15 and 13400/16 challenge the NAB Ordinance as according to them the same has been repealed. However, the said three petitions stand dismissed on account of the fact that this issue has already been decided by a learned Full Bench of this Court vide judgment dated 31.8.2018 passed in W.P. No.196881/2018.

19. Under the circumstances and in view of the aforesaid, the petitions are decided in the following terms:

(i) All Petitions as detailed in Schedule "A" which challenge notices issued under sections 5(r), 19 and 31D of the NAB Ordinance or related thereto and notices issued by the FIA under section 2(g) read with section 20 of the FIO or related thereto are allowed and the stated notices are declared to be illegal, hence set aside.

(ii) The petitions which challenge notices issued under section 2(g)(iii) of the FIO being W.Ps. Nos.241265/18, 231658/18 and 237281/18 are dismissed on account of the fact that they constitute an independent offence;

(iii) W.Ps. Nos.28883/14, 31141/15 and 13400/16 which challenge the vires of the NAB Ordinance after promulgation of the Constitution (Eighteenth Amendment) Act, 2010 are dismissed on account of the fact that this issue has already been decided by a learned Full Bench of this Court vide judgment dated 31.8.2018 passed in W.P. No.196881/2018 titled Lawyers Foundation for Justice v. Federation of Pakistan etc.

MH/A-80/L Order accordingly.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This Reference along with connected References being ITRs Nos.221219/18 and 221226/18 have been filed by the Applicant under section 133 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") involving common questions of law.

2. The following questions of law have been raised in all three Reference, which are asserted to have arisen out of order dated 3.10.2017 passed by the Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue, Lahore Bench, Lahore ("Appellate Tribunal"):--
i) "Whether the learned ATIR was justified to pass the order based on assumptions, which is not sustainable in the eyes of law being against the spirit of section 122(5A) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 in tax years 2010, 2011, 2012?"

ii) "Whether the learned ATIR was justified to treat provision of interest free loan given to the petitioner by the directors/sponsors as benefit and chargeable with Income Tax in terms of section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance in respect of tax years 2010, 2011, 2012 which was even otherwise contrary to judgment of Sindh High Court titled 'Commissioner Inland Revenue v. Lucky Cotton Mills (Pvt.) Limited' reported as 2017 PTD 864 wherein it was held that no business relationship in terms of section 18(1)(d) of the Income Tax Ordinance existed between company and its Directors who had advanced interest free loan to the company. The Honourable High Court disapproved/rejected the treatment of loan by director as 'income from business' and held that such benefit could not be termed a taxable benefit under section 18(1)(d) of the Income Tax Ordinance."

3. An assessment order was passed for the tax years 2010, 2011 and 2012 where after proceedings under Section 122(5A) of the Ordinance were initiated to amend the assessment. The amendment order was passed on 8.3.2016 whereby the Applicant is aggrieved. The main grievance of the Applicant is that interest free loans in the amount of Rs.168,250,000/-, Rs. 143,254,000/- and Rs. 11,317,995/- were given by the Directors of the Applicant Company to the Company which loans were treated as benefits of the company chargeable to income tax under Section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance. Consequently the Commissioner applied a random rate of 13.5% to calculate interest and raised a demand for Rs.22,713,750/- as tax liability of the Applicant. The Applicant filed an appeal before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals-II), Lahore who upheld the original assessment order dated 8.3.2016 vide order dated 7.6.2016. The Applicant then filed appeal before the Appellate Tribunal which passed an ex-parte order dated 3.10.2017 and dismissed the appeal without hearing or considering the grounds of the Applicant.

4. Learned counsel for the Applicant argued that the grounds were provided for in the appeal yet the requirements of Section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance were not taken into consideration. Learned counsel stated that this matter has been decided by the Hon'ble Sindh High Court in the case cited at Commissioner Inland Revenue, Zone-II v. Lucky Cotton Mills (Pvt.) Ltd. (2017 PTD 864). Further stated that the Inland Revenue Appellate Tribunal has also decided the same issue in another case cited at 2015 PTD (Trib.) 386 in line with the judgment of the Hon'ble Sindh High Court yet a different meaning is being given to Section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance in the present proceedings by the Respondents.

5. The basic contention of the Applicant is that Section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance provides that any benefit derived by a person will be chargeable to income tax under the head of business income. The benefit can be derived by virtue of past, present or prospective business relationships. Learned counsel argued that the directors of a private limited Company, in this case Applicant Company, do not have a business relationship with the Company. Learned counsel argued that this matter was considered in 2017 PTD 864 (supra) wherein it was held that there is no business relationship between the company and its directors. Accordingly any interest free loan given to the company by the director cannot be made chargeable to income tax under Section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance.

6. On behalf of Respondent No.1, it is argued that the relationship between the company and its director is a business relationship. He further argued that the case was heard and decided ex-parte because the Applicant did not present itself on the date when the case was fixed.

7. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record. The fact that the impugned order was passed ex-parte did not absolve the Appellate Tribunal from considering the law applicable to the case of the Applicant. The case of the Applicant is that two Directors of the Applicant Company advanced interest free loans to the company from time to time, which has been made chargeable to income tax under Section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance for the tax years 2010, 2011 and 2012. Section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance reads as under:--

Income from business (1).---The following incomes of a person for a tax year, other than income exempt from tax under this Ordinance, shall be chargeable to tax under the head "Income from Business"

(d) the fair market value of any benefit or perquisite, whether convertible into money or not, derived by a person in the course of, or by virtue of, a past, present, or prospective business relationship

For the purposes of this clause, it is declared that the word `benefit' includes any benefit derived by way of waiver of profit on debt or the debt itself under the State Bank of Pakistan, Banking Policy Department's Circular No.29 of 202 or in any other scheme issued by the State Bank of Pakistan.
The statute basically states that any benefit derived by a person during the course of a business relationship is chargeable to income tax for the purposes of charging tax. The key requirement is that the benefit must be derived during the course of a business relationship. There is no business relationship between the company and its directors as the directors are managing the company and have a fiduciary relationship with the company. As such they are not engaged in a business relationship with the company. Hence interest free loans given by directors to the company do not fall within the meaning of benefit derived during the course of a business relationship, meaning that the provisions of section 18(1)(d) of the Ordinance are not applicable for the purposes of determining the tax liability.

8. In these cases of the Commissioner Inland Revenue and the Appellate Tribunal agreed with the views contained in the original order dated 8.3.2016 which is not in consonance with the law. The Hon'ble Sindh High Court in 2017 PTD 864 (supra) has also expressed the same view. Interestingly the Inland Revenue Appellate Tribunal also expressed the same view in 2015 PTD (Trib.) 386 (supra) yet has adopted a totally different interpretation in this case.

9. Therefore, under the circumstances, Reference applications are decided in favour of the Applicant and impugned order dated 3.10.2017 passed by the Appellate Tribunal is set aside to the extent of interest free loan.

10. Office shall send a copy of this order under seal of the Court to the Appellate Tribunal as per Section 133(5) of the Ordinance.

(a) Hajj Policy and Plan 2019---

----Quota of pilgrims---Old and new Hajj Group Organizer Companies ("HGOs")---Separate criteria for assessment---No discrimination---Petitioners challenged the Hajj Policy and Plan 2019 ("Hajj Policy 2019") on the ground that they had not been issued a quota of pilgrims despite the fact that they were Hajj Group Organizer Companies ("HGOs") who were duly enrolled and entitled to the quota of pilgrims for Hajj 2019; that Hajj Policy 2019 was illegal and arbitrary because it did not equally distribute the quota of pilgrims for Hajj 2019; that on the basis of the criteria set out in the Hajj Policy 2019 the petitioners were discriminated against as they did not have the requisite experience of conducting Hajj, hence they would never be eligible since this was the primary criteria, and that the petitioners faced discrimination as the relevant authorities were still maintaining old HGOs and new HGOs list, such that the new were considered against a 2% quota only---Held, that criteria for Assessment of Profiles of new HGOs was placed before the High Court for assessment of new profiles and as per the criteria it was based on the judgment of the Supreme Court of Pakistan in Dossani Travels Pvt. Ltd. and others v. Messrs Travels Shop (Pvt.) Ltd. and others (PLD 2014 SC 1) ("Dossani Travels Case")---On the basis of said criteria for new HGOs a merit list had been made which provided for the name of the HGO, the Province from which it was applying, year of its incorporation, year of its tax return filing, year of Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan (SECP) filings and experience in carrying out Umrah---On the basis of the marks obtained in these categories, the overall marks set out the merit---In terms of the merit list provided, the cases of the petitioners had been considered and their names were duly incorporated in the merit list---However, for the purposes of the allocation of quota of pilgrims to new HGOs, the first 35 HGOs had been selected as the quota was satisfied till Serial No.35---With reference to old HGOs a criteria had also been provided to ensure that they met the given standards---Old HGOs were the HGOs who were providing Hajj services, hence were scrutinized considering their past Hajj services---New HGOs were those who had never carried out Hajj services yet were considered on the basis of Umrah services---Such distinction did not suggest discrimination rather showed that a thought through process had been put in place to consider all HGOs favourably---Ministry of Hajj in 2019, reserved an additional 5000 Hajj quota for allocation to newly enrolled HGOs in compliance of the order of (Islamabad) High Court and against another quota as promised by the Saudi King, which would give newly approved HGOs the opportunity to be issued Hajj quotas---In terms of the criteria set out for old and new HGOs, there appeared to be no arbitrariness or randomness in the selection process---Hajj Policy 2019 provided for a Hajj Policy Formulation Committee ('the Committee') which included Secretary, Ministry of Religious Affairs as Chairman, representative from the office of the Attorney General for Pakistan, from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and Ministry of Law and Justice and representative from the Competition Commission of Pakistan---Bare look at the members who sat in the Committee showed that it was an impartial Committee comprising of a diverse set of members who formulated the Hajj Policy 2019 and the criteria for allocation of Hajj quota---Hajj Policy 2019 was approved by the Cabinet whereafter the quota allocation process was started---Petitioners along with other HGOs were all duly considered, on the basis of which a merit list was made---Assessment was made by engaging a third party, which was a well reputed Chartered Accountant, hence the question of favouritism and random picking of HGOs had no force---Hajj Policy 2019 and quota allocated thereunder was in compliance with the pronouncement of the Supreme Court especially the "Dossani Travels Case"---Fact that every HGO could not be accommodated while allocating Hajj quota did not tantamount to discrimination and the fact that petitioners (HGOs) had not been given Hajj quota also did not suggest discrimination---High Court directed that any grievances of the petitioners regarding selection of HGOs contrary to the criteria could be raised before the Committee, and in the event that such applications were filed before the Committee, the same shall be decided expeditiously so as to prevent any disturbance in the allocation of Hajj quota---Constitutional petition challenging the Hajj Policy 2019 was dismissed accordingly. (b) Hajj Policy and Plan, 2019---

----Quota of pilgrims---Hajj Group Organizer Companies ("HGOs") and tour operators having experience of Ziarats only---Hajj quota not awarded to Ziarat operators---Policy decision---No discrimination---Plea of petitioner, who was a specialist in Ziarat tours, that on the basis of the Hajj Policy and Plan 2019 (Hajj Policy 2019) past performance of the tour operators was to be judged on Hajj or Umrah only and not Ziarat operations; that operators who specialized in Ziarat only were being discriminated against in the matter of allocation of Hajj quota---Held, that the stance of the Government was that matter of Ziarat operations were duly considered by the Hajj Policy Formulation Committee ('the Committee') and it was decided that Hajj quota would not be given to those tour operators who only had experience in Ziarat operations as there was no way to verify their credentials or information on the basis of which it could be ascertained whether the tour operator had carried out Ziarat operations and whether there were any complaints or problems related thereto; that for the purposes of Umrah, the Kindgom of Saudi Arabia issued Umrah ID, hence it was verified and only Umrah ID holders were considered, however, there was no official ID given for the purposes of Ziarat operations, and that the Committee on the recommendations of the Competition Commission of Pakistan in the larger interest of allocation of Hajj quota decided that Ziarat operations would not be considered under the Hajj Policy 2019---No plea of arbitrariness or discrimination could be raised in the present case as the Committee was well within its domain to determine the Hajj Policy 2019 and was not obligated to include Ziarat operations under any judgment of the Supreme Court---Committee had rationalized its reasons to explain why Ziarat operations had not been considered in the Hajj Policy 2019 which explanation had been accorded by the Competition Commission as per the requirements of the judgment of the Supreme Court of Pakistan in Dossani Travels Pvt. Ltd. and others v. Messrs Travels Shop (Pvt.) Ltd. and others (PLD 2014 SC 1) ("Dossani Travels Case")---Cabinet had also approved the Hajj Policy 2019 which set out a transparent process to allocate Hajj quota---Constitutional petition challenging the Hajj Policy 2019 was dismissed accordingly.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the petitions detailed in Schedule "A" and "B" appended with the judgment as all the petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. The Petitioners before the Court have challenged the Hajj Policy and Plan 2019 ("Hajj Policy") on the ground that they have not been issued the quota of pilgrims despite the fact that they are Hajj Group Organizer Companies ("HGOs") who are duly enrolled and entitled to the quota of pilgrims for Hajj 2019. The Petitioners before the Court claim that they are duly enrolled as HGOs with the Respondents and are providing services for performing Umrah for many years yet they have never been given quota of pilgrims for Hajj despite repeated judgments by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan calling for a fair and transparent hajj policy. The first case relied upon was the Corruption in Hajj Arrangements 2010, in Suo Motu Case No.24 of 2010 and Human Rights Cases Nos.57701-P, 57719-G, 57754-P, 58152-P, 59036-S, 59060-P, 54187-P, 58118-K of 2010, 1291-K and 1292-K of 2011 decided on 29.7.2011 (PLD 2011 SC 963) followed by Dossani Travels Pvt. Ltd. and others v. Messrs Travels Shop (Pvt.) Ltd. and others (PLD 2014 SC 1) ("Dossani Travels Case") yet the Respondents have failed to make a transparent and fair policy on the basis of which there should be equal distribution of the quota of pilgrims for the performance of Hajj .

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that every year issues arise out of allocation of the pilgrims' quota on account of the wrong doings of the Respondents as they tend to give preference to their favourites; that they do not follow any formula nor is there criteria on the basis of which the quota of pilgrims is distributed. The Petitioners all claim to be eligible having requisite experience and state that they have been ousted from this process simply alleging that they do not have the requisite experience of carrying out Hajj, hence they have never been properly considered. Learned counsel further argued that the Petitioners are pre-qualified; that they are duly enrolled, however they have not been able to send pilgrims to Hajj as they have never given the quota of pilgrims despite all hectic efforts. Learned counsel further argued that under the Hajj Policy, there is 40% quota available for private HGOs which should have been equally distributed among all enrolled HGOs. This is in line with the spirit of the Dossani Travels Case, however, the Respondents have failed to comply with the judgments of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan and have once again issued the hajj quota to their favourites who happened to be members of the Hajj Organization Association of Pakistan ("HOAP"). Learned counsel further submitted that in some cases the Petitioners have provided a more cost effective Hajj package compared to the one the Government is offering yet despite the same, the Petitioners have not been considered.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned DAG argued that the Hajj Policy is neither arbitrary nor discriminatory but in fact is based on a mathematical formula and criteria for assessment of profiles under which the Hajj quota has been allocated. She further submitted that it has been done in a transparent manner by a Hajj Policy Formulation Committee ("Committee") comprising of Secretary, MORA as Chairman, representative from the office of the Attorney General for Pakistan, from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and Ministry of Law and Justice and also a representative from the Competition Commission. Further that Third Party Assessment is carried out for selection and the Hajj Policy has been approved by the Cabinet. She further explained that the Petitioners before the Court were all duly considered but they did not qualify on merit, hence they have not been allocated Hajj quota. She further explained that even in the previous years, the Petitioners did not meet the criteria, hence they were not allocated Hajj quota. Moreover the Committee recommended quota of 5000 pilgrims to newly enrolled companies for which the Petitioners did not qualify. She argued that it is the discretion of the Government to devise a policy and the Petitioners' contention that the Respondents are obligated to give equal distribution is unfounded as the Hajj Policy ensures a fair and transparent criteria on the basis of which allocation of quota is made. She has placed on file the merit list of the HGOs which has been put up on the website of Respondent No.1 and has also placed on file the criteria for assessment of profiles on the basis of which assessment of HGOs was made.

5. Heard. Record perused. The basic contention of the Petitioners is that the Hajj Policy is illegal and arbitrary because it does not equally distribute the quota of pilgrims for Hajj 2019. The Petitioners claim that on the basis of the criteria set out they are discriminated against as they do not have the requisite experience of conducting Hajj, hence they will never be eligible since this is the primary criteria. They also allege discrimination as the Respondents are still maintaining old HGOs and new HGOs list, such that the new are considered against a 2% quota only. This is against the Dossani Travels Case as per their contention. Therefore it is expedient to first consider the directions given in the Dossani Travels Case which are as follows:

51. Before we part with the judgment, we may add that the performance of Hajj is a sacred duty for Muslims. But the quota allocated to Government of Pakistan by the Saudi Government is limited and within that limited quota, it allocates a certain portion to private HGOs. Since several hundred HGOs apply for allocation of quota from the Private Hajj Scheme share as worked out by the MORA, all applicants HGOs cannot be accommodated and the dismay of those who are left out is understandable. We are conscious that the MORA has to take several steps to ensure that travel, accommodation and other arrangements are made to the satisfaction of Hujjaj. It requires a couple of weeks to complete the exercise. However since Hajj operation is a time bound exercise, arrangements have to be made within that limited time. It is therefore, imperative that the Hajj Policy be framed well in time in such a manner which is fair, just, inspires confidence and evokes minimum criticism. It is also imperative that the Hajj Policy for the next year should be announced at the earliest after the conclusion of Hajj. In these circumstances, we are persuaded to direct as under:-

(i) The Hajj Policy should be framed, announced and placed on the website of MORA preferably within six weeks of the arrival of last flight of Hajis from KSA under intimation to the Registrar of this Court. This of course would be subject to any policy decision of the Saudi Government regarding allocation of Hajj quota for Pakistan;

(ii) The Hajj Policy should be framed by a Committee headed by the Secretary, Ministry of Religious Affairs (MORA); a nominee of the Competition Commission of Pakistan; a nominee of the Secretary, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Government of Pakistan; a nominee of the Secretary Ministry of Law and Justice Division and Parliamentary Affairs; and a nominee of the Attorney General for Pakistan;

(iii) The credentials of each applicant/HGO should be examined and decision taken on merit;

(iv) While framing the Hajj Policy, the MORA should be guided, inter alia, by the recommendations made by the Competition Commission of Pakistan to which reference has been made in Para 8 above; and
(v) The MORA should constantly monitor the working and performance of each HGO during Hajj and this assessment should form basis for further improvements in Hajj Policy for next year's Hajj.

6. Subsequent thereof in Muhammad Arif Idrees and others v. Sohail Aamir and others (2017 SCMR 1379), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the distinction between Hajj quota holders and non-quota holders was discriminatory and has no rationale or nexus to the allocation of Hajj quota. Hence the Court reiterated the direction in Dossani Travels Case whereby the Competition Commission of Pakistan should provide its recommendations and that the credentials of each HGO should be considered on merit.

7. The Criteria for Assessment of Profiles of New HGOs was placed before the Court for assessment of new profiles and as per the criteria it is based on the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Dossani Travels Case in terms of which the following factors are considered:
i) Past performance of Hajj or Umrah or Ziarat Operations.
ii) Economy of financial packages offered.
iii) Quality of management and services provided.
iv) The financial strength of the NGOs.
v) Weightage should be allocated to these variables in a manner which does not give undue consideration to experience only.
vi) MORA shall also allocate specific percentage of hajj quotas to the new entrants to encourage entry of new payers in the market and such quota may be allocated based on the separate criteria.
vii) MORA shall ensure that the NGOs to whom the quota is allocated, should perform the Hajj operations on their own and this fact should also be verified from their financial statement. In case, any NGO continues with such practices, MORA should consider it for blacklisting for an appropriate period.
viii) All the variables mentioned above should be evaluated by a third party, preferably a chartered accountancy firm approved by ICAP, to ensure transparency for the process.
ix) MORA should consider forming a panel whose responsibility will be to monitor all the NGOs. All the complaints against the NGOs shall also be reviewed by that panel. The recommendations and the finding of that panel shall be taken into account when allocating the quota to the NGOs. The panel shall be completely independent to ensure transparency of the process.
The documents that are scrutinized as per this criteria are as follows:
i) Paid up and authorized capital are not less than Rs.5 million and Rs.7.5 million respectively.
ii) No management dispute.
iii) Having appropriate office located at proper place, at least three employees with adequate furniture and IT facilities.

iv) The company is not Bank defaulter/loan defaulter, tax defaulter and is on the Active Taxpayer List.
v) Non-conviction of management in criminal case(s) by any court of law. (Affidavit on stamp paper of Rs.500/- duly attested by notary).
vi) The company is not presently debarred for carrying out its operation by the government of Pakistan or KSA as the case may be.
Subsequently the allocation of marks is as follows:

a) Company should be a private/public limited company duly incorporated under Companies

Ordinance, 1981- with Securities and Exchange

Commission of Pakistan (SECP) since;

a) 2001 or before	20 Marks
ii) 2005	18 Marks
iii) 2006	16 Marks
iv) 2007	14 Marks
v) 2008	12 Marks
vi) 2009	10 Marks
vii) 2010	08 Marks
viii) 2011	06 Marks
ix) 2012	04 Marks

On the basis of this criteria a merit list has been made which provides for the names of HGOs, the Province from which it is applying, year of its incorporation, year of its tax return filing, year of SECP filings and experience in carrying out Umrah. On the basis of the marks obtained in these categories, the overall marks sets out the merit. In terms of the merit list provided, the cases of the Petitioners have been considered and their names are duly incorporated in the merit list. However, for the purposes of the allocation of quota of pilgrims to new HGOs, the first 35 HGOs have been selected as the quota is satisfied till Serial No.35.

8. With reference to old HGOs a criteria has also been placed on file in terms of which:
The honourable Supreme Court of Pakistan's orders dated 27.08.2013 passed in Civil Appeals Nos.800-L, 801-L and 802-L of 2013 contain following recommendations by the Competition Commission of Pakistan:-
i) Past performance of Hajj or Umrah or Ziarat Operations.
ii) Economy of financial packages offered.
iii) Quality of management and services provided.
iv) The financial strength of the HGOs.
v) Weight-age should be allocated to these variables in a manner which does not give undue consideration to experience only.
vi) MORA shall also allocate specific percentage of hajj quotas to the new entrants to encourage entry of new payers in the market and such quota may be allocated based on the separate criteria.

vii) MORA shall ensure that the HGOs to whom the quota is allocated, should perform the Hajj operations on their own and this fact should also be verified from their financial statement. In case, any HGO continues with such practices, MORA should consider it for blacklisting for an appropriate period.
viii) All the variables mentioned above should be evaluated by a third party, preferably a chartered accountancy firm approved by ICAP, to ensure transparency for the process.
ix) MORA should consider forming a panel whose responsibility will be to monitor all the HGOs. All the complaints against the HGOs shall also be reviewed by that panel. The recommendations and the finding of that panel shall be taken into account when allocating the quota to the HGOs. The panel shall be completely independent to ensure transparency of the process.
Basic Eligibility Criteria for further scrutiny of documents
Only those HGOs will be eligible for further scrutiny of documents which meet following basic criteria:
i) Paid up and authorized capital are not less than Rs.7.5 million and Rs.10 million respectively.
ii) No management dispute.
iii) Having appropriate office (located at a proper place, at least three operational staff with adequate furniture and IT facilities).
iv) The company is not Bank defaulter/Loan defaulter or tax defaulter and is an active taxpayer.
v) Non-conviction of management in criminal case(s) by any court of law. (Affidavit on stamp paper of Rs.500/- duly attested by notary).
vi) The company is not presently debarred for carrying out its operation by the government of Pakistan or KSA as the case may be.
vii) The company is organizing Hajj operations by itself and has not sublet it to any other operator, duly supported by a verifiable document.
a) Compliance of SECP Regulation i.e. submission of regular audit reports of last three years prepared by an Auditing Firm of Chartered Accountants registered with ICAP i.e..
i. Submitted audit report of last three years 15 Marks
ii. Submitted audit report of last two years 10 Marks
iii. Submitted audit report of last one year 05 Marks
b) Filing of annual tax returns of the company:
i. Last three years 10 Marks
ii. Last two years 06 Marks iii Last one year 03 Marks
c) Company is complaint to filing of annual returns to SECP for the last three consecutive years:
i. Three years 10 Marks
ii. Two years 06 Marks
iii. One years 03 Marks
d) Company has not been convictd by CDC on complaints of hujjaj and confirmed by the appellate committee for last three consecutive years (Conviction means reduction in quota or suspension for a specific period, imposition of fine deposited in government treasury etc.):

i. No Conviction in complaints 0 marks
ii) One or two convictions -5 marks
iii) Three or more convictions -10 marks
Hence even old HGOs are tested against a criteria to ensure that they meet the given standards.

9. Based on the above mentioned criterias the Respondents state that there are more than 2500 enrolled HGOs which include the Petitioners out of which 801 HGOs have been allocated Hajj quota. 79 new HGOs have been added over the years on the basis of the guidelines in Dossani Travels Case and subsequent cases. The Ministry of Hajj in 2019, reserved an additional 5000 Hajj quota for allocation to newly enrolled HGOs in compliance of the order of the Islamabad High Court, Islamabad dated 15.3.2018 and against another quota as promised by the Saudi King, will give newly approved HGOs the opportunity to be issued Hajj quota. The recommendations of the Competition Commission of Pakistan in compliance with Dossani Travels Case have been considered and a criteria for establishing the merit is being followed. With reference to the policy challenge, learned DAG has placed reliance on the judgment of this Court dated 14.2.2019 passed in W.P. No.8796/2019 titled Advocate Mian Asif Mehmood v. Federation of Pakistan etc. in which the Hajj Policy was challenged and it was found that there is no illegality or arbitrariness or mala fide established on the part of the Executive.

10. The entire case of the Petitioners is that the process of selection is arbitrary, random and discriminatory. However, in terms of the criterias set out before the Court, there appears to be no arbitrariness or randomness in the selection process. The Hajj Policy provides for a Hajj Policy Formulation Committee which includes Secretary, MORA as Chairman, representative from the office of the Attorney General for Pakistan, from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and Ministry of Law and Justice and representative from the Competition Commission of Pakistan. A bare look at the members who sit in the Committee shows that it is an impartial Committee comprising of a diverse set of members who formulated the Hajj Policy and the criteria for allocation of Hajj quota. The Hajj Policy was approved by the Cabinet whereafter the quota allocation process was started. The Petitioners before the Court along with other HGOs were all duly considered, on the basis of which a merit list was made and the merit list has been duly posted on the website of Respondent No.1. The Court has also been informed that the assessment was made by engaging a Third Party being a well reputed Chartered Accountant, hence the question of favouritism and random picking of HGOs has no force. Therefore the Hajj Policy and quota allocated thereunder is in compliance with the pronouncement of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan especially the Dossani Travels Case.

11. With respect to the Petitioners' allegation that in certain cases HGOs have been selected contrary to the criteria or without due regard to the criteria is a question of record and fact. In such cases the Petitioners can raise specific objections before the Committee who can review the allegations and determine whether or not there is any merit in the same within the shortest possible time. In this context, the relevant HGO should also be given a hearing so as to enable it to defend its position. In the event that such applications are filed before the Committee, the same shall be decided expeditiously so as to prevent any disturbance in the allocation of Hajj quota.

12. The only contention left is that of discrimination where the Petitioners seek equal distribution of the Hajj quota, such that all enrolled HGOs should be given equal quota, meaning that each of the enrolled HGO is awarded a quota if it meets the criteria. The Petitioners claim discrimination on the ground that the Respondents are still distinguishing between old HGOs and newly enrolled HGOs, thereby reducing their chance of getting a Hajj quota. Learned DAG clarified that for the purposes of reference only old HGOs are those enrolled since 2005 who are carrying out the provision of Hajj services and are allocated Hajj quota. The merit of these HGOs is scrutinized against the given criteria. The new HGOs are the ones enrolled from 2012 and they are also allocated quotas. However, not every newly enrolled HGO has been given Hajj quota as the same is determined on the basis of the given criteria and on its merit. In the cases before the Court the Petitioners do not satisfy the merit requirement but have been duly considered. It appears that this dispute for equal distribution has continued for some time and the Petitioners continue their demand for equal distribution of Hajj quota. The fact that every HGO cannot be accommodated while allocating Hajj quota does not tantamount to discrimination and the fact that HGOs before the Court have not been given Hajj quota does not suggest discrimination. A transparent process has been placed before the Court on the basis of which the selection was made and in terms of the HGOs before the Court, none of them were able to make it on the merit list. The judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan have been followed and a policy has been devised which allows HGOs to compete for the merit. Old HGOs are the HGOs who are providing Hajj services, hence are scrutinized considering their past Hajj services. New HGOs are those who have never carried out Hajj services yet are considered on the basis of Umrah services. This distinction does not suggest discrimination rather shows that a thought through process has been put in place to consider all HGOs favourably. Hence there is no merit in the discrimination argument. Learned DAG stated that it is expected that the quota promised by the Saudi King will be allocated shortly for which again an exercise shall take place for enrollment of new HGOs provided that they meet the criteria. Therefore as such the Petitioners can be considered again and may be allocated quota if they meet the given criteria.

13. In W.P. No. 15188/19, the Petitioners seek a declaration that past performance of the tour operators is to be judged on Hajj or Umrah or Ziarat operations and the Respondents cannot exclude Ziarat operations as this Petitioner specializes in Ziarat operations and was previously considered for Hajj quota. Learned counsel stated that the applicants who only applied on the basis of Ziarat have not been given any quota this year, hence are discriminated against. Learned counsel further argued that in terms of the given criteria, Ziarat operation was also to be considered and that many of the old HGOs were granted quota only on the basis of Ziarat operations. It is also his case that this is against the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Dossani Travels Case.

14. Report and parawise comments have also been filed in the stated Writ Petition. Learned DAG argued that the matter of Ziarat operations were duly considered by the Committee and it was decided that Hajj quota will not be given to those tour operators who only have experience in Ziarat operations as there is no way to verify their credentials or information on the basis of which it can be ascertained whether the tour operator has carried out Ziarat operations and whether there were any complaints or problems related thereto. She explained that for the purposes of Umrah, the Kindgom of Saudi Arabia issues Umrah ID, hence it is verified and only Umrah ID holders are considered. However there is no official ID given for the purposes of Ziarat operations, hence the Committee on the recommendations of the Competition Commission of Pakistan in the larger interest of allocation of Hajj quota decided that Ziarat operations would not be considered under the Hajj Policy. She again reiterated that this is a policy decision and as such the Petitioner has no fundamental right on the basis of which it can claim entitlement to Hajj quota as a reasonable and fair policy has been executed on the basis of which the Petitioners are not entitled to any Hajj quota.

15. On the basis of the contentions raised, there appears to be no arbitrariness or discrimination in this case as the Committee is well within its domain to determine the Hajj Policy and is not obligated to include Ziarat operations under any judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan. It is also noted that the Committee has rationalized its reasons to explain why Ziarat operations have not been considered in this policy which explanation has been accorded by the Competition Commission as per the requirements of the Dossani Travels Case. The Cabinet has also approved the Hajj Policy which sets out a transparent process to allocate Hajj quota. Therefore as such there is no merit in this petition as well.

16. Therefore in view of the aforesaid, there is no merit to the challenge of Hajj Policy in these petitions, hence all the petitions are dismissed.

Writ Petition No.14138 of 2019, heard on 23rd April,, 2019.

(a) Income Tax Ordinance (XLIX of 2001)---

----S. 175---Power to enter and search premises---Scope---Commissioner could authorize entry and search of the premises of a taxpayer in order to enforce any provision of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ('the Ordinance') i.e. that there must be an infringement or non-compliance of some provision of the Ordinance which the tax department sought to enforce---Must be some default by the taxpayer under the Ordinance, or in audit proceeding or some inquiry or investigation for evasion of income tax which the taxpayer was avoiding on the basis of which the power under S.175 of the Ordinance was called into use---Purpose of S.175 of the Ordinance was to enable enforcement of any provision of the Ordinance, hence there must be a clear statement before the Commissioner of which provision of the Ordinance was to be enforced and the reasons for it---In order to exercise the power under S.175, the tax department must record the reasons for initiating action under said section---Commissioner had to justify with sufficient reasons for exercising such power and while prior notice was not required under S.175, the Commissioner could, if deemed necessary, issue notice to the taxpayer.

(b) Income Tax Ordinance (XLIX of 2001)---

----S. 175---Power to enter and search premises---Seizure of record, computer and accounts of a business---No compelling reasons provided for initiating seizure proceedings---Tax department on the basis of an authorization order issued under S.175 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ('the Ordinance') by the Commissioner entered into the business premises of the petitioner-restaurant and seized the accounts, documents, computer and related material available at the premises---Legality---Power under S.175 of the Ordinance could only be exercised if the Commissioner was satisfied and had justified in writing that it was necessary to enter and search the premises, place, accounts, documents or computer of the taxpayer---In the present case the tax department had not been able to justify actions under S.175 of the Ordinance---Authorization order did not provide for any reason and simply suggested that it was for carrying out the objects of S.175, which created suspicion not only about the intent but also the reasons for which entry and seizure had taken place---Tax department had repeatedly referred to default by petitioner in paying sales tax which for the purpose of S.175 of the Ordinance was irrelevant and it could not be used as a reason to enter into the premises of a taxpayer---Furthermore, the tax department's reliance on notices issued to the petitioner prior to the seizure proceedings was also misleading as the said notices did not explain the reason for carrying out entry and search of the petitioner's business premises as in both the notices the allegations were with respect to some property which was not disclosed in the wealth tax return for which the petitioner had provided relevant information and for which proceedings were dropped---Tax department had not been able to justify the action taken under S.175 of the Ordinance as it was unable to satisfy the Court as to the compelling reasons to initiate proceedings under the said section---Proceedings initiated by the tax department in terms of the authorization letter were set aside and the tax department was directed to hand over all the material seized from the business premises of the petitioner i.e. record, accounts, documents, computer etc to the petitioner immediately---Constitutional petition was allowed accordingly.

Date of hearing: 23rd April, 2019.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition, the Petitioner, Proprietor Yasir Broast has challenged the action of the Respondents initiated under Section 175 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") in terms of authorization letter dated 21.02.2019 and subsequent proceedings thereto including the seizure of the record, computer and accounts of the Petitioner business.

2. The basic grievance of the Petitioner is that the Respondents on the basis of authorization order dated 21.02.2019 issued under Section 175 of the Ordinance by Commissioner Inland Revenue, Zone-V, RTO-II, Lahore entered into the business premises of the Petitioner and seized the accounts, documents, computer and related material available at the business premises and continue to confiscate such material without due process of law. Learned counsel argued that the Petitioner is not under any inquiry or investigation nor has the business been selected for audit nor there are any proceedings for evasion of income tax pending against the Petitioner. The Petitioner is registered on the Restaurants Invoice Monitoring System ("RIMS") and consequently is monitored by the Punjab Revenue Authority under the Punjab Sales Tax on Services Act, 2012 ("Act"). Despite the same, the Respondents raided the business premises of the Petitioner on 21.02.2019 and forcibly seized computers, accounts and record of the Petitioner without any lawful authority or justification. Since then the Petitioner has been seeking reasons for the raid, however has found no plausible answer from the Respondents. Learned counsel argued that in the very least the Respondents must issue a speaking order providing for the reasons and there must be some proceedings pending under the Ordinance which culminates into the requirement to access the business premises of the taxpayer. Therefore, he seeks a declaration that the action of the Respondents on 21.02.2019 was illegal and that the confiscated items be returned to the Petitioner immediately. Reliance is placed on "K.K. Oil and Ghee Mills (Pvt.) Ltd v. Federal Board of Revenue and others" (2016 PTD 2601).

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by Respondents Nos.4 to 6, in terms of which action was taken on the basis of definite information for which the Petitioner was confronted through notice under Section 122(9) read with Section 122(5) of the Ordinance. Learned counsel argued that Section 175 of the Ordinance has an overriding effect over all rules under the law and provides free access to premises, place, accounts, documents or computer impounded to the Respondents where it deemed necessary. Learned counsel further submitted that the proceedings are underway against the Petitioner for the tax year 2015 for non-payment of sales tax and consequently it is likely that there has been evasion of income tax by the Petitioner. He has placed on record details of sales tax evasion by the Petitioner, a copy of notice under Section 176(1)(B) of the Ordinance for personal hearing dated 15.3.2019 and the reply filed by the Petitioner dated 22.3.2019. Learned counsel has placed reliance on "Messrs Vincraft (Pvt.) Ltd., through Authorised Representatives v. Federal Board of Revenue through Chairman and 4 others" (2017 PTD 2114).

4. In rebuttal learned counsel for the Petitioner has again reiterated that there are no proceedings against the Petitioner. The contention of definite information of notice under Section 122(9) read with Section 122(5) of the Ordinance is false as earlier a notice was issued under Section 129(9) dated 17.10.2018 with respect to the declaration of property bearing No.210-E-2, MA Johar Town, Lahore, which was duly complied with and the Respondents were shown that the property has been declared in the wealth tax return of the Petitioner for the tax year 2015. Hence all proceedings were dropped. Therefore, he states the Respondents illegally entered into his premises.

5. The basic issue before the Court is the manner in which Section 175 of the Ordinance being the power to enter and search premises is to be invoked. In terms of this Section in order to enforce any provision of the Ordinance including for the purpose of making an audit for a taxpayer or a survey of a person liable to tax, the Commissioner or any officer authorized by the Commissioner in writing can, without prior notice have full and free access to any premises, place, accounts, documents or computer. The Section essentially authorizes the Commissioner to ensure compliance of the Ordinance by the taxpayer and if required to enter into the premises of a taxpayer. This means that the Commissioner can authorize entry and search of the premises of a taxpayer in order to enforce any provision of the Ordinance. Hence the emphasis is on enforce provisions of the Ordinance. The meaning of to enforce any provision of the Ordinance is that there must be an infringement or non-compliance of some provision of the Ordinance which the Respondents seek to enforce. Meaning that there must be some default by the taxpayer under the Ordinance, or in audit proceeding or some inquiry or investigation for evasion of income tax which the taxpayer is avoiding on the basis of which the power under Section 175 of the Ordinance is called into use. The objective of the Section is to ensure that taxpayers are compliant with the law and where there is non-compliance in order to prevent evasion of income tax, Section 175 of the Ordinance can be invoked for compliance.

6. Section 175 of the Ordinance while granting power to Commissioner or any authorized officer by the Commissioner to enter and search premises without notice has to be seen in conjunction with the rights enjoyed by a taxpayer with reference to its premises and property and with the right of due process. The purpose of this Section is to enable enforcement of any provision of the Ordinance, hence there must be a clear statement before the Commissioner of which provision of the Ordinance is to be enforced and the reasons for it without such an explicit statement, in writing this power under this Section can be abused. Therefore, in order to exercise the power under Section 175 of the Ordinance, the Respondents must record the reasons for initiating action under Section 175 of the Ordinance. The Commissioner has to justify with sufficient reasons for exercising this power and while prior notice is not required under this Section, the Commissioner can if deemed necessary issue notice to the taxpayer. Where prior notice is dispensed with as the statute allows it under Section 175(1) (a) of the Ordinance, the Commissioner must justify invoking Section 175 of the Ordinance in the order of authorization issued prior to entering and searching or confiscating documents or computers or files from the premises of a taxpayer. While interpreting Section 175(1)(a) of the Ordinance it can be seen that the provisions of Section 175(1)(a) to (e) of the Ordinance not only provide power to enter and search premises giving free access to the Commissioner to any premises, place, accounts, documents or computer but also gives the power to impound any account or document and retain them for as long as may be necessary for its examination or for the purposes of prosecution or to retain information required. This by itself suggests that information required is necessary for some proceedings or prosecution or inquiry which is under way. Hence the meaning given to Subsection (7) of Section 175 of the Ordinance which provides that the Section shall have effect notwithstanding any rule of law relating to privilege or the public interest in relation to access to premises or places or the production of accounts, documents or computer-stored information is not without due process. Hence this power can only be exercised if the Commissioner is satisfied and has justified in writing that it is necessary to enter and search the premises, place, accounts, documents or computer of the taxpayer.

7. In this case the Respondents have not been able to justify action under Section 175 of the Ordinance. The authorization order does not provide for any reason and simply suggests that its for carrying out the objects of the said Section. This creates suspicion not only the intent but also the reasons for which entry and seizure has taken place. The Respondents have repeatedly referred to default in paying sales tax which for the purpose of Section 175 of the Ordinance is irrelevant and it cannot be used as a reason to enter into the premises of a taxpayer. Furthermore, the Respondents reliance on notice issued under Section 122(9) read with Section 122(5) of the Ordinance is also misleading as the said notice do not explain the reason for carrying out entry and search of the Petitioner's business premises as in both the notices the allegations is with respect to some property which was not disclosed in the wealth tax return for the tax year 2015 for which the Petitioner has provided relevant information and for which proceedings were dropped. Therefore in this case, the Respondents have not been able to justify the action taken under Section 175 of the Ordinance. Learned counsel for the Respondents has not been able to satisfy the Court as to the compelling reasons to initiate proceedings under Section 175 of the Ordinance.

8. Under the circumstances, this petition is allowed and the proceedings initiated by the Respondents in terms of authorization letter dated 21.02.2019 are set aside. The Respondents are directed to hand over all the material seized from the business premises of the Petitioner i.e. record, accounts, documents, computer etc to the Petitioner immediately.

LAHORE STOCK EXCHANGE---Appellant

Commercial Appeal No. 3 of 2015, heard on 9th April, 2019.

(a) Securities and Exchange Ordinance (XVII of 1969)---

----Ss. 22(c) & 34---Brokers and Agents Registration Rules, 2001, R. 7---Unified Trading System Regulations, Reglns. 6.1.1 & 6.1.2---Broker trading on stock exchange without renewal of registration---Penalty imposed on stock exchange---Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan ('the Commission') imposed a penalty of Rs. 1 million on (Lahore) Stock Exchange for allowing a broker to continue trading without renewal of its registration in violation of Reglns. 6.1.1 & 6.1.2 of the Unified Trading System Regulations ("Regulations")---Plea of Stock Exchange (appellant) that the broker in question forwarded its application for renewal of registration to the Stock Exchange who then forwarded it to the Commission; that the matter was delayed considerably by the Commission and in the meantime show cause notice was issued to Stock Exchange to show as to why penalty should not be imposed on it; that role of the Stock Exchange was that of a post office, as it was merely to forward the request of the broker for renewal of registration to the Commission, and in fact it was the responsibility of the Commission to renew the registration of the broker, that too within time; that in the event the Commission was unable to renew the registration in time, it must intimate to the Stock Exchange and the broker that the registration had not been renewed or it was still pending---Held, that Regln. 6.1.2 of the Regulations clearly provided that the Stock Exchange or the COMMISSION could suspend use of the terminal immediately if a member or broker did not meet the criteria given under Regln. 6.1.1 of the Regulations---Stock Exchange's contention that it was the responsibility of the Commission to suspend the operation of a member at its terminal was totally misplaced as the Regulations clearly placed this responsibility on Stock Exchange as well as on the Commission---Brokers and Agents Registration Rules, 2001 ('the Rules') provided that the application for renewal of registration was to be forwarded through the Stock Exchange, however the intent of such rule was to enable the Stock Exchange to monitor the eligibility of its broker---Stock Exchange could not exonerate itself from its fundamental responsibility to ensure that every broker was duly registered with the Commission and was operating under a valid registration certificate---Purpose of moving the renewal application through the Stock Exchange was so that the Stock Exchange became aware of the fact that a broker's registration certificate was due to expire within a specified period, hence it could pursue the matter to ensure that the registration certificate was renewed within time---Issue of whether there is a delay on the part of the Commission was totally irrelevant for the purposes of the Stock Exchange, as its primary responsibility as a frontline regulator was to ensure that only registered brokers operated through the Exchange on the Unified Trading System---Basic function of a Stock Exchange was to promote and protect all investors who operated through it for which registration of a broker was a vital requirement---Stock Exchange was found responsible for neglecting its functions and also for violating the Regulations against the interest of the investors, hence a penalty of Rs.1 million was appropriate---Appeal was dismissed in circumstances and the penalty imposed by the Commission was maintained.

(b) Securities and Exchange Ordinance (XVII of 1969)---

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This appeal has been filed by the Appellant, Lahore Stock Exchange Limited ("LSE") under Section 34 of the Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan Act, 1997 ("Act") against the order dated 06.02.2015 issued by Respondent No.2, Appellate Bench-1, Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan ("SECP").

2. The Appellant is aggrieved by the penalty imposed by Respondent No.2, SECP for allowing a broker to continue trading without renewal of its registration in violation of Regulations 6.1.1 and 6.1.2 of the Unified Trading System Regulations ("Regulations"). Learned counsel for the Appellant stated that the Universal Equities (Pvt.) Limited ("UEL") a broker registered under the Broker and Agents Registration Rules, 2001 ("Rules") forwarded its application for renewal of registration to the Appellant who then forwarded it to the Respondent SECP. The matter was delayed considerably by the SECP and in the meantime show cause notice dated 17.11.2009 was issued to LSE to show as to why penalty should not be imposed as provided under section 22(c) of SECP Ordinance, 1969 for violation of Regulations 6.1.1 and 6.1.2 of the Regulations made under section 34 of the Securities and Exchange Ordinance, 1969 ("Ordinance").

3. The main allegation contained in the show cause notice was that the Appellant allowed UEL to continue trading at its terminal despite the fact that its registration had expired. The Appellant was asked to explain why the trading terminal was not switched off after the expiry of the broker's registration. The Appellant filed its reply on 23.11.2009 primarily explaining its role and function and elaborating that it is not the mandate of the Appellant to register UEL as a broker and the delay if any cannot be attributed to the Appellant especially since the matter was pending with the SECP. The case was heard in detail and ultimately order dated 10.12.2009 was passed by the Director (ICW) SMD SECP holding the Appellant liable to penalty in the amount of Rs.1 Million for being negligent of its duties. Against the said order, the Appellant filed an appeal before Respondent No.2 which was dismissed and the penalty was upheld.

4. In terms of the impugned order, the Appellant was held responsible to monitor the activities of brokers, to ensure that they are duly registered with the SECP and in the event that the registration expires they should not allow them for trading on terminals. The impugned order has relied upon Regulations 6.1.1 and 6.1.2 of the Regulations and maintained penalty in the amount of Rs.1 Million against the Appellant.

5. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the impugned order has failed to consider that the role of the Appellant is that of a post office; it is merely to forward the request of the broker for renewal of registration to the SECP and in fact it is the responsibility of the SECP to renew the registration of the broker, that too within time. And in the event it is unable to renew the registration in time, it must intimate to the LSE and the broker that the registration has not been renewed or it is still pending. Hence the terminal should be shut down. Learned counsel also argued that in the absence of such intimation, the Appellant cannot be held responsible for willful contravention under section 22(c) of the Ordinance as well as the Regulations. Learned counsel further argued that in terms of the Rules no time has been specified with respect to renewal of registration and there is no consequence provided in the Rules in the event of a delay for renewal of registration. Learned counsel also argued that when the terminal was shut down by the Appellant, UEL filed W.P. No.23719/2009 before this Court in which a direction was issued to SECP to hear the matter and pass an order immediately meaning thereby that the responsibility lies with the SECP and not with the Appellant.

6. Parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned counsel for the Respondents states that the Appellant is a frontline regulator and is responsible to ensure that every broker operating a terminal at the LSE is duly registered by the SECP. Learned counsel argued that the contention of the Appellant that it is simply a post office is totally against the mandate of the law as its role is to ensure compliance of all Rules and Regulations and suspend operation of any broker who is acting in contravention of the Rules and Regulations. In this case UEL was operating its terminal without registration as a broker meaning thereby that the Appellant kept the market and its investors at risk by allowing an unregistered broker to operate through its terminal for more than a year. Learned counsel further argued that this is an admitted fact which the Appellant itself acknowledged through letter dated 04.11.2009 wherein it has specially stated that due to restructuring of management of human resource this issue was inadvertently missed out by the Appellant. Learned counsel further argued that the Appellant failure to stop UEL from operating as a registered broker without any registration from 24.07.2008 to 16.06.2009 and without submission of any application until 21.05.2009 which is in gross violation of the Regulations. Consequently, the Appellant has to be made responsible as it is a violation of public trust.

7. The Appellant has relied upon the Rules to show that a member desirous of acting as a broker shall make an application to the Commission in Form A as set out in the First Schedule for grant of a certificate of registration, through the stock exchange in which he is a member. This application is to be forwarded by the relevant stock exchange to the Commission within fourteen days from the date of its receipt. Thereafter it is the SECP, which is to determine eligibility for certificate of registration as a broker under the law. In the event of renewal of registration Rule 7 of the Rules prescribes that the certificate of registration shall be renewable on payment of fee on the same Rules for eligibility as at the time of initial registration. They have also relied upon the fact that the suspension of registration lies within the jurisdiction of SECP for contravention of the Rules and Regulations showing that if a broker was to operate a terminal of LSE without registration, the Commission can take necessary action against the broker and impose any penalty or fine as under the Rules. The Respondents have relied upon the Regulations, which have been made in exercise of power under section 34 of the Ordinance. These Regulations are relevant to the Unified Trading System ("UTS") in terms of which LSE is a frontline regulator with respect to its members and the companies/securities listed on the LSE. The trading on UTS shall only be done by eligible members which clearly shows that a member must be registered with the SECP as per Regulation 6.1.1 of the Regulations. If at any time a member seizes to fulfil the criteria given under Regulation 6.1.1 of the Regulations, Regulation 6.1.2 comes into force which provides that membership should be immediately suspended either by the stock exchange or by the Commission. In this case it is the Regulations which are relevant and not the Rules as the Regulation clearly address the issue of operating on the UTS without a registration. Regulation 6.1.2 of the Regulations clearly provides that the stock exchange or the Commission can suspend use of the terminal immediately if a member or broker does not meet the criteria given under Regulation 6.1.1 of the Regulations. Therefore, the Appellant's contention that it is the responsibility of the SECP to suspend the operation of a member at its terminal is totally misplaced as the Regulations clearly places this responsibility on stock exchange as well as on the Commission.

8. The Appellant has also argued that it had no knowledge of the pendency of the renewal application and that it operates merely as a post office for the purposes of forwarding the application of renewal. In this regard the Rules provide that the application is to be forwarded through the stock exchange, however the intent of such a rule is to enable the stock exchange to monitor the eligibility of its broker. The Appellant cannot exonerate itself from its fundamental responsibility to ensure that every broker is duly registered with the Commission and is operating under a valid registration certificate. The purpose of moving the renewal application through the stock exchange is so that the stock exchange becomes aware of the fact that a brokers registration certificate is due to expire within a specified period, hence it can pursue the matter to ensure that the registration certificate is renewed within time. The issue of whether there is a delay on the part of the Commission is totally irrelevant for the purposes of the stock exchange, in this case the LSE, as its primary responsibility as a frontline regulator is to ensure that only registered brokers operate through the LSE on the UTS. In this regard, it is important to note that the stock exchange is a frontline regulator to monitor brokers so as to protect the interest of the investors. It is the stock exchanges basic function to promote and protect all investors who operate through it for which registration of a broker is a vital requirement. In this regard the stock exchange cannot shy away from its responsibility to ensure that a broker is registered with the SECP nor can it shy away from the responsibility of shutting down the terminal, since in this case UEL was operating on LSEs UTS system. Hence LSE has to ensure that only a registered broker can operate on UTS. The Commission can also suspend operation, however, primary responsibility is of the LSE.

9. The Appellant has also questioned the penalty imposed of Rs.1 Million on the ground that it is excessive and the infringement was not willful. It was argued that SECP is at much at fault as LSE hence the punishment should have been lenient and further no loss was reported on account of this inadvertent mistake. Section 22 of the Ordinance provides for penalties where a person contravenes or fails to comply with the Ordinance or the Rules and Regulations made thereunder. As per the Section the penalty cannot exceed Rs.50 Million. Regulatory penalty, as the Section clearly provides, is for compliance of the law the violation of which results in punishment in the form of a penalty. The quantum of penalty is based on the circumstances of each case such that it is appropriate and a proportionate amount of penalty, not exceeding the upper limit of Rs.50 Million. The basic objective to impose penalty is to ensure compliance by creating an effective deterrence. The amount of penalty reflects on the seriousness of the infringement, the duration of the infringement, the degree of harm caused if any, whether actual or potential. It will also reflect on whether the contravention was deliberate or reckless and whether any effort was made to prevent the wrong from continuing. Of course past history is also relevant along with any precedents on the issue. Penalty is imposed in each case depending on its facts and context and in proportion to the infringement and its impact. In this case there is no justification for the Appellant to claim leniency or a notional punishment as the Appellant has totally abdicated itself from its role as a frontline regulator. The Appellant's case was considered and the gravity of the infringement was also considered. The penalty is well within the statutory limit and does not reflect upon any random quantum. The Appellant has been held responsible for neglecting its functions and also for violating the Regulations against the interest of the investors. In order for the deterrent to be effective it should be of an amount which hurts the offender. Therefore, in this case no illegality is made out.

10. In view of the aforesaid, the contention of the Appellant that it is not responsible to ensure the registration of UEL is totally misplaced as in terms of the record the application for renewal of registration was filed by the UEL on 21.05.2009 after a delay of 10 months, which should have been in the knowledge of the Appellant and called for immediate action. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out as Respondent No.2 has rightly imposed penalty on the Appellant. Resultantly, the instant appeal is dismissed and the order impugned dated 06.02.2015 is maintained.

ORDER

Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 29.4.2017 passed by Respondent No.2, Judge Banking Court-II, Lahore.

2. The basic grievance of the Petitioner is that the Respondent Bank filed a recovery suit against the Petitioner in which the Petitioner filed Leave Application ("PLA"). In the PLA he denied execution of documents which as per the contentions of the learned counsel is the right of the Petitioner while defending his position in the suit. On the basis of the denials made in the PLA, the Respondent Bank filed a complaint under section 20 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 ("FIO") on 30.1.2016 before Respondent No.2 and on 29.4.2017 the impugned order was passed wherein the respondents were summoned for 30.5.2017 to face trial in the complaint.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner submitted that the only allegation in the criminal complaint is that in the PLA filed in COS No.71/2015, the Petitioner has falsely stated that he did not avail the letter of credit facility, hence he has committed an offence under section 20 of the FIO. Learned counsel further submitted that the Petitioner is entitled to raise his defence in the suit and that by raising his defence in the PLA, an offence is not made out under section 20 of the FIO. Learned counsel further stated that no offence is made out under section 20 of the FIO as the matter is still subjudice before the Banking Court and it is yet to be determined whether or not the suit of the Bank can be decreed. Until then the Bank cannot presume that a criminal offence has been made out under section 20 of the FIO on the basis of the PLA.

4. Learned counsel for the Respondent Bank submitted that the Petitioner has misstated before the court in the PLA by denying the relationship with the Bank and by denying the availment of the facilities from the Bank. Learned counsel further submitted that in terms thereof an offence has been committed under sections 20(b) and 20(2) of the FIO, hence the Petitioner is liable to be prosecuted and punished in terms of section 20(5) of the FIO. Learned counsel further argued that the Respondent Bank is entitled to pursue the matter by way of filing a banking suit as well as lodging a criminal complaint against the Petitioner for making false statements.

5. The basic dispute before the Court is the order of 29.4.2017 passed by Respondent No.2 wherein summons were issued for the purposes of proceeding on the complaint filed by the Respondent Bank under section 20 of the FIO. The question therefore is whether the summons are illegal and in excess of jurisdiction. As per the contents of the complaint, the main grievance of the Respondent Bank is that the Petitioner has wrongfully denied its relationship with the Bank, which means denial of the execution and availment of finance facilities, the creation of charge documents and mortgages along with restructuring of the finance facilities. The complaint states that the Petitioner has knowingly made a false statement by denying his signatures on the documents. Section 20(b) of the FIO provides that: whoever makes fraudulent mis-representation or commits a breach of an obligation or representation made to a Financial Institutions on the basis of which the Financial Institution has granted a finance.
Section 20(2) of the FIO provides that:
whoever knowingly makes a statement which is false in material respects in an application for finance and obtain a finance on the basis thereof, or applies the amount of the finance towards a purpose other than that for which the finance was obtained by him, or furnishes a false statement of stocks in violation of the terms of the agreement with the Financial Institutions or falsely denies his signatures on any banking document before the Banking Court, shall be guilty of an offence punishable with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

In terms of the aforementioned sections an offence is made out if fraud and misrepresentation is made or if a person denies his signatures on any banking document. The Respondent Bank filed its complaint on the assumption that finance facilities were availed and -utilized by the Petitioner, hence denying the same in the PLA amounts to fraud and misrepresentation by the Petitioner in terms of section 20(b) of the FIO and denial of the signatures is an offence under section 20(2) of the FIO. Admittedly the suit of the Bank is still pending, at the stage of PLA and the Banking Court, which is the competent forum, has yet to decide whether or not a case of recovery has been made out. Hence the Court has yet to consider the plea of the Petitioner with respect to the denials made, especially whether he executed the documents or availed any facility from the Bank. In such circumstances where the matter is still pending before the court of competent jurisdiction, the Banking Court cannot initiate proceedings under section 20 of the FIO and the entire complaint of the Bank at this stage is presumptive. The question of whether or not the Petitioner availed the finance facility and signed the documents is subjudice before Respondent No.2 and has not conclusively been adjudicated upon. Under the circumstances, in case the Banking Court proceeds in the complaint and finds that the Petitioner has made a false statement it will prejudice the case of the Petitioner before Respondent No.2.

6. Furthermore the impugned order states that ex-facie an offence is made out without considering the fact that the matter is still subjudice and has not been determined as yet. Section 20 of the FIO provides for the powers of the Banking Court to punish an accused or culprit with imprisonment or fine where an offence is made out. At this stage it cannot be said that an offence is made out and the Bank will have to wait until the matter is decided by the Banking Court. Under the circumstances, we are of the opinion that the criminal complaint filed by the Bank against the Petitioner is misconceived and at this stage the Banking Court could not have proceeded on the basis of the complaint.

7. In view of the aforesaid, the instant petition is allowed and the impugned order dated 29.4.2017 passed by Respondent No.2 is set aside.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the petitioner has impugned the rejection of its application filed under Section 159(I) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001, ("Ordinance") for issuance of exemption certificate.

2. Learned counsel for the Petitioner states that the Petitioner claimed tax credit under Section 65D of the Ordinance for the tax period 01.09.2014 till 31.08.2019. This request was denied on the ground that there is no provision in the Ordinance to grant exemption certificate for the purposes of tax exemption. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that this matter has already been decided by this Court in "Messrs Nishat Diary (Pvt.) Ltd through Company Secretary v. Commissioner Inland Revenue and 4 others" (2013 PTD 1883) and in I.C.A. No.799/2013 dated 18.03.2014 titled "Commissioner Inland Revenue v. Nishat Dairy (Pvt.) Ltd." Wherein it was held that for the purposes of grant of exemption certificate, tax credit and tax exemption are the same as benefits available to the taxpayer to reduce their tax liability. Hence the Petitioner is entitled to the tax exemption under Section 65D of the Ordinance.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. It is stated by the learned counsel for the Respondents Nos. 5 and 6 that since the law does not provide for tax exemption under Section 65D of the Ordinance, hence the application of the Petitioner has been rightly rejected.

4. At the very outset, it its noted that this matter has been settled by this Court in 2013 PTD 1883 (supra) and in I.C.A. No.799/2013 dated 18.03.2014 titled "Commissioner Inland Revenue v. Nishat Dairy (Pvt.) Ltd". Therefore, there is no merit in the arguments of the learned counsel for Respondents. As per the judgment of this Court, since the Petitioner is entitled for tax exemption under Section 65D of the Ordinance it may be considered for this benefit at the beginning of the year rather than wait for adjustment at the end of the year. Furthermore, the Commissioner has to convey the entitlement for tax exemption under Section 65D of the Ordinance and issue a certificate accordingly. Consequently, this petition is allowed and Respondent No.6 is directed to consider its case for issuance of exemption certificate on merit and decide it accordingly.

ORDER

Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned the orders dated 29.11.2013 issued by Respondent No. 3 and 10.5.2017 issued by Respondent No. 2.

2. Facts of the case are that Respondent No. 1 filed an application on 31.12.2013 before Respondent No. 3 under Section 38 of NEPRA Act, 1997 stating that he received detection bill amounting to Rs. 388,053/- in the month of 6/2012. He contacted to the Petitioner but his grievance was not redressed, therefore he deposited 60% disputed amount under protest and after that the Petitioner charged Rs. 155,221/- adding in the bill for the month of 11/12. The Petitioner submitted its reply and refuted the allegations. However, Respondent No. 3 issued the impugned order dated 29.11.2013 in favour of Respondent No. 1. Aggrieved of said order, the Petitioner filed appeal before Respondent No. 2 which was also dismissed vide order dated 10.5.2017. Hence this petition.

3. Admittedly both the billing and backup meters of Respondent No. 1 were found 33% slow during M&T checking dated 12.3.2012, therefore, the dispute to be ascertained may be relevant for the relevant period. Due to 33% slowness of the meter, detection bill of Rs. 388,053/- for 40,900 units/86 kW for the period October 2011 to February 2012 (5 months) was charged by the Petitioner from Respondent No. 1.

4. At the very outset, learned counsel for the Petitioner was confronted with clause 4.4(e) of Consume Service Manual ("CSM"), which clearly provides that a consumer could be charged maximum for two billing cycles due to slowness of the meter whereas in the instant case Respondent No. 1 was charged the detection bill of Rs. 388,053/- for 40,900 units for five months by the Petitioner. Learned counsel for the Petitioner has no plausible explanation to offer. Furthermore, Respondent No. 2 stated that Respondent No. 3 rightly analyzed in the impugned decision that the billing meter of Respondent No. 1 was working correctly till February 2012 and it became 33% slow with effect from March 2012. Furthermore there are concurrent findings made by Respondents No .3 and 4 against which no illegality has been pointed out by the learned counsel for the Petitioner.

5. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.

ORDER

Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned the orders dated 21.8.2014 issued by Respondent No. 3 and 8.8.2017 issued by Respondent No. 2.

2. Facts of the case are that Respondent No. 1 filed an application on 2.1.2013 before Respondent No. 3 under Section 38 of NEPRA Act, 1997 stating that she was running a business of power looms under the name of Rimsha Weaving Factory and were running 36 auto power looms of size 112 inches. She received a bill for 8/2011 amounting to Rs. 646,128/- with DEF-EST code in which an amount of Rs. 219,959/- was current bill and Rs. 426,169/-were declared as arrears. She agitated the matter before the Petitioner about the arrears. Whereupon she was told that checking team checked her meter on 23.8.2011 and declared meter as defective, therefore, impugned bill for the month of 8/2011 is prepared on DEF-EST basis. Respondent No. 1 deposited the billing amount under protest to avoid disconnection. The meter was replaced without intimation to Respondent No. 1. The Petitioner submitted its reply and refuted the allegations. However, Respondent No. 3 issued the impugned order dated 21.8.2014 in favour of Respondent No. 1. Aggrieved of said order, the Petitioner filed appeal before Respondent No. 2 which was also dismissed vide order dated 8.8.2017. Hence this petition.

3. The impugned order dated 21.8.2014 issued by Respondent No. 3 found that if the meter was defective, the Petitioner will charge on the basis of previous corresponding months consumption or average of previous eleven months consumption without any previous charging. As the meter was checked by FESCO M&T checking team on 23.8.2011 and were declared as mal-functioning which was replaced in the billing month of 2/2012. Therefore prior to this, FESCO has charged the bills with effect from 8/2011 to 1/2012 on DEF-EST basis. The impugned order further finds that new healthy meter was installed in place of the disputed energy meter which has recorded correct. consumption as was being utilized by Respondent No. 1, therefore FESCO is liable to charge as per the readings on meter. The impugned order dated 8.8.2017 issued by Respondent No. 2 held that in terms of clause 4.4(e) of Consumer Service Manual, the consumer is liable to be charged on DEF-EST code due to a defective meter, which provides that the basis of charging will be 100% consumption recorded in the same month of previous year or average of the last 11 months whichever is higher. There are concurrent findings made by Respondents No. 2 and 3 against which no illegality has been pointed out by the learned counsel for the Petitioner.

4. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.

Writ Petition No. 25557 of 2019, decided on 12th July, 2019.

(a) Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act (I of 1997)---

----Ss. 4(4) & 3---Charge of agricultural income tax on basis of income tax return---Assessment and collection of agricultural income tax---Limitation period for recovery of agricultural income tax---Question before the High Court was whether notice for recovery of agricultural tax under Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 pertaining to years 2012 and 2013, was recoverable under notice served upon taxpayers in the year 2019, which was identical to a notice served upon said taxpayers in the year 2014---Held, that data contained in impugned notice was identical to notice served upon taxpayers in the year 2014, and therefore it was not barred by limitation and agricultural income tax was recoverable under the impugned notice, however any such recovery would be subject to right to appeal for taxpayer under S. 7 of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997.
Member (Taxes), Board of Revenue, Punjab, Lahore and others v. Qaisar Abbas and others 2019 SCMR 446 rel.

(b) Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act (I of 1997)---

----Ss. 3B, 3, 4A & 7---Charge of agricultural income tax on the basis of income tax return---Application of S.3B of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997---Computation of agricultural income---Right of appeal under S.7 of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997---Determination of substantial issues before charging of agricultural income tax---Due process---Scope----Assessment order was not required under S. 3B of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 and recovery could be initiated on basis of declaration made in an income tax return---Such process did not however curtail right of appeal under S.7 of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 nor did it allow Department to ignore procedure prescribed under the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 and Rules framed thereunder, especially with reference to computation of tax----Assessment order was not mandatory under S.3B of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 however any assessment order could be challenged under S.7 of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997---Calculations must be provided of tax levied and Department was required to disclose information taken from Federal Board of Revenue, rate applied and tax sought to be recovered in recovery notices under Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 so that taxpayer was clear on what amount was due against agricultural income tax---Objections with regard to limitation; jurisdiction, amount sought to be recovered, ownership and exemptions offered by Government itself required due deliberation and entitled the taxpayer due process under the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997.

Member (Taxes), Board of Revenue, Punjab, Lahore and others v. Qaisar Abbas and others 2019 SCMR 446 rel.

(c) Interpretation of statutes---

----Taxing statutes---Nature of statutory appeal provided for in a taxing statute---Scope---In any taxing scheme, right of appeal was provided under law to resolve disputes of liability to pay tax and such right of appeal was a statutory right under a taxing statute, which meant that any recovery under such statute was subject to said right of appeal---Assessment order was necessary in a taxing statute in order to support demand raised and to ensure that taxing officer had taxed a person as per the confines of law----Such assessment order ensured uniformity and equality in demand raised in absence of which doubt was raised and arbitrary exercise of jurisdiction was possible, as there existed no check on a taxing officer, and a citizen was substantially without protection from unequal and unjust demands.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the petitions detailed in Schedule "A" appended with the judgment as all petitions raise common questions of law and facts. The Petitioners have challenged notices issued under Section 3B of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 ("Act") by the Respondents for recovery of agricultural income tax.

barred by time as the Respondents cannot recover agricultural income tax beyond the two year limit prescribed, meaning thereby that if notices are issued in the year 2019, the Respondents can only recover agricultural income tax for the assessment years 2016-17 and 2017-18. It is also their contention that the Respondents have issued recovery notices on the basis of which they seek immediate recovery which denies the Petitioners the right to appeal as prescribed under the law. It is also their case that the amount sought to be recovered is not in accordance with law and the Respondents have failed to take into consideration factors such as that the Petitioners have not declared agriculture income tax in the returns filed by them or that they have not filed any income tax return; exemptions granted to the Petitioners by the Government of Punjab on account of flood and drought have not been considered; the fact that the Petitioners to whom the notices have been issued are not the owners of the property, hence not liable to pay the agricultural income tax; that the tax has already been paid or simply that the amounts sought to be collected have been miscalculated and are excessive amounts than the actual liability, if any, of the Petitioners. Some of the petitions have also alleged lack of jurisdiction of the Respondents as the subject land is not located in the Province of Punjab or the district. It is their contention that under the Act, the Petitioners are entitled to the right of appeal in terms of Section 7 of the Act which right cannot be exercised if the Respondents issue recovery notices without passing an assessment order. It is also their case that in the very least, the Respondents must hear the objections of the Petitioners with respect to the amounts sought to be recovered so as to ensure that if at all there is any liability for any assessment year, then the Petitioners are made liable to pay amounts that are due from them and not otherwise.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondents. Learned Law Officer stated that report and parawise comments filed in some of the petitions may be read into all the petitions as the grounds stated in the petitions are essentially the same. He stated that the Deputy Secretary (Recovery), Board of Revenue, Punjab vide letter dated 19.2.2019 and the Secretary (Taxes), Board of Revenue, Punjab vide letter dated 20.3.2019 brought to the notice of all Assistant Commissioners in Punjab that the august Supreme Court of Pakistan vide judgment dated 8.1.2019 titled Member (Taxes), Board of Revenue, Punjab, Lahore and others v. Qaisar Abbas and others (2019 SCMR 446) has allowed Assistant Commissioners to collect agricultural income tax from the persons who have declared agricultural income in their returns filed under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") in terms of Section 3B of the Act. As per their understanding, Section 3B read with Section 4(4) of the Act allows the Respondents to recover agricultural income tax for the assessment year 2012 onwards. Learned Law Officer argued that in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2019 SCMR 446 (supra) the Respondents are not required to levy or assess agricultural income tax rather they can issue notices for direct recovery against income declared. Hence notices were issued for payment within 15 days. He further argued that after the expiry of 15 days amounts can be recovered as arrears of land revenue as provided under the Punjab Agricultural Income Rules, 2001 ("Rules"). In order to facilitate the objective to recover all amounts due as agricultural income tax, the Board of Revenue obtained a list of persons who have declared agricultural income in their returns for the tax years 2012-13 and 2013-14 onwards. The lists were consulted and on the basis of the data provided, district-wise lists were issued to the field formations for issuance of recovery notices. Hence he stated that the data provided in the notices is correct and as per the declarations made by the Petitioners in their income tax returns with respect to agricultural income tax. Therefore, the notices are not barred by time as the matter has just been decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2019 SCMR 446 (supra). The learned Law Officer argued that in terms thereof, the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax for the year 2012 onwards.

4. In terms of the arguments made from both sides, there are two issues which need adjudication. The first issue is whether the recovery notices issued are barred by time and secondly whether as a consequence of the recovery notices issued under Section 3B of the Act, the Petitioners are entitled to file an appeal/objections against the amounts sought to be recovered. With respect to the first issue, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2019 SCMR 446 (supra) considered whether notices issued for the assessment year 2014 for recovery of agricultural income tax under Section 3B of the Act could have been issued at that time, given that Section 3B was inserted through the Finance Act on 29.6.2013 and came into force on 1.7.2013. As per the judgment the relevant assessment year began on 1.7.2014, in terms of the definition of the assessment year given in Section 2(ac) of the Act. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded that the Respondents could recover agricultural income tax for the past two years, being the assessment years 2012 and 2013. Hence in terms of the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the Respondents are entitled to recover, as arrears of agricultural income tax for the assessment years 2012 and 2013. In this regard, it is noted that earlier notices were issued to the Petitioners including the Petitioner Qaisar Abbas in the instant petition, which were challenged before this Court in W.P. No.15628/ 2015 and ultimately the order of this Court dated 26.10.2015 was modified by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan to the extent that recovery for the years 2012 and 2013 was allowed. Hence it is clear that in terms of the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax for the assessment years 2012 and 2013.

5. The dispute before the Court is due to the fact that the Respondents initiated a fresh process to recover agricultural income tax on the basis of which fresh notices were issued in 2019 for recovery of agricultural income tax for the years 2012 and 2013. Hence the Petitioners before the Court have raised the objection of limitation. Essentially the Respondents were required to issue recovery notices for the years 2012 and 2013 based on the original notices issued in the year 2014 for the assessment years 2012 and 2013 which were challenged in W.P. No. 15628/2015 and connected petitions and by referring to the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, notifying the Petitioners that they are now liable to pay the said amounts as the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has decided in favour of the Revenue Department. The fact that the Respondents did not mention the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the notices issued in 2019 nor have they mentioned that the demand raised is as per the original demand raised in 2014, has led to confusion consequent to which so many petitions have been filed before the Court.

6. On this issue, the learned Law Officer was confronted with the notices issued in 2019 and was asked to explain whether the data contained in these notices are identical to the data contained in the original notices issued in 2014 for the assessment years 2012 and 2013. In terms of the detailed reply and list provided, he states that the data is the same and it is based on the information provided by the Petitioners in their income tax returns as obtained from the Federal Board of Revenue. Therefore it is his contention that for the purposes of the petitions before the Court, the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax for the assessment years 2012 and 2013 on the strength of the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan. To this extent, the contention of the learned Law Officer is correct and the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax based on the original notices issued in 2014. However any recovery will be subject to the right of appeal under Section 7 of the Act. So far as to the recovery notices issued for the assessment years 2014, 2015 and 2016 the question of limitation has to be looked into in the first instance before any recovery can be made. It is also noted that since right of appeal is available under the Act, propriety demands that the objection of limitation be decided by the competent authority under the Act in order to streamline the process of recovering agricultural tax. Hence the second issue becomes relevant on whether the Petitioners can file objections/appeal against the recovery notices.

7. The Petitioners have a right of appeal against the amounts sought to be recovered under Section 7 of the Act which provides that for the purposes of appeal, review or revision, an order passed under this Act shall be deemed to be an order of a Revenue Officer within the meanings of Sections 161, 162, 163 and 164 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act, 1967, provided that proceedings of suo motu, review or revision of an order in respect of any income year shall not be initiated after the expiration of two years from the end of the assessment year in which the total agricultural income of the said income year was first assessable. In any taxing scheme the right of appeal is provided under the law to resolve disputes of liability to pay tax. The right of appeal is a statutory right under the Act which means that any recovery is subject to the right of appeal.

8. In the cases before the Court several objections have been raised with respect to jurisdiction being that the notices issued have not been issued from the Assistant Commissioner of the relevant district where the agricultural property is located. By way of example in W.P. No.34758/19, the Petitioner is resident of District Sheikhupura whereas the notice has been issued by Assistant Commissioner, Lahore. In W.P. No.39480/19, the Petitioner is resident of District Narowal whereas the agriculture land is situated in North Wazirastan. In other cases objections have been raised that the Petitioners do not own any agricultural land nor have the Petitioners declared any agricultural income or that the Petitioner has never filed any income tax return. By way of example in W.P. No.40004/19, the Petitioner claims that she is a housewife with no source of income except for foreign remittance from a family member; that she has never filed any income tax return nor declared any agricultural income yet she has been served with a recovery notice. In another set of cases, the Petitioners claim exemption on the basis of notification issued by the Disaster Management Department declaring their area exempt from agricultural income tax for the relevant years 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015 and 2016. Hence on the strength of the notifications they claim that they are not liable to pay agricultural income tax. By way of example, the Petitioner in W.P. No.39556/19 states that he is entitled to exemption from agricultural income tax on the basis of notification dated 23.5.2012, 28.7.2016, 2.6.2017 and 21.1.2019. In another set of petitions, the Petitioners claim that they are not the owners of any agricultural land nor have they declared any agricultural income in their income tax returns yet they have been served with recovery notices. In W.P. No.36974/2019, the Petitioner claims that he has never filed any income tax returns, hence the question of applying Section 3B of the Act is totally without jurisdiction. In other cases, the Petitioners claim that they have already paid the total agricultural income tax yet notices have been issued. By way of example in W.P. No.36709/2019, the Petitioner claims that he has paid the total agricultural income tax for the years 2015, 2016, 2017 and 2018, hence he is not required to pay any amount. In another set of petitions, the Petitioners' claim that they took the benefit of amnesty scheme, 2018, hence they are not liable to pay agricultural income tax. These are all substantive issues which need resolution under the Act before any recovery can be initiated.

9. On the basis of the aforesaid, it is evident that notwithstanding the statement made by the learned Law Officer, that all amounts were correctly taken from the data provided by the Federal Board of Revenue is correct, there are discrepancies in the recovery notices that have been issued. The question is what is the effect of Section 7 of the Act when recovery notices are issued under Section 3B of the Act. In this regard, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in its decision 2019 SCMR 446 (supra) held that for the purposes of Section 3B of the Act, where an assessee has declared agricultural income in its income tax returns, the Respondents can issue recovery notices directly and are not required to levy and assess agricultural income tax in terms of Section 3 of the Act. Essentially the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax on the basis of the declaration given in the income tax returns, as per Section 3B of the Act. In a taxing statute an assessment order is necessary in order to support the demand raised and to ensure that the taxing officer has taxed a person as per the confines of the law. It ensures uniformity and equality in the demand raised in the absence of which doubt is raised and arbitrary exercise of jurisdiction is possible as there is no check on the taxing officer, and a citizen is substantially without protection from unequal and unjust demands. Under the Act Section 3 is the charging section which calls for the levy, assessment and collection of tax. Three important steps on the basis of which agricultural income tax can be recovered. In this regard Section 3B of the Act merely provides that a person is liable to pay agricultural income tax on the basis of agricultural income declared in the income tax return. Hence it imposes a liability to pay tax on the basis of an admission of earning agricultural income. Sections 3 and 3B of the Act are the charging sections of the taxing statute which have to be enforced through the procedure prescribed under the Act. The procedural machinery is provided for under Sections 4, 4A, 4B, 4C and 4D read with the Rules. These sections set out the process on the basis of which the taxing officer will compute and collect agricultural income tax and the recovery notice is the final step that has to be taken once tax has been charged. A recovery notice means that the liability to pay tax has been determined, in this case based on the declaration given under Section 3B of the Act. However it does not mean that the taxing officer cannot assess and levy agricultural income tax on the basis of the revenue record before it. Hence a recovery notice is premised on an assessment order which sets out the details of the tax liability. In the cases of agricultural income tax the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that an assessment order is not required under Section 3B of the Act and that the Respondents can initiate recovery on the basis of the declaration made in the income tax return. However it has not curtailed the right of appeal under Section 7 of the Act nor has it allowed the Respondents to ignore the procedure prescribed under the Act and the Rules especially with reference to computation of tax. In terms of the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the judgment of this Court in W.P. No. 15628/2015 was modified to the extent that an assessment order is not mandatory under Section 3B of the Act, however at the same time the august Supreme Court of Pakistan upheld the findings that the assessment order can be challenged under Section 7 of the Act which gives the right of appeal to the taxpayer and it has also upheld the findings that calculations must be provided of the tax levied. Therefore the Respondents are required to disclose the information taken from the Federal Board of Revenue, the rate applied and the tax sought to be recovered in the recovery notices so that the taxpayer is clear on what amount is due against agricultural income tax.

10. It is further noted that the Respondents must follow the procedure under the Act and the Rules to ensure that the rights of the land owners are protected and that the obligation to pay tax follows due process. There is a complete procedure provided under the Act and the Rules to collect agricultural income tax which requires the Respondents to issue notice to the taxpayer calling for payment and requires, as of right that the taxpayer be given time to file an appeal, review or revision against the order of Revenue Officer. It appears that the Respondents failed to bring these facts into the notice of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan while arguing in the case 2019 SCMR 446 (supra) and are now misinterpreting the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan by ignoring the statutory right of appeal, review or revision available under Section 7 of the Act.

11. The thrust of the Respondents' case before the Court is that they can make direct recovery on the strength of the agricultural income declared under Section 3B of the Act. There is no cavil to the statement because the law itself provides that the Respondents can recover agricultural income tax on the basis of declared agricultural income in the income tax returns for any assessment year filed under the Act in terms of the rates specified in the second schedule. However the taxpayer has a right to appeal against the amount sought to be recovered even if it is based on a declaration in the income tax return and direct recovery inflicted by the Respondents adversely affects the Petitioners' right of appeal under Section 7 of the Act. Furthermore the objections raised before this Court are substantive issues and necessitate a decision by the competent authority before agricultural income tax is recovered. In the cases before the Court objections with regard to limitation; objections with regard to jurisdiction; with regard to amount sought to be recovered; with regard to ownership and with regard to exemptions offered by the Government itself require due deliberation and entitle the Petitioners due process under the Act.

12. Under the circumstances, the recovery notices issued under Section 3B of the Act shall be deemed as assessment orders which are liable to appeal under Section 7 of the Act. The Respondents are obligated to hear the objections and decide the same in accordance with law. For the purposes of the cases pending before this Court and the recovery undertaken by the Respondents for agricultural income tax, the Petitioners should be granted thirty days' time to file their appeals/objections, if at all under Section 7 of the Act after which the cases shall be decided in accordance with law and subsequently if any amount is due the Respondents may recover the same under the Act and the Rules.

(i) The Petitioners' contention that demand for agricultural income tax for the years 2012 and 2013 is barred by time is without any merit given that the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has allowed recovery of agricultural income tax for that period. However, the amount sought to be recovered as agricultural income tax for the period 2012 and 2013 is subject to right of appeal/objections which may be availed by the Petitioners within 30 days' time from the date of release of this judgment.
(ii) It is also held that against the recovery notices issued under Section 3B of the Act, remedy of appeal is available to the Petitioners under Section 7 of the Act. In this regard, the recovery notices can be challenged within 30 days' time from the date of release of this judgment under Section 7 of the Act before the competent authority, who is directed to decide the appeals filed by the Petitioners within 30 days' time after which the Respondents can recover agricultural income tax from the Petitioners as per law.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner has challenged order dated 14.11.2017 issued by Respondent No.3, Commissioner Inland Revenue Appeals-IV, Lahore on an application for rectification of order dated 5.6.2017 under Section 57 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 ("Act").

2. At the very outset, learned counsel for the Respondents raised a preliminary objection on the maintainability of the instant petition on account of the fact that remedy of appeal is provided to the Petitioner in terms of Section 45-B of the Act. However it is noted that the order dated 14.11.2017 impugned before this Court under Section 57 of the Act is not an appealable order under Section 45-B of the Act. Hence the objection is repelled.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that in terms of the appellate order under Section 45-B of the Act dated 5.6.2017, the Commissioner Inland Revenue Appeals-IV, Lahore held that action initiated by the department against the taxpayer was barred by limitation in terms of Section 11(5) of the Act. In terms of the order, she found that even though the Commissioner, has the power to extend the period by recording reasons in writing but no order of extension was available on the record nor produced before her. Further that the parawise comments submitted by the department also did not provide for any extension order. Consequently she concluded that there was no such order available for extension, hence show-cause notice was issued beyond the period of limitation. Consequently the appeal of the taxpayer was disposed of vide order dated 5.6.2017. Against this order, the department filed a rectification application under Section 57 of the Act and the Commissioner Inland Revenue Appeals-IV, Lahore changed her findings with respect to the notice under Section 11(5) of the Act being barred by time. In terms of the rectification order dated 14.11.2017, the Commissioner concluded that in fact extension was granted by the Commissioner and that the order was well within the prescribed time. Consequently calling this a mistake apparent on the record, she restored the appeal to its original number and fixed it for hearing. Learned counsel argued that the power of rectification under the Act does not authorize the Commissioner to change her legal opinion as issued in the original order dated

5.6.2017. Learned counsel further submitted that the power of rectification is limited to clerical errors or arithmetical errors in any assessment, adjudication order or decision but does not mean that the entire decision is changed and the appeal which was originally disposed of is restored for hearing. Learned counsel has placed reliance on Commissioner of Income Tax, Karachi v. Messrs Shadman Cotton Mills Ltd., Karachi through Director (2008 PTD 253).

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondents Nos.1 and 2. Learned counsel for the Respondents argued that the rectification application was given to correct the error made with respect to the findings on the point of limitation. Learned counsel argued that the order was passed in accordance with law after following due process and is well within the mandate of Section 57 of the Act.

5. The basic issue before the Court is with reference to scope of Section 57 of the Act which is reproduced hereunder:
Correction of clerical errors etc. Clerical or arithmetical errors in any assessment, adjudication, order or decision may, at any time, be corrected by the officer of Inland Revenue who made the assessment or adjudication or passed such order or decision or by his successor in office;
Provided that before such correction, a notice shall be given to the registered person or to a person effected by such correction.

6. In terms of this Section, an application for correction of clerical or arithmetical error can be made after issuing notice to the concerned party. It is settled law that clerical errors and arithmetical errors are essentially typing errors which are apparent from the face of the record but they do not mean errors of finding on facts or on the law. A rectification application allows the competent officer to correct a mistake which is apparent on the face of the record but does not allow re-assessment of the case or the compilation of a different opinion from one that was taken earlier. For this purpose remedy of appeal is available and in this case the department if aggrieved by the finding of the Commissioner could have availed its remedy of appeal. Instead they chose to move a rectification application on the basis of which Respondent No.3 changed her opinion from saying that the show-cause notice was barred by time to finding that it was not barred by time. This change of opinion is not a clerical or arithmetical error and does not fall within the scope of Section 57 of the Act. If this were to be allowed then all kinds of opinions could be changed under the garb of being a mistake or error on the face of the record. Hence it is against the spirit of Section 57 of the Act.

7. Respondent No.3 could not have changed her opinion under the rectification application and consequently could not have restored the appeal that she had originally disposed of. In fact she has reviewed her own order, changed her opinion and decided to re-hear the case that she originally thought was barred by limitation. In terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2008 PTD 253 (supra), the liability of an assessee cannot be changed and the matters which were not part of the original adjudicatory process cannot be introduced in the rectification process. The concept of rectification is simply to correct error committed which is floating on the record being arithmetic or clerical but cannot be one which brings the material change to the order and change its complexion.

8. Under the circumstances, the instant petition is allowed, impugned order dated 14.11.2017 issued by Respondent No.3 is set aside, thereby declaring the action of the stated Respondent for being without jurisdiction.

KMZ/T-12/L Petition allowed.

Date of hearing: 13th June, 2019.

JUDGMENT
AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned notice dated 03.04.2019 issued by Respondent No.3, Deputy Commissioner Inland Revenue, Lahore.

2. The basic contention of the Petitioner is that in terms of the Voluntary Declaration of Domestic Assets Act, 2018 ("Act"), the Petitioner is entitled to avail the benefit of the said Act under Section 5 read with Section 8 of the Act as amended through Ordinance XI of 2018 notified in the gazette dated 30.06.2018. Learned counsel argued that in terms of Section 8(2) of the Act an explanation was added which clarified that where proceedings under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") in respect of undisclosed income or assets have attained finality, declaration cannot be filed under Section 5 of the Act. However, if they have not attained finality then a declaration can be filed. Learned counsel argued that finality with respect to the proceedings under the Ordinance is attained once the complete hierarchy is accessed meaning that the right of appeal is availed against the assessment order. In this regard, learned counsel has placed reliance on "Central Board of Revenue and others v. Chanda Motors" (1992 PTD 1681). Learned counsel argued that the order passed in original proceedings is not final unless it crosses all rights of appeal available under the law and it becomes a final order once the right of appeal has been fully availed by the taxpayer. Learned counsel states that in this case even though the proceedings were pending through an assessment order yet the Petitioner sought to avail the benefit of Section 5 of the Act and filed his declaration under the stated section. However, this was rejected on the ground that the recovery notices have been issued against the Petitioner after passing of assessment order on the basis of which the Petitioner is liable to pay the amount.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned counsel for the Respondents argued that Tax Amnesty Scheme 2018 is not applicable on the proceedings which have been finalized under Section 122 of the Ordinance. Learned counsel further argued that recovery notices have been issued to the Petitioner and he is liable to pay the assessed amount and cannot offer a voluntarily declaration under Section 5 of the Act.

4. The basic issue before the Court is with reference to the interpretation of Section 8(2) of the Act. The purpose of the Act is to give effect to the proposal of the Federal Government to offer Voluntarily Declaration of Domestic Assets in order to encourage the payment of tax as well as to increase the number of taxpayers. In terms of Section 5 of the Act any person can make a declaration of undisclosed income and domestic assets before 10.04.2018 subject to the provisions of the Act. The meaning of the declaration is provided in Section 5 of the Act. Once the declaration is made, the domestic assets so declared are chargeable to tax rate specified under Section 7 of the Act. In terms of Section 8 of the Act the due tax must be paid when the declaration is made. Section 8 was amended through Ordinance XI of 2018 notified in the gazette dated 30.06.2018 to include an explanation such that now Section 8 reads as follows:--

8. Payment of tax. (1) The due date for payment of the tax chargeable under section 7 shall be the date on which declaration is made under section 6.

(2) No tax shall be payable by the declarant under any law for the time being in force including the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (XLIX of 2001) declared where tax has been paid under subsection (1) in respect of the undisclosed income and domestic assets under section 5.

"Explanation.---For the removal of doubt it is clarified that where proceedings under Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (XLIX), in respect of undisclosed income or assets have attained finality, no declaration shall be filed under section 5 in respect of such income or asset and the tax payable under the said Ordinance shall continue to be payable."

In terms of the explanation it has been clarified that a declaration can be made even in respect of undisclosed income or assets which are pending in proceedings under the Ordinance until they have attained finality. The basic purpose of the explanation is to clarify that even where proceedings are pending under the Ordinance, related to assessment or otherwise the taxpayer can make a declaration of undisclosed income or assets uptil the point when those proceedings attained finality. There is no cavil to the contention that proceedings under the Ordinance attain finality when the right of appeal has been exhausted by the taxpayer and an order has been passed by the appellate forum. The taxpayer case does not attain finality until it has exhausted all remedies of appeal available under the Ordinance. For the purposes of challenging the assessment order, the case relied upon by the Petitioner clarified that an order of assessment is not a final order for the reasons that it can be challenged in an appeal or revision as the case may be as it only becomes final when it goes through all the forums and remedies available under the law. Hence a taxpayer is entitled to pursue the remedy of appeal or second appeal as such remedies reopen the assessment, meaning that it is not final unless it crosses all forums under that law in which it can be challenged and the order of the last forum is final. Therefore, under the circumstances, the contention of the petitioner is in accordance with law and the rejection made by the respondents is without any legal basis. In this case assessment order was passed by respondent No.3, Deputy Commissioner Inland Revenue, which has not attained finality as it is subject to an appeal irrespective of the recovery proceedings. Since the order has not attained finality, the petitioner can file a declaration under section 5 of the Act.

5. Under the circumstances, this petition is accepted and the impugned notice dated 03.04.2019 passed by Respondent No.3 is set aside.

----Ss. 4, 6 & 7---Enforcement of foreign arbitral award---Commercial contracts---Gas Supply Agreement ("GSA")---Arbitration Clause of the GSA---Separate Payment Agreement between the parties to the GSA---Applicability of Arbitration clause of the GSA on the Payment Agreement---Scope---Question before the High Court was whether an Arbitrator appointed under a Gas Supply Agreement between the parties, could also adjudicate/arbitrate and subsequently issue an award on matters arising on a separate Payment Agreement between the said parties---Held, that in the present case, perusal of agreements revealed that the settlement recorded in the Payment Agreement was part and parcel of the obligations under the Supply Agreement and obligation to pay arose out of the Supply Agreement and not the Payment Agreement was which was entered into essentially to facilitate the parties---Fact that Payment Agreement did not contain an arbitration clause or the fact that the same did not make specific reference to arbitration clause in the Supply Agreement; did not mean that Arbitrator under the Supply Agreement lacked jurisdiction on issues under the Payment Agreement as the said Payment Agreement was not an independent contract outside the Supply Agreement and the same was an agreement to make payment pursuant to the obligations under the Supply Agreement on account of one party's default---High Court held that dispute resolution mechanism under the Supply Agreement was applicable to the Payment Agreement and that Arbitrator under the Supply Agreement was well within jurisdiction to make determination in terms thereof.

(c) Contract---

----Contractual terms--- Commercial contracts--- Gas Supply Agreement---"Take or pay", clause---Meaning, rationale and scope---Take or pay clause was a common term in gas supply agreements which gave buyer an option to take supply of gas or else pay for it but defer taking of gas supply---Rationale behind said clause was to allocate risk over long term contracts as it acted as a risk-sharing mechanism between supplier and buyer where buyer sought stability in supply and some flexibility in prices and seller sought assurance for guaranteed income and the same also provided comfort to investors of natural gas projects that their investments were secure over duration of a contract, as risks were divided between parties and not borne by any one party---Essential feature of "take or pay" clause was the right to take "make up gas" and buyer had the right to take such gas in the succeeding year or any defined period and not at time when payment was due---Take or pay clause was activated when the buyer did not take delivery of the agreed quantity of gas but had paid for it.

(d) Contract Act (IX of 1872)---

----S. 74---Compensation for breach of contract where penalty stipulated for---Commercial contracts---Gas Supply Agreement---"Take or pay" clause, nature of---Question before High Court was whether a "take or pay" clause in a gas supply agreement was enforceable as a penalty clause in terms of S.74 of the Contract Act, 1872---Held, that due to a "take or pay clause"; a breach could not be triggered on account of failure to take supply under a Gas Supply Agreement as a buyer under such an agreement had right to exercise option to take gas or invoke the "take or pay" clause---Exercise of either option was valid under a Gas Supply Agreement containing a "take or pay" clause, therefore the same would not constitute a breach thereof---"Take or pay" payment under such an agreement was not due because of a breach or default rather it flowed from a contracting party's valid choice to invoke the right to invoke the take or pay clause---High Court held that "take or pay" clause being a common provision in commercial contracts, especially gas purchase agreements, was valid and enforceable and could not be considered as a penalty provision and did not offend S. 74 of the Contract Act, 1872.

(e) Recognition and Enforcement (Arbitration Agreements and Foreign Arbitral Awards) Act (XVII of 2011)---

----Ss. 7, 6 , 3 & Article V of Sched.---United Nations Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards, New York on I0th June, 1958 (the "New York Convention"), Art. V(2)(b)---Refusal to recognition or enforcement of an award contrary to the public policy of a Contracting State under the New York Convention---Meaning and scope of term "public policy"---Interpretation of Article V(2)(b) of the New York Convention---Non-interference or pro-enforcement policy of the New York Convention---Construction of the "public policy exception" to enforcement of foreign arbitral awards under the Recognition and Enforcement (Arbitration Agreements and Foreign Arbitral Awards) Act, 2011---Scope---Non-interference or pro-enforcement policy was in itself a policy of Contracting States which was not easily persuaded by public policy exception argument---Defining public policy under Art. (V)(2)(b) of the New York Convention was prerogative of each of Contracting State and was based on the public policy of a State where enforcement was sought---Application of public policy exception was restrictive and limited to exceptional circumstances that affected most fundamental values of a State---Public policy exception had been kept fluid and adaptive and could be invoked in cases of patent illegality and allowed a Contracting State to safeguard its core values and fundamental notions of morality and justice which may change over time---Public policy exception acted as a safeguard of fundamental notions of morality and justice, such that enforcement of a foreign award may offend these fundamentals---Recognition and Enforcement (Arbitration Agreements and Foreign Arbitral Awards) Act, 2011 encouraged parties to an alternate dispute resolution mechanism for quicker and less costly resolution of disputes and made foreign arbitral award binding on the parties and prima facie as of right, called for recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards---Public policy exception should not therefore become a backdoor to review the merits of a foreign arbitral award or to create grounds which were not available under Art.V of the New York Convention as same would negate obligation to recognize and enforce foreign arbitral awards and such interference would essentially nullify the need for arbitration clauses as parties would be encouraged to challenge foreign awards on the public policy ground knowing that there is room to have the Court set aside the award.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK J.---The Appellant has impugned order dated 4.4.2018 passed by the learned Single Judge in COS No.16/2017 as the suit filed for the recognition and enforcement of a foreign arbitral award was allowed by the Court on 4.4.2018 in favour of the Respondent.

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Respondent filed COS No.16/2017 before the learned Single Judge of this Court under Section 6 of the Recognition and Enforcement (Arbitration Agreements and Foreign Arbitral Awards) Act, 2011 ('Act') for the recognition of award dated 27.2.2017 and 13.6.2017('the Award'). The Appellant was given several opportunities to file objections against the Award, failing which the right to file objections was closed on 21.3.2018. On 4.4.2018, an application under Section 6 of the Act, filed by the Respondent was allowed, such that the Award was recognized and enforced as the Court declared the Award binding on the parties. The matter is now pending in proceedings for execution of the Award.

Arguments on the preliminary objection of jurisdiction of the High Court

3. The Appellant has impugned the order of 4.4.2018 as it was an ex-parte order. The Appellant contends that it has been denied a fair hearing in the case. Mr. Sal man Akram Raja, on behalf of the Appellant argued that the Appellant's counsel was on an approved general adjournment from 12.3.2018 to 7.4.2018 during which dates the case should not have been fixed for hearing, yet the case was fixed for 21.3.2018 on which date the learned Single Judge closed the Appellant's right to file written objections against the Award. The case was then fixed for 4.4.2018, again during the general adjournment period when the impugned order was passed. Consequently the Appellant is aggrieved as the case proceeded without giving the Appellant a fair hearing or an opportunity to raise objections against the Award. Learned counsel further argued that the Appellant has a right to file objections under the Act and also has a right to invoke remedy under the Arbitration Act, 1940 ('1940 Act'). As per the Counsel arguments, this right has been recognized in the case cited at Taisei Corporation v. A.M. Construction Company (Pvt.) Ltd. (PLD 2012 Lahore 455) ('Taisei Case'), however the learned Single Judge without considering the aforementioned case held that the Court has no discretion in its power to recognize and enforce foreign arbitral awards under the Act except if a ground is made out under Article V of the Schedule of the Act, which basically means Act V of the New York Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards dated 10.6.1958 ('the Convention'). Learned counsel further argued that by doing so, the learned Single Judge proceeded with the matter without considering the issue of concurrent jurisdiction as decided in the Taisei Case in which it is held that 1940 Act is also applicable to foreign arbitral awards as there are no provisions equivalent to Sections 14, 30 and 33 of the 1940 Act under the Act. Mr. Salman Akram Raja argued that the Court must harmoniously construe both the laws to ensure that the Appellants are not denied any right that is available under the law. It was also argued that the findings of the learned Single Judge that the Award is enforceable under the Act and objections should be filed in accordance with Article V of the Schedule to the Act is contrary to the earlier view taken in the Taisei Case. Under the circumstances, it is the case of the Appellant that the learned Single Judge could not have deviated from the earlier view and should have at least discussed the Taisei Case and explained why he disagreed with the findings, if at all, before proceeding to enforce the Award under Section 6 of the Act.

4. Learned counsel for the Respondent SNGPL, Khawaja Ahmad Hosain argued that the Award is a foreign arbitral award and this fact has been conceded to and accepted by the learned counsel for the Appellant during his arguments. He argued that in terms thereof the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction to recognize and enforce foreign arbitral awards under the Act. He also argued that under the Act, foreign arbitral award is defined in Section 2(e) to be an award made in a Contracting State, in this case being London which was the seat of the arbitration. Hence the relevant Court for enforcement is the High Court and as per Section 6 of the Act, the enforcement of foreign arbitral award is such that it is to be recognized and enforced in the same manner as a judgment or order of the Court. He argued that in terms of Section 7 of the Act, the recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral award must be in accordance with Article V of the Convention and further that in terms of Section 8 of the Act, in the event of any inconsistency between the Act, the law or any Judgment of the Court, Article V of the Convention shall prevail to the extent of the inconsistency. Therefore, as per the arguments of the counsel for the Respondent, the Act is the relevant law and that the 1940 Act is totally irrelevant for the purposes of enforcement of the Award. Learned counsel also argued that reliance on the Taisei Case is totally misconceived because in that case the Court found that the award in question was a domestic award while relying on the "Hitachi Limited and another v. Rupali Polyester and others" (1998 SCMR 1618) whereas in this case it is a foreign arbitral award. Khawaja Ahmad Hosain argued that the learned Single Judge in the Taisei Case failed to take into consideration the fact that the law laid down in 1998 SCM R 1618 (supra) was based on the interpretation of Section 9 of the Arbitration (Protocol and Convention) Act, 1937 ('1937 Act'), which specifically provided that where an agreement is governed by the laws of Pakistan then for the purposes of the 1937 Act such an award is not a foreign award. He explained that the 1937 Act specifically provided that if the governing law of a contract was Pakistan then an award under such a contract would not be a foreign award and in such cases the award would be enforced as a domestic award. However, as per his contentions the 1937 Act is not relevant, the relevant law is the Act and there is no such provision under this Act. Further that the definition of foreign arbitral award under the Act has specifically provided that a foreign award is one made in a Contracting State meaning thereby that the governing law of contract is not relevant. Hence, the only law that is applicable for the purposes of recognition and enforcement of the Award is the Act. Learned counsel also addressed arguments related to requiring a harmonious construction whereby he stated that no such construction is required because no provision of the Act has been challenged by the Appellant nor is there any ambiguity in the law. As per his contentions, the 1940 Act caters to domestic awards and there is no right available to Appellant to raise objections under the 1940 Act. He further argued that simultaneous remedies where one party seeks enforcement under the Act and the other party files objections under the 1940 Act before different forums totally defeats the mandate of the Act.

5. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the record. The preliminary objection raised is with respect to the jurisdiction of the High Court to recognize and enforce foreign awards. The basic question before the Court is whether the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction to recognize and enforce a foreign arbitral award under the Act and whether for the purposes of raising objections against the enforcement of a foreign arbitral award, the 1940 Act is relevant giving the civil courts concurrent jurisdiction.

Opinion on the Preliminary Objection

6. The Act provides for the recognition and enforcement of arbitration agreements and foreign arbitral awards. It is based on the United Nation Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Award signed in New York on 10.6.1958 to which Pakistan is a signatory. Section 2(e) of the Act defines foreign arbitral awards to mean an award made in a Contracting State and such other State as may be notified by the Federal Government in the official gazette. In this case, both parties accept that the Award is a foreign arbitral award and the dispute is with respect to jurisdiction of the High Court and the manner in which the foreign arbitral award has to be recognized and enforced.

7. In terms of Section 3 read with Section 2(d) of the Act, the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate and settle matters related to or arising from this Act for the purposes of enforcement of a foreign arbitral award. Section 6 of the Act requires an application to be filed before the High Court and the Court shall recognize and enforce it as a judgment or order of a Court in Pakistan. Section 6 of the Act is subject to Section 7, wherein enforcement cannot be refused except on the grounds given in Article V of the Convention. Therefore the Court can refuse recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral award under Section 7 of the Act in terms of the grounds available in Article V of the Convention, which is appended to the Schedule of the Act. So far as the Act is concerned, it clearly provides that the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction for recognizing and enforcing a foreign arbitral award and also provides for the grounds on which any objection can be made. The dispute on jurisdiction has arisen due to the judgment given in the Taisei Case which gives concurrent jurisdiction to the civil court.

8. In the Taisei Case the basic facts were that a dispute arose under the contract and the matter was referred to arbitration. The governing law of the contract was Pakistan. It was an ICC arbitration and the seat of the arbitration was Singapore. The award was delivered on 9.9.2011 in favour of Taisei. The respondents moved an application under Section 14 of the 1940 Act before the Civil Judge to challenge the award and also filed objections under the 1940 Act. Taisei moved an application under Order VII, Rule 10 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 on the ground that the civil court lacked jurisdiction as the award is a foreign award for which the Act has exclusive jurisdiction. The civil court rejected the application filed by Taisei and the order was challenged before the High Court in a civil revision. The question addressed by the High Court was with reference to the provisions of the 1940 Act, which as per the judgment have not been specifically repealed by the Act, hence are available in cases where the arbitration agreement is governed by Pakistan law. The Court after hearing the petition dismissed the case of Taisei and proceeded on the objections under Section 14 of the 1940 Act for the following reasons:

(i) There are no specific provisions under the 2011 Act equivalent to the remedies available under Sections 14, 30 and 33 of the 1940 Act for the respondents. Therefore the Legislature having not specifically repealed the provisions of the 1940 Act, under the 2011 Act means that the remedies under Sections 14, 30 and 33 are available to the respondents.
(ii) Any objection under Sections 14, 30 and 33 of the 1940 Act must be made before the civil court as the court constituted under Section 2(d) of the 2011 Act has been created with the limited power of giving recognition and enforcement to a foreign arbitral award. The general power conferred on the civil court under Sections 14, 30 and 33 remains available to a party affected by an award before the civil court.
(iii) The question as to whether an arbitration agreement where the governing law of the contract is Pakistan law has any implication on the determination of the question where the award is domestic or foreign, has been decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case cited at 1998 SCMR 1618 (supra).
(iv) In the light of the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, it was held by the Court that since in this case the governing law of the contract was Pakistan law the award in question was domestic award and could be dealt with in accordance with Pakistan law, meaning could be dealt with under the 1940 Act.
(v) Finally the moving of an application under Section 6 of the 2011 Act does not divest the civil court of its jurisdiction to entertain and adjudicate upon the controversies moved through an application under the 1940 Act which otherwise are not entertainable by the court constituted under Section 2(d) of the 2011 Act.

9. Learned counsel for the Appellant has raised the same issues before us in this case. The relevant facts of this case are that on 18.10.2016 parties entered into a Gas Supply Agreement ('GSA') for supply of gas to the Appellant for its power generation complex. Differences arose between the parties and the matter was referred to the London Court of International Arbitration ('LCIA') for arbitration in terms of Clause 18.3 of the Agreement. After hearing both the parties the Award was passed on 27.2.2017 and subsequent Award was made with respect to costs on 13.6.2017. The Appellant moved an application under Section 14(2) of the 1940 Act raising objections against the Award before the civil court whilst the Respondent filed an application under Section 6 of the Act for the recognition and enforcement of the Award before the learned Single Judge. In the meantime, proceedings before the civil court under Section 14 of the 1940 Act were stayed on 12.12.2017 by the learned Single Judge of this Court. The impugned order proceeds to recognize and enforce the Award without adverting to the issue of the pending application or objections before the civil court under the 1940 Act after finding that no objections were filed before the High Court and that the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction to enforce foreign arbitral awards.

10. The question before us is whether there is concurrent jurisdiction between the High Court and civil court to enforce a foreign arbitral award under the Act and the 1940 Act. The relevant provision of the Act is Section 3 which provides for the jurisdiction of the Court which has been defined in Section 2(d) of the Act, meaning the High Court or any other Superior Court as notified by the Federal Government in the official gazette. In this case there is no dispute with reference to the fact that the High Court is the relevant Court as per Section 2(d) of the Act. Section 3 of the Act categorically provides that the High Court shall exercise exclusive jurisdiction under the Act, leaving little room for any other interpretation. The Act was enacted to give effect to the Convention which requires international awards to be recognized and enforced expeditiously, so as to prevent undue delay in settling disputes of contracting parties. In terms of Article I of the Convention, a Contracting State is obligated to recognize awards as binding and enforce them as per the procedure laid down in Article III in order to give effect to the terms of the Convention. The Act sets out the requirements to have a foreign arbitral award recognized and enforced. The purpose of the Act is to facilitate recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral award in order to curtail litigation related to foreign arbitral awards which in turn delays the enforcement of awards and negates the very purpose for using arbitration as a dispute resolution mechanism. The Convention is based on a pro-enforcement policy which sets out to facilitate and safeguard the enforcement of foreign arbitral awards which is the mandate of the Act. The emphasis on pro-enforcement is highlighted by the inclusion of Section 8 of the Act which provides that in the event of any inconsistency between the Act and the Convention, the Convention shall prevail to the extent of the inconsistency. Section 8 of the Act endorses the mandate of the Convention and the commitment of Contracting States to encourage enforcement of foreign arbitral awards. Hence Section 3 grants exclusive jurisdiction to the High Court to fulfill the objective of the Act and the Convention. Section 3 of the Act has also been interpreted by a learned Division Bench of the Hon'ble Sindh High Court in Taisei Corporation v. A.M. Corporation Company (Pvt.) Ltd. (2018 MLD 2058) wherein it has declared that the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate and settle matters related to and arising from the Act. The Court also held that these words are clear and broad enough to encompass the question whether an award is foreign arbitral award or not as well as with reference to objections under Article V of the Convention. Therefore the Court found that Section 3 of the Act leaves little room to argue that recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral award does not fall exclusively within the jurisdiction of the High Court and that there is a concurrent jurisdiction between the High Court and the civil court. Finally the Court noted that this is not a new concept because under the 1937 Act, the High Courts in Pakistan had exclusive jurisdiction to enforce and recognize foreign arbitral awards. This issue was directly addressed in G.M. Pfaff A.G. v. Sartaj Engineering Co. Ltd., Lahore and 3 others (PLD 1970 Lahore 184), Nan Fung Textiles Ltd. v. Sadiq Traders Ltd. (PLD 1982 Karachi 619) and Marines Limited v. Aegus Shipping Co. Ltd and 4 others (1987 CLC 1299) with reference to the 1937 Act which has been repealed by the Act giving the High Court exclusive jurisdiction under the Act.

11. We are of the opinion that the Act leaves little room for interpretation on the issue of exclusivity of jurisdiction of the High Court. Section 3 of the Act is clear and applicable to foreign arbitral awards, which has been clearly interpreted by division bench of the Sindh High Court in PLD 1982 Karachi 619 (supra). We also note that the Taisei Case relied upon 1998 SCMR 1618 (supra) which case interpreted the provisions of the 1937 Act which was repealed under Section 10 of the Act in 2011 where after for the purposes of the enforcement of a foreign award the Act is relevant, even if the arbitration takes place in a foreign country and the governing law of the agreement is of Pakistan, in such cases the 1937 Act will not apply. With the repeal of the 1937 Act, a foreign arbitral award under the Act is one made in a contracting state regardless of the governing law of the contract. The Act being the relevant law in terms thereof the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction. That being so, we find that it is totally impractical to allow a party to seek enforcement of a foreign arbitral award before the High Court while at the same time allow the parties remedy before the civil court to enforce the same award. The outcome will not only cause conflicting judgments but also create uncertainty so far as the award is concerned. For instance the High Court may decide to enforce the award whereas the civil court may decide to set it aside under the 1940 Act. It could also mean that one party invokes the jurisdiction of the civil court to file objections against the foreign award, whilst the other party invokes the jurisdiction of the High Court for recognition and enforcement of an award, as in this case. This results in absurdity running contrary to the intent and purpose of the Act. Learned counsel for the Appellant, during the course of arguments through its partial written arguments on the issue of jurisdiction, has categorically stated that the Appellant's position is that the Award is a foreign arbitral award within the definition set out in Section 2(e) of the Act and for the purposes of the present case the Appellant accepts that the High Court has jurisdiction over the foreign arbitral award for recognition and enforcement of the award. Although this is a departure from the original arguments made before us, nonetheless the Appellant has conceded to the fact that the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction to recognize and enforce foreign arbitral awards. Therefore in view of the aforesaid, we find that the High Court has exclusive jurisdiction to recognize and enforce foreign arbitral awards which means it has exclusive jurisdiction to recognize and enforce the Award. Hence the preliminary objection is without merit.

Objections against the Award under Article V of the Schedule of the Act

12. The basic dispute before us is with respect to the recognition and enforcement of a foreign arbitral award and the procedure of the Court to hear objections filed by the Appellant under Article V of the Convention as contained in the Schedule of the Act, since they were not considered by the learned Single Judge. In terms of the impugned order, no objections were filed before the Court, hence it proceeded to recognize and enforce the Foreign Arbitral Award under Section 7 the Act. Although the manner in which the case proceeded is under dispute by the Appellant, both the Counsel ultimately agreed and requested that the case be decided on its merits. Hence we proceed to examine the objections raised by the Appellant under Section 7 of the Act read with Article V of the Schedule of the Act. Section 7 of the Act reads as follows:

Unenforceable foreign arbitral awards. The recognition and enforcement of a foreign arbitral award shall not be refused except in accordance with Article V of the Convention.

Article V of the Schedule of the Act which basically means Act V of the New York Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards dated 10.6.1958 reads as follows:

1. Recognition and enforcement of the award may be refused, at the request of the party against whom it is invoked, only if that party furnishes to the competent authority where the recognition and enforcement is sought, proof that:

(a) The parties to the agreement referred to in Article II were, under the law applicable to them, under some incapacity, or the said agreement is not valid under the law to which the parties have subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law of the country where the award was made; or

(b) The party against whom the award is invoked was not given proper notice of the appointment of the arbitrator or of the arbitration proceedings or was otherwise unable to present his case: or

(c) The award deals with a difference not contemplated by or not falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration, or it contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration, provided that, if the decisions on matters submitted to arbitration, can be separated from those not so submitted, that part of the award which contains decisions on matters submitted to arbitration may be recognized and enforced; or

(d) The composition of the arbitral authority or the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties, or, failing such agreement, was not in accordance with the law of the country where the arbitration took place; or

(e) The award has not yet become binding on the parties, or has been set aside or suspended by a competent authority if the country in which, or under the law of which, that award was made.

2. Recognition and enforcement of an arbitral award may also be refused if the competent authority in the country where recognition and enforcement is sought finds that:

(a) The subject matter of the difference is not capable of settlement by arbitration under the law of that country; or

(b) The recognition or enforcement of the award would be contrary to the public policy of that country.

In terms of Section 7 of the Act, the grounds for refusing to recognize an award are given in Article V of the Act. The Appellant relies on Article V Clauses 1(c) and 2(b) as its grounds for objections to the recognition and enforcement of the Award.

The first objection against the first claim: Article V (1)(c) of the Schedule to the Act

13. The Award deals with two claims; the first claim requires payment of Rs.104,133,296/- due under the Payment Agreement dated 11.1.2010. With respect to the first claim, the case of the Appellant is that the Sole Arbitrator had no jurisdiction over this claim as there was no arbitration clause under the Payment Agreement, hence the Award deals with matters beyond the jurisdiction of the Sole Arbitrator. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the parties entered into the GSA on 18.10.2006 with a dispute resolution mechanism contained in Clause 18. It was argued that the dispute resolution mechanism contained in the GSA was not applicable to or relevant for the purposes of the Payment Agreement which is a separate agreement from the GSA, with no dispute resolution clause and even if the dispute resolution mechanism of the GSA is to be made relevant, the prerequisites under the dispute resolution clause were not satisfied. He further argued that the dispute under the Payment Agreement was a fresh dispute which was not related to the findings of the Expert, Mr. Khalid Ibrahim under the GSA. Hence the first claim did not arise under or in relation to the GSA. The learned counsel argued that the Sole Arbitrator did not have jurisdiction to entertain any claim with respect to the Payment Agreement. He explained that the dispute between the parties was with respect to non-payment of Rs.104,133,296/- under the Payment Agreement which does not contain an arbitration agreement nor makes any express or specific reference to the arbitration clause in the GSA. He argued that pursuant to the laws of Pakistan, there must be a specific arbitration clause in order for the matter to be referred to the arbitration. Reliance is placed on Messrs MacDonald Layton & Company Limited v. Messrs Association Electrical Enterprises Limited and another (PLD 1982 Karachi 786), Syed Arshad Ali v. Sarwat Ali Abbasi (1988 CLC 1350) and Dallah Real Estate and Tourism Holding Company v. The Ministry of Religious Affairs, Government of Pakistan [2010] UKSC 57. Therefore the basic argument of the Appellant is that there is no arbitration clause under the Payment Agreement and there is no agreement between the parties that the dispute resolution clause contained in the GSA is relevant to the Payment Agreement. Consequently the Sole Arbitrator did not have jurisdiction in this matter.

14. On behalf of the Respondents, it was argued that there was a dispute between the parties with respect to payment under Clause 3.6 of the GSA. This is the take or pay clause on the basis of which, for a given period, the Appellant is to make payment and either take the gas supplied by the Respondent or else defer the taking of the gas to a subsequent date. Consequently the Appellant is entitled to take make up gas in terms of Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA if it does not take gas in any given month. The dispute pertaining to amounts owed under Clause 3.6 of the GSA were decided in favour of the Respondent SNGPL by the Expert and payments had to be made within fifteen days. However, the Appellant was unable to make the required payments within the stipulated time, hence it sought extension of time which was ultimately resolved by executing the Payment Agreement. Learned counsel argued that the settlement is recorded in the Payment Agreement and in terms of Clause 2.2(b) of the Payment Agreement payment was to be made in three equal installments by 11.5.2010, thereby extending the fifteen day period considerably. Furthermore Khawaja Ahmad Hosain argued that the Payment Agreement in Clause 4 provides that the provisions of the GSA shall prevail and are applicable to the Payment Agreement. Hence he argued that the arbitration clause of the GSA was applicable and the Sole Arbitrator has jurisdiction in the matter. He further argued that under the GSA, the dispute was referred to the Expert under Clause 18.2 for a determination which was a binding determination as per Clause 18.2(h) of the GSA . Since the Expert's decision was binding, arbitration was no longer available to the parties to resolve that dispute and the Appellant was to make payment as per the determination of the Expert. Learned counsel stated that once the parties had submitted to a binding decision of the Expert, they could not resubmit the matter before another expert questioning the first expert's determination. He also relied upon a decision taken in another case (appended in C.M. No.5/2018) where the parties were the same in some other arbitration as before this Court, in which the Appellant contended that the expert's determination under the GSA is not a pre-condition to any arbitration. Having argued this as the legal position, Khawaja Ahmad Hosain argued that the Appellant is now estopped from arguing a different legal position to suit its convenience.

15. In order to appreciate the issues raised by the parties with reference to the first claim, it is necessary to set out the facts on the basis of which the first claim arises:
(a) The parties executed a GSA on 18.10.2006 under which the Respondent is required to supply natural gas to the Appellant for use as fuel at the Appellant's power generation facility. As per the GSA the Respondent is obligated to supply 38 MMSCF of gas per day during the Firm Delivery Period. The Appellant can take the delivery of the gas or can invoke the take or pay clause and defer delivery of the gas.
(b) Differences arose between the parties with respect to the Commissioning Period start date ('CPSD') the Commercial Operating Date ('COD') and the Appellant's obligation to take or pay under clause 3.6 of the GSA during the CPSD and COD.
(c) Vide letter dated 1.7.2009, the parties agreed to appoint Mr. Khal id S. Ibrahim as the Expert under clause 18.2(g) of the GSA to resolve the dispute.
(d) The Expert heard the matter and issued his Determination on 19.12.2009 holding that some amounts are due from the Appellant to the Respondents in terms of the take or pay clause calculated on the basis of the declared CPSD and COD. The Appellant was directed to make payment in fifteen days.
(e) On 11.1.2010 the parties executed the Payment Agreement on the basis of which the Appellant was to make payment in three installments. The dispute pertaining to payment of Rs.104,133,296/- arises under the Payment Agreement specifically and is not related to the Expert's Determination as the parties agreed under the Payment Agreement that late payment surcharge shall be paid until full payment is made under the Agreement.
Hence the first claim relates to the demand for late payment surcharge under the Payment Agreement. The controversy revolves around the jurisdiction of the Sole Arbitrator with respect to amounts stated to be due under the Payment Agreement. In terms of the dispute referred to the Expert, Mr. Khalid Ibrahim, the CPSD was an issue, hence the Expert was required to decide on what date CPSD occurred or when will it occur. The Expert concluded that CPSD occurred on 30.9.2008. The Expert was also required to decide on what date does Orient (the Buyer) have an obligation under Clause 3.6(b) of the GSA to ensure that the take or pay quantity is 15% of the Daily Contract Quantity. The Expert concluded that there is no obligation on SNGPL to supply gas during the As Available Period and no obligation on Orient to take or pay 15% during the As Available Period as there is no guaranteed delivery during the As Available period. The take or pay clause was applied on the months of November 2008 and March 2009 for 61 days and Rs.88,486,671.43 was stated to be payable by Orient for this period along with late payment surcharge. Another issue before the Expert was the date on which Orient was obligated to ensure that the take or pay quantity is 50% of the Daily Contract Quantity as per Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA. The Expert gave his findings on this issue calculating the obligation to pay from the COD being 1 st April 2009 in the amount of Rs.1,218,408,469/- along with late payment surcharge. Amounts were calculated for April, May, June, July and for the month of November, 2009 amounts were not calculated as the Expert did not have the required data. Therefore as per the Appellant's contention, the first claim does not arise from the Expert's Determination as it pertains to late payment surcharge as agreed between the parties under the Payment Agreement.

16. At the heart of the dispute is the Payment Agreement which was executed on 11. 1.2010 in the following terms:

The Parties agree that the Commissioning Period Payment shall be paid immediately on execution of this Agreement.
2.2 COD:
(a)(i) the COD has already commenced as of 1 April 2009 for purposes of payment of Take or Pay Quantity equal to fifty percent (50%) of the Daily Contract Quantity as provided in Section 3.6(a) of the GSA; (ii) no payment regarding fifty percent (50%) Take or Pay Quantity as per Section 3.6(a) of the GSA is required to be made by the Buyer to the Seller during the As-Available Period of December 2009, January 2010 and February 2010; (iii) The Buyer is required to pay fifty percent (50%) Take or Pay Quantity as per Section 3.6(a) of the GSA for the months of April 2009 to November 2009 in the amount of Rupees One Billion Two Hundred Eighteen Million Four Hundred Eight Thousand Four Hundred Sixty Nine Only (Rs.1,218,408,469) (the "COD Payment"; and (iv) the Buyer is required to pay compensation on late payment of the COD Payment as per Expert's determination upto 03.01.2010 (the date on which the payment had to be mae in acfordance with side letter dated 01.07.2009 i.e. 15 days from Expert's determination) (the 'Compensation') and late payment surcharge at Delayed Payment Rate from 04.01.2010 upto the date of full payment.
(b) The Parties agree that payment against 50% Take or Pay (the 'COD Payment') shall be paid in three equal installments: 1st installment equal to 50% of the COD Payment not later than 11.03.2010, the 2nd installment on or before 11.04.2010 and the 3rd installment one month following the 2nd installment i.e on or before 11.05.2010. However, Delayed Payment Rate shall apply on outstanding amount of COD Payment till its full payment is received by the Seller.

3. Make up Gas: The Parties acknowledge that the Buyer can take the Make up gas against the COD Payment in any month as per the GSA until 31.03.2011 based on the COD determined by the Expert.
4. Effectiveness: This Agreement shall come into effect from upon its execution and after settlement of the Issues as per Agreement; the provisions of the GSA shall prevail and stand applicable.
IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Parties have executed this Agreement as of the date first written above.

17. In terms of Clauses 1 and 4 of the Payment Agreement, the parties agreed that the definitions set forth in the GSA are applicable to the Payment Agreement and that the provisions of the GSA shall not only apply but shall prevail, meaning that the settlement recorded in the Payment Agreement is part and parcel of the obligations under the GSA. The terms of the Payment Agreement establish that the parties intended to remain within the confines of the GSA as the purpose of the Payment Agreement was to give effect to the Expert's Determination. The Recitals to the Payment Agreement clarify this purpose. The Payment Agreement was executed as the Appellant was unable to make the required payments within the fifteen day directed by the Expert, hence they settled their payments under the Payment Agreement. Since the payment schedule was changed the Appellant was required to make late payment surcharge until full and final payment. The Appellant's contention that the parties deviated from the Experts binding determination, hence created an independent new arrangement by way of the Payment Agreement is totally without force as the intent of the Payment Agreement was to give effect to the Expert Determination which held the Appellant liable to certain payments. Under the GSA, we note that in pith and substance the Payment Agreement reflects the Appellant's acknowledgement that amounts are due to SNGPL under the GSA, however since payments could not be made at the prescribed time as per the GSA, the parties agreed to make the payments as per the Payment Agreement. The obligation to pay arises under the GSA and not under the Payment Agreement which agreement was entered into essentially to facilitate the Appellant. The Appellant has relied on letter dated 1.7.2009 on the basis of which the parties agreed to appoint a local expert. The said letter also establishes the fact that the Appellant intended to resolves a dispute pertaining to obligation under the GSA as the list of issues annexed with the letter are all related to the Appellant's obligation under the GSA which required resolution. Through this letter the parties agreed that the decision of the local expert shall be binding on the parties and that the Appellant shall pay any amount within fifteen days failing which the Respondent SNGPL can draw on the security amounts deposited under the GSA. Hence the Experts Determination was related to disputes under the GSA and consequently the Payment Agreement gave effect to the enforcement of the Expert's Determination keeping the parties compliant of their obligations under the GSA.

18. We are fortified with our view by the fact that as per the findings of the Expert, Mr. Khalid Ibrahim both parties acknowledged that they will continue to perform under the GSA, pending resolution of the dispute referred to the Expert. Hence they never intended to enter into a new or fresh agreement. Neither party showed any intent to deviate from the GSA and the statement to continue under the GSA pending a resolution on the dispute amplifies this point. The Appellant has also contended that Payment Agreement does not contain an arbitration clause nor does it make specific reference to the arbitration clause in the GSA, hence the dispute under the Payment Agreement could not be referred to arbitration as the Sole Arbitrator lacked jurisdiction on the issues under the Payment Agreement. In this regard, we are not in agreement with the contentions raised by the Appellant's counsel. The Payment Agreement was not an independent contract outside of the GSA. It was an agreement to make payment pursuant to obligations under the GSA, that too on account of the Appellant's default of making payments within the fifteen days mandated by the Expert Mr. Khalid Ibrahim. In this regard, the judgments relied upon are distinguishable and not relevant to the facts of the case. In the case 1988 CLC 1350 (supra), the court held that by mere implication an arbitration clause cannot be incorporated in another agreement and there must be specific mention of the arbitration clause. This judgment does not help the Appellant because the Payment Agreement specifically provides in Clause 4 that the provisions of the GSA shall apply and prevail. Hence not only is there a specific mention of the provisions of the GSA but they have been made applicable by the parties. Consequently the arbitration clause in the GSA is applicable to the parties.

19. Clause 18.3 in the GSA covers disputes, disagreements or default of the seller and buyer in connection with or arising out of this Agreement. The Respondent argued that the arbitration clause covers all disputes in connection with the GSA and since the Payment Agreement is a consequence of obligations under the GSA, hence it is in connection with and arises out of the GSA. This is why the parties agreed in Clause 1 of the Payment Agreement that the definition and capitalized terms shall have same meaning set forth in the GSA and that the provisions of the GSA are to prevail and be applicable. In our opinion the parties never intended to move out of the contractual obligations under the GSA. A dispute arose which was ultimately referred to the Expert under Clause 1.1 of the GSA. Once the Expert gave his binding determination the Appellant was obligated to comply with the Determination. However, it failed to do so, hence settled the matter by essentially acknowledging its obligations under the GSA and taking some time to make payment. In essence the parties never intended to go outside the GSA and the Payment Agreement reflects upon a settlement pursuant to the obligations under the GSA. The entire purpose of the Payment Agreement was to ensure that the parties fulfill their obligations under the GSA. Therefore we conclude that the dispute resolution mechanism under the GSA was applicable to the Payment Agreement and that the Sole Arbitrator was well within his jurisdiction to make determination in terms thereof.

The second objection against the second claim: Article V(2)(b) of the Schedule to the Act

20. The second claim of the Appellant against the Award is that the amount of Rs.603,202,083/- stated to be due against six invoices, for the period May to October 2011, under Clause 3.6 of the GSA is against the provisions of Section 74 of the Contract Act, 1872 ('Contract Act') and the public policy of Pakistan. The Appellant's case as argued by Mr. Sal man Akram Raja is that the Respondent is not entitled to this amount because the Appellant was under an obligation to take gas from the Respondent under Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA for the relevant period. By not taking gas, the Appellant is in breach of Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA, for which the Respondent is entitled to reasonable compensation and not Rs.603,202,083/. Section 74 of the Contract Act provides that a party complaining of breach of contract can only claim reasonable compensation not exceeding the amount stipulated in the contract. Consequently reasonable compensation requires a finding on the facts of the case to establish actual loss suffered. The Appellant relies on cases decided by the Superior Courts of Pakistan to urge the point that the Respondent SNGPL has to establish the loss it suffered on account of breach of Clause 3.6(a) by the Appellant before it is awarded any amounts. It is his case that the Sole Arbitrator failed to consider the laws of Pakistan on reasonable compensation and also failed to consider the admitted loss of Rs.356,104,346.25/- suffered by the Respondent. Hence in this case, since the loss is admitted the Respondent could not be awarded an amount greater than Rs.356,104,346.25/-. In support of this argument, the Appellant has relied upon law laid down by the Superior Courts on Section 74 of the Contract Act being Province of West Pakistan v. Messrs Mistri Patel & Co. and another (PLD 1969 SC 80), Syed Sibte Raza and another v. Habib Bank Ltd. (PLD 1971 SC 743), Saudi-Pak Industrial and Agricultural Investment Company (Pvt.) Ltd., Islamabad v. Messrs Allied Bank of Pakistan and another (2003 CLD 596), The Bank of Punjab v. Dewan Farooque Motors Limited (2015 CLD 1756) and Atlas Cables (Pvt.) Limited v. Islamabad Electric Supply Company Limited and another (2016 CLC 1833) . Mr. Salman Raja argued that the Sole Arbitrator failed to consider the law of damages in Pakistan and in doing so defeated the purpose of Section 74 of the Contract Act and awarded amounts which run contrary to the laws of Pakistan.

21. The Sole Arbitrator's findings on the second claim are that Pakistani case law does not address the manner in which the take or pay clause should be interpreted and that there is a lacunae in Pakistani Law with regards to interpretation and validity of take or pay clause. However as per international cases the take or pay clause creates an obligation for payment against making the gas available but does not create an actual obligation to take the gas. He concluded that the parties entered into a contract and are bound by their commitment even if the terms of their agreement are deemed harsh by the Appellant. The Sole Arbitrator held that at best this situation calls for intervention by the Government of Pakistan but does not suggest that it is against Pakistan's public policy. The Appellant is aggrieved by these findings and has raised two issues before us with respect to the second claim. First being whether the take or pay clause is governed by the law of damages under Section 74 of the Contract Act and second, whether the award of Rs.603,202,083/- is against the public policy of Pakistan.

22. The facts leading up to this dispute are that the Appellant made payments of around Rs. 1478 Million under the take or pay clause for April to November 2009, March to April 2010 and March 2011. Payments were to be made only for the Firm Delivery Period being March to November and not for December, January and February. The Appellant made payments in April, May, June, July and August 2009 which were adjusted as per the take or pay clause. However, payments made in September, October and November 2009 and March to April, 2010 were not adjusted under the take or pay clause, meaning that even though payment was made Make Up Gas was never taken by the Appellant under Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA. As per the Respondent's contention the cutoff date for taking Make Up Gas was before March, 2011. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that since the price of gas is paid for, the Respondent's forfeiture of paid amounts, without supply of gas offends Section 74 of the Contract Act and unjustly enriches the Respondent. The thrust of the dispute therefore is whether Make Up Gas could be taken for the period May to October 2011 being the period after the cutoff date of March, 2011 for exercising make up gas rights. SNGPL's position is that Orient is entitled to take Make Up Gas under Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA till the next agreement year which in this case expired on March 2011. Consequently SNGPL was not obligated to provide Make Up Gas after March 2011. The Appellant did not pay for gas received May to October 2011 and instead called for adjustment against lapsed Make Up Gas entitlement. The Sole Arbitrator accepted this argument and awarded Rs. 603,202,083/- as amounts due for May to October 2011 and did not agree with the Appellant's contentions that the Respondent had unjustly received payment from the Appellant without providing any Make Up Gas.

23. In this context, Mr. Salman Akram Raja argued that amounts demanded under the six invoices are not due to the Respondent because the Respondent has received excess amounts from the Appellant for the months in which payment was made but gas was not supplied. Mr. Raja argued that the Respondent admits that gas was not supplied to the Appellant during this period and that it was delivered and sold to other consumers, hence the Respondent suffered minimum loss so far as consumption of gas is concerned. He argued that as a result of this diversion and sale, the loss suffered by SNGPL is limited to the cost of diversion of gas and to the default in the applicable tariff. In this regard, the learned counsel relied upon the statement of the Chief Billing Officer Mr. Liaqat Ali Nehra who admitted that the actual loss suffered is Rs.356,104,346.25 for the period April to November 2009 and March to April 2010 and March 2011. Hence he argued that the Respondent is entitled to Rs.356,104,346.25 and no more and any amounts over and above this amount would unjustly enrich the Respondent and is not reasonable compensation as mandated in Section 74 of the Contract Act.

24. Essentially the dispute between the parties is with respect to the taking of Make Up Gas. On behalf of the Appellant it is argued that when the price of gas has been paid for, the Respondent must supply the gas and the Appellant must take the gas. If the supply is deferred to a later date and the Appellant does not take the gas, even within the make up gas period, it is in breach of its obligation to take gas under the GSA. In the event of breach caused by the Appellant, the Respondent SNGPL is entitled to reasonable compensation and cannot forfeit the amounts paid. Hence Mr. Raja argued that the take or pay clause is in fact a penalty clause which entitles the seller, SNGPL to a greater sum of money than reasonable compensation without establishing the loss incurred by SNGPL. Learned counsel also argued that the Appellant's conduct of not taking gas from the Respondent tantamounts to breach under Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA. This breach of the GSA does not automatically lead to termination of the contract and may allow the innocent party to recover damages for the breach. Accordingly it is the Appellant's case that the breach caused by the Appellant by not taking gas does not ipso facto result in termination of the GSA but gives the Respondent the right to choose either to terminate the contract or to recover damages for the loss suffered. The Appellant has relied upon the Determination dated 11 .6.2014 made by Mr. Justice Khalil-ur-Rehman Ramday in which the expert held that the Appellant's default in not taking gas from the Respondent amounts to breach under Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA because Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA imposes an obligation on the Appellant to take minimum quantity of gas from the Respondent in the relevant period. The Appellant's conduct in not taking that minimum quantity of gas amounts to breach for which, in terms of Section 74 of the Contract Act, the party complaining of breach is entitled to reasonable compensation, not exceeding the amount stipulated in the contract. In support of their contention, the Appellant has also relied upon PLD 1969 SC 80 (supra) in which it is held that in the case of a penalty, the court shall grant reasonable compensation which is dependent upon the facts and circumstances of the case subject to proof and the aggrieved party can only recover reasonable compensation and no more. The Appellant has also relied upon 2016 CLC 1833 (supra) in which the Court has held that damages require evidence on details of loss actually suffered. Liquidated damages as a rule requires positive evidence to show the actual loss suffered by the parties claiming charges. The Court also held that if the fixed amount is stipulated in a contract as liquidated damages, it cannot be recovered until the actual loss suffered is not proven through sufficient evidence. The Appellant Counsel therefore argued that the Respondent has admitted a loss of Rs.356,104,346.25/- on account of Appellant's breach of Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA, hence they are not entitled to, in the first instance any amount without proving reasonable loss and secondly at best the amount they have admitted and no more. Consequently the Sole Arbitrator's award of Rs.603,202,083/- is in disregard of the provisions of Section 74 of the Contract Act and the law settled by the Superior Courts of Pakistan. It is their contention that the take or pay provisions are governed by the general law of damages as embodied in Section 74 of the Contract Act and it is a case of unjust enrichment which is against the public policy.

25. On behalf of the Respondent, Khawaja Ahmad Hosain argued that the take or pay clause is the contractual mechanism agreed to between the parties with respect to payment for gas and the delivery and supply of gas. As per his arguments, the take or pay clause gives the buyer two options, either to pay and take the gas or else to pay and defer taking the gas. The exercise of either option is valid under the GSA and will not be considered as a breach. He argued that breach can only occur if a party fails to comply with its obligation under either of the two options. So far as the Appellant is concerned, the take or pay clause obligates the Appellant to pay for the gas. The taking of gas is not an obligation rather entitles the Appellant to choose taking gas or deferring the taking of gas. Therefore the take or pay clause is not a penalty clause and the question of being entitled to reasonable compensation as per Section 74 of the Contract Act does not arise. Learned counsel for the Respondent argued that courts of many common law jurisdictions have found the take or pay clause to be a valid and enforceable clause and have found that the take or pay clause is not a penalty clause. He further argued that the parties negotiated and agreed to the terms of the GSA and the Appellant now, at its own convenience has declared breach and on the basis thereof built a case that amounts due to the Respondent under the GSA are contrary to public policy as they are excessive and harsh. He further argued that the take or pay clause is a common clause in energy sector agreements and both parties are well aware of this provision, its rationale and the fact that it is part and parcel of the terms of a gas supply agreement whether executed in Pakistan or internationally. Learned counsel argued that if the contention of the Appellant is accepted, it would lead to undoing the contractual arrangement between the parties and would have a serious impact on all take or pay clauses which exists in every gas supply agreement. He explained that such an interpretation would be contrary to the terms agreed upon between the parties and would adversely impact the commercial interest where such agreements are executed. Khawaja Ahmad Hosain argued that there is no question of unjust enrichment given that the payment due to the Respondent is under the agreed terms of the GSA. He argued that the take or pay payment is not intended to be payable as a penal consequence of failure of the buyer to take delivery of the given quantity of gas rather it is a commitment to pay for the gas with the option to take delivery of gas at a later date. Consequently not taking delivery of the gas is not breach of the terms of the GSA and does not fall within the ambit of a penalty clause nor does it result in unjust enrichment.

26. This issue was referred to an expert by the parties being Mr. Justice (Retd) Khalil-ur-Rehman Ramday in an effort to resolve the matter pertaining to Make Up Gas. The specific issue before the expert was that if the entire Make Up Gas has not been taken by the buyer under Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA, can the seller retain payments made by the buyer as of right, without any obligation to provide gas and if the seller has the right to keep the payment made with no obligation to provide gas, whether this is in fact a penalty. The expert discussed the wisdom of the take or pay clause and concluded that it was a penalty clause for the following reasons:
A reading of this provision would reveal that the opening part thereof casts an obligation on the Buyer to take the stipulated minimum quantity of Gas every day during every month in the FDP. If the Buyer does not take the said minimum quantity and does not comply with this obligation, then obviously it commits a breach of this provision (the contract). The later part of the said opening sentence talking about paying for the said quantity of Gas if not taken, only tells us of the consequences of the said breach. Therefore, to say that no breach of the contract had occurred if the minimum quantity of Gas was not taken and paid for by the Buyer, would not be sustainable in law. In such a situation, the contract does get broken and the provisions of section 74 would come into play.

It may be clarified at the outset, as mentioned above, that section 74 of the Contract Act does not inter-ali a, recognize any distinction between a sum of money named as payable on account of a breach of the contract (liquidated damages) or the forfeiture of an already paid amount of money by way of penalty (as in the present case). Both these situations have to be treated alike and what the aggrieved party is entitled to receive from the other party, in both these cases, is only a reasonable compensation with the named amount as the outer limit. Therefore, the question whether the TOP amount is retainable by the Seller as penalty or otherwise, is not really relevant in this country.
Thus the question whether the amount in question of the un-taken M.U. Gas could be retained by the Seller or had to be returned to the Buyer, would have to be answered in the light of the applicable provisions of sections 10, 14, 16 and 74 of the Contract Act as interpreted, explained and elucidated by our Superior Courts through their judgments which have been discussed, in some detail, above. Through the said judgments, the Superior Court have been pleased to identify some basic standards, and norms to determine the enforceability of the provisions like the one in hand and the resultant determination of a reasonable compensation and the further determination of its payability or otherwise to the aggrieved party.
The Sole Arbitrator also considered this issue and concluded that:
Take or pay clauses (with or without the provision for Make-Up Gas) are recognized and utilised internationally and are to be found most commonly in large scale energy projects because of the heavy cost of infrastructure involved and the cost of financing undertaken by the Seller and a need to have some certainty with regards to a minimum purchase of the commodity. The Buyer too 'commits' to pay for a minimum quantity to guarantee a regular but flexible supply.
Having considered the case law with regards to take or pay clauses (which is predominantly English and US), I find that one of the key reasons why most courts in these jurisdictions have found take or pay clauses to be valid and enforceable when a buyer challenges the clause as being an unenforceable penalty is that the take or pay payment is not due as a result of a contract breach or default but rather, it flows from the Buyer's valid choice/decision not to take the take or pay quantity. The Courts having come to that finding have then gone on to conclude that where there is no breach there can be no penalty.
He also held that:
I agree with this save that I find that the word "shall' imposes on the Respondent the obligation to take a minimum quantity of gas and the obligation, if the gas is not taken, to pay for that minimum quantity of Gas, that is, the Take or Pay Quantity. The Respondent has a choice: 'take or pay'. It is when the Respondent fails to take and then fails to pay for the Take or Pay Quantity that a breach occurs. The GSA does not provide for any damages to be paid in this instance.
A take or pay clause in essence thus requires the Buyer to pay for a minimum quantity of the commodity whether or not the Buyer exercises its right to take the commodity either then or later.

The obligation to pay for this minimum quantity of the commodity is not a secondary obligation triggered by a breach but is a primary obligation.
The Take or Pay clause (with the attendant Make-Up Gas provision) was agreed upon by the parties. The Claimant was obliged to provide the Gas to the extent of the Daily Contract Quantity on each day during the Firm Delivery Period. This would have entailed initially the construction and thereafter the regular maintenance of the transmission lines an undoubtedly huge infrastructure exercise. The Respondent on the other hand was obliged to pay for a minimum quantity (50% of the Daily Contract Quantity) if it chose not to take the Daily Contract Quantity that the Claimant was obliged to provide on a daily basis during the Firm Delivery Period. Both parties had their respective guarantees: The Claimant, the payment of a minimum amount and the Respondent, the provision of a daily supply of Gas. The payment of the minimum amount by the Respondent still entitled the Respondent to Gas for that minimum amount paid, the only condition being that it had to be taken-up within a given period of time. The question of time was a matter for negotiation between the parties before the GSA was signed.
For the reasons outlined above and having construed the Take-or-Pay clause in the GSA with the attendant Make-Up Gas provision I hold that a breach does not occur when the Respondent fails to take the Take or Pay Quantity.
I also hold that the obligation to make the Take or Pay payment flows from the Buyer's decision not to take the Take or Pay Quantity of Gas. The Respondent thereafter has the period stipulated in Section 3.6(c) of the GSA to Make-Up Gas for which it has paid. The minimum amount paid by the Respondent thus cannot be a penalty as it could be effectively reduced (to nothing) by the Respondent's taking of the Make-Up Gas. I thus do not find the Take or Pay clause to be a clause in terrorem.
Effectively he concluded that there was no breach by the Appellant hence the provisions of Section 74 of the Contract Act are not attracted.

27. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that since the take or pay clause is a penalty clause, the Respondent is not entitled to amounts over and above reasonable compensation that too which need to be proven by way of evidence. Hence the amount of Rs.603,202,083/- is against the laws of Pakistan and contrary to the public policy of Pakistan. The public policy exception is found in Article V (2) (b) of the Convention which provides that recognition and enforcement of an arbitral award may be refused in Pakistan if that award is contrary to the public policy. Therefore one of the grounds on which recognition and enforcement of a foreign arbitral award can be refused is where the award is against public policy. The term public policy is not a defined term under the Act or the Convention, hence the Appellant's counsel has relied upon various different cases and some literature from different jurisdictions to highlight the view taken by the courts and experts on the interpretation of public policy. The material relied upon discusses public policy in the context of arbitration in the following manner:
Chief Justice Robert French AC of the High Court of Australia in the 2016 Goff Lecture delivered on 18 April 2016 titled Arbitration and Public Policy in Hong Kong who concluded that:

The decisions of courts applying concepts of arbitrability and public policy have sometimes been designated as pro-arbitration or anti-arbitration depending upon the outcome. It is necessary to be cautious about those designations, which can be indicative of advocacy rather than assessment. Arbitration is not like a football code attracting the rule that if you are not for us you are against us. And while healthy competition between jurisdiction is important for the development of innovative approaches to dispute resolution, public policy should not just be about attracting business. Nor can-judicial decision-making be about attracting labels such as 'pro-arbitration' or arbitration friendly and thereby attracting nonjudicial business to the jurisdiction. Clearly, there is a lot of room for movement in the public policy judgments which inform the structure and content of legal regimes supporting and governing arbitration and their interpretation and application. There is a powerful international public policy reflected in that of many countries which strongly support arbitration as a dispute resolution mechanism. In such countries there is, for the most part of a recognition that countervailing public policy considerations may properly limit the scope of the arbitral process and require a degree of supervision of it. Coupled with that is a recognition that public policy criteria in relation to arbitrability recognition and enforcement must be applied with care and restraint.

It is, of course, a responsibility of all those engaged in the practice of commercial arbitration to ensure that they and the process in which they engage not only serves its users but continues to be sensitive to and to respect the public interest. That is its greatest assurance of its long term future."

Justice Stephen Breyer of the United States Supreme Court in the book The Court and the World (2015) stated that:

Again, this case concerned a judicial order, but the same problem might have arisen with an arbitration finding, which would have behind it the weight of the New York Arbitration Convention. Signed by close to 150 nations, the convention provides that each Contracting State shall recognize arbitral awards as binding and enforce them in accordance with the rules of procedure of the territory where the award is relied upon. Because of this agreement, international arbitration awards are often easier to enforce in foreign nations than are judgments of ordinary courts. But it also provides that a nation may refuse to enforce an order on the grounds that it violates the nation's public policy. As with labor arbitration, courts that are too ready to deny enforcement of awards for arbitration procedures. At the same time, however, courts that pay little or no attention to their nation's public policies can create, out of arbitration, a procedural method for nullifying those policies. So what is the right balance? How much divergence among nations in appropriate? Does it matter if a party resisting arbitration can choose among three different nations with three different public policies, by (1) bringing a court action (in Nation A) to prevent arbitration from starting, (2) bringing a court action midstream (in Nation B) trying to stop the arbitration from continuing, or (3) bringing an action (in Nation C) after the arbitration trying to prevent enforcement of an award? The lower courts are already beginning to wrestle with some of these questions. And our Courts may have to confront them in due time.

Justice Sundaresh Menon of the Supreme Court of Singapore in his speech International Arbitration: The Coming of a New Age for Asia (and Elsewhere) (2012) stated that:

The second development relates the willingness of at least some courts to adopt a more expansive notion of review based on public policy. The Indian Supreme Court in ON GC v SAW Pipes extended the concept of public policy. Holding that an award would be contrary to public policy if it were "patently illegal", the Court went on to re-examine the questions of fact and law that had been considered by the arbitral tribunal. This was followed in another recent Indian decision Venture Global Engineering v Satyam Computer Services Ltd. 43 this time involving a foreign award. In similar fashion, in European Gas Turbine v Westman International Ltd, the Paris Court of Appeal said that its control over arbitration must involve in fact and in law all the elements which enable the verification of the application or not of a public policy rule, and if such a rule applies, the legality of the arbitration agreement.

In India, the ground of public policy had been extensively explored in the case of Oil and Natural Gas Corporation Ltd v. Saw Pipes Ltd (2003) 5 SCC 705 ('Saw Pipes Case'). The Supreme Court of India concluded at para 31 that:

Therefore in our view, the phrase 'Public Policy of India' used in S. 34 in context is required to be given a wider meaning. It can be stated that the concept of public policy connotes some matter which concerns public good and the public interest. What is for public good or in public interest or what would be injurious or harmful to the public good or public interest has varied from time -to time. However, the award which is, on the face of it, patently in violation of statutory provision cannot be said to be in public interest. Such award/judgment/decision is likely to adversely affect the administration of justice. Hence, in our view in addition to narrower meaning given to the term 'public policy' in Renusagar's case 1993 Indlaw SC 1441 (supra), it is required to be held that the award could be set aside if it is patently illegal. Result would be award could be set aside if it is contrary to:

(a) Fundamental policy of Indian law; or

(b) The interest of India; or

(c) Justice or morality, or

(d) In addition, if it is patently illegal

Illegality must go to the root of the matter and if the illegality is of trivial nature it cannot be held that award is against the public policy. Award could also be set aside if it is so unfair and unreasonable that it shocks the conscience of the Court. Such award is opposed to public policy and is required to be adjudged void.

In the subsequent case of Oil and Natural Gas Corporation limited v. Western Geco International Limited (2014) 9 SCC 263, ('Geco Case') the Supreme Court of India elaborated on the concept of the 'Fundamental policy of Indian law' and held at paras 26 and 28 in the following terms:

What then would constitute the 'Fundamental policy of Indian Law' is the question. The decision in Saw Pipes Ltd. does not elaborate that aspect. Even so, the expression must, in our opinion, include all such fundamental principles as providing a basis for administration of justice and enforcement of law in this country. Without meaning to exhaustively enumerate the purport of the expression "Fundamental Policy of Indian Law", we may refer to three distinct and fundamental juristic principles that must necessarily be understood as a part and parcel of the Fundamental Policy of Indian law. The first and foremost is the principle that in every determination whether by a Court or other authority that affects the rights of a citizen or leads to any civil consequences, the Court or authority concerned is bound to adopt what is in legal parlance called a 'judicial approach' in the matter. The duty to adopt a judicial approach arises from the very nature of the power exercised by the Court or the authority does not have to be separately or additionally enjoined upon the fora concerned. What must be remembered is that the importance of Judicial approach in judicial and quasi-judicial determination lies in the fact so long as the Court, Tribunal or the authority exercising powers that affect the rights or obligations of the parties before them shows fidelity to judicial approach, they cannot act in an arbitrary, capricious or whimsical manner. Judicial approach ensures that the authority acts bona fide and deals with the subject in a fair, reasonable and objective manner and that its decision is not actuated by any extraneous consideration. Judicial approach in that sense acts as a check against flaws and faults that can render the decision of a Court, Tribunal or Authority vulnerable to challenge.

Equally important and indeed fundamental to the policy of Indian law is the principle that a Court and so also a quasi -judicial authority must, while determining the rights and obligations of parties before it, do so in accordance with the principles of natural justice. Besides the celebrated 'audi alteram partem' rule one of the facets of the principles of natural justice is that the Court/authority deciding the matter must apply its mind to the attendant facts and circumstances while taking a view one way or the other. Non application of mind is a defect that is fatal to any adjudication. Application of mind is best demonstrated by disclosure of the mind and disclosure of mind is best done by recording reasons in support of the decision which the Court or authority is taking. The requirement that an adjudicatory authority must apply its mind is, in that view, so deeply embedded in our jurisprudence that it can be described as a fundamental policy of Indian Law.

Having explained the concept of the 'Fundamental Policy of Indian Law', the Supreme Court of India proceeded to conduct a detailed factual enquiry of the case and decided to modify the arbitral award impugned before the Court to the following reasons:

It is neither necessary nor proper for us to attempt an exhaustive enumeration of what would constitute the fundamental policy of Indian law nor is it possible to place the expression in the straitjacket of a definition. What is important in the context of the case at hand is that if on facts proved before them the arbitrators fail to draw an inference which ought to have been drawn or if they have drawn an inference which is on the face of it, untenable resulting in miscarriage of justice, the adjudication even when made by an arbitral tribunal that enjoys considerable latitude and play at the joints in making awards will be open to challenge and may be cast away or modified depending upon whether the offending part is or is not severable from the rest.

Inasmuch as the arbitrators clubbed the entire period between 16th October 2001 and 21st March, 2002 for purposes of holding the appellant-Corporation responsible for the delay, they committed an error resulting in miscarriage of justice apart from the fact that they failed to appreciate and draw inferences that logically flow from such proved facts. We have, therefore, no hesitation in rejecting the contention urged on behalf of the Respondent that the arbitral award should not despite the infirmities pointed out by us be disturbed.

That brings us to the last submission that deduction on account of taxes not paid should have been allowed by the Respondent - arbitral tribunal. The Tribunal has, in our opinion, correctly held that no part of the work was undertaken outside Singapore which was to be executed on a turnkey basis for a price that was pre-determined. The arbitrators have, in our opinion, rightly held that no taxes were payable under the Indian Income Tax Act so as to entitle the Corporation to deduct any amount on that account by reason of non-payment of such taxes. The challenge to the award to that extent must fail and is, hereby rejected.

In the result, we allow this appeal but only to the extent that out of the period of 4 months and 22 days which the arbitrators have attributed to the appellant-Corporation a period of 56 days comprising 42 days of the first interval and 14 days of the second referred to in the judgment shall be reduced. Resultantly, deductions made by the appellant-Corporation for the said period of 56 days shall stand affirmed and the award made by the arbitrators modified to that extent with a proportionate reduction in the amount payable to the Respondent. No costs.

Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that in 2016, the Indian Parliament amended the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 of India ("the Indian Act") such that Section 48 of the Indian Act which is based on Article V(2)(b) of the New York Convention, was amended and an explanation was added to section 48(2)(b) of the Indian Act that excluded the grounds of patent illegality from the concept of public policy of India. However, the Indian Parliament retained the fundamental policy of Indian law as the constituent element of the public policy of India. Therefore he argued that the Geco Case, which is based on the concept of fundamental policy of Indian law, continues to be a binding precedent in India and a highly persuasive precedent for the Courts of Pakistan.

28. Further to the above Mr. Salman Akram Raja added that the UNCITRAL Secretarial Guide on the New York Convention (2016) ('UNCITRAL Guide') provides the following commentary on Article V(2)(b) of the New York Convention:

Although different jurisdictions define public policy differently, case law tends to refer to a public policy basis for refusing recognition and enforcement of an award under Article V(2)(b) of the New York Convention when the core values of a legal system have been deviated from. Invoking the public policy exception is a safety valve to be used in those exceptional circumstances when it would be impossible for a legal system to recognize an award and enforce it without abandoning the very fundaments on which it is based.

In the words of the often-quoted judgment of the Second Circuit of the United States Court of Appeals in Parsons, "[e]nforcement of foreign arbitral awards may be denied on (the basis of public policy) only where enforcement would violate the forum state's most basic notions of morality and justice". Several jurisdictions outside the United States have relied on this passage when assessing the public policy exemption.

Similarly, the Federal Court of Australia has recently decided that "it is only those aspects of public policy that go to the fundamental, core questions of morality and justice in [the] jurisdiction [where enforcement is sought] which enliven this particular statutory exception to enforcement". In the same vein, the Hong Kong Court of Final Appeal defined an award that violates public policy as an award that is "so fundamentally offensive to (the enforcement jurisdiction)'s notions of justice that, despite its being party to the Convention, it cannot reasonably be expected to overlook the objection.
Hence on the basis of the cases and literature relied upon learned counsel for the Appellant argued that public policy means matters of national interest related to national sovereignty. It means that the court should protect the fundamental notions of justice, fairness and morality and anything done in contravention of the same would offend public policy. In this case, learned counsel argued that the public policy concerns are that a party should not be permitted to recover more than what it has actually lost; that a public sector entity should not be allowed to unjustly enrich itself at the expense of a private person; that unjust enrichment offends the principles of economic justice as embodied in the Constitution; that Section 74 of the Contract Act does not permit the Respondent to recover more than reasonable compensation; that the Respondent, can at best only recover loss that it has actually incurred and in this case admitted the amount of Rs.356,104,346.25/-. Hence the Sole Arbitrator's award of Rs.603,202,083/- cannot be maintained.

29. Learned counsel for the Respondent, Khawaja Ahmad Hosain argued that the term public policy is not defined under the law nor has any meaning been given in the context of the New York Convention. The expression public policy has been interpreted in the context of Section 23 of the Contract Act wherein the courts have held that any element of injury to public interest would fall within the domain of public policy. In the case Nan Fung Textiles Ltd. v. Sadiq Traders Ltd (PLD 1982 Karachi 619), it has been held that:
The general head of 'Public Policy' covers a wide range of topics, such as, for example, trading with enemy in time of war, stifling prosecution, champerty and maintenance and various other matters.
Scope of public policy-Objects which on grounds of public policy invalidate contracts may, for convenience, be generally classified into five groups first, objects which are illegal by common law or by legislation; secondly, objects injurious to good Government either in the field of domestic or foreign affairs; thirdly, objects which interfere with the proper working of the machinery of justice; fourthly, objects injurious to family life and fifthly, objects economically against the public interest.
While determining whether the enforcement of a non-speaking foreign award will be against public policy it cannot be overlooked that the Legislature has recently amended Arbitration Act, 1940 which does not invalidate a non-speaking award unless it has been remitted by the Court and the arbitrators or umpire fail to resubmit it with reasons in sufficient detail. The fact remains that no such amendment has been made in the Act of 1937. A foreign award which does not state reasons cannot be termed to violate any provision of law governing its enforcement. Any non-compliance with the provision of Arbitration Act, 1940 will not invalidate a foreign award nor can it be set aside under the provisions of Arbitration Act. The validity of a foreign award as defined by section 2 of the Act of 1937 can be challenged on the grounds specified in section 7 of the Act of 1937. The learned counsel for the respondents contended that enforcement of award is against Public Policy but did not address how Public Policy was involved. In my view the enforcement of present awards is not against Public Policy.

The argument of injury to society as an element of public policy has also been endorsed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Haji Abdul Karim and others v. Sh. Ali Muhammad and others (PLD 1959 SC 167) in the following manner:

Similarly, the appellants not having proved that a licence for the working of the factory was necessary because the Chief Executive Officer had formed the opinion that the running of the factory was dangerous to life, health or property or likely to create nuisance, it cannot be held that running of the factory was opposed to public policy.

In Maulana Abdul Haque Baloch and others v. Government of Balochistan through Secretary Industries and Mineral Development and others (PLD 2013 SC 641) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held as under:

The processing of the matter by GOB in the above manner substantiates that public advertisements were not resorted to in the interest of transparency and to obtain the best competitive price for the disposal of public property, i.e. mineral resources in Reko Diq, and thereby denied participation to other investors of the field to the detriment of the general public, and especially the people of Balochistan. Such a handling of an issue of great public importance was against public policy as well because it certainly caused injury to the public good and, therefore, provides a basis for denying the legality of the transaction in question. It is noteworthy that section 23 of the Contract Act, 1872 provides that the consideration or object of an agreement is lawful, unless it is forbidden by law; or is of such a nature that, if permitted, it would defeat the provisions of any law; or is fraudulent; or involves or implies injury to the person or property of another; or the Court regards it as immoral or opposed to public policy.

30. Khawaja Ahmad Hosain also explained that the Appellant's reliance upon the Geco Case for interpretation of the term 'public policy' as a ground of refusal to recognize foreign arbitration awards under the Convention is misplaced because unlike in the present case, the award in Geco Case was a domestic award. He explained that in India, Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 ("the 1996 Act") provides for an application for setting aside of a domestic award under Section 34 of the 1996 Act. The 1996 Act also provides a distinct provision of law for application of refusal of recognition of the foreign awards, which is set out in Section 48 of the 1996 Act. Therefore, the interpretation of public policy as explained in Geco Case is irrelevant for the purposes of the present case as it does not apply to foreign awards. He argued that the entire judgment in the Geco Case pertains to interpretation of 'public policy' in the context of section 34 of the 1996

Act for domestic awards which is illustrated by the relevant paragraph reproduced for reference:
It is true that none of the grounds enumerated under Section 34(2)(a) were set up before the High Court to assail the arbitral award. What was all the same urged before the High Court and also before us was that the award made by arbitrators was in conflict with the public policy of India, a ground recognized under Section 34(2)(b)(ii). The expression _public policy of India' fell for interpretation before this Court in ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd. and was, after a comprehensive review of the case law on the subject, explained in para 31 of the decision in following words:
Therefore, in our view, the phrase 'public policy of India' used in Section 34 in context is required to be given a wider meaning. It can be stated that concept of public policy connotes some matter which concerns public good and the public interest. What is for the public good or public interest or what would be injurious or harmful to the public good or public interest has varied from time to time.

31. The learned counsel further explained that the decision calling for a wider interpretation of public policy under Section 34 of the 1996 Act in the Saw Pipes Case relied upon by the Appellant, is also not applicable to foreign awards. This case is also related to domestic awards and the concept of patent illegality which is distinguishable from the present case. This view was expressed by the Supreme Court of India in Shri Lal Mahal Ltd. v. Progetto Granto Spa [(2014) 2 SCC 433 at 449] ('Shri Lal Mahal Case') of which the relevant paragraph is reproduced for reference:
We accordingly hold that enforcement of foreign award would be refused under Section 48(2)(b) only if such enforcement would be contrary to (1) fundamental policy of Indian law; or (2) the interest of India; or (3) justice or morality. The wider meaning given to the expression 'public policy of India' occurring in Section 34(2)(b)(ii) in Saw Pipes is not applicable where objection is raised to the enforcement of the foreign award under Section 48(2)(b).

32. He again distinguished the cases relied upon by the Appellant such that reliance on Phulchand Exports Ltd. v. O.O.O. Patriot (2011) 10 SCC 300 ("Phulchand Case") which upheld that in case of foreign awards the wider interpretation of public policy should be adopted was overruled by the Supreme Court of India in Shri Lal Mahal Case. The relevant paragraph of Shri Lal Mahal Case is reproduced:
It is true that in Phulchand Exports a two judge Bench of this Court speaking through one of us (R.M . Lodha J.) accepted the submission made on behalf of the appellant therein that the meaning given to the expression _public policy of India' in Section 34 in Saw Pipes must be applied to the same expression occurring in Section 48(2)(b) of the 1996 Act. However, in what we have discussed above it must be held that the statement in para 16 of the Report that the expression 'public policy' of India used in Section 48(2)(b) has to be given a wider meaning and the award could be set aside, if it is patently illegal does not lay down correct law and is overruled.

The Supreme Court of India in Shri Lal Mahal Case also ruled that the public policy does not allow the review of merits of the case:
Moreover, Section 48 of the 1996 Act does not give an opportunity to have a 'second look' at the foreign award in the award enforcement stage. The scope of inquiry under Section 48 does not permit review of the foreign award on merits.

33. Hence on the basis of the aforesaid, he argued that the objections raised by the Appellant do not fall within the ambit of Article V(2)(b) of the Convention. Section 74 of the Contract Act does not apply to the take or pay clause and the issues raised with respect to its interpretation, calling it a penalty clause, is incorrect and runs contrary to the understanding reached between the parties with respect to the take or pay mechanism as contemplated under the GSA. Learned counsel further argued that the public policy exception is to be narrowly construed and error of law or erroneous reasoning are not covered in its scope. The learned counsel argued that the Sole Arbitrator has reasoned his opinion in terms of the obligations under the GSA and as such has not rendered an opinion which can be set aside under Article V (2) (b) of the Convention. The learned counsel further emphasized that the objections raised by the Appellant call for a decision on the merits of the case which objection is not sustainable under the Convention and the Act. He argued that the public policy exception is triggered where there is an element of injury to the public, or public interest or where the enforcement of the Award is not possible since it violates the laws of Pakistan. In the present case none of these factors are prevalent, hence no Case is made out which calls for any interference under the public policy exception. He clarified that the take or pay clause is not a penalty clause and the Respondent is entitled to recover amounts as contemplated under clause 3.6 of the GSA.
The take or pay clause

34. In order to appreciate the arguments with respect to the take or pay clause, it is necessary to examine the said clause, its mandate and intent Clause 3.6 of the GSA is the take or pay/make up gas clause which reads as follows:
(a) From and after the Commercial Operations Date and during a Month in the Firm Delivery Period, the Buyer shall take and if not taken pay for a minimum quantity of Gas (the 'Take-or-Pay Quantity) equal to fifty percent (50%) of the Daily Contract Quantity multiplied by the difference between the number of days in that Month (or portion thereof) and (i) the number of days (or fractions thereof) of Force Majeure Events declared by the Seller or the Buyer in that Month, (ii) the number of days (or fractions thereof) of non-delivery of Gas by the Seller in that Month for any reason, including a breach or default by the Seller or maintenance undertaken by the Seller pursuant to Section 12.1, and (iii) the number of days of Scheduled outages in that Month notified to the Seller pursuant to Section 12.2.
(b) During the Commissioning Period, the Take or Pay Quantity shall be fifteen percent (15%) of the Daily Contract Quantity multiplied by (i) the number of Days in the Commissioning Period and (ii) the actual Gas Price applicable during the Commissioning Period. The Buyer shall make this payment to the Seller at the Commercial Operations Date; provided that there shall be no Make-Up Gas for such period; provided further that if the Buyer takes Gas in excess of the fifteen percent (15%) of the Daily Contract Quantity then the Buyer shall pay to the Seller the Gas Price multiplied by the quantity of Gas actually taken by the Buyer; provided further that in no event shall the Seller's obligation to deliver Gas hereunder on any Day exceed the Daily Contract Quantity. Any reconciliation of such Take or Pay Quantity charges by the Buyer to the Seller shall be made on the Commercial Operations Date.

(c) Except for the Gas taken or paid by the Buyer pursuant to Section 3.6(b) above, any Gas paid for by the Buyer pursuant to this Section 3.6(a) above during a Contract Year but not taken prior to the time of payment ('Make Up Gas') may be taken with payment by the Buyer of the different between the Gas Price prevailing at the time the Make-up Gas is taken by the Buyer and the Gas Price used to determine the payment for the Take or Pay Quantity, using the 'first in, first out' method and any increase in taxes on the sale and purchase of Gas applicable to Gas sales hereunder, during the Firm Delivery Period of the immediately following one (1) Contract Year of the Term, provided that the Buyer shall have first taken and paid for a quantity equal to but not less than the Take or Pay Quantity in the applicable Contract Year and provided further that in no event shall the Seller's obligation to deliver Gas hereunder on any Day exceed the Daily Contract Quantity. At the end of the Gas Allocation, the Buyer shall be entitled to take the Make-up Gas during the immediately following twelve (12) Months on as available basis.
(d) Unless agreed otherwise by the Buyer, and subject to the Buyer having placed the Gas Order, the minimum amount of Gas the Seller must supply is 9.5 MMSCFD to avoid paying any charges under Section 3.7 and the Buyer shall not be obliged to take Gas, if tendered, for any quantity less than the said quantity.

35. On the basis of this clause, known as the take or pay clause, the parties have agreed that the seller being the Respondent SNGPL shall make available gas for supply to the buyer being the Appellant, Orient Power Company. As per Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA, the Appellant can either take the gas meaning that it will pay for the gas and take supply of the gas or it can pay for the gas but not take supply of the gas, meaning that it can defer the taking of the supply of gas to a later date. In terms of the take or pay clause, the buyer can pay for the gas and take it at a subsequent period as Make Up Gas under Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA. Therefore as per the GSA, where the buyer has paid for the gas but defers delivery of supply of gas the take or pay clause allows the buyer to pay for the gas and take the gas as Make Up Gas at a subsequent period. Consequently in terms of the GSA, there is an obligation on the Respondent to supply gas and there is an obligation on the Appellant to pay for the gas with the option to either take supply immediately or else defer taking supply to a later date. Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA provides that if the gas is not taken but is paid for by the buyer, then the buyer can take the gas as Make Up Gas during the immediately following twelve months on as available basis. Therefore under Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA the buyer has the option to take Make Up Gas within a specified period, after which the obligation to supply gas to the buyer finishes, meaning that the seller is no longer required to deliver gas to the buyer.

36. The take or pay clause is a common term in gas supply agreements, which gives the buyer the option to take supply of the gas or else pay for it but defer the taking of the gas supply. The rationale behind this clause is to allocate risk over long term contracts. It acts as a risk sharing mechanism between the supplier and buyer where the buyer seeks stability in supply and some flexibility in prices and the seller seeks assurance for guaranteed income. It also provides some comfort to the investors of natural gas projects that their investments are secure over the duration of the contract, as the risks are divided between the parties and not borne by any one party. An essential feature of the take or pay clause is the right to take make up gas. The buyer has the right to take the gas in the succeeding year or any defined period and not at the time when payment was due. The take or pay clause is activated when the buyer does not take delivery of the agreed quantity of gas but has paid for it. The Appellant has raised the question as to whether the take or pay clause is enforceable as a penalty clause in terms of Section 74 of the Contract Act and the second question is what happens where the buyer has paid for the gas but deferred taking it and then failed to take Make Up Gas during the twelve month period. In such cases can the seller forfeit amounts received for supply of gas.

37. There are two separate obligations in the take or pay clause. First is the obligation of the seller to supply gas during the firm delivery period and also to provide Make Up Gas under Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA on as available basis during the make up gas period. The second is the obligation of the buyer to pay for the gas. Clause 3.6(a) specifically provides that the buyer shall take and if not taken pay for a minimum quantity of gas. This means that the buyer shall either pay and take the gas or else pay and defer the taking of gas. Hence we are of the opinion that the obligation of the buyer under Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA is to pay for the gas and not take the gas. There is no obligation on the buyer to take a minimum quantity of gas at the time when payment is made. Clause 3.6(a) of the GSA gives the buyer the option to take or pay for the gas. Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA gives the buyer the make up gas right on the basis of which it can take delivery of the gas in the succeeding year. Again the supplier is obligated to make the gas available for the make up period on as available basis and correspondingly the buyer has option to exercise its make up gas right. The make up gas right is also not an obligation but a right to exercise the option to defer taking of gas at a later date. At the time if the buyer defers the taking of gas, the buyer has to satisfied its basic obligation to pay for the gas and can opt to defer taking the gas. The right to make up gas therefore is also not an obligation on the buyer but an option which can be exercised by the buyer. The period within which the make up gas right can be exercised is also stipulated in Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA. Hence the buyer has agreed to defer taking gas and has agreed to avail the option to take Make Up Gas within a stipulated period. In all situations the gas has been paid for and the buyer is left within the right to exercise its make up gas right within the stipulated period. If the buyer fails to exercise this right in a timely manner the obligation to supply gas finishes.

38. Accordingly the take or pay clause is the contractual mechanism agreed to by the parties which clearly sets out two possible options available to the Appellant with respect to the taking of gas pursuant to the GSA. Under Clause 3.6(a) the Appellant can pay and take the gas or else pay for a minimum quantity of gas being the take or pay quantity. We again reiterate that the obligation under Clause 3.6(a) is to pay for the gas and there is no obligation to take gas since the buyer can defer taking the gas. Consequently due to take or pay clause a breach cannot be triggered on account of failure to take gas. The buyer has the right to exercise the option to take gas or invoke the take or pay clause. Hence the exercise of either option is valid under the GSA and would not constitute a breach thereof. Therefore we find that the take or pay payment is not due because of a breach or default rather it flows from the contracting party's valid choice to invoke the right to invoke the take or pay clause.

39. The commercial rationality of take or pay clauses has been addressed in the case of Port of Tilbury (London) Ltd. v. Store Enso Transport and Distribution Ltd. (2009) EWCA Civ 16) wherein the England and Wales Court of Appeal (Civil Division), observed, in the context of a contractual arrangement for a supply of paper and the investment in the supply facilities that the supplier, i .e. that appellant port, needs to make, as follows:
There is nothing absurd about a take or pay minimum obligation. Such provisions are common, and they are particularly used where, as here, one party has to expend significant sums of money for the purposes of the contract and needs to look to the contract for a secure annual income stream which will pay the ongoing financial cost of its investment. The minimum payment obligation does not override the Port's service obligations; it merely provides, together with a no set-off provision, for a situation where the investor is assured its income stream, despite disputes, on the basis of ―pay now, dispute later.

40 In the case of M&J Polymers Ltd v. Imerys Minerals Ltd (2008) EWHC 344 (Comm), which has also been cited by the Sole Arbitrator in the Award, the England and Wales High Court (Commercial Court), observed, in regards to a chemical supply contractual dispute, that a take or pay clause is a familiar provision in commercial contracts. The Court went on to observe that the parties freely entered into the contract after free negotiations and that they were aware of the arrangement that they were getting into. The Court went on to hold as follows:
On the facts of this case, I am entirely satisfied that the take or pay clause was commercially justifiable, did not amount to oppression, was negotiated and freely entered into between parties of comparable bargaining power, and did not have the predominant purpose of deterring a breach of contract nor amount to a provision 'in terrorem'. The evidence was wholly clear. The negotiations took place between extremely well qualified, able and savvy commercial men against a very significant commercial background, including a background of previous dealings. At the time when they were negotiating there was, on the one hand, an extreme scarcity of acrylic acid, a willingness on the part of the Claimant to commit supply to the Defendant, notwithstanding the requirements of their other customers, but in return expecting an absolute commitment to take a minimum quantity of the product to be manufactured with that acid, and, on the other hand, a clear recognition of the difficult commercial position in which the Defendant found itself, a desperate need to secure supplies of the product and desire to keep the contract as short as possible; with the result that there was give and take on both sides, a shorter term than the Claimant desired and a longer one than the Defendant desired, but so far as the Defendant was concerned, the significant advantage, as it then saw it, of a get out clause via the meet or release provision in Article 5.6."

The Court concluded that the take or pay clause did not offend the rule against penalties and that the claimant in the case was entitled to recover the price of the shortfall pursuant to the said provision.

41. In the most recent case titled Cavendish Square Holding BV v. Talat El Makdessi 2016 SCMR 296, the Supreme Court of the United Kingdom discussed the issue of courts interfering in contracts freely entered into by parties and giving new meanings to the take or pay clause which is common in commercial contracts. Citing the case of Philips Hong Kong Ltd v. Attorney General of Hong Kong (1993) 61 BLR 41, where it was observed that the court has to be careful not to set too stringent a standard and bear in mind that what the parties have agreed should normally be upheld, not least because any other approach will lead to undesirable uncertainty especially in commercial contracts. The Supreme Court of the United Kingdom observed as follows:
There is a fundamental difference between a jurisdiction to review the fairness of a contractual obligation and a jurisdiction to regulate the remedy for its breach. Leaving aside challenges going to the reality of consent, such as those based on fraud, duress or undue influence, the courts do not review the fairness of men's bargains either at law or in equity. The penalty rule regulates only the remedies available for breach of a party's primary obligations, not the primary obligations themselves.
The Court observed in regards to what constitutes a penalty:
This means that in some cases the application of the penalty rule may depend on how the relevant obligation is framed in the instrument, ie whether as a conditional primary obligation or a secondary obligation providing a contractual alternative to damages at law. Thus, where a contract contains an obligation on one party to perform an act, and also provides that, if he does not perform it, he will pay the other party a specified sum of money, the obligation to pay the specified sum is a secondary obligation which is capable of being a penalty; but if the contract does not impose (expressly or impliedly) an obligation to perform the act, but simply provides that, if one party does not perform, he will pay the other party a specified sum, the obligation to pay the specified sum is a conditional primary obligation and cannot be a penalty.
The Court further observed in regards to interpreting certain clauses as 'penal' provisions, as follows:
Modern contracts contain a very great variety of contingent obligations. Many of them are contingent on the way that the parties choose to perform the contract. There are provisions for termination upon insolvency, contractual payments due on the exercise of an option to terminate, break-fees chargeable on the early repayment of a loan or the closing out of futures contracts in the financial or commodity markets, provisions for variable payments dependent on the standard or speed of performance and "take or pay" provisions in long-term oil and gas purchase contracts, to take only some of the more familiar types of clause. The potential assimilation of all of these to clause imposing penal remedies for breach of contract would represent the expansion of the courts' supervisory jurisdiction into a new territory of uncertain boundaries, which has hitherto been treated as wholly governed by mutual agreement.

The Supreme Court of the United Kingdom held that such rules on interpretation, which are an inroad upon the freedom of contract, should not be extended by the judiciary, but by the legislature.

42. The courts of the United States of America have also upheld the validity of take or pay clauses and their industry recognized purpose and have ruled that it is not to be considered a penalty provision. In the case of Prenalta Corporation v. Colorado Interstate Gas Company, 944 F.2d 677 (199), the Tenth Circuit of the US Court of Appeals with reference to a dispute regarding payment that was due under a series of gas purchase agreements, held as follows:
We have previously recognized in International Minerals and Chem. Corp. v. Liano, Inc., 770 F.2d 879, 885 (10th Cir.1985), cert. denied, 475 U.S. 1015, 106 S.Ct. 1196, 89 L.Ed.2d 310 (1986) that a take-or-pay contract provides for performance in the alternative: Since this is a 'take or pay' contract, the buyer can perform in either of two ways. It can either (1) take the minimum purchase obligation of natural gas (and pay) or (2) pay the minimum bill. "Id. See also PGC Pipeline v. Louisiana Intrastate Gas, 79\ F.2d 338, 340 (5th Cir. 1986) : Resources Investment Corp. v. Enron Corp., 669 F.Supp. 1038, 1041 (D.Colo. 1987); Superior Oil Co. v. Transco Energy Co., 616 F.Supp. 98, 107 (IV . D . La. 1985) : Hanover Petroleum Corp. v. Tenneco, Inc., 521 So.2d 1234, 1241 (La. Ct.App.1988) , writ denied, 526 So.2d 800 (La. 1988) : Pogo Producing Co. v. Sea Robin Pipeline Co., 493 So.2d 909, 915-16 (La.Ct.App.1986), writ denied, 497 So. 2d 310 (La. 1986). Because one of the alternative performances in a take- or-pay contract is the payment of money, courts have distinguished the "pay" provision from a liquidated damages provision. Universal Resources, 813 F.2d at 80 n. 4; Sabine Corp. v. ONG Western, Inc., 725 F.Supp. 1157, 1184 (W.D.Okla. 1989); Enron, 669 F.Supp. at 1041. This distinction is particularly necessary because the payments made pursuant to the take-or-pay provision, the pay alternative of Contracts 422 and 516, are not payments for the sale of gas. Kaiser-Francis Oil Co. v. Producer's Gas Co., 870 F.2d 563, 570 (10th Cir. 1989) (quoting A N R Pipeline Co. v. Wagner & Brown, 44 FERC U 61,057, 61,158 (1988) ("[T] he take-or-pay payment for gas is not intended to be a payment for gas and is not a part of the price of gas until it is applied at the time of sale.")); Diamond Shamrock Exploration Co. v. Hodel, 853 F. 2d 1159, 1167-68 (5th Cir. 1988). The difference between alternative performance and liquidation of damages is lucidly explained in 1082 of Corbin on Contracts:
It is evident that some alternative contracts giving the power of choice between the alternatives to the promisor can easily be confused with contracts that provide for the payment of liquidated damages in case of breach, provided that one of the alternatives is the payment of a sum of money.... If, upon a proper interpretation of the contract, it is found that the parties have agreed that either one of the two alternative performances is to be given by the promisor and received by the promisee as the agreed exchange and equivalent for the return performance rendered by the promisee, the contract is a true alternative contract. This is true even though one of the alternative performances is the payment of a liquidated sum of money; that fact does not make the contract one for the rendering of a single performance with a provision for liquidated damages in case of breach.

The Court went on to hold that in regards to the facts of the case at hand:
Under the terms of Contracts 422 and 516. CIG could elect either to purchase the contract quantity or to pay the value of the contract quantity (the "minimum bill") in exchange for Prenalta's tender of the contract quantity of gas or any make-up gas due CIG for past deficiencies. This is clearly an alternative contract which allows CIG to perform either alternative, to "take" or "pay" for the gas, in exchange for Prenalta's return performance, rather than a contract which requires CIG to "take" the contract quantity of gas with a triggering liquidated damages provision if CIG fails to do so."

43. In the case of Universal Resources Corporation v. Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company 813 F.2d 77 (1997), the Fifth Circuit of the US Court of Appeals, in a similar dispute over non-payment under a gas purchase and sale agreement, made the following observations in the context of take or pay clauses:
The purpose of the take-or-pay clause is to apportion the risks of natural gas production and sales between the buyer and seller. The seller bears the risk of production. To compensate seller for that risk, buyer agrees to take, or pay for if not taken, a minimum quantity of gas. The buyer bears the risk of market demand. The take-or-pay clause insures that if the, demand for gas goes down, seller will still receive the price for the Contract Quantity delivered each year.
The Court further went on to hold that the terms of the take or pay clause are unambiguous and common to the gas industry and fully enforceable.

44. The validity and enforceability of take or pay clauses in contracts is recognized in other common law jurisdictions as well, such as New Zealand. In the case of Miraka Limited v Milk New Zealand (Shanghai) Co. Limited, [2017] NZHC 2163, the High Court of New Zealand, adjudicating a dispute arising out of a milk supply contract which contained a minimum supply take or pay provision, made the following observation with reference to take or pay clause:
The rational for take or pay minimum obligations, is relatively routinely commercial. It means issues regarding quality and service do not override obligations to make payment if as much is clear from the contract terms. If a definite sum of money is required to engage the services of another then that obligations must be met within the ti meframe required. Indeed, even if service has not been provided-if a contract anticipates that outcome, and even if the provider suffered no loss if claims as to damage and mitigation of loss are clearly excluded by contract terms.

45. Take or pay clauses are also accepted as valid and enforceable in jurisdiction such as Canada. For example, in the case of Churchill Falls (Labrador) Corporation Limited v. Hydro Quebec 2019 SCMR 454, involved a dispute arising out of the interpretation of a take or pay undertaking regarding the purchase of electricity before the Supreme Court of Canada. The case itself did not revolve around the legality of take or pay provisions but rather about whether there was a price adjustment clause that was implied in the terms of the agreement. The Supreme Court held that there was no ambiguity in the contract to merit the reading in of a provision that allowed for price adjustments in light of price fluctuations. However, the reason behind mentioning this precedent, is to show that even in common law jurisdictions, such as Canada, take or pay clauses in contracts are common and considered valid.

46. After considering the foregoing cases, we are of the opinion that the take or pay clause being a common provision in commercial contracts, especially gas purchase agreements is valid and enforceable and cannot be considered as a penalty provision. Further that the take or pay clause is designed to provide the supplier of a product (i n this case gas), especially in large scale energy projects, such as the one involving the Respondent, with a guaranteed revenue stream so as to secure its significantly sizeable investment in setting up the infrastructure and facilities necessary for making the supply of the product (i .e. gas in this case) by ensuring a rate of return. It is important to clarify that 'paying' for the product is the primary obligation and taking the product is the option which can be exercised by the buyer. The take or pay provision is activated if the buyer does not take the gas. Hence not taking the gas is an option available to the Appellant and cannot form the basis of a breach. Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA provides that if the gas is not taken but is paid for by the buyer, the Appellant can take Make Up Gas during the immediately following twelve months, on as available basis. Hence under Clause 3.6(c) the buyer has the option to take Make Up Gas during a specified period, after which there is no obligation on the seller, SNGPL to provide Make UP Gas even if available. Hence not taking the gas as such cannot be considered as breach of the terms of the GSA even if the buyer has paid for the gas but deferred its delivery.

47. Furthermore the terms of the GSA were negotiated and agreed to between the parties. The Appellant has not challenged the take or pay clause nor payments made under this clause. The Appellant is aggrieved by its inability to take Make Up Gas within the stipulated time for which it claims that since it has paid for the gas and it could not be delivered then the Respondent cannot forfeit the agreed to price under the GSA, rather it can at best recover damages from the Appellant. This argument is premised on the fact that the gas is paid for yet the Respondent does not have to supply it simply because the Appellant missed the cutoff point for taking delivery. We find that the basic premise of the Appellant's argument negates the very term it agreed to in the take or pay clause. We find that not only was the Appellant aware of the fundamentals of the take or pay clause, it was also aware of the fact that this clause gave it an alternate means of performance which it has exercised repeatedly over the years. Having done so, the Appellant cannot lock in on a few invoices and justify its attempt to set off payment obligations under the GSA. Take or pay clauses are a common feature of gas supply arrangements and both parties opted to have this clause in the GSA. Having done so the entire case of the Appellant that the mechanism agreed to under the GSA is unfair and unreasonable is without basis. Hence we find that the take or pay clause does not offend Section 74 of the Contract Act.

The Public Policy Exception

48. The second part of the objection against the Second Claim raised by Mr. Sal man A kram Raja is that even though the parties agreed to the take or pay clause, the fact that the Respondent has not supplied gas but has received payment for it, is unfair and unjust and the sum of Rs.603,202,083/- and does not reflect the loss suffered by the Respondent. As per the arguments made it amounts to unjust enrichment which offends the public policy of Pakistan. Therefore the issue is whether unjust enrichment, as argued in this case amounts to a violation of public policy under Article V(2)(b) of the Convention. Article V(2)(b) of the Convention provides that a court may refuse to enforce an arbitral award if the competent authority in the country where recognition and enforcement is sought finds that the recognition and enforcement of the award would be contrary to the public policy of that country. The term 'public policy' has not been defined in the Convention or under the Act. Both Counsel have relied upon cases from different jurisdictions to show the manner in which courts of different jurisdictions have interpreted the term public policy to give effect to the enforceability of foreign awards. In terms of the cases cited, both parties agreed that public policy means and includes moral, social or economic principles which are sacrosanct and require protection without any exception. Article V therefore gives the Contracting State the ability to decide whether a foreign arbitral award can be or should be enforced in that State by bringing the award within the ambit of the public policy exception.

49. In order to give some meaning to public policy under Article V(2)(b) of the Convention, it is important to note that the Convention does not refer to any universally accepted definition, concept or interpretation of public policy. This has been left totally at the discretion of the Contracting State in which the award is to be recognized and enforced. Consequently Contracting States are free to determine as per their own law and concepts as to what public policy should mean. In order for us to give meaning to the public policy exception we examined the Convention, which is a multilateral treaty that places an obligation on the courts of Contracting States to enforce foreign arbitral awards. Hence we are cognizant of the fact that the intent of the Convention is pro-enforceability of foreign awards and that it cannot achieve this mandate without domestic legislation. The Convention itself is not a self-executing treaty, therefore it requires implementing legislation by the Contracting States. Signatories to the Convention have promulgated their own legislation which enables the enforcement of foreign arbitral awards in terms of the general standards agreed to in the Convention. Hence the Act is the direct result of Pakistan being signatory of the United Nations Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards, 1958. Section 6 of the Act clearly provides that the enforcement of foreign arbitral award is binding on the parties and can only be refused if the court declares, pursuant to Section 7 that the award is unenforceable. Section 7 of the Act provides for the grounds as provided in Article V of the Convention as being the grounds for refusing to recognize and enforce a foreign arbitral award. The scope of Article V is limited yet the language of Article V(2)(b) allows the local forum to mold the public policy exception as per its own understanding and national public policy. Consequently the public policy exception is invoked to prevent enforcement of a foreign award and has been referred to as a very unruly horse which once you astride, you will not know where it will take you. We are of the opinion that violation of public policy must be compelling in order for us to justify setting aside a foreign arbitral award. In this regard, we have considered the decisions from the courts of several different jurisdictions which have given meaning to the word public policy in the context of the cases before them under Article V (2) (b) of the Convention.

50. In the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Parsons and Whittemore Overseas Co., Inc. v. Societe Generale de I'Industrie du Papier RAKTA and Bank of America, (508 F.2d 969, 974 (2d Cir. 1974), the Court held that enforcement of foreign arbitral awards may be denied only where enforcement would violate the forum state's most basic notions of morality and justice. In arriving at this conclusion, the Court was conscious of the Convention's pro-enforcement bias, its supersession of the Geneva Convention, and the principle of reciprocity, lest foreign courts frequently accept it as a defense to enforcement of arbitral awards rendered in the United States. In this case, the United States Corporation against which enforcement of an ICC award was sought contended that, due to certain actions taken by the Government of the United States and the severance of relations between the United States and Egypt, it was required as a loyal citizen to abandon its contractual obligations in Egypt. It was argued that, therefore, enforcement of the award requiring performance under the contract would be contrary to public policy of the United States. The Court rejected this contention and noted that to read the public policy defense as a parochial device protective of national political interests would seriously undermine the Convention's utility.

51. The Court of Final Appeal in Hong Kong in Polytek Engineering Co. Ltd. v. Hebei Import and Export Corp., (23 Y.B. COMM. ARB. 666, 666-84) (Hong Kong Ct. App.) (1999) relied on the standards established in Parsons and Whittemore and held that in order to refuse enforcement under the Convention, an award must be so fundamentally offensive to that jurisdiction's notions of justice that, despite being a party to the Convention, it cannot reasonably be expected to overlook the objection. The Court emphasized on the language 'of that country' in Article V(2)(b) to hold that public policy of the seat would differ from the public policy of the enforcement State. However, to refuse recognition and enforcement, the violation must be compelling and go beyond the minimum that would justify setting aside a domestic judgment or award.

52. The English Courts have also adopted a strong pro-enforcement policy and are reluctant to set aside an award on grounds of public policy. In the context of enforcement of an arbitral award, the English Court of Appeal in a decision cited at Deutsche Schachtbau-und Tiefbohrgesellschaft m.b.H. v. Ras Ali Khaimah National Oil Co., Shell International Petroleum Co. Ltd. Court of Appeal, Not indicated, 24 March 1987 (13 Y.B. COMM.ARB. 522, 534-35 (1988) held that considerations of public policy can never be exhaustively defined, but they should be approached with extreme caution. It has to be shown that there is some element of illegality or that the enforcement would be wholly offensive to the ordinary, reasonable and fully informed member of the public on whose behalf the powers of the State are exercised. In the case of Limited v. Nigerian Nat'l Petroleum Corp., (31 YB COMM. Arb. 853, 856) the High Court of Justice Queens Bench Division, noted that the public policy exception in Section 103(3) of the English Arbitration Act, 1996, is confined to the public policy of England (as the country in which enforcement is sought) in maintaining fair and orderly administration of justice.

53. The Indian Supreme Court has a split view on the public policy exception. In the Shri Lal Mahal Case, the Supreme Court of India reviewed the earlier decisions on public policy and cleared the confusion created on interpreting the concept of public policy with reference to enforcement of foreign awards in India. The Supreme Court held that a wider meaning as opined in the Saw Pipes Case is not applicable when interpreting the public policy exception. The Supreme Court explained that the meaning of the term 'public policy of India' means the fundamental policy of India, the interests of India or justice or morality. The court concluded that a narrower interpretation was required in cases of enforcement of foreign arbitral awards so as to encourage enforcement of foreign awards. This view is a departure from the view relied upon by the Appellant Counsel in the Geco Case where the Indian Supreme Court explained the meaning of the fundamental policy of India with reference to domestic awards to include all fundamental principles which provide basis for the administration of justice and enforcement of law. While agreeing with the decision given in the Saw Pipes Case which called for a wider interpretation of public policy in domestic arbitration, the Indian Supreme Court held that public good, public injury are part of the public policy of India. Both these judgments created ways to invoke the public policy exception whereas the Shri Lal Mahal Case is specifically with reference to foreign awards and requires a narrow approach thereby discouraging interference through the public policy exception.

54. The European Court of Justice in Allsop Automatic Inc. v. Tecnoski snc, Corte di Appello, 22 Y.B. COMM.ARB. 725, 725-26 (Ct. App. Milan) held that the public policy defence should be possible in exceptional circumstance, where there is non-conformity to basic principles of morality and justice. In other cases the French Courts have held that the public policy should be invoked when the enforcement of the award would be contrary to French Legal Order.

55. The judgment of the Court of Appeals, Milan in Allsop Automatic Inc. v. Tecnoski Snc, Corte di Appello, 22 Y.B. COMM.ARB, 725, 725-26 (Ct. App.

Milan) refers to international public policy the body of universal principles shared by nations of similar civilizations, aiming at the protection of fundamental human rights, often embodied in international declarations or conventions. The Highest Arbitrazh Court of the Russian Federation in Ansell S.A. v. OOO Med Bus, Serv., Ruling No.VAS-8786/10, at 2 (2010) (Highest Arbitzah Ct., Russian Federation) has also stated that an award would be contrary to public policy, if it produces results contrary to universally recognized moral and ethical rules or threatening the citizens' life and health, or the State's security. However, both the decisions are obscure and do not go beyond holding that the award in those cases were not contrary to public policy.

56. Even under our own jurisdiction, public policy has been interpreted in the context of the 1937 Act in PLD 1982 Karachi 619 (supra) as being objects which are illegal under law, which are injurious to good government, which are adverse to justice, family life or public interest. Likewise in the context of Section 23 of the Contract Act, public policy would invoke some element of public injury or illegality, such that to hold a contract as illegal it must cause injury to society. Reliance is placed on Sultan Textile Mills (Karachi) Ltd., Karachi v. Muhammad Yousuf Shamsi (PLD 1972 Karachi 226).

57. A review of the decisions given in different jurisdiction establishes that non-interference or the pro-enforcement policy is in itself a policy of Contracting States which is not easily persuaded by the public policy exception argument. It is also representative of the fact that Courts perceive that defining public policy under Article V(2)(b) is the prerogative of each of the Contracting States and is based on the public policy of the State where enforcement is sought. By and large the application of the public policy exception is restrictive and limited to exceptional circumstances that affect the most fundamental values of a State. Accordingly public policy under Article V(2)(b) of the Convention is kept fluid and adaptive and can be invoked in cases of patent illegality or matters which are fundamental for a State. We are of the opinion that the public policy exception allows a Contracting State to safeguard its core values and fundamental notions of morality and justice which may change over time. The public policy exception acts as a safeguard of fundamental notions of morality and justice, such that enforcement of a foreign award may offend these fundamentals. However the Act requires the recognition and enforcement of foreign awards. In this way the Act encourages parties to an alternate dispute resolution mechanism for quicker and less costly resolution of disputes. It makes the foreign arbitral award binding on the parties and prima facie as of right, calls for recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards. Consequently we find that the public policy exception should not become a back door to review the merits of a foreign arbitral award or to create grounds which are not available under Article V of the Convention as this would negate the obligation to recognize and enforce foreign arbitral awards. Such kind of interference would essentially nullify the need for arbitration clauses as parties will be encouraged to challenge foreign awards on the public policy ground knowing that there is room to have the Court set aside the award.

58. In the case before us, the Appellant has argued that not only does the take or pay clause offend Section 74 of the Contract Act but it also results in unjust enrichment which is also against the public policy. Unjust enrichment means that a person is able to retain a benefit, be it money or otherwise, which it is not entitled to as it was received unfairly, unjustly, without legal justification. So a party is enriched at the expense of another party, which has lost something of value. The Appellant argues that retaining an amount greater than the actual loss suffered by the Respondent, for gas not consumed by the Appellant is far less than what was awarded by the Sole Arbitrator. We are not persuaded by the arguments made with respect to unjust enrichment as the liability of the Appellant to pay the Respondent for gas is under the GSA. The amount of Rs.603,202,083/- pertains to invoices raised for the months May to October 2011 for gas consumed by the Appellant. This is neither denied nor disputed by the Appellant. Hence the payment of this amount cannot be termed as unjust or unfair as it is the amount due under the GSA for gas consumed. The GSA is a contractual arrangement between the parties, freely negotiated and executed by the parties. The contract is enforceable and in its entirety as is not offensive to the public policy of Pakistan. As such, we find that the argument of unjust enrichment is misplaced as the payment obligation is contractual, made under a valid and enforceable contract with respect to a payment mechanism agreed to by the Appellant. Furthermore remedy against unjust enrichment is in the form of restitution which in this case would mean that the Respondent returns amounts that it is lawfully entitled to under the GSA. Hence the Respondent has not benefited unfairly or unjustly at the expense of the Appellant. In fact the Respondent has been awarded amounts due to it under the GSA.

59. The Appellant Counsel Mr. Salman Akram Raja has stressed on the unjust enrichment argument to emphasize his case that the unjust enrichment argument goes to the root of the public policy exception being the fundamental policy of law. However, we are not persuaded by this argument either because the Appellant is obligated under the GSA to pay for gas, and if it defers taking the gas, then under Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA it has agreed to take Make Up Gas within the succeeding years. The disputed period arises after the lapse of the make up gas period. Resultantly while the Appellant has agreed to pay and take gas within the make up gas period, it failed to do so. This failure of the Appellant to invoke its make up gas right within the stipulated time does not render the take or pay clause as offensive to the fundamental or core values of Pakistan. Having agreed to the take or pay mechanism it hardly lies in the mouth of the Appellant to allege unjust enrichment pursuant to this clause. Furthermore the Appellant has attempted to set off payments for gas consumed by it against payments it claims have been retained in excess by the Respondent against gas not supplied after the March 2011 cutoff date under Clause 3.6(c) of the GSA. For the payment of actual gas consumed, there can be no argument regarding actual loss or unjust enrichment as the Appellant has consumed the gas supplied. The entire defense of the Appellant with respect to the Respondent claim for payment of Rs.603,202,083/- is an attempt to justify its efforts to set off amounts due against amounts paid for which the Appellant did not take make up gas within stipulated time. Even this effort cannot be justified as the GSA creates specific obligations on both parties. The Appellant has not challenged any of its obligations, any terms of the GSA or even payments made under the take or pay clause. Notwithstanding the same, the Appellant seeks interference in the Sole Arbitrator findings through the public policy exception which would in fact impact the entire mechanism contemplated under Clause 3.6 of the GSA and cannot be isolated to the disputed transactions. We also find that the Sole Arbitrator has interpreted Clause 3.6 of the GSA by holding that the primary obligation is to pay for the gas and that there is no obligation to take gas on the Appellant. Hence he has dispelled the damages payable on breach argument. This contractual interpretation by the Sole Arbitrator goes to the merits of the dispute and is with reference to the performance required under the GSA. No injury is caused in the performance of the GSA to the public, no loss is caused to the public and no fundamental policy is adversely impacted by requiring the parties to make good on their contractual commitments. Resultantly the public policy exception is not made out even as per the Appellant's own case.

60. To conclude, we find that the take or pay clause was freely negotiated and agreed to by the Appellant; that the Appellant's primary obligation under the take or pay clause is to pay for the gas; that the Appellant has the option to take gas at the time of payment or to take it as Make Up Gas at a subsequent date; that the Appellant is not in breach of its obligation to take gas or Make Up Gas under Clause 3.6(a) and (c) of the GSA . We also find that take or pay clause is not a penalty clause; that payments of Rs.603,202,083/- are due to the Respondent for gas actually consumed under the GSA; that the take or pay clause does not offend Section 74 of the Contract Act nor has a case of unjust enrichment been made out. Consequently no ground is made out under Article V (2) (b) of the Convention calling for interference in the Award.

61. In view of the aforesaid, the instant I.C.A. is dismissed and impugned order dated 4.4.2018 passed by the learned Single Judge in C.O.S. No.16/2017 is maintained.

62. One of us (Shahid Jamil Khan, J.) though agree with the result of appeal, being dismissed, has given his observations through a separate note which is part of this judgment.

(SHAHID JAMIL KHAN) (AYESHA A.MALIK)
JUDGE JUDGE

SHAHID JAMIL KHAN, J.---Though I agree with the result of appeal, being dismissed, for which, with respect, my reasoning is different. Yet, I am unable subscribe to the observations and reasons by the Sole Arbitrator, as recorded in Paragraphs 22 and 27 of main judgment.

2. The Sole Arbitrator ignored the spirit and words of the New York Convention while observing that 'there are lacunas in Pakistan Law' regarding the concept of 'Take or Pay' clause, which being predominately English and US, is recognized and utilized internationally. Agreed that purpose of the Convention is pro-enforcement of arbitral awards, made in a territory of State other than the State where recognition and enforcement is sought, nonetheless it is strange, per se, to say that it shall be recognized and enforced, despite being in conflict with the law of that State, on declaration by an Arbitrator that the law of enforcing State carries lacunas or is defective.

Article II (3) of the Convention, (reproduced below) asks the Court of Contracting (enforcing) State to 'refer the parties to arbitration', unless such agreement is found null and void, inoperative or incapable of being performed. Needless to say that the Court of a Contracting State can find the agreement as null and void under its indigenous law and not a foreign or internationally accepted law.

ARTICLE II

"3. The court of a Contracting State, when seized of an action in a matter in respect of which the parties have made an agreement within the meaning of this article shall, at the request of one of the parties, refer the parties to arbitration, unless it finds that the said agreement is null and void, inoperative or incapable of being performed."

Article VII also recognizes the law or the treaties of the country where such award is sought to be relied upon. Article V provides the grounds, in presence of which the recognition and enforcement can be refused;

Its Section 1(a) (reproduced below) recognizes the law to which the agreement is subjected by the parties. It is not the case of either party that GSA was subjected to a foreign law.

ARTICLE V

"1. Recognition and enforcement of the award may be refused, at the request of the party against whom it is invoked, only if that party furnishes to the competent authority where the recognition and enforcement is sought. Proof that:-

(a) The parties to the agreement referred to in Article II were, under the law applicable to them, under some incapacity, or the said agreement is not valid under the law to which the parties have subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law of the country where the award was made; or"

Under Section 2(b) of Article V, recognition and enforcement can also be refused, if the award would be contrary to "Public Policy".

3. In my opinion, the argument and grounds on validity of 'Take and Pay' clause and 'unjust enrichment' were irrelevant. In light of the facts noted in Paragraph No.14 of main judgment, I agree with the finding that Payment Agreement dated 11.01.2010 was not an independent agreement, therefore, absence of arbitration clause in this agreement was of no consequence. The amounts agreed to be paid under this agreement were essentially agreed on a dispute under the 'Take or Pay' clause 3.6 of the GSA. After accepting to pay the amount under dispute, the appellant was estopped from challenging vi res of the clause, at least to the extent of these payments.

For the second claimed amount, appellant's attempt to set off payment of the gas, supplied and consumed, for period May to October 2011, against the payments for which gas was not received is unjustified and that too on self-assumed interpretation. The appellant could not unilaterally decide that the payments not returned, for default in receiving the gas under clause 3.6, is against the provisions of Section 74 of the Contract Act, 1872. Appellant's act necessarily raised a dispute under GSA, therefore, respondent rightly resorted to its arbitration clause.

4. I subscribe to the finding that High Court has exclusive jurisdiction to recognize and enforce a foreign arbitral award under the Act of 2011. By dismissing appeal, I also agree to the extent of recognition of award by learned Single Bench without subscribing to the reasons and observations given by the Sole Arbitration, relating to application of Pakistan's Law and Public Policy.

KMZ/O-2/L Order accordingly.

PLJ 2019 Lahore 677 (DB)

Present*: MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK AND JAWWAD HASSAN, JJ.

PAKISTAN MEDICAL AND DENTAL COUNCIL, ISLAMABAD--Appellant

SHAHIDA ISLAM MEDICAL COMPLEX (PVT.) LIMITED etc.--Respondents

ICA No.36399 of 2019, heard on 24.6.2019.

Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 (XII of 1972)--

----S. 3--Writ Petition--Allowed--Direction to--Grant of Extension in admission Cut off date--Allocated quota--Adjustment of students of de-notified Hashmat Medical College in other colleges by P.M.D.C--Central admission policy--Extraordinary relief--Discrimination--Extra ordinary circumstances--Challenge to--Learned Single Judge through impugned order dated 3.6.2019 concluded that HMC has been allowed to admit students and Bolan University is seeking admission beyond deadline given by PMDC, which establishes that deadline for admission is not being honoured by PMDC itself--We are of opinion that these findings have been made against record--We find that reliance on HMC was totally misconceived as they were not admitting any medical or dental students since it was de-notified on 14.01.2019--Appellant PMDC decided to adjust students already enrolled and registered with HMC as they had commenced their academic year with said college in November 2018 to safeguard their admission in medical and dental colleges--For purposes of this adjustment, candidates were given an opportunity to approach colleges of their choice as per list provided to them to seek adjustment--This is not a case of discrimination, to contrary it is indicative of responsible manner in which PMDC has attempted to adjust 44 students who were already enrolled in HMC so that they do not lose out on account of de- notification of HMC--We also note that adjusting old students is different and distinguishable from admitting new students which fact was not considered in impugned order--Hence we are of opinion that no concession was given to HMC on basis of which learned Single Judge concluded that concession given to HMC should be given to Respondent Colleges before Court--We have heard all learned counsels for parties at length and do not find any irregularity or discriminatory practice exercised by PMDC during this time--To contrary we find that numerous meetings took place in which PMDC tried to streamline admission process so as to ensure that admission process for 2018-19 session was not adversely affected by delays of there being no Council--Any admission offered to such colleges is by way of a concession and cannot be claimed as of right--PMDC is required to maintain its academic calendar and follow schedule provided in Regulations for purposes of admissions, recognition, registration and examination--Although we understand that certain delays are out of PMDC's control, nonetheless effort must be made to streamline registration process and to ensure that where registration takes place in middle of academic year, colleges be refrained from admission in that academic year, if it means compromising on academic calendar--Extraordinary circumstances were duly considered and extensions were given under Regulations and by way of special relaxation--Hence contention of Respondent Colleges was totally misconceived that they be given more time to fill up vacant seats--No legal right has been infringed and PMDC has not acted in a manner which was detrimental to Students or Colleges--We hold that learned Single Judge should not have interfered with cut off date or academic calendar--We also note that petitioners before learned Single Judge sought extraordinary relief from Court which was beyond scheme and provisions of Regulations--As to Students before Court their prayer was that admissions be allowed so that all vacant seats are filled up and merit list is revised sufficiently to ensure that all seats are filled up--We find that even this prayer is against provisions of Regulations which sets out deadlines for admission and registration of students--Furthermore UHS or PMDC declare a cut off merit beyond which students cannot be admitted--Hence Court cannot grant admissions to students without considering their merit and fact that they did not make it in nine merit lists--Intra Court appeals were allowed.

JUDGMENT

Mrs. Ayesha A. Malik, J.--This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant ICA along with connected ICAs detailed in Schedule "A" appended with the judgment.

2. The instant ICA and ICAs No.36401/19, 36402/19 have impugned order dated 3.6.2019 whereby the learned Single Judge allowed the writ petitions of the medical colleges in the following terms:

> In view of the above, this petition, along with connected petitions, is allowed to the extent that respondents are directed to extend the same relief, as has already been granted to Hashmat Medical College, Gujrat as well as the concession given to Bolan University of Medical and Dental Health Sciences, Quetta, as is evident in advertisement dated 31.05.2019 published in Daily Dawn. The necessary process/approvals shall be initiated/granted within 7-days from the date of receipt of certified copy of this order.

3. ICA No. 31021/19 has impugned order dated 14.3.2019 passed by the learned Single Judge in WP No.9778/2019 wherein Avicenna Dental College sought a direction to the University of Health Sciences ("UHS") to conclude the admission process for the dental college with respect to the 2018-19 academic session and the learned Single Judge allowed the writ petition of Avicenna Dental College by directing the Respondents to admit students against 50 seats allocated to Avicenna Dental College. In this case the learned Single Judge has relied upon earlier decisions made in WP Nos.9468/19, 9503/19 and 9493/19.

4. ICAs No.16407/19, 16416/19, 16419/19 have impugned order dated 28.2.2019 passed by the learned Single Judge whereby the petitions of the medical and dental colleges were allowed and UHS was directed to admit students after the cut off date of 31.1.2019 as per the allocated quota.

Arguments of the Appellant, Pakistan Medical and Dental Council ("PMDC)"

5. Chaudhary Muhammad Umar, Advocate for the Appellant PMDC argued that the underlying objection that the Appellant has in all ICAs is with respect to the extension granted by the Court in the admission cut off date, which is regulated by PMDC. Specifically he argued that in ICAs No.36399/19, 36401/19 and 36402/19 the impugned order dated 3.6.2019 has allowed the writ petitions of the medical colleges and students on the ground of discrimination whereas no case of discrimination was made out by the Respondents. He explained that Hashmat Medical College, Gujrat ("HMC") is not allowed to admit any new student as the college was de-notified by the Federal Government vide notification dated 14.01.2019, hence there is no question of any student being admitted to HMC. Learned counsel explained that the Appellant did not extend the deadline of admissions to HMC, rather it adjusted students of HMC in other medical colleges to safeguard the academic year of the students. Learned counsel submitted that the contention that HMC was allowed admission beyond the cut off date of 31.5.2019 is factually incorrect and the conclusion that some benefit was given to HMC for the purposes of admission is contrary to the record. Learned counsel explained that 44 students of the de-notified HMC were adjusted in other medical colleges, hence it was not the medical college that was given any benefit, rather it was students already enrolled with HMC who were adjusted in other medical colleges so that they complete their education. Learned counsel argued that there is a distinction between adjusting enrolled students and admitting new students, which distinction was not taken into consideration.

6. Learned counsel further argued that the second ground which prevailed with the learned Single Judge in order dated 3.6.2019 was an advertisement issued by Bolan University of Medical and Health Sciences, Quetta ("Bolan University") dated 31.5.2019 calling for admission. Learned counsel argued that in the first case the advertisement was never produced by the petitioners on the first date of hearing nor appended in any of the writ petitions. Notwithstanding the same, the Appellant informed the learned Single Judge that the advertisement relied upon has been issued by the Bolan University without any permission from the Appellant, meaning thereby that this was done at their own instance. Hence PMDC has not discriminated against the medical and dental colleges as its not granted any extension to Bolan University. Learned counsel argued that the action of any admitting university without permission from PMDC does not amount to discrimination as PMDC never allowed Bolan University to call for admissions after 31.5.2019. Learned counsel also argued that there was yet another distinction which was not considered by the Court being that the academic year in the Province of Punjab commenced in November, 2018 whereas the academic year has not commenced in the Province of Baluchistan. Hence even on this account reference to Bolan University is misconceived and does not establish any discrimination.

7. With reference to ICAs No. 16407/19, 16416/19, 16419/19 wherein order dated 28.2.2019 has been impugned, he argued that several medical and dental colleges filed petitions alleging therein that PMDC had caused unreasonable delay in the recognition and registration process and due to the central admission policy the admission process was delayed. Consequently the Respondent Colleges had less time to fill up their available seats. Also that on 8.1.2019 the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 2019 ("2019 Ordinance") was promulgated by virtue of which the adhoc Council approved by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan was dissolved and the new Council held its first session on 31.3.2019. These being extraordinary circumstances required extraordinary measures, hence the Court directed the Appellant and the UHS to send students for admissions with the medical and dental colleges after the cut off date of 31.1.2019. He argued that the admission period was extended from 31.12.2019 to 31.1.2019 and then to 31.3.2019 and further to 10.4.2019 keeping in mind the extraordinary circumstances. He stated that these colleges have filled up their seats and the only issue against the order of 28.2.2019 which needs to be considered is that the Respondent Colleges have no legal right to claim admission beyond the cut off date; that the Court should not have substituted the opinion of the Council with that of its own as the PMDC acted as per law in the best interest of the students.

8. Learned counsel argued that PMDC is the regulatory authority which has duly considered the extraordinary circumstances for the session of 2018-19 and has provided nine merit lists to the various different medical and dental colleges for the purposes of admissions and has also extended the cut off date from 31.12.2018 to 31.03.2019 and to 10.04.2019. Under the circumstances, he argued that a fair chance was given to all colleges including the Respondent Colleges before the Court. Hence their case that they have been discriminated or that they have not been given sufficient opportunity to fill up their seats is totally without any basis. He further argued that there is a requirement under the MBBS and BDS (Admission, House Job and Internship) Regulations, 2018 ("Regulations") for a nine month academic year, which cannot be maintained if the admission process is continuously extended to accommodate the wishes of medical and dental colleges. He also argued that admission through the centralized induction system is at its inception and due consideration to the different issues and problems that arise is given by the PMDC. Also the fact that the old Council was dissolved on 8.1.2019 and the new Council was notified on 28.2.2019 was taken into consideration. All these factors being extraordinary circumstances resulted in extensions up to 31.3.2019 and then 10.4.2019. Under the circumstances, the impugned orders failed to take into consideration that students admitted in the month of March, April, May or June cannot catch up or complete the academic year which started in November, 2018 and will end by December, 2018 with examinations scheduled in December, 2019.

Arguments by the Respondents

9. Mr. Munawar us Salam, Advocate for Respondent No.1, Shahida Islam Medical Complex argued that the College was established in 2016-17, however registered on 29.03.2019. On 01.04.2019 the college asked for admission for 2018-19 session to 50 students. A list was provided on 09.04.2019 of 50 students, however only ten seats were filled. The college requested for 40 more students, however the matter was delayed and eventually on 17.04.2019, the college was informed that no further admission can be made. Learned counsel argued that once the college is recognized and registered it is obligatory for the Appellant to ensure that the college is provided students for the purposes of admission against the sanctioned seats; that the seats could not be filled up from 01.04.2019 until the issuance of the impugned letter of 17.04.2019 through no fault of the college rather on account of in-action and slackness of the PMDC and the UHS; that a heavy investment has been made in setting up the college and if the seats are vacant in the first year, they will remain vacant until the fifth year meaning thereby that the Respondent college will have to bear a heavy loss since it cannot recover any fees from the vacant seats.

10. With respect to the case of Akhtar Saeed Medical and Dental College, Lahore, their grievance is that the college has been affiliated since 2009 providing education and awarding MBBS and BDS degrees. Under the centralized admission policy, seats have to be filled by the admitting university as per the allocation made by the PMDC, such that the medical colleges are provided lists against the number of available seats of students seeking admission as per their choice in any medical college. Hence PMDC provides the merit list to the medical colleges of the students who can be offered admission in the event of any vacancy. PMDC is required to provide successive lists to the merit list so as to ensure that the vacant seats are filled up quickly. For the academic year 2018-19 the Appellant did not fulfill its statutory obligation of allowing medical and dental colleges to fill up their vacant seats. Furthermore, they acted in a discriminatory manner by allowing admissions in HMC and allowing admission to Bolan University yet denying the Respondent College the right to admit students. He argued that the Respondent College has been making frequent requests to the admitting university UHS as well as PMDC to complete the admission process in such a way that all approved seats are filled up, however no positive steps have been taken by them. Learned counsel further argued that students are available, however the Appellant has not allowed the medical and dental colleges to fill up their vacant seats which is unfair and unreasonable for the colleges as well as students.

11. Chaudhary Sultan Mahmood, Advocate for Respondent students in ICA No.36401/2019 argued that the Respondents are all students who filed WP No.31581/2019 seeking admission against vacant seats. He argued that the Regulations provide for a centralized admission mechanism on the basis of which one merit list is made and the medical and dental colleges are allocated students in terms of the preference given by the students. In some cases the students do not opt for the medical or dental college which offered them a seat as they get upgraded to one of their higher options or they opt not to accept the admission offer, hence the seat remains vacant. The admitting university issues subsequent merit lists offering students on the merit list admission in medical and dental colleges. The students are aggrieved by a decision of the Appellant to not allow any further admission given that the students fall on the merit and given that there are vacant seats in Sahara Medical College, Narowal. Learned counsel argued that this is an irrational and unreasonable decision by the PMDC as students, who are interested in pursuing their career in medical and dental field are denied admission simply on account of an arbitrary cut off date. He stated that no doubt there were nine merit lists, however, the Respondents were likely to come up on the next set of merit list if they were allowed by PMDC. The entire thrust of their case is that the vacant seats should be made available to the students whose names are available on the merit list.

12. Learned counsel for ICAs No. 16407/19, 16416/19, 16419/19 while impugning orders dated 28.2.2019 and counsel for ICA No.31021/19 stated that admissions have been completed since the cut off date was extended to 31.3.2019. Hence they do not have any grievance against the PMDC or UHS. However, the Appellant Counsel clarified that notwithstanding the extension granted by PMDC at the orders of the Court, the issue whether there is a right to seek extension from the Court, remains.

Issues

13. The issues raised before the Court as set out by the Appellant are firstly; whether a case of discrimination was made out on the facts in order to grant the Respondent Colleges permission to admit students after the cut off date of 10.04.2019; secondly whether the discretion exercised by the Appellant with respect to its decision for not extending the cut off date for admission was in any manner arbitrary, unreasonable or irrational and thirdly whether the medical and dental colleges or students can seek, as of right, admission beyond the cut off date.

The facts and opinion of the Court

14. The Respondent Colleges and students filed writ petitions before this Court impugning therein letter dated 17.04.2019 issued by the Appellant to the Team Leader Admission of the UHS being the admitting university. In terms of this letter admissions to Shahida Islam Dental College, Lodhran were allowed till 09.04.2019 on the basis of a final merit list provided to the Respondent College. The PMDC informed the college that it has decided that no further admission will take place after 09.04.2019 and in the event that a student does not take up the seat then that seat remains vacant as no further admissions will be permitted. The Respondent College was aggrieved by this letter because they were registered on 29.03.2019 and applied for admission on 01.04.2019. On 04.04.2019 the Respondent College was informed that they should complete all admissions by 08.04.2019. On 08.04.2019 the Respondent College informed the PMDC that interested candidates were asked to apply for admission at the medical college, however no list has been provided with respect to the names of such students to the college. The UHS responded that the merit list of students who gave their consent for admission with the Respondent College has been submitted to the PMDC for further action. On 10.04.2019 PMDC approved admissions for the session 2018-19 for the Respondent College. On 13.04.2019 the Respondent College wrote to the UHS that only ten students got admission on the basis of the list provided by the UHS as most of the students on the list were admitted by other colleges, hence could not be admitted with the Respondent College. Therefore once again the Respondent College sought 40 students to complete the admission process. On 15.04.2019 the UHS informed the PMDC of the number of vacant seats with the Respondent College as only ten students had taken admission and 40 seats were vacant. On 16.04.2019 the UHS informed the PMDC that all lists have been provided to the Respondent College, 18 candidates gave their consent for admission with the Respondent College out of which some of the candidates took admission in other colleges and 22 other students also did not join the College. Essentially in terms of this letter, UHS confirmed that only ten students took admission in the Respondent College whereas the other students named in the list either did not take admission in the medical college or preferred to take admission in some other medical college. On 17.04.2019 the PMDC informed UHS that no further admission can take place with respect to Shahida Islam Dental College, Lodhran. In terms of the contents of the petition, no ground of discrimination is made out and the only case put forward by the Respondent College was that since they were registered on 29.03.2019 and the admission process started on 01.04.2019 and ended on 09.04.2019, hence they were not able to fill up the 50 allocated seats. Therefore 40 seats remain vacant, which reason cannot be attributed to the Respondent College as there was no delay on their part. Their main contention before the Court was that the requisite number of students allocated to the College for admission has not been filled up due to the delay by PMDC. The record shows that the letter issued by the PMDC for the adjustment of students of HMC was not part of the petitions and was provided subsequently.

15. So far as Akhtar Saeed Medical and Dental College, Lahore is concerned, they were provided nine merit lists from the beginning of the admission process uptill the date of 31.03.2019 and thereafter 09.04.2019. Subsequent to that the Respondent College repeatedly wrote to the PMDC as well as the UHS seeking more admission to fill up the vacant seats. As per the letters four seats remained vacant, which they were desirous of filling up. In terms of the contents of the petition there is no ground alleging discrimination with reference to the HMC or the advertisement issued by Bolan University.

16. With respect to Respondent Students in ICA No.36401/2019, their case is that since there are vacant seats, they should be allowed to fill up the vacant seats by allocating more students to Sahara Medical College, Narowal. In terms of the contents of the petition no allegation of discrimination was made out. Also no reference to HMC or Bolan University was found in this case. The record shows that it was never the case of these students that they have been discriminated against or that PMDC was acting in a discriminatory manner rather their only contention was that they be granted admission since there are vacant seats available in different medical and dental colleges.

17. In terms of the aforesaid, the record shows that it was never the case of any of the Respondent College or the Respondent Students that they have been discriminated against vis-a-vis HMC or Bolan University. These facts were allegedly brought to the notice of the Court during arguments. The learned Single Judge through the impugned order dated 3.6.2019 concluded that HMC has been allowed to admit students and Bolan University is seeking admission beyond the deadline given by PMDC, which establishes that the deadline for admission is not being honoured by the PMDC itself. We are of the opinion that these findings have been made against the record. The letter of 10.04.2019 issued by PMDC is with reference to the adjustment of students of the defunct HMC, against vacant seats. The letter is addressed to a candidate Adeeba Latif and reference to 44 first year students of HMC whose cases were taken up by the PMDC in its meeting on 02.05.2019 wherein it was decided that in order to protect the interest of the students and enable them to continue with their education in medicine, these 44 students be adjusted in medical and dental colleges having vacancies. As a result Adeeba Latif was informed that she should approach any of the medical colleges in the attached list to seek adjustment in the first year program, subject to fulfilling the requirements of the college in terms of payment of fee etc. Furthermore HMC was de-notified on 14.1.2019, hence there was no question of HMC being allowed any admission. Hence we find that reliance on HMC was totally misconceived as they were not admitting any medical or dental students since it was de-notified on 14.01.2019. The Appellant PMDC decided to adjust the students already enrolled and registered with HMC as they had commenced their academic year with the said college in November 2018 to safeguard their admission in medical and dental colleges. For the purposes of this adjustment, candidates were given an opportunity to approach the colleges of their choice as per the list provided to them to seek adjustment. We find that the case of adjusting students of HMC cannot be termed as discriminatory when compared with admitting new students. The adjusting students commenced their academic year in November 2018 and were adjusted as the college was de-notified. This is not a case of discrimination, to the contrary it is indicative of the responsible manner in which the PMDC has attempted to adjust 44 students who were already enrolled in HMC so that they do not lose out on account of the de- notification of HMC. We also note that adjusting old students is different and distinguishable from admitting new students which fact was not considered in the impugned order. Hence we are of the opinion that no concession was given to HMC on the basis of which the learned Single Judge concluded that the concession given to HMC should be given to the Respondent Colleges before the Court.

18. So far as the second ground of discrimination with respect to the advertisement issued by Bolan University, we note that this is merely an advertisement issued by the university which in no manner suggests or indicates that they have been allowed to issue this advertisement by the PMDC. Learned counsel for PMDC has categorically stated that Bolan University has been called upon to explain why it has issued the said advertisement and is seeking to make admission beyond the cut off date announced by the PMDC being 31.03.2019. We also note that the counsel for PMDC explained that the academic year in the Province of Baluchistan with respect to medical and dental colleges has not commenced whereas the academic year with respect to medical and dental colleges in the Punjab has commenced. This fact alone distinguishes the case of Bolan University from that of the Respondent Colleges and in no manner can be termed as discriminatory with respect to the decision taken by the PMDC. Therefore, we find that the findings of the learned Single Judge on the point of discrimination are totally without basis and against the facts.

19. The second issue before the Court is whether PMDC has acted in a discriminatory, unreasonable or irrational manner with respect to its decision to stop admissions after 10.4.2019. This issue is of significance because the crux of the petitions filed by the Respondent Colleges as well as the Students is that PMDC has not acted in accordance with its mandate under the law nor has it exercised parental jurisdiction with respect to the students seeking admission in medical and dental colleges. The 2019 Ordinance provides that a uniform minimum standard of basic medical education and training and recognition of qualifications in medicine and dentistry be established through the PMDC. In terms of Section 15 of the 2019 Ordinance, recognition of medical institution, medical university and qualification is the sole responsibility of the PMDC and all medical colleges shall apply to the PMDC for recognition of its institution as well as all its degrees. Regulation 9 of the Regulations provides for admission process. In terms of Regulation 9(22) all admissions for private medical and dental institutions shall be completed by the 31st December of each year except admissions under Regulation 12(9) of Part II. However, the last date of admission in medical and dental institutions may, in extraordinary circumstances, be extended by not more than one month by the Admission Board constituted under Regulation 3. Regulation 9(23) provides that the lists detailing particulars of admitting students in public and private medical and dental institutions be submitted by the concerned Admitting University to the Council not later than the 31st March of each year for registration with PMDC and no such list and particulars of any student for registration shall be entertained after the said date. Regulation 10 of the Regulations provides that examination for each degree shall be at the end of each academic year. These Regulations were amended by the PMDC such that the academic year should spread over at least nine calendar months and every professional examination shall be held at the end of the academic year. Hence in terms of the Regulations a scheme for admission and registration with the PMDC has been provided. The admission period commences each year after announcement of the dates by the PMDC. For the purposes of admission the order of preferences given by a candidate shall be final and cannot be changed and admissions shall be made on the basis of the preference given by the candidate. In case of vacant seats a candidate can be upgraded in a subsequent list to an institution higher in preference before 31st March of each year when the final lists of admitted students is sent to the PMDC for registration. Therefore, as per the Appellant, the candidates set out their preferences for admission in medical and dental colleges and after clearing the admission test the candidates whose names are available on the merit list will be placed in medical and dental colleges as per their given preference. Regulation 9(22) provides that the admission process must be completed by 31st December of each year and if at all, there is any extension it can only be in extraordinary circumstances that too, for one month. Once the admission process has concluded the students admitted in the medical and dental colleges have to be registered with the PMDC no later than 31st March of each year. The academic year must be at least nine calendar months after which the mandatory professional examinations are to be scheduled in terms of Regulation 10 of the Regulations.

20. The scheme provided under the Regulations controls the admission process, the academic year and registration process so as to ensure that at least a nine month academic year is available for students admitted in medical and dental colleges. The significance for regulating the admission process is reflected in the scheme provided PMDC as the regulator aims to admit students with the highest merit into the medical and dental colleges. Admission is a competitive process for which a clear and transparent process must be available so that candidates and colleges are duly informed of the opportunity and criteria for admission. The central admission system is in furtherance of this objective so as to ensure that there is little interference from the colleges and the choice of the candidate is given priority. When reviewing the actions and decisions of a regulatory authority the Court must consider all the facts and the role of the regulator and give deference to the regulator's decision unless grossly unreasonable so as to be infringing on a fundamental right or is against the law. The deference doctrine requires that the Court should defer to the decision of the regulator and not replace the regular decision with that of its own. Hence it is the decision making process which is reviewed so as to ensure due process of law and the procedures provided are followed.

21. In the cases before us for the purposes of 2018-19 session, the deadline for admissions was 31.12.2018 which was extended several times in order to counter the extraordinary circumstances prevalent in the year 2019. The first extension was granted from 31.12.2018 to the end of 31.1.2019 in accordance with the requirements of the Regulations. Subsequently, the Council was dissolved on 8.1.2019 after which a new council was notified on 28.2.2019 which held its first meeting on 13.3.2019 where they granted another extension in the admission process to make up for the loss of time due to the fact there was no council. Several writ petitions were filed seeking more time in the admission process as a consequence to which the PMDC in its meeting dated 13.3.2019 decided to extend the admission process uptill 31.03.2019. The circumstances, spanning from January to March, 2019 prevented the admission process from being complete as there was no Council. Hence the PMDC took extraordinary steps to protect the interest of the students as well as medical and dental colleges to ensure that maximum benefit is granted for the purposes of admission and to fill up the vacant seats in the colleges. A total of nine merit lists were issued on the basis of which students were admitted in the colleges of their given preference or were upgraded to higher colleges as per their preference. We have heard all the learned counsels for the parties at length and do not find any irregularity or discriminatory practice exercised by the PMDC during this time. To the contrary we find that numerous meetings took place in which the PMDC tried to streamline the admission process so as to ensure that the admission process for the 2018-19 session was not adversely affected by the delays of there being no Council.

22. Learned counsel for the Respondents argued at great length on the significance of the nine month academic year and whether it is mandatory or directory and whether adjustments can be made after the deadline given. However we are not convinced by the arguments made that this Court should interfere in the planning of the academic calendar so far as medical and dental colleges are concerned. The responsibility of planning the academic calendar is that of the regulator PMDC. Its primary function is to carry out admissions, registration and examinations as per the requirements of the Regulations to ensure that premier education is provided by the medical and dental colleges over a span of at least nine months, meaning that the academic year in the very least must be nine months, if not more. There is nothing before us on the basis of which the decision to have a nine month academic year can be questioned or the decision to control the admission process as per the Regulations and issue the cut off dates can be called into question.

23. In our opinion one of the cause of the problem for seeking interference in the admission process is when cases of registration and recognition of colleges are processed during the academic year and colleges are given recognition in the middle of the academic year. The Respondent Shahida Islam Medical College was registered on 29.03.2019 right in the middle of the academic year. They sought admissions thereafter and were given an opportunity to fill up their seats, however could not manage to fill up more than ten seats out of the allocated 50 seats. As per the record, due to the late registration and notification their admission process did not commence until 1.4.2019. There are two substantive issues that arise in such cases; firstly the process of inspection and recommendation for registration with the Federal Government by the PMDC should be regulated keeping in mind the academic year so as to ensure that medical and dental colleges are recognized and registered under the law in a timely manner. For this an annual scheme may be prepared which streamlines the recognition and registration process to match the academic year. In cases where they are registered in the middle of the academic year, if at all they are granted any admission it cannot be at the expense of the academic calendar and cannot be based on the understanding that extra classes, extra time and vacation time will be utilized to make up the months which have missed. Not only will this compromise on the quality of education but it also unnecessarily burdens the students to complete the work required to be done over a period of at least nine months being the minimum months required for such education in a shorter time. Second is the issue of admissions by colleges in the middle of an academic year. The process of recognition and registration does not ipso facto create a right for admission in the existing academic year simply because a college is recognized and registered. We are of the opinion that any admission offered to such colleges is by way of a concession and cannot be claimed as of right. PMDC is required to maintain its academic calendar and follow the schedule provided in the Regulations for the purposes of admissions, recognition, registration and examination. Although we understand that certain delays are out of PMDC's control, nonetheless effort must be made to streamline the registration process and to ensure that where registration takes place in the middle of academic year, colleges be refrained from admission in that academic year, if it means compromising on the academic calendar.

24. In view of the aforesaid, we are of the opinion that the extraordinary circumstances were duly considered and the extensions were given under the Regulations and by way of special relaxation. Hence the contention of the Respondent Colleges was totally misconceived that they be given more time to fill up vacant seats. No legal right has been infringed and PMDC has not acted in a manner which was detrimental to the Students or the Colleges.

25. Under the circumstances, we hold that the learned Single Judge should not have interfered with the cut off date or the academic calendar. We also note that the petitioners before the learned Single Judge sought extraordinary relief from the Court which was beyond the scheme and provisions of the Regulations. As to the Students before the Court their prayer was that admissions be allowed so that all vacant seats are filled up and the merit list is revised sufficiently to ensure that all seats are filled up. We find that even this prayer is against the provisions of the Regulations which sets out the deadlines for admission and registration of students. Furthermore the UHS or PMDC declare a cut off merit beyond which students cannot be admitted. Hence the Court cannot grant admissions to students without considering their merit and the fact that they did not make it in nine merit lists. Consequently, we allow all the ICAs detailed in Schedule "A", setting aside the impugned orders dated 3.6.2019, 14.3.2019 and 28.2.2019.

----Ss. 133 & 113---Reference to High Court---Minimum Tax---Adjustment of excess amount of tax paid---Scope---Taxpayer, while filing the return of income, had claimed adjustment of minimum tax brought from tax years 2011, 2012 and 2013---Additional Commissioner had observed that as the appellant had not paid any tax under normal tax regime, therefore, the credit under S. 113(2)(c), Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 was not available---Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals) had rejected the appeal of taxpayer---Appellate Tribunal accepted the appeal of taxpayer and held that S. 113(2)(c), Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 was applicable in loss cases or zero tax payable cases---Validity---Findings of Appellate Tribunal were rooted in law---Reference application was dismissed.
Asjad Saeed Advocate, for the Applicant.

JUDGMENT
This income tax reference is filed under section 133(1) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (the Ordinance) seeking opinion of this Court on two questions of law stated to have arisen out of the order passed by Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue, Lahore.

2. The issue involved in the case was the entitlement of the respondent tax payer to seek adjustment of minimum tax of Rs.37.028 Million in respect of tax years 2011, 2012 and 20 l3 under section 113(2)(c) of Ordinance. The Additional Commissioner disallowed the credit to the tune of Rs.35.232 Million. The appeal filed by respondent tax payer before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals) was also dismissed. The Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue, however, came to the conclusion that section 113(2)(c) of the Ordinance is beneficial in nature and was meant to reduce the burden of taxation in cases where losses have been suffered by the taxpayer. While accepting the appeal of the respondent taxpayer, the Appellate Tribunal .Inland Revenue accordingly declared that Section 113(2)(c) of the Ordinance is also applicable in cases where losses have been suffered and that benefit thereof cannot be disallowed to the respondent taxpayer.

3. The findings of the Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue are rooted in law and, therefore, the questions framed by the appellant do not raise and legal issue requiring us to render our opinion thereon.
4. This reference application is accordingly dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK J.--This common judgment decides the the instant ICA as well as connected ICAs Nos.62075/19, 62076/19 and 62077/19 having common questions of law and facts and arise out of the same impugned judgment dated 10.10.2019 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.Ps. Nos.52871/19, 54133/19, 56170/19 and 58578/19=2020 YLR 97

2. Chaudhary Muhammad Umar, Advocate for the Appellant, Pakistan Medical and Dental Council Islamabad ("PMDC") argued that the Appellant is aggrieved by the impugned judgment on the ground that the impugned judgment was passed without issuing any notice to the Attorney General for Pakistan under Order XXVII-A of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 ("C.P.C.") which was mandatory given that the Respondents had challenged the vires of the amendments made to the MBBS and BDS (Admission, House Job and Internship) Regulations, 2018 ("2018 Regulations"). In this regard, learned counsel has relied upon Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs, Islamabad and others v. Aftab Ahmad Khan Sherpao and others (PLD 1992 SC 723) and Federal Public Service Commission and others v. Syed Muhammad Afaq and others (PLD 2002 SC 167). Furthermore, the Appellant is aggrieved as the impugned judgment has held that the Appellant does not possess the power to make regulations pertaining to admission nor could it have amended the 2018 Regulations since there was no specific provision in the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 2019 ("2019 Ordinance") granting such power to the Appellant. Learned counsel argued that the PMDC is the regulatory body for the medical profession as well as for medical education, training and recognition of qualifications in medicine and dentistry as per the 2019 Ordinance. The preamble of 2019 Ordinance clearly provides for the regulation and control of the medical profession and to establish a uniform minimum standard of basic medical education and training and recognition of qualifications in medicine and dentistry. Learned counsel further argued that in terms of various different pronouncements of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan it is now settled that the PMDC is empowered not only to regulate the admission process and make regulations thereto but also that its regulations are valid and legally binding on all medical and dental colleges across Pakistan. Learned counsel further stated that the provisions of Section 49(2) of 2019 Ordinance have not been appreciated in their proper context given that there is a clear mandate in the said section to alter, repeal or modify regulations. Learned counsel argued that one of the primary functions of PMDC is to regulate the admission process for which the policy and guidelines are set by the PMDC on the basis of which admissions are undertaken throughout Pakistan in medical and dental colleges. He argued that a plain reading of the preamble and the function of the PMDC read with Section 42(2)(a)(b) of 2019 Ordinance clarifies that the mandate for regulating admissions into medical and dental colleges vests with PMDC. Notwithstanding the same, Section 49(2) of 2019 Ordinance specifically grants PMDC the power to amend the 2018 Regulations, therefore there was no justification for setting aside the amendments made to the 2018 Regulations on 30.05.2019. Learned counsel argued that more than 70,000 applicants participated in the admission process. Only four petitioners challenged the amendments on the ground of being dual nationals. He argued that the amendments to the 2018 Regulations were made in May, 2019 yet the petitions were filed in September, 2019 after the petitioners participated in the MDCAT examination and realized that they do not fall at a higher merit for admission in public sector colleges. He relied upon the prayer made in the petitions to urge the point that the matter in issue had already been settled in Muhammad Fahad Malik v. Pakistan Medical and Dental Council and others (PLD 2018 Lahore 75) and Pakistan Medical and Dental Council through President and 3 others v. Muhammad Fahad Malik and 10 others (2018 SCMR 1956) and further that the 2018 Regulations were amended well before the holding of the MDCAT examination giving the Petitioners sufficient time to challenge the amendments if they deemed it so important. He argued that the delay in filing the petitions is simply because they did not meet the merit criteria for public sector universities hence they decided to challenge the entire admission process. This factor was also not duly considered and the impugned judgment set aside the amendments notwithstanding the fact that the admission process so far as the holding of MDCAT examination had taken place and the merit lists were to be announced.

3. On behalf of the Respondents, Mr. Rizwan Mushtaq, Mian Muhammad Aslam, Ms. Uzma Ahmad Bajwa and Mr. Sahir Mahmood Bhatti, Advocates argued that notices under Order XXVII-A, C.P.C. was not required as no constitutional question was involved in the petitions. The only issue is with respect to the powers of PMDC to amend the 2018 Regulations, hence as such the requirement under Order XXVII-A C.P.C. was not mandatory. Learned counsel while distinguishing this case from PLD 1992 SC 723 (supra) and PLD 2002 SC 167 (supra) have placed reliance on Pakistan Automobile Corporation Limited through Chairman v. Mansoor-ul-Haque and 2 others (2004 SCMR 1308). Learned counsel further argued that the impugned judgment has clearly set out the case of the Respondents and clearly provided that since the PMDC did not have the power to make regulations with reference to admissions in medical and dental colleges, they did not have the power to amend the 2018 Regulations. Mr. Rizwan Mushtaq, Advocate argued that the power to make regulations with respect to the admission was deliberately omitted under the 2019 Ordinance to give continuity to the 2018 Regulations which were made under the direction of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2018 SCMR 1956 (supra). Hence PMDC did not have the power to amend the 2018 Regulations. Reliance is placed on Maj. Matloob Ali Khan v. Additional District Judge, East Karachi and another (1988 SCMR 747), Multiline Associates v. Ardeshir Cowasjee and 2 others (PLD 1995 SC 423), Pakistan through Secretary Finance, Islamabad and 5 others v. Aryan Petro Chemical Industry (Pvt.) Ltd, Peshawar and others (2003 SCMR 370) and Suo Motu Case No.13 of 2009 decided on 15.3.2011 (PLD 2011 SC 619). He further relied on the doctrine of CASUS OMISSUS whereby any omission in the statute is considered to be intentional and that mistake cannot be rectified by the courts. Reliance is placed on Amanullah Khan v Chief Secretary, Government of N.WF.P and 2 others (1995 SCMR 1856) and Sabz Ali Khan v. Bismillah Khan and another (1997 SCMR 1781). He further argued that any delay on the part of the Respondents in filing the writ petitions is not only explainable but also irrelevant with respect to the legal questions raised in the writ petitions. Further that the Respondents acquired a vested right to seek admission under the 2018 Regulations since they, at the time of taking their A Level examination in May, 2019 had already decided that they were to participate in the admission process for medical and dental colleges and the sudden changes to the admission criteria brought through the amendments in the 2018 Regulations prejudiced their rights such that they were put to a disadvantage which is wholly unfair and cannot be done by the PMDC. Ms. Uzma Ahmad Bajwa, Advocate added to the arguments that the Respondents are dual national who were entitled to the benefit of Regulations 7 and 8 under the original 2018 Regulations and while their A Level examination was under way, the admission criteria was changed, hence they were deprived of the benefit of Regulations 7 and 8 of the original 2018 Regulations, putting them at a major disadvantage which is against the spirit of 2018 SCMR 1956 (supra). She argued that a lot of effort has been put in by these students in pursuing their desire to study medicine and the PMDC should not be allowed to change the rules and regulations at the last moment as not only did the Respondents acquire a vested right in the admission process to be governed by the 2018 Regulations but also it does not inspire much confidence in the system which is subject to constant change.

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at great length and have also gone through the record. The Appellant has raised the basic objection that notices were not issued under Order XXVII-A C.P.C. given that vires of 2018 Regulations were challenged on the touchstone of the 2019 Ordinance and the petitioners' fundamental rights. We have gone through the contents of the writ petitions and find that these petitions specifically allege that the amendments made by the respondents to the 2018 Regulations are liable to be struck down being against their fundamental rights and contraiy to the applicable laws. We also note that reliance of the Respondents on 2004 SCMR 1308 (supra) is not relevant as this case deals with a service matter in which the Court concluded that notices under Order XXVII-A, C.P.C. are not required. Therefore we find that notices under Order XXVII-A, C.P.C. in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in PLD 1992 SC 723 (supra) is mandatory. At this stage all learned counsel before us plead urgency in the matter as the issues pertain to admissions in medical and dental colleges and the issue of whether admissions are to be made under the 2018 Regulations or not should be resolved at the earliest so as to prevent any further delay in the matter. Ms. Ambeen Moeen, DAG present in Court on instructions stated that the Federal Government adopts the arguments of the PMDC in this case for a decision on its merits. Therefore we proceed to decide the case on its merits.

5. The relevant facts are that the 2018 Regulations were issued on 17.9.2018 which were amended on 30.05.2019 wherein the relevant regulations on the basis of which the writ petitions were filed are Regulations 7, 8 and 9 of the 2018 Regulations. Prior to the amendments, Regulation 7 of the 2018 Regulations provided for the eligibility criteria for MBBS and BDS courses in Pakistan and abroad calling for a sixty percent aggregate in three subjects. Respondent No.1 in I.C.A. No.62077/2019 is aggrieved by the amendment made to Regulation 7(2) of the 2018 Regulations which now requires a seventy percent aggregate in three subjects. The Respondents in ICAs Nos.62074 and 62076 of 2019 are aggrieved by the amendments made to Regulation 8(2) of the 2018 Regulations, which originally provided as follows:-

No candidate shall be eligible for foreign quota seats in public and private Medical and Dental institutions under sub-regulations (1) and (2) unless he holds a permanent foreign nationality or dual nationality or overseas Pakistani students who had studied and passed HSSC 12th grade examination or equivalent from outside Pakistan and has stayed in the foreign country for the whole duration of the above mentioned course (applicable w.e.f session 2021-2022) and possess a certificate from the institution last attended to this effect.

The amendments made on 30.05.2019 to Regulation 8(2) provided as follows:-

No candidate shall be eligible for foreign quota seats in the public and private Medical and Dental institutions under sub-regulations (1) unless, he holds a permanent foreign nationality or is an overseas (being a Pakistani citizen permanently resident in a foreign country) Pakistani student, and who has studied and passed HSSC 12th grade examination or equivalent from outside Pakistan and is a resident of a foreign country at the time of applying for admission and possess a certificate from the institution last attended to this effect.

In terms of the amendments to Regulation 8(2), it was clarified that the foreign quota seats were available for those dual national or overseas Pakistani, who were residing permanently in a foreign country and who had studied and passed the 12th grade examination or equivalent from outside Pakistan and at the time of admission was a resident of a foreign country. The Respondents collectively are also aggrieved by the amendment to the 2018 Regulations which provides the threshold on the basis of which weightage was to be given to O Level and matriculation results. In terms of the 2018 Regulations the formula provided was ten percent weightage given to O Level and matriculation result whereas the amendments of 30.5.2019 did away with the ten percent weightage and the criteria was changed to fifty percent weightage for MDCAT and fifty percent weightage for F.Sc (Pre-Medical)/HSSC/equivalent (50%).

6. The impugned judgment considered the stance of the Respondents and concluded that there was no specific power under Section 42(2) of 2019 Ordinance authorizing PMDC to make regulations with respect to the admissions in medical and dental colleges. The Court further concluded that since there was no specific power under Section 42(2) of the 2019 Ordinance, the provisions of Section 49 of the 2019 Ordinance would not be applicable since the 2019 Ordinance did not permit the PMDC to make regulations related to admissions under Section 42 of the 2019 Ordinance. The Court held that Section 49(2) of the 2019 Ordinance protected all regulations and actions under the repealed Ordinance. However since the 2019 Ordinance did not grant the specific power of making regulations governing the admissions, then the power to alter, repeal or modify the existing regulations was also not available to PMDC being against the mandate of the 2019 Ordinance. It was further held that the power to alter, repeal or modify the regulations could only be allowed if there was a specific power vested in PMDC to make regulations pertaining to admissions.

7. We have duly considered the contentions and arguments of the Respondents' Counsel, however we are not in agreement with the findings in the impugned judgment on this issue. We find that notwithstanding the argument that there is no specific provision authorizing the PMDC to make regulations pertaining to admissions, there is specific authorization given under Section 49(2) of the 2019 Ordinance, being the repeal and saving clause to alter, repeal or modify regulations, decisions, disciplinary action taken by the PMDC, Adhoc Council, Executive Committee or any other committee or authority of PMDC. We also find that Section 42 and Section 49 of the 2019 Ordinance are independent provisions of the 2019 Ordinance and the repeal and saving clause is not dependent on any other provision of the 2019 Ordinance. The objective of the repeal and saving clause precisely as it states is to repeal the previous law being the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council Ordinance, 1962 ("1962 Ordinance") and to save all those decisions, rules and regulations that the legislatures deemed necessary. Under the 2019 Ordinance, the 2018 Regulations were saved making them the relevant regulations for the purposes of admission in medical and dental colleges with the specific power to the new council constituted under the 2019 Ordinance to alter, repeal or modify the existing regulations which included the 2018 Regulations. The power to repeal any law and to save any decision, order, proceeding, rules or regulations under the repealed is a legislative function. It is done with the intent to safeguard that which the legislature deems necessary from the repealing provision. Essentially the saving clause acts as a restriction on the repealing provision exempting all saved items from the repeal. Hence where the legislature has specifically saved the 2018 Regulations made under the repealed Ordinance, with the specific power to alter, repeal or modify the saved regulations, the intent of the legislature is clear and not dependent on any other provision of the 2019 Ordinance. Furthermore we find that there is no conflict with respect to the provisions of Sections 42 and 49 of the 2019 Ordinance as Section 49 grants special permission to the new council to alter, repeal or modify the existing regulations. The new council notwithstanding its power to make regulations as granted in Section 42 has the power to alter, repeal or modify existing regulations. Therefore for the purposes of the dispute raised by the Respondents in their respective petitions, no case was made out against the PMDC that they could not amend the 2018 Regulations on 30.5.2019.

8. We have also examined the prayers in the writ petitions wherein the petitioners essentially challenged the elimination of the quota for dual nationals and the exclusion of the weightage given to O Level results from the admission criteria. In this regard, we note that the petitioners were in fact not entitled to any foreign seat quota under the 2018 Regulations as they are admittedly students who have studied for their O Level and A Levels in Pakistan and for the purposes of their Secondary School Education and 12th grade examination, they did not reside abroad. Even under the original regulations any candidate applying for the foreign quota seats in public and private medical and dental colleges had to have studied and passed the 12th grade examination or equivalent from outside Pakistan and have stayed in the foreign country for the whole duration of the course. Admittedly none of the Respondents before the Court meet with this criteria, hence with respect to the eligibility of a foreign quota seats, the petitioners were not entitled to any relief in their constitutional petitions. Furthermore the Respondents' reliance on 2018 SCMR 1956 (supra) is misconceived as the facts are distinguishable. The amendments were publicized and posted on the website of the PMDC in June 2019 and was available in the booklet information made available to students prior to taking the MDCAT examination. The Respondents took the MDCAT examination and after getting their result filed the petitions in September 2019. Hence the Respondents' contention that the amendments came as surprise to them is totally without basis.

9. Under the circumstances, all four appeals are accepted and the impugned judgment dated 10.10.2019 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.Ps. Nos.52871/19, 54133/19, 56170/19 and 58578/19 is set aside and the 2018 Regulations are restored to their original amended form. Consequently the competent authority can proceed with the admission process as per the 2018 Regulations.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition as well as connected Petitions detailed in Schedule "A" as all Petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. The Petitioners have challenged the imposition of quarter tariff adjustment ("QTA") in the electricity bills issued by the relevant distribution company, who are the Respondents in these petitions. The Petitioners have also challenged the decision dated 14.6.2019 issued by the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority ("NEPRA") and the Notification dated 28.6.2019 issued by the Federal Government.

3. The basic relief sought for by the Petitioners is that the Respondents be restrained from recovering QTA on the consumption of electricity through their electricity bills. The Petitioners before the Court are all consumers of electricity who are aggrieved by the imposition of QTA in their bills on the basis of which the tariff has been adjusted retrospectively. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that as per the billing mechanism, the distribution company, on the basis of the monthly readings, issues bills to consumers in accordance with the tariff notified by the Federal Government. Once the bill is paid, it becomes a past and closed transaction as the Petitioners have paid the bill along with all relevant taxes and on the basis thereof have built that payment into their costs for the purposes of their business. Furthermore once the bill has been paid, there is no justification to seek any adjustment against a paid bill nor does the law provide for the same.

4. Learned counsel further argued that the tariff was first determined on 8.3.2016 being a multi year consumer end tariff for the years 2015 to 2020. Against this tariff, LESCO filed a motion leave to review which was dismissed by NEPRA vide order dated 19.5.2016. The Federal Government made a request to reconsider the tariff which was also dismissed on 1.7.2016 by NEPRA. The Respondent distribution companies approached the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court through various different petitions, consequent to which the matter was remanded to NEPRA to re-determine the tariff for the financial year 2015-16 to 2019-20. On 23.10.2017 NEPRA on its own made some adjustments to the tariff for the financial year 2016-17 and for the first time notification for the financial year 2015-16 and 2016-17 was issued on 22.3.2018. In the meantime on 27.4.2018, Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 ("the Act") was amended, such that several amendments were made to Section 31 of the Act of which Section 31(4) is relevant for the purposes of the dispute before the Court. The Federal Government made a request before NEPRA for making uniform tariff and NEPRA issued its decision on 19.12.2018 for the financial year 2016-17 and 2017-18. This was notified on 1.1.2019. On 14.6.2019 NEPRA made its second decision whereby adjustments were made in the tariff that had already been notified on 1.1.2019. These adjustments were notified on 28.6.2019 after following the requirements of law for public notices and calling for objections. Learned counsel further argued that all adjustments made are in violation of Sections 31(2) (a), 31(2) (c), 31(3) (a) and 31(3) (d) of the Act. Learned counsel further argued that the decision was taken by only three members of NEPRA without any Chairman, which is against law. Reliance is placed on "Sh. Rahmatullah v. The Deputy Settlement Commissioner, Centre, 'A' Karachi and others" (PLD 1963 SC 633), "Sheikh Fazal Ahmad v. Raja Ziaullah Khan and another" (PLD 1964 SC 494), "Islamic Republic of Pakistan through the Secretary, Ministry of Commerce and Local Government (Commerce Division), Islamabad" (1977 SCMR 509), "Imtiaz Ahmad and others v. Punjab Public Service Commission through Secretary, Lahore and others" (PLD 2006 SC 472), "Province of Punjab through Secretary to the Government v. Dr. Muhammad Zafar Iqbal and 10 others" (2018 PLC (C.S) 152) and "Syeda Shazia Irshad Bokhari v. Government of Punjab through Secretary Health and another" (PLD 2005 Lahore 428).

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondent LESCO. Learned counsel for the LESCO stated that the Respondents are Distribution Licensees who filed petitions before NEPRA for determination of consumer end tariff in accordance with the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998 ("1998 Rules"). A public hearing is always given when adjustments are made and any member of the public can raise objections at the hearing. Quarterly adjustments are made on account of the variations in the components of the Power Purchase Price ("PPP") which includes transmission and distribution losses amongst other components. LESCO challenged the determination made on 8.3.2016 and ultimately the matter went to the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court wherein the issue of tariff determination was remanded to NEPRA in terms of the judgment cited at Lahore Electric Supply Company Limited (LESCO) and others v. National Electric Power Regulatory Authority and others (PLD 2018 Islamabad 20). Learned counsel argued that NEPRA issued the tariff and made all adjustments as per the rules; that it has not violated any provision of the Act, the Rules or the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority Guidelines for Determination of Consumer End Tariff (Methodology and Process) 2015 ("the Guidelines") and that in fact this issue has been decided several times all the way up to the august Supreme Court of Pakistan. Learned counsel further stated that the Petitioners have no vested right to challenge the tariff. He argued that a public hearing is given and any objection that the Petitioners have to the prudency of the costs should be raised at that time and that such matter cannot be challenged in Constitutional petition. Learned counsel places reliance on ICC Textiles Limited through Authorized Representative and 31 others v. Water and Power Development Authority (WAPDA), WAPDA House, Lahore through Chairman and 15 others (2009 CLC 1343), Flying Board and Paper Products Ltd. and others v. Government of Pakistan through Secretary Cabinet Division and others (2010 SCMR 517) and in W.P. No.25437/2015 titled Hameed Steel and others v. LESCO and others vide order dated 2.9.2015. He further clarified that essentially QTA has always been made, however, it is for the first time that this has been depicted in a separate box in the bill in terms of the requirements stipulated in the Notification dated 28.6.2019 issued by the Ministry of Energy (Power Division), Islamabad. On the issue of the number of the members who can take a decision with respect to tariff he stated that the matter in issue stands decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in "National Electric Power Regulatory Authority v. Faisalabad Electric Supply Company Limited" (2016 SCMR 550) hence this objection cannot be raised before this Court.

6. Report and parawise comments have also been filed by the Respondent NEPRA. Learned counsel for the Respondent NEPRA argued that NEPRA is statutory body established under the Act for the regulation of provision of electric power service in Pakistan. In terms of the Act, NEPRA is responsible for the determination of tariff. Every distribution licensee files a petition before NEPRA seeking determination of consumer end tariff in accordance with the provision of the 1998 Rules. The salient features of the petitions are published in the newspaper inviting comments, objections and interveners and a public hearing is granted. Subsequently, the tariff determination is made by NEPRA. In the case before the Court a multiyear consumer end tariff was determined for LESCO for a period of five years from 2015 to 2020. Essentially the determination was made on 08.08.2016 after carrying out a public hearing, however, LESCO was aggrieved by this determination, hence it filed a motion for leave for review, which was decided by NEPRA on 19.05.2016. Subsequently, reconsideration request was filed by the Federal Government, which was decided on 01.07.2016. LESCO being aggrieved filed a petition before the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court, Islamabad, which ultimately remanded the matter to NEPRA for reconsideration in terms of PLD 2018 Islamabad 20 (supra). Learned counsel stated that tariff methodology for determining PPP and quarterly adjustment are provided for in the Guidelines. The consumer end tariff is determined to ensure recovery of the revenue requirements of the distribution company in accordance with the Act and 1998 Rules. The Petitioners before the Court had efficacious remedy available to them under the Act in the form of an appeal, which remedy has not been availed by them. Furthermore, they can always participate in the public hearing if they have any objection or comments with respect to the quarterly adjustment. However, the contention that the quarterly adjustments are against the mandate of the law or that they are applied retrospectively is totally without basis as it is part of the mechanism for tariff determination which is prescribed under the law and which has been followed by NEPRA regularly. He explained that quarterly adjustment can only be made after the actual consumption of electricity, hence the Guidelines prescribes for adjustment to be made at end of each quarter, once the actual figures are available. With respect to the arguments made on the composition of NEPRA and the fact that only three members were available at the time when the decision was taken, learned counsel stated that the matter in issue has already been decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2016 SCMR 550 (supra), hence the said issue cannot be raised again before this Court.

7. Report and parawise comments have also been filed by the Respondent FESCO, GEPCO and IESCO. They have adopted the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the Respondent LESCO and NEPRA. On behalf of Federal Government, learned Deputy Attorney General for Pakistan also adopts the arguments made on behalf of NEPRA.

8. Heard and record perused. The impugned decision dated 14.06.2019 by NEPRA is related to the periodical adjustment in Tariff for the 1st and 2nd Quarters of the FY 2017-18. As per the decision, XWDISCOs filed their quarterly adjustment request on account of the variation in the PPP, which includes the impact of transmission and distribution losses for the first and second quarters being July to September, 2018 and October to September, 2018. A public hearing was held on 13.03.2019 and subsequently NEPRA gave due consideration to the comments, objections and interveners. A decision was made on 14.06.2019, which was communicated to the Federal Government for notifying in the official Gazette. The Petitioners are aggrieved by this decision on the ground that it is not in accordance with the Act; that it has retrospective effect and that the NEPRA was not duly constituted at the time. They rely on Section 31 of the Act to urge their point of illegality and being against the mandate of the law.

9. The basic frame work of the law for tariff determination falls under the Act. Section 7 provides for the powers and functions of the Authority, wherein Section 7(2)(i) prescribes that the Authority shall issue guidelines and standard operating procedures for tariff determination. Section 7(3)(a) prescribes that NEPRA shall determine tariff, rates, charges and other terms and conditions for supply of electric power service by the generation, transmission, and distribution companies and recommend to the Federal Government for its notification. Section 31 provides that the Authority shall in the determination, modification or revision of rates, charges and terms and conditions for the provision of electric power service be guided by the national electricity policy, the national electricity plan and such guidelines as may be issued by the Federal Government in order to give effect to the national electricity policy and national electricity plan. In terms of Section 31(3) the general guidelines applicable for tariff determination have been provided in which it is stated that tariff should allow the licensees the recovery of any and all cost prudently incurred to meet the demonstrated needs of their customers. Section 31(4) provides that NEPRA shall determine a uniform tariff for distribution licensees on the basis of their consolidated accounts. Once the tariff has been approved, it has to be notified by the Federal Government in the official Gazette under Section 31(7). The Act also provides for an appeal under Section 12G against any decision or order of the Authority and the quorum of the Appellate Tribunal is in terms of Section 12E. The 1998 Rules prescribe for the procedure to be followed by the Distribution Licensees when filing its tariff petitions such that Rule 5 of the 1998 Rules requires publication and service of notices for a public hearing and in terms of Rule 9 the hearing is given by the Authority. Rule 17 of the 1998 Rules provides for the standards and guidelines on the basis of which tariff shall be determined and again in terms of Rule 17(3)(i) of the 1998 Rules tariff should allow licensees the recovery of any and all costs prudently incurred to meet the demonstrated needs of their customers.

10. In exercise of power under Section 7(2)(i) of the Act, NEPRA has issued Guidelines which provides for the methodology to be adopted with reference to tariff determination. In terms of Guideline 49 quarterly and bi-annual PPP adjustments are prescribed with reference to the PPP components being adjustments pertaining to the capacity and transmission charges, the impact of T&D losses and adjustment of variable O&M. Each component of the PPP is provided for in the revenue requirement of the distribution licensees on the basis of projected figures which are subject to adjustment as per actual figures as it is a pass through item. Also since there is a requirement for a uniform consumer and tariff at a national level, this is determined by NEPRA and notified by the Federal Government. The XWDISCOs file their adjustment requests on account of PPP variation in terms thereof. The objective of quarterly adjustment is to ensure that all pass through costs are factored into the tariff as per the requirement of the Act and 1998 Rules. The Distribution Companies do not have to bear these costs and are entitled to recover all prudently incurred costs. Hence the requirement of quarterly or bi-annual adjustment. It is noted that as per the Guidelines only fuel adjustment is made on a monthly basis.

11. NEPRA determines tariff as per Section 31 of the Act after a distribution licensees file the petitions as per the 1998 Rules and the Guidelines. NEPRA determines the consumer end tariff for each distribution licensee after assessing the different components of its revenue requirements. In this context, there is a public hearing, which is duly published in the newspapers inviting all comments, objections and interveners request. The formulas and principles for determining the revenue requirement is provided under the Guidelines. The Guideline prescribes for quarterly adjustment of capacity and transmission charges, the impact of transmission and distribution losses and the adjustment of variable O&M. As per the Guidelines, fuel adjustment is made on a monthly basis whereas the costs, charges and losses are made on a quarterly basis. This is necessitated because every tariff determination is based on presumptive figures at the beginning of the financial year, which figures have to be actualized on the basis of actual data. This exercise is carried out periodically on a quarterly basis after holding a public hearing. In this way every tariff determination is for a fixed period and every quarterly adjustment is also for a fixed quarter. Hence QTA is as per the prescribed methodology and falls within the frame work of the Act. These are technical issues, based on projections and data for which NEPRA has laid out a transparent and comprehensive procedure, which should be followed. Therefore, the contention of the Petitioners with reference to QTA is without basis as the structure of the Act read with 1998 Rules and the Guidelines clearly provides for periodical adjustment of the PPP components which have to be determined based on actual costs incurred.

12. Consequent to the decision given by the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court, PLD 2018 Islamabad 20 (supra), NEPRA set out to re determine the tariff for the FY 2015-16 which included costs and adjustments pertaining to the entire financial year. A public hearing was held for the benefit of all stakeholders and the prudency of all costs claimed for that quarter were duly considered. At the time, NEPRA decided to include the impact of the component of the PPP for the entire FY 2015-16 as considerable period had lapsed from when tariff was earlier determined and when the matter was remanded to NEPRA vide the decision of the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court. Since there was a public hearing, the Petitioners should have participated in the same and could should have raised their objections at the time with respect to the prudency of the costs being claimed. At this stage, raising these objections before this Court in Constitutional jurisdiction is without basis as there is no vested right in favour of the Petitioners which they seek to enforce nor is there any basis on which they can claim that the periodical adjustments are illegal or have been even given retrospective effect. The periodical adjustments are in terms of the prescribed procedure under the scheme of the Act, hence no illegality is made out. Furthermore, remedy of appeal is provided under the Act, which was never availed by the Petitioners.

13. So far as the Petitioners' objection with respect to the composition of the authority and the fact that at the time they were only two members and one Vice Chairman, it is noted that this matter has already been decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in "National Electric Power Regulatory Authority v. Faisalabad Electric Supply Company Limited" (2016 SCMR 550), hence no grievance is made out in this respect before this Court.

14. In view of the aforesaid, this petition as well as all connected petitions are dismissed. At this stage learned counsel for the Petitioners requested that in the event that their prayer is not accepted by the Court, NEPRA should be directed to make installments for the sake of payment of QTA. It is observed that in this regard any request for installment should be raised before NEPRA or the Distribution Companies.

JUDGMENT

AYSHA A. MALIK, J.----This judgment decides upon the issue raised in the instant petition as well as in connected W.P. No.181148/2018 as common questions of law and facts are involved and Crl. Org. No.122343-W/2017.

2. The Petitioner in W.P. No.109673/2017 has impugned orders dated 27.02.2017, 06.04.2017 passed by Respondent No. 4. Senior Headmistress, Government Muhammadia Girls High School, Data Nagar Badami Bagh, Lahore and orders dated 06.09.2017 and 06.11.2017 passed by respondent No.2, Secretary School Education Department, Civil Secretariat, Lahore. Her case is that she was appointed as Junior School Teacher ("JST") the in the education department, Government of Sindh in 1996. The Petitioner got married to Shoukat Ali resident of Lahore. Therefore, she applied for permanent inter provincial transfer from Government of Sindh to the Government of Punjab on wedlock policy. In this regard, Government of Sindh issued No Objection Certificate ("NOC") in her favour, however she has not been able to obtain permanent absorption into Government of Punjab despite her repeated request. The Petitioner therefore, sought deputation and has been working in the Province of Punjab on deputation, which was extended from time to time. Finally on 06.09.2017 the impugned order was issued terminated her deputation for being beyond the sanction time and requiring her to go back to her parent department i.e. Government of Sindh, (SGA&CD) Karachi for her further posting/adjustment. Being aggrieved, the petitioner filed W.P. No.70440/2017 before this Court in which a direction was issued on 15-9-2017 requiring Secretary School Education Punjab to hear the matter of the Petitioner and decide the same. The case was heard and Secretary School Education concluded that there is no provision of permanent absorption, in School Education Department, Government of the Punjab, hence the Petitioner was repatriated from the date or her expiry of extended deputation to her parent department for further posting.

3. The Petitioner in W.P. No.181148/2018 has impugned order dated 15.01.2018 passed by Respondent No.2, Secretary Specialized Healthcare and Medical Education Department. Her case is that she was appointed as Charge Nurse (BS-16) on 19.08.2000 and posted at Bolan Medical Complex Hospital, Quetta. She got married at District Gujranwala in the year 2010 and after obtaining NOC from Secretary Health, Balochistan as well as from Secretary Health Punjab she applied for her inter provincial transfer from Quetta, Balochistan to Gujranwala; Punjab. Hence, the Petitioner was transferred on deputation for a period of three years vide order dated 17.03.2011, which was extended from time to time. Finally on 15.01.2018 the impugned order was issued which terminated her deputation for being beyond the sanctioned period and required her to return to her parent department i.e. Health Department, Government of Balochistan.

4. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the matter with reference to permanent absorption has already been decided by this Court through judgment dated 13.05.2014 in W.P. No.7467/2012, order dated 22.10.2010 in W.P. No.15348/2010 and by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in "WAPDA through Chairman and others v. Abdul Ghaffar and others" (2018 SCMR 380). Therefore, in the light of the earlier precedents, learned counsel argued that the Petitioner is also entitled to permanent absorption in the civil service of the Government of Punjab.

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned Law Officer argued that there is no rule or regulation governing inter provincial transfer or absorption. He argued that there is no vested right to claim deputation or absorption and the department is dully authorized to repatriate the employee back to the parent department. Learned Law Officer further argued that the Petitioner's deputation has been extended from time to time beyond the required period and therefore, are not entitled to any further deputation or absorption. Reliance is placed on "Senate Secretariat through Chairman and another v. Miss Faiqa Abdul Hayee" (2014 SCMR 522) and order dated 19-2-2016 passed by this Court in W.P. No.18662/2015.

6. Heard and record perused. The basic contention of the Petitioner is that she is entitled to permanent absorption on the strength of Rule 20 of the Punjab Civil Servants (Appointment and Conditions of Service) Rules, 1974 ("1974 Rules"), which provides that in the case of a female government servant, who by virtue of para 7 of appendix 4 to the Civil Service Rules (Punjab) Vol.I Part II acquires the domicile of her husband from the date of her marriage and follows the domicile of her husband during the marriage, exception can be made if authentic documentary proof (such as Nikah-nama) in case of Muslims or Marriage Certificate in case of others) is furnished. This is the stated policy of the Government of Punjab in terms of its Rule SOR IV-8-25/78 dated 28.05.1979 on the basis of which several cases have been decided. In the case of a female government servant, who has acquired the domicile of her husband from the date of her marriage then such a female government servant who is desirous to transfer can be absorbed and accommodated without relaxation of rules in terms of the policy of the Government of Punjab. Learned Law Officer has relied upon several cases, however, the cases relied upon especially 2014 SCMR 522 (supra) does not pertain to a female government servant, hence is distinguishable. On the given issue the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in "Amir Hamza v. Government of Balochistan and others" (2005 SCMR 1422) has already held that policy having statutory backing has attained the legal status and is required to be adhered to in letter and spirit by all the departments of Government. However, female government servant has been absorbed on the basis of this policy.

7. Under the circumstances, these petitions are allowed. The impugned orders are set aside and the Respondents are directed to issue permanent absorption orders of the Petitioners in the relevant departments immediately.

MH/B-16/L Petitions allowed.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----This common judgment decides the instant Intra Court Appeal ("ICA") as well as connected I.C.A. No.207440/2018 whereby the Appellant has impugned judgments dated 24.04.2018 and dated 29.03.2018 passed by learned Single Judge in W.P. Nos.20827/2016 and 105238/2017 and allowed both the Petitions.

2. The basic case of the Appellant is that through the impugned order dated 24.04.2018, the learned Single Judge declared a post to be permanent and against the said post regularized the Respondents. Learned counsel argued that the post was not a permanent post and in fact there is no permanent post available against which the Respondents could have been regularized. Learned counsel further argued that the Respondents claim that they were recruited as Court Clerk in the legal department of the Appellant yet they seek regularization against the post of Mali. Learned counsel argued that there was no permanent post against which the Respondents could be recruited as they were recruited from time to time to do various odd jobs and there is no permanent post available against which they can claim regularization.

3. On the other hand, learned counsel for the Respondents supports the impugned judgments and argued that the Respondents joined the Appellant in 2007 on daily wages as Court Clerk, which post was permanent in nature yet they were never regularized. Learned counsel argued that the petition was filed by the Respondents seeking regularization from the date of their appointment with all back benefits to the post of Court Clerk. The impugned judgments considered the contention of the Respondents and held that since the Respondents have been in service for nine years, they have acquired the status of a permanent workman under the Standing Order 1 of the Industrial and Commercial Employment (Standing Orders) Ordinance, 1968. Further that since they were initially appointed as Mali and were deputed to work as Court Clerk, hence they are entitled to be appointed against the permanent post of Mali. The Court therefore, declared the post to be permanent and directed the Appellant to regularize the services of Respondents against the said post.

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at great length. The basic issue is whether or not the Respondents could have been regularized and whether the Court could have declared the post to be permanent. The contention of the Appellant is that there was no post available against which the Respondents could have regularized. This fact has been clearly stated in the report and parawise comments filed by the Appellant in W.P. No.20827/2016 and in W.P. No.105238/2017 and further that there is no vacant sanctioned post of Mali against which the Respondents can be regularized. It has also been pointed out that the Respondents were not recruited through any procedure, that was no advertisement, interview or appointment letter issued in their favour. They were simply employed from time to time, on daily wages, to meet the day to day requirements of the Appellant. Moreover it is an admitted fact that there was no permanent post against which the Respondents were appointed. When confronted with this question, learned counsel for the Respondents was unable to show that the post of Court Clerk was a permanent post against which they sought regularization. Learned counsel for the Respondents were also confronted with the fact that they sought regularization against the post of Court Clerk but instead were regularized as Mali. In this regard, they were unable to show that there was a sanctioned post of Mali against which they were regularized. Interestingly as per the Respondents case they worked as Mali and only worked as Court Clerk. Learned counsel for the Appellant clarified that there is no vacancy available against any post of Mali and that the Respondents were appointed on daily wages to work on different projects for which there are no permanent posts against which they can be regularized.

5. On the issue of declaring a post permanent, we note that this is an administrative function of the relevant department. In involves financial considerations whereby the rate of a sanctioned pay has to be applicable. It also requires that the department follow due process for appointment so as to ensure that required and qualified people do the job. In this case the Respondents sought regularization against the job of Court Clerk for which there is no sanctioned post. The Court declared the post of Mali as permanent as there were no vacant posts and regularization the Respondents against the Court declared post. There has been no financial sanction for their posts, hence as such there is no financial sanction to pay the Respondents as it has not been budgeted.

6. Under the circumstances, we are of the opinion that the impugned judgments could not have declared the post of Mali as permanent as this is the function of the relevant department after looking into financial and other aspects of the matter. As per the august Supreme Court of Pakistan judgment at best the Court can direct that a candidate be considered for regularization, however it cannot order for the regularization of persons against posts that have not been sanctioned and are not permanent posts. Therefore, we find that in this case a direction declaring a post as permanent could not have been given since the Respondents sought regularization as Court Clerks which admittedly is not a permanent post. Even otherwise, we find it alarming that the Respondents seek regularization against the post of Court Clerk, which is the job they claim they have been doing for ten years and yet their regularization is against the post of Mali, for which they themselves states they never worked.

7. For what has been discussed above, these ICAs are allowed and the impugned judgments dated 24.04.2018 and dated 29.03.2018 passed by learned Single Judge in W.P. Nos.20827/2016 and 105238/2017 are set aside.

----Ss.6(2)(r), 9 & 13---Re-gasified Liquefied Natural Gas ("RLNG")---Tariff determination by Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA")---Right of affected parties to a public hearing---Scope---Plea of petitioners (consumers of RLNG) that when OGRA made its determination for cost of services and transmission and distribution losses in the supply of RLNG, it was bound to hear them in a public hearing as such decision directly and adversely affects their rights---Plea of OGRA that it was not required to grant a public hearing to the petitioners as the impugned determinations were provisional which did not call for a public hearing---Held, that as per the RLNG supply agreements between the petitioners and the gas supply company, the provisional price of RLNG was to be fixed every month and this price was subject to change when the final determination was made---Admittedly the cost of service, transportation cost and retainage component had to be on actual basis in any financial year---Since cost of services and transmission and distribution losses was based on actuals, every determination made by OGRA would impact the petitioners---To cater to such impact, S.9 of the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 ('the 2002 Ordinance) provided that a right of hearing should be granted where a decision would directly and adversely affect the rights of a person---Public hearing was necessary where OGRA had to make a determination on cost of services and Unaccounted for Gas ("UFG") as they directly impacted the petitioners---RLNG pricing mechanism had not been streamlined into a regular process where provisional and final determinations were systematically made and notified,hence it was necessary to keep all parties on board so as to ensure smooth management of the terms of the agreement between the parties and the supply of RLNG---Public hearing was granted to make the tariff determination process all inclusive so that the views of interested parties could be taken into consideration, especially those who had stakes in the outcome of the regulator's decision---Public hearing ensured accountability and transparency in the decision making process and positively impacted the implementation of the regulator's decisions---Hence, it was also the first step towards future conflict management with respect to the regulator's decision---More inclusive the process, the less likely it would be that the determination was challenged---Furthermore, the involvement of the public and the stakeholders created trust and confidence in the decision making process which catered to acceptability of the decision and its reasons---High Court directed that RLNG price determinations by OGRA, at the time of actualization of the prices, for a given financial year, should be done after holding a public hearing in terms of S. 9 of the 2002 Ordinance; that where a determination was made after granting a public hearing, in the event that OGRA reviewed or re-heard any portion of that determination, which would directly and adversely impact the rights of the petitioners, it was to grant a right of hearing before making a decision under S.13 of the 2002 Ordinance; that OGRA should streamline the RLNG process providing provisional pricing and possibly a quarterly or bi-annual determination based on actual costs and losses; that this quarterly or biannual determination should be on the basis of a public hearing so as to improve efficiency in the pricing mechanism; that the right of hearing should be granted where the determination would impact the final outcome of all provisional adjustments made, and that OGRA was required to hold a public hearing to resolve the computation issues related to UFG and cost of services, and that such public hearing was also necessary as the petitioners had been granted interim relief (by the courts) with respect to the differential amounts which needed to be adjusted---Constitutional petitions were allowed accordingly.

(c) Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance (XVII of 2002)---

----Ss. 6(2)(r), 9, 13 & 21---Re-gasified Liquefied Natural Gas ("RLNG")---Tariff determination by Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA")---Right of affected parties to a public hearing---Main reasons why it was mandatory to have a public hearing in the RLNG price determination process stated.

Following are the two main reasons why it was mandatory to have a public hearing in the Re-gasified Liquefied Natural Gas ("RLNG") price determination process:

Firstly, the entire RLNG sector was governed by contracts and government policies along with the delegated function granted to Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA"). While there was a contractual relationship setting the terms and conditions between the parties inter se being the RLNG consumers and Sui Northern Gas Pipelines Limited (SNGPL) and SNGPL and Pakistan State Oil (PSO). The Federal Government issued policy directives with respect to RLNG allocation and price which directives were subject to change as per Government requirements. OGRA's determinations were based on the Government's notifications or policy guidelines under section 21 of the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 ('the 2002 Ordinance'), which meant that it had to take all such components, as directed by the Government, into consideration while making its determination. Hence any change that a government policy directive made would be implemented by OGRA. Stakeholders such as SNGPL and PSO were heard at the provisional determinations where the directives were applied but the majority stakeholders being the consumers or interveners were not heard. This was because during the provisional pricing PSO and SNGPL were heard and the public was not involved.

Second reason was with respect to the right to review a decision under section 13 of the 2002 Ordinance. Within the given framework when a review application was filed and the cost of services or transmission losses or distribution losses were reviewed and changed without hearing parties, it left the RLNG consumers remediless as there was no provision for a second review under the 2002 Ordinance. Essentially under section 13 of the 2002 Ordinance, the RLNG consumers could dilute the impact of public hearings if the public was not heard in the review proceedings. In the event that PSO or SNGPL moved for a review of any determination, no public notice was given. Consequently the determinations may decide upon cost of services and transmission and distribution losses without hearing the public which was originally heard during a public hearing.

(d) Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance (XVII of 2002)---

----Ss. 6(2)(r) & 21---Re-gasified Liquefied Natural Gas ("RLNG")---Tariff determination by Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA")---Policy directives issued by the Federal Government with respect to RLNG allocation and price---Contracts between RLNG consumers and gas supply companies---In cases of RLNG price, on one hand there were Federal Government policy directives and on the other contracts between the RLNG consumers and gas supply companies---In the event of any conflict between the terms of the contracts and the Government directive, OGRA must attempt to resolve the matter by referring the issue to the Federal Government for clarification or re-consideration; it could not simply rely on Government policy directives under S.21 of the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002, and ignore the contractual arrangement as that went goes against the mandate of S.6(2)(r) of the 2002 Ordinance---In such cases OGRA was obligated to resolve the issues as a frontline regulator and not mitigate its functions as a government delegatee.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition along with connected Petitions, as detailed in Schedule "A" appended with the judgment, as all Petitions raises common questions of law and facts.

2. The Petitioners before the Court are all primarily engaged in the textile sector or the CNG sector and are consumers of Re-gasified Liquefied Natural Gas ("RLNG"). As per the prayers in the Petitions, the Petitioners have challenged the vires of SRO 405(1)/2015 dated 7.2.2015 and SRO 971(1)/2015 dated 30.9.2015 along with tariff determinations dated 7.10.2016, 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017. During the course of arguments, the Petitioners limited their grievance to the procedure followed by OGRA in setting the RLNG price without any hearing. The Petitioners are specifically aggrieved by the tariff determinations made by the Respondent OGRA dated 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017 which revised the RLNG tariff for the period 1.7.2016 to 31.12.2016 and for the period 1.1.2017 to 31.3.2017 unilaterally, without any hearing. The Petitioners are also aggrieved by the tariff determination dated 7.10.2016 made by the Respondent OGRA in relation to the quantum of cost of service and Unaccounted for Gas ("UFG") permitted to the Respondent SNGPL. The basis of the Petitioners' grievance is that they have been denied the right of hearing in each of the impugned determinations; that cost of service and determination of transmission and distribution losses as well as UFG necessitates due process and a hearing, before OGRA can adjudicate upon the same; that the tariff for the impugned period was decided after a public hearing, however OGRA of its own motion, re adjusted the tariff and made it applicable retrospectively on the tariff billed to the Petitioners.

Facts of the Case

3. On account of shortage of natural gas in the country, the Federal Government made arrangements to import liquid natural gas to be re-gasified as RLNG. The Economic Coordination Committee ("ECC") of the Federal Cabinet on 2.7.2013 authorized the Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Resources, Islamabad to import LNG up to 500 MMCFD on Delivered Ex-Ship (DES) basis from Qatar. On 27.7.2015 the ECC approved the import of LNG which was to be re-gasified by the re-gasification terminals to be set up at various sea ports. The re-gasification process results in RL NG which is to be supplied through the SSGC and SNGPL transmission and distribution networks for industrial consumers who were not getting sufficient supply of the indigenously produced natural gas. At the time it was decided that the RLNG pricing and other matters were to be determined by OGRA under the Petroleum Products (Petroleum Levy) Ordinance, 1961 ("1961 Ordinance") on monthly basis, in line with other petroleum products. To give effect to this decision, appropriate amendments were made in the 1961 Ordinance through SRO 405(1)/2015 dated 7.5.2015 whereby RL NG was included in the First Schedule as a petroleum product and the name of SNGPL and SSGPL were inserted in the Second Schedule as gas utilities. The Federal Government also issued SRO 971(1)/2015 dated 3.9.2015 stating that RLNG price shall be determined by OGRA and notified by the Pakistan State Oil. On 27.7.2015 the Federal Government issued its pricing components and price parameters for RLNG which included cost of service, transmission and distribution losses. OGRA was required to determine both cost of service and transmission and distribution losses with reference to RLNG price. OGRA made a provisional determination on 7.10.2015. PSO, SSGC, SNGPL, all approached OGRA to review its provisional determination to include actual and anticipated costs of importing and supplying RLNG, however, OGRA did not agree to all the claims, but accepted some of the claims in its decision of 18.3.2016. The decision of 18.3.2016 is based on public hearings carried out at Karachi and Lahore. The Petitioners and others participated in these hearings. The said determination was made for the period April 2015 to January 2016 where after OGRA made subsequent determinations, however no public hearing was offered for any of the subsequent decisions.

Arguments of counsel

4. Counsel for the Petitioners argued that the RLNG Tariff Determination Framework comprises of the gas supply agreements between the Petitioners and SNGPL and various decisions and notifications issued by the Federal Government, by the ECC and by OGRA. The core feature of this framework is that the tariff determination of RLNG was ring-fenced keeping it separate from the tariff determination of natural gas. Hence it calls for a separate process to settle RLNG prices. The Petitioners are aggrieved by the manner in which RLNG tariff determination is made by OGRA as it is done without hearing the Petitioners with respect to key components of the tariff, which include transmission and distribution losses as well as cost of service. Learned counsel argued that RLNG tariff determination is made by OGRA on the basis of the delegation of authority by the Federal Government in terms of Section 6(2)(r) of the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 ("2002 Ordinance"). The Counsel argued that OGRA is bound to hold a public hearing in all matters where its decision is with reference to a regulated activity as per the provisions of Section 9 of the 2002 Ordinance. Learned counsel further argued that the Petitioners challenged the vires of SRO 405(1)/2015 dated 7.2.2015 and SRO 971(1)/2015 dated 30.9.2015 on the ground that OGRA has the power to fix the tariff under the 2002 Ordinance and the process to be followed for RLNG tariff is as per the 2002 Ordinance. However during the course of arguments since the Respondents accept this contention, the Petitioners do not press the vires of the two SROs in this case.

5. Learned counsel argued that the Petitioners essentially press their right of hearing at the time when the tariff is determined in order to ensure that their objections with reference to the prudency of transmission and distribution losses and cost of service are duly considered before granting amounts to the Respondent SNGPL or SSGC. They argued that the RLNG tariff was determined in the impugned determinations, without grant of hearing to the Petitioners. In the process the Respondents radically changed the computation mechanism of various costs allowed to SNGPL/SSGC without giving the Petitioners an opportunity of objecting to the same. By way of example, the Petitioners stated that the Respondents included cost of service in the RLNG tariff determination on 7.10.2016 without any hearing to the Petitioners in terms of Section 9 and made it applicable retrospectively, whereas originally through earlier determinations they were not granted any cost of service despite their requests. OGRA also revised the manner in which UFG was calculated through its determination of 7.10.2016 even though the mechanism for calculating UFG is decided in the agreements with SNGPL and again during the public hearings at Lahore and Karachi. In essence they claim that in the order of 7.10.2016 OGRA reviewed its earlier orders and changed the computation mechanism for UFG allowance and allowed cost of service with retrospective effect. As per the counsels' arguments these issues were decided and finalized by OGRA vide its determination of 18.3.2016 and could not have been revised with retrospective effect. They further argued, if at all any amount was to be fixed under these heads, it had to be done prospectively after hearing the Petitioners. Learned Counsel also argued that tariff determination for the period April 2015 to January 2016 was finalized through the tariff determination of 18.3.2016 which is based on a public hearing. This decision of 18.3.2016 was reviewed and changed with retrospective effect on 7.10.2016 without giving the Petitioners an opportunity of hearing, hence the Petitioners have challenged the same.

6. Learned counsel also argued that the impact of the impugned determinations is that it has increased the cost of service allowed to SNGPL over and above 41 cents per MMBTU to 81 cents per MMBTU, hence the cost of service has doubled, without hearing the Petitioners and without giving them an opportunity to object to the increase made. It is the Petitioners' contention that the Respondent OGRA has not considered any of the objections of the Petitioners and consequently gave a huge financial benefit to SNGPL. In the same way, they argued that SNGPL was allowed UFG at 4.5% which increased to 9.2% which is unreasonable and does not meet the standard of reasonableness and prudency. In this regard, learned counsel relies upon OGRA Natural Gas (Regulated Third Party Access) Rules, 2012 ("2012 Rules"), in terms of which UFG is to be determined. The Counsel contend that following any other methodology is against the terms of their agreement. Learned counsel further argued that RLNG Tariff Determination is a power given to OGRA by the Federal Government in terms of Section 6(2)(r) of the 2002 Ordinance, hence OGRA is required to ensure that it is in compliance with the requirements of the 2002 Ordinance, such that in terms of Section 9 of the 2002 Ordinance, an obligation to hold a public hearing in all matters where the decision relates to a regulated activity must be complied with.

7. On behalf of Respondent OGRA, it was argued that OGRA is in compliance with the law and the guidelines provided by the Federal Government. Learned counsel explained that in order to deal with the shortfall of locally produced natural gas, the ECC of the Federal Cabinet authorized the Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Resources to negotiate with Qatar Gas for the import of LNG on Delivered Ex-Ship basis. The ECC approved the import of LNG on 2.7.2013 on DES basis to be re-gasified as RLNG. Thereafter the Federal Government put into place a framework on the basis of which the price of RLNG is to be determined. In principle, it was agreed that the price determination framework will be similar to the tariff determination of petroleum products under the 1961 Ordinance and the Rules. Consequently SRO 405(1)/2015 dated 7.5.2015 was issued and thereafter SRO 971(1)/2015 dated 3.9.2015 was issued to include RLNG in the 1961 Ordinance. In this framework OGRA acts as the delegatee of the Federal Government and even though authorized to determine RLNG prices as per the 1961 Ordinance it is bound by the guidelines provided by the Federal Government under Section 21 of the 2002 Ordinance. The price determination of RLNG is carried out on a monthly and provisional basis and ultimately a final determination is made by OGRA based on actual costs which is then notified by PSO. During the initial phase, one of the key considerations was that there was no infrastructure for the import and distribution of RLNG, hence SNGPL would use its existing infrastructure on the understanding that ultimately this will be separated and RLNG shall and have its own infrastructure. This has been factored into the price determinations made by OGRA for which it held two public hearings in which the Petitioners participated.

8. Learned counsel further argued that RLNG prices are determined on provisional basis at the start of the pricing period and have to be actualized when the actual pricing data becomes available to OGRA. In this regard, the Federal Government has issued the pricing components for RLNG on 27.7.2015 on the basis of which the price for RLNG is actualized. She explained that in terms of the letter issued on 27.7.2015 a public hearing is not required for all components as some of the components are provided for by the Federal Government whereas OGRA has to determine cost of services and transmission and distribution losses. A public hearing is given with reference to the cost of services and the transmission and distribution losses and was provided to the Petitioners who are before the Court. So far as the financial years 2015-16 and 2016-17 are concerned, the Petitioners were heard. Learned counsel clarified that throughout this process, the Petitioners were aware that the tariff determination was provisional and subject to actualization at the end of the pricing period. She further explained that once a public hearing is granted and all objections are noted, it is not necessary that at the time of actualization of the pricing components that the Petitioners are heard. She further stated that the 1961 Ordinance does not require a public hearing at every stage and any objections that the Petitioners had towards the UFG or cost of services could have been raised with OGRA in the first instance. Learned counsel also stated that the entire dispute stems from the notion that the Petitioners are entitled to a hearing at every stage on monthly basis when the tariff is determined. This is not how the tariff determination is modeled and it is also practically impossible. The Counsel placed several RLNG determinations on record to show that the Petitioners have not objected to the computation or methodology subsequent to the impugned determinations. Hence, she argued that no case is made out before this Court.

9. On behalf of Respondent SNGPL, it was argued that RLNG was ring-fenced, meaning that all costs incurred by the gas utility company in supplying RLNG would not be included in the revenue requirements of the company for indigenously produced natural gas. The ring-fencing requirement was given to ensure that the extra cost of importing LNG and process to re-gasify and make RLNG would be borne by the consumer for whose benefit this entire exercise was carried out. The Petitioners entered into cost supply agreements with the Respondent SNGPL and they agreed to bear the costs of import of RLNG notwithstanding the fact that it may be receiving indigenously produced natural gas in lieu of RLNG. The Petitioners also agreed to pay tariff for RLNG as determined by OGRA and notified by the PSO which includes the cost of services in which it was agreed that distribution and transmission losses would be paid by the Petitioners. Furthermore they agreed that OGRA will make provisional determination on a monthly basis which would be subject to a final determination and that if there is any balance in payment between the provisional tariff and the final tariff, based on the actual costs that would be paid by the Petitioners. Further that OGRA in fact carried out this entire process and has been in compliance with the law yet the Petitioners have challenged this process notwithstanding the fact that they have contractually agreed to it. Learned counsel stated that it has already been decided by this Court vide judgment dated 8.2.2017 passed in W.P. No.1821/2017 titled Mayfair Limited and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others that there is a contractual agreement between the parties which governs the terms and conditions on which RLNG will be supplied to the consumers and the terms of the agreement specifically provide what amounts are to be paid. Under the circumstances, learned counsel argued that the Petitioners are not entitled to any relief from this Court. SNGPL has been supplying RLNG to the Petitioners and has been accumulating all data of actual costs incurred in relation thereto. These costs are put before OGRA who then makes its determination. The entire mechanism has been transparent after following due process and the Petitioners have no cause to claim that they have been denied public hearing when the record shows otherwise.

the legal framework:

10. The 1961 Ordinance provides for the levy and collection of petroleum levy on petroleum products and matters connected therewith. SRO 405(1)/2015 dated 7.5.2015 amended the First and Second Schedule of the 1961 Ordinance to bring RLNG within the scope of petroleum products so that RLNG is treated as a petroleum product and to treat SNGPL and SSGCL as utility companies under the 1961 Ordinance. Further SRO 971(1)/2015 dated 3.9.2015 brought RLNG within the sphere of the categories of petroleum products for which the Federal Government fixes prices and may delegate its function to OGRA. The Petitioners do not dispute this position and no longer raise challenge to the SROs. The 2002 Ordinance established OGRA and in terms of Section 6 of the 2002 Ordinance set out the powers and functions of OGRA. RLNG price determination has been delegated to OGRA consequent to Section 6(2) (r) of the 2002 Ordinance which provides that OGRA shall administer or establish prices for those categories of petroleum for which the Federal Government establishes prices and may delegate the function to the Authority. Hence under the said Ordinance OGRA is a delegatee of the Federal Government. Section 13 provides for the review, rescind or change of the Authority's decision who can rehear and change a decision in the event of changed circumstances or the discovery of new evidence which was not available at the earlier stage and will materially alter the decision. Section 21 grants the Federal Government the power to issue policy guidelines to OGRA on matters of policy not inconsistent with the provisions of the 2002 Ordinance or rules made thereunder and OGRA must comply with them. These directives are therefore binding on OGRA. Section 9 provides for the right of hearing in regulated activity, where the decision of the Authority may directly and adversely affect the right of a person. As per the contentions raised before the Court all parties agree that OGRA sets RLNG prices as a delegatee of the Federal Government after making its determination as per the formula provided in the directives.

11. The issue raised by the Petitioners is with respect to their right of hearing when OGRA makes its determination for cost of services and transmission and distribution losses in the supply of RLNG because this decision directly and adversely affects their rights. They argue that OGRA is obligated to hear them before making a determination on these components as per Section 9 of the 2002 Ordinance. Specifically they raise the issue that RLNG tariff determination after March 2016 has been made without a public hearing and quantums decided at the public hearings were subsequently enhanced through subsequent determinations retrospectively without any hearing. In this context, it is important to note that OGRA is obligated to follow all policy directives issued by the Federal Government. The Federal Government issued the pricing components under policy directive dated 27.7.2015 for RLNG and both parties agree that the role of OGRA is limited to determinations at serial Nos.1(v) and (vii) of the directive dated 27.7.2015. As per the directive the price components are as follows:

Subject: SALE PRICE OF RLNG
Dear Sir(s)
I am directed to inform that Economic Coordination Committee (ECC) of the Cabinet in its meeting held on 06.06.2015 while considering a summary submitted by this Ministry on the above subject vide Case No.ECC-87/11/2015 dated 06.06.2015 approved the following proposals:
(I) Pricing Components for RLNG:

i. LNG DES Price including any take or pay volumes, losses on account of Net Sale Proceeds and relevant adjustments due to exchange rate. In case of FOB cargoes, the price should include FOB price plus freight charges.
ii. PSO's other imports related actual costs.
iii. PSO's Margin upto 4 percent of LNG DES Price, subject to review after three months
iv. Terminal Charges under LNG Service Agreement (LSA).
v. SSGCL/SNGPL cost of service (to be determined by OGRA).
vi. SSGCL/SNGPL administrative margin upto $ 0.05/MMBTU (to be paid in rupees) for each company (to be treated as non-operating income), subject to review after three months.
vii. Transmission losses at 0.5% and distribution losses, if any (to be determined by OGRA).
(II) The RLNG Price will be determined by OGRA and notified by PSO on similar lines to that for petroleum products pricing including Exchange Rate adjustments. However; RLNG price will be determined on the basis of price of LNG cargoes scheduled to arrive in Pakistan during the relevant month (as against the preceding month's practice in fuels) so that price should reflect the close to actual cost of LNG.
(III) Moreover PSO has been allowed to incorporate any differential between actual versus provisional prices in subsequent pricing period upon availability of all actual costs. This will remove any ambiguity in the pricing mechanism and ensure that the actual and auditable prices are charged to customers.
(IV) Gas infrastructure Development Cess will not be applicable on RLNG.
2. It was also approved by the ECC that a Committee Comprising Secretary Finance Division (Convener), Secretary Ministry of Water and Power, Secretary Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Resources and Secretary Law, Justice and Human Rights to review the pricing mechanism after three months and submit report to ECC for consideration.
3. You are kindly requested to take further necessary action in the implementation of above ECC decision under intimation to this Ministry at the earliest please.
Yours truly,

Subject: DETERMINATION OF SALE PRICE OF RLNG
Dear Sir(s)
I am directed to inform that Economic Coordination Committee (ECC) of the Cabinet in its meeting held on 14.6.2016 considered the summary submitted by this Ministry on the above subject vide Case No.ECC-72/12/2016 dated 14.06.2016 and approved the recommendations of the Committee, constituted by ECC vide case No.ECC-87/11/2015 dated 06.06.2015, for conveying to OGRA as policy guidelines under Section 21 of the OGRA Ordinance, 2002 as under:
i. LNG DES price to be taken as per Contract.
ii. Port charges will also be taken at actual including amount reimbursed to supplier as per relevant agreement. There was a consensus that all relevant cost may be allowed to POA to sustain its operations along with a reasonable profit margin.
iii. PSO was advised to take up the matter with Sindh Government for non-applicability of Sindh infrastructure Cess in line with other 'Petroleum Products'. The Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Resources was also advised to facilitate PSO accordingly. It was also agreed that pending the ultimate settlement of this issue, the said Cess will also be included in RLNG price.
iv. PSO margin will be determined at 2.50%.
v. All charges under LSA including but not limited to capacity charges and utilization charges as well as Retainage are to be included at actual. SSGC/PSO will share all relevant details with OGRA.
vi. SSGC's Margin for LSA Management to be determined @ $ 0.025/MMBTU to be treated as non-operating income.
vii. Transmission Loss to be determined and charged at actual subject to a maximum of 0.5% (to be shared by gas companies based on length of Transmission Line involved).
viii. Distribution Loss to be determined and charged at actual. The said loss for the customers located on high pressure transmission lines as well as those customers who are willing to lay their dedicated line from SMS/TBS at their own cost shall also be determined and charged at actual. However, for other customers on distribution lines, an actual average UFG for the last financial year will taken in determination.
2. You are kindly requested to take further necessary action in the implementation of above ECC decision under intimation to this Ministry.
Yours truly,
Abdul Rashid Jakhio

As per the directive of 27.6.2016 several changes were introduced, however for the purposes of the dispute before the Court, the Federal Government changed the computation requirement from the earlier directive of 27.7.2015 with respect to transmission losses and distribution losses as well as UFG. Relevant components of this policy are (vii) and (viii) which are to be determined by OGRA.

12. Within the stated legal framework, the supply of RLNG is based on a contractual arrangement between Respondent SNGPL and the Petitioners. As per the agreement RLNG sales are to be ring-fenced in line with the ECC decision made on 9.4.2015 and 23.4.2015 and the seller SNGPL can only supply RLNG to the buyer if it is willing to bear the line losses of the distribution system through the tariff. The agreement also provides that UFG losses shall be borne by the buyer, being the Petitioners, in line with the 2012 Rules. The parties agree that RLNG tariff is to be determined by OGRA and notified by PSO. That the notified price is the provisional price and is subject to change after final determination of RLNG price by OGRA. Furthermore the differential of the provisional and final price must be paid by the buyer, being the Petitioners. Hence in terms of the contractual arrangement the Petitioners are to pay for line losses, UFG and any difference in the provisional tariff and final tariff. It is noted that there is no dispute with reference to the contractual arrangement.
the determinations:

13. By way of background OGRA made a provisional determination of RLNG price for the financial year 2015-16 on 7.10.2015. RLNG cost built up and submissions by PSO were considered and evaluated where after OGRA found that the LNG framework suffers from some financial short comings. Firstly the sale purchase agreement with Qatar had not been finalized nor the agreement between PSO and SNGPL and SSGCL nor any agreement with the end consumer. Secondly the price components as given by the Federal Government vide letter dated 27.7.2015 had not been calculated. However the supply of RLNG started in April 2015, therefore it was necessary to provisionally fix the price to prevent an energy shortfall and loss to the public exchequer. Hence the provisional price was set considering PSO margin of 4% of DES price and cost of service. At the time OGRA did not allow cost of service because there was no separate RLNG infrastructure and all relevant costs were already built into the revenue requirements for the financial years 2015-16 for the indigenous natural gas. Accordingly OGRA denied all requests as there was no incremental cost. The Petitioners contend that subsequently OGRA changed its view with respect to cost of service and losses and granted SNGPL the same without hearing the Petitioners through the impugned determinations. They also claim that once OGRA decided not to allocate any costs, if at all, any costs were to be granted a public hearing was mandatory.

14. The entire dispute between the parties revolves around determinations made during a fixed period and the manner in which proceedings were undertaken by OGRA to fix the price of RLNG. The Petitioners have specifically impugned determinations dated 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017 on the ground that it revised the earlier tariff fixed for the period 1.7.2016 to 31.12.2016 and 1.1.2017 to 31.3.2017. They claim that the impugned determinations include a retrospective liability which they are not liable to pay. The Petitioners have also impugned the decision dated 7.10.2016 on account of the change in formula to calculate UFG. They claim that this decision also includes a retrospective liability that they are not liable to pay. Hence the relevant period under dispute is the financial year 2015-16 and 2016- 17 and the issue is with respect to OGRA changing its original decision of not allowing cost of service and the change in the computation of UFG which is not based on the 2012 Rules. In order to appreciate the concern of the Petitioners, it is necessary to look at the determinations made by OGRA during this period. A series of determinations were issued by OGRA which are as follows:

This sets out the background and the RLNG framework. It refers to the Federal Government approved pricing components vide letter dated 27.7.2015. The determination is made with reference to the months of April, June, July and September, 2015. At this time, since the required agreements with Qatar, with PSO and with SNGPL were not in place, a provisional assessment of the price for the said months was made. In this determination, OGRA also observed that a public hearing would prove to be helpful and in the larger public interest.

(ii) 18-3-2016

This fixes the price of PLNG for the period April, 2015 to January, 2016. Public hearing was held in December 2015 and January 2016 at Karachi and Lahore respectively. All Pakistan Textile Mills Association, All Pakistan CNG Associations participated along with independent participants and representatives of the general public from different Textile and CNG businesses. All parties were heard and the tariff was fixed for the given period. In this determination, cost of service was not given to the utility companies because at this point they did not have an independent infrastructure for RLNG, hence the Authority decided that since no additional cost had incurred and cost of service had already been allowed in the regular revenue stream for the financial year 2014-2015, they were not entitled to cost of service. The other objections regarding retainage, terminal charges were also heard and computed accordingly.

(iii) 7-10-2016

This determination is made in a Petition filed by PSO seeking price determination period February 2015 to June, 2016. This is again a provisional determination because the relevant agreements were not in place. Cost of service was not allowed. Import related costs were provisionally allowed.

(iv) 10.10.2016

This is the provisional determination for RLNG price for August, 2016.

(v) 13.10.2016

This is the provisional price for September 2016.

(vi) 28.10.2016

This is the provisional price for October 2016.

(vii) 2.1.2017

This is the provisional price for December 2016 to January 2017.

(viii) 2.6.2017

This is the provisional price for July to December 2016.

This is the provisional price for January 2017 to March 2017.

Therefore at first glance it is important to note that all decisions are provisional as the basic issues enumerated in para 13 of this judgment continued during this time. Secondly there was one public hearing with reference to the period April 2015 to January 2016 and the subsequent decisions namely 7.10.2016 which have been impugned before this Court, reviewed the decisions of this period and granted certain cost of service, distribution losses and UFG to SNGPL. The other two decisions which have been impugned are 2.6.2016 and 20.6.2016 which relate to the period July to December 2016 and January to March 2017. These are provisional decisions which were finalized on actuals in November 2017 for the financial year 2016-17.

15. The Petitioners claim that RLNG price for the financial year 2015-16 was determined on 18.3.2016 after public hearings in Karachi and Lahore. This price was changed on 7.10.2016, 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017 without any hearing. Essentially they are aggrieved with the basis for calculating distribution and transmission losses and cost of services. Consequently they argue that since the determinations were made without hearing them, they are not liable to pay the increased amounts which have been applied retrospectively. It is noted that during this time the RLNG pricing system was evolving as there was no fixed infrastructure for RLNG and as the RLNG system developed, the cost and losses were being considered simultaneously. As per the procedure followed a provisional price for RLNG is notified every month, however cost of supply, retainage and transmission and distribution losses cannot be determined on a monthly basis. This has to be done on a yearly basis when these costs are actualized and made available. At the time when the actual figures are made available the provisional price is revised and a final determination is made based on actual costs. This system will have a retrospective application as the differential is added to the provisional price and has to be paid by the Petitioners for the relevant period. The Petitioners are aware of the framework catering to provisional and final determinations as this was agreed to in their contracts for supply of RLNG. They also agreed that monthly pricing has to be provisional. During the course of arguments the Petitioners stated that they do not object to the provisional billing as their concern is limited to the cost of service and UFG granted by OGRA which should be made after a public hearing. OGRA argues that it is not required to grant a public hearing as the impugned determinations are provisional which does not call for a public hearing. The Respondent OGRA informed the Court through its Counsel that there was a public hearing for the 18.3.2018 determination. The Petitioners' concerns were heard and have been noted. Furthermore remedy of review under Section 13 of the 2002 Ordinance is available and has been availed by the Petitioner APTMA against decisions it was aggrieved by. Hence they contend that the remedy of review caters to the objectives of the right of hearing required by the Petitioners as all issues can be addressed in the review petition. Even otherwise they contend that the Petitioners have participated in the public hearing held on 28.12.2015 and 4.1.2016 at Karachi and Lahore for the 18.3.2018 determination and have not challenged any of the subsequent price determinations which are based on the government directive of 27.6.2016. The Counsel explained that the OGRA is required to follow all government directives issued under Section 21 of the 2002 Ordinance and that all subsequent determinations are based on 27.6.2016 directive. She further explained that the Federal Government changed its earlier directive of 27.7.2015 with the directive issued on 27.6.2016 consequent to which the methodology to compute distribution and transmission losses and UFG was changed. Since they were provisional determinations they were actualized subsequently on 23.11.2017 based on the 27.6.2016 directive which decision has not been challenged. Therefore the financial years 2015-16 and 2016-17 stand closed and finalized for all intents and purposes.

16. Notwithstanding the arguments made on behalf of OGRA, the argument of the Petitioners with respect to the right of hearing must be seen in the context of the tariff determination process set up by the Federal Government and followed by OGRA. The tariff determination of 7.10.2015 denied cost of service to SNGPL as there was no infrastructure to service RLNG and because RLNG was being supplied through the existing transmission and distribution system. Consequently OGRA concluded that since SNGPL was not incurring any RLNG related cost of service it could not claim any. This position was maintained by Respondent OGRA on 18.3.2016 which decision was made on the basis of a public hearing. However, on 7.10.2016 in a review petition filed under Section 13 of the 2002 Ordinance by PSO and SNGPL cost of services was included, without notice of hearing to the Petitioners, who had participated in the public hearing for the 18.3.2016 determination. The relevant period was April 2016 to February 2017 in both determinations. Hence a dispute arose as determination of 7.10.2016 allowed certain costs to SNGPL based on actual figures without hearing the Petitioners and OGRA maintained this position in its subsequent decisions of 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017 without notice to the Petitioners. The record shows that the decisions of 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017 were provisional and actualized on 23.11.2017 and duly notified. This decision is not challenged nor was any review filed by the Petitioners. However the Petitioners argue that the cost of losses allowed by OGRA directly and adversely affect their rights, hence a hearing is mandatory. It is important to note that the determination of 7.10.2016 was made on the basis of the directive of 27.6.2016 based on the actual figures available at the time whereas the earlier determination of 7.10.2015 and 18.3.2016 was based on the directive dated 27.7.2015. Since the computation of the price components were changed by the Federal Government, its application was bound to give rise to a dispute, as the Petitioners could not participate in the proceedings where the 27.6.2016 directive was applied. Therefore the question before the Court is whether OGRA is required to grant a hearing every time it determines cost of services or losses in terms of the letter of 27.7.2015 and 27.6.2016 and whether it is required to grant a hearing with the change in policy directive under Section 21 of the 2002 Ordinance.

17. As per the RLNG supply agreements between the parties, the provisional price of RLNG will be fixed every month and this price is subject to change when the final determination is made. The parties agree that cost of service, transportation cost and retainage component has to be on actual basis in any financial year. Since cost of services and transmission and distribution losses is based on actuals, every determination made by OGRA will impact the Petitioners. To cater to such impact, Section 9 of the 2002 Ordinance provides that a right of hearing should be granted where a decision will directly and adversely affect the rights of a person. This is the concept of a public hearing which is followed in the tariff determination process for natural gas.

18. A public hearing is granted to make the tariff determination process all inclusive so that the views of interested parties can be taken into consideration, especially those who have stakes in the outcome of the regulator's decision. It ensures accountability and transparency in the decision making process and will positively impact the implementation of the regulator's decisions. Hence, it is also the first step towards future conflict management with respect to the regulator's decision. The more inclusive the process, the less likely it will be that the determination is challenged. Furthermore, the involvement of the public and the stakeholders creates trust and confidence in the decision making process which caters to acceptability of the decision and its reasons. In the context of the 2002 Ordinance, this right of public hearing is provided for in Section 9 which requires a hearing to be granted where a decision relating to regulated activity may directly and adversely affect the rights of a person. OGRA has taken the stance that there is no right of hearing in the RLNG price determination mechanism but public hearings are a regular feature of the regular tariff determination framework. This position of OGRA is negated by Section 9 of the 2002 Ordinance which requires a hearing to be given where the decision impacts the rights of persons. Furthermore it is admittedly a regular feature of the tariff determination framework for indigenous gas and as per the RLNG price determinations placed before the Court OGRA observes that it is in the public interest that a public hearing be granted.

19. There are two reasons why this right of hearing is required in the RLNG price determination process. Firstly the entire RLNG sector is governed by contracts and government policies along with the delegated function granted to OGRA . While there is a contractual relationship setting the terms and conditions between the parties inter se being the Petitioners and SNGPL and SNGPL and PSO. The Federal Government issues policy directives with respect to RLNG allocation and price which directives are subject to change as per Government requirements. OGRA's determinations are based on the Government's notifications or policy guidelines under Section 21 of the 2002 Ordinance which means that it has to take all such components, as directed by the Government, into consideration while making its determination. Hence any change that a government policy directive makes will be implemented by OGRA. Stakeholders such as SNGPL and PSO are heard at the provisional determinations where the directives are applied but the majority stakeholders being the consumers or interveners are not heard. This is because during the provisional pricing PSO and SNGPL are heard and the public is not involved. The second reason is with respect to the right to review a decision under Section 13 of the 2002 Ordinance. It is noted that within the given framework when a review application is filed and the cost of services or transmission losses or distribution losses are reviewed and changed without hearing parties, it leaves the Petitioners remediless as there is no provision for a second review under the 2002 Ordinance. Essentially under Section 13 of the 2002 Ordinance, the Petitioners can dilute the impact of public hearings if the public is not heard in the review proceedings. In the event that PSO or SNGPL moves for a review of any determination, no public notice is given. Consequently the determinations may decide upon cost of services and transmission and distribution losses without hearing the public who was originally heard during a public hearing. A relevant fact on this point with reference to the cases before the Court is that the tariff for April, 2015 to January 2016 was decided after a public hearing on 18.3.2016 yet in the decision of 7.10.2016 the tariff for the same period was reviewed and OGRA which had earlier not granted costs and losses now computed transmission losses and cost of service as per the policy directive of 27.6.2016. Having done so the decision of 7.10.2016 directly and adversely affected the rights of the Petitioners yet they were not heard. In this regard, it is also argued that the policy directive issued on 27.6.2016 under Section 21 of the 2002 Ordinance as per the contentions of the Petitioners was a total departure from the settled terms between the parties which again qualifies for a reason to grant a hearing.

20. In the same context, another issue raised by the Petitioners was the change in the computation mechanism for UFG consequent to the government directive of 27.6.2016. As per the contractual arrangement UFG must be decided as per 2012 Rules. The Petitioners contend that UFG allowance was changed from the just and reasonable allowance as per the 2012 Rules which is a 4.5% allowance to a 9.21 % allowance by changing the computation mechanism on 27.6.2016 and by not following the 2012 Rules. Again they re-iterated that each time the government issues a new scheme for computation, the Petitioners being stakeholders must be heard at the time of the determination. Therefore the concerns raised by the Petitioners in this regard have merit, as the change in policy resulted in an overall change in the UFG computation scheme.

21. There is no dispute between the parties that the 2002 Ordinance is applicable as OGRA acts under Section 6(2)(r) of the 2002 Ordinance and follows directives under Section 21 of the 2002 Ordinance. Hence in order to preserve the scheme of the 2002 Ordinance, OGRA in the tariff determination process for RLNG, must as far as practicable, protect the interest of the consumers and the stakeholders so far as RLNG pricing is concerned. A public hearing is necessary where OGRA has to make a determination on cost of services and UFG as they directly impact the Petitioners. Furthermore Section 9 of the 2002 Ordinance mandates such a hearing and OGRA itself agrees that it is in the public interest. While the elements of the price components and its calculation is a technical function for OGRA to decide on the basis of government directives, the RLNG pricing mechanism has not been streamlined into a regular process where provisional and final determinations are systematically made and notified. Hence it is necessary to keep all parties on board so as to ensure smooth management of the terms of the agreement between the parties and the supply of RLNG. It is also necessary to give clarity to the pricing mechanism so as to reduce conflict between OGRA and the public.

22. As per the contentions raised it is admitted that decisions based on the 27.6.2016 directive have not been challenged. It is also admitted that after the impugned decisions of 7.10.2016, 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017, the actualization of the prices for the financial year 2016-17 was made on 23.11.2017. Even this determination has not been challenged. The Petitioners on the filing of the Petitions were granted interim relief with respect to the differential amounts on account of the 7.10.2016, 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017 determinations. The Petitioners did not get a hearing for the 7.10.2016 determination, when OGRA changed its earlier decisions of not granting costs, to allowing certain costs of service. Furthermore the computation for UFG was also changed and re-determined as per the 27.6.22016 directive without granting any hearing to the Petitioners. Therefore in the interest of justice and to protect the rights of the Petitioners with respect to being heard, in the form of a public hearing, OGRA is required to hold a public hearing to resolve the computation issues related to UFG and cost of services. This public hearing is also necessary as the Petitioners have been granted interim relief with respect to the differential amounts which need to be adjusted. Therefore before any adjustments are made a public hearing is required.

23. This Court is mindful of the decision in W.P. No.1821/2017 dated 8.2.2017 titled Mayfair Limited and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others. At the time the petitioners in that case challenged the determinations made by OGRA with respect to UFG for being made without hearing the Petitioners. The Court held that RLNG and its tariff fixation is based on a contractual arrangement and that the parties agreed to pay UFG and cost of supply in respect of RLNG. So far as the right of hearing was concerned, the Court held that the petitioners could not establish that they were entitled to a monthly hearing. Since the passing of the said judgment and now a lot of features of the regulatory regime have evolved and the dispute has been narrowed down to the right of hearing at the time of actualization of the price components to be determined by OGRA. In this regard even OGRA in its determination has observed that a right of hearing should be given in the RLNG pricing regime.

24. Moving forward OGRA should streamline the RLNG process providing provisional pricing and possibly a quarterly or bi-annual determination based on actual costs and losses. This quarterly or bi-annual determination should be on the basis of a public hearing so as to improve efficiency in the pricing mechanism. Essentially the right of hearing should be granted where the determination will impact the final outcome of all provisional adjustments made. Once the process is streamlined and the costing of components is settled, the issues related to costs and services should also settle.

25. One of the primary functions of OGRA is to provide for prices for petroleum products where it has been delegated to OGRA by the Federal Government. The establishment of prices as per Section 6(2)(r) of the 2002 Ordinance is subject to Section 21 and any existing contract or agreement specifying prices. In cases of RLNG price, there are Federal Government directives and contracts between the parties, the terms of which are relevant and need consideration. In the event of any conflict between the terms of the contract and the Government directive OGRA must attempt to resolve the matter by referring the issue to the Federal Government for clarification or re-consideration. However it cannot simply rely on government directives under Section 21 and ignore the contractual arrangement as that goes against the mandate of Section 6(2)(r) of the 2002 Ordinance. In such cases OGRA is obligated to resolve the issues as a frontline regulator and not mitigate its functions as a government delegatee.

Therefore in view of the aforesaid, all the Petitions are allowed on the following terms:

(i) The RLNG price determinations by OGRA, at the time of actualization of the prices, for a given financial year, should be done after holding a public hearing in terms of Section 9 of the 2002 Ordinance;

(ii) Where a determination is made after granting a public hearing, in the event that OGRA reviews or re-hears any portion of that determination, which will directly and adversely impact the rights of the Petitioners, it will grant a right of hearing before making a decision under Section 13 of the 2002 Ordinance;

(iii) For the purposes of the impugned determination of 7.10.2016, 2.6.2017 and 20.6.2017, interim orders have been passed by this Court on account of which adjustments are required to finalize the amounts due from the Petitioners. OGRA is directed to fix a public hearing before issuing revised bills, in order to hear and determine on the objections raised by the Petitioners with reference to UFG, cost of services and transmission and distribution losses.

Income Tax Ordinance (XLIX of 2001)---

----Ss. 82 & 111 --- Convention between the Government of the French Republic and the Government of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan for the Avoidance of Double Taxation and the Prevention of Fiscal Evasion with Respect to Taxes on Income (1994), Art. 4 --- Non-resident person---Non-taxability/chargeability of funds for purchase of property/assets in Pakistan --- Appellate Tribunal held that respondent had centre of vital interest in France by virtue of his personal and economic interests; that respondent had his family, business, Bank account(s) and permanent house in France, and his income was also assessed there; that respondent and his family were French citizens; that the respondent did not come to Pakistan as a routine, and even when he did, he did not stay for long enough to establish himself as a resident of two countries; and that once it was established that the respondent's centre of vital interest was not Pakistan, S. 111 read with S. 82 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 were not applicable to the respondent and were superseded by Art. 4 of the Bilateral Tax Treaty between Pakistan and France ---Held, that deletion of levy of tax had been made by the Appellate Tribunal after detail scrutiny of facts and discussing merits of case by invoking correct legal provisions of Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 and Art. 4 of the Bilateral Tax Treaty between Pakistan and France upon applicable tie-breaker test --- Appellate Tribunal had correctly held that S. 111 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 was not attracted to the case of the respondent --- Reference filed by Inland Revenue authority was dismissed.
Mrs. Fozia Bukhsh for Applicant.

ORDER

This Reference Application under Section 133 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (the "Ordinance") has been filed by the Applicant, being dissatisfied by the order passed by the Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue, (Headquarters Bench), Islamabad ("Appellate Tribunal") in I.T.A. No.490/IB/2018 (Tax Year 2008) dated 08.05.2019.

2. Following questions of law are pressed for our opinion in instant Reference, which are asserted to have arisen out of judgment:-
(1) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case the learned Appellate Tribunal was justified to ignore the basic legal question regarding taxability and chargeability of funds/sources to purchase property/assets in Pakistan by a Non-Resident Person?

(2) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case, the learned Appellate Tribunal was justified to ignore the legal issue that chargeability/taxability of a Non Resident person shall be governed in terms of provisions of Sections 11(6), 79(2), 101, 172(3) read with Section 111 of the income Tax Ordinance, 2001?
(3) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case, the learned Appellate Tribunal was justified to ignore the legal issue that Double Taxation Treat cannot redundant the provision of Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 specifically section 111 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 when there is issue of seeking explanation regarding sources of investment made in purchase of property/assets by a Non-Resident Person in Pakistan?
(4) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case, the learned Appellate Tribunal intentionally ignored the Rules 14, 17 and 19B of the Income Tax Rules, 2002?
(5) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case, the learned ATIR, being the "Final Fact Finding" authority under the appellate hierarchy of Inland Revenue in Pakistan, is justified to pass order under the influence of clarifications/opinion of some foreign jurisdiction on double taxation treaties?
(6) Whether a discretionary relief under the appellate jurisdiction of the Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue can be given to help retention of ill-gotten money gained by a party (Non-Resident Person buying properties in Pakistan), as supported by [2009 SCMR 19 = 2008 PTD 2019]. ?
(7) Whether in view of the admission of the Taxpayer "he had enough agricultural income to purchase this property", interpretation of Section 111 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 by the learned Tribunal, has made the provisions governing taxability of concealed income as redundant, while learned Tribunal intentionally ignored the binding verdict in Civil Appeals Nos.815 to 855, 860 to 974 etc dated 08.01.2019, wherein Hon'ble Supreme Court finally declared the verdict?
(8) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case, the learned Appellate Tribunal intentionally ignore the root cause of the lis i.e., lack of evidence to explain funds/sources to purchase property/asset in Pakistan by a Non-Resident Person and whether the decision of learned Tribunal is in direct conflict with the binding verdict of Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in "Messrs Squib Pakistan (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Commissioner of Income Tax (2017 PTD 1303)?.
(9) Whether the learned Appellate Tribunal has erred in fact as well as law while declaring that the Section 111 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 is not attracted to Non-Resident Person in the presence of double tax treaty?
(10) Whether the learned Appellate Tribunal has erred in fact as well as law to issue directions to the department in the following vague and unlawful manner by overstepping the lawful jurisdiction provided under the law to the Tribunal, "the Zonal Commissioner Inland Revenue is directed to return the amount extorted".
(11) Whether the learned Appellate Tribunal has wrongly and erroneously interpreted the Double Taxation Treaty and ignored the binding provisions of Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 read with Income Tax Rules, 2002?
(12) Whether the interpretation of Section 111 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 in case of Non-Resident Person by the learned Tribunal has made the whole income tax law redundant, which redundancy cannot be attributed to any provision promulgated by the legislature?.

(13) Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case order passed by the learned Appellate Tribunal is a speaking order in terms of Section 24-A of the General Clauses Act, 1897 and binding verdicts of judiciary?.

3. Learned counsel for the Applicant has submitted that the Appellate Tribunal was not justified to delete levy of tax under Section 111 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 by accepting Appeal of the Respondent, therefore, it has been prayed that the impugned order may be set-aside and the questions proposed may be answered in favour of the Applicant and against the Respondent.

4. We have heard the arguments of learned counsel for the Applicant and perused the order passed by Appellate Tribunal. The operative part thereof reads as under:
"We would hold that the Appellant has centre of vital interest in France by virtue of his personal and economic interest abroad. He has his habitual abode abroad, and his income is assessed in France. According to the submission in para 5(xx) wherein the tie breaker test was applied as under on the Appellant terms of Article 4 of the Tax Treaty between Pakistan and France and it was concluded that:
a) The appellant has a permanent house in Paris, France. In order to assess his personal and economic relations, reliance is placed on the following facts
i) The Appellant has a business in Paris, whereby, he is a restaurateur, carrying business through a restaurant that serve Pakistani/Indian cuisine;
ii) The Appellant, in order to make payments to employees, has a bank account in France.
iii) The Appellant's family live in Paris and have lived so far several years.
iv) The Appellant's French tax number is attached with his Tax Returns.
v) The Appellant's children were born in France and are French citizens.
vi) The client does not come to Pakistan as a routine, and even so, does not stay for long enough to establish himself as a resident of two countries. Reliance is placed on the test of "considerable time". Therefore, to suggest that Pakistan is his habitual abode would be incorrect in law and also contrary to the facts of the case.
vii) The Appellant is a naturalized French Citizen. He holds a French Passport.
It was further observed which reads as follows:
"The taxpayer has closer personal relations as well as substantial economic relations, to one contracting state (France), while in other state (Pakistan) he merely has an economic interest that is current (wherein the appellant has just purchased a piece of land). His centre for vital interest will be deemed to be the first contracting State i.e. France. In the case of Appellant, it is obvious to us now that the centre for vital interest for him is France and not Pakistan. Once it is established that the centre of vital interest is not Pakistan, section 111 read with section 82 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 are thus superseded by, and thus quashed by Article 4 of the Bilateral Tax Treaty between Pakistan and France"

5. We observed that deletion of levy of tax has been made by the Appellate Tribunal vide impugned order after detail scrutiny of facts and discussing merits of case by invoking correct legal provisions of Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 and Article 4 of the Bilateral Tax Treaty between Pakistan and France upon applicable tie-breaker test and it was categorically held that the section 111 of the Income Tax Ordinance is not attracted to the case of the Respondent. The facts are so obvious and clear that the department's point of view appears to be as an un-necessary effort hence averments made by the learned counsel for the Applicant before us stands falsified. The deletion of levy of tax, therefore, is unexceptionable.

6. We agree with the findings of the Appellate Tribunal and see no reason to interfere with the impugned order which does not suffer from any factual or legal infirmity as the same has been passed after scrutinizing the relevant record as well as on the basis of sound reasoning.

7. Therefore, the Reference application is decided against the Applicant.

8. Office shall send a copy of this order under seal of the Court to the Appellate Tribunal as per Section 133(5) of the Ordinance.
MWA/C-21/L Reference dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--Through this Petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 11.3.2019 passed by Respondent No.1, Special Judge (Rent), Lahore.

2. The basic contention of the learned counsel for the Petitioner is that the Petitioner filed an ejectment petition against Respondent No.2 before Special Judge (Rent), Lahore. Respondent No.2 did not appear before the court, hence the eviction petition was decided ex-parte on 11.4.2016. The Petitioner then filed an execution petition in order to have the Respondents evicted. However Respondents Nos.3 and 4 filed an application under Section 12(2) read with Section 151 Civil Procedure Code, 1908 ("C.P.C.") on 11.2.2017 which application was accepted on the same date that is 11.2.2017. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that provision of Section 12(2) of the C.P.C. is not applicable in the proceedings under the Punjab Rented Premises Act, 2009 ("Rent Act") as it has been specifically barred under Section 34 of the Rent Act. Furthermore he stated that the Limitation Act, 1908 ("Limitation Act") is also not applicable and the delay in filing the application under Section 12(2) C.P.C. could have also not been condoned as the Limitation Act is not applicable to the proceedings under Rent Act.

3. On behalf of Respondents Nos.3 and 4, learned counsel argued that the case was considered on its merits and that in terms of the order impugned before this Court, the application for condonation of delay was accepted in the interest of justice as law favours decision on merit rather than technicalities. Therefore he stated that the arguments of the Petitioner's Counsel are based on technical grounds, hence should not be accepted. Consequently prays for dismissal of the Petition.

4. The basic issue before the Court is whether the application filed under Section 12(2) read with Section 151 C.P.C. for setting aside ex-parte order was maintainable under the Rent Act. Section 34 of the Rent Act reads as follows:
Save as otherwise expressly provided under this Act, the provisions of the Qanun-e-Shahadat Order, 1984 (P.O. No.10 of 1984) and the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act V of 1908) shall not apply to the proceedings under this Act before a Rent Tribunal, District Judge or Additional District Judge.
In terms of the said Section, it is clear that the provisions of the C.P.C. shall not apply to proceedings before the Rent Tribunal, District Judge or Additional District Judge. Section 26 of the Rent Act provides that the Rent Tribunal can exercise the powers of a Civil Court in order to enforce the attendance of a person, compel the production of evidence, inspect a premises or issue commission for examination of a witness or local inspection. Therefore when Section 26 is read with Section 34, the provisions of the C.P.C. are only applicable to the extent specified in Section 26 and no other provision of the C.P.C. is applicable in rent proceedings under the Rent Act. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan in this regard has already held in Muhammad Tariq Khan v. Khawaja Muhammad Jawad Asami and others (2007 SCMR 818) that the Rent Tribunal should evolve its own procedure for disposal of ejectment proceedings and follow the enabling provisions of the C.P.C. and the principles contained therein. It has also held that equitable principles of the C.P.C. can be applied, however the provisions of the C.P.C. themselves were not applicable. Reliance is placed on Saeed Pervaiz v. Syed Masood Hassan (2008 SCMR 568).

5. In the instant case, an application under Section 12(2) C.P.C. was filed against an ex-parte judgment dated 11.4.2016. In this regard, it is noted that Section 21 of the Rent Act provides for appearance of parties and consequences of non-appearance. In terms of Section 21(8) of the Rent Act, if an application has been dismissed in default of the appearance of an applicant and an application for restoration of the same is made within thirty days of the dismissal order, the Rent Tribunal may restore the application on such terms as it may deem appropriate. The Rent Act, therefore specifically provides for the mode and manner in which a dismissal in default of appearance can be restored, that too within a period of thirty days. In this case, the eviction petition under Section 15 of the Rent Act was filed on 25.2.2016. The order sheet shows that ex-parte proceedings were initiated vide order dated 22.3.2016 and the case was fixed for ex-parte evidence on 26.3.2016. In terms of order dated 26.3.2016 ex-parte evidence was recorded and the case was fixed on 30.3.2016 for arguments and on 30.3.2016 the case was adjourned to 11.4.2016. On 11.4.2016 no one appeared on behalf of the respondent, hence ex-parte judgment was passed by Respondent No.1. The ex-parte judgment dated 11.4.2016 finds that the respondent was summoned by using different modes of service including publication in the newspaper, but he did not appear. Hence the judgment and decree dated 11.4.2016 was passed. The Respondents moved an application under Section 12(2) C.P.C. on 11.2.2017 for setting aside ex-parte judgment dated 11.4.2016. The court considered the application and allowed it primarily in the interest of justice.

6. For ease of reference Section 12(2) of the C.P.C. is reproduced:
Where a person challenges the validity of a judgment, decree or order on the plea of fraud, mis-representation or want of jurisdiction, he shall seek his remedy by making an application to the Court which passed the final judgment, decree or order and not by a separate suit.
In my opinion, this section is not applicable on account of the bar contained in Section 34 of the Rent Act. It is further noted that in terms of the contents of the application, no case of fraud or misrepresentation was made out rather a simple prayer for restoration on account of non-appearance was made out before the court. Notwithstanding the same, if an application was made under Section 12(2) of the C.P.C., it could have been treated as an application under Section 21(8) of the Rent Act, which means it had to be filed within thirty days of the dismissal order dated 11.4.2016. Therefore not only was the application under Section 12(2) C.P.C. barred under the law in terms of Section 34 of the Rent Act but also barred by time under Section 21(8) of the Rent Act.

7. In this regard, Section 29(2) of the Limitation Act is relevant and reproduced under:
Where any special or local law prescribes for any suit, appeal or application a period of limitation different from the period prescribed therefor by the First Schedule, the provisions of section 3 shall apply, as if such period were prescribed therefor in that Schedule, and for the purpose of determining any period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application by any special or local law:

(a) the provisions contained in section 4, sections 9 to 18 and section 22 shall apply only in so far as, and to the extent to which, they are not expressly excluded by such special or local law; and
(b) the remaining provisions of this Act shall not apply.
On the basis of the aforementioned Section, it is clear that the ability of a court to condone the delay has been excluded under special or local laws and is authorized specifically where the law of limitation has been made applicable in the said statute. In cases where the law of limitation has not been made applicable under the special law, then the court cannot condone the delay and the court has to ensure that the application is made within the specified period given in the statute. Reliance is placed on Allah Dino v. Muhammad Shah and others (2001 SCMR 286) wherein it has been held that where the law under which proceedings had been initiated itself prescribed a period of limitation, then the benefit of section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1908 could not be availed unless the same had been made applicable as per section 29(2) of the Act. The operation of section 5 of the Limitation Act is expressly excluded by section 29(2) of the Limitation Act. Therefore the application under Section 12(2) C.P.C. was not maintainable and the Special Judge (Rent), Lahore did not have jurisdiction to condone the delay of 10 months.

8. Under the circumstances, the instant Petition is allowed and impugned order dated 11.3.2019 passed by Respondent No.1 is set aside.

Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance (XVII of 2002)---

----Ss. 6, 12(2) & Preamble---Regulatory powers of Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority (OGRA)---Supply of gas to domestic consumers---Pressure Factor---Presumptive billing---Scope---Petitioner Sui Northern Gas Pipelines Ltd. ("SNGPL) impugned decisions of Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority (OGRA) whereby it was directed to refund amounts charged to demestic consumers under head of "Pressure Factor"---Contention of SNGPL, inter alia, was that Gas Meters installed in consumers' premises did not meansure Pressure Factor, and they were often tampered with, hence Pressure Factor was charged to prevent misappropriation of gas---Validity---SNGPL had not physically verified each and evey domestic consumer to conclude that gas meters had been tampered with, therefore, charging of Pressure Factor across the board was a presumptive exercise which was rejected by OGRA as not being sufficient reasons to charge said Pressure Factor---SNGPL's charging of all domestic consumers was, therefore, rightly rejected by the regulator OGRA as not being in compliance with the contractual understanding between the parties---In terms of the Preamble of the Oil and Gas Regultory Authority Ordinance, 2002, OGRA was mandated to protect public interest while respecting individual rights and in the present matter, OGRA had repeatedly required petitioner SNGPL to honour the terms of its contracts with domestic consumers and to bill ony those who have tampered with gas installations to obtain higher Pressure Factor---No reasons existed for High Court to interfere in the impugned directions of OGRA---Constitutional petition was dismissed, in circumstances.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This Petition has been filed under Section 12(2) of the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 ("Ordinance 2002") read with Article 199 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") whereby the Petitioner, Sui Northern Gas Pipelines Limited ("SNGPL") has challenged decisions dated 15.01.2019, 27.02.2019 and 31.05.2019 (the Impugned Decisions) passed by the Respondent, Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA").

2. The basic grievance of the Petitioner is that OGRA has wrongfully decided that the Petitioner cannot recover Pressure Factor from domestic consumers. Further that the Petitioner is entitled to recover Pressure Factor from domestic consumers who are using gas in excess of 8 inches of water column pressure. The consumers are required to compensate SNGPL for the actual delivery of pressure availed by them. Learned counsel argued that the relationship between domestic consumers and SNGPL is governed by the Standard Domestic Gas Supply Contract ("Gas Contract") whose terms are approved and notified by OGRA after obtaining feedback from all stakeholders. Clause 11 of the Gas Contract clearly provides that natural gas shall be supplied at a pressure not exceeding 8 inches of water column above atmospheric pressure. The basic case of the Petitioner is that gas meters installed for domestic consumers only measure the volume of gas flowing through it and there is no inbuilt system to measure any changes in pressure. Consequently, if any domestic consumer consumes gas at a higher pressure than that allocated to it by the Petitioner, it will result in incorrect billing on account of misappropriation of gas, as the consumer does not pay for the quantity of gas it has actually consumed. To deal with this problem, the Petitioner executed a policy dated 30.10.2008 ("Pressure Factor Policy") regarding application of Pressure Factor to domestic consumers. The objective of the Pressure Factor Policy was to enable the Petitioner to rectify measurement errors so as to ensure that a consumer is billed for correct quantity of gas consumed. In terms of the Pressure Factor Policy, if a consumer is found using gas in excess of 8 inches water column pressure, then the Pressure Factor corresponding to the actual delivered pressure should be applied. Essentially the Pressure Factor Policy allows the Petitioner to ensure that any consumer receiving gas beyond the prescribed Pressure Factor will be liable to pay for the excess gas that it has consumed.

3. Learned counsel for SNGPL argued that the relationship between the domestic consumer and the Petitioner is covered by the Gas Contract the terms of which are approved and notified by OGRA. As per terms of the Gas Contract, the domestic consumer is to be supplied gas at a pressure not exceeding 8 inches of water column above atmospheric pressure. The volume of gas is recorded in cubic feet or cubic meters on the meter, which is converted to energy units i.e. million british thermal units (MMBTU) based on the average BTU per cubic foot (at absolute pressure of 14.65 pounds per square inch and a temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit) recorded on the calorimeters and/or gas chromatographs for the particular city/town, village or locality where the consumer is located. However, where consumer is found tampering with the meter, regulator, service pipe or other installations and has obtained gas at a higher pressure, such consumer is liable to pay the Petitioner gas charges which commensurate with the gas consumed. Learned counsel argued that in terms of Clause 11 read with Clause 19 of the Gas Contract, the Petitioner is entitled to recover charges for excess Pressure Factor in order to ensure and prevent gas misappropriation. Learned counsel further argued that although the Gas Contract stipulates that the Petitioner can terminate the contract and subsequently disconnect the supply of gas, yet the Petitioner did not resort to doing the same and instead has made efforts to recover amounts due to it. In this regard, he argued that the Petitioner conducted an extensive exercise of physical verification at the premises of consumers who were misappropriating the gas and billed them accordingly. He explained that Pressure Factor is charged in the bill to consumers against whom proper physical verification has been carried out. Learned counsel further argued that in this context, several letters have been issued by the Petitioner to the Respondent explaining its position with reference to misappropriation of gas and the necessity to charge Pressure Factor to domestic consumers. Learned counsel explained that although over all there has been a decline in gas reserves, usage of gas has increased at the same time and there has been a shortfall in power generation. Hence the overall environment has created an increased usage of gas and gas generators. All these factors are necessary, important and relevant when looking into the matter of Pressure Factor especially for winter season. Learned counsel argued that the Impugned Decisions have failed to take these factors into consideration and has wrongfully, against the terms of the Gas Contract, denied the Petitioner amounts due for enhanced consumption of gas by unlawfully increasing Pressure Factor. Learned counsel clarified that Petitioner is under no obligation to supply gas at a pressure exceeding 8 inches water column. Where consumers through unauthorized means enhanced the pressure and have managed to extract more gas than they are entitled to, in such cases, the Petitioner is entitled to recover amounts for excess gas consumed. Therefore, the real question in issue before OGRA was the illegal means that domestic consumers have resorted to, in order to procure gas beyond what they are entitled to. Learned counsel also relied upon the Natural Gas Distribution Technical Standards Regulations, 2004 ("2004 Regulations") which is contrary to the terms of the Gas Contract. Hence the learned counsel argued that the Regulations will prevail over the Gas Contract and the higher limits prescribed by the Regulations can apply in this regard. Furthermore learned counsel argued that Clause 19 of the Contract has been totally ignored; the Petitioner's entitlement to recover charges for actual gas consumed by applying a proper Pressure Factor has also been ignored; reliance on Clause 11 of the Contract is misconceived and the decision of OGRA to refund all amounts collected under the head of Pressure Factor to consumers is totally based on a direction issued by the Federal Government and is not an independent reasoned direction of OGRA. Consequently, he argued that the Respondent has not discharged its functions in accordance with law.

4. On behalf of Respondent, report and parawise comments have been filed. Learned counsel argued that the matter in issue is with reference to the application of Pressure Factor across the board to all domestic consumers without carrying out a detailed physical verification of each and every consumer. She argued that the Respondent has relied upon Clause 19 of the Contract which provides that if a consumer tampers with a meter, regulator, service pipe or other installations to secure more supply than is recorded on the meter or to obtain gas at a higher pressure than maintained by Petitioner, that consumer is liable to pay gas charges commensurating with the consumption of gas as ascertained by the Petitioner for the relevant period in accordance with company's policy on theft of gas. She argued that in terms of this Clause, the Petitioner has to physically verify that a particular consumer has tampered with the gas installations and thereby consumed more gas or obtained gas at a higher pressure than that it is entitled to. States that in these cases, the Petitioner did not carry out any physical verification, rather it applied Pressure Factor to domestic consumers on the presumption that each and every domestic consumer has wrongfully obtained gas at a higher pressure than that it is entitled to. She argued that this fact is admitted in the correspondence that the Petitioner has made with the Respondent. States that matter was duly considered through the Impugned Decisions dated 15.01.2019 whereby the Respondent directed the Petitioner to re-examine the application of correct Pressure Factor in the domestic consumers' gas bills and make any adjustment on this account to ensure that consumers who have tampered with gas installations are held liable for the same and not otherwise. The matter was again considered through the Impugned Decision dated 27.02.2019 whereby the Respondent once again directed the Petitioner to make reversal/adjustment to the affected consumers due to application of Pressure Factor above 8 inches of water column across the board for the period from July, 2018 to February, 2019. Since the adjustment claims were not found to be based on any physical verification, therefore, the Respondent directed the Petitioner to reverse all Pressure Factor adjustments claimed in the bills and only demand the same where proper physical verification has been made. And finally, the matter was again considered in the Impugned Decision dated 31.05.2019 at great length wherein the Respondent observed that the Petitioner is neither complying with the directions of OGRA nor with the directions of Government of Pakistan with respect to refund of amounts that have been charged excessively by the Petitioner under the head of Pressure Factor. Learned counsel argued that in this regard, the Petitioner has itself formulated the Policy, yet they are unable to provide all the verification documents on the basis of which they have billed the domestic consumers for Pressure Factor. She stated that the Respondent has repeatedly been asked for the documents pertaining to physical verification but the same has not been provided. Hence, she stated that Impugned Decisions are in accordance with law and do not call for any interference by this Court.

5. Heard. Record perused. The Petitioner is aggrieved by the Impugned Decisions of OGRA on the basis of which it has been directed to refund all amounts charged to the domestic consumers in excess, under the head of Pressure Factor since July, 2018 to February, 2019. The basic contention of the Petitioner is that OGRA failed to take into consideration the fact that on account of an increased demand for gas, consumers have resorted to illegal means to enhance supply of gas through manipulation of the Pressure Factor for the purposes of increasing supply of gas. In this context, the gas meters installed by Petitioner do not measure Pressure Factor rather only measure volume of gas consumed. Hence, it is difficult for the Petitioner to prevent misappropriation of gas by domestic consumers. The entire controversy, as has been argued on behalf of Petitioner is based on the Gas Contract between the Petitioner and domestic consumers. The relevant Clauses of the Contract as relied upon by both the parties are reproduced hereunder:-

Clause 11: Measurement Standard: Natural gas shall be supplied at a pressure not exceeding 8 inches of water column above atmospheric pressure. The volume of gas shall be recorded in cubic feet or cubic meters on the meter, which shall be converted to energy units i.e. Million British Thermal Units (MMBTU) based on the average BTU per cubic foot (at absolute pressure of 14.65 pounds per square inch and a temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit) recorded on the calorimeters and/or gas chromatographs for the particular city/town, village or locality where the consumer is located.

Clause 18: Contract Termination on violation of terms of the Contract:

(I) This Contract shall be subject to cancellation by the Company at any time for any of the following causes:

(i) Neglect or default of the Consumer to pay the bills rendered by the Company for any month's supply of gas or other dues payable by the Consumer within the period specified in Clause 12 hereof.

(ii) Any action by OGRA, Municipal Authorities, Improvement Trust, Local Bodies or any Government authorities or any legal proceeding against the Company by any party interfering with the Company's right to supply gas or collect dues payable to the Company hereunder.

(iii) Any action by the Consumer to secure gas through his meter for purposes other than that mentioned hereinabove or for another party without written consent of the Company.

(iv) Any action by the Consumer tending to secure more gas than the meter registers or to secure gas through the said meter at a higher pressure than that at which the regulators are set by the Company or any interference by the Consumer with the meters or regulators tending to prevent the same from properly operating and correctly registering.

(v) Violation of or default in compliance with any of the terms and conditions of this contract.

(vi) Any major alteration, addition, extension to the existing gas installation carried out by the Consumer without obtaining prior approval of the Company in writing.

(II) In case of termination of this Contract for any cause whatsoever, all claims for gas supplied and or services rendered by the Company upto the date of disconnection of gas supply shall become forthwith due and payable without notice from the Company and the Consumer shall pay the same on demand.

(III) This Contract shall stand cancelled if the person, premises and/or the purpose for which the gas is supplied under this Contract, have been transferred or assigned in favour of any other person, body corporate or firm, with effect from the date of such transfer or assignment. The Company shall have the right to discontinue supply and to remove any or all of its property from the premises unless a fresh Contract is signed by the new owner/occupier of the premises or property in question. On the transfer/assignment of the premises the security deposit may be transferred by the Consumer and thereafter the same will be held by the Company, as security deposit in favour of the new occupant, and execution of a notice to this effect shall be sufficient proof of such transfer, and the Consumer shall cease to have any right of action against the Company in respect of such security deposit.

Clause 19: Tampering of Gas Installations: If meter, regulator service pipe or other installations at the Consumers premises are found to have been tampered in any way in order to secure more supply for the Consumer than is recorded on the meter or to obtain gas at a higher pressure than maintained by the Company, the Consumer shall be liable to pay to the Company gas charges commensurate with the Consumer's consumption of gas ascertained by the Company for this period in accordance with company's policy on theft of gas, duly approved by OGRA.

6. The argument of the Petitioner is that Clause 11 of the Contract does not take into consideration the illegal modes adopted by domestic consumers to extract higher pressure of gas, beyond what it is entitled to. Consequently where a consumer is found to be tampering with the Pressure Factor, the Petitioner can either terminate the Gas Contract under Clause 18(iv) and thereby disconnect the supply of gas or else it can be compensated, by charging the consumer for the excess amounts of gas consumed under Clause 19. On the basis of the record, it appears that this issue has been highlighted by the Petitioner several times before OGRA and as far back as 30.10.2008, a policy regarding application of Pressure Factor to domestic consumers was made in terms of which if a consumer is found to be using gas in excess of 8 inches of water column, consumer's signatures may be obtained by a responsible Engineer/Supervisor on the inspection report and any amounts in excess of the entitled Pressure Factor would be charged with effect from the date of detection. As per the Pressure Factor Policy, no recovery can be made prior to the date of inspection. This Policy itself stipulates that there has to be a physical verification by a responsible Engineer/Supervisor who has to confirm that the consumer has been tampering with the gas installations for procuring higher pressure of gas. The bills appended with the instant Petition show that all domestic consumers have been billed for Pressure Factor. This fact is not denied by the Petitioner. The dispute between SNGPL and OGRA is whether the Petitioner can charge for Pressure Factor across the board, to all domestic consumers and whether physical verification of all consumers who were billed for Pressure Factor was carried out. The Petitioner's contention is that it has carried out physical verification of all consumers and has billed them for Pressure Factor. This statement of the Petitioner is negated by its own correspondence appended with this Petition, on the basis of which Petitioner has repeatedly stated to OGRA that it has charged Pressure Factor to domestic consumers taking a lenient view against termination of the Gas Contract. In the correspondence through letters No. RA-Pressure Factor-001-19 dated 25.01.2019, RA-Pressure Factor-002-19 dated 04.02.2019, RA-Pressure Factor-003-19 dated 15.02.2019 and RA-Pressure Factor-004-19 dated 25.02.2019, the Petitioner has stated as follows:-

i) Continuous surveillance of all domestic consumers on monthly (as in case of industrial consumers)/quarterly (as in case of commercial consumers)/annual basis is not possible with available resources and may not be a feasible economical option for the Petitioner.

ii) Petitioner has billed all the domestic consumers across the board under the head of Pressure Factor and has been advertising Pressure Factor application to domestic consumers in print and electronic media.

iii) On the basis of available resources, only one million domestic consumers can be inspected annually which will also take a considerable period of time and even if the Pressure Factor is charged to those consumers who are tampering with the gas installations, Petitioner apprehends that those consumers will again resort to the illegal pressure enhancement to meet their gas load requirement.

7. On the basis of aforesaid, it is evident that the Petitioner has not physically verified each and every domestic consumer to conclude that they have tampered with the gas installations and manipulated the Pressure Factor. Consequently, charging of Pressure Factor to every gas consumer is a presumptive exercise carried out by Petitioner which has been repeatedly considered by OGRA and rejected on account of there not being sufficient evidence to support its claim to charge Pressure Factor to all the domestic consumers. The record shows that OGRA through its letter No. OGRA 9-(432)/2016 dated 02.01.2019 required the Petitioner to provide proper evidence where it applies Pressure Factor in terms of provisions of Clause 11 of the Contract. This letter clearly provides that incorrect application of Pressure Factor is resulting in escalated gas bills for the domestic consumers. Hence specific evidence of tampering with the Pressure Factor was required to justify charging for Pressure Factor. Again through letter No. OGRA 9-(432)/2016 dated 11.02.2019, OGRA asked the Petitioner to provide data with respect to the additional volume being charged for the period July, 2018 to December, 2018. Although the Petitioner provided some data to OGRA vide letter No. RA-Pressure Factor-003-19 dated 15.02.2019 this data was in the form of Pressure Factor applicable in various different regions where its consumer base is available. The said letter contains the Petitioner's explanation that continuous surveillance of about 6.5 million consumers is practically impossible and monitoring of each and every domestic consumer for Pressure Factor is economically not viable. Hence region-wise data was provided which OGRA rejected and asked for specific details of the consumers who were liable to pay for the illegal modes applied for obtaining higher pressure than what they were entitled to under the Gas Contract. However, the Petitioner was unable to provide special data.

8. Therefore in terms of the aforesaid correspondence, it is clear that the Petitioner's contention that physical verification of each and every consumer with reference to the Pressure Factor was carried out is incorrect. It is also clear on the basis of the Petitioner's own admission that it has applied Pressure Factor across the board on all the domestic consumers which includes those consumers who have not manipulated the Pressure Factor nor caused any loss to the Petitioner. This practice was rightly rejected by OGRA through the Impugned Decisions on the ground that there cannot be a presumptive calculation with respect to Pressure Factor. If at all, a domestic consumer is made liable to pay for Pressure Factor, it has to be on the basis of physical verification and an inspection report which finds that the specific consumer has tampered with the gas installations and enhanced the Pressure Factor. This is as per the terms of the Gas Contract where, if the Petitioner is of the opinion that a domestic consumer has violated any provision of the Gas Contract, then liability can be imposed only upon a consumer after a finding of fact that the said consumer has in fact tampered with the gas installations.

9. Although learned counsel for the Petitioner has at length tried to explain all the reasons available to the Petitioner on the basis of which it has justified its position to charge Pressure Factor to all domestic consumers, the regulator being OGRA has considered the stated factors and concluded that the Petitioner cannot make presumptive charges to all domestic consumers, without verification as to whether or not any tampering with the gas installations has been made. The Impugned Decisions also show that the Petitioner was directed vide decision dated 15.01.2019 to re-examine the application of correct Pressure Factor in the domestic consumers' bills and make any adjustments on this account where necessary. The Petitioner did not comply with the orders and again vide the impugned decision dated 27.02.2019, the matter was considered and the Petitioner was once again directed to verify the imposition of Pressure Factor in the bills of all domestic consumers and to refund/adjust all the amounts to those consumers who were not liable to pay Pressure Factor. The Petitioner once again disputed this decision by issuing letters of explanation and by way of making a presentation before OGRA and filing a Review of the Estimated Revenue Requirement (RERR) for the Financial Year 2018-2019. However once again OGRA concluded that Petitioner cannot charge Pressure Factor above 8 inches of water column which is its contractual obligation and any consumer who is receiving a higher pressure, firstly has to be made liable for receiving a higher pressure in terms of Pressure Factor Policy and secondly there has to be a physical verification for the same on the basis of which there will be a finding of fact that such domestic consumer has tampered with the gas installations and has consumed gas at a higher pressure than that it was entitled to. Finally the consumer can be billed as per excessive consumption based on proper verification. So far as management issues, economic considerations and resources availability is concerned, in the decision dated 31.05.2019, the Petitioner has been advised by OGRA to take necessary measures for the resolution of these issues and consider revising its contract to cater for such consumers who are repeatedly tampering with the gas installations in order to prevent any further bottlenecks of its distribution network. The Petitioner has also been told that this is an operational issue for SNGPL, which it should rectify, but it cannot unnecessarily inflate the bills of all domestic consumers. Consequently, the Petitioner's contentions and justifications for charging all domestic consumers Pressure Factor were totally rejected for being not in compliance with the contractual understanding.

10. Even subsequent to decision dated 31.05.2019, the Petitioner has issued its comments on this determination and once again tried to justify the reasons and its inability for compliance of the orders of OGRA. In this regard, it is noted that the Petitioner has impugned three decisions of OGRA before this Court under Section 12(2) of the Ordinance 2002. The matter has been looked into at great length and no illegality or irregularity has been found in the impugned decisions of OGRA. Therefore, SNGPL does not have any option but to comply with the orders of OGRA as OGRA is the front line regulator of SNGPL and has given clear directions which require compliance. In terms of the preamble of the Ordinance 2002, OGRA is mandated to protect the public interest while respecting individual rights. In this case, OGRA has repeatedly required the Petitioner to honour the terms of its contracts with domestic consumers and to bill only those consumers who have tampered with the gas installations to obtain higher Pressure Factor and not to make presumptive billing with reference to Pressure Factor to all the domestic consumers. On the face of it, the stance of the Petitioner that it is entitled to charge all domestic consumers with Pressure Factor on account of enhanced demand for gas and enhanced use of illegal modes to fulfill gas requirements does not justify charging all domestic consumers with Pressure Factor as those consumers who are not involved in any tampering with gas installations cannot be made liable to pay compensation for excessive use of gas as per the terms of the Gas Contract. Even otherwise, the Petitioner cannot devise its own reasons for billing all domestic consumers for an illegality which has not been established. As per the Petitioner's own Policy and terms of the Gas Contract the liability to pay for Pressure Factor is for those domestic consumers who have tampered with the gas installations and the Petitioner does not have any data to support its contention that all domestic consumers have undergone physical verification. Hence its charging of Pressure Factor is illegal.

11. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference by this Court is made out. This Petition being meritless stands dismissed.

entitled to receive pension benefits of both her parents concurrently---Held, that pension was a right of civil servant by way of statute, which could not be taken away arbitrarily by Provincial Government and such right accrued in favour of retired civil servant due to length of their service and said right was then bestowed upon persons mentioned in Punjab Civil Services Pension Rules, 1955 in the event of their death---Contention that respondent was not entitled to two pensions was misconceived because each one parent of respondent had earned their pension in their own right, while working for Provincial Government and on their death, said right was now vested in respondent who was entitled to collect the pension subject to the terms provided in Punjab Civil Services Pension Rules, 1955---As per applicable notification, respondent being an unmarried daughter was entitled to receive pension of both her parents until her marriage or on acquiring regular source of income, whichever was earlier---Contention that where a child was to receive two pensions, one pension would be deemed to be regular income thereby denying such child pension from other parent was flawed as such pension could not be considered as an independent or regular source of income said child was earning in her own capacity--- Respondent was therefore entitled to receive both pensions---Intra-court appeal was dismissed, in circumstances.

----R.4.10---"Pension" and "gratuity"---Entitlement of family to receive pension after death of civil servant---Nature of family pensions---Unmarried female child of deceased civil servant---Interpretation of Rule 4.10 of the Punjab Civil Services Pension Rules, 1955---Expression "acquiring regular source of income, interpretation of----Scope---Question before High Court related to Family Pension as per Rule 4.10 of Punjab Civil Services Pension Rules, 1955, which provided no family pension was payable to unmarried female on "acquiring regular source of income"---Issue to be determined was whether where an unmarried female was entitled to receive pension of both her deceased parents, and did the receipt of one pension constitute "regular income" thereby disentitling said unmarried female from the second pension of the other parent---Held, that in expression "acquiring regular source of income", used in Rule 4.10 of Punjab Civil Services Pension Rules, 1955; preceding word "acquiring" essentially controlled meaning and effect of following expression "regular source of income" and thus significance of expression "acquiring" had to be underscored while interpreting said condition---Right of parent to receive pension was an "acquired right", achieved in lieu and consideration of services performed, however, it was not an acquired right of an unmarried female daughter of such deceased civil servant as it simply devolved on her after death of parent(s), as cause and effect of relationship with deceased persons--- Construction of the expression "regular source of income", without the prefix, may simply indicate income coming from any source whatsoever, but when read with expression "acquiring", it had a definite connotation and meant more than mere assumption of devolved rights or receiving pensions and indicated acquiring of income by dint of some conscious effort, personal ability, skills, special qualification, experience or as consequence of any action or behaviour---Mere receipt of pension(s) by such unmarried female, as continuing right of her parents, could not be construed or termed as "acquiring regular income".

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----Through this ICA, the Appellant Province of Punjab has challenged judgment dated 15.2.2019 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.24111/2017.

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Respondent being the daughter of government servants, received pension of her father, Professor S.A Rashid who died on 22.10.1983 and the pension of her mother, Professor Mrs. Shamshad Rashid who died on 12.8.2009. The Respondent was receiving the pension until October 2016 when the pension of her father was not released in her favour. On inquiry, the Respondent was informed that she is only entitled to receive the pension of her mother in terms of the clarification issued by the Finance Department vide notification dated 11.9.2015. The Respondent challenged the matter by filing W.P. No.24111/2017 before this Court wherein the said petition, after hearing both parties was decided in favour of the Respondent vide judgment dated 15.2.2019 (impugned herein). The Court while relying on the meaning and purpose of pension concluded that Notification dated 11.9.2015 cannot be applied retrospectively on the Respondent whose parents died in the years 1983 and 2009. The Court also concluded that a vested right provided by the statute cannot be taken away unless the law specifically contemplates the same. The Court held that drawing of pension has been wrongly construed as being a regular source of income as the drawing of pension is a vested right of the government servant and cannot be taken away through a notification, that too with retrospective effect, irrespective of whether there are two pensions that are being drawn by a single child.

3. On behalf of the Appellant, Mr. Shan Gul, Additional Advocate General, Punjab argued that the impugned judgment has failed to take into consideration the Punjab Civil Services Pension Rules, 1963 ("Rules") and the fact that the Finance Department of the Government of Punjab is the rule making authority. Further that the Accountant General, Punjab is the custodian of government money and acts on behalf of the Government of Punjab; that family pension cases are finalized on the basis of the Rules and the amendments made from time to time by the Finance Department after approval from the competent authority. That the Government of Punjab through Notification dated 11.9.2015 clarified that receiving one pension will be construed as a regular source of income which will automatically disentitle the Respondent from receiving the second pension at the same time. He argued that the question of retrospective application is without basis as the relevant notification was issued on 22.7.1989 whereas the clarification was issued on 11.9.2015.

4. On behalf of the Respondent, Rana Asad Ullah, Advocate argued that the impugned judgment has duly considered the law on the matter and the fact that the Respondent has a vested right to collect pension of both her parents who were government servants and who earned their right to pension, putting in their entire life into the service of Government of Punjab. Further argued that the Appellants through clarification have deprived the Respondent of a statutory right which is provided for in the Punjab Civil Servants Act, 1974 ("Act") and the Rules. He explained that the Finance Department has no authority under the law to deprive the Respondent of the pension of both her parents on the sole ground that one pension will be deemed to be a regular source of income.

5. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at length and have also gone through the record. In terms of Section 18 of the Act, on retirement from service, a civil servant shall be entitled to receive such pension or gratuity as may be prescribed. In the event of death of a civil servant, whether before or after retirement, his family shall be entitled to receive such pension or gratuity or both, as may be prescribed. In terms of the Act, Section 23 provides that the Governor, or any person authorized in this behalf, may make such rules as appear to him to be necessary or expedient for carrying out the purposes of this Act. Any rules, orders or instructions in respect of any terms and conditions of service of civil servants duly made or issued by an authority competent to make them and in force immediately before the commencement of this Act shall, in so far as such rules, orders or instructions are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, be deemed to be rules made under this Act. Under the Rules, Rule 4.7(1) deals with family pension which reads as follows:
The term "family" for the purpose of payment of gratuity under this section shall include the following relatives of the Government:
(a) Wife or wives, in the case of a male Government servant;
(b) Husband in the case of a female Government servant;
(c) Children of the Government servant;
(d) Widow or widows and children of a deceased son of the Government servant.
Rule 4.10 of the Rules provides that family for the purpose of payment of family pension shall be as defined in sub-rule (1) of rule 4.7. It shall also include the Government Servant's relatives mentioned in clause (d) of Rule 4.8. Sub-Rule (3) of Rule 4.10 provides that no family pension shall be payable under this section:
(a) to an unmarried female member of a Government servant's family in the event of her marriage;

(b) to a widow female member of a Government servant's family in the event of her re-marriage;
(c) to the brother of a Government servant on his attaining the age of 21 years;
(d) to a person who is not member of a Government servant's family.
Subsequently Rule 4.10(3) was amended from time to time. The first amendment was made on 25.8.1983 which provided that with effect from 1st July 1983, the family pension will be admissible to the widows for life or until re-marriage of the widow. In the case of death of the widow, the family pension will be admissible to the sons, if any, until they attain the age of 21 years and the unmarried daughters, if any, until they are married or attain the age of 21 years, whichever is earlier. The next amendment was made on 22.7.1989 which provided that with effect from 1.7.1989 family pension in case of widow's death will be admissible to the dependent sons until they attain the age of 24 years or till they are gainfully employed, whichever is earlier and to unmarried daughters till their marriage, or their acquiring regular source of income whichever is earlier. Hence the bar of 21 years age was changed to having the ability to earn a regular source of income for a daughter and the age was enhanced from 21 years to 24 years for the son. Subsequently a clarification was issued by the Finance Department vide notification dated 11.9.2015 with reference to the Respondent's case which was impugned in the writ petition.

6. The basic issue before us is whether the Respondent is entitled to receive the pension of both her parents. In terms of the various dictas laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, pension is a retirement benefit, paid regularly based generally on the length of service of a pensioner. It is a series of periodic money payments made to a person who retires from employment because of age, disability, or the completion of an agreed span of service. The payments generally continues for the remainder of the natural life of the recipient or to a widow or any other survivor, as the case may be. Reliance is placed on H.R.C. No.40927-S of 2012 (PLD 2013 SC 829).

7. Extract from Corpus Juris Secundum. Vol. 67 pages 763-764 on the meaning of pension, states that the grant of pension to public officers or public employees serves the public purpose, and is designed to induce competent persons to enter and remain in the public service or employment, and to encourage retirement from public service of those who have become incapacitated from performing their duties. It is also stated that a pension system is intended to promote efficient, continued and faithful service to the employer and economic security to the employees and their dependents, by an arrangement under which, by fulfillment of specified eligibility requirements, pension becomes the property of the individual as a matter of right upon the completion of public service.

8. Extract from American Jurisprudence, Vol 40, pages 980 and 981 provides that the right to pension depends upon statutory provisions and the existence of such right in particular instances is determinable primarily from the terms of the statute under which the right or privilege is granted. The right to a pension may be made to depend upon such conditions, as the grantor may see fit to prescribe. Thus, it has been held that it may be provided in general through a pension Act. In Ghulam Sadiq v. Government of Pakistan (2005 PLC (CS) 1114), a larger Bench of the Federal Shariat Court held that:

It may be noted here that the terms pension denotes to a "grant" after release from service and right of pension depends upon the statutory provisions regulating it, therefore, to our mind, the pensioners retired at different dates cannot claim increase in pension at a particular rate.

In Pakistan Telecommunication Employees Trust (PTET) v. Muhammad Arif (2015 SCMR 1472) and Secretary, Government of Punjab, Finance Department v. M. Ismail Tayer (2015 PLC (CS) 296), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:

It was noted, and such has been done time and again by this Court that pension is a part of a civil servant's retirement benefit and is not bounty or an ex-gratia payment but a right acquired in consideration of his past service which was a vested right with legitimate expectation. The right to pension is conferred by law which could not be arbitrarily abridged or reduced except in accordance with law.

In Federation of Pakistan v. I.A. Sharwani (2005 SCMR 292), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:

As a rule, the right of pension depends upon statutory provisions regulating it, therefore, the existence of such right or otherwise is determined primarily from the terms of the statute under which the right or privilege is granted. In general sense the term 'pension' denotes to a grant after release from service. It is designed to assist the petitioner in providing for his daily wants and it presupposes the continued life after retirement.

9. Therefore in view of the various different dictas of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, we are of the opinion that pension is the right of the civil servant by way of statute, which cannot be taken away arbitrarily by the Government of Punjab. This right accrues in favour of the retired civil servant due to the length of their service and that right is then bestowed upon the persons mentioned in the Rules in the event of their death. Therefore we find that the basic contention of the Appellant that the Respondent is not entitled to two pensions is misconceived because each of the parents of the Respondent have earned their pension in their own right, while working for the Government of Punjab. Consequently on their death, that right is now vested in the Respondent who is entitled to collect the pension subject to the terms provided in the Rules. As per Notification dated 22.7.1989, the Respondent being an unmarried daughter is entitled to receive pension of both her parents until her marriage or on acquiring regular source of income, whichever is earlier.

10. The Appellants issued clarification dated 11.9.2015 in which Deputy Secretary (SR), Finance Department in the form of an interpretation of the Rules construed that where a child is to receive two pensions, pension of one parent will be deemed to be a regular source of income thereby denying the child/daughter the pension of the other parent. We are of the opinion that this argument is totally flawed. The Rules provide that an unmarried daughter will be denied pension on her acquiring regular source of income which means that she must acquire, of her own vocation and skill, some form of income as a means of supporting herself. The pension that she receives of her parents cannot be considered as an independent or regular source of income that she is earning in her own capacity. We have considered this argument at great length and find that if this reason is accepted then the widow of a deceased government servant, who may still be in the service of Government of Punjab may also lose the right of pension as they are earning in their own right, yet are also entitled to the spouses pension. In this regard, family pension is admissible to the son until the age of 24 or until he is gainfully employed. In terms of this Rule, it is considered that the son should be able to earn for himself by the age of 24 whereas in the case of a daughter it is either when she gets married or when she is able to earn a regular source of income. In the case of the daughter the age bar has been removed, for a reason, giving the daughter more time to earn a regular form of income, in her own capacity or to get married. Hence we find that the clarification issued on 11.9.2015 is totally without basis as the pension of the parents of the Respondent cannot be construed as a regular source of income since pension is the right of the pensioner on account of length of their service which in turn creates an entitlement in favour of the family members. Furthermore we find that in terms of the Rules, if the daughter gets married or starts earning in her capacity, she is no longer entitled to pension. This reasoning in itself suggests that pension is a means of sustaining the daughter until a more permanent means of sustenance. Hence pension cannot be considered as a regular source of income for the daughter as its whole purpose is to give her time to find a regular source of income.

11. We also note that in terms of Section 23 of the Act, any change in the rules will be made by the Governor. The Deputy Secretary cannot by way of clarification notification dated 11.9.2015 take away a right which the Rules have clearly prescribed. The Rules are beneficial legislation which conditions the right of a family pension and the Appellant cannot take away that right under the garb of a clarification. There is nothing in the Rules that deprives the Respondent from receiving two pensions and in the absence of a clear prohibition under the Rules, family pension to a deceased government servant has to be construed liberally in favour of the child of the civil servant. In terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in The Government of NWFP through the Secretary to the Government of NWFP, Communication and Works Department, Peshawar v. Mohammad Said Khan and another (PLD 1973 SC 514) pension can only be refused in the manner provided in the Rules. In this case, the Rules do not prohibit the grant of two pensions, hence it cannot be denied to the Respondent on the basis of a clarification notification. We are of the opinion that to take away this benefit, by construing the meaning of Rule 4.10 of the Rules in a narrow manner would defeat the purpose of the beneficial legislation, being the Rules and would unfairly deprive the Respondent of the benefit of Rule 4.10 of the Rules.

12. Under the circumstances, the instant ICA is dismissed and impugned judgment dated 15.2.2019 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.24111/2017 is maintained for the aforementioned reasons.

13. One of us (Asim Hafeez, J.) though agree with the findings and conclusion of the instant appeal, has given his observations through a separate note which is part of this judgment.

(ASIM HAFEEZ) (AYESHA A.MALIK)

ASIM HAFEEZ, J.---I have had the privilege to go through the judgment delivered by esteemed colleague Ayesha A. Malik, J., and concur with the conclusion drawn therein. However, in view of the significance of the issues raised, I would like to give my own reasons through this additional note.

2. The appellant has questioned the alleged right of the respondent to concurrently claim two family pensions, allegedly devolved on her, being a single daughter, after death of her parents, both of whom had acquired right to receive pensions in the wake of terms and conditions of their respective service; an undisputed fact. The controversy surfaced upon automation of the pension record, whereby factum of withdrawal of two pensions was noticed and demand was raised for reimbursement of amounts already bagged. The challenge posed to alleged disentitlement of the respondent is founded on the condition contained in Department's Letter No. SR-III-4-111/89 dated 22.07.1989 (Letter of 22.07.1989) and subsequent clarification extended in terms of Department's clarification letter No. FDR-SR-III-4-471/2014 dated 11.09.2015 (Letter of 11.09.2015). It is expedient to reproduce condition in Letter of 22.07.1989, which reads as;
"The Governor of Punjab has been pleased to decide that w.e.f. 1.7.1989 family pension in case of widow's death will be admissible to the dependant sons until they attain the age of 24 years or till they are gainfully employed, whichever is earlier and to unmarried daughters till their marriage or their acquiring regular source of income, whichever is earlier" [emphasis supplied]

3. The elemental question, for determination, is not regarding the authority to issue clarification or respond to the queries raised with respect to the notifications / letters regarding pension liberalization rules, but entitlement of the respondent to claim two pensions concurrently in the wake of clarification issued, whereby respondent's entitlement to claim dual pension was disputed on the premise that one of the two pensions constitute a regular source of income, and therefore second pension was not admissible in the circumstances. The clarification has merely interpreted the condition, i.e. "their acquiring regular source of income". It is this condition, which is subject matter of controversy. In terms of letter of 22.07.1989 an unmarried daughter is entitled to claim pension, a right devolved on her by operation / act of law, which entitlement continues till she marries or acquire a regular source of income, whichever is earlier. No specific restriction has been placed in the family pension liberalization rules regarding entitlement to two family pensions, to this extent there was no real controversy. The controversy surfaced once eligibility condition was construed to the disadvantage of the respondent, by way of issuance of clarification. The interpretation / clarification of the expression "regular source of income" simplicitor without giving effect to prefix, "acquiring" is wholly misconceived and flawed. The condition has to be construed in the light of doctrine of 'Ejusdem Generis', which rule of construction is attracted and the general words have to be interpreted or read within the scope of the preceding specific words. Reference is made to an illustrative judgment in the case of Don Basco High School v. The Assistant Director, E.O.B.I and others (PLD 1989 Supreme Court 128). In the light of the ratio of the decision, it is clear that preceding word - acquiring - will essentially controls the meaning and effect of following expression - regular source of income. Hence, the significance of expression "acquiring" has to be underscored while interpreting the condition, otherwise exclusionary and calls for strict interpretation. Is pension an acquired right of the respondent? The right of each of the parent to receive pension was, certainly, an acquired right, achieved in lieu and consideration of the services performed. However, it is not an acquired right of the respondent, but simply devolved on her after death of parents, as cause and effect of relationship with the deceased persons. The respondent cannot claim pension as a proximate cause of some personal effort and / or services performed. She simply became eligible to receive pensions, of her parents, by way of operation of law, as prescribed under the liberalization of family pension rules. Construction of the expression "regular source of income", without the prefix, may simply indicate income coming from any source whatsoever, but when read with expression "acquiring", it has a definite connotation and means more than a mere assumption of devolved rights or receiving pensions. It indicates acquiring of income by dint of some conscious effort, personal ability, skills, special qualification, experience or as consequence of any action or behaviour. Mere receipt of pension(s) by respondent, as continuing right of her parents, cannot be construed or termed as acquiring regular income.

4. This case has another aspect. The condition(s) prescribed to disentitle a dependent son or unmarried daughter showed meaningful distinction, both in terms of intent and scope, especially when analysed in the context of present controversy. A dependent son is eligible to get receive pension till the age of 24 or unless gainfully employed, whichever is earlier. On the contrary, unless a regular income is acquired by a surviving daughter, her right to get pension(s) remains intact-unless she marries earlier. The intention is evident, provisioning of sustainable support and protection extended to an unmarried daughter is higher in degree. We are not asked to dilate upon this specific aspect. Let's hypothetically consider that if respondent is a surviving son and drawing two family pensions concurrently, can said claim be denied on similar grounds pleaded, to deny right of the respondent? The issue is that whether interpretation suggested through clarification can equally be applied to disentitle a dependant son? And whether the expression gainfully employed would also be construed to mean regular source of income of a dependent son, below the age of 24, while determining his entitlement to dual pensions? Apparently, no such restriction can be read or construed with reference to a dependent son. So, does it imply that clarification suggested was case specific only, applicable to an unmarried daughter only. This has no rational. The clarification suggested, if applied, would be discriminatory and tantamount to arbitrary denial of right of an unmarried daughter, which was neither intended nor prescribed.

5. In these circumstances, I declare that clarification suggested is erroneous, contrary to the mandate of liberalization of family pension rules and inherently flawed. And in terms of conditions prescribed through Letter of 22.07.1989, until respondent, either marries or acquires regular source of income, whichever is earlier [other than receiving two family pensions concurrently], her entitlement cannot be denied. The notices issued for seeking return of the pension amounts received is declared void and no legal effect. I endorse the conclusion that appeal is without merit and same is, therefore, dismissed.

ORDER

Through this Execution First Appeal (the "Appeal"), filed under Section 22 of Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 (the "Ordinance") the Appellants have assailed order dated 11.10.2019 passed by learned Executing Court in Ex.A.No.6-B of 2017.

2. Precise facts of the case are that a suit for recovery of Rs.285,658,427/- was instituted by the Respondent Bank against the Appellants which was decreed with consent of the parties on 12.09.2011 for a sum of Rs.278.102-million in the light of Settlement Agreement dated 07.05.2010 and out of aforesaid amount, the Appellants paid certain amount to the Respondent Bank. However, on default of payment of remaining amount, the Respondent Bank filed an execution petition and sought auction of property measuring 37 Kanals 11 marlas situated at Hadbast Mouza Niaz Baig, Main Canal, Near Doctor Hospital, Lahore. The Appellants earlier sought rejection of valuation report dated 31.08.2018 by filing objection petition bearing No.C.M.No.02 of 2018 which was dismissed on 17.09.2019 with directions to Court Auctioneers to submit schedule of auction on 11.10.2019 and on the said date, the Court approved the schedule of auction. Hence this Appeal.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellants inter alia contended that the impugned order has been passed in clear violation of Order XXI, Rule 68 of C.P.C.; that the impugned schedule of action was approved without affording an opportunity to the Appellants; that mandatory requirement of Order XXI, Rule 66(2) and Rule 67(2) of C.P.C. have not been fulfilled while passing impugned order; that the description of property given by the Court Auctioneers in the schedule of auction is not correct; that the report of Messrs Indus Surveyors (Pvt.) Ltd. is self-contradictory; that the impugned order has been passed in slipshod manner as such same is the result of mis-reading and non-reading of evidence which is liable to be set-aside.

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for the Respondent vehemently controverted the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Appellants and prayed for dismissal of instant Appeal.

5. Admittedly, suit filed by the Respondent Bank against the Appellants was decreed with consent of the parties on 12.09.2011 as per terms and conditions mentioned in settlement agreement dated 07.05.2011 wherein the Respondent Bank admitted receiving of certain payment from the Appellants however, due to default in payment of remaining amount, execution petition was filed by the Respondent Bank on 01.02.2017 and Court appointed Court Auctioneers for filing draft of terms of the proclamation. Later on C.M. No.316-B of 2017 was submitted by the Court Auctioneers for undertaking fresh valuation of the properties and with consent of the parties, Messrs Harvester Pvt. Limited was appointed for doing the needful. Meanwhile, an objection petition bearing C.M.No.01 of 2017 was filed by the judgment debtors which too was dismissed on 07.05.2018. After dismissal of aforesaid application, the Court on 05.06.2018, with consent of the parties, appointed Messrs Indus Surveyors (Pvt.) Limited as third valuator who filed its valuation report on 31.10.2018. The Appellants being dissatisfied from aforesaid valuation report filed another objection petition bearing C.M. No.02 of 2018 which was also dismissed and the Court Auctioneers were directed to file schedule of action. The relevant portion of the order is as follows:--

"The appointment of Messrs Indus Surveyors (Pvt.) Ltd. was made with consent of the parties and therefore it does not be hope the applicant/judgment to raise any objections to the valuation determined by the valuators which is to the tune of Rs.805.82-million. Therefore, the valuation determined by the valuators appointed by this Court is hereby approved. This shall be the reserve price for the purposes of proclamation to be drafted by the Court Auctioneers.

6. The Appellants have disputed the order dated 11.10.2019 on the ground that schedule of auction submitted by the Court Auctioneers on 10.10.2019 was approved without affording an opportunity to them. Perusal of record reveals that vide order dated 05.06.2018, the Court appointed Messrs Indus Surveyors (Pvt.) Limited with consent of parties for valuation of the property and report in this respect was submitted on 31.10.2018 and subsequently, an objection petition filed by the Appellants on aforesaid report was also dismissed vide order dated 17.09.2019 with the observation, mentioned supra; meaning thereby schedule of auction submitted by the Court Auctioneers on 10.10.2019 was approved pursuant to valuation report conducted by Messrs Indus Surveyors. So the orders relating to appointment of Messrs Indus Surveyors were passed by providing proper opportunity to the parties therefore, it cannot be said that the Appellants had not been provided any opportunity of hearing.

7. It is the argument of learned counsel for the Appellants that mandatory requirements of Order XXI, Rule 66(2) and Rule 67(2), C.P.C. have not been fulfilled. Perusal of schedule of auction reveals that time and place of auction has been mentioned under heading "Schedule of Auction" as "Auction at 2:00 PM on 09.11.2019 at site" and requirement of Rule 67(2), C.P.C. has been fulfilled by giving publication of proclamation in the News Papers dated 24.10.2019 under heading "Schedule of Auction". So this argument of learned counsel is not tenable.

8. Another stance taken by learned counsel that correct address of the property has not been given by the Court Auctioneers in their schedule of auction. Perusal of record attached with this Appeal reveals that the Court appointed certain valuators, for valuation of the property from time to time, and reports submitted by them reflect same property measuring 37-kanals and 11-marlas falling under Khasra No.13176, Near Doctor Hospital, Mauza Niaz Baig, Lahore. Furthermore, valuation report submitted by Messrs Indus Surveyors (Pvt.) Ltd on 31.10.2018 and schedule of auction approved by the Court also mentions same property falling under the same khasra. Therefore, this argument is also not confidence inspiring one.

9. As far as the argument of learned counsel with regard to variation in value of property is concerned, it is pertinent to mention here that the Court, in order to resolve the issue, appointed certain valuators for determination of value of the property during different span of time who determined the value of property at the time of their respective inspections and finally Messrs Indus Surveyors (Pvt.) Ltd., appointed with consent of the parties, determined the value to the tune of Rs.805.82-million, as reflected in order dated 17.09.2019 and that the Court Auctioneers submitted schedule of auction on 10.10.2019 also depicts the same amount under the heading of "Reserve Price". So this argument is also not reasonable. It is noted that the Appellants had objected to earlier valuation report by filing objection petition which was dismissed and now they cannot take any other objection/point to set-aside the approved schedule of auction submitted by the Court

Auctioneers in the light valuation report submitted by Messrs Indus Surveyors (Pvt.) Ltd.

10. In view of above, we do not see any illegality or perversity in the impugned order which has been passed strictly in accordance with law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the Appeal in hand, being devoid of any merit, is hereby dismissed in limine.

JUDGMENT
AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in W.P. No.67866/19 and W.P. No.69022/19 as both the Petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. Through these Petitions, the Petitioners have impugned the recrunment policy of the Respondents as prescribed by Respondent Pakistan Electric Power Company ("PEPCO") for the post of amongst others, Junior Engineers. The Petitioners are all Electrical Engineers, B.Sc. graduates of University of Engineering and Technology, Lahore. It is their case that the Respondents were guided by the recruitment policy of 28.7.2016 which essentially gave a ratio of 85:15 for academics and interview respectively. However, this policy was changed on 16-8-2019 where the ratio was changed to 40:40:20, such that 40% marks for academic qualification, 40% marks for a written test and 20% marks for the interview. The petitioners are collectively aggrieved by this change in policy as they believe that 20% marks for interview suggests arbitrariness, excessive delegation due to lack of structure. They state that 20% marks for the interview means that the Respondents are able to manipulate the recruitment process and hire candidates of their liking. They are also aggrieved by the distribution of marks between academic qualification and written test as they are all of the opinion that candidates with higher marks from better universities are not catered to since the overall ratio for academic qualification has been reduced to 40% from 85%.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that unstructured discretion has always been questioned through judicial review by the Courts and the arbitrariness and colourful excise of authority has always been struck down by the constitutional Court. In this regard, reliance has been placed on Syed Muhammad Raza v. General Manager, WAPDA and others (1994 MLD 1647), Muhammad Tanveer v. Government of Pakistan and others (2012 PLC (C.S.) 807), Muhammad Asif Jan and others Chairman Selection through Chairman and others (2013 PLC (C.S.) 502) and Qazi Mustafa Kamal v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Establishment Division and others (PLD 2014 Islamabad 123). They also argued that change in recruitment policy during pending recruitment process is illegal. In this regard, reference was made to Respondents Nos.6, 8 and 10 ("DSICOs") where the recruitment process started in June, 2019 before the policy was announced on 16.8.2019.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned counsel for the Respondent PEPCO and for other Discos argued that a policy was floated by PEPCO for the purposes of creating uniformity in the recruitment process among all the DISCOs. As per the policy a written test is required for which 40% marks have been allocated, 40% marks for academic qualification and 20% marks for the interview. Learned counsel stated that the process has just begun when the Petitioners challenged the same even though they participated in the recruitment process. Therefore at this stage no case of arbitrariness is made out as the recruitment process has not been finalized and the Petitioners' contention that it is not structured discretion is based on apprehensions and not on any data.

5. On behalf of the Federation Ms. Ambreen Moeen, DAG argued that the Petitioners have all participated in the recruitment process and they are challenging a policy decision calling it arbitrary and stating there is lack of structure whereas there is nothing to support their contentions as the recruitment process has not been completed. She has placed reliance on an earlier decision of this Court dated 9.1.2010 passed in W.P. No.360/2020 titled Toqir Ajmal v. Chairman Pakistan Electric Power Company and others wherein the same policy was challenged and the petition was dismissed on the ground that PEPCO has provided the quantification and distribution of marks on the basis of academic qualification, written test and interview giving weightage to the three different cadres. Furthermore she argued that this is a policy decision and does not call for any interference as no illegality is made out. She argued that the Petitioners have participated in the recruitment process and at the same time have challenged the processed obtained an interim order from this Court on 14.11.2019 on the basis or which the entire recruitment process has been stopped.

6. Heard. Record perused.

7. The Petitioners have challenged the guidelines provided by PEPCO for recruitment to DISCOs for the purposes of creating uniformity in the recruitment Process for technical and non-technical posts. The Respondent DISCOs adopted this policy and proceeded to advertise on the basis thereof. Admittedly the Petitioners applied for the various different posts offered by the Respondents pursuant to the policy of 16.8.2019. However, the Petitioners subsequent to applying for the posts have challenged the policy on the ground that it lacks structure and that the policy was changed during the recruitment process, hence this policy cannot be made applicable to them. All the Petitioners are aggrieved by the weightage given to academic qualification, written test and interview. There is no cavil to the assertion that interview marks play a decisive role in the recruitment process, however at this stage there is nothing available on the record on the basis of which the Petitioners can assert that the 20% marks allocated for interview are not structured, reasoned or objective. The process of recruitment is underway and in fact has been stopped on account of an interim order passed by this Court at the behest of the Petitioners. The Respondents have stated that there is a structure, and reasoning objective prescribed for the interview, however that stage has not arrived hence it is premature to question it at this stage. They have placed reliance on letter dated 10.10.2019 issued by PEPCO which gives detailed breakdown for the 40% academic marks. Essentially the grounds of challenge against the policy are based on apprehensions of the Petitioners that they will not be duly considered and that the Respondents may exercise arbitrariness at the stage of the interview. Hence on this account no ground is made out.

8. With respect to marks given to academic qualification and written test, the Petitioners are that aggrieved greater weightage should be given to the academic qualification so that students with higher GPAs and from better universities have a stronger chance to be recruited. There is no justification in this ground whatsoever. The Respondents have allocated 40% marks for the academic qualification and 40% marks for the written test so as to broaden the base of applicants for the purposes of recruitment. As such it is a policy decision and there is no basis to challenge the policy such that it favours UET graduates. There is no data available with the petitioners to show how they have been prejudiced at this stage given that the policy has just been introduced and the recruitment process is still underway. So far as Respondents Nos.6, 8 and 10 are concerned, they state that the meeting in which this decision was made was held on 15.7.2019 and the advertisements do not provide for any process that will be adopted. Moreover it mentions that a test will be taken and interview and states the given educational requirements. Hence the contention that the Petitioners are being misled by changing the policy is without basis. At this stage it is still premature as the process is still underway. The Respondents should proceed with the recruitment process as the Petitioners' entire case is based on apprehensions. There is nothing on the record to show why they have applied and with which DISCO, hence no case for interference is made out.

9. Under the circumstances and what has been discussed above, both the Petitions are dismissed.

ORDER

Through this Intra Court Appeal filed under Section 3 of the Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 (the "Ordinance"), the Appellant has challenged the validity of impugned order dated 14.11.2019 passed in Writ Petition No.68293 of 2019 by the learned Single Judge (the "Impugned Order") whereby the Constitutional petition filed by the Appellant was dismissed.

2. Learned counsel for the Appellant contended that the impugned order is against law and facts; that the impugned order is the result of mis-reading and non-reading of record; that the learned Single Judge has failed to appreciate the fact that the Respondents have dismissed the Appellant on the basis of bogus and fake report; that no opportunity of hearing was provided to the Appellant before his termination which offends Article 10-A of the Constitution as such the same is liable to be set aside. He has relied on "Muhammad Riaz v. Medical Superintendent, Service Hospital, Lahore and 2 others" (2016 PLC (C.S.) 296), "Jahanzaib Khan Niazi v. Government of Punjab through Secretary Irrigation, Lahore and 8 others" (2016 PLC (C.S.) 1039), "Aamir Junaid and 143 others v. Government of the Punjab through Chief Secretary and 5 others" (2014 PLC (C.S.) 1) and "Dr. Sitara Abdul Rehman v. Government of Punjab through Secretary Health, Lahore and 3 others" (2012 PLC (C.S.) 1203).

3. Learned Law Officer vehemently contested the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Appellant and prayed for dismissal of the appeal on the ground that the Appellant was a contract employee whose contract was rightly terminated under Clause-18 of the Letter of Appointment as such there is no illegality or perversity in the impugned order.

4. We have heard the arguments of both the sides and have perused the record.

5. The main grievance of the Appellant is that he was terminated from job without adopting proper procedure and affording an opportunity of hearing. It evinces from record that the Appellant was appointed on purely contract basis in the Respondents/Department vide appointment letter dated 28.02.2012. The Appellant after accepting the terms and conditions of his contract employment submitted his joining report. Specific terms in the employment contract, containing certain terms and conditions, are inserted which explicitly reveal that initially this offer of appointment is only for a period of One Year however, period of contract was extended from time to time. Clause 18 of the Letter of Appointment reads as under:
"Your contract will be liable to be terminated on one month's notice or on deposit of one month pay in lieu thereof, on either side, without assigning any reason. Your contract will also be liable to be terminated without any notice on administrative ground or on account of poor performance/undesirable conduct or unauthorized/wilful absence from duty."

6. So far as stance of the Appellant regarding violation of Article 10-A of the Constitution is concerned, it is pertinent to mention here that order dated 22.06.2019 challenged in constitutional petition was passed pursuant to directions given in W.P.No.212480 of 2018 dated 16.05.2018. Perusal of order dated 22.06.2019 reveals that the Appellant was afforded an opportunity of hearings on 22.04.2019 and 13.06.2019 at 10:00 A.M. in the office of Deputy Commissioner/Chairman District Health Authority, Lahore hence; this stance of the Appellant is not tenable.

7. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the Appellant was terminated without issuing any show-cause notice or conducting regular inquiry. The learned Single Judge in paragraph No.2 of the impugned order observed as under:
"He was served with show-cause notice dated 22.08.2016 on the allegation that he remained absent from duty from 06.06.2016 to 12.08.2016. The Petitioner did not file any reply to the show-cause notice whereafter the District Health Officer through order dated 25.01.2017 terminated the contract of service of the Petitioner".

8. It is the argument of learned counsel that the Respondents have terminated the Appellant on the basis of a bogus and fake report. In this regard, learned Single Judge observed as follows:
"The record does not support the version of the Petitioner in as much as the attendance register does not show his presence from 06.06.2016 onward. Be that as it may, the Deputy Commissioner in the impugned order also stated that the Petitioner went abroad without seeking permission. When confronted, the learned counsel conceded that the Petitioner went abroad during the period in question for visiting the holy sites. It was stated that the Petitioner sought oral permission from his superior which was granted. Needless to state that the explanation furnished by learned counsel is without any merit. The Petitioner being a Government Servant was required to obtained ex-Pakistan leave. Be that as it may, this Court is satisfied that service contract of the Petitioner was rightly terminated by the Respondent".

9. During the course of arguments, learned counsel for the Appellant has drawn our attention towards The Punjab Regularization of Service Act, 2018 (the "Act") and case law, referred above. Needless to add that case of the Appellant does not fall within the ambit of Sections 2(c) and 4 of the Act. Section 2(c) clearly states that "contract employee" means an eligible person appointed on contract in a department immediately before the commencement of the Act but does not include a person appointed to a post in a project, programme, project management unit, project management office, time bound (one-time) development activity or as work-charged employee or an employee on daily wages". Offer of Appointment letter depicts that the Appellant was appointed on contract basis under Prevention and Control of Dengue Program. Whereas Section 4 prescribed procedure for regularization which clearly demonstrates that "the case of a contract employee appointed on the recommendations of the Commission shall be submitted to the appointing authority for regularization without reference to the Commission or the Scrutiny Committee".

10. It is an established principle that where employment is on contract, there is a relationship of master and servant and in such like cases the Constitutional petition under Article 199 of the Constitution is not maintainable. Reliance in this regard can be placed on "Lt. Col. Rtd. Aamir Rauf v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of Defence and 3 others" (2011 PLC (C.S.) 654) and "Nadeem Ahmed v. Pakistan State Oil Company Limited and another" (2005 PLC (C.S.) 1447).

11. In view of above, we see no illegality or legal infirmity in the impugned order which has been passed by the learned Single Judge in consonance with the spirit of law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the instant Appeal is devoid of any merit and is accordingly dismissed in limine.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----This judgment decides upon the issue raised in the instant, petition as well as in connected Writ Petition No.4327/2013 whereby the Petitioners seek regularization of their service as Assistant Audit/Account Officer (BS-16) and Senior Auditor (BS-11).

2. The case of the Petitioner of Writ Petition No.4328/2013 is that she was appointed as Assistant Audit/Account Officer (BS-16) on contract basis for three years on 04.02.2008, which was extended from time to time. On 19.01.2010 and 15.05.2010 Respondent No.2 issued Notifications for regularization of contract employees in BS-16 and BS-17 and on the basis thereof 114 contract employees in BS-16 and BS-17 were regularized but the Petitioner has been deprived without assigning any reason and justification. Again Respondent No.2 issued Notifications dated 18.06.2010 and 01.06.2011 and on the basis of said Notifications 192 contract employees in BS-16 have been regularized but the Petitioner has not been regularized. Hence this Petition.

3. The case of Petitioner of Writ Petition No.4327/2013 is that he was appointed as Senior Auditor (BS-11) on contract basis for three years on 04.02.2008, which was extended from time to time. On 14.10.2009. Respondent No.1 issued Notification for regularization of all the contract employees in BS-1 to BS-15 and on the basis thereof, Respondent No.4 vide order dated 22.04.2010 regularized most of the employees of the hospital including the colleagues of the Petitioner who were appointed with the Petitioner on the same day and by the same committee but the Petitioner has not been regularized without assigning any reason and justification. The Petitioner being aggrieved by the act of Respondent No.4 filed Writ Petition No.12378/2011, which was disposed of vide order dated 06.06.2011 with the direction to respondent No.4 to hear the grievance of the Petitioner and pass appropriate orders in accordance with law. Ultimately, Respondent No. 4 vide order dated 12.11.2011 refused to regularize the services of the Petitioner. Hence this Petition.

4. Learned counsel argued that almost all the employees working in BS-16 and BS-17 in Finance Wing of Health and Medical institutions under the contract Policy, 2004 have been regularized but the Petitioners have been ignored by the Respondents. Learned counsel further argued that the employees who were appointed along with the Petitioners and recommended by the same Committee on the same date have been regularized by the Respondent from the date i.e. 14.10.2009 but the Petitioners have been refused the same benefit without any reasons, who are working since 2008, hence they are entitled to be regularized. While relying on the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in "Izhar Ahmed Khan and others v. Punjab Labour Appellate Tribunal, Lahore and others" (1999 SCMR 2557) learned counsel argued that if a work is of permanent nature then a person working as such post is required to be a regularized. Learned counsel argued that all the posts of the Respondent Hospital have been regularized but the petitioners have been deprived of their right. Therefore, this act is discriminatory. In this regard, learned counsel has placed reliance on the Notifications of regularization issued in (sic) our of Medical Technologist, Budget Officers, Budget Account Officers, Account Officers, Nurses and Audit Officer dated 9.01.2010, 15.05.2010, 18.06.2010 and 03.07.2019 of other hospitals and of Respondents Nos.3 and 4.

5. On behalf of Respondents Nos.1 and 2, it is argued that the post of the Petitioners is not a sanctioned post, hence the Petitioners cannot be regularized. It is also argued that the posts of the Petitioners were created by the Board of Management of Respondents Nos.3 and 4 in the year 1999, hence the Petitioners do not fall within the category of sanctioned post and are not eligible for regularization. Learned Law Officer further argued that the there is a distinction between permanent and regular appointments as those posts which are not sanctioned by the Government of the Punjab can attain permanent status by the institution itself as per their discretion. However, for the purposes of being a regular employee of the Government of the Punjab, the post has to be a sanctioned post.

6. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondent Hospital wherein it is stated that the posts of the Petitioners were created by the Board of Management of Respondents Nos.3 and 4, that they are paid by the Board of Management and that the petitioners were aware of this fact that their seats have been adjusted by the Board of Management and that they are not entitled to regularization. During the course of arguments, it was clarified that the pay slips of the Petitioners clearly indicate that they are drawing their pay against the seats created by the Board of Management.

7. The basic issue before the Court is whether the Petitioners have a right to be a regularized. Admittedly, the Petitioners have been working with the Respondent Hospital since 2008 as Assistant Audit/Account Officer (BS-16) and Senior Auditor (BS-11) which means that they have been working for more than twelve years at the posts of Assistant Audit/Account Officer and Senior Auditor with no promotion and that the said posts are of a permanent nature. On the Court's query, learned Law Officer clarified that Nurses and Audit Officers have all been regularized pursuant to the order of this Court dated 16.07.2010 passed in W.P. No.7782/2010 against sanctioned posts.

8. In the judgment referred to by the learned Law Officer, a similar matter was considered with reference to the Respondent Hospital whereby the services of Nurses, Plumbers, Helpers and Sweepers were regularized as the posts were sanctioned by the Government of the Punjab through the Finance Department, hence it was directed that they be given the benefit of being a declared regularize under the prevailing policy at the time. So far as Mehreen Raheem, Petitioner in W.P. No.4328/2013 is concerned, the basic issue is that her post has not been regularized by the Government of the Punjab. As per the record available on the file, the Government of the Punjab itself regularized the services of Budget and Account Officers of the said hospital vide order dated 15.05.2010 and Audit Officer vide order dated 03.07.2019 therefore, the Petitioner Mehreen Raheem being the Assistant Audit/Account Officer of the said hospital is also entitled to the same relief as her case is at par with the above stated two employees, who have been regularized by the Government of the Punjab vide notifications dated 15.05.2010 and 03.07.2019. As far as, Haroon Shahzad, Petitioner in W.P. No.4327/2013 is concerned, as per the record available on the file, the employees' working in BS-1 to BS-15 have been regularized by the Respondents in terms of the notification dated 14.10.2009 issued by the Government of the Punjab whereby the employees working on contract basis were declared eligible to be regularized but the Petitioner Haroon Shahzad has not been regularized without any legal justification rather his case is at par with the employees who have been regularized by the Respondents as he was also recommended by the same Committee on the same day. In terms of the record and what has been argued before the Court, the Government of Punjab has not given any satisfactory response as to why the posts of the Petitioners have not been considered for regularization. As per the record, the Respondents contention that the matter cannot be considered by the Government of Punjab or Finance Department is incorrect as the Government of Punjab exerts control over some hospitals, including Respondent No.3 and has regularized the services of its employees. Hence a clear case of discrimination is made out as similarly placed employees have been regularized. Furthermore, contract employee, serving at a permanent post cannot be deprived of his right to regularize especially since the Government has framed a policy on this issue and has regularized similarly placed employees in other Hospitals. Reliance is placed on "Ayaz Ahmed Memon v. Pakistan Railways, Ministry of Railway, Islamabad through Chairman and another" (2011 PLC (C.S.) 281), "Hakim Ali Ujjan and others v. Province of Sindh and others" (2012 PLC (C.S.) 127) and "Muhammad Faisal Khan and 48 others v. Secretary (Health), Government of Punjab, Lahore and another" (2012 PLC (C.S.) 130). In fact since other employees of the Respondent Hospital have been regularized having the same terms and conditions of their appointment letters as compared to the appointment letter of the Petitioners, the Petitioners are also entitled to the same treatment.

9. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed. Since it is an admitted position that other contract employees in the same hospital were regularized, Respondents Nos.1 and 2 are directed to regularize the services of the Petitioners from the date being 14.10.2009.

ZC/M-66/L Petition allowed.

ORDER
Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned the condition provided at Sr. No. 3 of Note in the Intimation Form of Punjab Bar Council, Lahore whereby a person is not eligible to apply for enrolment if he/she is in any government/semi government/private service or business.

2. The Petitioner in person states that this is against his fundamental rights. However, at the very outset, it is noted that no right is absolute and reasonable restrictions may be imposed. The Petitioner admittedly was appointed as Traffic Warden in City Traffic Police, Lahore but was dismissed from service on 23.08.2019 and is now desirous of enrolment as an Advocate and at the same time he is also pursuing his appeal against dismissal from service, which violates the requirements given in the Intimation Form. Therefore, the Petitioner is not only desirous of getting his old job of Traffic Warden but also at the same time desirous of enrolment as an Advocate. The impugned condition merely sets out the requirement for enrolment as an Advocate and does not infringe on any fundamental right of the Petitioner.

3. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petition stands dismissed in limine.

JUDGMENT

Mrs. Ayesha A. Malik J.--This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant ICA along with connected ICAs detailed in Schedule "A", appended with the judgment, as all appeals raise common questions of law and facts.

2. The Appellant, Secretary Food Department, Government of Punjab is aggrieved by judgment dated 19.9.2017 passed by learned Single Judge in WP No.

24377/2017 along with connected matters wherein the learned Single Judge has set aside order dated 22.3.2017 issued by Director Food, Punjab and directed the present Appellant to release the rebate/security of the Respondents for export of wheat.

3. The facts of the case are that in terms of Notification dated 19.8.2016 ("Notification"), the Appellant pursuant to a decision of the Economic Coordination Committee of the Cabinet ("ECC") approved the export of 0.600 million tons of wheat or equivalent quantity of wheat flour (atta) from the stocks stored at the centres of Punjab Food Department in DG Khan, Bahawalpur, Multan, Sahiwal, Faisalabad and Sargodha Divisions through-private parties. The export of the wheat or wheat flour was subject to the conditions contained in the Notification from (a) to g(i), in terms whereof the exporter was bound to export the wheat or wheat, flour within 60 days of lifting it from government godowns. The exporter also had to submit a bank guarantee along with the documents provided in clause g(i) to (vii). There is no dispute between the parties with respect to the permission granted under the Notification or to the fact that the Respondents exported the wheat or wheat flour, as the case may be, within 60 days of lifting of the same from the government godowns. The dispute between the parties pertains to the requirement of the Director Food, Punjab through order dated 22.3.2017 for a swift code to establish the actual export of the wheat or wheat flour by the Respondents and to prove that payments made outside of Pakistan came into Pakistan through proper banking channel.

4. Learned Law Officer on behalf of the Appellant argued that in order to establish and ascertain that wheat or wheat flour was actually exported and that payment was received from abroad, the requirement of a swift code was sought from all beneficiaries of the Notification. He also explained that this was done out of abundant caution to ensure that there was no misuse of the facility granted. Learned Law Officer placed reliance on clause g (vii) of the Notification to justify the demand for a swift code, as it provides for any other documents or evidence can be required in order to establish the actual export of wheat or wheat flour. Learned Law Officer argued that the demand for the swift code was in accordance with the Notification and the learned Single Judge has erred in law by allowing the petitions without proper proof of the actual export.

5. On behalf of the Respondents, it is argued that there is no such requirement under the EPD Circular No. 4 of 2013 dated 8.3.2013 ("EPD Circular"), or the State Bank letters dated 18.8.2015 and 19.8.2015 or even under Chapter 12 of the Foreign Exchange Manual, 2017. Learned counsel argued that there is no requirement to provide a swift code in order to establish actual export particularly when the Foreign Exchange Manual, 2017 recognizes the peculiar nature of trade with Afghanistan and permits cash convertible currencies by exporters as there is no proper banking system available in Afghanistan.

6. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the judgment and record and are in agreement with the findings of the learned Single Judge. A plain reading of the Notification clarifies that the following documents are required for verification in order to claim the rebate:

i) Copy of bill of lading/manifest whichever is applicable

ii) Copy of export commercial invoice

iii) Copy of Fonn-E

iv) Copy of L/C for export

v) Goods declaration duly verified by the custom authorities

vii) Declaration to the effect that no fraud/forgery has been committed in export documents viii) Any other documents/evidence which may be required for establishing the actual export of wheat/wheat flour (atta).

In terms of clause (viii) any other document or evidence can be called for to establish the actual export. In this context "any other" means in relation to the documents provided in clause g (i) to (vii) and not some totally new document or requirement which was never sought for in the first place or which has no nexus with the documents called for under the Notification. "We also find that in terms of the EPD Circular, it is emphasized that the Authorized Dealers will accept cash convertible currencies brought over their counter by the exporters and convert the same at the prevailing buying rate applicable for normal export proceeds for credit to the PKR account of the exporter when trading with Afghanistan. Even as per the agreements entered into between the Appellant and the Respondents, the relevant documents sought for are contained in clause 4 whereas clause 4(iv) requires that Copy of L/C for export or cash against documents (CAD) or bank to bank transactions covered under the State Bank regime. Hence, in terms of the agreements, the Appellant clearly recognizes that there can be cash payment received against the export as it is the requirement as per the Foreign Exchange Manual, 2017. Therefore any demand by the Appellant to satisfy themselves of the actual export will have to be within the requirements prescribed under the Notification, EPD circular and the agreements entered into between the parties. The Respondents argued that they exported wheat or wheat flour to Afghanistan after fulfilling all legal requirements, however, the proceeds were released in cash foreign exchange instead of through banking channel, hence the swift code is neither available nor relevant to the transaction. In this regard, we note that the clarification sought from the State Bank of Pakistan on 18.8.2015 and 19.8.2015 confirms the contentions of the Respondents as it was clarified that the State Bank instructions allow for exports proceeds realization in cash foreign exchange for export to Afghanistan. Under the circumstances, the demand raised by the Appellant. Food Department for swift code is beyond its mandate in terms of the Notification, EPD circular and Foreign Exchange Manual, 2017.

7. For what has been discussed above, all the appeals are dismissed and impugned order dated 19.9.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in WP No. 24377/2017 is maintained. The Appellant is directed to release the rebate/security of the Respondents immediately.

JUDGMENT

This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the petitions detailed in Schedule "A and B" appended with the judgment as all the petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. There are two sets of petitions before the Court. The first set of petitions mentioned in Schedule-A have been filed by employers who have challenged the orders of the Authority under Payment of Wages Act, 1936 ("Authority") where payment of wages in favour of the employees have been ordered by the Authority through the orders impugned before the Court. The second set of petitions mentioned in Schedule-B have been filed by Financial Institutions against the orders of the Authority with respect to the claims filed before them by retired bank officers claiming retirement benefits. The Authority decided to proceed with the claims holding that it has jurisdiction in the matter. As most of the issues are common, these cases have been heard together.

3. The basic challenge in the petition detailed in Schedule A are that Authority does not have jurisdiction in the matter because after the 18th Amendment in the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"), the matter pertaining to labour and welfare of labour devolved on to the Provinces and the Authority established under the Federal law had become incompetent and cannot hear the matter. In some of these cases apart from 18th Amendment argument, merits of the impugned order have also been challenged, interim orders have been challenged and in some petitions orders passed on miscellaneous applications have also been challenged.

4. The second set of petitions filed by the Financial Institutions (Schedule B) the Petitioners have challenged, in the form of quo warranto, the exercise of Authority by persons appointed under Section 15 of the Act. The basic grievance is that the Respondents acting as the Authority under the Act are not eligible to hold office as they do not meet the qualifications provided in Section 15 of the Act. In this regard, in an earlier round of litigation, WP No. 14499/2009 was filed wherein retired Executive Officers of the Bank claimed certain pensionary benefits, which was denied to them vide judgment dated 15.12.2009 on account of the fact that they had accepted a revised pay package on the basis of which their pension was given. The petition was ultimately dismissed as being not maintainable as it was filed by a registered body of the retired Executive Officers against a private Bank. Subsequently, the question of jurisdiction was agitated before the Authority in the applications filed under Order VII Rule 11 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 ("CPC"), which were rejected as the Authority claimed that it had jurisdiction in the matter. These orders have been challenged in WP No. 9650/2010, which was dismissed by a learned Division Bench vide order dated 21.02.2011 on the ground that a writ of quo warranto was not maintainable against a designation where no specific person had been named and that the jurisdiction of the Authority was not limited to deal with cases involving workman. The Petitioners then refiled the writ petition in terms of order dated 21.02.2011 in the form of the instant petitions. Through these petitions, the Petitioners have named the persons acting as Authority under the Act and have challenged their appointments as the Authority on the ground that they cannot hold public office since they are not eligible in terms of Section 15 of the Act. In the meanwhile, the same matter was challenged in WP No. 13792/2011 which was accepted vide judgment dated 30.09.2015, the impugned orders were set aside and the claim filed by the Respondents before the Authority were dismissed with respect to the Financial Institutions. Learned counsel for the Petitioners have relied on the stated judgment dated 30.09.2015 to urge the point that the matter raised in the instant petition stands decided.

5. The second ground urged before the Court in these petitions is that the Petitioners are Financial Institution being trans-provincial in nature, hence the Authority cannot exercise jurisdiction over their employees as jurisdiction in such case vests with the National Industrial Relations Commission ("NIRC"). In this regard, reliance has been placed on the judgment of this Court "Imran Maqbool President, MCB Bank Limited v. Federation of Pakistan through v. Secretary Law, Justice and Human Rights Division, Islamabad etc." (2018 LHC 1960) and the august Supreme Court of Pakistan Messrs Sui Southern Gas Company Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2018 SCMR 802). Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that this matter has already been addressed in WP No. 13792/2011 in Paragraph No.15 wherein it is held that since the Financial Institutions are trans-provincial in nature, the Authority does not have jurisdiction. The said judgment was then appealed against before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in which leave granting order was passed on 22.07.2016 and the operation of Paragraph Nos. 25 to 28 of the impugned judgment have been suspended. However, so far as the decision given in paragraph 15, that remains intact.

6. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondents No. 2, Secretary Labour, Government of Punjab, Lahore as well as private Respondents No. 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 to 12. It is argued that the Respondents, who are acting as Authority, have been appointed in accordance with law. Moreover, the legal challenge has been defended while upholding the law and the manner in which the appointments have been made. It is also alleged that since the matter is sub-judice before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan where the operative part of the judgment has been suspended, this Court is not bound by the leave granting order.

7. With respect to the quo warranto challenge to the appointment of the Authority that matter is sub-judice before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan vide leave granting order dated 22.07.2016. However, so far as the argument that the Banks are trans-Provincial Organization, the matter stands decided in terms of the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan 2018 SCMR 802 (supra) and of this Court 2018 LHC 1960 (supra) wherein it was has held as under:

This issue was considered by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the NIRC case at great length. The term 'trans-provincial organization' means an organization which operates at a trans-provincial level, that is they operate in more than one province. In terms of the NIRC case the federal legislature has extra territorial authority to legislate on matters which pertain to trans-provincial organizations. The Court relied on Item No. 13 in Part II of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution which provides for inter-provincial matters and coordination, meaning that the Federation has to make laws relating to inter-provincial matters. Therefore in the NIRC case, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded that the federal legislature has extra territorial authority to legislate, however the same authority does not lie with the provincial legislature. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also held that in order to preserve and regulate a right which transcends provincial boundaries, only the Federation is competent to legislate on such matters and Item No. 58 and 59 of the Federal Legislative List provide the relevant entries to bring it in the federal domain. The Provincial legislature does not have extra territorial legislative competence, therefore it cannot legislate with regard to rights which transcend its provincial boundaries.

Under the circumstances, on this point alone, the petitions filed by the Banks mentioned in Schedule-B are allowed and the impugned orders are set aside as the Authority acting under the Provincial law does not have jurisdiction over Financial Institutions which are trans provincial organizations.

8. With respect to the second set of cases it is noted that they were filed soon after the 18th Amendment, whereafter the Federal law was adopted by the Province law in terms of the Punjab Payment of Wages (Amendment Act) 2014 on 19.3.2014 and these cases are now being tried under the Provincial law. Even otherwise, in terms of the judgment of this Court cited at "Salim Javed Baig and others v. Federal Ombudsman and others" (PLD 2016 Lahore 433) and the judgment passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan 2018 SCMR 802 (supra) under Article 270AA (6) of the Constitution all applicable Federal laws remain in force as a Provincial law until such time that the Federal law is repealed or amended or adopted by the Province. Therefore, to this extent there is no merit in the ground for challenge as the Province has adopted the Federal law and the Authority is acting in its capacity as Provincial Authority. Even otherwise it is noted that these petitions have been filed by the employers against the orders passed by the Authority in favour of the employees for whom statutory remedy of appeal is available under Section 17 of the Act. Hence the petitions mentioned in Schedule-A being not maintainable are dismissed.(Y.A.) Petitions allowed AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition, the Petitioners have impugned the actions of the Respondent National Highway Authority ("NHA") and two letters both dated 9.3.2020 issued by the NHA.

2. The case of the Petitioners is that they were awarded a construction contract for the road project known as the Gwadar-Ratodero Road Project, Khuzdar Shahadakot, Package III, Section IV of the Motorway, M-8 (KM 35+000 to KM 84+500) on 9.8.2004 ("the Construction Contract"). Subsequently some variation was required with the terms of the Construction Contract for which meetings were held under the Chairmanship of Member (Motorways), NHA who finalized the amendments known as Variation Order No.2 to reflect changes in Appendix C to the Construction Contract vide minutes of meeting dated 26.6.2006. Variation Order No.2 was approved by the Executive Board of the NHA in its meeting held on 18.8.2006. Variation order No.2 was placed before the Executive Board of the NHA in its meeting held on 12.3.2008 and was approved by the Board on the said date as is apparent from the appended minutes of meeting dated 12.3.2008. In the light of this decision by the Executive Board of the NHA, the Construction Contract including Appendix C was amended through Amendment No.1 dated 20.5.2008 and in terms thereof. Subsequently escalation payments have been made to the Petitioners on the basis of the amended contract especially the amendment to Appendix C.

3. The present dispute arose on account of a direction given by Respondent No.2, Public Accounts Committee ("PAC") to the Respondent NHA to recover amounts from the Petitioner. NHA followed the same notwithstanding the fact that they have approved all amendments made to the Construction Contract including amendments to Appendix C and without application of mind. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the precise dispute is with respect to the audit objection noted in paragraph 4.4.13.5 of the Audit Report 2015 to the effect that escalation payments made to the contractor with respect to input element of skilled labour cost is not admissible under the Standard Procedure and Formula for Price Adjustment issued by the Pakistan Engineering Council ("PEC Procedures"). Learned counsel further argued that Respondent NHA does not deny the amendment to Appendix C whereas PAC has denied the same and submits that the amendments are unlawful and should not have been made. Learned counsel also argued that initially an audit objection was raised on the same issue in the year 2010 and an inquiry was called. The inquiry report issued on 28.10.2015 comprehensively dealt with the objection of PAC and the stance of the NHA. As per the inquiry report, the Petitioners are entitled to escalation payment as per its requirements as fuel and labour factors were revised in Appendix C with the approval of the NHA Board and implemented through necessary amendments in the contract. Subsequent to the inquiry, the matter stood settled and the Petitioners were paid accordingly.

4. Learned counsel stated that on 9.3.2020 the same objection was raised as audit para 4.4.13.5 in the Audit Report 2015 with respect to the same escalation payments and the factors relevant thereto. Learned counsel for the Petitioners stated that NHA claims that an over payment has been made to the Petitioners on account of the price escalation of skilled labour which was not part of the original agreement and hence these amounts must be recovered. The matter was discussed by the Departmental Accounts Committee ("DAC") in its meetings held in November 2014 and December 2014 and a direction was given to recover the said amount which has allegedly been paid in excess. Learned counsel argued that the NHA has not denied the amendments to the Construction Contract particularly Appendix C in which the weightage for skilled labour was agreed upon between the parties and Respondent No.4 and Respondent No.2, PAC cannot seek recovery of the excess amounts since the parties to the contract agreed to the amendments. Furthermore in case any excess amount is alleged to have been paid due process must be followed by issuing notice to the Petitioners, granting opportunity of hearing and allowing an adjudicatory forum to settle the dispute. Learned counsel argued that even otherwise the objection that the amendments are in violation of the PEC Procedures is not relevant as the PEC Procedures were issued later in time and cannot be applied retrospectively to the amended contract. Learned counsel further argued that there is no inquiry or recovery directed by PAC against the Respondents yet despite the same their invoices are not being processed and Respondent NHA is attempting to pursue recovery of amounts which they are not entitled to.

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondent No.4, Auditor General of Pakistan. Learned DAG argued that any decision made by the NHA with reference to the Construction Contract is subject to DAC approval and the Audit Department approvals; that PAC is responsible to see how public money is being spent and Respondent NHA cannot enter into any contractual arrangement which is contrary to the rules. Hence the recovery is justified.

6. Report and parawise comments have also been filed by Respondent No.1, NHA in which they admit the amendments in the Construction Contract were made by their Board; that PAC has given instructions to recover amounts from the Petitioner in 2017 and that NHA is bound by the decision of PAC. However, on behalf of PAC, learned DAG was unable to show any order seeking any inquiry or recovery in terms of the audit objection raised in para 4.4.13.5 of the Audit Report 2015. Learned DAG also raised the objection that this dispute is subject to arbitration; that it is a contractual obligation and the parties have agreed to a dispute resolution method, hence the instant Petition is not maintainable.

7. Heard and record perused. The basic issue before the Court is with respect to the stance taken by NHA that the Petitioners are not entitled to the weightage factors with reference to the price escalation of skilled labour as agreed in Appendix C to the amended Construction Contract. The Petitioners' contention that Appendix C was amended; that an audit objection on the same issue was raised in 2010, inquired into and settled as per the inquiry report which is apparent from the record is not denied by any of the Respondents. Subsequent to the inquiry report issued by NHA, the audit objection of 2010 was removed and the Petitioners were admittedly paid price escalation in terms thereof. The same issue arose again with the same audit objection with reference to the financial year 2014-15 in the Audit Report for the year 2015. The objections noted in paragraph No.4.4.13.5 of the Audit Report 2015 in essence provides that price escalation was paid on input element of skilled labour cost which is not admissible in the light of the PEC Procedures which does not allow price escalation on input element of skilled labour cost. Hence as per the objection, the Petitioner has been paid in excess under the Construction Contract.

8. At the very outset, it is noted that this is not a contractual dispute, hence is not arbitrable in terms of the dispute resolution clause contained in the construction contract. This dispute pertains to the decision taken by the NHA to recover amounts from the Petitioners on the instructions of PAC, which is not subject to the terms of the contract, hence not subject to the dispute resolution clause. Therefore, there is no merit in the preliminary objection with reference to the arbitrability of the dispute.

9. The Respondent NHA does not deny the amendments made to the Construction Contract including Appendix C, the decisions of its Executive Board dated 18.8.2006 and 12.3.2008 and payments made to the Petitioners pursuant to these decisions. Hence the question before this Court is whether NHA can recover amounts from the Petitioner based on an audit objection raised by PAC and whether the decision of PAC can form the basis of recovery without due process and adjudication on the issue of recovery.

10. Article 69 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") provides that (i) The validity of any proceedings in [Majlis-e-Shoora] (Parliament) shall not be called in question on the ground of any irregularity of procedure (ii) No officer or member of [Majlis-e-Shoora] (Parliament) in whom powers are vested by or under the Constitution for regulating procedure or the conduct of business, or for maintaining order in [Majlis-e-Shoora] (Parliament), shall be subject to the jurisdiction of any court in respect of the exercise by him of those powers. The relevant rules are the Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business in the National Assembly, 2007 (As modified up to the 13th September, 2019) issued by the National Assembly of Pakistan ("Rules of Business 2007"). Rule 203 of the Rules of the Business 2007 provides for the Functions of the PAC which states that:

The Committee shall examine the accounts showing the appropriation of sums granted by the Assembly for the expenditure of the Government, the annual finance accounts of the Government, the report of the Auditor General of Pakistan and such other matters as the Minister for Finance may refer to it.
Furthermore Sub-Rules (4) and (5) of Rule 203 of the Rules of the Business 2007 provides as follows:
(4) If any money has been spent on any service during a financial year in excess of the amount granted by the Assembly for that purpose, the Committee shall examine with reference to the facts of each case the circumstances leading to such an excess and make such recommendation as it may deem fit.
(5) The report of the Committee shall be presented within a period of one year from the date on which reference was made to it by the Assembly unless the Assembly, on a motion being made, directs that the time for the presentation of the report be extended to a date specified in the motion:
Provided that extension in the time for the presentation of the report shall be asked for before the expiry of the time allowed under the rule.
Therefore as per the Rules of Business 2007, PAC is a recommendary committee which is required to examine the accounts of the relevant year and make recommendations as it deems fit. The report of the PAC is then to be presented along with its recommendations to the Assembly for a decision. Consequently in terms of Article 69 of the Constitution, there is a bar on the decision of the [Majlis-e-Shoora] (Parliament) taken with respect to any decision of questioning and inquiring to the proceedings of the National Assembly. This will include any decision taken by PAC.

11. Article 69 of the Constitution has been interpreted in Muhammad Azhar Siddiqui and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2012 SC 774). The provisions of Article 69 of the Constitution were elaborately examined by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan wherein it was held that:
It is, therefore, obvious that the proceedings of a formally constituted Committee of either House falls within the ambit of internal proceedings of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and consequently are immune from challenge in Courts in the light of the bar contained in Article 69 of the Constitution. The proceedings of the Public Accounts Committee are, therefore, the internal proceedings of the Parliament and as such immune from being inquired into by this Court.
The judgment finds that the proceedings of a formally constituted committee of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) falls within the ambit of internal proceedings and consequently is immune from challenge in courts in the light of the bar contained in Article 69 of the Constitution. Consequently the proceedings of PAC are internal proceedings of Parliament and immune from being inquired into by this Court. Therefore in view of the clear stipulation provided in Article 69 of the Constitution, as interpreted by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan a decision taken by PAC is not subject to writ jurisdiction. In the case of Nawab Khan Khattak v. Public Accounts Committee and others (2002 YLR 2209) the findings of PAC were also considered wherein the Court held:

It will, therefore, be seen that the functions of the PAC are confined to the scrutiny of the audited accounts to satisfy itself, that money shown in the accounts as having been disbursed were legally available and applicable to the service purpose to which applied; the expenditure conforms to the authority; and that every re-appropriation has been made in accordance with the rule framed by the Government. Indeed, the report of the Committee, preliminary or final, is to be laid before the House, under rule 186 of the Rules of Procedure.

It was further held in 2002 YLR 2209 (supra) as follows:

Even after hearing the affected persons the PAC could at the most recommend/suggest the action to the concerned Agency/ Department of the Government. We are clear in our view that the PAC could not straightaway direct action against the petitioners, for it could only recommend and the Government was to judge each and every case independently in accordance with law. It is mentioned that if the recoveries were made voluntarily in time then no Department/criminal action whatsoever may be taken and no adverse entries in the A.C.Rs be reflected but an Officer involved in the misdeeds hesitates to make the loss good, he is to be proceeded under the Rules without raising technical points. We are clear in our mind that the PAC could be straightaway direct action against the petitioners; it could only recommend and the Government was to judge each and every case of the petitioners independently in accordance with law.

Furthermore in a recent judgment BNP (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Capital Development Authority and others (2016 CLC 1169) two questions were discussed firstly as to whether the proceedings of PAC are barred or immune from judicial review in the light of Article 69 of the Constitution and secondly, whether the authority could have acted without application of mind and in a mechanical manner pursuant to the directives of the PAC. In this regard, the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court held that:

It is, therefore, obvious that the proceedings of a formally constituted Committee of either House falls within the ambit of internal proceedings of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and consequently are immune from challenge in Courts in the light of the bar contained in Article 69 of the Constitution. The proceedings of the Public Accounts Committee are, therefore, the internal proceedings of the Parliament and as such immune from being inquired into by this Court.

It was further held in 2016 CLC 1169 (supra) as follows:

There is no cavil to the proposition that the Public Accounts Committee, being an integral part and its proceedings falling within the ambit of 'internal proceedings' of the Parliament, has to be given utmost respect and treated with deference. Its findings and recommendations carry immense sanctity and, therefore, have to be considered and acted upon with great care and diligence. However, as already pointed above, Rule 201(4) of the Rules of 2007 expressly provides that after the Public Accounts Committee has forwarded its report of findings and recommendations to a Ministry or its associated public body, then the latter is under an obligation to submit its reply to the Committee. It is implicit in Rule 201(4) that after receiving the report of findings or recommendations of the Public Accounts

Committee, the Ministry or its associated public body, as the case may be, shall consider the same and, if required, afford an opportunity of hearing to the person being adversely affected, and then submit its reply to the Committee. The requirement of submitting a reply contemplated in Rule 201(4) essentially involves a process of considering the relevant factors, deliberations and taking appropriate decisions and actions. The recommendations, therefore, if acted upon in a mechanical manner, would not be in consonance with the law, particularly the Rules of 2007.

It was also held in 2016 CLC 1169 (supra) as follows:
The Board, in the instant case, was required to have considered the recommendations/directives of the Public Accounts Committee and ought to have taken decisions based on the exercise of independent judgment, and thereafter to have submitted a reply to the latter. However, admittedly, as conceded by the learned counsel and also apparent from the record, the Board, instead of considering the directions/ recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee, issued the impugned letter in a mechanical manner.

Hence only after following due process as contemplated under the Rules of Business 2007, can any recovery be made. In this regard only after PAC has placed its recommendations before the relevant department or authority whose accounts were audited for due consideration and necessary action, after it has been approved by the National Assembly.

12. In this case the Petitioner has challenged the decision of Respondent NHA wherein it is seeking to recover amounts from the Petitioner allegedly on the instructions of PAC. In this regard, the National Highway Authority Act, 1991 ("NHA Act") establishes a National Highway Authority for planning, development, operation and maintenance of National Highways and strategic roads and to provide for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. Section 24 of the NHA Act provides for the Audit of its accounts, in terms of which the accounts of the Authority shall be audited every year by the Auditor General in such manner as may be prescribed by the Federal Government. Hence the accounts of the NHA are subject to audit by the Auditor General. In terms thereof during the audit of the 2015 accounts an audit objection noted in paragraph No.4.4.13.5 stated that price escalation was paid on input element of skilled labour cost which is not admissible in the light of the PEC Procedures. As per the record there has been no recommendation by PAC on the audit objection. The record also shows that even though the objection was placed before PAC, it was not taken up in that meeting. Notwithstanding, NHA issued letter dated 9.3.2020 wherein it conveyed to the Petitioner that on a direction given by PAC, they seek to recover amounts under audit para No.4.4.13.5. On the same date, another letter was issued to General Manager (Const-North), National Highway Authority, Quetta to recover amounts as per audit para No.4.4.13.5. Both letters clearly stipulate that this is being done on the instructions of PAC.

13. As per report and parawise comments filed by PAC, audit para 4.4.13.5 of the audit report for the year 2014-15 was on the agenda of PAC meeting held on 14.9.2017, however the said para along with other paras could not be discussed and the meeting was adjourned. Therefore in terms of the report and parawise comments filed, PAC never gave any instructions to NHA to recover any amounts from the Petitioner. Hence the contention of NHA is belied on the basis of the report and parawise comments filed by PAC before this Court.

14. Learned counsel for NHA during the course of proceedings was asked to show the recommendation of PAC and the instructions given by PAC on the basis of which they claim that they have been directed to recover amounts from the Petitioner. Learned counsel was unable to show any such letter or report. Learned counsel for the Petitioner however has relied upon the report of the Inquiry Committee on the directives of PAC dated 28th and 29th July 2015 regarding printed para 3.2.48 for the year 2010-11 which is on the same subject matter and the same dispute, however pertaining to the year 2010. As per this report, the amendments to the contract were made with the approval of NHA on the initiation of the Planning Commission and was binding on the parties. All codal formalities were duly followed and were duly approved by NHA Executive Board and ultimately the Inquiry Committee concluded that the revisions made to Appendix C were all made in accordance with law as per the procedures laid down, therefore the recovery is not justified. Hence even the decision of NHA itself as per its own Inquiry Report suggest that they cannot make any recovery against the Petitioner on account of the amendments made to the Construction Contract which was all done in accordance with law after following due process.

15. On the basis of the aforementioned it is evident that NHA has used the audit objection as a basis for recovering amounts from the Petitioner. An audit objection is merely an objection highlighting irregularities under the relevant finance related rules. The purpose of the audit and audit objection is to ensure that public money is spent as per rules and regulations. An audit objection requires evaluation, recommendations and settlement. Until the audit objection is settled, it is merely an observation which requires probe, after giving the relevant department an opportunity to explain its position. By itself an audit objection is merely information placed before the authority which requires looking into, to determine whether there is breach of any finance related rule or regulation. Hence an audit objection cannot form the basis for recovering amounts from the Petitioner, that too without following due process. Furthermore in this case NHA is bound by the terms of its Construction Contract and cannot simply ignore the terms of its contract and initiate recovery without following due process and without raising the dispute before the Petitioner.

16. Under the circumstances, the Respondent NHA cannot recover the disputed amounts from the Petitioner as there are no instructions by PAC in this regard. Even otherwise PAC is a recommendatory committee which presents its recommendations to Parliament and cannot as such issue directions to NHA to initiate any recovery. Furthermore if at all there is an audit objection, that objection has to be considered and dealt with as per law where after due process must be initiated if at all recovery is to be taken of any amount from the Petitioner which means acting under the Construction Contract, giving notice to the Petitioner and obtaining a declaration from the competent forum that the Petitioner owes amounts to the Respondent NHA as amounts paid in excess under the Construction Contract.

17. In view of the aforesaid, the instant Petition is allowed and the impugned recovery letters both dated 9.3.2020 issued by the Respondent NHA are set aside.

KMZ/N-19/L Petition allowed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition, the Petitioner seeks a declaration that Election Notice dated 2.5.2020 issued by Respondent No.3, SNGPL be declared illegal and without lawful authority; that the Federal Government be permitted representation on the Board of Directors ("BOD") of Respondent No.3 only through directors nominated under section 165 of the Companies Act, 2017 ("Act") in proportion to its shareholding in Respondent No.3; that the Federal Government is not eligible to contest elections under section 159 of the Act, hence be restrained from participating in the elections scheduled for 23.6.2020.

The case of the Petitioner

2. The Petitioner is an advocate by profession and a shareholder in Respondent No.3, SNGPL holding 3000 shares. The Petitioner intends to contest the election for the BOD of the Company for which he filed his nomination papers and consent forms as required under the Act. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Company has set a total strength of eleven directors for its BOD and thereafter invited interested candidates to take part in the election. Learned counsel further argued that in this context the Federal Government proposed some names of members and non-members who will contest the elections on its behalf. Learned counsel argued that the Federal Government through letter dated 9.6.2020 addressed to Respondent No.3 nominated eleven persons to contest the election for the BOD of Respondent No.3 under section 159 of the Act. Out of these eleven persons only three are members of SNGPL, in their own right, being Roohi Raees Khan, Rizwan Ullah Khan and Dr. Sohail Razi Khan. The remaining eight persons are not members of SNGPL, hence not eligible to contest the election. Learned counsel further argued that Section 159 of the Act makes it clear that a person contesting the election of directors must be a member in his own right and cannot be construed to be representing anyone other than himself. He stated that section 159 of the Act is a complete code which regulates the conduct of elections, such that only a member of the Company can contest the election for the director of the Company. He further stated that so far as the Federal Government is concerned, they can only nominate directors under section 165 of the Act and cannot put up directors for election under section 159 of the Act. He argued that elected directors are totally separate and distinct from nominated directors and the Federal Government is trying to blur this distinction by appointing directors through elections, which the law does not permit. Learned counsel stated that this issue has already been decided by this Court through judgment dated 27.2.2020 passed in W.P. No.21451/2019 titled Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman v. Sui Northern Gas Pipelines Limited through its Secretary etc. and the Federal Government is acting in contravention to the law laid down by this Court. Therefore the Petitioner prays that the persons mentioned in the letter dated 9.6.2020 issued by the Federal Government should be barred from contesting the election as they are not members of the company in their own right and as such they cannot represent the Federal Government as an elected director. Learned counsel argued that the same will apply to the nominees of State Life Insurance Corporation and National Investment Trust Limited who are also not members of the Respondent No.3 Company.

3. Effectively the case of the Petitioner is that the Federal Government being member of SNGPL cannot contest elections in terms of section 159 of the Act and that it can only nominate directors under sections 164 and 165 of the Act. The Petitioner consequently argues that the Federal Government can only nominate three persons to the BOD under section 165 of the Act.

Arguments of Respondents' counsel

4. On behalf of the Federal Government report and parawise comments have been filed. Learned DAG stated that the Petitioner's reference to W.P. No.21451/2019 (supra) is totally misconceived. In fact the Federal Government based on the findings in the said case decided to propose candidates to contest the election under section 159 of the Act. She argued that the Petitioner has no locus standi before this Court and in fact the instant Petition raises a company dispute for which remedy is available under section 160 of the Act. She stated that the Federal Government is exercising its rights as a shareholder strictly in accordance with law and that section 153(i)(i) of the Act read with its proviso is self-explanatory wherein the Federal Government can appoint directors who are non-members to represent it in the election of the BOD. She explained that the Ministry of Energy, Petroleum Division proposed the names of candidates to contest the election for the BOD. Eleven names were provided which are duly mentioned in the election notice and the advertisement. Since the Federal Government is a shareholder of Respondent No.3, it is merely exercising its right as a shareholder and has opted to appoint directors by election being distinct from nominee directors.

5. On behalf of the SECP, report and parawise comments have been filed. Learned counsel has clarified that if a person holding shares in a company is not a natural person then such person can nominate any person to contest the election for director on its behalf in terms of section 153(i)(i) of the Act and that such person need not be a member of the company. It is their case that as per the provisions of the Act, there is no restriction on the number of persons who can contest the election of directors as the election shall be conducted as per the procedure laid down in section 159 of the Act. Further that an artificial person can participate in the election through its nomination of a natural person, who is not a member of the company.

6. Report and parawise comments have also been filed on behalf of Respondent SNGPL. Learned counsel argued that while proceeding with the process for carrying out election for the BOD of SNGPL, the Federal Government being a member of SNGPL has proposed candidates to contest the election in terms of section 159 of the Act. There are eleven names proposed out of which some are members holding proxy on behalf of the Federal Government while others are not members but eligible in terms of section 153 of the Act. He stated that SNGPL has acted as per law and duly advertised the election date. He has also raised objections on the maintainability of this Petition and the locus standi of the Petitioner. Learned counsel explained that the shareholders of SNGPL comprises of 634,216,665 shares and the required threshold for a member to participate in the election is the holding of 9.09% shares. The Petitioner does not meet this threshold, hence cannot allege any grievance or breach of any right. The Federal Government is a member holding 31.68% shares directly and 57.68% shares through government owned entities, corporations and companies bringing its total shareholding to over 70%. Hence the Federal Government can contest elections in its own right as a member of SNGPL and can name non-members as its candidates to contest the election in terms of section 153 of the Act.

7. Learned counsel for Respondent No.22 clarified that Respondent No.22 has withdrawn from the election process, hence he is no longer contesting the election. Learned counsel for Respondent No.21 provided a copy of order dated 16.3.2020 passed by this Court in I.C.A. No.14622/2020 titled Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman v. SNGPL and others wherein he raised an objection with respect to the election of the BOD wherein a status quo order has been passed, hence prays that this Court should not proceed with the case until a decision is made in the aforementioned I.C.A. Learned counsel for Respondent No.24 essentially argued that there is no concept of non-natural person contesting election of the BOD in terms of section 154 of the Act. Learned counsel further argued that there is nothing in the law which bars a non-natural person from directing a natural person to offer himself for election and then vote for such person in the election to be conducted, meaning that it can give its proxy to a member. In fact, it appears to be common practice for non-natural persons to transfer the requisite shareholding in favour of persons it desires to contest election so that the requirement of section 159(3) and section 153 may be met as any such person who offers himself for election would have to be a member in his own right. Learned counsel also argued that a person offering himself for elections has to be a member and there can be no exception to the same, therefore it is clear that there is no concept of a non-natural person contesting elections under the applicable law. Learned counsel argued that there is no concept of a "nominee" contesting elections. The only reference to nominees in relation to a BOD of a company under the Act is persons being nominated to a BOD directly without going through the process of elections under sections 164 and 165 of the Act.

Preliminary Objections

8. Learned counsel for Respondents raised three preliminary objections. Firstly that the Petitioner has appropriate, efficacious and alternate remedy available to him under section 160 of the Act; Secondly that the Petitioner has no locus standi to file the instant Petition as no fundamental right of the Petitioner has been infringed; Thirdly, section 5(2) of the Act is an ouster clause which ousts the jurisdiction of this Court specifically on matters related to election of directors which are to be dealt with exclusively by the Company Bench of the High Court having jurisdiction. Reliance is placed on Muhammad Shafique Khan Sawati v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2015 SCMR 851), Mian Javed Amir v. United Foam Industries (Pvt.) Ltd. and others (2016 SCMR 213) and M. Fuwad A. Mughal v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2018 YLR 26).

9. With respect to the first objection that remedy under section 160 of the Act is available to the Petitioner who seeks to challenge the eligibility of eleven candidates named by the Federal Government for the purposes of election to the BOD. Section 160 of the Act provides that the Company Bench of the relevant High Court can declare the election of directors invalid on an application of a member holding 10% of the voting power in the company filed within the thirty days from the date of election, if there is material irregularity in the holding of the elections and matters incidental or related thereto. The contention is that the Petitioner does not have locus standi under section 160 of the Act as he does not have the requisite 10% of the voting power. Since he does not qualify for the remedy under section 160 of the Act, he cannot bypass the mandatory provisions of the Act and challenge the elections through this Petition. In this regard, it is noted that the Petitioner's challenge is specifically with the decision of the Federal Government to put up eleven candidates for the election to the BOD of SNGPL on the ground that the Federal Government cannot put up any candidates to participate in the election of directors and that by doing so they are abusing their authority and acting in error of law. In this regard, it is noted that the entire dispute is with respect to the decision of the Federal Government to participate in the elections. Since the decision and actions of the Federal Government have been impugned before this Court, the instant Petition is maintainable and this Court in constitutional jurisdiction can determine whether or not Federal Government has acted in accordance with law or whether it has abused its authority. In this regard, it is noted that the powers under Section 160 vesting with the Company Bench of the relevant High Court is the power to determine whether or not the elections have been conducted under the Act and does not deal with the judicial review of actions or decisions of the Federal Government challenged as interference in the election process. Section 160 of the Act is a statutory right of a shareholder to ensure that elections of directors are conducted under the Act as required and this provision is not available to the Petitioner to challenge the actions of the Federal Government. Hence there is no merit in this objection. So far as the issue of locus standi is concerned, for the purposes of constitutional jurisdiction the Petitioner claims to be aggrieved as he is a member of SNGPL and does not want the Federal Government to usurp his rights as a member who wants to contest elections for the BOD.

10. With respect to the third objection on the ouster of jurisdiction, section 5(2) of the Act provides that Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law no civil court as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 or any other court shall have jurisdiction to entertain any suit or proceeding in respect of any matter which the Court is empowered to determine by or under this Act. In terms of this Section, the jurisdiction of a civil court or any other court has been ousted to entertain any suit or proceeding in respect of any matter which the court is empowered to determine by or under this Act. Consequently section 5(2) of the Act vests jurisdiction with the Company Bench of the relevant High Court to deal with all matters under the Act. While interpreting the ouster clause, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has in several cases held that the ouster clause has to be interpreted strictly and based on the facts of the case. More specifically that the ouster clause cannot be read or inferred to oust constitutional jurisdiction.

11. In Allied Bank of Pakistan Ltd. v. Khalid Farooq (1991 SCMR 599), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held as under: the exclusion of jurisdiction of superior Courts is not to be readily inferred, that there is a strong leaning against any such exclusion, that this rule is deep seated and if it is to be overturned, it must ordinarily be done by a clear, definite or positive provision, not left to mere implication.
In Munir Hussain Bhatti, Advocate and others v. Federation of Pakistan and another (PLD 2011 SC 407), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held as under:
There is a vast body of precedent in our legal corpus which has consistently held that the Court's jurisdiction may only be ousted through express words in a legal text. This principle of law is by now well settled.
In Arshad Mehmood v. Commissioner / Delimitation Authority, Gujranwala and others (PLD 2014 Lahore 221), it has been held that:
The ouster clause under section 10A of the Act does not, in the slightest, abridge or curtail the constitutional jurisdiction of this Court to judicially review the orders, notifications and the acts of the executive i.e., the Delimitation Authority and Delimitation Officer in this case. It also matters little if the ouster clause is considered to be a time specific clause, as argued by some of the respondents. Courts usually give due weightage to any administrative urgency of the Executive but this does not mean that the doors leading to courts can be shut down as this would result in curtailing and abridging the judicial power. This is opposed to independence of judiciary and the constitutional framework of separation of powers. As per citations the ouster clause must be read in the context of the language of the statute. So far as constitutional jurisdiction is concerned, this Court will guard its jurisdiction jealously and will not oust its constitutional jurisdiction on inference as section 5(2) of the Act does not explicitly bar this Court's jurisdiction.

12. In the instant case, the ouster clause specifically mentions civil courts or any other court to entertain suits or proceedings in respect of matters which the Company Bench of the High Court has jurisdiction by or under the Act, meaning thereby that no other court can interfere in matters for which jurisdiction has been specifically vested with the Company Bench of the relevant High Court. Section 5 as the ouster clause does not protect unlawful actions and decisions of the government which are otherwise amenable to judicial review under constitutional jurisdiction. The ouster clause protects the jurisdiction of the Company Bench of the relevant High Court to ensure that no other court impedes on its jurisdiction. The Company Bench of the relevant High Court under Section 160 of the Act can consider irregularities in the election of directors wherein the requirements of the Act have not been followed or considered by it but cannot consider issues which go beyond irregularities under the Act. The ouster clause therefore does not cover decisions and actions taken by the executive being the Federal Government in this case. More importantly the application of section 5 of the Act will not in any manner curb the jurisdiction vested in this Court under Article 199 of the Constitution as has been held in PLD 2014 Lahore 22 (supra). Hence if an authority has acted in contravention to the law or its authority or contrary to the principles of natural justice, the same will be amenable to writ jurisdiction and it cannot be argued that such decisions will fall within the mandate of section 5(2) of the Act. Importantly, the objective of the ouster clause is to ensure that no other court will carry out parallel proceedings with respect to claims and complaints and issues specifically arising under the scheme of the Act. However, when an action is taken by the Federal Government which is stated to be without jurisdiction or authority or is termed as misuse of power, tainted with mala fide, the same will not fall within the scope of the ouster clause being section 5(2) of the Act or within the scope of section 160 of the Act.

13. Respondent No.21, Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman relied upon order dated 16.3.2020 passed in I.C.A. No.14622/2020 to urge that on account of the status quo order, this Court cannot decide the issue of election for the BOD as a status quo order has been passed by a learned Division Bench of this Court in I.C.A. No.14622/2020. As per the record and copy of the order produced before this Court, the matter in issue in I.C.A. No.14622/2020 is specifically with respect to the status of Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman in the outgoing BOD, which Board's tenure ended on 22.6.2020. The order relied upon does not prevent future elections with respect to the BOD of SNGPL as any determination made in the said I.C.A. is with respect to the status of Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman in the previous BOD but not with respect to the BOD that is to be elected, pursuant to the notice dated 2.5.2020, hence there is no merit in this objection.

14. On 2.5.2020 in terms of Section 159 of the Act, the BOD of SNGPL fixed the number of directors to be elected as eleven and notified the election to be held on 23.6.2020. On 1.6.2020 notice for extraordinary general meeting was issued to SECP and Pakistan Stock Exchange that eleven directors were to be elected for SNGPL and the names of the retired directors who are eligible for re-election. This notice was also issued in the newspaper on 16.6.2020. On 9.6.2020 the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Energy, Petroleum Division informed SNGPL of its proposed candidates for appointment of directors by election to the BOD. These names are as follows:

Sr. No.	Name	Member's Status as on 9.6.2020
1	Ms. Roohi Raees Khan	Member
2	Mr. Rizwan Ullah Khan	Member
3	Dr. Sohail Razi Khan	Member
4	Mr. Mohammad Haroon	Non-Member
5	Mr. Muhammad Ayub Chaudhry, Additional Secretary (P) Petroleum Division	Non-Member
6	Mr. Sajid Mehmood Qazi, Joint Secretary (A/CA) Petroleum Division	Non-Member
7	Mr. Naveed Kamran Baloch	Non-Member
8	Mr. Yousaf Naseem Khokhar	Non-Member Name proposed by State Life Insurance Company
9	Mr. Manzoor Ahmed	Non-Member Name proposed by NIT
10	Mr. Afan Aziz	Non-Member
11	Syed Akhtar Ali	Non-Member

All candidates were required to submit their intention to contest the election by 9.6.2020. On 16.6.2020 after scrutinizing the names of the candidates an advertisement was published wherein 20 names were declared as a final list of candidates to contest in the election to the BOD of SNGPL. The dispute before the Court is with respect to the proposed names of the Federal Government being the candidates who will contest the election on its behalf. Out of the eleven names, three candidates are members where the dispute is limited to whether they can represent the Federal Government on the BOD as elected directors and eight names are of non-members where the dispute is whether a non-member can contest the election while representing the Federal Government. This includes the nominee of State Life Insurance Corporation and National Investment Trust Limited who are also non-members. The issue, before the Court is whether the Federal Government can appoint directors through election under section 159 of the Act and whether it can propose the names of non-members to contest the election on its behalf. The second issue is whether the Federal Government is restricted to appoint nominee director under sections 164 and 165 of the Act, thereby prohibited from proposing names of candidates who will contest the election for the BOD on its behalf.

15. The entire dispute before this Court revolves around interpretation of section 153(i)(i) of the Act and section 159 of the Act which are reproduced hereunder: (Emphasis in bold added for convenience)

Section 153. Ineligibility of certain persons to become director. A person shall not be eligible for appointment as a director of a company, if he:

(a) is a minor
(b) is of unsound mind;
(c) has applied to be adjudicated as an insolvent and his application is pending
(d) is an undischarged insolvent;
(e) has been convicted by a court of law for an offence involving moral turpitude;
(f) has been debarred from holding such office under any provision of this Act;
(g) is lacking fiduciary behaviour and a declaration to this effect has been made by the Court under section 212 at any time during the preceding five years;
(h) does not hold National Tax Number as per the provisions of Income Tax Ordinance, 2001
Provided that the Commission may grant exemption from the requirement of this clause as may be notified

(i) It is not a member Provided that clause (i) shall not apply in the case of
(i) a person representing a member which is not a natural person
(ii) a whole-time director who is an employee of the company
(iii) a chief executive; or
(iv) a person representing a creditor or other special interests by virtue of contractual arrangement.
(j) has been declared by a court of competent jurisdiction as defaulter in repayment of loan to a financial institution.
(k) is engaged in the business of brokerage or is a spouse of such person or is a sponsor, director or officer of a corporate brokerage house:
Provided that clauses (j) and (k) shall be applicable only in case of listed companies.
Section 159. Procedure for election of directors. (1) Subject to the provision of section 154, the existing directors of a company shall fix the number of directors to be elected in the general meeting, not later than thirty five days before convening of such meeting and the number of directors so fixed shall not be changed except with the prior approval of the general meeting in which election is to be held.

(2) The notice of the meeting at which directors are proposed to be elected shall among other matters, expressly state:
(a) the number of directors fixed under subsection (1); and
(b) the names of the retiring directors

(3) Any member who seeks to contest an election to the office of director, shall, whether he is a retiring director or otherwise, file with the company, not later than fourteen days before the date of the meeting at which elections are to be held, a notice of his intension to offer himself for election as a director
Provided that any such person may, at any time before the holding of election, withdraw such notice.

(4) All notices received by the company in pursuance of subsection (3) shall be transmitted to the members not late than seven days before the date of the meeting, in the same manner as provided under this Act for sending of a notice of general meeting. In the case of a listed company such notice shall be published in English and Urdu languages at least in one issue each of a daily newspaper of respective language having wide circulation.

(5) The directors of a company having a share capital shall, unless the number of persons who offer themselves to be elected is not more than the number of directors fixed under subsection (1), be elected by the members of the company in general meeting in the following manner, namely:
(a) a member shall have such number of votes as is equal to the product of the number of voting shares or securities held by him and the number of directors to be elected;

(b) a member may give all his votes to a single candidate or divide them between more than one of the candidates in such manner as he may choose; and

(c) the candidates who gets the highest number of votes shall be declared elected as director and then the candidate who gets the next highest number of votes shall be so declared and so on until the total number of directors to be elected has been so elected.

(6) The directors of a company limited by guarantee and not having share capital shall be elected by members of the company in general meeting in the manner as provided in articles of association of the company.

16. In terms of section 153 of the Act certain persons are not eligible to be directors of a company, where one disqualification is that a person shall not be eligible to be appointed as director if they are not a member of the company. Section 118 of the Act defines member of a company being the subscribers to the memorandum of association who are allotted shares and whose name is entered in the register of members. Section 154(2) of the Act also requires that only a natural person can be a director. Hence to be a director a person must be a member and must be a natural person. The Proviso to section 153(i) of the Act states that section 153(i) shall not apply in the case of a person representing the member who is not a natural person. As per this Section in order to be eligible as a director of a company, the person must be a natural person and must be a member, however an exception has been created for members, who are not natural persons such as corporate bodies or the Federal or Provincial Governments to appoint a director on their behalf. They can appoint a director who is not a member of the company. So for the purposes of the dispute before this Court, the Federal Government can appoint a non-member as a director of SNGPL. Now the question is does section 153 apply to section 159 of the Act which is argued to be a stand alone provision. Section 159 of the Act lays down the procedure for the election of directors whereby any member who seeks to contest in the elections for the BOD is required to provide his notice of intention to offer himself for election as a director. It has been argued that under section 159 of the Act only members can participate in the election of directors, that too a member, who is a natural person, because such member has to communicate his intention to offer himself for election as director, meaning thereby that only a natural person who is a member can offer himself as a director of the company and cannot offer himself on behalf of anyone else.

17. Under the Act, a director can be appointed under section 159 of the Act being appointment through an election or under sections 164 and 165 being nominated directors of creditors or special interests by virtue of contractual arrangements. Section 165 of the Act provides that special interest directors are those who are nominated by a body corporate or a company or any other entity owned or controlled directly or indirectly by the Federal Government or Provincial Government on the Board of a company on account of any investment made. So for the purposes of section 165 of the Act, the contention of the Petitioner that the Federal Government can only appoint directors through section 165 of the Act as nominee directors is totally misconceived and against the mandate of the Act. A shareholder of a company enjoys certain rights of which the right to elect directors and remove directors; the right to contest in the elections to the BOD and the right to appoint proxy are relevant for the purposes of this case. A member of a company by virtue of holding shares in a company has the right to participate in the decision making process either in their capacity as shareholders or through the BOD based on their shareholding. For the purposes of meetings, section 137 of the Act provides that a member of a company is entitled to attend and vote at meetings of the company through a proxy. Section 138 of the Act provides that a body corporate or corporation which is the member of a company can attend a meeting through an authorized representative and exercise all powers as member through the authorized representatives. Section 139 of the Act provides that the Federal Government as a member of the company can appoint any person it deems fit to act as its representative at any meeting of the company or meeting of class of members of the company. Essentially these sections enable a member to participate in the meetings either through proxy or through an authorized representative. The relevance of these sections for the purposes of a body corporate, corporation or in the context of the Federal or Provincial Government where it is a member of a company is that such members who are not natural persons will act through their proxies or authorized representatives who are exercising their right, in the meetings, to participate and to vote. In the same context, since a member has the right to participate in the election to the BOD of a company, where that member is not a natural person it can exercise this right through proxy or through its representatives. The Petitioner has essentially argued that the Federal Government cannot appoint elected directors on the BOD and can only appoint nominee directors on account of section 159 of the Act. His understanding of section 159 of the Act when read with section 153 of the Act is totally flawed. If accepted it would mean that the Federal Government is prohibited from exercising the basic right of a member as given under section 159 of the Act to elect directors to the BOD. This is totally against the mandate of the Act. Section 159 of the Act also provides the procedure for holding elections of the BOD. It cannot be read as prohibiting the right of certain members when it comes to appointing directors. In this context section 153(i)(i) clearly provides that a director of a company must be a member of company except when such director is representing a member which is not a natural person. The rationale behind section 153(i)(i) of the Act is that a body corporate or corporation and Federal or Provincial Government, as the case may be, can only be represented on the BOD through a natural person as the body corporate or corporation or the Federal or Provincial Government have to act through their representatives to attend meetings to vote or participate in the decision making process. In fact section 153(i)(i) of the Act gives the body corporate or corporation and the Federal or Provincial Government the additional right to consider appointing a member or a non-member as its elected director under section 159 of the Act. It creates an exception to the rule that a person representing a member which is not a natural person, though not a member themselves qualify to be a director.

18. In this context it was argued that the Federal Government, as a member of SNGPL can only appoint a member as a director, specifically because section 159(3) of the Act requires a director to be a member, who in his own capacity will give his consent to be appointed as a director and gave his intimation to participate in the elections. A plain reading of section 159(3) makes it evident that the provision is procedural in nature which essentially lays down the process to be followed for the purposes of election. Section 159(3) of the Act requires any member, be it a body corporate or the Federal or Provincial Government, as the case may be, give their consent and intimation to offer themselves for election as directors. It goes without saying that since the body corporate or the Federal or Provincial Government will act through their representative who has to be a natural person, they will follow the process under section 159(3) and give their consent and intimation to the election. Consequently section 159(3) of the Act does not prohibit the rights of non-natural persons who are members of a company to appoint directors by election on the BOD. Hence, the Federal Government can appoint a member or non-member as its candidate to participate in the election for the BOD of Respondent No.3. In this regard, I have been informed that the candidates mentioned at Serial Nos.1, 6, 13, 16 and 18 of the advertisement dated 16.6.2020 are non-members. Rest are all admittedly members, out of which three are holding proxy of the Federal Government, hence as such no illegality is made out on this count.

19. The relevance of the right of a shareholder to appoint a director through election is best understood when seen in the context of the difference between a nominee director and an elected director. A nominee director is one who is appointed under sections 164 and 165 of the Act on the basis of a contractual arrangement with the creditors or other special interest holders. Section 164 of the Act provides that in addition to director elected or deemed to have been elected by shareholders, the company may have directors nominated by its creditors or special interests by virtue of a contractual arrangement. A body corporate or corporation owned or controlled by the Federal or Provincial Government may also nominate directors on the BOD to such corporation or company that it has extended credit facilities. In the same manner section 165 provides for the nomination of directors representing special interests where the Federal or Provincial Government as the case may be to nominate a director in a company in which it has made some investments or on the basis of any special interests. A nominee director therefore is nominated by institutions such as financial institutions or the Federal or Provincial Government on the Board to protect its interests as nominator. The fundamental difference between a nominee director and elected director is that a nominee director holds office at the pleasure of the nominator whereas the elected director is given a three year tenure under the Act and secondly that a nominee director has to safeguard the interests of its nominator first and foremost whereas an elected director has a fiduciary duty to the company and all its shareholders. So the nominee director participates in the proceedings of the BOD as per the terms of its arrangement with the nominator to ensure that nominators' investment or interest is safeguarded, to act as a liaison between the nominator and the company and also in the larger picture consider the overall policies and working of the company. In the instant case, the Petitioner's contention that the Federal Government can only act through nominee directors under Section 165 of the Act, notwithstanding the fact that they are members of SNGPL in their own right, is contrary to the mandate of the Act.

20. The Petitioner has also stated that the Federal Government has violated the law laid down by this Court through judgment dated 27.2.2020 passed in W.P. No.21451/2019. This contention is also totally misconceived. The issue before the Court in that case was that whether Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman was a nominee director of the Federal Government or whether he contested the election in his own capacity as a member of the company, hence the matter in issue is not the same. To the extent of Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman who is Respondent No.21 in this Petition, the court concluded that he was elected as a nominee of the Federal Government. The Court also pointed out that there have been some irregularities in the manner in which nominee directors of the Federal Government have not been distinguished from the elected directors However this lapse does not change the fundamental character of Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman who was appointed as nominee director of the Federal Government. Hence there has been no violation of this judgment. In fact it is the position of the Federal Government that they have been instructed by this judgment and have attempted to remove those irregularities which led to the dispute between the Federal Government, SNGPL and Mian Misbah-ur-Rehman.

21. Therefore the Federal Government is a member of SNGPL and enjoys all rights of a member under the Act and can exercise all rights as a member under the Act which includes the right to appoint and remove directors under the Act. This means that the Federal Government can either appoint a director on the BOD through elections under section 159 of the Act or through nomination under sections 164 and 165 of the Act.

22. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. The instant Petition is dismissed and the Respondent SNGPL can carry on with its election process within the stipulated time in accordance with law.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---A challenge has been made against the legislative competence of Parliament to promulgate the Drug Regulatory Authority of Pakistan Act, 2012 ("DRAP Act") as well as a challenge to the vires of the Alternative Medicines and Health Products (Enlistment) Rules, 2014 ("Rules"). Consequently the Petitioners challenge letter dated 03.10.2016 issued by Deputy Drug Controller (Health and OTC), Notification dated 30.10.2019 issued by Ministry of National Health Services Regulations and Coordination, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad and letter dated 21.01.2019 issued by the Chief Drugs Controller Punjab, Lahore. The Petitioners as detailed in Schedule "A, B and C" have raised common constitutional issues by challenging the regulatory authority of Drug Regulatory Authority of Pakistan ("DRAP") over their business and products and have challenged the actions of DRAP requiring the Petitioners to enlist their products or entity under the Rules.
The Petitioner's Arguments:

2. The Petitioners before the Court are involved in the manufacture, import and sale of diverse products which include alternative medicines, nutraceuticals and food supplements, health and over the counter ("OTC") products, disinfectants, cosmetics, veterinary supplements and baby milk. Their common grievance is that Parliament is not competent to legislate the DRAP Act; that their products do not fall in the definition of 'drug' under the DRAP Act; that the Rules go beyond the mandate of the DRAP Act seeking to regulate that which it is not authorized to regulate under the DRAP Act. Consequently, they do not fall within the regulatory regime of DRAP which includes the requirement of enlistment under the Rules.

3. The Petitioner in the instant Petition is Dawakhana Hakim Ajmal Khan (Private) Limited who manufactures and markets herbal remedies. It is their case that herbal remedies are made out of natural products and undergo animal testing; that their remedies are in accordance with established scientific and medical standards related to the science of unani, ayurvedic or tibb and that they have never been regulated as drugs and medicine. It is their case that historically under the Drug Act, 1976 ("Drug Act"), ayurvedic, unani, homeopathic and biochemical system of alternative medicine was not regulated as a 'drug'. It is the Petitioner's case that it is regulated under the Ayurvedic, Unani and Homeopathic Practitioners Act, 1965 ("1965 Act") and that the processes adopted by DRAP does not cater for the distinct sciences of ayurvedic, unani and homeopathy, which in itself are separate traditional forms of medicine. Hence without relying on sector experts to understand the science of traditional medicine, the Petitioner is subjected to a regulatory regime which does not recognize their subject specialty.

4. The Petitioner in W.P. No.36555/2016 is Nestle Pakistan Limited who manufactures and sells food items, in this case, baby milk and milk based baby food which they contend does not fall within the regulatory regime of DRAP. It is their case that food and food based products are legislated under the Punjab Food Authority Act, 2011 ("Food Act") through the Punjab Food Authority ("Food Authority"). Furthermore nutrition relating to children is regulated by the Punjab Infant Feeding Board ("Board") which has been established under the Protection of Breast-Feeding and Child Nutrition Ordinance, 2002 ("2002 Ordinance") read with the Punjab Protection of Breast-Feeding and Child Nutrition (Amendment) Act, 2012. Under the Board's regulatory regime, the products of the Petitioner are regulated to ensure safety and adequacy of nutrition for infants and young children. It is also their case that baby milk and milk based food products are not used for the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment or prevention of disease, hence cannot fall within the regulatory jurisdiction of DRAP. It was argued that they have been classified as a Health and OTC Product under the DRAP Act and placed under the definition of baby milk and foods and compensatory foods for infants and young children under the Rules which is without lawful authority and beyond the mandate of DRAP. It is also argued that Notification dated 3.10.2016 issued by Ministry of National Health Services, Regulations and Coordination, Islamabad has directed the Federal Board of Revenue that no commercial importer is authorized to import categories of ingredients or products as listed in the Notification which includes baby milk and food without their authorization as required under the Rules. It is stated that the Notification dated 3.10.2016 is illegal and beyond the mandate of the DRAP Act.

5. The Petitioner in W.P. No.258002/2018 is Engro Foods Limited which manufactures, markets and sells olpers full cream milk powder, for the preparation of which the Petitioner imports milk powder into Pakistan. The imported milk powder falls under the category of complementary foods for infants and young children as defined in Section 2(xiv) of the Rules, consequent to which DRAP requires the Petitioner to enlist its product so as to have its imports cleared from DRAP. The Petitioner is engaged in the dairy business and manufactures and sells various different dairy products in compliance with the federal quality standards prescribed by the Pakistan Standards and Quality Control Authority ("PSQCA") under the Pakistan Standards and Quality Control Act, 1996 ("PSQCA Act") and as per the arguments made its products do not fall within the definition of 'drugs and medicine'. It was argued that their products are regulated by the Food Authority and by the PSQCA and is wrongfully treated as a drug by DRAP and the Petitioner cannot be compelled to get itself enlisted with DRAP or submit to its jurisdiction.

6. The Petitioner in W.P. No.14712/2016 is Prospect Group (Private) Limited which imports and distributes food and dietary supplements under the brand name General Nutrition Corporation Centres ("GNC") throughout Pakistan. The product includes vitamins, minerals and herbal products, sports nutrition products and diet products. It is their case that their products are non-therapeutic goods not intended to diagnose, treat, decease or prevent decease; that the ingredients are dietary ingredients and is treated as food and not drugs under the United States, Food and Drug Administration ("FDA"). Hence their grievance is that GNC products do not fall within the regulatory jurisdiction of DRAP; that it is regulated under the Food Act and Food Authority and in any event the import of health products falls outside the scope of the DRAP Act. The Petitioner is also aggrieved by the processes undertaken by DRAP for enlistment purposes under the Rules as they cause delay and lack clarity on how to classify products on account of which the business of the Petitioner suffers. It is their case that world over GNC products are treated as 'food' and not as 'drug' as they make no health or therapeutic claim.

7. Similarly the Petitioner in W.P. No.72010/2019 is Shoaib Sports, who imports food supplements to improve muscle growth and also imports weight loss products. The Petitioners in W.P. No.1774/2016 imports veterinary supplements and nutraceutical products for the use and consumption by animals. The Petitioner in W.P. No.68811/2019 is CCL Pharmaceuticals (Private) Limited which is engaged in the business of production, marketing, distribution and sale of nutraceuticals and health and OTC products, such as 'Once A Day Calstrong Tablet', 'Once A Day Fish Oil Omega 3', 'Once A Day Men Tablet', 'Once A Day Women Tablet'. Their grievance is common to the grievances raised by the Petitioner who imports GNC products. They are also aggrieved by the Notification of 3.10.2016 requiring authorization DRAP for their imports.

8. The Petitioner in W.P. No.18865/2020 is Archroma Pakistan Limited which deals in the business of chemicals which are used for packaging food items as well as making hand sanitizers. The Petitioner's grievance is that it does not deal in the business of drugs and medicine; that its products fall under the category of disinfectant which is not used for the treatment, mitigation, prevention or prevention of disease; that it produces a general sale item being hand sanitizers which cannot be regulated by DRAP as the product is not used for medical purposes. They are also aggrieved as pursuant to a decision of the Cabinet dated 5.5.2020, that hand sanitizer is not to be regulated by DRAP yet they continue to do so.

9. The Petitioner in W.P. No.75250/2017 is Medinostic Health Care (Private) Limited, which produces various different disinfectant products ranging from hand foam sanitizers, hard surface cleaners, instruments disinfectant, water purification tablets, effervescent tables, liquid soaps, skin care wipes, alcohol wipes, disinfectant wipes etc. which are not drugs as they are not used in any form of treatment or diagnosis for human or animals. The main consumers of the Petitioner's product are households and hospitals. These products do not confer any authority on DRAP to regulate them as 'drugs' as they are ordinary household products which have been wrongfully classified as health and OTC products under the DRAP Act.

10. The Petitioner in W.P. No.21476/2018 is Inventive Cosmetics which is the manufacturer of different cosmetics under the name of Dr. Darma Divine, Pure Skin, Genesis, Neutrafresh, Silk Skin and Caviar. These products are used for external use, hence they do not fall under the definition of drugs and medicine as they are not used in the diagnosis or treatment of any medical condition. Hence their products cannot be regulated as drugs. Furthermore there are no guidelines to set out the evaluation criteria for these products. The other Petitioners claim almost similar relief.

11. All Petitioners before this Court are aggrieved as they are required to enlist their products with DRAP under the Rules. It is their contention that this is not lawful requirement as they do not fall within the regulatory jurisdiction of DRAP since they do not deal with 'drugs and medicine' per se. Consequently the Petitioners challenge the vires and legality of the Rules, which were notified vide SRO 412 (I)/2014 dated 27.05.2014 by Respondent No.2, DRAP. It is argued that the Rules go beyond the mandate of the DRAP Act, hence is excessive delegation as the Rules seek to regulate more than 'drugs and medicine'. The Petitioners argue that previously the Drug Act regulated drugs and medicine and did not include the products of the Petitioners; that drugs and medicine is a Provincial subject after the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"); that the Province of Punjab along with other Provincial Assemblies delegated the authority to legislate on the subject of drugs and medicine to Parliament under Article 144 of the Constitution. The resolutions passed by the respective Provincial Assemblies authorize Parliament to make law and regulate all matters relating to drugs and medicine and does not include the products and the businesses of the Petitioners. It is the case of the Petitioners that through the Rules a new regulatory regime has been introduced, whereby all importers and manufacturers of alternative medicines, health and OTC products, food and dietary supplements for humans and animals, baby milk, disinfectants, hand sanitizers and cosmetics are mandated to enlist with DRAP. The Petitioners argue that this is beyond the scope of the delegated authority by the Provincial Assembly to Parliament and beyond the mandate of the DRAP Act.

12. It has also been argued that the impugned Rules are unjust and unreasonable; that they are against good governance and in violation of the Petitioners' fundamental rights. Learned counsel argued that there are no subject specialists to advise DRAP with reference to the different and diverse nature of the products and traditional medicine; that DRAP seeks to regulate all products and alternate medicine in the same manner as drugs and medicine which at times is neither practical nor possible. They argued that there are no guidelines and delays in the enlistment process yet a National Task Force was established vide Notification dated 30.10.2019 issued by the Ministry of National Health Services Regulations and Coordination, Government of Pakistan Islamabad to take coercive action against the Petitioners for not complying with the enlistment process under the Rules. Learned counsel argued that the actions of the National Task Force is harsh and unnecessary especially as DRAP has not issued any guidelines as to how the various different products and alternative medicines are to be enlisted and regulated. The Respondents' arguments:

13. Notices were issued under Order XXVII-A, C.P.C. to the Attorney General for Pakistan to respond to the constitutional issues arising out of these Petitions. In response to these notices, report and parawise comments have been filed by the Federation of Pakistan. Learned Additional Attorney General for Pakistan ("AAG") argued that the Parliament legislated the DRAP Act on the passing of resolutions by four Provinces that is Punjab, Sindh, Khyber Pakhtunkhwan and subsequently Baluchistan that Parliament may, by law, regulate matters relating to drugs and medicine as per Article 144 of the Constitution. Learned AAG argued that the Provincial Assemblies have not challenged the DRAP Act nor the Rules framed thereunder nor is there a dispute pertaining to the regulatory framework of DRAP to include therapeutic goods, medicated cosmetics, health and OTC products, food and dietary supplements and alternative medicines. Learned AAG further argued that the Parliament is competent to legislate consequent to the resolutions passed under Article 144 of the Constitution and with reference to Punjab as per the Resolution of the Provincial Assembly dated 15.2.2012. Learned DAG argued that the regulation of drugs and medicine includes the products of the Petitioners and it is for DRAP to determine whether their products fall under the definition of 'drugs' under the DRAP Act; that DRAP was established vide Notification dated 28.11.2012 by the Ministry of National Regulations and Services, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad and has been effectively working since then.

14. Learned AAG further argued that there is a presumption in favour of the constitutionality of law which cannot be declared unconstitutional unless it is established that such law has violated the fundamental rights of the Petitioners or that Parliament lacked the legislative competence to enact the law. Learned AAG also argued that no fundamental right of the Petitioners has been infringed upon nor have they discussed any fundamental right which has been adversely affected. Further states that DRAP ensures that products are safe for the public to use, hence it is for the health and safety of the public as well as to create uniform standards against which drugs can be regulated nationwide. He explained that the Rules are not excessive delegation as they fall within the mandate of the DRAP Act and were approved by the Federal Government. He explained that during the hearing of Suo Motu Case No.1/2012 before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the Federal Government was directed to ensure the process of framing of rules under the DRAP Act vide order dated 28.3.2013, where after the Rules were notified on 27.5.2014. In support of his contentions, he has placed reliance on "Messrs Azfar Laboratories Private Limited through Directors and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of National Health Services and 4 others" (PLD 2018 Sindh 448) ("Azfar Laboratories Case") wherein all issues raised before this Court have been decided and neither party filed any appeal against the decision. Hence it is binding on all the Petitioners and on DRAP. He also relied upon Government of Sindh through Secretary Health Department and others v. Dr. Nadeem Rizvi and others (2020 SCMR 1) and Messrs Sui Southern Gas Company Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2018 SCMR 802) in support of his contentions.

15. Learned counsel for the Respondent DRAP argued that DRAP in exercise of powers conferred by Section 23 of the DRAP Act, with the approval of the Federal Government, promulgated the Rules through which DRAP has the power to enlist alternative medicines, therapeutic medicines, health and OTC products of manufacturers and importers, after scrutinizing the products against the evaluation criteria laid down under Rule 5 of the Rules. He further explained that the Rules call for enlistment of the entity, which is either an importer or a manufacturer and for the enlistment of the product. He explained that a large number of applications were filed for enlistment under the Rules and as of June 2020 all pending applications for enlistment of entities have been decided by the concerned Division. He also stated that several leading multi-national companies such as Abbott Laboratories, Glaxo SmithKline, ICI Pakistan Limited, Muller and Phipps Pakistan (Private) Limited, the Searle Company, Ferozsons Laboratories and Bayer Pakistan (Private) Limited have applied to the Division of Health and OTC Products and have been issued Provisional Certificates for Enlistment as manufacturers or importers. Some of these Petitioners, notwithstanding the fact that they have been issued Provisional Certificates for Enlistment, are before this Court. He also clarified that some of the Petitioners such as Hamdard Laboratories (Waqf) Pakistan, N.B. Sons, Shoaib Sports Company, Dabur Pakistan (Private) Limited, Heal the World, Goldsheff International Nutraceutical, Himont Laboratories (Private) Limited, Wilshire Laboratory (Private) Limited and Bless Laboratories who deal in ayurvedic, unani, homeopathic, herbal products have also applied to the Division of Health and OTC Products and have been issued Provisional Certificates for Enlistment as manufacturers or importers. Therefore he stated that the Petitioners have no grievance before this Court because they have submitted to the regulatory jurisdiction of DRAP and have obtained Provisional Certificate for Enlistment of Products and if at all they are aggrieved by the processes or the delay, those issues cannot become grounds for challenging the vires of the Rules or the competence of Parliament. Learned counsel further explained that at present DRAP is seeking to enlist the entity or the product under the Rules so as to develop its database with respect to therapeutic goods which includes alternative medicines, health and OTC products and medicated cosmetics available in the market so as to ensure that the products meet the regulatory requirements of DRAP which is essentially for the safety and protection of the public.

16. Learned counsel further argued that most countries in the region like India, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka and Iran have similar laws and regulatory regimes which call for registration of similar products in order to promote public health and safety. Furthermore DRAP acts in compliance with the guidelines issued by the WHO and follows international practices and protocols for such purposes. Learned counsel also relied upon the Azfar Laboratories Case to argue that similar challenge was made to the DRAP Act and the Rules before a learned Division Bench of the Sindh High Court which upheld the DRAP Act as well as the Rules for being in accordance with the Constitution. He stated that some of the Petitioners before this Court representing multi-nationals were also before the Division Bench of the Sindh High Court, hence they have no grievance before this Court as the matter has already been decided in the Azfar Laboratories Case, which has not been appealed by any of the Petitioners nor any of the Provinces. He explained that pursuant to the Azfar Laboratories Case, DRAP issued Guidelines for Manufacturers/Importers of Food Supplements or Dietary Supplements or Health Supplements or Nutraceuticals as to what is meant by Alternative Medicine and Health Products Dosage Forms ("Guidelines"), on the directions contained in para 50 of the Azfar Laboratories Case. Even otherwise DRAP regularly holds meetings with the stakeholders to discuss better management, good practices and international standards so as to ensure that its processes are efficient, effective and as per the international practices. He specified that an effort has been made to improve upon the processes, particularly after the guidance given in the Azfar Laboratories Case. Therefore it is the case of DRAP that the Petitioners have no grievance before this Court nor is there any legal basis to challenge the vires of the Rules or the competence of Parliament to promulgate the DRAP Act. Furthermore he argued that the Petitioners' contention that they are regulated under different laws other than the DRAP Act is without basis as each regulatory regime is set up to achieve its purpose, in this case the purpose being to ensure that any product which lays claim to having health benefits must be regulated for its efficacy and to ensure proper disclosure through its packaging and labelling.

17. The Government of Punjab also filed report and parawise comments wherein it is stated that Provincial Assembly of the Punjab passed a Resolution on 15.02.2012 wherein they specifically delegated the subject of drugs and medicine to Parliament. A copy of the Resolution has been placed on file which reads that the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab in its sitting held on 15.2.2012 has passed Resolution in terms of Article 144 of the Constitution, such that the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab resolves that the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may, by law, regulate matters relating to drugs and medicines in terms of Article 144 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973. Learned Law Officer stated that a Task Force was notified on 14.7.2016 to ensure compliance under the Rules. He also stated that so far as unani, ayurvedic and homeopathic remedies are concerned, the contention of the Petitioners that they fall within the regulatory framework of Ayurvedic, Unani and Homeopathic Practitioners Act, 1965 is incorrect as the law does not regulate the sale or registration of traditional medicines nor does it check the pharmaceutical form or presentation of the products sold by such practitioners. In the same way the National Councils for Tib and Homeopathy does not regulate drugs or medicines and does not ensure that the remedies prescribed and the products sold are safe and efficacious for public consumption. He clarified that there is no legal bar that the Petitioners cannot be regulated by more than one regulator. He stated that same argument applies for the Petitioners claiming that they fall under the regulatory regime of Food Act, as the objective and mandate of the Food Act is distinct from that of DRAP Act; that the violation of the constitutional provisions are so glaring that the legislative provisions under challenge could not survive. Reliance was placed on State of M.P. v. Rakesh Kohli and another (2013 SCMR 34) (Supreme Court of India). He has also placed reliance on the Azfar Laboratories Case.

Legislative Competence

18. The challenge to the legislative competence of Parliament with reference to the DRAP Act is essentially on the ground that drugs and medicine falls within the competence of the Province under the Constitution, after the 18th Amendment. Prior to the 18th Amendment to the Constitution, the subject of drugs and medicine fell under Item 20 of the Concurrent Legislative List of the Constitution. Consequently, the Drug Act was the law on drugs and medicine as enacted by Parliament. Post 18th Amendment Parliament can legislate on a subject which falls within the Provincial domain in terms of Article 144 of the Constitution. Article 144 of the Constitution reads as follow:

(1) If one or more Provincial Assemblies pass resolutions to the effect that Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may by law regulate any matter not enumerated in the Federal Legislative List in the Fourth Schedule, it shall be lawful for Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) to pass an Act for regulating that matter accordingly, but any Act so passed may, as respects any Province to which it applies, be amended or repealed by Act of the Assembly of that Province.

As per Article 144 of the Constitution, the Provinces can delegate their power to legislate in favour of Parliament, if one or more of the Provincial Assemblies pass a resolution to such effect. As per the record, Parliament relied upon the resolutions passed by the Provincial Assemblies of Punjab dated 15.02.2012, Sindh dated 15.02.2012, Khyber Pakhtunkhwan dated 16.02.2012 and Balochistan dated 18.03.2015 on the basis of which legislating on the subject of drugs and medicine has been delegated to Parliament. The Respondents also relied upon the judgment passed by a learned Division Bench of the Sindh High Court in the Azfar Laboratories Case to urge the point that this matter has been duly considered by the Division Bench of the Sindh High Court wherein the Court concluded that as per Article 144 of the Constitution, the Provincial Assemblies can grant the power to make law on a matter which falls exclusively within the legislative domain of the Provinces. The Court held that the law made by Parliament can repeal expressly or impliedly or override any existing provincial law in respect of the matter for which the power has been granted to Parliament and if there is conflict between the Provincial law and Federal law then the subsequent law may prevail, depending on the circumstances of the case. While interpreting the different resolutions, passed by the Provincial Assemblies, the Court, in the Azfar Laboratories Case concluded that the purpose of delegating authority to enact law on the subject of drugs and medicine was to create a unified approach throughout the country on this subject. As the Provincial Assemblies 'invited' Parliament to make law on drugs and medicine no exception can be taken that the DRAP Act exceeds the terms of the resolutions passed under Article 144 of the Constitution. The Division Bench of the Sindh High Court held that the DRAP Act is the controlling statute, operating seamlessly as one unified law that applies trans-provincially across all Provincial boundaries and not the Drug Act, operating in each Province. Hence the challenge to the extent of legislative competence was rejected.

19. The Petitioners before this Court argue that the subject of drugs and medicine does not include their products or alternate medicine. In this regard, the Petitioners specializing in unani, ayurvedic, herbal and chinese remedies state that these are special and distinct sciences, which have to be dealt with separately and cannot be clubbed together as one in the definition of Alternative Medicine under the DRAP Act. The Petitioners who manufacture and import nutraceuticals, food and dietary supplements, infant milk and OTC Products state that their products are regulated under other regulatory regimes and cannot be termed as 'drugs or medicines'. The Petitioners, who manufacture, import and distribute cosmetics, disinfectants and sanitizers argue that their products are not drugs or medicines as they are not consumed rather applied and not used in the treatment, mitigation, prevention or diagnosis of diseases.

20. Interestingly the Petitioners, who manufacture, sell, distribute and import alternate medicine including unani, ayurvedic, tibb, herbal and chinese remedies as well as OTC products, cosmetics, food and dietary supplements for humans and animals were before the Sindh High Court in the Azfar Laboratories Case. The Court duly considered their various different products and concluded that the challenge mounted against the DRAP Act and the Rules must fail with respect to their products. The Court came to the conclusion that these products could fall within the meaning of 'drug' under the DRAP Act, however, this requires a conclusive determination, through a factual inquiry by DRAP. Accordingly the Court directed DRAP to issue proper guidelines so as to give meaning to pharmaceutical dosage form, separately for humans and animals as per the different sub-categories DRAP seeks to regulate. As to the various Petitioners before the Court, they were required to be given a hearing by DRAP so as to determine whether their product comes within the scope of the DRAP Act and the Rules.

21. The Petitioners before this Court do not challenge the findings in the Azfar Laboratories Case yet they argue that to the extent of the Province of Punjab the matter is somewhat different. The Provincial Assembly of Punjab passed the Amendment Act of 2017 and of 2018 respectively, whereby the provisions of the Drug Act to the extent of Punjab stood amended. They argue that the effect of the amendments is that the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab revoked its delegation to legislate on drugs and medicine. The argument is that the amendments should be read as deeming to revoke the effect of the Resolution dated 15.02.2012 passed by the Provincial Assembly of Punjab. In this regard, Article 144 of the Constitution provides that if one or more Provincial Assemblies pass resolutions to the effect that Parliament may by law regulate any matter not enumerated in the Federal Legislative List in the Fourth Schedule, then it shall be lawful for Parliament to pass a law on the subject matter and at the same time any Province can amend or repeal the law on the subject as it requires. As per the Azfar Laboratories Case, Article 144 of the Constitution does not give Parliament concurrent power to legislate on matters which fall within the Provincial legislative domain rather the Provinces 'invite' the Federal Government to regulate by law the given subject. This invitation can be amended, repealed by law, curtailed or withdrawn by the Provinces as per requirement. Now the question is whether by way of amending the Drug Act, the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab has revoked the Resolution dated 15.2.2012.

22. The Provincial Assembly of the Punjab passed the Punjab Drugs (Amendment) Act, 2016 whereby Section 31 of the Drug Act was amended to establish Drug Courts in the Punjab as notified by the Provincial Government. The second amendment to the Drug Act was through the Punjab Drugs (Amendment) Act, 2017 amending certain provisions of the Drug Act in its application to the Province of Punjab for control and eradication of spurious, adulterated and substandard drugs. As per the intent given in the preamble to the 2017 Amendment Act, the amendments were made to enable the Province of Punjab to cope with the increasing menace of spurious, adulterated and substandard drugs and for updating the enforcement mechanism as well as providing a regular monitoring system with stricter penalties. The 2017 Amendment Act seeks to give the Provincial Government power to devise an enforcement and monitoring system such that it enables the Provincial Government to establish and notify drug laboratories for testing purposes and to establish a Provincial Monitoring System. It also allows the Provincial Quality Control Board ("PQCB") to specify testing by the notified drug laboratory and requires PQCB to send reports to the Provincial Government as well as the Federal Government. By way of the 2017 Amendment Act, some amendments were made to Section 23A, 23B and 23C as well as Section 27, 27-A and 28 of the Drug Act which called for stricter penalties. However, these amendments were omitted and deleted by way of the Punjab Drugs (Amendment) Act, 2018. The Amendment Act of 2018 did not make any other significant amendment. So far as the Amendment Act of 2016, it merely gave the Provincial Government the authority to establish Drug Courts and exercise similar powers as that of the Federal Government within the Province. The argument that the Provincial Government retains some power pertaining to the subject matter on which it delegates its authority to legislate under Article 144 of the Constitution, goes against the constitutional mandate. Therefore, to answer the issue raised by the Petitioners, as to whether the amendments made by the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab to the Drug Act amounts to revocation of the Resolution dated 15.2.2012, the answer is no, it does not revoke the 'invitation' given to Parliament by the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab. The Resolution passed by the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab allows Parliament to make law to regulate the subject of drugs and medicine. The DRAP Act provides under Section 32 that the Act is in addition to and not in derogation of the provisions made in the Drug Act and any other law enforced. Therefore, by amending the Drug Act the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab has not revoked its Resolution in favour of Parliament to make law on drugs and medicine. These amendments and the continued existence of the Drug Act cannot be taken to mean that the DRAP Act cannot be enforced or be given effect to in all the Provinces as was resolved by the Provincial Assemblies. It is important to note that the DRAP Act calls for a unified law that applies trans-provincially across all Provincial boundaries, whereas the Drug Act is applied in each Province. Hence the impact of the amendments made to the Drug Act are for the benefit of the Province of Punjab in its efforts to enforce and monitor spurious drugs. Furthermore, the 2017 Amendment Act itself provides the intent of the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab so as to make the Province more effective in its enforcement and monitoring of spurious, adulterated and substandard drugs. As to the fact that the Amendment Act in 2017 changed some of the penalties under the Drug Act, it is noted that with the Amendment Act of 2018 these amendments were omitted or deleted. Therefore the change in penalties is not an issue. For this reason the amendments to the Drug Act did not revoke or cancel the invitation to legislate on drug and medicine given to Parliament by the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab vide its Resolution dated 15.2.2012.

23. In the event that a Provincial Assembly decided to revoke the delegation given under Article 144 of the Constitution, the same should be done through a resolution passed by the Assembly in the same way as the delegation is granted and cannot be inferred through amendments in the law, because the Constitution calls for a specific resolution to be passed by the Provincial Assemblies delegating power to Parliament to legislate. Hence, in the same way, if the delegation was to be revoked, the Provincial Assemblies should pass a resolution stating its clear intent to revoke its invitation to legislate on the subject matter. If the delegation of authority to legislate under Article 144 of the Constitution were left to inferences and interpretation it would defeat the mandate of Article 144 of the Constitution. Moreover, the intent of the Provincial Assembly under Article 144 of the Constitution is made clear by way of resolution meaning that the power to legislate which is vested in the Province, has to be specifically delegated to Parliament. In the same way the revocation of that delegation has to be specifically resolved by the Provincial Assembly. Legislative competence when granted under Article 144 of the Constitution by the Provincial Assembly to Parliament through a resolution, requires the same for the purposes of revocation, as the matter falls within the domain of the Provincial Assembly to decide whether its resolution needs to be revoked.

24. The other question with reference to legislative competence is whether the Provincial Assembly of Punjab intended to allow Parliament to regulate more than drugs and medicine, meaning whether the Resolution dated 15.02.2012 passed by the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab authorizes Parliament to make law which includes the different products of the Petitioners. The entire thrust of the Petitioners arguments on this issue is that Parliament can only make law on 'drugs and medicine' which means only products used in the treatment, mitigation, prevention or diagnosis of diseases. It is argued that the nutraceuticals, food supplements, baby milk are all food products registered with the Food Authority; that disinfectants, sanitizers and cosmetics are regulated under different laws including by the PSQCA; that the traditional systems of medicine have never been regulated as drugs and medicine, hence DRAP has extended its jurisdiction beyond the intended scope of the Resolution by the Provincial Assembly of Punjab. While this argument will be dealt with in greater detail in the context of the nature of the products and the applicable regulatory law, for the purposes of legislative competence there is no legal basis to urge the point that certain products were not intended to be regulated by and under the DRAP Act. Whether or not a product falls under DRAP's regulatory jurisdiction, will be seen in the context of DRAP's regulatory objective and the processes laid out to evaluate the products. It is not the Resolution passed by the Provincial Assembly of Punjab which will determine this issue rather the criterias set out by DRAP to determine whether a product falls under its regulatory jurisdiction. This has to be done in the context of the DRAP Act, the Rules and the regulatory objective of DRAP. Furthermore, classification of products requires a formal determination by DRAP and cannot be broadly categorized as per the dictionary meaning of food or drug or cosmetic for that matter. Similarly alternative medicine encompasses a wide array of traditional remedies, products and therapies which have to be seen in the context of the statutory definition under the DRAP Act. Hence there is no merit in the argument that the Provincial Assembly of Punjab never intended to grant legislative authority for these products, as this issue can only be answered in the context of the DRAP Act and the Rules. In this regard, it is also important to note that the Province of Punjab has not challenged or questioned the competence of Parliament to regulate drugs and medicine under the DRAP Act nor have they stated in their report and parawise comments filed before this Court, there is a dispute. To the contrary the Province of Punjab has taken the position that the DRAP Act is in addition to and not in derogation of the Drug Act and that the objective of the amendments to the Drug Act was to enable the Provincial Government to deal more efficiently with spurious, adulterated and substandard drugs. Therefore based on the aforesaid, Parliament is competent to enact the Drug Act and the amendments to the Drug Act have not revoked or cancelled the Resolution dated 15.02.2012 given by the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab to Parliament to regulate the subject of drugs and medicine.

Vires of the Rules

25. The Petitioners have challenged the vires of the Rules on the ground that the Rules are ultra vires the DRAP Act as the definition of 'drug' under the DRAP Act does not include alternative medicine, medicated cosmetic, food supplements, health and OTC products, baby milk and disinfectant. Consequently, the DRAP Act does not regulate their products; that the DRAP Act does not authorize the process of enlistment as given under the Rules; that the power to license is restricted under the DRAP Act and does not empower DRAP to license all the products of the Petitioners. Hence the Rules are inconsistent with the DRAP Act and have gone beyond the authority delegated under the DRAP Act. It was also argued that the Rules are vague, arbitrary, discriminatory and unreasonable, hence liable to be declared unconstitutional and illegal as they have brought within the ambit of DRAP a diverse variety of products which in no way qualify as 'drugs and medicine' as they are not used in the diagnosis, treatment or prevention of any medical condition. Furthermore, there is no regulatory infrastructure, no expertise or guidelines with reference to the enlistment process. The enlistment applications do not cater to the specific science and specifications of the products of the Petitioners nor have the evidentiary standards been settled on the basis of which the enlistment criteria has to be satisfied. As a result it causes confusion and delay and compels the enforcement of unreasonable requirements on the part of DRAP.

26. The DRAP Act was promulgated in November, 2012 and as per its preamble it is an Act to provide for the establishment of DRAP in order to provide for effective coordination and enforcement of the Drug Act and to bring harmony in interprovincial trade and commerce of therapeutic goods. The basic objective of DRAP, as per the preamble, is to regulate, manufacture, import, export, storage, distribution and sale of therapeutic goods. Therapeutic goods is defined in Section 2 (xxxvi) of the DRAP Act to include drugs or alternative medicine or medical devises or biologicals or other related products as may be notified by DRAP. Alternative Medicine is defined in Section 2 (ii) of the DRAP Act to mean a product used exclusively in homeopathic, unani, ayurvedic, biochemic, Chinese or other traditional system of treatment. Health and OTC Products (non-drugs) is defined in Section 2 (xv) of the DRAP Act to include probiotics and disinfectant, nutritional products, food supplements, baby milk and foods, medicated cosmetics, medicated soaps and medicated shampoos. Medicated Cosmetics is defined in Section 2 (xix) of the DRAP Act to mean cosmetics containing 'drugs' as specified in Schedule-I and includes products for cleansing, beautifying, promoting attractiveness, or altering appearance but does not include soap. The word 'drug' is defined in Schedule-I of the DRAP Act in the following terms:

2. DRUG includes:-

(a) any substance or mixture of substances that is manufactured, sold, stored, offered for sale or represented for internal or external use in the treatment, mitigation prevention or diagnosis of disease, in abnormal physical state, or the symptoms therefore in human beings or animals or the restoration, correction, or modification of organic functions in human beings or animals' including substance used or prepared for use in accordance with the Ayurvedic, Unani, Homoeopathic, Chinese or biochemic system of treatment except those substances and in accordance with such conditions as may be prescribed:

(b) abortive and contraceptive substances, agents and devices, surgical itigatures, sutures, bandages, absorbent cotton, disinfectants, bacteriophages, adhesive plasters, gelatin capsules and antiseptic solution;

(c) such substances intended to be used for the destruction or repulsion of such vermin, insects, rodents and other organism as cause, carry or transmit disease in human beings or animals or for disinfection in residential areas or in premises in which food is manufactured, prepared or kept or stored;

(d) such pesticides as many cause health hazard to the public'
(e) any substances mentioned as monograph or as a preparation in the Pakistan Pharmacopeia or the Pakistan National Formulary or the International Pharmacopoeia or the British Pharmacopoeia or the British Pharmaceutical Codex or the United States Pharmacopoeia or the National Formulary of the United States, whether alone or in combination any substance exclusively used in the Unani Anyirvedoc, Homoeopathic, Chines or Biochemic system of treatment any and intended to be used for any use of the purposes mentioned in sub-clauses (a), (b) and (c) and
(f) any other substance which the federal Government, may by notification in the official Gazette declare to be a drug for the purpose of this Act.
The DRAP Act also provides in Schedule-VI that the provisions of the Drug Act and the Rules made thereunder are applicable.

27. Collectively, by way of the various different definitions of the products and the definition of 'drug' in the DRAP Act read with the definition of 'drug' in the Drug Act, DRAP sets out to regulate Therapeutic Goods, Alternative Medicine, Health and OTC Products and Medicated Cosmetics. There are the broad classifications of products which are regulated by DRAP. The Rules which have been challenged are the enlistment rules wherein through the process of enlistment, products are evaluated as per the given criteria. The Rules further define products, within the classification given by the DRAP Act for enlistment purposes. If the product falls within the broad classifications under the DRAP Act, they can then be enlisted as per the criteria given under the Rules. Accordingly the definitions contained in the Rules are in furtherance of the definitions given in the DRAP Act and not ultra vires to it.

28. The definition of 'drug' under the DRAP Act is broad based and includes any substance or mixture of substances, which is offered for sale or represented for use in treatment, mitigation, prevention or diagnosis of diseases including substances used or prepared for use in accordance with the ayurvedic, unani, homoeopathic, chinese or biochemic system or any substance which the Federal Government notifies and declares is a 'drug' under the DRAP Act. Effectively the DRAP Act classifies products under different heads so as to enable DRAP to regulate similar products by setting the required regulatory standards based on the nature of the product and its intended use. In this way the definitions under the DRAP Act and the Rules are not exhaustive, such that a product can fall under any of the classifications, for a determination as to whether the product meets the required definition under the DRAP Act and Rules.

29. The Petitioners have also argued that the definition of 'drug' did not historically include their products, especially with reference to unani, ayurvedic, homoepathic and herbal remedies. The definition of 'drug' under the DRAP Act as contained in Schedule-I read with Schedule-IV and Section 32 of the DRAP Act makes it clear that the definition of 'drug' under the DRAP Act is in addition to the definition of 'drug' under the Drug Act and the Rules framed thereunder. Therefore, the definition of 'drug' under the DRAP Act is not limited or restrictive and by its very nature provides for a diverse and wide range of Therapeutic Goods which can fall within the ambit of DRAP's jurisdiction. This definition of 'drug' was considered at length in the Afzar Laboratories Case in the context of the historical perspective where the learned Division Bench of the Sindh High Court after comparing the definition of 'drug' under the Drug Act, 1940 ("1940 Act"), Drug Act and the DRAP Act concluded that on a combined reading of the definitions of 'drug' traditional medicine such as unani, ayurvedic and homoeopathic were always included in the definition of 'drug' but on account of the policy of the law, they were treated separately and distinctly and not brought within the ambit of the regulatory framework of the Drug Act. The DRAP Act shows a shift in policy where unani, ayurvedic, homoepathic, herbal and biochemic system of treatments were brought within the ambit of DRAP as Alternative Medicine and Therapeutic Goods. The Court in the Afzar Laboratories Case concluded that:-

Thus, from 1940 to 2012 the practical position was that the policy was to keep Unani medicines and substances out of the definition even though it must be reiterated, they would have been very much a part of it but for the exclusion. In 2012 the policy underwent a substantive change and was reversed. There is nothing inherent in Unani Medicines and substances that they did not or could not fall within the definition of drugs. We are, therefore, with respect, unable to accept the submissions that the DRAP Act has impermissibly brought about a situation that never existed before and could not exist. Since we have already held that the entire legislative competence of "drugs and medicines" has been granted to Parliament in terms of Article 144, the change brought about by the DRAP Act is constitutionally unexceptionable. It is not for the Courts to gainsay or defeat the policy that now finds statutory expression in the DRAP Act.

30. So far as food and dietary supplements, baby milk and animal feed were concerned, the Court concluded that it first has to be seen whether these goods fall within the definition of 'drug' under the DRAP Act. The test laid down for this purpose is to see whether they are presented in such pharmaceutical dosage form, which is intended for health related purpose. Hence in the Azfar Laboratories Case Court directed that guidelines be issued to set out the pharmaceutical dosage form for these products. Consequent thereof, DRAP in compliance with Paragraph No.50 of the judgment dated 26.02.2018 issued the Guidelines for Manufacturers/Importers of Food Supplements or Dietary Supplements or Health Supplements or Nutraceuticals as to what is meant by Alternative Medicine and Health Products Dosage Form. As per the Guidelines No.2 human and animal food products are not covered under the DRAP Act and the Rules provided that:-

(i) Any substance or mixture of substance or products do not attract the definition of Drug or Food Supplement or Therapeutic Goods as defined under DRAP Act 2012 and the Alternative Medicines and Health Products (Enlistment) Rules 2014.

(ii) It is not formulated into Alternative Medicine and Heath Products Dosage Form or their subcategories as defined in these guideless.

(iii) It is not presented into the form or manner into believe the general public to be a drug therapeutics good or food supplement.

(iv) It is not presented with any label claim with health related benefits under Alternative Medicine and Heath (Enlistment) Rules 2014.
(v) It does not fall under the definition of adulterated Alternative Medicines and Health Products as defined in the Alternative Medicine and Health (Enlistment) Rules, 2014.
(vi) It does not contain ingredients falling under the definition of prohibited substances as defined under the Alternative Medicine and Health Products (Enlistment) Rules, 2012.
These Guidelines give clarity to the manner in which the product will be evaluated on the basis of its pharmaceutical dosage form and presentation in the context of health related purpose under the Rules. I draw no exception to the reasoning given in the Azfar Laboratories Case as the products of the Petitioners including Alternative Medicine has always been a part of the definition of drug under the Drug Act. In this regard it is noted that the definition of 'drug' under the Drug Act and the DRAP Act are very similar covering a broad base.

31. The Drug Act defines 'drug" as follows:-
(i) any substance or mixture of substances that is manufactured, sold, stored, offered for sale or represented for internal or external use in the treatment, mitigation, prevention or diagnosis of diseases, an abnormal physical state, or the symptoms thereof in human beings or animals or the restoration, correction, or modification of organic functions in human beings or animals, not being a substance exclusively used or prepared for use in accordance with the ayurvedic, unani, homoeopathic or biochemic system of treatment except those substances and in accordance with such conditions as may be prescribed;
(ii) abortive and contraceptive substances, agents and devices, surgical ligatures, sutures, bandages, absorbent cotton, disinfectants, bacteriophages, adhesive plasters, gelatin, capsules and antiseptic solutions;
(iii) such substances intended to be used for the destruction or repulsion of such vermin, insects, rodents and other organism as cause, carry or transmit disease in human beings or animals or for disinfection in residential areas or in premises in which food is manufactured, prepared or kept or stored;
(iv) such pesticides as may cause health hazard to the public;
(v) any substance mentioned as monograph or as a preparation in the Pakistan Pharmacopoeia or the Pakistan National Formulary or the International Pharmacopoeia or the British Pharmacopoeia or the British Pharmaceutical Codex or the United States Pharmacopoeia or the National Formulary of the United States, whether alone or in combination with any substance exclusively used in the unani, ayurvedic, homoeopathic or biochemic system of treatment, and intended to be used for any of the purposes mentioned in sub-clauses (i), (ii) and (iii), and
(vi) immediate packing containers for sterile preparations which are in direct contact with the drug, blood bags, disposable giving sets for infusion or blood, disposable syringes or any other substance or device which the Federal Government may, by notification, in the official Gazette, declare to be a "drug" for the purposes of this Act.

(vii) Infant formulas, follow up milks, milk substitutes, baby foods, baby gruels, baby teas and juices, bottles and treats and any other product used as infant formula as such;
(viii) Cosmetics including hair Sprays, perfumes, facial and talcum powders, hair treatment shampoos, hair conditioning aids and devices and all formulas and lotions connected therewith for conditioning and cleansing of hair, hair colours, facial make-up foundations, vanishing and cold creams, creamy make-up sticks, bath lotions and oils, blushers and blush-ons, texture improvement devices, moisturizers of all kinds mascaras, vaselines, sunnas, wrinkle-care creams, hair oils/herbal preparations for Itexture and facial glow and improvement, shower creams, skin lotions and oils, sun-burn lotions and oils, shaving cream and leathers, after-shave lotions and any other preparation or material connected therewith;
The contention of the Petitioners that historically their products were never regulated as 'drug' under the Drug Act is only correct to the extent that as of policy ayurvedic, unani, homeopathic or biochemic systems were not brought within the regulatory ambit of the Drug Act. Under the Drug Act homeopathic, unani, ayurvedic, biochemic, chinese or other traditional systems of treatment were always part of the definition of 'drug', as per Section 3 (g)(i) of the Drug Act. In this regard, Azfar Laboratories Case dissected the different definitions to show that there are three parts to the definition in the Drug Act wherein the first part defined what drugs are, the second part excluded from the definition unani medicines and substances but the third part allows such unani substances to be brought back into the definition with such conditions as may be prescribed. In the same way under the DRAP Act, the first part of the definition of 'drug' in Schedule-I includes ayurvedic, unani, homeopathic, chinese and biochemic system of treatment hence the policy of law is to include all substances used in the preparation of the same. Therefore, the contention that homeopathic, unani, ayurvedic, biochemic, chinese or other traditional system of treatment was never part of the definition of 'drug' is incorrect. So far as the other products such as disinfectant, nutraceuticals and food supplements, baby milk and cosmetics, they have been included in the definition of 'drug' under the DRAP Act which is reflective of the legislative intent. A bare reading of both definitions show that the intent of the legislature has always been to cover a broad category of products. For the purposes of the dispute at hand the products of the Petitioners are classified under the definition of Alternative Medicine, Therapeutic Goods, Health and OTC Products and Medicated Cosmetics which definitions do not offend any fundamental right or interest of the Petitioners. The intent of the legislature is to provide a broad based definition so as to ensure that if a product falls within the regulatory objective of DRAP it must be compliant with its regulatory requirements. In this context the reference to previous definitions of 'drug' or the historical context of how Alternative Medicine and Therapeutic Goods, Health and OTC Products were treated is of no significance.

32. The question to be determined is why products classified as Therapeutic Goods, Health and OTC Products, Medicated Cosmetics and Alternative Medicine are brought within the ambit of DRAP. DRAP was established vide Notification dated 28.11.2012 issued by the Ministry of National Regulations and Services, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad. The composition of DRAP is that it is headed by Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") and amongst others there are Director Pharmaceutical Evaluation and Registration, Director Drug Licensing, Director Quality Assurance and Laboratory Testing, Director Medical Devices and Medicated Cosmetics, Director Biological Drugs, Director Controlled Drugs, Director Pharmacy Service, Director Health and OTC Product. As per Section 3 of the DRAP Act, the Federal Government can increase or decrease the number of directors depending on the requirement and functions. Section 7 of the DRAP Act specifically provides the powers and functions to administer the law specified in Schedule-VI meaning the Drug Act read with rules framed thereunder. Amongst other functions is the power to issue guidelines and monitor the enforcement of licensing of the manufacture and registration of Therapeutic Goods. This includes the import and export of such products. DRAP is also authorized to ensure implementation of internationally recognized standards, especially implementation of guidelines issued by World Health Organization. To execute its powers and functions, the composition of DRAP is made of specialist directors in every field and if required the Federal Government can always increase the number of divisions or directors as required. The Drug Act also provided for regulating the import and export of drugs, the manufacture of drugs and the sale of drugs. As per Section 23 of the Drug Act, no person shall export, import or manufacture for sale or sell drugs which are not registered under the Drug Act as per the conditions stipulated in the registration. Hence the Drug Act also contemplated the registration, licensing and regulation of the manufacture of drugs as well as the import and export of drugs. The DRAP Act being in addition to the Drug Act maintains these functions in addition to those stipulated in the DRAP Act. Accordingly the legislative intent is clearly to build upon the regulatory framework under the Drug Act to include Therapeutic Goods, Alternative Medicine, Health and OTC Products and Medicated Cosmetics.

33. The regulatory objective of the DRAP Act is to establish a regulatory framework which will ensure the safety and effectiveness of drugs and medicine sold in Pakistan, through a unified system, operating systematically across Provincial borders. The process of manufacturing, marketing and the sale of drugs, which includes the import and export of drugs has to be regulated to protect the interest and health of the public. The products before the Court statedly raise health claims which means that they are intended for or recommended for a health related purpose, which characterizes the relationship of any substance to a disease or health related condition. When seen in the context of public interest or public welfare, it is important to note that regulating health claims is about risk management, about safety and disclosure for the benefit of the public. The objective of the regulatory framework is to ensure that the consumer or user of the product is protected from harm, and that the consumer knows what they are buying or consuming. The products of the Petitioners are classified under the DRAP Act as they may be connected with some health related purpose, hence they are not ordinary consumer products since they claim to have some health benefit. Consequently DRAP has to ensure the products safety, efficacy and quality for the benefit of the public.

34. The Petitioners have argued at great length that their products do not fall within the regulatory jurisdiction of DRAP and that their products are duly regulated by different authorities created under the law, such as PSQCA, the Food Authority, Punjab Infant Feeding Board. As per the contentions made, various different regulatory regimes have been established which are comprehensive and ensure public safety with respect to the products concerned. Specifically the Petitioners who manufacture, import or sell nutraceuticals, food supplements (for animal or human consumption) and baby milk have argued that their products are food and are regulated by the Food Authority under the Food Act and the Punjab Pure Food Rules, 2011 ("Food Rules"), hence they cannot be regulated by DRAP. They argued that under the Rules, food supplements and dietary supplements are defined under Rule 2(xxxi) of the Rules to mean products containing vitamins, pro-vitamins, multivitamins, minerals including a mineral salt, a naturally occurring mineral, metals and their salts, a lipid, including an essential fatty acid or phospholipids liproteins, amino-acids, proteins, fatty acids, carbohydrates, a mucopolysaccharide, plant or herbal material (or a synthetic duplicate of that kind), including plant fibers, enzymes, algae, fungi, cellulose and derivatives of cellulose and chlorophyll, herbal preparation, resins, balsams, volatile oils, non-human animal material (or a synthetic duplicate of that kind) including dried material, bone and cartilage, fats and oils and other extracts or concentrates, a microorganism, whole or extracted, except a vaccine expressed juices, exudates etc. alone or their combinations and are presented in pharmaceutical dosage forms intended for health related purpose. However, at the same time the Food Rules makes special provision for dietary supplements and food supplements which contain vitamins, minerals and require proper labelling and packaging in accordance with Codex Guidelines. It was also argued that the DRAP Act and the Rules define these products as 'non-drugs' yet regulates them as 'drug and medicine' which reflects inconsistency in the law. Learned counsel relied upon different jurisdictions from around the world to urge the point that these products are regulated as 'food' and not as 'drug and medicine' world over.

35. In order to appreciate the arguments of the Counsel, it is necessary to understand the objective and purpose of the different regulators because the regulatory objective defines the process which the regulator will follow to identify products and to ensure that the regulations and the regulatory framework serves the public interest. The entire regulatory framework is designed to effectively achieve and retain the policy objectives. Hence a regulator is identified by its objective and usually its policy objectives are evident from the law.

36. The Food Act provides for the safety and standards of food which includes regulating adulterated food, misbranded food, food additives. As per the Food Act, the power and function of the Food Authority is to regulate and monitor the food business in order to ensure safe provision of food. For this purpose they are required to formulate standards, procedures, processes and guidelines in relation to any aspect of food including the food business, food labelling, food additives and providing appropriate enforcement system. As per the definition of food under the Food Act, a thing shall not cease to be a food by reason that it is also capable of being used as drugs and the word drug shall have the same meaning as is assigned to it under the Drug Act. Hence the definition of food itself excludes food that may be capable of being used as a drug. The reason being that the objective of the Food Authority is to regulate the safety and quality of food so as to ensure that it is as per the prescribed standards, hygienic and contains substances which are intended for use in the preparation of food, but are not considered to be a 'drug' as defined under the Drug Act. Hence the Food Act clarifies that it does not regulate 'food' in the context of it being a 'drug'.

37. The 2002 Ordinance establishes the Punjab Infant Feeding Board to ensure the safe and adequate nutrition for infants and young children by promoting and protecting breast-feeding and by regulating products which are substances for breast milk. As per the 2002 Ordinance the complementary food is any food suitable for infant and young children in addition to breast milk or a substitute for breast milk and the Board is required to ensure compliance of the 2002 Ordinance and the rules made thereunder. Section 11 of the 2002 Ordinance assures quality as per the standards prescribed by the Codex Alimentarius Commission and the Codex Code of Hygienic Practice for Foods for Infants and Children, which are international standards. Hence the mandate of the 2002 Ordinance is to protect and promote breast feeding as well as to ensure that infant formula or complementary formula food as necessary nutritionally value as required for infants and young children. Food for infants and children is also regulated by PSQCA which provides for the Pakistan Standard specifications for foods and infants and children. The purpose of maintaining quality and standard is to ensure safe and nutritionally adequate formula products which meet the normal nutritional requirements of infants and young children. The DRAP Act and the Rules regulate Health and OTC Products which includes baby milk, milk based food. In the context of the definition of 'drug', where there is a health related purpose and the product is presented in pharmaceutical dosage form, intended for health related purpose, it falls out of the ambit of 'food' and needs to be evaluated as a 'drug'. Hence by design the very purpose and objective of DRAP is very different from the Food Authority, from the Board and from the PSQCA.

38. The 1965 Act regulates qualifications and requires the registration of practitioners of the unani, ayurvedic and homeopathic system of medicine. A bare reading of the 1965 Act itself shows that it does not consider the quality, safety or health related concerns of unani, ayurvedic and homeopathic system of medicine or its products. The rules framed thereunder called the Unani, Ayurvedic, Homeopathic System of Medicine Rules, 1980 provides for, amongst others, to register as practitioner, as teacher and as teaching institutions under the 1965 Act. Again its regulatory objective is different from the DRAP Act.

39. The DRAP Act and the Rules regulate Therapeutic Goods, Alternative Medicines, Health and OTC Products and Medicated Cosmetics. The Rules require that products which fall within the given classifications are evaluated as per the evaluation criteria for the purposes of enlistment. The enlistment of products or the entity is a temporary process until the procedure for licensing is finalized. It is through the enlistment process that the regulatory objective of DRAP is achieved because at the time of enlistment manufacturers and importers provide, all relevant information through their application to DRAP's Director of Division of Health related OTC Products (non-drugs). The application for enlistment has to set out the general health claim or traditional use claim or nutritional claim or structure-function claim or therapeutic claim for disease reduction which forms the basis on which the application will be evaluated. DRAP requires that the applicant submit, as per the standards of evidence, proof regarding the quality, safety, efficacy or effectiveness of the product and recommend the conditions for use of the product. Through the evaluation process, DRAP will ensure that the regulatory criteria set out in Rule 5 is satisfied with reference to the product under evaluation. Hence when it comes to Therapeutic Goods, Alternative Medicine and Health and OTC Products and Medicated Cosmetics, DRAP's regulatory objective is to scrutinize the health related purpose for which the product is presented and for which the product is marketed. Health related purpose is a defined term under the Rules which basically means a health based claim which can be curative, preventive, palliative or cosmetic which is intended or recommend for the well being of humans and animals. As per the Guidelines pharmaceutical dosage form is the physical form in which the product should be produced and dispensed with for human or animal use. The dosage form essentially sets out the acceptable standard on which the product can be presented and if it is not presented in the pharmaceutical dosage form, it is not regulated by DRAP. Therefore to fall under the DRAP's regulatory regime the product must have a health related purpose and must be presented in a pharmaceutical dosage form. When evaluating the health related purpose and the pharmaceutical dosage form, DRAP will ensure that the product is safe, qualitative, efficacious and effective in terms of its intended and recommended use. Therefore the regulatory objective of DRAP sets it apart from all the other regulators, as discussed aforesaid, in that its functions and purposes are distinct from other regulators. In this process, since a determination has to be made while evaluating the product, the applicant before DRAP can always raise its objections that its product does not fall under DRAP's enlistment criteria as it does not have a health related purpose and its usage and consumption is neither therapeutic nor one that promotes the general health of its user. Under the DRAP Act decisions of the Authority are appealable before the Appellate Board. Hence such factual disputes can be decided by the Authority which is DRAP. Consequently the contention that the products of the Petitioners should be accepted as food or cosmetics or disinfectant per se, is not against the mandate of the DRAP Act and require a determination by DRAP. Furthermore no injury is caused to the Petitioners through the enlistment process. There is no violation of any fundamental right including the right to be treated as per law.

40. Different regulatory regimes work for different regulatory objectives. The regulatory objective impacts the purpose of the regulator and its policy, therefore, each regulatory regime will work within its regulatory field and achieve its regulatory objective. The significant factor in this case is that each regulator works in furtherance of its own objective and in doing so there may be a situation when two or more regulatory regimes call for compliance over the same product. This suggests that there can be overlaps and even in some cases conflict between the regulatory regimes. However, neither the overlap nor the conflict can be interpreted to mean that different regulatory regimes cannot co-exist, or that a product or entity cannot be subjected to more than one regulatory regime. Regulatory overlap is possible because the legislature gives regulating authorities broad based delegation of authority to give them flexibility to respond to the changing regulatory environment. This does not make regulatory regimes incompatible or mutually exclusive. Any overlap or conflict will have to be seen on case to case basis, in the context of the facts and circumstances of the case and possibly call for better coordination and harmonization. With reference to the dispute at hand, DRAP regulates health claims, pharmaceutical dosages forms when evaluating the products of the Petitioners. 'Health Claims' go to the intent of the usage of the product, which means the purpose for which the product is recommended, marketed and sold. DRAP looks at the health motive and quality and safety of the product to ensure that the health claim is safe, effective and based on settled standards. In the context of health related purpose and intended or recommended use of product this can be easily illustrated through common examples. Food and dietary supplements or nutritional products often promote wellness and health benefits and may emphasize the prevention and treatment of disease such as alleviate risk of cancer and heart diseases or prevent or treat hypertension, high cholesterol and excessive weight etc. Such claims fall within the regulatory domain of DRAP and not the Food Authority or PSQCA or the Board or under the 1965 Act because these claims have to be assessed and evaluated in the context of the health related claims. The same will be applicable for cosmetics, disinfectant, sanitizers and other OTC Products as they have to be evaluated in the context of its impact on health or any health related condition, which is what, brings it within the ambit of DRAP's jurisdiction.

41. In the same way, food and dietary supplements are regulated by DRAP to determine if they contain ingredients that have biological effect which may conflict with medical or medical conditions or contain hidden drugs falsely marketed which put consumers at risk. The product may contain substances which are associated with potential serious health risks or other health risks such as hair loss, altered mode, irritable, aggression and depression which need to be checked and highlighted for public safety. Non-prescription products whether there are herbal or natural need to be checked to establish whether in fact they are free from hidden drugs as they may contain harmful substances which have not been listed or labelled. Hence when seen in the context of regulatory objective, the Petitioners before the Court may be subjected to more than one regulatory regime, which means that they may be subjected to DRAPs regulatory regime along with other regulatory regimes. Although the products do not fall in the medical sense of 'drug and medicine', with the increase in demand for products (non-drugs) having health or therapeutic claims it is vital that health claims and health purposes are regulated. Firstly it ensures that the claims are not unsubstantiated and secondly it requires the manufacturer or importer to bring reliable and scientific information with reference to its claim and product. Finally it ensures that proper information is disseminated for the benefit of the public such that if such products are used or consumed necessary and important health risks are made known.

42. In the same context, the Petitioners who manufacture, import and sell cosmetics and Health and OTC Products which include sunscreen, skin care products, personal care products, anti-aging products, also argue that their products are not drugs and cannot be regulated as drugs. However, Cosmetics, Health and OTC Products are evaluated in the context of their intended use whether for cleansing or beautifying or altering appearance. Where a therapeutic or health claim is made the product will fall within DRAP's jurisdiction for evualuation. The cosmetic or drug distinction is based on how the manufacturer has marketed/promoted the product and the promises made to that effect as these claim may affect the body in a way that a drug can. It was also argued that Health and OTC Products includes disinfectants and hand sanitizers which are neither therapeutic nor related to the diagnosis or treatment of any disease. It was also argued that these are general sale items which are neither drugs nor therapeutic goods nor consumed in any manner for any health purpose. They are used to remove contaminants and germs and for cleaning surfaces, household or other. It was further argued that these products are regulated by the PSQCA which ensures quality and standard which does not fall within the regulatory objective of DRAP. However, these arguments run counter to the regulatory objective. If a product is used or recommended for a health related purpose, DRAP can evaluate it for enlistment purposes. In the USA disinfectant are regulated by the Environmental Protection Agency and some by FDA as they may contain active ingredients like biocide. In India they are regulated under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act. In Australia under the Therapeutic Goods Act, 1989 based on the intended use which may be for skin, medical devices, household use or hospital use. Therefore, there is no justification to the argument that the Petitioners cannot be regulated by DRAP because even globally there is a practice to regulate such products to ensure they are safe for human healths.

The Enlistment Process:

43. The Petitioners have argued that process of enlistment is beyond the scope of the DRAP Act as it is not provided for under Section 7 of the DRAP Act and they have placed reliance on Section 4(h) of the DRAP Act which provides for a Director Health and OTC Products (non-drugs), who is Incharge of the Division of Health and OTC Products (non-drugs) and is responsible for the assessment, licensing and registration of alternative medicines such as ayurvedic, chinese, unani and homeopathy, enlistment or registration of nutritional products and food supplements for human beings, animals and to perform other functions connected therewith. The Rules provide that enlistment means provisional allocation or entry of proper number to the firm or the product in the enlistment register for the purpose of temporary manufacturing and marketing authorization until the procedure for issuance of license and product registration is finalized. This means that enlistment is a provisional allocation of number given to a product or entity (manufacture or import) to authorize the manufacture, import and marketing of the product. This provisional certification has become necessary because DRAP has not initiated the process of issuing licenses, hence in order to ensure that a product or entity can continue dealing with its business, the process of enlistment has been devised through the Rules. The entity or the product has to be enlisted until the licensing function becomes operative. Therefore the argument that enlistment is not prescribed for under the DRAP Act or is beyond the scope of DRAP Act is totally misconceived. To the contrary, DRAP has facilitated the process of regulating by ensuring that before the function of licensing commences a process of enlistment is undertaken by way of which the product or entity is evaluated and enlisted and given a provisional authorization to continue with the manufacture, import or marketing as per the Rules. The process started in 2014 when the Rules were made after which time was given to ensure that manufactures and importers could switch towards DRAP's regulatory regime. In this regard the record shows that meetings were held with stakeholders to discuss the regulatory objective and process.

44. When seen in the context of the process of enlistment, the Rules provide for the procedure under Rule 3 of the Rules that an application for enlistment shall be made to the Authority, addressed to the Director of Division of Health and OTC Products (non-drugs) in the prescribed manner. The application of enlistment of local manufactured products which contain a general health claim or traditional use claim or nutritional claims or structure function claims will be evaluated as per the criteria in Rule 5 of the Rules. In the same way any product which makes a disease reduction by therapeutic claim will also be evaluated as per the criteria given in Rule 5 of the Rules. An enlistment process has also been prescribed for imported products to ensure that all imported products, that may make a general health claim or traditional use claim or nutritional claims or structure function claims is enlisted. The term health related purpose has been defined under Rule 2 (xxxv) of the Rules and is fairly broad based. This further the objective of the DRAP Act and the Rules, to enlist all products which make any kind of health claim or well being claim. In this regard, the applicants are required to provide evidence with reference to the quality, safety, efficacy, effectiveness and recommended conditions for use as per standards of evidence in terms of Rule 4 (ii) of the Rules. To facilitate this process as per the direction given in the Azfar Laboratories Case the Guidelines were introduced which prescribes the pharmaceutical dosage form on the basis of which the product will be assessed and evaluated. Therefore the Petitioners' contention that the Rules are ultra vires the DRAP Act is without basis as DRAP is duly authorized to license the entity or the product or enlist them and the Rules are in furtherance of the purpose of the DRAP Act.

45. So far as the contentions with respect to the enlistment process being ambiguous, unreasonable and impractical as it lacks product specifics, counsel for DRAP explained in great detail that DRAP conducted meetings with stakeholders to understand mark dynamics, best practices and international standards. Minutes of various meetings have been placed on file to demonstrate the issues discussed, which includes enlistment issues product related ambiguities, evidentiary standards and settlement and of Recommended Dietary Allowances ("RDA") to keep products safe. In the context of alternative medicine, meetings look place to settle the authoritative books on unani, ayurvedic, homeopathic remedies. Therefore clearly the differences in the traditional systems of treatment were considered and endorsed through the authoritative books. These documents show that DRAP made a participatory effort to finalize its regulatory requirements where product specifics diverse sciences and established practices were considered. In this regards it can be said that this is an evolving process and market dynamics and concerns should be raised directly with DRAP to ensure effectiveness of the process under the Rules.

46. Globally drug regulations are considered to be more extensive and devoted to safety aspects. The definition of 'drug' is expansive and not confined to the strict medical definition of the word 'drug' due to the blurring of divides between what is a drug and what is not. Products may be on the borderline and may fall within the regulatory ambit of 'drug' due to their intended use. However, the balance between commercial interest and regulatory objective has to be for the greater public good. The objective is to protect the consumer before harm occurs, as products professing a health related purpose will be seen in the context of public health and safety. Hence, no illegality is made out with reference to the enlistment requirements.

47. The Petitioners have also emphasized on the lack of regulatory infrastructure under the DRAP Act and the rules not only by way of capacity issues and expertise but also due to lack of clarity of what DRAP seeks to regulate and what is required to be established before DRAP for determination on whether the product can be classified as Therapeutic Goods, Alternative Medicine, Health and OTC Products and Medicated Cosmetics. It has also been argued that when the required regulatory infrastructure and the regulatory guidelines are not available, DRAP should not use coercive actions against the Petitioners by seizing their products or sealing the premises as has been ordered by the National Task Force in fact for which the National Task Force was set up. The Petitioners contend that DRAP needs to set out its guidelines such as the acceptable standards of evidence which will be used, as per the product classification, during the enlistment process so that the Applicant is aware of the basis of the evaluation of the application for enlistment. It has also been argued that DRAP is required to furnish guidelines on what are the standards to determine quality and safety as well as efficacy and effectiveness, as it is not necessary that every product has to be efficacious or effective. As per the arguments made, these guidelines are readily available with similar regulators around the world which makes the process of regulating easier and efficient. In some cases DRAP is required to declare active ingredients and expedient ingredients in order to establish therapeutic claims. The Counsel argues that until these guidelines are not made, in the very least DRAP should resort to standard international practices so that the industry and the business of the Petitioners do not suffer. Further that they should not use coercive measures to enforce enlistment where it is not possible. The arguments raised before the Court with respect to the methods adopted by DRAP to ensure compliance of the Rules have merit especially since the Counsel for DRAP admits that matters are still under process and will take time to evolve.

Notwithstanding the same, if DRAP sets out to regulate the products of the Petitioners and it does not have the required guidelines or standards against which the products can be regulated then at least they should rely on acceptable international guidelines and adopt the same on the basis of which the enlistment processes can continue and the Petitioners are facilitated. As per the Rules standards of evidence is a defined term, which in itself requires clearly defined criteria used by regulators to evaluate safety, quality and effectiveness as per the product. These standards of evidence need to clearly define the required criteria for enlistment process. As per the record the 'standards of evidence' are not clearly defined as yet. DRAP can also simplify its procedures and streamline its processes to reduce administrative burden and ambiguities. The issue of delay where imports are concerned should also be dealt with not only to facilitate the importers but also the public for whose consumption the products are imported.

48. Therefore in view of the aforesaid:
(i) with respect to the issues on lack of guidelines on acceptable standards of evidence, DRAP is directed to devise guidelines setting out the acceptable standards of evidence required to support health related claims to prove quality, safety, efficacy and effectiveness of the product. Until guidelines are not available, DRAP should rely on international standards and make known the standards of evidence that the applicant is required to satisfy under the Rules. The acceptable standards of evidence should be publicized within 30 days either as per international practices or in terms of DRAP's Guidelines;

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----Through the instant petition, the Petitioner has impugned orders dated 1.11.2017 and 20.12.2017 passed by Additional District Judge, Chiniot.

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Petitioner filed a suit for declaration along with possession with reference to land falling in Khata No.2519/2498, Khasra No.15804/9883/2 land measuring 10-M 0-S 15/90th share measuring 01-M 06-S and Khata No.2510/2489, Khasra No.9882 land measuring 02-K 0-M 79/432th share measuring 08-M 07-S total land measuring 10-M 04-S according to jamabandi for the year 1999-2000 situated in Chah-Isawali Mouza Chiniot along with consequential relief of permanent injunction. The Respondent contested the suit which was ultimately dismissed vide judgment and decree dated 20.3.2015 passed by Civil Judge 1st Class, Chiniot. Feeling aggrieved, the Petitioner filed an appeal before the Additional District Judge, Chiniot and in the appeal moved an application for additional evidence. The court ordered for the appointment of local commission on 28.3.2017 with the consent of both the parties for demarcating the property in order to settle the dispute between the parties. The local commission submitted its report, however the Respondent moved objections against the said report of the local commission essentially stating that they were never issued notice or called for the purposes of demarcation. The court on hearing the objections of the Respondent, set aside the report of the local commission and ordered for a fresh local commission to be appointed vide impugned order dated 1.11.2017. Feeling aggrieved, the Petitioner filed a review application calling for recall of order dated 1.11.2017 which application was dismissed vide impugned order dated 20.12.2017 against which the instant Civil Revision has been filed.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the application filed by the Petitioner for additional evidence simply sought the demarcation of the property which both parties agreed to vide order dated 28.3.2017. Learned counsel argued that there was no reason to appoint a fresh local commission as the original local commission had filed his report and the contention of the Respondent that they did not participate in the demarcation process is totally against the record.

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for the Respondent argued that the Respondent was never issued any notice to participate in the demarcation proceedings nor was he called upon at the time of demarcation and that the report was filed without the signatures of the local commission. The court duly considered this matter and set aside that report and appointed a fresh local commission since the report in question was not made in accordance with law.

5. As per the record, the parties requested for demarcation of the suit property through the appointment of the local commission vide order dated 28.3.2017. The Petitioner then moved an application calling for the local commission to appear as a witness in the court with respect to the report of the local commission. However, this application was dismissed on the ground that report of the local commission has not been tendered and at this stage there is no requirement of calling him as a court witness. In the said order the court concluded that the local commission has tendered a report which has not been accepted by the court on account of the fact that the Respondent was not issued notice to participate in the demarcation process. The Court concluded that there is nothing available on the record in support of the Petitioners' contention that notices were served, therefore a fresh local commission was ordered to demarcate the property vide order dated 1.11.2017. Against this order, the Petitioner filed a review application seeking to have the order of 1.11.2017 recalled which was duly considered by the court and dismissed vide the impugned order dated 20.12.2017 on the ground that the report of the local commission is incomplete as there is no report of the revenue authorities supporting the findings of the local commission nor are there any documents appended with the report on the basis of which the local commission made his report appended. Therefore both orders have been made by consulting the record. During the course of arguments, learned counsel for the Petitioner admitted that the report filed by the local commission was not a signed document and he was unable to show that the contention of the Respondent that he was not associated in the demarcation process was incorrect.

6. In view of the aforesaid, the instant Revision Petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---The Petitioner Silk Bank Limited has impugned ex-parte judgment and decree dated 2.3.2017 and attachment orders dated 4.1.2018 and 26.3.2019 passed by Respondent No.2 in execution proceedings for being without jurisdiction.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that Respondent No.1, Sui Northern Gas Pipelines Limited ("SNGPL") entered into an agreement with Data Steel Pipes Industries Private Limited, Karachi ("Data Steel") for the supply of gas pipes. The Petitioner issued Performance Bond Guarantee ("Guarantee") in the amount of Rs.191,589,685/- to SNGPL with reference to the agreement between the SNGPL and Data Steel. A dispute arose between SNGPL and Data Steel for which Data Steel filed a suit for declaration and permanent injunction before the Sindh High Court which is still pending. The Sindh High Court passed an interim order on 19.9.2016 restraining the Respondent SNGPL from encashing the Guarantee, which order was extended from time to time by the Sindh High Court and lastly vide order dated 12.11.2018. On 25.11.2016 Respondent No.1 filed a suit for recovery of Rs.191,589,685/- along with markup before the Gas Utility Court, Lahore and obtained an ex-parte order dated 2.3.2017 which they are now seeking to have executed.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner submitted that the Gas Utility Court does not have jurisdiction in the matter as this is not a dispute between a consumer of gas and SNGPL nor is it a case of gas theft. Learned counsel stated that in this regard, this Court has already decided the matter vide judgment dated 18.3.2019 passed in W.P. No.38735 of 2017 (PLD 2019 Lah. 376) titled Arshad Javaid Ghuman v. Additional District and Sessions Judge, Lahore and others that the Gas Utility Court has jurisdiction with reference to the payments due on consumption of gas and its default. Learned counsel stated that the Respondent SNGPL has filed an execution petition for recovery of the decretal amount before the Gas Utility Court at Lahore and has obtained attachment orders dated 4.1.2018 and 26.3.2019 passed by Respondent No.2 which are also without jurisdiction. Learned counsel further submitted that the dispute between Data Steel and SNGPL was also the subject matter of arbitration proceedings wherein finally an Award was issued on 20.10.2018, consequent to which Data Steel filed application before the Sindh High Court seeking a stay against encashment of the Guarantee. Under the circumstances, the Gas Utility Court has wrongfully exercised jurisdiction in the matter and SNGPL has wrongfully invoked the jurisdiction of the Gas Utility Court to encash its Guarantee under a contract between SNGPL and Data Steel.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondent No.1. Learned counsel for Respondent No.1 stated that the SNGPL has invoked the jurisdiction of the Gas Utility Court by disclosing the proceedings before the Sindh High Court; that the Gas Utility Court has jurisdiction in the matter as the preamble of the Gas (Theft Control and Recovery) Act, 2016 ("Act") refers to prosecuting cases of outstanding amounts payable and sums due. Learned counsel stated that 'sums due' is defined in Section 2(o) of the Act to mean all amounts inclusive of Government taxes not limited to arrears of gas charges and any amount recoverable of any land dispute, rentals, damages, fines, penalties, violation charges and/or on account of any other dispute. He stated that consequent to this definition, the Gas Utility Court has a wider jurisdiction than jurisdiction of disputes pertaining to gas theft or amounts due for the consumption of gas. Further stated that the interpretation by this Court vide judgment dated 18.3.2019 passed in W.P. No.38735/2017 (PLD 2019 Lah. 376) is distinguishable. He stated that the case referred to was a case of recovery of amounts from employees which is distinguishable from the instant case which is related to sums due to the SNGPL for which a suit for recovery of the said amount can be filed before the Gas Utility Court. Hence prays for dismissal of the Petition.

5. Heard and record perused. The basic issue before the Court is whether SNGPL can file a suit for recovery of amounts due under a contract wherein the Guarantee issued by the Petitioner is sought to be encashed. Admittedly this is not a case pertaining to gas theft or recovery of amounts for the consumption of gas rather it is a case relating to a contractual obligation between SNGPL and Data Steel which dispute was the subject matter of an arbitration award dated 20.10.2018. Furthermore it is noted that the Award and the encashment of the Guarantee is the subject matter of a suit filed before the Sindh High Court in which interim orders were issued on 19.9.2016 which order was extended from time to time by the Court and lastly vide order dated 12.11.2018 restraining the Respondent SNGPL from encashing the Guarantee.

6. On the issue of jurisdiction, learned counsel for SNGPL has placed reliance on the definition given to 'sums due' under Section 2(o) of the Act which is reproduced hereunder:

"sums due" means any or all such amount, inclusive of applicable Government taxes, recoverable from a person who purchases or receives gas for self consumption or sale for vehicular use or a person whose premises is connected with the network of the Gas Utility Company, lawfully or unlawfully including but not limited to arrears of gas charges, meter rental, late payment surcharges or any other incidental charges for services including fixed and variable charges, gas theft claims determined in accordance with the Gas Utility Companies laid down procedures and any amount recoverable on account of any land dispute, rentals, damages, fines, penalties, violation charges and or on account of any other dispute;

As per the preamble of the Act, the objective of the Act is to prosecute cases of gas theft and other offences relating to gas and to provide a procedure for recovery of amounts due. Learned counsel for SNGPL has stressed upon the use of the term procedure for recovery of amounts due in the preamble to suggest that this amount means all and any amounts due to SNGPL because as per the definition given in Section 2(o) of the 'sums due', it is not restricted to amounts related to gas theft or for the consumption of gas. This Court has already held in judgment dated 18.3.2019 passed in W.P. No.38735/2017, that the objective of the Act is to prosecute cases of gas theft and other offences relating to gas so as to recover amounts due for the consumption of gas. In terms of Section 3 of the Act, the Gas Utility Courts are constituted by notification in the official Gazette and they have exclusive jurisdiction with respect to all matters covered under Section 4(2) of the Act which gives the Gas Utility Court exclusive jurisdiction with reference to all matters covered by the Act related to the consumer, gas producer or offender as the case may be. Hence as per the Section, jurisdiction of the Gas Utility Court is related to disputes of consumers, gas producers or offenders. The term consumer is defined in Section 2(b) of the Act, being a person who has received the supply of gas under a gas sales agreement. The term gas producer has not been defined but the term 'gas' is defined to suggest that a gas producer is one who produces the gas defined in Section 2(e) of the Act. However offences are provided for in the Act being the unauthorized use of gas, tampering with gas meters or pipelines or that the dispute of gas causing damage to transmission or transportation lines or for wasting gas. In this regard, it is also noted that Section 5 of the Act provides for the powers of the Gas Utility Court which is specifically related to taking cognizance of any offence punishable under the Act on a complaint made in writing by a person authorized by the Gas Utility Company, which again clarifies that the Gas Utility Court will deal with the offences specified under the Act so as to prevent the misuse of gas and to ensure the payment is made by consumers for the consumption of gas. It is also noted that in terms of Section 6 of the Act, the procedure for complaints and suits for default before the Gas Utility Court is prescribed such that where a person is involved in an offence under the Act or where there are sums due or recoverable from a person or where there is a consumer who disputes a bill or metering against a Gas Utility Court, the consumer or Gas Utility Company can file a complaint or a suit before the Gas Utility Court. In this Section, the reference to 'sums due' or recoverable from any person will be seen in the context of the dispute pertaining to an offence under the Act or sums due or recoverable with respect to the purchase or consumption of gas and incidental charges which may include land dispute, damages, fines and penalties with respect to the transmission and distribution of gas through pipelines. In terms of Section 27 of the Act, charges for supply of gas can be recovered as arrears of land revenue which again provides for the charges for supply of gas or any other sums outstanding against the consumer or any other person under the Act is recoverable as arrears of land revenue. Therefore the preamble of the Act and its provisions are clear that the Act seeks to vest jurisdiction in the Gas Utility Courts to recover amounts due to the Gas Utility Company for the consumption of gas and to prevent misuse of the supply of gas and any offence related to the supply, transmission and distribution of gas.

7. The contention of Respondent SNGPL that amounts due under the contract for the supply of pipelines which has nothing to do with the theft of gas, supply of gas or misuse of gas is amenable to the jurisdiction of the Gas Utility Court is totally without basis. The use of the terminology 'sums due' will be seen in the context of any default by a consumer or a producer of gas or an offender as the case may be. However it does not give jurisdiction to the Gas Utility Court with respect to contractual disputes between SNGPL and any party and in this case specifically with respect to encashment of the Guarantee issued by the Petitioner in a supply contract with Data Steel. The Gas Utility Court has been established specifically for the purposes of controlling gas theft and recovering amounts due for the consumption of gas. The preamble of the Act provides that it is necessary to prosecute cases of gas theft and other offences relating to gas and to provide for procedure for expeditious recovery of amounts due in relation to gas theft and offences relating to gas. These amounts due as specified in the preamble do not suggest any amount due to SNGPL pursuant to any contract which is not related to the supply of gas by SNGPL. In this regard, the basic principle of interpretation which is applicable is ejusdem generis that the words should be interpreted in the same context with reference to the things provided for in the definition and the general words should not be given the widest meaning but should be applied in the context of the specific things provided in the definition. Hence with the definition of 'sums due' amounts which are extraneous to the purchase or consumption of gas or gas theft or with reference to the offences provided for under the Act cannot be recovered by filing the proceedings before the Gas Utility Court as the intent of the law is clear. Furthermore it is noted that a dispute with reference to encashment of the Guarantee is pending before the Hon'ble Sindh High Court wherein interim order was granted on 19.9.2016 and on 12.11.2018 whereby the Respondents were restrained to encash the Guarantee. That suit is still pending which is the forum where the issue of encashment can be decided.

8. In view of the aforesaid, the instant Petition is allowed and the impugned orders dated 4.1.2018 and 26.3.2019 passed by Respondent No.2 are set aside.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----Through this Petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 27.7.2010 passed by Respondent No.6, Civil Judge, Gujranwala and judgment 8.6.2012 passed by Respondent No.5, Additional District Judge, Gujranwala.

2. The subject matter of dispute between the parties is property measuring 271 Kanals 7 Marlas situated in Qila Didar Singh, Tehsil and District Gujranwala. The facts of the case are that Respondent No.2, Syed Akhtar Ali was the original owner of the disputed property. A dispute arose between Respondent No.2 and the Petitioner which resulted in the filing of a suit for declaration with permanent injunction by Respondent No.2 against the Petitioner. The suit was decreed ex-parte in favour of Respondent No.2 vide judgment and decree dated 5.3.1981. Consequently Respondent No.2 became owner of the disputed property. Respondent No.2 sold the property to one Ramat Ullah the husband of Respondent No.1 Maqtool Akhtar and to Respondent No.4, Saif Ullah vide registered sale deed dated 29.4.1981 having mutation No.8580 dated 2.5.1988 and mutation No.8811 dated 19.1.1989. The Petitioner moved an application before the civil court for setting aside ex-parte decree dated 5.3.1981. Respondent No.2 appeared in the application proceeding and made a conceding statement before the court that he has no objection if the suit is restored, as the parties have entered into a compromise. On the basis of the said statement, Civil Judge 1st Class, Gujranwala revived the suit of Respondent No.2 vide order dated 13.2.1995. Thereafter Respondent No.2 withdrew his suit on 9.12.1999. Consequently the Petitioner considered himself to be the owner of the property.

3. Respondents Nos.1 and 4 having become owners of the property were never impleaded nor was heard before passing order dated 9.12.1999, hence they moved an application under Section 12(2) Civil Procedure Code, 1908 ("C.P.C.") on 31.10.2000 for setting aside the orders dated 13.2.1995 and 9.12.1999. Reply was filed to this application by Respondents Nos.1, 2 and 4. The matter was heard, seven issues were framed, evidence was led and after hearing all the parties, Civil Judge 1st Class, Gujranwala vide order dated 27.7.2010 set aside orders dated 13.2.1995 and 9.12.1999 on the ground that the suit could not have been revived given that Respondent No.2 had no proprietary interest in the property since he had sold the property to Respondents Nos.1 and 4 in 1981. Against this order, the Petitioner filed a revision petition before the Additional District Judge, Gujranwala which was dismissed vide the impugned judgment dated 8.6.2012 upholding the order of 27.7.2010 with the finding that there appears to be collusion between the Petitioner and Respondent No.2 who had no proprietary interest in the property having sold it to Respondents Nos.1 and 4, hence the suit was deemed pending and the Respondents were directed to implead the new owners of the property in the suit for a hearing on his application to set aside the ex-parte order.

4. Learned counsel for the Petitioner states that there was no reason to accept the application filed by Respondents Nos.1 and 4 as the matter had been settled between the Petitioner and Respondent No.2 and that Respondents Nos.1 and 4 were party in the said suit. Learned counsel further argued that in fact the sale deed in favour of Respondent No.4 has been cancelled and that the original mutation in favour of the Petitioner has never been challenged. Learned counsel further states that this is a case of mis-reading of the evidence and non-appreciation of the facts of the case.

5. C.Ms. Nos. 3/2016, 1/2017 and 2/2020 were filed under Order 1, Rule 10, C.P.C. for irnpleadment of the Applicants as Respondents which were allowed and the stated Applicants have been impleaded as Respondents Nos.10, 11 and 12 in the instant Petition.

6. On behalf of Respondent No.11, it is argued by the learned counsel that the Petitioner and Respondent No.2 colluded and misrepresented the facts therefore the application under Section 12(2) C.P.C. was allowed. Learned counsel stated that Respondent No.2 sold the property to Respondents Nos.1 and 4 in 1981 hence he could not have made any conceding statement before the court with respect to the restoration of the suit on 13.2.1995 and on 9.12.1999. Learned counsel further stated that at that time he had no proprietary right in the property, hence this fact should have been brought to the knowledge of the court. He further argued that this statement was made deliberately with the intent to defraud the real owners from the property, as a result whereof the application under Section 12(2), C.P.C. was accepted. Learned counsel has placed reliance on Muhammad Iqbal and others v. Khair Din through LRs and others (2014 SCMR 33).

7. On behalf of Respondents Nos.10 and 12, it is argued by the learned counsel that there are concurrent findings of fact by the Civil Judge, Gujranwala as well as Additional District Judge, Gujranwala on the issue that Respondent No.2 and the Petitioner misrepresented the Facts to the court and played fraud with the court. That the concurrent findings of fact should not be interfered with in constitutional jurisdiction. Learned counsel further argued that the compromise allegedly stated before the court on 13.2.1995 and 9.12.1999 is a misrepresentation of facts by Respondent No.2 and the Petitioner as Respondent No.2 had already sold the property to Respondents Nos.1 and 4. Learned counsel further argued that the Petitioner has no grievance before this Court as the matter is now pending before the trial court and any objection that the Petitioner may have with respect to the revival of the suit of Respondent No.2 has to be raised before the trial court which will look into all the issues regarding the proprietary rights of Respondent No.2 as well as that of the Petitioner. Learned counsel has placed reliance on Malik Muhammad Hussain v. District Returning Officer and others (2008 SCMR 488), Allied Bank Limited through Manager v. Samar Abid and 8 others (2015 CLD 1749) and Muhammad Arif v. Additional Sessions Judge-VIII, Karachi West and 2 others (2020 YLR 1586).

8. Heard and record perused. The basic facts are not disputed in this case being that Respondent No.2 filed a suit for declaration with permanent injunction against the Petitioner wherein he essentially prayed that mutation No.3659 dated 29.3.1972 is illegal and void and that a declaration may be given that he is the owner in possession of the property. As the Petitioner did not appear in the suit it was decided ex-parte on 5.3.1981. Consequently Respondent No.2 became owner of the disputed property. Respondent No.2 then sold the property to Respondents Nos.1 and 4 vide sale deed dated 29.4.1981 and Mutation No.8580 dated 2.5.1988 and mutation No.8811 dated 19.l.1989. However the Petitioner moved an application for setting aside the ex-parte decree of 5.3.1981 which was allowed vide order date 13.2.1995 by the Civil Judge, Gujranwala. The ex-parte decree was set aside on the basis of a statement by Respondent No.2 that the matter has been compromised between the parties, he has no objection to the same. The case was heard on 9.12.1999 whereby Respondent No.2 withdrew the suit. Consequently Respondent No.2 who was initially declared owner of the property was no longer the owner of the property and instead the Petitioner became the owner of the property. In this regard, it is noted that the suit filed by Respondent No.2 was for cancellation of mutation No.3659 dated 29.3.1972 in favour of the Petitioner. By withdrawing the suit Respondent No.2 informed the court that he was no longer contesting the said mutation in favour of the Petitioner, hence the Petitioner became owner of the disputed property. At this point it is important to note that as per the record, Respondent No.2 was not the owner of the disputed property which he had sold vide sale deed dated 29.4.1981 having mutation No.8580 dated 2.5.1988 and Mutation No.8811 dated 19.1.1989. Hence the question is that whether he could have made a statement before the court to have the ex-parte decree set aside and to withdraw his suit given that he had no proprietary rights in the property.

9. When the fact of the setting aside of the ex-parte decree and withdrawal of the suit came to the knowledge of Respondents Nos.1 and 4, Respondent No.1 filed an application under Section 12(2), C.P.C. on 31.10.2000 in which seven issues were framed out of which the most relevant issues are Issues Nos.1 and 2 that is whether the order dated 13.2.1995 and judgment dated 9.12.1999 have been procured by fraud and misrepresentation. Both the issues were heard and decided together by the Civil Court. The court concluded that Respondent No.2 could not have made any conceding statement before the court on 13.2.1995 or 9.12.1999 as registered sale deed in favour of Respondent No.1 and Respondent No.4 were produced before the court as Ex.A13 and Ex.A14 along with mutation as Ex.A15 and attested copy of suit for declaration titled 'Syed Akhtar Ali Shah v. Syed Ishfaq Ali Shah and others. as Ex.A16 which established the case of Respondents Nos.1 and 4. The court concluded that Respondent No.2 is not competent to claim any interest in the property yet despite the same he made a statement before the court that he has no objection to setting aside the ex-parte decree dated 5.3.1981 whereas at this point Respondent No.2 had no proprietary rights on the basis of which the suit already decreed could have been revived. The court also concluded that the new owners of the property being Respondents Nos.1 and 4 had neither been impleaded at the time when the suit was filed nor was the sale brought to the notice of the court. As the Petitioner was not able to bring any cogent evidence before the court in his defence, the application under Section 12(2) Civil Procedure Code, 1908 was allowed and the order dated 13.2.1995 and 9.12.1999 were set aside vide order dated 27.7.2010 and the suit was deemed to be pending where the respondents were directed to implead the relevant parties allowing the matter to be decided on its merits. Against this order, revision petition was filed by the Petitioner. The revision petition was heard in great detail and the court also concluded that Respondent No.2 was not owner of the property in 1995 and 1999 at which point he could not have made any statement in favour of the Petitioner. The court also concluded that this is a collusive effort by Respondent No.2 and the Petitioner, hence the application under Section 12(2), C.P.C. was rightly allowed.

10. Although learned counsel for the Petitioner has argued the case at great length, there is no denying fact that Respondent No.2 had sold the property to Respondent No.1 and respondent No.4, therefore Respondent No.2 as per the record did not have any proprietary rights at the time when he made a conceding statement before the court on 13.2.1995 and 9.12.1999. Both the Courts below have duly considered the record and the evidence from which the element of fraud is evident. Learned counsel for the Petitioner has not been able to refute the contentions of the Respondents' counsel or rebut what is evident from the record.

Federal Excise Act (VII of 2005)---

----S.34A---Reference to High Court---Exercise of jurisdiction under S.34A of Federal Excise Act, 2005---Findings of fact---Scope---Where order of Appellate Tribunal was based on findings of facts, after detailed discussion, deliberation and interpretation of provisions of law and as such did not carry any mistake apparent on record, then same did not require any interference by High Court while exercising jurisdiction under S.34A of Federal Excise Act, 2005.
Ch. Muhammad Zafar Iqbal for Applicant.
Mehar Alam Sher for Respondent.

ORDER

This Reference Application under Section 34(A) of the Federal Excise Act, 2005 (the "Act") has been filed by the Applicant, being dissatisfied by the order passed by the Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue, Lahore Bench Lahore ("Appellate Tribunal") in Ex.No.32/LB/2009 dated 06.09.2012. The following questions of law are said to arise out from the impugned order.
QUESTIONS OF LAW
(I) "Whether the learned Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue erred in law while accepting the Appeal of the Respondent to the extent of penalty and default surcharge under rule 45(5) of Federal Excise Rules, 2005 and Rule 18(3) Sales Tax Rules, 2006? "
(II) "Whether the impugned order to the extent of declaring the imposition of penalty illegal is unlawful and without lawful authority?
(III) Whether the learned Appellate Tribunal exercised its jurisdiction illegally and with material irregularity in passing the impugned order?
(IV) Whether in case of payment of duty/tax through direct debit the date of payment is considered on which payment is received by the Bank?
(V) Whether payment of duty/taxes through direct debit is covered under Sub-Rule (5) of the Federal Excise Rules, 2005 and sub-Rule (5) of Rule 15 of the Sales Tax Rules, 2006?

2. Brief facts are that on failure to deposit due amount of Sales Tax and Federal Excise Duty by the Respondent, Deputy Collector (Adjudication) ordered for payment of default surcharge; that order was appealed before Collector of Customs, Sales Tax and Federal Excise (Appeals), Lahore which was rejected on 07.07.2009.

Being aggrieved, the Respondent filed Appeal before the Appellate Tribunal which was allowed vide impugned order.

3. Learned counsel for the Applicant submitted that the impugned order is illegal and contrary to the law and facts of the case; that the Appellate Tribunal has not passed the above referred order in accordance with law as such the same is liable to be set aside

4. On the other side, learned counsel for the Respondents submitted that the impugned order has been passed strictly in accordance with law and does not require any interference by this Court. He also prayed for dismissal of Reference Application.

5. We have heard the arguments of learned counsel for the parties and perused the record. The Applicant in this Reference Application disputes the order passed by the Appellate Tribunal which allowed the appeal of the Respondent by observing that "National Bank was working as agent of FBR and any payment received by the National Bank under Sub-Rule (5) of Rule 45 is deemed to have been received by FBR". It was further observed that "if bank for any reason deposits and collected amount late in the account of FBR, this was a matter between the agent bank and principle FBR. The registered person could not be penalized under these facts".
The relevant/operative part of learned Appellate Tribunal order is reproduced hereunder:-
"We hold, therefore, that the payment made through e-banking (direct debit) by registered person was within time. Though, apparently, direct debit was not expressly covered under the sub-Rule (5), yet it sufficiently meets the intent and object of rule makers. Principle of `ejusdem generis' can be employed here to construe that payment made through "direct debit" is covered under the sub-rule".

7. We are of the considered opinion that the learned Appellate Tribunal has rightly decided the issues, which otherwise are based on the finding of facts, after detailed discussion, deliberation and interpretation of provisions of law and as such does not carry any mistake apparent on the record, therefore, does not require any interference by this Court.

8. Therefore, Reference application is decided against the Applicant.

9. Office shall send copy of this order under the seal of the Court to the learned Appellate Tribunal as per section 34A(5) of the Act.

KMZ/C-29/L Order accordingly.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition, the Petitioner Pakistan International Airline ("PIA") has challenged order dated 19.5.2015 passed by Respondent No.1 wherein they have been told that they are liable to pay property tax under the Punjab Urban Immovable Property Tax Act, 1958 ("Act") for the superstructure raised on the land leased out to the Petitioner by the Government of Punjab.

2. Facts of the case are that the Petitioner, PIA entered into an Agreement of Lease with the Government of Punjab in 1986 for land located at Lake Road, Old University Ground, Lahore for the purposes of establishing a planetarium ("Lease Agreement"). This lease was initially for five years, then extended and now it has been extended for another 30 years that is 14.11.2026 which fact is not in dispute. The Petitioner was served with notice dated 16.3.2015 under Section 16 of the Act demanding property tax on the superstructure raised on the said land. The Petitioner contested the levy of property tax on the ground that it is not the owner of the property as defined under the Act; that it is exempt from paying tax under the Act as well as in terms of Article 165 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"). Learned counsel for the Petitioner stated that the liability of tax under the Act is on the owner of the property and the Petitioner is not the owner of the property as per the definition given in Section 3(e) of the Act. Learned counsel further stated that the Petitioner is being treated as a lessee in perpetuity, however the Petitioner is not a lessee in perpetuity because it has a lease agreement in its favour for a specific period with a termination clause which lease can be cancelled at any time if the government requires the land for public purpose. In this regard, he places reliance on Government of Sindh through Secretary and Director General, Excise and Taxation and another v. Muhammad Shafi and others (PLD 2015 SC 380). Learned counsel also argued that the Petitioner, PIA is performing functions in connection with the affairs of the Federation, hence is entitled to the exemption under Article 165 of the Constitution. Reliance is placed on Pakistan International Airline Corporation and others v. Tanweer-ur-Rehman and others (PLD 2010 SC 676). Learned counsel argued that this Court has already decided a similar matter in Messrs Lahore Electric Supply Co. Ltd. v. Province of Punjab (2014 CLC 590) as well as in terms of the other judgments held that where the occupier of land if an instrumentality of the Federation is exempt from paying tax on the basis of Article 165 of the Constitution. Reliance is also placed on Platinum Commercial Bank Ltd. v. Government of Sindh through the Secretary, Secretariat, Karachi and another (2003 MLD 279).

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondents. Learned Law Officer stated that property tax is levied on the superstructure that has been built on the land for which the Petitioner is liable to pay tax under the Act. He has placed reliance on the judgment of this Court dated 23.4.2015 passed in W.P. No.10380 of 2006 titled Pakistan Cricket Board v. Executive District Officer (Revenue), Lahore and 2 others which is with reference to the Gaddafi Stadium which is under the control of Pakistan Cricket Board wherein they were held liable to pay property tax. Learned Law Officer further stated that the Petitioner is liable to pay tax to the extent of the superstructure as it is an autonomous body, hence it cannot seek exemption under Article 165 of the Constitution. Hence the instant Petition is liable to be dismissed.

4. Heard and record perused. The issue before the Court is whether the Petitioner, PIA is liable to pay property tax for the building constructed on land measuring 24 Kanals 13 Marlas located at Lake Road, Old University Ground, Lahore referred to as the `Planetarium' which was constructed pursuant to the Lease Agreement. As per the Lease Agreement the tenant is liable to pay no rent but shall pay all rates, taxes, charges which are payable by the owner or the occupier of the land. The purpose of the Lease Agreement is so that PIA can build the planetarium. As per the Lease Agreement the Government of Punjab may resume the land if it is required for public purpose or if the land is used for any purpose other than the purpose stipulated in the Lease Agreement. There is no dispute with respect to the lease period which was extended till May 2007 and then again for 30 years uptil 14.11.2026, free of cost. The Respondents have issued show cause notice for payment of property tax on the construction made on the said land essentially stating therein that they have raised a superstructure on the property, hence they fall within the definition of 'owner' under the Act. The Act defines owner in Section 2(e) to include a mortgagee with possession, a lease in perpetuity, a trustee having possession of a trust property and a person to whom an evacuee property has been transferred previously or permanently under the Disabled Persons (Rehabilitation and Compensation Act, 1958). The Respondents argue that the Petitioner is liable to pay the tax because it is a lessee in perpetuity as its lease continues from 1986. However, in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in PLD 2015 SC 380 (supra), the attributes of a lessee in perpetuity is where the lease agreement is not for a fixed term or where there is no clause for renewal or termination of the agreement. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan has also held that it is necessary to go through the contents of the lease agreement to see whether it suggests permanency on the basis of its object and if at all any structure is raised on the same what is the outcome of the said structure in the event that the lease is terminated. In the instant case the Lease Agreement was initially for a period of five years, extendable by the mutual consent of both the parties. Admittedly vide letter dated 10.5.2007 the lease period was extended for 30 years from 14.11.1996 to 14.11.2026 free of cost by the Deputy Secretary (Colonies). The Lease Agreement provides that the land is to be used solely for the purposes of the planetarium and where the Government of Punjab finds that the land is not used for this purpose they can terminate the Lease Agreement. In the event that the Lease Agreement is terminated, the Government of Punjab is not responsible for the structure or any material used for the purposes of the structure, meaning thereby that they are not liable to compensate the tenant for any construction made on the land. As per Clause 4 Lease Agreement can be terminated on account of any breach or non-performance at which time the Government of Punjab may take down the structure and sell whatever material and retain proceeds of the sale. In this case even though the period is from 1986 uptil 2026, it is not the case of the Respondents that the land that has been given to PIA cannot be taken back from them or that the Lease Agreement cannot be terminated or that they are obligated to extend the lease period. Under the circumstances, the Respondents' claim that the Petitioner is lessee in perpetuity is without basis.

5. That being so, the levy of tax under the Act is on the annual value of the building or land or both but tax can only be recovered from the owner of the land. In this case the Petitioner is not the owner of the land as it does not fall within the definition of owner under the Act since it is a tenant of the Government of Punjab, hence tax cannot be levied under the Act on the building raised by the Petitioner on the land leased from Government of Punjab.

6. In view of the aforesaid, the instant Petition is allowed and the impugned order dated 19.5.2015 passed by Respondent No.1, is set aside.

(c) Criminal Procedure Code (V of 1898)---

----S. 164-A---Sexual violence---Virginity test of victim---Object, purpose and scope---Virginity testing is highly invasive, having no scientific or medical requirement, yet carried out in the name of medical protocols in sexual violence cases---Such is humiliating practice which casts suspicion on victim as opposed to focusing on accused and incident of sexual violence---In effect such test amounts to gender based discrimination as it is neither a medical condition which requires treatment nor does it provide any clinical benefit to victim---Sole purpose of virginity test is to determine whether victim is habituated to sexual intercourse so as to corroborate her statement on the charge of rape and sexual abuse---Investigation into incident of sexual violence, whether victim was previously accustomed to sexual intercourse is hardly determinative question---Issue in sexual violence is whether accused committed rape on victim in time and circumstances complained of---If victim is found to not be a virgin, it cannot and does not suggest that she was not raped or sexually abused---Such test places victim on trial in place of accused and shifts focus on her virginity status---Sexual behavior of victim is totally irrelevant as even the most promiscuous victim does not deserve to be reaped nor should incident of sexual violence be decided on the basis of virginity test.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This petition along with connected W.P. No.27421/2020 challenges the use and conduct of virginity tests specifically being the two finger test and hymen examination in cases of rape or sexual abuse. The Petitioners seek a permanent restraint against the use, conduct or facilitation of virginity tests by the Respondents and seek a direction to ensure that necessary and proper measures are taken with respect to the physical and mental health and safety of the women undergoing the medico-legal examination. The Petitioners further pray that the Respondents should rely on scientific methods of investigation as the virginity test is neither scientific nor medically required to establish the incident of rape or sexual abuse.

The case of the Petitioners

2. The Petitioners before the Court in the instant petition are a group of diverse women, who have been working in the public sphere, in the academia, as a sociologist, journalist, activist, lawyer and psychologist and in W.P. No.27421/2020, the Petitioner is a member of the National Assembly of Pakistan. These petitions have been filed in the interest of and for the benefit of victims of sexual violence who are subjected to virginity testing. The case of the Petitioners is that the Respondents carry out virginity testing as part of the medico-legal examination in cases of rape and sexual abuse. Virginity testing essentially comprises of the two finger test and the hymen test. The justification for both tests is to ascertain whether the victim is sexually active. They argue that the tests are irrelevant for the charge of rape or sexual abuse, particularly after the omission of section 151(4) of the Qanun-e-Shahadat Order, 1984 (QSO) under the Criminal Law (Amendment) (Offences Relating to Rape) Act, 2016 (Amendment Act, 2016).

Learned counsel argued that the circumstances in which the tests are conducted is such that first the consent is obtained from the victim for the purposes of carrying out the examination, however, the victim is neither aware of the reasons for carrying out either of the tests nor is she informed properly, with sufficient sensitivity, as to what the examination entails. Furthermore, generally the victim is not informed by the female medical practitioners that she can refuse to be tested. It is also argued that the virginity tests are neither necessary nor reliable or relevant for the purpose of investigation into the incident of rape or sexual abuse. Learned counsel state that the medico-legal examination reports rely on words such as habituated to sex or not a virgin which are totally irrelevant for the purposes of the incident under investigation and at the same time such derogatory language stigmatizes the victim, causing social and personal trauma. They relied on reported judgments to show how the virginity test is considered by the Courts to conclude about the virtue of the victim. It is their case that the practice of carrying virginity tests is still prevalent notwithstanding the fact that Article 151(4) of the QSO has been deleted and that section 164A of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 ("Cr.P.C.") does not require the same. It is also their case that there is insufficient understanding on the relevancy of the virginity test and that there is not enough training with reference to the female medical officers appointed, who carry out the virginity tests and fill in the medico-legal report. Learned counsel stated that Pakistan is a signatory to several international treaties which totally denounce virginity testing, hence Pakistan is obligated to maintain its international commitments pursuant to Article 5 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 1984 (UDHR), Article 7 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, 1966 (ICCPR) and Article 16 of the Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, 1984 (CAT). It is also against Article 12 of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, 1966 (ICESCR). They also stated that the Pakistan is also a signatory to and has ratified the Convention Against Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women, 1979 (CEDAW), which prohibits all forms of discrimination against women and declares the two finger test as discriminatory such that it amounts to a denial of rights to female victims of rape on the basis of her gender. It is argued that virginity tests violate the given standards of the right to human dignity as enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (Constitution). It also violates the right of privacy with respect to a women and her right over her own body and it violates Article 25 of the Constitution as it is specifically applied to female rape or sexual abuse victims making negative inference to her character in order to justify the incident of rape and sexual abuse but is not used where the victim is a male. Learned counsel also rely on a large variety of international literature by the WHO, UN Human Rights Office and UN Women wherein it is reported that virginity testing is associated with a series of adverse physical and psychosocial effects, that it has no evidentiary value, that it violates bodily integrity and the privacy of rape victims and unjustifiably subjects them to further trauma.

The response by the Respondents

3. The Respondents before the Court are the Federation of Pakistan and Province of Punjab. Both have made a statement before the Court through Mr. Ishtiaq Ahmad Khan, Additional Attorney General for Pakistan and Mr. Muhammad Shan Gull, Additional Advocate General Punjab that in principle the Federation and the Province do not dispute the contentions of the Petitioners to the extent that the two finger test should not be conducted. Mr. Muhammad Shan Gull, Additional Advocate General Punjab informed the Court on 11.09.2020 that the matter in issue is under due consideration before the competent authority and in this regard, new guidelines are under consideration.

4. Report and parawise comments on behalf of Respondent No.7, Ministry of Human Rights, Government of Pakistan and Respondent No.8, National Commission for Human Rights through its Chairman, have been filed. In terms thereof, it is stated that women in sexual abuse and rape cases are examined by authorized women medical officers in terms of section 164A of the Cr.P.C. and that a detail procedure has been prescribed to preserve the rights and dignity of the victim. It is further stated that the said section does not require the two finger test, however it is noted that the practice to carry out the tests notwithstanding the amendments in the law continues. As per the report and parawise comments filed by Respondent No.7, it is categorically stated that two finger test is a violation of the constitutional right to dignity of women who are victims of rape or sexual abuse.

5. Respondent No.5, Punjab Forensic Science Agency ("PFSA") is also before the Court and has filed its report and parawise comments in which they have stated that they do not rely upon virginity tests as they rely on scientific testing methods by collecting forensic evidence in rape or sexual abuse cases. Hence they carry out semen detection and DNA profile development in rape or sexual abuse cases. It is also stated that the PFSA has issued guidelines for rape and sexual abuse cases with respect to the collection and packaging and transportation of biological material for forensic DNA analysis, which is in line with the international practice. Hence to the extent of PFSA it does not require or rely on virginity testing.

6. Report and parawise comments on behalf of Respondents Nos.1 and 2, Secretary Health and Specialized Healthcare and Medical Education Department and as well as Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab have been filed in W.P. No.27421/2020. As per their report and parawise comments, the health department has issued instructions prescribing the manner for examination of female victims of rape or sexual abuse which includes digital examination, speculum examination and specimen collection. It is also stated that an effort has been made to improve upon the manner of examination of female victims as well as of collecting evidence and on ensuring that the consent of the victim is obtained with due sensitivity. Further that the privacy of women victim is maintained; that the victim is examined by a female medical officer and that the medico-legal findings are carefully and clearly documented in the medico-legal report. In this regard, it is stated that digital examination is required to assess the status of the hymen, capacity, size, torn plus information regarding the victims history on sexual intercourse but the women medical officer cannot write words such as habituated to sex in any report. In terms of the report and parawise comments, the medico-legal report proforma requires physical examination which is by naked eye as well as digital and instrumental examination. In this context information on the rupture of hymen, if present, fresh or old is also required. It is also stated that the two finger test and hymen test is part of the digital examination and bilateral digital traction and is a necessary step as per textual protocol for the medical examination of female victims of rape and sexual abuse. It was however clarified that the two finger test is not conducted unless it is deemed necessary. By way of explanation, it was stated that in cases of minor girls, it is mandatory to inspect the hymen in detail to determine whether it is intact and if not then the nature of the injury.

7. Professor Doctor Arif Rasheed Malik, Chairman Department of Forensic Medicine KEMU, Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab, appeared in person and explained that the examination of the hymen is necessary for the provision of adequate and effective investigation and there are instructions in aid of the process, so as to determine the injuries, determine tears, laceration, bruises, abrasions, swellings and hyperemia where sexual violence is alleged. He clarified that women medical officers are not allowed to write words like habituated to sex and cannot comment on the character of the victim. However, as per his understanding a report has to be given on the status of the hymen as the element of the victims virginity is relevant. In this regard, the Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab, categorically stated that digital examination will be conducted where-ever deemed necessary as it is an integral part of the process. In this regard, it is noted that the Government of Punjab placed before the Court draft guidelines including the proforma for medico-legal examination of female victims of rape or sexual abuse, which are to be implemented in all hospitals within the Province of Punjab. It was stated that these new guidelines have been devised consequent to the issues raised through the instant writ petitions.

8. During the course of arguments, Respondent, Specialized Healthcare and Medical Education Department presented a copy of Notification dated 10.11.2020 stating therein that the Guidelines for the Examination of Female Survivors/Victims of Sexual Abuse (2020 Guidelines) have been issued which contains the proforma of the report to be filled by the women medical officer. In terms of the arguments made by the Respondents, the 2020 Guidelines apparently redress the grievance of the Petitioners as it prohibits the two finger test. The Respondents have specifically relied on Clause 14 of the 2020 Guidelines, which states that two finger test must not be performed. However the Petitioners, having gone through the contents of the 2020 Guidelines raised objections with reference to the same. The Petitioners argued that the 2020 Guidelines have not prohibited virginity testing rather has left the matter open ended such that even though the two finger test has been prohibited, hymen testing has not been prohibited hence virginity testing continues even under the 2020 Guidelines. It was further argued that the 2020 Guidelines emphasizes on information with reference to the status of the hymen, which is essentially to conclude that the character of the victim is questionable as is her honesty and the truthfulness of her statement. Learned counsel for the Petitioners while reading Clauses 14 and 15 of the 2020 Guidelines state that it provides for bilateral digital traction which essentially is a check on the status of the hymen stretching the hymen at 6 and 12 o'clock positions and further that in terms of the proforma provided for the medico-legal report there is a specific requirement for determining whether the hymen is intact or torn and whether the tear is fresh or old. Therefore, it is argued that the Respondents have retained the ability to conduct virginity testing and have not taken decisive steps towards the eradicating of the same.

9. On the basis of what has been argued, the Petitioners case essentially is that there is no medical or scientific basis to continue with virginity testing that is the two finger test or to test the status of hymen; that it violates the fundamental rights of the female victims such that it denies the female victim the dignity of life that she is guaranteed under the Constitution; that it breaches her right to privacy over her body and her personal life; that it is discriminatory as virginity testing is only done for female victims so as to discredit her. It has also been argued that the process under the Instructions Regarding the Conduct of Medico-legal and Postmortem Examination, 2015 (2015 Instructions") and now the 2020 Guidelines is not victim sensitive and meaningful consent is not obtained before carrying out the medico-legal examination.

Nature of Medico-Legal Examination

10. As part of the investigation of the incident of rape or sexual abuse, the victim is required to undergo a medico-legal examination, once a complaint of rape or sexual abuse is registered with the relevant Police Station through a First Information Report. The victim, accompanied with a parent or a guardian, is presented before a medical officer for the medical examination which leads to the preparation of the report of medico-legal examination of the victim. This medical examination is mandatory in terms of section 164A of the Cr.P.C., which calls for a medical examination of the victim of rape where an offence of committing rape or sexual abuse is under investigation. The section sets out the procedure to be followed for a medico-legal examination in the following terms:

164A. Medical examination of victim of rape, etc.-(I) Where an offence of committing rape, unnatural offence or sexual abuse or attempt to commit rape, unnatural offence or sexual abuse under section 376, section 371 or section 377B respectively of the Pakistan Penal Code, 1860 (Act XLV of 1860) is under investigation, the victim shall be examined by a registered medical practitioner, in the case of female victim by a female registered medical practitioner, immediately after commission of such offence:

Provided that in all cases, where possible, the female victim shall be escorted by a female police officer or a family member from a place of her convenience to the place of medical examination.

(2) The registered medical practitioner to whom such victim is sent under subsection (1) shall, without delay, examine the victim and prepare a report of examination giving the following particulars, namely:--

(a) name and address of the victim and of the person by whom she was escorted;

(b) age of the victim;

(c) description of material taken from body of the victim for DNA profiling;
(d) marks of injury, if any, on body of the victim;
(e) general mental condition of the victim; and
(f) other material particulars in reasonable detail.
(3) The report under subsection (2) shall state precisely the reasons for each conclusion arrived at.
(4) The report under subsection (2) shall specifically record that consent of the victim or of his or her natural or legal guardian to such examination had been obtained.
(5) The exact time of commencement and completion of the examination under subsection (1) shall also be noted in the report.
(6) The registered medical practitioner shall, without delay, forward the report to the investigation officer who shall forward it to the Magistrate along with other requirements as specified under clause (a) of subsection (1) of section 173.
(7) Nothing in this section shall be construed as rendering lawful any examination without consent of the victim or of any person authorized under subsection (4).
As per the Section, the victim has to provide her name, address and age including the name of the person with whom she was escorted. The report requires a description of materials taken from the body of the victim for DNA profiling, marks of injury, if any, on the body of the victim; general mental condition of the victim and all other material particulars with reasons for each conclusion arrived at. Importantly the report has to specifically record the consent of the victim or of her natural or legal guardian to such examination.
Guidelines and Instructions

11. The Respondent Health Department issued Notification dated 28.10.2002 which establishes a three tier structure for conducting medico-legal work. The initial medico-legal examination is carried out by Medical Officers in Rural Health Centers, Tehsil Headquarters Hospital and District Headquarters Hospitals. The second tier consists of the District Standing Medical Board ("District Board") where re-examination is required and the third tier is the Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab. The Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab is the Chairman of the Provincial Standing Medical Board, which is also the final appellate authority against the decisions of the District Boards. The Medico Legal Officers and the District Board fall under the control and supervision of Primary and Secondary Healthcare Department whereas the office of the Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab is an attached department of the Specialized Healthcare and Medical Education Department. They also issued Standard Operating Procedures for Medico Legal Examination of Women Survivors ("SOPs"), which includes the Performa to be used for medico-legal examination reports in all cases of sexual violence. As part of the SOPs there is an Operating Manual on Standard Operating Procedures, which essentially provides guidance to the doctors who perform the medico-legal examination in cases of rape or sexual abuse. The Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab issued the 2015 Instructions, which detail the general instructions for conducting the medico-legal examination. The SOPs have statedly been replaced by the 2020 Guidelines, which were notified on 10.11.2020. Despite the statements of the Federation and the Government of Punjab that these virginity tests have been stopped, it is necessary to examine the requirements provided under the SOPs and the 2015 Instructions in comparison with the 2020 Guidelines to note whether virginity testing is still required under the 2020 Guidelines.

12. As per the SOPs and 2015 Instructions the examination of a female victim of sexual abuse or rape involves three steps, that is observation through naked eye, digital examination and speculum examination. The 2015 Guidelines referres to digital examination to ascertain the status of the hymen. It also refers to bimanual traction. These terms are not defined anywhere in the SOPs or 2015 Instructions, however as per the reply filed by the Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab digital examination is performed to assess the vaginal canal and to report any bleeding/stains etc. Furthermore that the two finger test is part of the digital examination and bilateral digital traction is done to determine the status of the hymen. Therefore, as per the admitted position, digital examination and bilateral digital traction are terms used for virginity testing. In comparison Clause 14 of the 2020 Guidelines provides for a two step process, essentially being inspection with naked eye and thereafter, bilateral digital traction or speculum examination. Clauses 14 and 15 of the 2020 Guidelines read as follows:-

"14. Local examination should be detailed in lithotomy position including inspection, bilateral digital traction and speculum examination. Inspection should be both with naked eye, magnifying lens and by use of Glaister Keen glass rod as mentioned in prescribed Proforma. TWO FINGER TEST MUST NOT BE PERFORMED.

- Bilateral digital traction of the labia majora makes the hymenal edges visible. This maneuver stretches the hymen at 6 and 12 o'clock positions and any tear at these areas become evident and visible.
- Specular examination of the vaginal canal should be performed only in mature women. An appropriate sized speculum is introduced into the vagina to inspect the conditions of vaginal mucosa, its rouginess and to locate any bleeding, injury or any other condition of the vaginal mucosa and cervix. Preferably, this examination should be performed in operation theatre or in well equipped medico-legal clinic under general anesthesia, if needed.

15. Digital and speculum examination must not be done when hymen is found intact. Per speculum examination is not a must in the case of children/ young girls when there is no history of penetration and no visible injuries. The examination and treatment as needed may have to be performed under general anesthesia in case of minors and when injuries inflicted are severe. If there is vaginal discharge note its texture, color and odour etc."

In terms of the 2020 Guidelines the first step is an inspection with the naked eye and then a bilateral digital traction of the hymen and a speculum examination in mature woman. The term mature woman is not defined but it appears to suggest married women as they are not virgins hence the need for a speculum examination. Furthermore, digital examination meaning the two finger test is specifically prohibited in Clause 14 of the 2020 Guidelines but as per Clause 15 it is not done where the hymen is intact, meaning that it can be done where the hymen is not intact. As per the attached Proforma for Medico Legal Examination ("the Proforma") observations by naked eye, digital traction and instrument examination require inspection of the hymen to determine if torn, fresh or old. Interestingly it also allows a per-vaginum examination where required and per-vaginum examination is understood to mean the two finger test. The case of the terms digital examination bilateral digital traction and per-vaginum examination is likely to create confusion as to whether the two finger test is required to be carried out and will mean the continued practice of virginity testing as it is set in the process and procedures carried out over the years. Hence the 2020 Guidelines continues with the practice of virginity testing and has only attempted to confuse the issue rather than prohibit it.

13. The Surgeon Medico Legal Punjab, Lahore appeared and explained that digital examination is conducted as it is considered a necessary step in the textual protocol for medical examination of female victims of sexual abuse; that the two finger test is only conducted if deemed necessary and only through authorized women medical officers and that the consent of the victim is always obtained as per the given proforma. Further that the hymen test or two finger test is required to correlate the victims statement with the history of the victim. In this regard, he stated that the findings regarding the rupture of hymen, if fresh or old is done through bilateral digital examination and also through inspection of the naked eye. As per his contention, it is necessary to carry out these tests in order to adequately and effectively ascertain whether the incident of sexual abuse or rape did in fact take place. In his professional opinion the hymen is ruptured in very rare cases while carrying out certain sporting activities or cycling and therefore, the reliance on the status of the hymen in no manner prejudices the rights of female victims.

14. In this context, it is clear from a reading of the 2020 Guidelines that the Respondents still require virginity testing and although the 2020 Guidelines specifically state that the two finger test must not be performed, it is qualified such that it is not performed where the hymen is found intact. Consequently, this means that in terms of the 2020 Guidelines virginity testing through bilateral digital traction and digital examination or even per-vaginum examination may be carried out and the two finger test will not be carried out where the victim is a minor, presumably a virgin. However even in such cases the status of the hymen is examined to confirm her virginity.

The Consequences

15. In support of the arguments made, the Petitioners relied on a series of judgments to show the prejudice caused by virginity testing through the orders of the court. As per the judgments provided, the common conclusion drawn by the courts, based on the medico-legal examination report, is as follows:-

- As per deposition of lady doctor, the victim was proved to be habitual to sexual intercourse;
- Hymen had got healed tears; Vaginal orifice admits two fingers;

- As per the opinion of the lady medical officer, the victim is not a virgin as her vagina admits two fingers easily and the hymen was not found intact;
- The vagina of the examinee admitted two fingers easily and hence an unmarried girl of sixteen years of age appears to be not of a fair virtue;
- According to the Medico-legal Report the hymen was torn fresh and the vagina admitted two fingers tightly;
- Lady doctor had observed that vagina of victim admitted two fingers which was, prima facie, not possible if rape was committed only once with a virgin victim;
- On examination, vagina admitted two fingers with or without pain on genital examination and no discomfort noted;
- In the opinion of the doctor she was used to sexual act.

As per the different medico-legal examination reports examined by the Court, the status of the hymen is provided for and some reports state that two fingers were easily inserted into the vagina along with the opinion of the medical officer as to whether rape or sexual abuse took place. From a bare reading of the 2020 Guidelines and the Proforma and the filled in reports it appears that the process of virginity testing through two fingers or hymen examination are standardized and form the basis of the medical officers opinion or the court's opinion on the virtue and character of the victim. Often enough the opinion of the medical officer is carried into the judgments of the court and language such as habituated to sex, women of easy virtue, habitual to sexual intercourse, indulging in sexual activities are used to describe the victim. The basis being that a woman habituated to sex, is likely to have raised a false charge of rape or sexual abuse.

16. There is no law governing the requirements of virginity testing specifically the two finger test and the hymen test. At the core of the Respondents case, the justification is that these tests are carried out on the basis of established medical protocols in cases of rape and sexual abuse. In this regard, reliance has been placed on Modi, A Textbook of Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology (Modi's Textbook), which is relied upon for the purposes of medico-legal examination protocols. There is a chapter on Virginity, Pregnancy and Delivery and on Sexual Offences where it is stated that the question of virginity arises in case of rape. In terms of the 24th Edition of Modi's Textbook, the question of virginity is relevant and can be ascertained through an inspection of the status of the hymen, even though he states that an intact hymen is not an absolute sign of virginity. Modi's Textbook also provides the methodology for the examination of the hymen and justifies the same on the strength of establishing whether or not the victim is a virgin. He emphasized on the concept of false charges which is common in rape cases, hence it is necessary to examine the veracity of the victims statement by checking her virginity. However, Modi's Textbook in its 26th Edition shows a change in perspective as it now provides as under:-

It is demeaning to the status of a woman to be forced by orders of Court to carry out test of virginity of woman and must be taken as a grave threat to privacy, a cherished fundamental right. The testimonial compulsions for DNA testing described elsewhere the book with reference to judgments of the Supreme Court shall apply, a fortiorany virginity tests also. Unlike a DNA test which is scientific and assures 99.99 percent accuracy, virginity test, where there is no pregnancy or child birth, could never be conclusive. While section 53, Cr.P.C. which allows for taking samples of blood or urine the course of criminal investigation, there is no scope for clinical violation of a women body on specious grounds of unraveling truth. Another instance where Courts have refused any medical practice that is invasive of privacy and regarded as despicable, requiring to be discarded is 'the two finger test' to assess past sexual conduct of the woman in cases of sexual abuse. For the same reason, virginity test shall also be discarded. (emphasis added)

Hence the reliance on medical protocol has taken a total shift from its original view and now as per accepted medical protocols, virginity testing is no longer considered to be relevant in cases of rape or sexual abuse as it is has no scientific or medical basis.
Medical and Scientific Views on Virginity Tests

17. The uses and impact of medico-legal evidence, globally is discussed by Janice Du Mont and Deborah White in their review titled The uses and impact of medico-legal evidence in sexual assault cases: A global review commissioned by the World Health Organization. As per the review medico-legal evidence is collected from a victim's body in order to corroborate her account of a sexual assault for a court of law. In any legal action pursued in relation to her case, this evidence is typically used to aid the investigation and prosecution of the accused. In this regard, the objective of the forensic evidence is to prove or exclude a physical connection between individuals and objects or places. More specifically, the medico-legal evidence taken from a sexually assaulted woman may be used in determining the occurrence of recent sexual activity, identifying the assailant, establishing the use of force or resistance and indicating an inability to consent due to the influence of alcohol and drugs or an otherwise diminished mental capacity. As per the review, the relevant features of a medico-legal examination in cases of sexual violence are the written consent from the victim, medical history of the victim, the sexual assault history with relevant details including the date, time and location of the occurrence as well as details of the assailant. The medico-legal findings are relevant with respect to the clothing worn by the victim, the women's hair, urine or blood samples and alcohol. A physical examination is required to identify injuries caused to the victim which are then properly documented. A speculum, colposcope, anoscope and a staining agent like toluidine blue dye may be used to further detect injuries to the ano-genital area. The skin is examined for secretions and body cavities are swabbed for seminal fluid. A victim's emotional state may be observed and recorded. As per the review virginity testing is not relevant to establish rape or sexual abuse.

18. Reviews conducted of medical literature by United Nations Human Rights, World Health Organization and UN Women on Eliminating Virginity Testing, An Interagency Statement have concluded that appearance of the hymen cannot give conclusive evidence of vaginal penetration or sexual history:
The utility of hymen examination as a test for virginity was reviewed. The studies indicated, as has been described in previous reviews, that the inspection of the hymen cannot give conclusive evidence of vaginal penetration or any other sexual history. Normal hymen examination findings are likely to occur in those with and without a history of vaginal penetration. A hymen exam with abnormal findings is also inconclusive: abnormal hymenal features such a hymenal transection, laceration, enlarged opening, or scars are found in females with and without a history of sexual intercourse. One hymenal feature commonly examined in virginity testing is hymenal opening size. Hymenal opening size also was found to be an unreliable test for vaginal penetration. Hymen opening size varies with the method of examination, the position of the examinee, the cooperation and relaxation of the examinee, and the examinee's age, weight, and height.

19. Similarly, Rose McKeon Olson and Claudia Garcia-Moreno in Reproductive Health wrote in Virginity Testing, A Systematic Review on the two finger test in which it is stated that the medical community does not consider vaginal laxity an indicator of sexual intercourse:
Another form of virginity testing is performed by insertion of two fingers into the vagina to examine its laxity. This form of virginity testing was not included in the review of literature because the medical community has not considered vaginal laxity a clinical indicator of previous sexual intercourse. The vagina is a dynamic muscular canal that varies in size and shape depending on individual, developmental stage, physical position, and various hormonal factors such as sexual arousal and stress.

20. The World Health Organization, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, and Stop Rape Now - UN Action on Sexual Violence in Conflict have developed a toolkit titled "Strengthening the Medico-Legal Response to Sexual Violence" which assists state bodies in developing an effective response to incidents of sexual violence. In this document, these organizations have also stressed that:
The hymen may not appear injured even after penetration has occurred. Hence, the absence of injury does not exclude penetration. The health practitioner cannot make any comment on whether the activity was consensual or otherwise.
Furthermore, they have also stressed that:
Digital examinations of the vagina and anus are rarely warranted. They should not be used to assess the tone of the orifice or to comment on the likelihood or frequency of penetration.

21. In addition the Independent Forensic Expert Group (IFER), a group of 35 independent forensic specialists from 18 countries established by the International Rehabilitation Council for Torture Victims (IRCT) to provide technical advice on issues where allegations of torture or ill treatment are made, issued a statement in 2014 on virginity testing. In the said statement they also cover the medical perspectives on such tests and state:
Published and peer-reviewed medical literature establishes that virginity examinations have no scientific value. The status of the hvmen has no correlation with previous penetration or sexual contact; it does not enable a determination of whether penetration of the hymen or vagina by a penis or any other object has occurred. Virginity examinations also do not assist in the detection of sexually transmitted infections.

While examination of the hymen may, in very limited contexts, be useful in the diagnosis of sexual assault in prepubescent females, it is not an indicator of sexual intercourse or habituation. An individual with an undamaged hymen may or may not have experienced penetrative sexual contact. There similarly may be no trace of hymenal lesion following sexual assault.
At puberty, the hymen is exposed to oestrogen, which alters its appearance, shape, and elasticity. Studies demonstrate that hymen configurations vary, and the hymen may exhibit changes prior to sexual intercourse. The belief that absence of the hymen confirms that there has been penetration of the vagina is incorrect; equally false is the notion that the presence of a 'normal' or 'intact' hymen means that penetration has not occurred.
Further illustrating the non-utility of this type of examination, in a survey of forensic physicians conducted in Turkey, two-thirds of respondents reported that their findings from at least one virginity examination conducted in the previous twelve months contradicted a recent virginity examination of the same patient. In 73 percent of those cases, the contradictory findings were made by general practitioners or gynecologists.
Health professionals therefore have no medical foundation for conducting virginity examinations; the examinations are irrelevant and harmful to women, and serve as a form of social control of their sexuality. (emphasis added)

22. As per a report published in 2018 by the World Health Organization and United Nations Human Rights titled Eliminating Virginity Testing: An Interagency Statement, virginity testing is unscientific, medically unnecessary and unreliable and it can be painful, humiliating and traumatic for the victim. The Independent Forensic Expert Group Report titled Statement on Virginity Testing has stated that virginity examinations are premised on a correlation between the practice of sexual intercourse and immorality or criminal deviancy. Be nature, as they can only be conducted on those who are unmarried, the examinations are discriminatory. In the justice context, correlating virginity to purity elevates the repugnance of sexual violence against women who are 'virgins'. Yet, it similarly diminishes the perception of the severity of sexual violence against women who have previously engaged in sexual intercourse; and it has been used to suggest that those women are somehow responsible for the acts perpetrated against them. It also states that the status of the hymen has no correlation with previous penetration or sexual contact; it does not enable a determination of whether penetration of the hymen or vagina by a penis or any other object has occurred. Virginity examinations also do not assist in the detection of sexual transmitted infections. While examination of the hymen may, in very limited contexts, be useful in the diagnosis of sexual assault in prepubescent females, it is not an indicator of sexual intercourse of habituation. An individual with an undamaged hymen may or may not have experienced penetrative sexual contact. There similarly may be no trace of hymenal lesion following sexual assault. Finally it states that the concept of virginity also has no relevance to the forensic medical examination, diagnosis, and documentation of sexual assault. In this context there are volumes in international publications issued by the WHO, United National Human Rights and UN Women, who have also deprecated the practice of virginity testing. These reports and statements make it clear that internationally there is clarity and consensus that virginity tests by way of the two finger test and hymen test cannot indicate definitively that there was any sexual violence. Hence globally these tests are neither considered to be medically or scientifically viable for investigating sexual violence.

Judicial Review

23. The issue of virginity testing has been considered by the Supreme Court of India in its judgment dated 11.04.2013 passed in Criminal Appeal No.1226/2011 titled Lillu alias Rajesh and another v. State of Haryana wherein it has been held that:- the two finger test and its interpretation violates the right of rape survivors to privacy, physical and mental integrity and dignity. Thus, this test, even if the report is affirmative, cannot ipso facto, be given rise to presumption of consent.
In another case, Allahabad High Court of India in its judgment dated 28.08.2014 passed in case Capital Cases No.574 of 2013 titled Akhtar v. State of U.P. has held that:-
These finger insertion tests in female orifices without the victim's consent have been held to be degrading, violative of her mental and physical integrity and dignity and right to privacy and are re-traumatizing for the rape victim. Relying on the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, 1966 and the United Nations Declaration of Basic Principles of Justice for Victims of Crime and Abuse of Power, 1985 it was further held in Lillu v. State of Haryana, (2013) 14 SCC 643 that no presumption of consent could be drawn ipso facto on the strength of an affirmative report based on the unwarranted two fingers test.
The High Court of Gujarat at Ahmedabad in its judgment dated 17.01.2020 passed in R/Criminal Appeal No.122 of 1996 with R/Criminal Appeal No.25 of 1996 titled State of Gujarat v. Remeshchandra Ramabhai Panchal has held that:-
The test itself is one of the most unscientific methods of examination used in the context of sexual abuse and has no forensic value. Whether a survivor is habituated to sexual intercourse prior to the assault has absolutely no bearing on whether she consented when the rape occurred. Section 155 of the Indian Evidence Act, does not allow a rape victim's credibility to be compromised on the ground that she is "of generally immoral character".
The issue of virginity testing has also been examined by the Bangladesh High Court Division in its judgment dated 12.04.2018 passed in W.P. No.10663/2013 wherein it has been held that:-
The TFT is not scientific, reliable, valid and hereby prohibited in any examination of rape victim. The respondents shall make available the health care protocol (Health Response To Gender Based Violence-Protocol For The Health Care Providers) to forensic experts, physicians who conduct medical examination on rape victims; police officers who conduct investigation of rape case.
With reference to virginity test, the European Court of Human Rights in the case of Aydin v. Turkey No.57/1996/676/866 has held that:-

The various medical examinations ordered by the public prosecutor and the corresponding doctors' reports also failed to meet the needs of an effective investigation into a complaint of rape, focused as they were on the question as to whether or not she was a virgin as opposed to a rape victim. The focus of the examinations should really have been on whether the applicant was a rape victim, which was the very essence of her complaint.
These courts have all held that there is no scientific or medical basis to carry out virginity testing in the form of two finger test or to rely on the status of the hymen whether it is torn or intact as it has no relevance to the investigation into the incident of rape or sexual abuse.

24. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan has considered this issue in the case titled Muhammad Akram v. The State (PLD 1989 SC 742) where in the Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that:
The other argument based on the assumption that the prosecutrix in this case having been used to sexual intercourse should not have been relied upon because of her so-called moral depravity, is also not tenable as it is too wide to be accepted in every case. In the present case it is only an assumption that she might have been used to sexual intercourse and on that basis the benefit of possible consent has been allowed to the appellant in the conviction and sentence for lesser offence. Otherwise; firstly, the medical evidence does not disclose as to whether, the condition of the genitals of the prosecutrix was necessarily due to abusive sexual intercourse or on account of intercourse under compulsion or deceit etc. and/or; whether or not the condition found on examination was not on account of other causes including self-abuse. Therefore, mere opinion of a Doctor, as in this case, would not weaken the testimony of the prosecutrix and would not for that reason necessitate any further corroboratory/supporting evidence for basing the conviction on her statement, if otherwise she appears to be reliable and her testimony inspires confidence.
In Shahzad alias Shaddu and others v. The State (2002 SCMR 1009) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:
We have also examined the question as to whether any advantage can be taken by the petitioners on the allegation that prosecutrix was a girl of an easy virtue. The answer would be in negative as blanket authority cannot be given to ravish the modesty of such-like girls. (emphasis added)
In Shakeel and 5 others v. The State (PLD 2010 SC 47) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:
It reveals from the scrutiny of record that she was medically examined on 18-2-2000 by lady Doctor namely Musarrat Parveen (PW2) and the swabs were found stained with semen as per the report of Serologist (Exh.PW). We have not been persuaded to agree with the prime contention of learned Advocate Supreme Court that since the vagina of Mst. Asia Bibi (PW1/prosecutrix) admitted two fingers easily hence being a lady of an easy virtue her statement should have been discarded for the simple reason that even if it is admitted that she was a girl of an easy virtue, no blanket authority can be given to rape her by anyone who wishes to do so. The only question which needs determination on the basis of medical evidence would be as to whether she was subjected to Zina-bil-Jabr. (emphasis added)

International Obligations

25. It is also noted that the United Nations Committee on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and the United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child, the United Nations Special Rapporteur in Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment and the United Nations Special Rapporteur on Violence Against Women, its Causes and Consequences have all declared virginity testing to be a harmful practice. Pakistan is a signatory to and has ratified the CEDAW which prohibits all forms of discrimination against women and has stated that there is no medical or scientific basis for carrying out virginity testing in sexual abuse or rape cases, where the victim is a female. As per the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, 1966, (which Pakistan has ratified), two-finger test has been denounced for having adverse physical, psychological and socioeconomic consequences. Further the 1995 Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action of the Fourth World Conference on Women (to which Pakistan is signatory) called upon all states to take all appropriate measures to eliminate harmful, medically unnecessary or coercive medical interventions. Consequently it denounced carrying out virginity testing not only for being discriminatory but also for having harmful consequences.

26. These international obligations cast a responsibility on the Government of Pakistan to ensure that all necessary steps are taken to prevent discrimination and specifically to prevent carrying out virginity testing, as globally it is accepted that virginity testing does not establish the offence of rape or sexual abuse nor does past sexual conduct have any relevance in the medico-legal examination which aims to collect evidence on the charge of sexual violence. In this regard, the Criminal Law (Amendment) (Offences Relating to Rape) Act, 2016 deleted Article 151(4) of the QSO which effectively prohibits adopting a line of questioning on the character of the victim. Hence her past history with reference to sexual intercourse or her being of easy virtue or habituated to sex is totally unnecessary and in fact degrading so far as the victim is concerned. In this regard, it is noted that Section 13 of the Anti-Rape (Investigation and Trial) Ordinance, 2020 ("2020 Ordinance") specifically prohibits the two finger virginity testing for the purposes of medico-legal examination of a victim related to Scheduled Offences. It also specifically provides that any evidence to show that the victim is of immoral character shall be inadmissible.

Fundamental Rights

27. Virginity testing is highly invasive, having no scientific or medical requirement, yet carried out in the name of medical protocols in sexual violence cases. It is a humiliating practice, which is used to cast suspicion on the victim, as opposed to focusing on the accused and the incident of sexual violence. This in effect amounts to gender based discrimination as it is neither a medical condition which requires treatment nor does it provide any clinical benefit to the victim. Its sole purpose is to determine whether the victim is habituated to sexual intercourse so as corroborate her statement on the charge of rape and sexual abuse. When seen in the context of an investigation into the incident of sexual violence, whether the victim was previously accustomed to sexual intercourse is hardly the determinative question. The issue is whether the accused committed rape on the victim in the time and circumstances complained of. If the victim, is found to not be a virgin, it cannot and does not suggest that she was not raped or sexually abused. What it does is place the victim on trial in place of the accused and shifts the focus on her virginity status. In this regard, the victim's sexual behaviour is totally irrelevant as even the most promiscuous victim does not deserve to be raped, nor should the incident of sexual violence be decided on the basis of a virginity test. When seen in the context of fundamental rights Article 9 of the Constitution provides for the right to life and liberty as per law and Article 14 of the Constitution provides for the fundamental rights of dignity of man. These rights ensure that life is to be lived with a dignified existence protecting one from degradation and ensuring accessibility to a decent physical, social and cultural environment. It also protects a person from structured stigmatizing as stereotype discrimination adversely impacts the dignity of a person. Furthermore, it ensures that right to receive healthcare of a high standard and to the highest attainable standard of physical and mental health. Reliance is placed on Ahmad Abdullah and 62 others v. Government of the Punjab and 3 others (PLD 2003 Lahore 752), Bashir Ahmad and another v. Maqsood Ahmad and another (2010 PCr.LJ 1824), Liaqat Ali Chughtai v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Railways and 6 others (PLD 2013 Lahore 413), Hafiz Junaid Mahmood v. Government of Punjab and others (PLD 2017 Lahore 1), Government of Sindh through Secretary Health Department and others v. Dr. Nadeem Rizvi and others (2020 SCMR 1) and Mst. Beena v. Raja Muhammad and others (PLD 2020 SC 508).

28. The virginity test by its very nature is invasive and an infringement on the privacy of a woman to her body. It is a blatant violation of the dignity of a woman. The conclusion drawn from these tests about a woman's sexual history and character is a direct attack on her dignity and leads to adverse effects on the social and cultural standing of a victim. It is also discriminatory as the test is carried out primarily to ascertain whether or not she is sexually active, for which there appears to be no justification as being sexual active is irrelevant to the incident of rape or sexual abuse. If at all, there is any testing of the status of the hymen, it can only be for medical purposes with respect to injury or treatment. However, there is no justification for such information to be used for the purposes of determining whether or not the incident of rape or sexual abuse took place.

29. Sexual violence/rape is the most heinous of crimes. It is an intrusion on the privacy and dignity of a woman and victim should be treated with care and caution. Where evidence is to be collected in the form of a medico-legal examination, it is necessary to acknowledge that the only reason the two finger test and the hymen examination is carried out is to ascertain if the victim was a virgin. A lot has been stated that prior to carrying out these tests, the consent of the victim is obtained, however it is noted that even the consent obtained through the written form, is neither meaningful nor instructional. As per the 2020 Guidelines and even in the 2015 Instructions the consent form is as follow:-

I _____(patient's name) hereby give consent for all the procedures of medico-legal examination that have been explained to me by the doctor on duty. This will include photography for identification, examination of genitalia, collection of specimens for evidence, medical treatment if required and release of report for police and court purposes. I also declare that on oath that I have not undergone any Medico Legal examination previously from any doctor regarding the present incidence and I have described all the information and facts truly.

---------- ----------

Signatures thumb impression of victim) (Name, Signature and thumb impression of guardian for victims below 12 years of age)
CNIC No.

Signature of doctor:_____

This consent form does not explain why the two finger test or hymen test is required or what its purpose is. To the contrary, it misleads the victim into thinking that she will be examined to collect evidence of the incident or rape or sexual abuse and not evidence with respect to her sexual history or promiscuity. In this regard, the two finger test and the hymen test conducted for the purposes of obtaining the status of the victims virginity is a violation of her personal integrity. It is a physical invasion of her body and the mere fact that as per the proforma, consent is taken it does not in any manner justify carrying out such a test. It is vital that in such cases, the victim understands the requirements of the medical examination, the manner in which the examination will be carried out and the purpose for which it is being conducted. It is only on the victims understanding of these elements that it can be said that she has given her consent for a physical examination. As has already been stated, rape and sexual abuse is a heinous crime which amounts to a life changing event for the victim which is irreparable. Hence responding to the victim appropriately is just as important as collecting evidence from the person of the victim.

30. Medical forensic examination report should use appropriate language to describe the victim and her state and should totally restrain from commenting as to whether or not rape or sexual abuse has taken place. The damage caused by such comments and use of words describing the woman as habituated to sex or regularly involved in sexual intercourse can have far reaching effects on the victim socially as well as mentally and personally. Presumptions on her behaviour, her clothes, her activities and her past history are easy to form, yet difficult to erase. Sensitivity is the need of the victim, who has experienced physical and psychological trauma and may have physical injuries as well as psychological injuries. So far as, women medical officer is concerned, section 164A, Cr.P.C. clearly provides for information in cases of rape or sexual abuse. In this regard, the perception over sexual conduct should be avoided and the standardized manner with which the process is carried out should change. Each victim has to be dealt with care and caution and each incident of rape or sexual abuse, as reported in the medico-legal examination has to be in the context of tracing evidence and no more. Although it has been argued on behalf of the Respondents that there is a tendency to levy false charges of rape and sexual abuse, this does not justify carrying out virginity testing as the purpose of the medico-legal examination is to ascertain whether or not an act of sexual violence has taken place. Hence even if the charge is false, a proper examination on the basis of science and forensic evidence will bring out the truth.

31. Furthermore, despite the fact that the Government of Punjab and the Surgeon Medico-Legal Punjab have emphasized on the efforts made with reference to the 2020 Guidelines, I find the same to be totally lacking in protocols and guidance. There is no evidence on how to ensure that proper consent is obtained, what is to be explained, what language is to be used and how to interact with the victim. The 2020 Guidelines or for that matter the 2015 Instructions and SOPs do not require that consent be obtained for every test and procedure undertaken and that the victim be informed that she can refuse any test at any point of the examination. There are no protocols on how to treat the victim, on how to take her history or even question her on sexual intercourse. The guidelines make no distinction between minors, adolescents or otherwise nor does it attend to disabilities or disabled victims. The instructions and guidelines are a reflection of the time and effort put into devising them and shows the seriousness attached to the issue. In this case, the 2020 Guidelines appear to be a hurried attempt to show vigilance and support, however in reality the Respondent, Government of Punjab has shown quite the opposite. The 2020 Guidelines do not categorically prohibit virginity testing, rather they attempt to camouflage the issue so as to continue this practice. Under the circumstances, the 2020 Guidelines should be revised so that all required protocols and instructions as detailed above and as per international practice are included.

32. For all what has been discussed above, in terms of the documents relied upon by the Respondents for the purposes of carrying out medico-legal examination in female victims of rape or sexual abuse, there is no clarity with reference to whether the 2020 Guidelines have replaced the 2015 Instructions and SOPs. This clarity is vital as medico-legal examination must be carried out on the basis of a comprehensive code setting out the protocols and requirements leaving no ambiguity as to whether the two finger test or the hymen test to ascertain virginity is required. In this regard, it is clarified that the hymen test can be carried out if it is warranted medically or for treatment purposes and in this regard the 2020 Guidelines or the 2015 Instructions and the Proforma should specifically require the medical officer to stipulate the reasons for carrying out the hymen test. It is also noted that notwithstanding the promulgation of 2020 Ordinance which specifically prohibits the two finger test by way of section 13, the Federal Government has taken no steps to enforce the requirements of the 2020 Ordinance or any steps to create awareness and training in order to change the habits of the medico-legal officers in carrying out the virginity test. As the concept of virginity testing is ingrained in the processes of the medico-legal examination without proper training and awareness programs, there can be no success in bringing the tests to an end. In this regard, it is noted that even with respect to obtaining consent from the victim, training is required for the staff and the medico-legal officers involved to understand what meaningful consent is and how to obtain that consent. Also to ensure that the victim understands the procedures for which she is giving her consent and the consequences in terms thereof. Through the course of hearing and despite the voluminous information placed before the Court by the counsel for the Petitioners, Respondent No.11, Surgeon Medico-Legal Punjab has defended the two finger test and hymen test on the basis of medical protocols which as per the information provided before this Court has also undergone change and no longer recognizes it as part of the medical protocols. In this regard, it is vital that Respondent No.11 himself along with his department as well as Specialized Healthcare and Medical Education Department, Lahore are aware of updated medical protocols and forensic science with reference to the cases of sexual violence. Change can only be brought about when the people responsible for the change understand and acknowledge the reasons for changing old practices which no longer find any justification. Merely documenting change and not implementing change does not mean that the Federation or the Provincial Government have acted in accordance with the Constitution, the law and international obligations. Hence a concerted effort must be made so as to ensure that virginity tests are stopped in totality.

33. In view of the aforesaid, these petitions are allowed in the following terms:--

(i) It is declared that two finger test and the hymen test carried out for the purposes of ascertaining the virginity of a female victim of rape or sexual abuse is unscientific having no medical basis, therefore it has no forensic value in cases of sexual violence;

(ii) It is further declared that virginity test offends the personal dignity of the female victim and therefore is against the right to life and right to dignity enshrined in Articles 9 and 14 of the Constitution;

(iii) It is also declared that virginity tests are discriminatory against the female victim as they are carried out on the basis of their gender, therefore offends Article 25 of the Constitution;

(iv) Consequently to the extent that the 2020 Guidelines, SOPs and the 2015 Instructions mandate the two finger test or the hymen test for the purposes of ascertaining the virginity of the victim are declared to be illegal and against the Constitution and the Federation and Provincial Government should take necessary steps to ensure that virginity tests are not carried out in medico-legal examination of the victims of rape and sexual abuse;

(v) The Provincial Government should devise appropriate medico-legal protocols and guidelines, along with standard operating procedures, in line with international practice that recognize and manage sensitively the care of victims of sexual violence. This includes regular training and awareness programs so that all stakeholders understand that virginity tests have no clinical or forensic value.

JUDGMENT
This Civil Revision impugns judgment dated 5.6.2010 passed by the Additional District Judge, Bhakkar in Civil Appeal No. 76/2009.
2. The basic facts are that the Petitioners filed a suit for possession (Civil Suit No. 276/1997) on 23.10.1997 before the Civil Judge 1st Class, Mankera against the Respondents with respect to property measuring 3 Marlas within the vicinity of Ward No. 2, Town Committee, Mankera ("the Property"). The Suit was contested by Defendants No. 1, 2 and 3 being Respondents No. 7, 8 and 3 before this Court and decreed in favour of the Petitioners vide judgment and decree dated 20.6.2005 wherein Respondents No. 7 and 8 were declared to be illegal occupants of the Property and the Petitioners were declared owners of the Property, thereby rejecting Respondent No. 3's claim of title. Consequently Respondents No. 7 and 8 were directed to hand over possession of the Property to the Petitioners. Aggrieved by this judgment and decree, the Respondents filed an appeal before the Additional District Judge, Bhakkar who remanded the case with the direction that the case be decided afresh after framing an additional issue regarding limitation being Issue No. 1 A. The learned trial Court again decreed the suit in favour of the Petitioners vide judgment and decree dated 16.4.2008. Against this judgment and decree dated 16.4.2008, the Respondents filed Civil Appeal No. 76/2009 which was accepted and the impugned judgment and decree was set aside vide judgment dated 5.6.2010 passed by the appellate Court. The Petitioners filed the instant Civil Revision against the judgment of the appellate Court dated 5.6.2010 on the ground that the Respondents were neither owners nor in possession of the Property; that the rapat roznamcha waqiati Ex.P1 clearly stated that Respondents No. 7 and 8 were in illegal possession of the Property; that the Petitioners had a registered sale deed dated 26.2.1991, Ex.P3 which was not disputed by the Respondents. Hence there was no basis to give possession of the land to the Respondents.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the case of the Respondents before the trial Court and the appellate Court was essentially that they are joint owners in Khasra No. 2425, Khata No. 156 which comprises of 42 Kanals 2 Marlas of land; that they purchased and in the said Khasra and since the properties have not been partitioned, the Petitioners cannot lay claim to any specific piece of land within the joint Khata as all co-sharers have rights in the said Khata. Learned counsel argued that there was nothing on the record to establish the title of Defendant No. 3 who is Respondent No. 3 before this Court; that Respondent No. 3 claimed that he was owner in possession of 5 Kanals of land out of which 3 Marlas is disputed. However Respondent No. 3 did not tender any title documents before the trial Court. This fact has been totally ignored in the order of the appellate Court which accepted the contentions of the Respondents that they were co-owners in Khasra No. 2425 and Khata No. 156 without actually considering the issue of their title.

4. On behalf of Respondent No. 4, it is argued that the said Respondent is the legal heir of Ameer Muhammad along with Respondents No. 2 and 3; that Ameer Muhammad is the owner of the Property which the Petitioners claim that they are in ownership of, however since the issue is of joint ownership in the same Khasra and Khata, the suit for possession is not maintainable without partition of the Property and without impleading all co-sharers. In this case, he argued that the Petitioners did not implead all the co-sharers and as such there was no report available on the file to support the Petitioners' contention that the Property they claim ownership of was the specific land which they are entitled to.

5. This is an old case pending since the year 2017. As per the order sheet, Respondent No. 4 has been contesting this case whereas the other Respondents despite service have never tendered appearance before the Court. On 18.9.2019 notice 'pervi' was issued to the Respondents except Respondents No. 2 to 4 yet despite the same no one has tendered appearance. On 1.6.2020 final opportunity was given and again no one appeared on behalf of Respondents No. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7 and 8, hence they are proceeded against ex-parte. Respondent No. 4 is present before this Court.

6. In this regard, it is noted that as per the Amended Memo. of Parties filed on 8.2.2018 Respondents No. 2, 3 and 4 are the legal heirs of Ameer Muhammad who was Defendant No. 3 in the suit filed by the 3 Petitioners and Respondents No. 7 and 8 are the legal heirs of Defendants No. 1 and 2 in the said suit.

7. As per the record, the Petitioners filed a suit for possession against the Respondents on 23.10.1997. They claimed that they purchased 19 Marlas of land in Khasra No. 2425, Khata No. 126/156, of which they have obtained possession of 16 Marlas of land and that 3 Marlas of land was wrongfully in the possession of Ghulam Qadir and Mazhar being Defendants No. 1 and 2 in the said suit. Defendants No. 1 and 2 filed written statements as did Defendant No. 3 being Respondent No. 3 in the instant Civil Revision in which it was claimed that Defendant No. 3, Ameer Muhammad was owner of 5 Kanals of land of which he had handed over possession of some land to Defendants No. 1 and 2. Hence the Petitioners' claim that they are owners of the Property was contested. Eight Issues were framed in the suit and the suit was decided in favour of the Petitioners on 20.6.2005. As per the judgment dated 20.6.2005 passed by the Civil Judge 1st Class, Mankera, the Petitioners produced four witnesses and placed reliance on rapat roznamcha waqiati Ex.P1, map of the disputed plot Ex.P2 and registered sale deed as Ex.P.3. Whereas Defendants No. 1 and 2 produced two witnesses along with two affidavits Ex.D1 and Ex.D2, Defendant No. 3 relied upon the statement of the Clerk of TC, Mankera as DW1 and he himself appeared as a witness as DW2. He also relied upon a decree dated 13.12.1995 as Mark-A. On the basis of the evidence the Court held that the Petitioners have a registered sale deed in their favour and that the rapat roznamcha waqiati clearly provides that Defendants No. 1 and 2 are in illegal occupation of some land. The Court also concluded that there was no document on the basis of which Defendant No. 3 could claim ownership of 5 Kanals of land as nothing was produced in Court. Consequently they failed to make out their case of ownership and possession.

8. The appellate Court vide judgment dated 5.6.2010 while setting aside the judgment and decree dated 16.4.2008 disagreed with the opinion of the trial Court on the ground that the Respondents were the owners of land in Khasra No. 2425, Khata No. 156 and that as per the sale deed the defendants were in possession of two rooms on the Property which originally the vendor Sharif-ud-Din had requested the defendants to vacate. Hence the appellate Court concluded that the Petitioners never got possession of 3 Marlas of land out of the 19 Kanals of land and that the Respondents were the owners of 11 Marlas of land in Khasra No. 2425, Khata No. 156 being co-sharers in the said Khata. Consequently judgment and decree dated 16.4.2008 passed by Civil Judge 1st Class, Mankera was set aside on the ground that co-sharers cannot lay claim to specific land in a joint Khata and that the Petitioners cannot claim the specific property as being their property as there has been no demarcation or partition.

9. The record shows that the Petitioners exhibited rapat roznamcha waqiati Ex.P1 in which the revenue officer made a clear finding that Defendants No. 1 and 2 were in illegal possession of the Property. The order of the appellate Court did not take into consideration the rapat roznamcha waqiati Ex.P1. In fact the appellate Court has incorrectly held in its order that the Petitioners have not obtained any report of any revenue authority to establish that the Property is part and parcel of the 19 Marlas of land they had purchased. The rapat roznamcha waqiati Ex.P1 is available on the file, in terms of which the revenue officer not only stated that Defendant No. 3 was in possession of his 5 Kanals of land but was prepared in his presence, he can hardly justify claiming ownership or possession over the Petitioners' land under the garb of joint ownership. Hence this finding of the appellate Court is contrary to the record. Furthermore the Respondents No. 7, 8 and Respondent No. 3, Ameer Muhammad relied upon Mark-A to establish title in Khasra No. 2425, Khata No. 156. In the first instance it is noted that as per the record and on the basis of the arguments made before this Court, no title document, in favour of Defendant No. 3, was ever produced in the Court. The stated defendant relied upon the decree sheet in Civil Suit No. 222/1992 dated 13.12.1995 which does not establish that he is the owner of the Property or that he has a share in the aforementioned Khasra or Khata nor was the judgment attached with the said decree sheet nor any details were provided. The appellate Court failed to consider this aspect of the matter and concluded in favour of Respondent No. 3 on the basis of the possession of Respondents No. 1 and 2. Hence there was no justification for the Court to conclude that the defendants were co-sharers in Khasra No. 2425, Khata No. 156 as Respondent No. 3 already had possession of the land he was in ownership of. Finally the Petitioners have a registered sale deed in their favour which was never disputed. Admittedly they were in possession of 16 Marlas of land on the basis of the sale deed and the description of the land given therein. The appellate Court had no document before it on the basis of which joint ownership in Khasra No. 2425 and Khata No. 156 was established with respect to the Property. Mere possession, without any title in support thereof does not give Respondent No. 3 title nor justifies Respondents No. 7 and 8's possession which was reported as illegal by the revenue authority. Furthermore Ex.P1 provides that the parties settled their dispute with respect to possession in Khasra No. 2425, Khata No. 156, consequently Respondent

No. 3 is unable to justify his claim over 3 Marlas of land in the said Khasra, especially since Respondent No. 4 admits that Ameer Muhammad's possession over 5 Kanals of land is not in issue.

10. In view of the aforesaid, the instant Civil Revision is accepted and the impugned judgment dated 5.6.2010 passed by the Additional District Judge, Bhakkar in Civil Appeal No. 76/2009 is set aside.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition along with connected Petitions, as detailed in Schedule "A" appended with the judgment, as all Petitions question the levy of advertisement fee by the Respondents.

2. The Petitioners before the Court are primarily banking companies who have challenged the levy of advertisement fee as imposed by the various different Respondent authorities. The Petitioners have been asked to pay advertisement fee for the signboards affixed at their branches. In some cases the fee is being charged for neon signs, stickers and other forms of signage, on the windows of the branch, ATM cabins and elsewhere. Also before the Court are different companies such as Bata Pakistan Limited, Punjab Beverages, Agha Khan Hospital, TCS, Singer Pakistan, Coca Cola Beverages and Raiz Bottlers who have also been levied advertisement fee for the affixation of signboard at their office premises, shops and hospitals along with neon signs and other materials, similar to the Banks. One set of Petitioners before this Court are contractors who specialize in the business of outdoor advertisement and install bill boards and sky signs in various different cities of Punjab. They have been charged advertisement fee for outdoor billboards and sky boards and other forms of advertisement. Most of the Petitioners have also impugned the demand notices issued by the Respondents for payment of advertisement fee. The Respondent authorities before the Court are:

(i) Local Government(s);
(ii) Cantonment Boards;
(iii) Parks and Horticulture Authority ("PHA");
(iv) Defence Housing Authority ("DHA") and
(v) National Highway Authority ("NHA").

3. So far as the Petitioners are concerned, the common argument in all cases is that they are banking companies or corporate entities who display their corporate information through signboards in compliance with section 22 of the Companies Act, 2017 ("Companies Act") which requires the display of the name of the company in a conspicuous position outside the registered office and every office or place of business as well as the branch under the Licensing Policy of the State Bank of Pakistan in terms of the BPRD Circular 15 of 2007 dated 12.10.2007 ("SBP Policy") which requires the same for the Banks. These requirements are federal in nature and are mandatory, meaning thereby that the Petitioners are obligated to place signboards at their place of business, hence cannot be charged a fee for compliance with the federal law. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that since the matter of placing signboards or affixing the company name falls within the domain of the federation, therefore provincial authorities cannot compel the Petitioners to remove their boards nor can they levy a fee on the same. Reliance has been placed on Bank Alfalah Limited v. Messrs Callmate Telips Telecom Ltd. and 5 others (2016 CLD 1202) to urge the point that State Bank of Pakistan Guidelines and Circulars are binding. Learned counsel for the Petitioners also argued that the levy of advertisement fee by its very definition is illegal because there is no advertisement involved in so far as display of signboards is concerned and further that there is no quid pro quo, hence the levy of advertisement fee is illegal. In the context of the different authorities before the Court, the case of the Petitioners is that they are not authorized under their respective law to levy advertisement fee. The Petitioners have placed reliance on Soneri Bank Limited v. Province of Punjab and others (PLJ 2020 Lahore 239) ("Soneri Bank Case") where the same matter was raised and decided.

4. The issue before the Court is with respect to the levy of fee/ charges for the affixation of signboards displaying the name of the Petitioner Banks or companies and in some cases with respect to promotional or advertisement material pasted on the windows of the relevant branch or corporate office. So far as the Petitioners who are contractors engaged in the business of contracting for outdoor display, the issue raised by them is whether the relevant Respondent authority can levy advertisement fee for the purposes of billboards, sky boards and other forms of display used by such contractors. The case of each of the Respondent authority is taken up separately with specific reference to their relevant law.
Local Governments

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respective Municipal Corporations. Some of the Petitions are with reference to the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 ("2013 Act") while others are with reference to the Punjab Local Government Act, 2019 ("Local Government Act"). The Respondents before the Court represent various different Municipal Corporations in whose vicinity the signboard has been affixed. The case of the Respondents is that in terms of the powers under section 115 of the 2013 Act and section 156 of the Local Government Act, they are entitled to levy taxes and fees. They argue that it is part of the authorized functions of the Municipal Corporations to regulate the affixation of signboards and advertisement boards except where it falls within the jurisdiction of the PHA. Reliance is placed on section 87(2)(i) and (g) of the 2013 Act. In this regard the Respondents have also relied upon letter dated 3.7.2020 issued by the Local Government and Community Development Department, Government of Punjab, Lahore wherein it is stated that the Local Government can regulate signboards and street advertisement, however the respective PHAs continue to perform this function in areas which do not fall within their domain. While relying upon the Soneri Bank Case, the letter of 3.7.2020 requires the Director General, PHA to settle the question of advertisement fee in any area where there is an issue with respect to who can levy the fee, PHA or the Local Government. Learned counsel argued that this letter shows that the Respondent Municipal Corporations can levy advertisement fee.

6. In terms of section 156 of the Local Government Act, fee or tax can be levied through a notification published in the official gazette, meaning thereby that the Local Government can levy fees, rates, tolls and rents provided the same has been approved and is notified in the official gazette. Similar was the position under the 2013 Act where section 115 also required that the fee be notified in the official gazette. In the cases before the Court, it is admitted by the Respondent Local Government that no notification has been issued to date by any of the Municipal Corporations. In the absence of a notification as per the requirement of section 156 of the Local Government Act and section 115 of the 2013 Act, the Local Government cannot levy or charge any fee for the purposes of signboards or advertisement fee from the Petitioners. In this regard, it is noted that this issue has already been decided in the Soneri Bank Case that the Local Governments can only charge fee for the affixation of signboards or advertisement fee provided it is duly notified. However there has been no progress in the matter as no notifications have been issued. I am informed by the learned Law Officer that some effort is being made to regulate this issue, however he could not explain as to whether there will be one single notification for all Municipal Corporations or whether separate rates will be issued. Furthermore there is nothing on the record which justifies non-issuance of notifications given the substantive requirement of the law. It is further noted that so far as the Banks and corporate entities are concerned, they are required under federal law to affix their signboard on their premises, be it in their ownership or rented premises, hence they should be exempt from any fee to this extent as the provincial law cannot override the provisions of a federal law. In this regard, the PHA has exempt banks and corporate entities from any fee on signboards provided they comply with the requirements of size and shape. Therefore any fee that is charged by the Local Government pursuant to section 156 of the Local Government Act will be cognizant of the provisions of the federate statute regarding banks and corporate entities to install their signboards outside their premises as per the Companies Act and the SBP Policy. Hence these Petitions against the Local Government are allowed as the Local Government has not issued any notification for levy of advertisement fee.

Cantonment Boards

7. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondent Cantonment Board. The stated Respondent essentially rely on section 282 of the Cantonments Act, 1924 ("Cantonment Act") which gives the power to make byelaws. Pursuant to this section byelaws have been issued regarding the pasting of billboards and advertisements with respect to size, shape or style of name-boards, sign boards and signposts, hence they argue that fee can be levied. The Petitioners' contention is that there is no power under the Cantonment Act on the basis of which the Respondents seek to levy advertisement fee. They have placed reliance on the judgment dated 20.5.2015 passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan titled Hyderabad Cantonment Board v. Raj Kumar and others 2015 SCMR 1385 wherein the matter in issue has been decided, consequent to which it is argued that the Respondent Cantonment Board is not authorized under the Cantonment Act to levy advertisement fee. They have also relied upon the Soneri Bank Case wherein it is specifically held that with reference to section 200 of the Cantonment Act, the Cantonment Board has no authority to levy any fee which is not contemplated by the said provision.

8. Section 282(3) of the Cantonment Act is reproduced here-under:
282. Power to make bye-laws.---Subject to the provisions of this Act and of the rules made thereunder, a [Board] may, in addition to any bye-laws which it is empowered to make by any other provision of this Act, make bye-laws to provide for all or any of the following matters in the cantonment, namely:--
(3) the regulation of the collection and recovery of taxes, tolls and fees under this Act and the refund of taxes;
At the very outset, it is noted that this power is essentially the power to make byelaws which is subject to the provisions of the Act. Hence the power to make rules is dependent on specific power given to the Board under the Cantonment Act. The section which authorizes the Cantonment Board to levy any fee is section 200 of the Cantonment Act which reads as follows:
200. Levy of stallages, rents and fees. A [Board] may
(a) charge for the occupation or use of any stall, shop, standing, shed or pen in a public market, or public slaughter-house, or for the right to expose goods for sale in a public market, or for weighing or measuring goods sold therein, or for the right to slaughter animals in any public slaughter-house, such stallages, rents and fees as it thinks fit; or

(b) with the sanction of the [Competent Authority], farm the stallages, rents and fees leviable as aforesaid or any portion thereof for any period not exceeding one year at a time; or
(c) put up to public auction, or with the sanction of the [Competent Authority], dispose of by private sale, the privilege of occupying or using any stall, shop, standing, shed or pen in a public market or public slaughter-house for such term ad on such conditions as it thinks fit.
Section 200 of the Cantonment Act was interpreted by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the judgment dated 20.5.2015 passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2015 SCMR 1385 (supra) concluded that the a bare perusal of section 200 of the Cantonment Act is limited for levying of stallages rent and fee for providing stall, shop, standing shed, pen and for other defined commercial activities on the vendors dealing in goods and for the slaughter of animals in public market or public slaughter houses respectively and that too subject to sanction by the competent authority. In the case before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan the issue was of parking fee and the Court concluded that parking fee is not envisioned under the referred provision. Therefore the Cantonment Board has no authority to enlarge the scope of the charging section and include the subject of parking fee for the purposes of levying fee. The same section was interpreted by this Court in the Soneri Bank Case wherein it was held that the Cantonment Board has no authority to levy fee in relation to the boards installed by the petitioners at their offices/branches. The Respondents rely upon the order of this Court dated 14.3.2018 passed by a learned Division Bench of this Court in I.C.A. No.62/2015 titled Allied Bank Limited v. Province of Punjab etc. wherein the Court remanded the matter with the consent of the parties to the Board for due consideration. In the order dated 7.10.2015 passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Civil Appeal No.796/2015 titled Habib Bank Limited Islamabad v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of Defence, Islamabad etc. the Court referred the matter to the learned Division Bench of Lahore High Court, Rawalpindi Bench for the purposes of deciding the same along with other matters pending there. The cases were decided by the Division Bench in I.C.A. No.62/2015 wherein the Court on the basis of a consent order decided that they would not charge any advertisement fee on the board affixed on a branch and further that if the respondents intend to charge advertisement fee from the banks for reasons that its board contains advertisement material in violation of the specified shape, it can do so after passing an assessment order in writing. This case did not consider the authority of the Cantonment Board to levy advertisement fee and was decided on the basis of the statement made in the Habib Bank Case (supra) before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan. The Respondents also rely on order dated 16.3.2018 passed by this Court in I.C.A. No.50/2015 titled Messrs Haidri Beverages (Pvt.) Ltd. v. City District Government, Rawalpindi through D.C.O. etc. and order dated 10.11.2020 passed by this Court in I.C.A. No.217/2016 titled Lahore Cantonment Board v. Allied Bank Limited etc. along with several other cases decided on the same terms. However, in this regard, it is noted that these orders are of no help to the Respondent Cantonment Board as the matter in issue essentially is with respect to the authority of the Cantonment Board to levy advertisement fee which matter has been decided by the august

Supreme Court of Pakistan. Therefore the Cantonment Board has no authority to levy fee in relation to the boards installed by the Petitioners at their offices/branches and reliance on section 282 of the Cantonment Act is misconceived.

9. Under the circumstances, all the Petitions challenging the levy of advertisement fee by the Cantonment Board are allowed.

Parks and Horticulture Authority

10. There are 33 Petitions against the PHA filed by different banks with reference to signboards, glass flex, neon signs, window advertisement, LED etc. as well as corporate entities such as Punjab Beverages Company Private Limited, Borjan (Private) Limited, Sign-O-Plus Namoos Advertisement Company, Coca Cola Beverages, Faisalabad Outdoor Advertising Association for payment of advertisement fee against display of their signboards as well as for advertisement on billboards, signboards, sky signs and other forms of advertisement. Some Petitioners have challenged the registration for being beyond the scope of the PHA Act.

11. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondent PHA. The Respondents argue that PHA has been created under section 3(2) of the Parks and Horticulture Authority Act, 2012 ("PHA Act") and it regulates the installation of billboards, sky signs and outdoor advertisements under section 4(c) of the PHA Act. Also argued that the Petitioners are bound to seek permission of PHA before installation of billboards, sky signs and to bring already existing boards in conformity with provisions of the PHA Act. Therefore the counsel argued the Petitioners are bound to fulfil the legal formalities and deposit the fee as approved by the Government under section 12(8) of the PHA Act.

12. PHA is established under section 3 of the PHA Act. The preamble of the PHA Act provides for the establishment of Parks and Horticulture Authority in the Punjab for the regulation, development and maintenance of public parks, green belts and green areas in the Punjab; regulation of billboards, sky signs and outdoor advertisements; to promote open and unrestricted views of the Punjab and to provide for the connected matters. Section 4 of the PHA Act provides for the powers and functions of the Authority to regulate the installation of billboards, sky signs, outdoor advertisements on private or public property. Section 12 of the PHA Act deals with installation of billboards, sky signs and outdoor advertisements and section 12(8) allows the PHA to levy charges and fees for installation of billboards, sky signs or outdoor advertisement as per the government approval. The prohibitions are contained in section 21 of the PHA Act whereby section 21(4) provides that the permission of the Authority is mandatory for any installation or exhibit of advertisement material on any property or contain advertisement material or fall under the category of outdoor advertisement. The definition of advertisement is provided in section 2(b) of the PHA Act, which means commercially displayed or installed signage, board, screen, streamer, poster, banner or any other thing placed, painted, pasted or installed on public or private property that is visible from a public place and is intended to inform the reader of the availability of a service, product or promoters of a business. Section 30 of the PHA Act also provides the power to make rules. In terms of the Parks and Horticulture Authority Outdoor Advertisement Regulations, 2017 ("Regulations"), the Respondents have exempted banks and other companies from displaying their signage in compliance with Companies Act and the SBP Policy, however with respect to other outdoor advertisement, they are liable to pay fee. Accordingly advertisement fee is only levied on any signboards installed by the banks which exceed the permissible measurement prescribed by the Regulations.

13. In view of the aforesaid to the extent of Banks and corporate entities who display their name as per the requirements of the Companies Act and the SBP Policy, in terms of the Regulations no fee should be charged. However if the display contains any advertisement or is contrary to the Regulations or is with reference to the outdoor advertisement, fee can be levied. So far as the contractors are concerned, since they are involved in the business of outdoor advertisement, they are liable to pay fee as per the PHA Act read with the Regulations. Consequently the Petitions of the Banks and corporate entites are disposed of to the extent of signboard which are in compliance with the Companies Act and the SBP Policy. However if they are involved in any advertisement, they are liable to pay as per the PHA Act and Regulations whereas the Petitions of the contractors are dismissed.

National Highway Authority

14. There are three Petitions against the NHA being W.Ps. Nos.201485/18, 256585/18 filed by Banks and W.P. No.22283/18 filed by Lotte Akhtar Beverages (Private) Limited (formerly Riaz Bottlers Private Limited), which is engaged in the business of manufacturing of carbonated beverages under various different brand names that is Pepsi Cola, Rave, Seven Up, Miranda, Mountain Dew, Sting and purified water under the brand name Aquafina. So far as the Banks are concerned, they have impugned the demand raised by the Respondent NHA for payment of advertisement fee against display of their signboards whereas the Petitioner Lotte Akhtar Beverages (Private) Limited has impugned the demand raised for rental charges against the advertisement displayed by the Petitioner.

15. In terms of the report and parawise comments filed and the arguments made, NHA is empowered to levy advertisement fee under the National Highway Authority Act, 1991 ("NHA Act"). Learned counsel for the Respondent NHA has relied upon section 10 of the NHA Act along with National Highways and Strategic Roads Control Rules, 1998 ("1998 Rules") which basically prescribes the procedure on the basis of which the Respondents can levy advertisement fee. Learned counsel stated that NHA has awarded concession for advertisement and promotional displays on Sahiwal to Lahore section for a period of two years with respect to advertisement and promotional displays, hence the Petitioners are bound to pay the same. Section 10(2)(vi) of the NHA Act empowers the authority to enter into contracts and thereby levy license fee on the terms of the contract. Learned counsel stated that the Petitioners are therefore liable to pay advertisement fee in terms of the NHA Act as well as 1998 Rules.

16. NHA is established under section 3 of the NHA Act. The preamble of the NHA Act provides its mandate to establish a National Highway Authority for planning, development, operation and maintenance of National Highways and strategic roads and to provide for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. Section 10 of the NHA Act provides for the powers and duties of the Authority, in terms of which the Authority may take such measures and exercise such powers as it considers necessary or expedient for carrying out the purposes of the Act. Section 10(2)(vii) of the NHA Act provides for the levy, collect or cause to be collected tolls on national highways, strategic roads and such other roads as may be entrusted to it and bridges thereon. This means that NHA can levy and collect tolls on the national highways and strategic roads. Section 10(2)(viii) is with reference to license facilities on roads under its control and such terms as it deems fit. NHA has also relied upon the 1998 Rules and Regulations which are pursuant to sections 31 and 32 of the NHA Act. On the basis of the provisions of the NHA Act, it appears that the NHA is authorized to levy and collect toll on the national highways as well as strategic, bridges, roads and such other rates which are entrusted to it. Therefore there is no specific power to levy advertisement fee or charges of any kind with respect to the signage or advertisement or promotional material. Section 10(2)(viii) of the NHA Act gives the Respondent NHA the authority to enter into a license agreement with respect to roads under its control on the terms it deems fit. These license agreements can contain terms for advertisement and promotional material, for which the Respondents have relied upon concession agreements entered in terms thereof. However there is no concession agreement placed on the file with respect to Soneri Bank Limited and Bank of Punjab or Lotte Akhtar Beverages (Private) Limited. In this regard, it is clarified that the Respondents cannot charge advertisement fee for any signage that has been affixed on the business premises of the Banks in terms of their requirement under the Companies Act and the SBP Policy. Although it is argued that it is with reference to ATM cabins and other material, there is nothing on the file which shows any concession agreement or license agreement to charge advertisement fee. So far as Petitioner in W.P. No.22283/2018 is concerned, nothing has been appended with the Petition or the reply to show that there was any license agreement between the parties for the purposes of displaying promotional material.

17. In view of the aforesaid, these Petitions are disposed of as there is no information provided by the Petitioners with reference to what they are being charged for and whether there is any license agreement between the Petitioners and the NHA. The NHA cannot levy advertisement fee except if it has entered into a license agreement with respect to advertisement and promotional material, hence it should consider the same before issuance of any demand.
Defence Housing Authority

18. There are four Petitions against the DHA being W.Ps. Nos.12680/16, 173617/18, 77072/19, 73006/19 filed by the Banks wherein they have impugned notices issued by Respondent DHA for installation of vinyl/sticking papers by the Petitioners.

19. In terms of the report and parawise comments filed and the arguments made, DHA is authorized to levy all sorts of charges in terms of section 7(2)(e) read with section 8 of the Defence Housing Authority Lahore Order, 2002 ("DHA Order") read with DHA Municipal Rules, 2013 ("DHA Rules") which provides under rule 35 that the authority can regulate signboards and advertisements and no person shall display any signage except with the permission of the authority. The Respondents have also relied upon DHA License Regulations, 2013 ("DHA Regulations") and the Signage Byelaws. Learned counsel argued that the levy of advertisement fee is pursuant to the aforementioned provisions and it is carried out in terms of the DHA Rules and DHA Regulations. So far as the signage boards are concerned, the Petitioners are required to be complied with the DHA Rules, DHA Regulations as well as Signage Byelaws.

20. DHA is established under section 3 of the DHA Order. Section 7 of the DHA Order provides for the powers, duties and functions of Executive Board and in terms of section 7(e) the Board can impose, recover, alter, vary or enhance development charges, installments, cost of apartments, housing units of scheme, commercial projects and transfer fees and other charges in respect of any property, plot or project within the area of the Authority. Section 8 provides for the powers of the Executive Board to raise funds in terms of which they can levy charges as per the rules. The rule making power is under section 22 of the DHA Order and the power to make regulations is under section 23. Rule 35 of the DHA Rules provides that signboards and advertisements are allowed based on the permission given by the authority and under the DHA Regulations Signage Byelaws have been made which provides for the requirements with respect to signboards and other promotional and advertisement material. Therefore in terms of the DHA Order read with DHA Rules read with the Signage Byelaws, DHA can impose charges with respect to advertisement and promotional material, billboards, signboards and specifically with respect to companies signboards installed on the front side of the shop or the office. As per the Signage Byelaws, all office signboards are to be installed as per the specifications given in the Byelaws. Under the circumstances, DHA is competent to levy charges for signboards and other advertisement and promotional material as per DHA Rules and Signage Byelaws.

21. The only issue is whether the DHA can levy charges for placing signboards on the office premises of the Petitioners who are Banks and corporate entities in compliance with the Companies Act and the SBP Policy. In this regard, PHA had stated before the Court that to the extent of one signboard, they have exempt payment of advertisement fee provided that the signboard is in compliance with the requirements of the PHA Regulations, no such statement has been made by the DHA. In this regard, the DHA should also consider the same. Since there is no information before the Court with respect to the quantum of fee charged for signboards or whether there is any promotional material on the signboards, the DHA can look into the matter. In this regard, it is noted that the Petitioners have impugned demand notices which are with respect to pasting vinyl/sticking papers which is on the glass of the branches and is specifically for advertisement purposes. Hence the Petitioners are liable to pay the same as it falls within the domain of the DHA. Hence these Petitions against the DHA are dismissed.

22. In view of the aforesaid for the purposes of clarity it is declared that:
(i) to the extent of the Respondent Local Government, they are authorized under section 156 of the Local Government Act to levy taxes and fees provided they are duly notified in the official gazette;
(ii) the Respondent Cantonment Board does not have power to levy any kind of advertisement fee or charge fees for signboards;
(iii) the Respondent NHA is not authorized to levy advertisement fee;
(iv) the Respondent PHA is authorized to levy charges and for advertisement and signboards;
(v) the DHA is competent to levy charges for advertisement and signboards;
(vi) banks and corporate entities are entitled to install signboard/signage in compliance with the Companies Act and the SBP Policy without charge of fee subject to any rules or regulations on size, shape and provided it does not contain any advertisement material.

PAKISTAN ENGINEERING COUNCIL---Appellant
Versus
FEDERATION OF PAKISTAN and others---Respondents
I.C.A. No.33510 of 2019, decided on 30th November, 2020.

(a) Pakistan Engineering Council Act, 1975 (V of 1976)---

----S.25A---Pakistan Engineering Council Regulations for Engineering Education in Pakistan, Regls. 2(a)(i) & 2(c)(i)---Constitution of Pakistan, Art.25---Fixation of a 2% quota for holders of Diploma of Associate Engineer (DAE) for admission in B.Sc. Engineering---Whether fixation of such quota was not legal and also discriminatory---Regulating authority for the purposes of admission in an engineering program was the Pakistan Engineering Council ('the Council'), which was duly authorized under the law as well as under the Pakistan Engineering Council Regulations for Engineering Education in Pakistan ('the Regulations') to determine the admission criteria---As far as the fixation of a 2% limit/quota was concerned, the Council on the basis of facts and deliberation in a meeting duly considered the issue pertaining to the DAE examination, the equivalence given by the Inter Board Committee of Chairmen ("IBCC") and by the Punjab Board of Technical Education ("PBTE") and decided to streamline the exercise of discretion by the different universities and colleges, so as to ensure that not more than 2% candidates holding DAE were given admission against the reserved seats---Council by way of quantifying the reserved seats had not acted in contravention to the Pakistan Engineering Council Act, 1976 or the Regulations or acted discriminately---Intra-Court Appeals were allowed and impugned judgment of Single Bench of High Court was set-aside.

Section 25A of the Pakistan Engineering Council Act, 1976 ('the 1976 Act') gave the Governing Body of the Pakistan Engineering Council ('the Council') the power to make regulations which included the power to make regulations stipulating the minimum qualifications for admission to engineering institutions and laying down the minimum standard for allowing admission for examinations. Pursuant to section 25A of the 1976 Act, the Council issued the Pakistan Engineering Council Regulations for Engineering Education in Pakistan ('the Regulations'). Article 2 of the said Regulations provided for the minimum qualification for admission to Engineering Bachelor's Degree Programmes offered by Engineering institutions and universities. Article 2(a)(i) of the Regulations provided for the requirement of a Higher Secondary School Certificate, Pre-Engineering Examination with Physics, Chemistry and Mathematics as the basic criteria for admission in the B.Sc Engineering program. This meant that F.Sc was the criteria for admission in B.Sc Engineering. Article 2(c)(i) of the Regulations provided that a candidate who had passed the Diploma of Associate Engineer (DAE) examination, securing at least 60% aggregate marks shall be eligible for applying in admission against reserved seats in relevant discipline of engineering in which he or she had passed the DAE examination and the relevancy of DAE would be determined by the Accreditation Committee of the Council. In terms of the Regulations for the purposes of DAE examination, the Regulations originally provided that the DAE candidate, who secured at least 60% aggregate marks would be eligible to apply for admission against reserved seats, however the number of seats was not quantified. This Regulation was amended vide SRO 417(I)/2016 dated 14-05-2016 such that the Regulation inserted 2% limit on the DAE candidates against reserved seats. This meant that although originally a DAE candidate was eligible against reserved seats, the Council quantified a 2% limit for all colleges and universities against the reserved seats.

The issue of the 2% quota for the reserved seats was considered in a meeting held by the Council in which it was discussed that engineering universities as a special provision allowed DAE students admission if they had the aggregate marks, however, since the DAE students did not study the subjects of physic, chemistry and mathematics in the rigorous manner as the F.Sc students, the Council decided to regulate the discretion to admit against reserved seats by the universities by way of a 2% limit for reserved seats for all universities.
For the purposes of Regulation 2(c) of the Regulations, DAE candidates were always considered against reserved seats. The argument that since DAE was equivalent to F.Sc, hence students holding the said qualification were entitled to be considered as F.Sc candidates was without basis as the admission of DAE candidates was always limited to reserved seats stipulated by the relevant university. The Single Bench of the High Court) while considering the 2% limit failed to take into consideration Regulation 2(c) of the Regulations which by itself, in its original form had limited the admission of the DAE candidate against reserved seats. Therefore, even with the abolishment of the 2% limit, the holders of DAE qualification were not entitled to admission in B.Sc Engineering program on the basis of DAE being equivalent to F.Sc as their admission was subject to the number of reserved seats in the respective colleges/universities.
Respondents failed to make out a case of discrimination or unreasonable classification as the original Regulations limited their admission against reserved seats and by way of fixing the number of reserved seats to a 2% no discrimination was made out.

Reliance of the Single Bench (of the High Court) on the equivalence given by the Inter Board Committee of Chairmen ("IBCC") and by the Punjab Board of Technical Education ("PBTE") was without basis as the equivalence granted by both these independent institutions was not relevant for the purposes of admission in the engineering program. The regulating authority for the purposes of admission in an engineering program was the Council, which was duly authorized under the law as well as under the Regulations to determine the admission criteria. Council by way of quantifying the reserved seats had not acted in contravention to the 1976 Act or the Regulations or acted discriminately. Intra-Court Appeals were allowed and impugned judgment of Single Bench of High Court was set-aside.

(b) Constitution of Pakistan---

----Art.199---Constitutional jurisdiction of the High Court---Scope---Policy decision made by a professional regulatory body in accordance with law---High Court could not interfere with such a policy decision in its constitutional jurisdiction.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----The Appellant, Pakistan Engineering Council ("PEC") has filed the instant ICA and ICA No.1554/2019 wherein they have impugned judgment dated 13.03.2019 whereas in ICA No.78117/2019 PEC has impugned order dated 22.5.2019 passed in W.P. No.235395/2018 which has relied upon the impugned judgment dated 13.3.2019. The matter in issue in all ICAs is whether the holders of Diploma of Associate Engineer ("DAE") are eligible for admission in B.Sc Engineering being equivalent to F.Sc. Originally ICA No.78117/2019 was fixed for 20.01.2021, however, with the consent of the parties, the case was fixed for today so as to ensure that the common issues raised in these ICAs are addressed through this common judgment.

2. The objection of limitation has been raised by the Respondents in all these ICAs essentially stating that these ICAs have been filed beyond the period of limitation. In this regard, applications for condonation of delay have been filed under Section 5 of the Limitation Act read with Section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 in all three ICAs. For the purposes of the instant ICA and ICA No.1554/2019 as per the contents of the applications for condonation of delay, the judgment was reserved on 13.03.2019 by the learned Single Bench. On 20.03.2019 the Appellant applied for the certified copy of the judgment. On 16.04.2019 after one month and three days as per the stamp, the certified copy of the judgment was prepared. However, learned counsel for the Appellant stated that no express intimation of the preparation of the certified copy was issued by the Copy Agency of this Court to the Appellant, who was regularly visiting the copy branch to obtain the certified copy of the impugned judgment. On 07.05.2019 the copy was made available to the Appellant and the appeals were filed after one day of obtaining the certified copy of the judgment. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that a period of limitation for filing an ICA is 20 days from the date of the decree or judgment, however, in this case although the case was reserved for judgment on 13.03.2019 the Appellants could not file the ICAs as they were not aware of the outcome of the case. As soon as the certified copy of the judgment was made available, the Appellant filed the instant appeals before this Court. Learned counsel argued that the circumstances were beyond the control of the Appellant and has placed reliance on Province of Punjab and others v. Zafar Ullah and others (PLD 2015 Lahore 220) and Multan Khan v. Ghazni Khan and 13 others (2016 CLC 1600) to urge the point that it was incumbent upon the Copy Agency to issue information to the Appellant that a certified copy of the judgment was prepared. Learned counsel further argued that despite the fact that the Appellant was repeatedly visiting the Copy Agency for obtaining the certified copy of the judgment, it was not made available until 07.05.2019, which goes to show that the certified copy was not available for delivery to the Appellant. On behalf of the Respondents it is argued that the appeals are barred by time; that the period of limitation is 20 days and there is no justifiable reason to condone the delay in these cases.

3. We have heard the arguments on the issue of limitation and find that the Appellant has raised sufficient grounds to condone the delay in these appeals. We also note that the matter in issue as raised by the Appellant is important for the purposes of admission in B.Sc Engineering hence we condone the delay and proceed to decide these ICAs on its merits. So far as, ICA No.78117/2019 is concerned, since the matter in issue in this appeal essentially arises of the impugned judgment dated 22.05.2019 passed in W.P. No.235395/2018, the delay in this appeal is also condoned and we proceed to decide this ICA on its merits as well.

4. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the Respondents before this Court being students of Chenab College of Engineering and Technology and the college itself essentially filed writ petitions before the learned Single Bench challenging the fixation of a 2% quota for reserved seats for holders of DAE for admission in B.Sc Engineering. The impugned judgment considered the case of the Respondents and granted their prayer on the ground that the DAE is equivalent to Intermediate Examination of the Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education (F.Sc), as per the equivalence issued by the Inter Board Committee of Chairmen ("IBCC") and by the Punjab Board of Technical Education ("PBTE"). The second ground for allowing the writ petitions of the Respondents is that the 2% quota is discriminatory and offends Article 25 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") and does not amount to a reasonable classification. The third reason being that the Regulation 2(c) of the Regulations for Engineering Education in Pakistan ("Regulations") is beyond the mandate provided in Section 25A of the Pakistan Engineering Council Act, 1976 ("the Act"). Learned counsel argued that the impugned judgment failed to take into consideration that the Appellant has acted in accordance with the mandate under Section 25A of the Act and that the amendment to the Regulations with the insertion of a 2% quota for DAE students was in consonance with the earlier Regulations, which had never been challenged. Learned counsel further argued that the imposition of a 2% quota for DAE students was a policy decision so as to facilitate and enable students who are unable to study in F.Sc program. He argued that it is the form of affirmative action got its quantum which restricted to reserved seats. Learned counsel further argued that for the purposes of admission in B.Sc Engineering, F.Sc is the fundamental requirement as it entails the study of the basic sciences being physic, chemistry and mathematics especially calculus which is essential in any world class engineering program. The DAE program does not focus on the sciences in the manner required by the Appellant for an engineering degree. The Appellant has placed reliance on a comparative analysis of the science subjects studied in F.Sc with that in the DAE program in support of his arguments. Learned counsel argued that this was a policy decision made by the Appellant, which did not call for any interference by the learned Single Bench. Furthermore, that the Appellant has duly considered the matter in terms of its international commitment under the Washington Accord which involves 21 countries whose engineering education is given worldwide recognition. Hence the Appellant has ensured that the subject requirements as per the F.Sc are vital for the purposes of admission in a B.Sc Engineering program. Learned counsel further argued that Regulation 2 (c) of the Regulations historically allowed independent universities to determine their quota for the purposes of admission of DAE in B.Sc engineering, therefore, there was always a quota for admission of DAE candidates. However in order to streamline the discretion exercised by the colleges/universities carrying B.Sc Engineering program the Appellant fixed a 2% limit against the reserved seats so as to ensure that the admissions in the engineering degree program were maintained fairly and a uniform policy was followed throughout the country. Learned counsel argued that the Regulations are in accordance with Section 25A of the Act of 1976 and that no illegality has been committed.

5. On behalf of the Respondents, it is argued that Section 25A of the Act is the power to make Regulations and there is no specific power to create a quota for the purposes of admission in B.Sc Engineering program, hence the insertion of a 2% quota for the DAE candidates is against the mandate of Section 25A of the Act. Learned counsel argued that this quota is discriminatory particularly when IBCC along with PBTE recognize DAE being equivalent to F.Sc, hence there is no justifiable reason to create a 2% quota and oust the Respondents from the admission process. Reliance is placed on The Agricultural and Research Department and others v. Muhammad Tariq Javed and others (2019 CLC 1972), Pak Leather Crafts Limited and others v. Al-Baraka Bank Limited (2019 CLD 659), Mian Muhammad Sabir v. Malik Muhammad Sadiq through Legal Heirs and others (PLD 2008 SC 577), The Inspector General of Police, Punjab through District Police Officer v. Abdus Salam and another (2019 CLC 1156), Hafiz Junaid Mahmood v. Government of Punjab and others (PLD 2017 Lahore 1), Ansa Farrukh v. Vice Chancellor and others (2020 MLD 1484), Shrin Munir and others v. Government of Punjab through Secretary Health, Lahore and another (PLD 1940 SC 295), Miss Asma Javaid and another v. Government of Punjab through Secretary Health Department and 2 others (2015 CLC 907), Government of the Punjab, Secretary Home Department through Deputy Secretary (Police) Interior Department and others v. Qanoot Fatima and others (2018 PLC (CS) 22) and Arif-ur-Rehman v.

Government of N.W.F.P through Secretary Education, N.W.F.P and others (2005 SCMR 340).

6. We have heard the counsel at length. The mandate of the Act is to regulate the engineering profession. Section 3 of the Act provides for the constitution and establishment of the Engineering Council ("PEC") and in terms of Section 8, the functions of the PEC have been provided which includes the function of promoting engineering education and review of courses of studies in consultation with the universities. Section 25A of the Act is the power to make regulations which includes the power to make regulations stipulating the minimum qualifications for admission to engineering institutions and laying down the minimum standard for allowing admission for examinations. Pursuant to Section 25A of the Act the Appellant issued the Regulations for engineering education in Pakistan vide SRO No.1142(I)/85 dated 20.11.1985. Article 2 of the Regulations provides for the minimum qualification for admission to Engineering Bachelor's Degree Programmes offered by Engineering Institutions and Universities. Article 2(a)(i) of the Regulations provides for the requirement of a Higher Secondary School Certificate, Pre-Engineering Examination with Physics, Chemistry and Mathematics as the basic criteria for admission in the B.Sc Engineering program. This means that F.Sc is the criteria for admission in a B.Sc engineering. Article 2(c)(i) of the Regulations provides that a candidate who has passed the DAE examination, securing at least 60% aggregate marks shall be eligible for applying in admission against reserved seats in relevant discipline of engineering in which he or she has passed the DAE examination and the relevancy of DAE will be determined by the Accreditation Committee of PEC. In terms of these Regulations we note that for the purposes of DAE examination, the Regulations originally provided that the DAE candidate, who secured at least 60% aggregate marks would be eligible to apply for admission against reserved seats, however the number of seats was not quantified. This Regulation was amended vide SRO 417(I)/2016 dated 14.05.2016 such that the Regulation inserted 2% limit on the DAE candidates against reserved seats. This means that although originally a DAE candidate was eligible against reserved seats, the Appellant quantified a 2% limit for all colleges and universities against the reserved seats. The issue of the 2% quota for the reserved seats was considered in the meeting held by PEC on 16.05.2017 in which it was discussed that engineering universities as a special provision allowed DAE students admission if they had the aggregate marks, however, since the DAE students does not study the subjects of physic, chemistry and mathematics in the rigorous manner as the F.Sc students, the Appellant decided to regulate the discretion to admit against reserved seats by the universities by way of a 2% limit for reserved seats ,for all universities. Consequently, DAE candidates can apply for admission in B.Sc Engineering program, however they can be admitted against reserved seats only to the extent of a 2% limit. Therefore, we note that for the purposes of Regulation 2(c) of the Regulations, DAE candidates were always considered against reserved seats. The argument of the Respondents that since DAE is equivalent to F.Sc, hence they are entitled to be considered as F.Sc candidates is without basis as the admission of DAE candidates was always limited to reserved seats stipulated by the relevant university. For the purposes of the writ petitions filed by the Respondents, they specifically challenged the imposition of the 2% limit vide letter dated 25.03.2015 meaning thereby that they did not challenge SRO 417(I)/2016 dated 14.05.2016 on the basis of which the amendment was made to the Regulations. In this regard, we further note that the basic prayer of the Respondents before the learned Single Bench was that the 2% quota be abolished and that they be granted admission in the B.Sc Engineering program. The learned Single Bench while considering the 2% limit failed to take into consideration Regulation 2 (c) of the Regulations which by itself, in its original form has limited the admission of the DAE candidate against reserved seats. Therefore, even with the abolishment of the 2% limit, the Respondents before this Court were not entitled to admission in B.Sc. Engineering program on the basis of DAE being equivalent to F.Sc as their admission was subject to the number of reserved seats in the respective colleges/universities. The impugned judgment has stressed on the issue of discrimination as well that DAE is equivalent to F.Sc as per the equivalence provided by the IBCC and PBTE, however, failed to take into consideration that the Regulations themselves stipulate that the relevancy of the DAE will be determined by the Accreditation Committee of PEC meaning thereby that the issue of equivalence, if at all, had to be considered by the Appellant itself and not by the IBCC or by the PBTE for the purposes of admission in B.Sc Engineering. We are therefore of the opinion that the Respondents failed to make out a case of discrimination or unreasonable classification as the original Regulations limited their admission against reserved seats and by way of fixing the number of reserved seats to a 2% no discrimination was made out.

7. We also find that the Appellant was well within its authority under Section 25A of the Act to set the minimum qualification for admission in engineering programs which includes regulating reserved seats. In this regard, we are of the opinion that the reliance of the learned Single Bench on the IBCC and PBTE equivalence is without basis as the equivalence granted by both these independent institutions is not relevant for the purposes of admission in the engineering program. The regulating authority for the purposes of admission in an engineering program is the Appellant, which is duly authorized under the law as well as under the Regulations to determine the admission criteria. So far as the fixation of a 2% limit is concerned, we find that the Appellant on the basis of facts and deliberation in the meeting held on 16.05.2017 duly considered the issue pertaining to the DAE examination, the equivalence given by the IBCC and PBTE and decided to streamline the exercise of discretion by the different universities and colleges, so as to ensure that not more than 2% candidates holding DAE were given admission against the reserved seats. Therefore we observed that the Appellants by way of quantifying the reserved seats has not acted in contravention to the Act or Regulation or acted discriminately. It is a policy decision made in accordance with the law which cannot be interfered by this Court.

AYESHA A. MALIK J.----Through this ICA, the Appellants have impugned order dated 17.02.2020 passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ Petition No. 248849/2018 which was dismissed while turning down their prayer for regularization.

2. The case of the Appellants is that they were appointed as Medical Officers (BS-17) on ad hoc basis pursuant to advertisements published in various different newspapers for the said post. The Appellants participated in the recruitment process, passed the interview but did not qualify in terms of the merit against the number of available seats. The Appellants then applied for regularization on the basis of the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan reported as Naveeda Tufail v. Government of Punjab (2003 SCMR 219) (hereinafter referred as Naveeda Tufail Case) which was denied through the impugned order dated 17.02.2020. Hence this Appeal.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellants argued that the impugned order dated 17.02.2020 failed to appreciate the point of discrimination between the Appellants and others who have been regularized and the dicta laid down in the Naveeda Tufail Case. Learned counsel for the Appellants has also relied upon judgment dated 23.01.2018 passed by a Division Bench of this Court in 2018 PLC (C.S.) 712, Dr. Zaheer Iqbal and others v. Province of Punjab through Chief Secretary and others which he argues is similar on facts and states that the Appellants are entitled to the same benefit.

4. On the other hand, learned Law Officer argued that the Appellants are not entitled for regularization as they are ad hoc employees. She placed reliance on the case Abu Bakar Farooq and others v. Muhammad Ali Rajpar and others (2019 SCMR 830) wherein it was held that ad hoc employees are appointed as a stop gap arrangement till permanent recruitment in accordance with the prescribed method of appointment and as such do not earn any benefit of regular appointments as that would frustrate the entire concept of being appointed on ad hoc basis. Learned Law Officer further submits that even with reference to the Naveeda Tufail Case, the facts of this case are distinguishable as there is no recruitment process underway and if and when the process is initiated, at the time, the department can consider the Appellants' case in terms of the dicta in the Naveeda Tufail Case. She has also referred to judgment dated 17.09.2020 passed by this Court in W.P. No.16185/2019 titled Dr. Adnan Rasool and others v. Government of Punjab through Chief Secretary, Lahore and others and states that accordingly no illegality is made out in the impugned order.

5. We have heard the arguments and considered the record. Admittedly, the Appellants were appointed on ad hoc basis as Medical Officers (BS-17). The Appellants also appeared before the Punjab Public Service Commission, Lahore ("PPSC") in the year 2018-19 and admittedly were lower in merit, hence they were not appointed. On the basis of their appearance before the PPSC, the Appellants now seek regularization without recourse to the PPSC on the touchstone of the Naveeda Tufail Case. Learned counsel for the Appellants relies upon judgment dated 23.01.2018 passed by a Division Bench of this Court in 2018 PLC (C.S.) 712 titled Dr. Zaheer Iqbal and others v. Province of Punjab through Chief Secretary and others, however we note that this judgment is distinguishable on the facts as in that case, the recruitment process was underway and this Court directed the Respondents to follow the directions given in Naveeda Tufail Case whereby they had to separately consider the case of the appellants for the purposes of recruitment. So far as the case of the present Appellants is concerned, learned Law Officer has stated that the process of recruitment has not been initiated and at the moment, the department is not moving any requisition for considering the case of the Appellants for regularization. Initially, 3924 posts were advertised and the Appellants were not recommended by the PPSC being very low in merit. Hence she states that the Respondents are not required to regularize the Appellants who did not make the merit. It is important to note that in terms of the Naveeda Tufail Case, for the purposes of regularization, the cases of ad hoc employees seeking regularization have to be sent separately to the PPSC and cannot be tagged with the direct recruitment. However, in terms of the judgment cited as 2019 SCMR 830 (supra), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that ad hoc appointments are for a particular purpose and ad hoc appointees do not have the protection of any rules or law, hence they cannot be given the benefit of regularization as availed by contract employees. In terms of the decisions made in the Naveeda Tufail Case as well as judgment cited as 2019 SCMR 830 (supra), ad hoc employees can be considered for regularization if the relevant department requisitions for their regularization and if the department is desirous of converting the ad hoc appointments into regular appointments. Therefore, ad hoc appointees cannot seek regularization as of right rather they are dependent on the requirements of the department and on following the process undertaken by the appointing authority. In both cases, it is clear that there is no right to be regularized for ad hoc employees, as their appointment is for a particular purpose and not against a sanctioned post. Furthermore, we note that the Naveeda Tufail Case has not directed that the department is compelled to issue a requisition for ad hoc employees. The facts of that case simply required that the cases of those candidates who had worked with the department on ad hoc basis not be tagged with the direct recruitment candidates, for the process of regularization.

6. Learned counsel for the Appellants has stressed that this Court should direct the Respondents to send its requisition for regularization of the Appellants as they have been working with the Respondents for a considerable period of time and they have already undergone the process of recruitment before the PPSC and qualified the same. We have heard the learned counsel for the Appellants at length, however, we are not in agreement with the contentions raised. It is noted that the Naveeda Tufail Case has not declared that all ad hoc employees have to be considered for regularization so long as they undergo the process of recruitment before the PPSC. Naveeda Tufail Case states that ad hoc employees have no right to hold the posts beyond the period for which they were appointed, hence it is a stop gap arrangement and if they are to be considered for regularization, they must go through the process of selection by the PPSC. In the Naveeda Tufail Case, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan gave a concession to the petitioners before the court by requiring that their cases not be tagged with the direct recruitment category and they be treated separately for the purposes of recruitment/regularization by giving them additional marks and relaxation of age so as to facilitate their regularization. The said judgment does not require that all the ad hoc employees be treated in a similar manner rather the august Supreme Court of Pakistan based on a concession offered by Government of Punjab required that cases of the ad hoc appointees be considered separately. However, in terms of 2019 SCMR 830 (supra), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has decided that ad hoc employees are appointed on stop gap arrangement and they cannot be given any benefit or relaxation in the rules simply because they have been working on ad hoc basis for a considerable period of time. On the basis of this judgment, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has made it clear that if at all, ad hoc employees are to be considered for regularization, it will be done in accordance with the rules and for the purposes of appointments in BS-17 as per the process set out by the relevant department and the PPSC. Therefore, the Appellants' contention that they are not required to go before the PPSC is misguided because although they participated in the recruitment process in the year 2017, they did not come on merit. Hence they were not selected or appointed against the sanctioned seats. The appearance of the Appellants before the PPSC in the year 2019 does not absolve them from the requirement of undergoing the process for selection by the PPSC. If at all the Respondents are going to consider the Appellants for regularization, even based on the principles laid down in the Naveeda Tufail Case, they have to be selected by the PPSC for appointment on merit.

7. Under the circumstances, we find no illegality in the impugned order dated 17.02.2020, hence the instant Appeal is dismissed. The impugned order dated 17.02.2020 passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ Petition No. 248849/2018 is maintained.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition, the Petitioner challenges the actions of Respondent No.3 as well as Respondent No.2 with respect to the delay caused in the issuance of its registration under the Punjab Private Educational Institutions (Promotion and Regulation) Ordinance, 1984 ("Ordinance").

2. The case of the Petitioner is that it applied under the Ordinance for extension in registration and addition of subjects for the session 2018-19 and 2019-20 on 18.12.2018 with respect to its campus at East Bank Sadiq Canal near Darri Singh Pull, Rahim Yar Khan. In response thereto, an inspection was carried out by Respondent No.3 on 9.7.2019 whereby the Petitioner's College was recommended for registration. Subsequent thereof Dr. Ashiq Hussain, Director General in the office of Respondent No.3 issued Hope Certificate on 23.7.2019 stating therein that the request for registration of the Superior College, Canal View near Darri Singh Pull, Rahim Yar Khan has been received for the session 2019-23 and is under process in its office. On the basis of the Hope Certificate, the Petitioner applied with the University of Sargodha as well as University of Education, Lahore for affiliation of its degree programs. These were granted on 20.9.2019 and 9.6.2019 whereafter the Petitioner reverted back to Respondent No.3 for issuance of its registration certificate. However Respondent No.3 did not issue the registration certificate, instead Respondent No.2 issued letter dated 16.1.2020 claiming therein that the Petitioner's application for registration was time barred, hence it could not be granted any affiliation or registration. Respondent No.2 also directed Respondent No.3 to stop entertaining cases for registration of private colleges. Hence the instant Petition.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that Respondent No.2, Higher Education Department has no jurisdiction with respect to registration of private educational institutions under the Ordinance. In this regard, the issue has already been settled by this Court vide judgment dated 14.2.2020 passed in Writ Petition No. 49585/2019 titled Superior College of Commerce v. Government of the Punjab through Chief Secretary and others and judgment dated 14.2.2020 passed 2020 MLD 1502 in titled Punjab College v. Government of the Punjab through Chief Secretary and others. Learned counsel submits that this Court has already declared interference by the Higher Education Department with reference to the registration of educational institutions as totally illegal, yet Respondent No.2 interfered and has restricted Respondent No.3 from processing the application of the Petitioner. Learned counsel stated that on the basis of the application for registration and issuance of Hope Certificate, the Petitioner has obtained affiliation, admitted students, commenced its programs and now the Respondents are failing to complete the registration process by way of issuance of the registration certificate. Learned counsel submits that once an inspection is carried out and Respondent No.3 is satisfied with the facilities, there is no basis for denying registration to the Petitioner.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed by Respondents Nos.2 and 3. Learned Law Officer argued that the Petitioner has not applied for registration as the Petitioner represents Superior College for Girls whereas the application tendered before Respondent No.3 was for Superior College. Hence he stated that the College for Girls has not applied before Respondent No.3 for extension of its registration. He further argued that Secretary, Higher Education Department being the Administrative Secretary of the Department issued notification dated 13.7.2018 in which a time schedule was provided for grant of NOC for public and private sector colleges in Punjab. On the basis thereof the Petitioner filed the application late, hence their application has been refused. Learned Law Officer further argued that the judgments relied upon have been appealed against, however he stated that the ICAs are still pending. So far as Respondent No.3 is concerned, today Sakhawat Ali Dogar, Deputy Director (Colleges) has appeared in Court with the original record as per orders of this Court dated 16.2.2021.

5. Heard and record perused. The basic contention of the Respondents is that the College of the Petitioner cannot be registered as it is a college for girls which did not apply for registration. However admittedly there is an application filed by the Superior College, Rahim Yar Khan which is pending and pursuant to which Hope Certificate was issued. In this regard, I have carefully gone through the original record and note that the address of the college is the same, the inspection report carried out by Respondent No.3 is for the same campus and the Hope Certificate is also for the same Campus. Six members of the divisional inspection team visited the college premises on 25.5.2019 and found that the college satisfied all conditions for registration, hence recommended it for registration in the additional subjects of BS (Computer Science, Information Technology, Chemistry, Mathematics and English) for the session 2019-2023. Consequent thereof a Hope Certificate was issued on 23.7.2019 wherein the Director General of Respondent No.3 acknowledged that the registration was pending and that the Petitioner can carry on with the affiliation process as contemplated under sections 3(3) of the Ordinance which allows the institution to continue to function without registration during the registration process. The Petitioner applied for affiliation with the University of Sargodha and the University of Education, Lahore which was duly granted and the Petitioner has been awaiting registration since 20.9.2019. On 16.1.2020 Respondent No.2 Higher Education Department issued a letter stating that 60 private colleges applied for BS four year degree program after the due date as per the Higher Education Department's Notification dated 13.7.2018 which cannot be processed and only cases fulfilling Higher Education Department's criteria can be submitted for necessary action. A list has been attached with this notification which includes the Petitioner college at Serial No.32. The contention of the Higher Education Department is that since Secretary Higher Education Department is the Administrative Secretary of the department, hence he can interfere in the registration process. The record also shows that the Directorate of Public Instruction Respondent No.3 issued a letter on 23.7.2019 seeking issuance of NOC for registration of Private Colleges in BS four year degree program from Respondent No.2. The letter is with reference to the Petitioner's Campus. However, there is no explanation for its issuance.

6. The Ordinance provides under Section 3 that all institutions are to be registered and under Section 5 the government shall, by notification, constitute one or more

District Committees in each district consisting of at least five members to perform its functions related to registration under the Ordinance. The application for registration is to be moved before the registering authority which is an officer or committee as notified under section 6 of the Ordinance. This means that the registering authority is Respondent No.3 which has been notified by the Government to carry out the registration process. As per the preamble of the Ordinance registrations is part of the process for regulating the institutions under the Ordinance. In the entire scheme of the law Respondent No.2 has no role to play. Learned Law Officer does not deny this, however the only explanation for the interference by Respondent No.2 in the registration process is that the Secretary is the head of the department. This argument is misconceived as Respondent No.2 has not been able to show how its Secretary is the administrative head of Respondent No.3. It is also noted that in terms of Section 3, once an application for registration of an institution is submitted, the officer receiving the application shall forward the same to the district committee to make an inquiry and submit its report to the registering authority within sixty days. The registering authority after considering the report of the district committee can carry out further inquiry, if it deems necessary and can impose conditions for grant of registration and issue a registration certificate. Section 6(5) of the Ordinance states that the Government, by notification, can constitute one or more Registering Authorities in a district and if more than one Registering Authority is constituted in a district, the Government shall specify the jurisdiction of each Registering Authority. Hence Respondent No.2 has no jurisdiction with respect to the registration of an institution under the Ordinance and in this regard the Petitioner's contention that the matter in issue has already been adjudicated through W.P. No.49585/2019 (supra) and W.P. No.58931/2019 (supra) is correct. So far as letter dated 16.1.2020 is concerned, it required an NOC issued by Respondent No.2 for private colleges for the purposes of starting a four years degree programs. It also refers to Respondent No.2's guidelines of 13.7.2018 on this subject. The guidelines of 13.7.2018 are for starting a degree program and has no relevance to the registration process.

7. As per the Rules of Business, Respondent No.2 Higher Education Department is a government department which is primarily tasked with policy formations and sectoral planning. It has an administrative role under the laws mentioned at Serial No.37 includes the Ordinance. This means that the Higher Education Department can help devise policy on the matter but since it has no role under the Ordinance and the Rules, it cannot interfere in the working of Respondent No.3. Respondent No.3 is to register private educational institutions to ensure compliance with the Ordinance and the Punjab Private Educational Institutions (Promotion and Regulation) Rules, 1984 ("Rules"), specifically Rules 11 and 12 of the Rules. In terms of these Rules, the district committee is to ensure that the private institution has the prescribed textbooks; is following the prescribed syllabus; has the relevant employees for teaching; that it is suitably located; that the premises is equipped with furniture, equipment and the staff is sufficient as per the enrolment of students and that a foreign national is not employee in the institution without proper NOC. In terms of Rule 12 of the Rules, conditions for registration are stipulated which essentially requires the record to be maintained; fees to be charged within reasonable limits and that the institution will furnish all relevant information as may be required by the registering authority. There is nothing in the Rules or Ordinance which requires Respondent No.3 to concur with Respondent No.2 on this issue. Registration ensures that the requirements of the Rules and the Ordinance are fulfilled for regulatory compliance. Respondent No.2 as the Higher Education Department is not involved in this process nor does it fall within their mandate. At best Respondent No.2 should ensure that the functions under the Ordinance are complied with and that proper processes are in place.

8. It has also come to light during the course of arguments that the Petitioner along with other private institutions are required to approach Respondent No.3 on a yearly basis for registration. Respondent No.3 issues a registration certificate which is valid for one year. There is nothing in the Rules nor any regulations or any standing operating procedures ("SOPs") for this yearly registration process. It seems a bit odd that Respondent No.3 would register the Petitioner's institution to carry out a four year degree program yet require annual registration. Essentially the registration is of the institution for the purposes of compliance with the Ordinance. Once an institution is registered, Respondent No.3 can provide a time period for extension in the registration, however there should be rules/ regulations/SOPs for this purpose. Also there are no regulations for the inspections, no SOPs for compliance and nothing to show how inspection is carried out. When confronted with the Rules, Respondent No.3 was unable to explain the manner in which private institutions are inspected and required to rectify the objections. The Rules do not provide for the manner in which objections raised can be cured or removed. As the objective of the law is to register the private institution, Respondent No.3 is obligated to set out a process for registration, provide the required rules and regulations along with SOPs and specify the requirements and time line on the basis of which registration will be carried out. There should be a specified timeframe within which the registration process is completed and there appears to be no justification requiring an annual registration. When confronted with the above, Sakhawat Ali Dogar, Deputy Director (Colleges) was unable to give any reasonable explanation nor could he justify the processes undertaken. It appears that they are done without any comprehensive procedure set out. Learned Law Officer has relied upon a check list which is specifically for a Graduate four years program and not for any other programs.

9. Therefore in this regard, Respondent No.3 is directed to make regulations and SOPs with reference to the registration process. They are also required to set out a timeline for the purposes of registration. As stated above, there appears to be no justification for annual registration which matter should be considered and a reasonable timeframe should be given within which the existing registration expires and fresh registration has to be undertaken. It is also important to note here that the understanding of the officials of Respondent No.3 with respect to the objective of registering private institutions is negligible. Although the senior officers were present before the Court, no one could explain what procedure or process was undertaken nor could anyone assist the Court on the timeline that followed and the reasons for the delay. Director General when questioned stated that the college could be registered by May 2021. Even this statement is totally negligent as there is no reason to delay the matter until May 2021. If at all Respondent No.3 considers it necessary to carry out another inspection for any private institution it should not take so many months and particularly in this case where the matter has been delayed for more than one and half year totally due to Respondent No.3.

10. In view of the aforesaid, the instant Petition is accepted and Respondent No.3 is directed to immediately register the college of the Petitioner.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---The instant Petition along with connected Petitions as detailed in Schedule "A" have challenged the legality and authority of the Drug Regulatory Authority of Pakistan ("DRAP") to regulate medical devices. The Petitioners also challenge the Medical Devices Rules, 2017 ("2017 Rules") for being excessive delegation essentially on the ground that the Medical Devices Board constituted thereunder is without the required authority under the DRAP Act. Consequently the Petitioners seek a declaration that the Respondent DRAP be permanently restrained from interfering in the manufacture, import and sale of medical devices.

2. There are three categories of Petitioners before the Court, namely importers, exporters and manufacturers of medical devices. The medical devices range from devices related to Covid-19, such as masks, oximeters, shields and gloves, to devices related to cosmetic surgery, in-vitro diagnostic devices, ultrasound, sutures, stents, legatures, disposable syringes, stapler guns to life saving medical devices. The exporters of medical devices essentially specialize in surgical instruments. Some of the Petitioners import medical devices for their own use whilst others act as importers/distributors for onward supply.

The case of the Petitioners

3. The basic contentions of the Petitioners is that Parliament does not have legislative competence on the subject of medical devices as medical devices do not fall within the ambit of 'drugs and medicine'. It is argued that since medical devices do not fall within the ambit of 'drugs and medicine', the resolution passed by the Punjab Provincial Assembly under Article 144 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") on 15.2.2012 with reference to 'drug and medicine' is not applicable to 'medical devices'. Hence Parliament is not competent to make law with reference to medical devices. It is also argued that 'drugs and medicine' are substances, which are ingested or applied whereas medical devices are instruments, apparatus or machines and related articles used for diagnosis or non-medical procedures, hence are neither drugs nor medicine and were never intended to be treated as 'drugs and medicine'. Counsel for the Petitioner argued that historically medical devices were not included in the definition of 'drug' under the Drugs Act, 1976 ("Drugs Act") whereas under the Drug Regulatory Authority of Pakistan Act, 2012 ("DRAP Act") it has been included under 'therapeutic goods' which in itself suggests that medical devices are not drugs and medicine. It is also argued that for all intents and purposes 'drugs and medicine' are distinct from medical devices and they cannot be treated as drugs and medicine as their functions and usage is different. Consequently the resolution dated 15.2.2012 passed by the Punjab Provincial Assembly does not authorize Parliament to legislate on medical devices. With reference to the 2017 Rules, it is argued that they are beyond the mandate and power provided under the DRAP Act as there is no concept of a Medical Devices Board under the DRAP Act, hence the Medical Devices Board established under the 2017 Rules is illegal, based on excessive delegation of power. It is also argued that the medical devices imported by the Petitioners are all high quality, certified by prestigious international bodies, hence requiring further certification and permission from DRAP for the purposes of import and clearance is totally against the mandate of the law; that the Respondents have failed to establish standards against which the Petitioners' import and export or production and sale can be regulated; that the timelines followed by DRAP are long and are not in the best commercial interest of the Petitioners. It is further argued that the 2017 Rules are arbitrary and impracticable. The exporters of medical devices claim that the export of surgical instruments cannot be regulated by DRAP. It is their case that they manufacture high quality surgical instruments through various artisans and technicians working at a small scale from their homes or small workshops and specialize in one of the many steps involved in the process of manufacturing surgical instruments. Hence regulating the export of surgical instruments is impracticable and does not fall under DRAP's mandate.

4. The Petitioners who import in-vitro diagnostic devices and cosmetic devices argue that these devices do not interact with the subject used upon and are only used for diagnostic and monitoring purposes or for cosmetic purposes, hence they cannot be classified as a drug or medicine, as they do not treat any disease. Similar is the argument for those importing devices used during the pandemic Covid-19 as they also agitate that they should not be required to obtain an NOC for import and release of their consignments as this is not DRAPs mandate. Learned counsel for the Petitioners have placed reliance on Constitution Petition No.127 of 2012 (PLD 2013 SC 829), Johnson and Johnson Pak (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Pakistan and others (2008 PTD 345), Dr. Shahnaz Wajid v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Establishment Division, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad (2011 SCMR 1737), Nadeem Ahmad Advocate v. Federation of Pakistan (2013 SCMR 1062), Khawaja Ahmad Hassaan v. Government of Punjab and others (2005 SCMR 186) and Pakistan through Secretary Finance, Islamabad and 5 others v. Aryan Petro Chemical Industries (Pvt.) Ltd. Peshawar and others (2003 SCMR 370) in support of their arguments.

The case of the Respondents

5. On behalf of the Respondent DRAP, learned counsel argued that medical devices have historically always been treated as 'drugs' under the Drugs Act as it is specifically included in the definition of 'drug' in section 3(g)(ii)(vi) and (viii). He stated that even otherwise the nature of the definition of 'drug' under the Drugs Act covers medical devices as these devices are used in the treatment, monitoring, prevention or diagnosis of diseases which include substances or devices which the Federal Government may by notification declare as a drug for the purposes of the Drugs Act. He argued that under the DRAP Act medical devices are included in the definition of therapeutic goods in section 2(xxxvi) and defined in Section 2 (xii) of the DRAP Act. As Medical devices are used for treatment, diagnosis, facilitation and prevention of disease they must be regulated to ensure safety, effectiveness and efficacy. At the heart of the regulatory objective is the health and well being of the person for whose benefit the medical device is to be used. He stated that the 2017 Rules are in accordance with law as a summary for the approval of the 2017 Rules was moved before the Federal Cabinet which approved the same on 15.1.2018. The 2017 Rules were published on 17.1.2018 consequent to which DRAP is authorized to regulate importers and exporters of medical devices to ensure the registration of their products and also to ensure that the medical devices are compliant of the required standards. He stated that this is as per international practice where medical devices are subject to strict review and scrutiny at the time of import or export not only to ensure that they have been manufactured in accordance with the applicable laws but also to ensure the safety, efficacy and effectiveness. He also argued that this matter was considered by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2017 in a Suo Motu Case with reference to the substandard cardiac stents and it was on the clear directions of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan that the 2017 Rules were promulgated. He stated that the Medical Devices Board has been constituted in accordance with the law and the direction of the august Supreme Court and that most of the Petitioners before the Court are duly registered with DRAP and have applied for registration with the Medical Devices Board.

6. Learned counsel for DRAP further stated that the resolution by the Punjab Provincial Assembly on 15.2.2012 which is with reference to 'drugs and medicine', for all intents and purposes it includes medical devices because at the time medical devices were regulated under the Drugs Act. He explained that prior to the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, matters related to drugs and medicine were listed under Entry No.20 of the Concurrent Legislative List in the Fourth Schedule to the Constitution and were administered under the Drugs Act. The definition of 'drug' under the Drugs Act was not exhaustive and included the medical devices specifically and those included by way of the notifications issued by the Federal Government from time to time. He further argued that medical devices are considered to be part and parcel of the definition of drugs throughout the world and are subject to regulatory compliance. Therefore he argued that DRAP is duly authorized to regulate medical devices under the Drugs Act and the DRAP Act.

7. Report and parawise comments have also been filed on behalf of the Respondent Federation. Learned Additional Attorney General for Pakistan argued that the statute cannot be declared unconstitutional unless its invalidity is beyond reasonable doubt; that all matters relating to drugs and medicine have been allocated to the National Health Service, Regulation and Coordination, Division, Islamabad and that Parliament is empowered to regulate the subject matter of medical devices. Report and parwise comments have also been filed on behalf of Federal Board of Revenue and Collectorate of Customs. Learned counsel argued that the matter does not fall within the domain of the stated Respondents.

8. On the basis of the arguments made before the Court, the issues before the Court are firstly; whether Parliament is competent to legislate on medical devices and whether medical devices fall within the ambit of the resolution passed by the Punjab Provincial Assembly on 15.2.2012 and Secondly; whether the Medical Devices Board as constituted under the 2017 Rules has been constituted in accordance with law and finally whether the processes before the Medical Devices Board is laborious and time consuming so as to prejudice the businesses of the Petitioners.

On Legislative Competence

9. The basic case of the Petitioners is that medical devices do not fall within the ambit of 'drugs and medicine', hence Parliament cannot legislate on the same. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the resolution passed by the Punjab Provincial Assembly dated 15.2.2012 is specifically with reference to 'drugs and medicine' and does not mention medical devices. Hence they argued that Parliament cannot legislate on medical devices as the Provincial Legislature is competent to legislate on the subject of medical devices. They have relied on various definitions of drugs and medicine to establish the point that medical devices are not drugs and medicines as they are not substances, nor injected and in some cases not used for medical purposes.

10. On behalf of Respondent DRAP, it is argued that historically medical devices have been regulated under the Drugs Act; that the Drugs Act specifically mentions medical devices within the definition of 'drug' under Section 3(g) (ii) (vi) and (viii). Learned counsel further argued that the courts have interpreted the definition of drugs to mean and include medical devices. Reliance is placed on Chimanlal Jagjivandis Sheth v. State of Maharashtra (AIR 1963 SC 665 (V 50 C 102)) in which the court has held that the definition of 'drugs' is comprehensive enough to include drugs and medicines as well as medical devices that is substances which are not strictly used as medicine but undertake similar functions for treatment and diagnosis. Learned counsel further argued that the Federal Government can notify any substance to be treated as a drug, hence SRO 957(I)/2009 dated 5.11.2009, SRO 916(I)/2010 dated 30.9.2010, SRO 917(I)/ 2010 dated 1.10.2020, SRO 918(I)/2010, SRO 919(I)/2010, SRO 824(I)/2018 dated 28.6.2018 have been issued which includes medical devices in the definition of drug under the Drugs Act.

11. So far as the DRAP Act is concerned, medical devices have been specifically included in the definition of 'therapeutic goods' and are defined under Section 2(xxxvi) of the DRAP Act read with Schedule-I of the DRAP Act so as to include all instruments, medical equipments, implants, disposables and software which are used in the diagnosis, monitoring and treatment of disease or any other item which the Federal Government may declare by way of notification to be a medical device. Therefore he argued that for all intents and purposes medical devices have always been construed as a drug and have always been regulated so as to ensure its safety, effectiveness and efficacy. Consequently at the time when the Punjab Provincial Assembly passed the resolution dated 15.2.2012, the definition of 'drugs and medicine' included medical devices.

12. The scope of the resolution passed by the Punjab Provincial Assembly has already been discussed by this Court vide judgment dated 5.8.2020 passed in W.P. No.3973/2017 titled Dawakhana Hakim Ajmal Khan (Pvt.) Limited v. Federation of Pakistan and others PLD 2020 Lah. 899 ("Dawakhana Case"), so as to include a large variety of products which as per the petitioners before the Court in that case did not fall within the meaning of 'drugs and medicine' which reads as under:-
For the purposes of legislative competence there is no legal basis to urge the point that certain products were not intended to be regulated by and under the DRAP Act. Whether or not a product falls under DRAP's regulatory jurisdiction, will be seen in the context of DRAP's regulatory objective and the processes laid out to evaluate the products. It is not the Resolution passed by the Provincial Assembly of Punjab which will determine this issue rather the criterias set out by DRAP to determine whether a product falls under its regulatory jurisdiction. This has to be done in the context of the DRAP Act, the Rules and the regulatory objective of DRAP. Furthermore, classification of products requires a formal determination by DRAP and cannot be broadly categorized as per the dictionary meaning of food or drug or cosmetic for that matter. Similarly alternative medicine encompasses a wide array of traditional remedies, products and therapies which have to be seen in the context of the statutory definition under the DRAP Act. Hence there is no merit in the argument that the Provincial Assembly of Punjab never intended to grant legislative authority for these products, as this issue can only be answered in the context of the DRAP Act and the Rules. In this regard, it is also important to note that the Province of Punjab has not challenged or questioned the competence of Parliament to regulate drugs and medicine under the DRAP Act nor have they stated in their report and parawise comments filed before this Court, there is a dispute. To the contrary the Province of Punjab has taken the position that the DRAP Act is in addition to and not in derogation of the Drug Act and that the objective of the amendments to the Drug Act was to enable the Provincial Government to deal more efficiently with spurious, adulterated and substandard drugs. Therefore based on the aforesaid, Parliament is competent to enact the Drug Act and the amendments to the Drug Act have not revoked or cancelled the Resolution dated 15.02.2012 given by the Provincial Assembly of the Punjab to Parliament to regulate the subject of drugs and medicine.

In this regard, it is important to note that the entire case of the instant Petitioners with reference to medical devices is also based on the strict interpretation of the words 'drugs and medicine' used in the resolution passed by the Punjab Provincial Assembly. The said resolution allows Parliament to make laws to regulate the subject of 'drugs and medicine' in the following terms:

The Provincial Assembly of the Punjab resolves that the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may, by law, regulate matters relating to drugs and medicines in term of Article 144 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan.

Hence the issue before the Court is whether medical devices are 'drugs and medicine'.

13. The DRAP Act under Section 32 provides that the Act is in addition to and not in derogation of the provisions made in the Drugs Act and any other law enforced. The Drugs Act defines 'drug' in section 3(g) in the following terms:-

Drug Act, 1976 section 3(g) (i) to (viii)

(g) "drugs" includes,--

(ii) abortive and contraceptive, substances, agents and devices, surgical ligatures, sutures, bandages, absorbent cotton, disinfectants, bacteriophages, adhesive plasters, gelatin capsules and antiseptic solutions;

(iii) such substances intended to be used for the destruction or repulsion of such vermin, insects, rodents and other organisms as cause, carry or transmit disease in human beings or animals or for disinfection in residential areas or in premises in which food is manufactured, prepared or kept or stored;

(iv) such pesticides as may cause health hazard to the public;
(v) any substance mentioned as monograph or as preparation in the Pakistan Pharmacopoeia or the Pakistan National Formulary or the International Pharmacopoeia or the British Pharmacopoeia or the British Pharmaceutical Codex or the United States Pharmacopoeia or the national Formulary of the United States, whether alone or in combination with any substance exclusively used in the unani, ayurvedic, homeopathic or biochemical system of treatment, and intended to be used for any of the purposes mentioned in sub-clauses (i), (ii) and (iii); and
(vi) immediate packing containers for sterile preparations which are in direct contact with the drug, blood bags, disposable giving set for infusion or blood, disposable syringes or any other substance or device which the Federal Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare to be a "drug" for the purposes of this Act;
(vii) Infant formulas, follow up milks, milk substitutes, baby foods, baby gruels, baby teas and juices, bottles and treats and any other product used as infant formula as such;
(viii) Cosmetics including hair Sprays, perfumes, facial and talcum powders, hair treatment shampoos, hair conditioning aids and devices and all formulas and lotions connected therewith for conditioning and cleaning of hair, hair colours, facial make-up foundations, vanishing and cold creams, creamy make-up sticks, bath lotions and oils, blushers and blush-ons, texture improvement devices, moisturizers of all kinds, mascaras, vaselines, sunnas, wrinkle-care creams, hair oils/herbal preparations for texture and facial glow and improvement, shower creams, skin lotions and oils, sun-burn lotions and oils, shaving cream and lathers, after-shave lotions and any other preparation or material connected therewith; (emphasis added)
Devices find mention specifically in Section 3(g) (ii) and (vi) of the Drugs Act. Section 3(g)(ii) specifically lists out certain devices including surgical ligatures, sutures, bandages, absorbent cotton, disinfectants, bacteriophages, adhesive plasters, gelatin capsules and antiseptic solutions which have been included in the definition of drug. It also provides that substances, agents and devices are included in the definition of drug, meaning thereby that the definition of 'drug' was not limited to medicine or substances which are ingested, applied or administered but include devices. Furthermore section 3(g)(vi) of the Drugs Act allows the Federal Government to notify any substance or device as a drug. Consequently the Federal Government notified certain substance to be a drug vide SRO 957(I)/2009 dated 5.11.2009 declaring canula, catheter and stent, being medical devices, to be drugs under the Drugs Act and vide SRO 916(I)/2010 dated 30.9.2010 amended the Drugs (Licensing Registering and Advertising) Rules, 1976 to include medical devices. It prescribed the requirements for manufacturing of medical devices. SRO 917(I)/2010 amended the Drugs (Specification) Rules, 1978 to include medical devices and required medical devices to meet the requirements set out in British Pharmacopoeia and where specifications are not given in the British Pharmacopoeia, to follow specifications given by International Standards Organization, World Health Organization ("WHO"), United States Pharmacopoeia and International Pharmacopoeia. SRO 918(I)2010 amended the Drugs (Labelling and Packing) Rules, 1986 to include medical devices and regulated labelling and packing of medical devices. SRO 919(I)/2010 amended the Drugs (Import and Export) Rules, 1976 to include medical devices for regulating its import and export. Hence the contention of the Petitioners that medical devices have never been regulated under the Drugs Act is without basis. Medical devices were regulated under the Drugs Act, and were included in the definition of 'drug' either specifically or through the authority given to the Federal Government under the Drugs Act. Not only does the definition include devices but the Drugs Act allows the Federal Government to declare substances or devices to be drugs. This means that the legislature was conscious of the fact that the list provided in the definition of 'drug' under the Drugs Act is not exhaustive, hence it authorized the Government to keep adding substances and devices for the purposes of the definition of 'drug' as it was deemed necessary.

14. There is no specific definition of the term medical devices. They are used in diverse settings, at home, by paramedical staff, in clinics, in hospitals by doctors or dentists. They can be used for diagnoses, for monitoring for assistance and for life support purposes. As per the WHO there are an estimated two million different kinds of medical devices on the world market in more than 22000 generic groups. Consequently the term medical devices cover a wide range of products that are used in processes or procedures where the health and safety of the user is relevant. Globally 'medical devices' are regulated due to their use in the diagnosis, prevention, mitigation and treatment of disease. They include health care equipment as well as devices used in cosmetic surgery and processes as well as in-vitro diagnosis medical devices. The WHO defines medical devices and IVD in the WHO Global Model Regulatory Framework for Medical Devices including in vitro diagnostic medical devices as:
any instrument, apparatus, implement, machine, appliance, implant, reagent for in vitro use, software, material or other similar or related article, intended by the manufacturer to be used, alone or in combination, for human beings, for one or more of the specific medical purpose(s) of:
diagnosis, prevention, monitoring, treatment or alleviation of disease; diagnosis, monitoring, treatment, alleviation of or compensation for an injury; investigation, replacement, modification or support of the anatomy or of a physiological process;
supporting or sustaining life;
control of conception;
disinfection of medical devices;
providing information by means of in vitro examination of specimens derived from the human body, and which does not achieve its primary intended action by pharmacological, immunological or metabolic means, in or on the human body, but which may be assisted in its intended function by such means.
IVD means a medical device, whether used alone or in combination, intended by the manufacturer for the in vitro examination of specimens derived from the human body solely or principally to provide information for diagnostic, monitoring or compatibility purposes (1). For a glossary of other relevant terms, see Appendix 1.

There may also be products on the market that are similar to medical devices in function and risk that do not fit within these definitions. For reasons of protecting public health they are regulated as if they were medical devices. Examples include: impregnated bed nets to protect against malaria-bearing mosquitoes; personal protective devices to avoid cross-infection; lead aprons to protect against radiation; some medical gases; and implantable or other invasive products for a cosmetic rather than a, medical purpose.

15. As per the definition given by the WHO it is the purpose of the medical device which is relevant and which renders medical devices to regulations similar to drugs and medicine. This is fundamental to the health and safety of the user of the medical devices. Hence 'drugs and medicine' cannot be restrictively construed particularly when the record shows that drugs included medical devices. Therefore the term 'drugs and medicine' unsed in the resolution passed by the Punjab Provincial Assembly cannot be given limited application as the term drug has always included medical devices and it is for DRAP to decide whether a medical device is to be regulated. This Court has already held in the Dawakhana case that;
A bare reading of both definitions show that the intent of the legislature has always been to cover a broad category of products. For the purposes of the dispute at hand the products of the Petitioners are classified under the definition of Alternative Medicine, Therapeutic Goods, Health and OTC Products and Medicated Cosmetics which definitions do not offend any fundamental right or interest of the Petitioners. The intent of the legislature is to provide a broad based definition so as to ensure that if a product falls within the regulatory objective of DRAP it must be compliant with its regulatory requirements. DRAP is also authorized to ensure implementation of internationally recognized standards, especially implementation of guidelines issued by World Health Organization. To execute its powers and functions, the composition of DRAP is made of specialist directors in every field and if required the Federal Government can always increase the number of divisions or directors as required. The Drug Act also provided for regulating the import and export of drugs, the manufacture of drugs and the sale of drugs. Hence the Drug Act also contemplated the registration, licensing and regulation of the manufacture of drugs as well as the import and export of drugs. The DRAP Act being in addition to the Drug Act maintains these functions in addition to those stipulated in the DRAP Act. Accordingly the legislative intent is clearly to build upon the regulatory framework under the Drug Act to include Therapeutic Goods, Alternative Medicine, Health and OTC Products and Medicated Cosmetics. The objective of the regulatory framework is to ensure that the consumer or user of the product is protected from harm, and that the consumer knows what they are buying or consuming.

16. So far as the DRAP Act is concerned, it includes medical devices in the definition of therapeutic goods bringing it within DRAP's regulatory domain. Section 2(xviii) of the DRAP Act provides that medical devices means the devices stipulated in Schedule-I and Schedule-I provides that medical devices are (a) instruments, medical equipment, implants, disposables and software, used mainly for the purpose of (diagnosis, monitoring and treatment, of disease); or (b) any other item which the Federal Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, declare as medical device. The DRAP Act as per its preamble states its purpose as being to regulate the manufacture, import, export, storage and distribution and sale of therapeutic goods. The reason being that therapeutic goods which have a health related purpose have to be regulated for safety, efficiency and efficacy. Hence medical devices have been specifically and purposefully included in the range of therapeutic goods for the purposes of regulation. In this regard, it is for DRAP to decide whether a medical device falls within their regulatory domain as the underlying principle will be the purpose for which the device is used. This is because medical devices play a significant role in health care delivery and also carry some element of risk associated with the purpose and usage. Medical devices are regulated by DRAP to ensure safety, effectiveness and quality and are assessed on the basis of their classification. Medical devices are classified in four categories based on intended use with class A being lowest in risk and class D being highest in risk. Even in "Messrs Azfar Laboratories Private Limited through Directors and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of National Health Services and 4 others" (PLD 2018 Sindh 448) ("Azfar Laboratories Case") while discussing the resolution passed by the Punjab Provincial Assembly the Court concluded that it appears to be stated in the broadest of terms. The Court also concluded that the silence and lack of action by the Provincial Assembly is significant, as it suggest that the Provincial Government has no objection to the regulatory ambit of DRAP as per the DRAP Act. Hence for all intents and purpose medical devices fall within the authority granted by the Punjab Provincial Assembly to Parliament vide resolution dated 15.02.2012 as the sole object of the resolution was to authorize Parliament to regulate the subject of medicine which includes medical devices.

17. The next question is whether the Medical Devices Board has been established lawfully under the DRAP Act read with the 2017 Rules or whether it is a case of excessive delegation. Learned counsel argued that the DRAP Act in Section 7(u) has not constituted a registration board or a licensing board as defined in section 2(xvii) and (xxxii) of the DRAP Act. It is further argued that only board established under the DRAP Act is the policy board in terms of section 9 of the DRAP Act and there is no provision under the DRAP Act which establishes a Medical Devices Board. Learned counsel further argued that the Medical Devices Board has not been catered for even in the definitions or in any provisions of the DRAP Act, hence its establishment under the 2017 Rules is illegal and amounts to excessive delegation.

18. On behalf of the Respondents it is argued that the Registration Board is constituted under the Drugs Act which provides for a registration board as well as licensing board in terms of sections 5 and 7 of the Drugs Act. Learned counsel further argued that Section 7(u) of the DRAP Act includes the power to establish a board for the purposes of the licensing, registration, pricing and appellate function. He stated that on the directions of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Human Rights Case No.623-P/2017 (in the matter of imbedding substandard cardiac stents) ("HRC") regarding sale of substandard stents, several directions were given to DRAP which included the direction to establish a separate board for medical devices to improve its regulatory regime over medical devices. Consequent thereof in the 241st meeting of the Registration Board held on 23.12.2013, the matter was taken up by the Registration Board and it was decided that a separate board be established for medical devices. Finally in the 268th meeting of the Registration Board, a decision for the establishment of Medical Devices Board was approved, such that the experts with reference to medical devices on the Registration Board were shifted to the Medical Devices Board. Learned counsel further argued that essentially the registration board established and constituted under the Drugs Act was bifurcated so as to become a separate registration board for medical devices. Learned counsel argued that the Registration Board and the Licensing Board under the Drugs Act was originally registering and licensing drugs which included medical devices but with the constitution of the Medical Devices Board the task of registering and licensing medical devices was shifted to the Medical Devices Board. He further argued that majority of the Petitioners before this Court have been registering their medical devices originally with the Registration Board and now with the Medical Devices Board, hence they cannot aprobate and reprobate at the same time. In this regard he has relied on the registration certificates of various different medical devices by the Petitioners including the instant Petitioner before the Court, Johnson and Johnson Pakistan (Private) Limited. He has placed a list of all importers and local manufacturers registered with the Medical Devices Board on record.

19. As per the record, a summary for the Federal Cabinet was prepared on 15.12.2017 for approval of the Medical Devices Rules, 2017. The Medical Device Rules, 2017 were submitted for approval of the Cabinet on 15.12.2017. On 26.12.2017 the Cabinet considered the summary dated 15.12.2017 submitted by National Health Services, Regulations and Coordination Division for approval of Medical Devices Rules, 2017 and approved the same. In terms of letter dated 15.1.2018 issued by the Ministry of National Health Services, Regulations and Coordination, Islamabad, Chief Executive Officer, DRAP was requested to notify the approved Medical Devices Rules, 2017 and to submit a copy of the notified rules for onward submission to Cabinet Division. On 17.1.2018 SRO 32(I)/2018 was issued by the Ministry of National Health Services, Regulations and Coordination Drug Regulatory Authority of Pakistan, Islamabad whereby the Medical Devices Rules, 2017 were notified in the official gazette. Thereafter through SRO 143(I)/2018 dated 7.2.2018, in terms of Rule 59 of the Medical Devices Rules, 2017, Medical Device Board was constituted comprising of ten members. Furthermore the record shows that as per order dated 2.3.2017 in the HRC Case the august Supreme Court of Pakistan directed that a committee be constituted comprising of all stakeholders to resolve the issue of registration of medical devices and to make the process efficient. The Association of Medical Devices, some importers and some local manufacturers of medical devices were all before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan on that date. Subsequently consultative meetings were held on 6.3.2017 and 10.3.2017 with representation of all stakeholders. In fact notification dated 21.3.2017 issued by Ministry of National Health Services, Regulations and Coordination, Islamabad shows that several of the Petitioners were part of the Committee established to revise the Medical Devices Rules, 2015 for improving the working of DRAP towards medical devices. The meetings resulted in the 2017 Rules which is now under challenge.

20. Section 5 of the Drugs Act calls for the grant of licenses to manufacture drugs on the terms and conditions provided by the Central Licensing Board. Section 7 povides for the registration of drugs in accordance with the conditions prescribed by a Registration Board comprising of such persons as may be prescribed. Consequent thereof a Registration Board was established which was performing the functions of registration of drugs including medical devices. Under the Drugs (Licensing, Registering and Advertising) Rules, 1976. The requirements of registration of drugs by the Registration Board are provided in Chapter III Rules 24 and 25 read with Rule 29 which prescribes the procedure for registration. As the DRAP Act provides under Section 32 that the Act is in addition to and not in derogation of the provisions made in the Drugs Act and any other law enforced, the establishment of the Registration Board as per Section 7 of the Drugs Act is in accordance with law. The DRAP Act established DRAP under Section 3 of the DRAP Act and the composition of DRAP is in Section 4 which has created different directors which includes the Director Medical Devices and Medicated Cosmetics. He is incharge of the Division of Medical Devices and is responsible for all functions related to regulation and enlistment. In terms of Section 7 of the DRAP Act, DRAP has the power and function to issue guidelines and monitor the enforcement of licensing registration and regulations for therapeutic goods and under Section 7(u) DRAP is to perform the functions of licensing, registration, pricing and appellate functions. Consequently the DRAP Act does not need to constitute a registration board that has already been constituted under the Drugs Act. DRAP has the authority to issue guidelines and also to undertake the functions of licensing and registration. On the basis of the statutory powers, DRAP can take decision related to the functions of registration and licensing. In the 46th session of the National Assembly held on 14.9.2017 the Minister for National Health Services, Regulations and Coordination apprised the Assembly that medical devices were regulated as 'drugs' under the Drugs Act and that the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has directed in a case related to the sale of substandard stents that DRAP formulate a more efficient process with respect to medical devices. Subsequently, a report was tendered by the Secretary to the Prime Minister in which it was recommended that there should be a Medical Devices Board which will specialize in the function of registration and licensing of medical devices so as to ensure efficiency in the process and also to simplify procedures for the benefit of its users. Consequently the matter was taken up at the 241st meeting of the Registration Board of DRAP wherein it was decided that a Medical Devices Board shall be set up which will deal specifically with registration and licensing of medical devices. Hence as per the record, the Medical Devises Board is a subset of the Registration Board duly constituted under the Drugs Act and in line with its functions and authority.

21. Under the DRAP Act, Section 7 provides for the powers and functions of the authority which specifically requires that the authority issue guidelines and monitor the enforcement of licensing, registration, advertisement, drug specifications, pricing among other functions. Sub-section (u) provides specifically for the functions of licensing, registration, pricing and appellate function thereof and Section 8 gives the authority the power to delegate its functions to any of those officers as it may deem appropriate. The 2017 Rules defines Medical Devices Board to be the body responsible for the enlistment and registration of medical devices, licensing of establishment and issuance of permits for export and import of medical devices and for matters related thereto. All these functions are provided for under the DRAP Act and were previously administered by the Registration Board under the Drugs Act. The Registration Board and the Licensing Board are contemplated under the Drugs Act and were constituted accordingly. The Medical Devices Board as a subset of the Registration Board specializes in the enlistment, licensing of medical devices and is duly constituted. Hence there is no illegality in sub-dividing the functions of the registration board so as to create a separate board for the purposes of registering and licensing medical devices. The Medical Devices Board is in fact the registration and licensing board contemplated under the Drugs Act but has been given a separate name so as to distinguish it from drugs and other therapeutic products registered under the DRAP Act.

22. As per the record provided by the DRAP, the minutes of meeting of the Medical Devices Board show that the Petitioners have applied for registration and licensing before the Registration Board and the Medical Devices Board since its inception. In fact the Respondent DRAP has relied upon W.P. No.3134/2017 filed by Ferozsons Laboratories Limited in which the petitioner admitted and accepted the registration process before the Medical Devices Board wherein it was specifically stated that the Medical Devices Board is responsible for registration and licensing of medical devices and in fact it was their case that the 2017 Rules will regulate all medical devices and that all medical devices registered under the Drugs Act should be deemed to be registered under the Medical Devices Rules, 2017. In this regard, it is noted that the petitioner Ferozsons Laboratories Limited is also before the Court in W.P. No.16171/2020 now challenging the establishment of the Medical Devices Board in total negation of their earlier contention in W.P. No.3134/2017. Hence there appears to be no justifiable ground for challenging the constitution of the Medical Devices Board.

23. The Petitioners have argued that the process and procedure adopted by DRAP with reference to medical devices are laborious and not conducive to good practices, hence have an adverse impact on the commercial interests of the Petitioners. The Petitioners have agitated on the enforcement of timeline by DRAP on the fees structure followed by DRAP, on the application methodology for enlistment or for licensing and for NOCs as being tedious and encumbring and un-practical, hence the 2017 Rules are liable to be struck down. Learned counsel for DRAP along with Dr. Ghazanfar Ali Khan, Secretary/Director Medical Devices Board has explained that the consultative process is underway in which several of the issues highlighted by the Petitioners are before a committee seeking to revise the rules. It is stated that previously before the establishment of the Medical Devices Board a consultative process was adopted to revise the 2015 Rules which resulted in the 2017 Rules. In the same way a consultative process is again underway and most of the issues highlighted by the Petitioners can be placed before DRAP, however it does not necessitate striking down the rules. Learned counsel has placed reliance on the facilitative processes adopted by DRAP for the purposes of medical devices, such as Standard Operating Procedures ("SOPs") for enlistment purposes, for renewal purposes, for obtaining NOCs for clearance of imported products and for inspection of good distribution practices for medical devices.

24. Regulating medical devices is an evolving field which may face various different complications on account of the variety of issues that are related to the development of medical devices, their usage and performance. The primary regulatory objective of DRAP is to ascertain the performance and usage of the medical devices and thereafter to ensure safety and effectiveness in the performance of medical devices. This is essentially done through the process of risk assessment which involves analysis and evaluation of the risks involved with respect to the medical device, which is why the devices are categorized and classified as per the risk involved in their usage. It is noted that even under the Drugs Act, the import, export and manufacturing of medical devices including packing, advertisement, sale and distribution was regulated so as to ensure that the medical device is as per the required standards to ensure safety, efficacy and effectiveness. In this regard, it is noted that one of the arguments put forward was that where medical devices are registered with regulatory authorities of foreign jurisdiction they should not be re-evaluated by DRAP for the purposes of enlistment, licensing or clearance. However, this argument is totally misplaced as the mere fact that a product is registered with a regulatory authority of foreign jurisdiction does not mean that the medical device should not be scrutinized at the time of manufacture, import or export by DRAP to ensure compliance with its regulatory requirements. For the purposes of medical devices manufactured, imported or exported into Pakistan or from Pakistan it must be ensured that the standards set out by DRAP are complied with. As the issues raised are with respect to processes and delay, the Petitioners can raise it with DRAP to duly consider the same and make changes in the rules or SOPs where required and if required. So far as the regulatory regime of medical devices is concerned, as provided for under the Drugs Act, DRAP Act and the 2017 Rules, the public is the ultimate beneficiary of the medical devices whether used at home or in a clinic or hospital, whether for cosmetics or in-vitro diagnostic purposes, there is an obligation on the Respondents to ensure the safety and effectiveness of the medical devices.

25. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. All these Petitions are dismissed.

SAJID HUSSAIN SHAH--Petitioner
versus
PAKISTAN CRICKET BOARD through Chairman etc.--Respondents
W.P. No. 29875 of 2014, heard on 5.6.2015.

Constitution of Pakistan, 1973--

----Art. 199--Scrutiny of clubs--Declaration as "inactive"--Appeals--Allowed--Appeals before independent adjudicator--Rejected--Standing to contest election--Locus standi--Aggrieved person--Cricket club of petitioner did not challenge active status of Respondents No. 3 to 5--Manipulation of election process--Challenge to--I have gone through order of Independent Adjudicator and I am in agreement with order that Petitioner does hot have locus standi as he is not an aggrieved person so far as order of Independent Adjudicator is concerned--If a candidate is allowed to challenge "Active" status of clubs, it would mean that every candidate could manipulate election process and try to control electoral college which would ultimately affect election--This is not mandate of Constitution of PCB which basically requires that clubs are scrutinized and verified for purposes of being declared "Active"--Once process has been completed and a club has gone through process of scrutiny then appeal before Election Commission and Independent Adjudicator, question of "Active" or "Non-Active" status of cricket club cannot be raised by a candidate simply because he is desirous of winning election--It is also noted from record that cricket club of Petitioner did not challenge "Active" status of Respondents No. 3 to 5--It is only Petitioner in his personal capacity who has filed appeals--Petitioner is not an aggrieved person and merely apprehending outcome of RDCA election does not qualify as being an aggrieved person--Petition dismissed.
[Para 6] A, B & C

Barrister Haaris Ramzan, Advocate for Petitioner.
Mr. Zaki Rehman, Advocate for Respondent-PCB.
Mr. Abdul Razzaq Rajab, Advocate for Respondents No. 3 to 5.
Date of Hearing: 5.6.2015.

JUDGMENT
This petition impugns the decision of the Independent Adjudicator dated 13.6.2014 with reference to the case of Respondents No. 3 to 5.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that the Respondents No. 3 to 5 Clubs were scrutinized as per the prescribed procedure of the Pakistan Cricket Board ("PCB") in October 2013 and were declared "Inactive" clubs pursuant to Notification dated 7.10.2013. The stated Respondents being aggrieved by Notification of 7.10.2013 filed appeals before the Election Commission which appeals were allowed. The Petitioner being aggrieved by the clubs having been declared "Active" filed appeals before the Independent Adjudicator because as president of Malik Gymkhana

Cricket Club, Rawalpindi he is a candidate for the forthcoming election of the Rawalpindi District Cncket Association ("RDCA") and he is prejudiced by Respondent No. 3-5 rival clubs right to vote in the RDCA elections. Learned counsel for the Petitioner states that the orders of the Election Commission are contrary to the record as they themselves state that the required number of sixteen players were not present at the time of scrutiny yet allowed the appeals, hence declaring the clubs to be "Active". Learned counsel states that the only way to verify a club is through the scrutiny process and if the required number of players are not present, the club cannot be declared as "Active".

3. Learned counsel for Respondent PCB submits that the scrutiny process was undertaken as per law and essentially the dispute is one between the Petitioner and Respondents No. 3 to 5. He emphasized the fact that on account of such like disputes, the election process is being delayed.

4. Learned counsel for Respondents No. 3 to 5 raised an objection on the locus standi of the Petitioner. He stated that the Petitioner is not an aggrieved person and as such has no locus standi to file the instant petition. Further argued that the Petitioner is a candidate in the upcoming election and that being a candidate in the election does not give him cause to question the decision of the Election Commission or the Independent Adjudicator. Learned counsel submits that the Cricket Club of the Petitioner did not challenge the decision of the Election Commission or that of the Independent Adjudicator but the Petitioner in his personal capacity as a candidate in the election has challenged the same, which is not maintainable. Learned counsel submits that the Petitioner is not an aggrieved person because he simply desires to participate in the election and that does not give him cause to challenge the "Active" status of the Respondent clubs.

5. Heard and record perused.

6. The basic issue is with respect to the standing of the Petitioner who has challenged the "Active" status of Respondents No. 3 to 5. The Petitioner states that he is aggrieved by the decision of the Independent Adjudicator which declared Respondents No. 3 to 5 to be "Active" clubs, as the orders on the face of it show that the entire cricket team of the club was not present at the time of scrutiny, hence they cannot be "Active". States that since it is the requirement of the scrutiny process, the Petitioner is aggrieved that the clubs have been declared "Active" without following due process. The question of locus standi and whether or not the Petitioner is an aggrieved person came up before the Independent Adjudicator who decided this issue against the Petitioner. In the orders of the Independent Adjudicator, it is stated that the Petitioner cannot be considered as "any other person" under Para 40(2) of the Constitution of PCB which allows any association or active club or Regional Cricket Association, member or any other person to challenge the decision of the scrutiny committee or of the Election Commissioner or any other decision of the Board. The Independent Adjudicator found that "any other person" means:

> A person/body not associated with the above mentioned Associations, Active Club or RGA. It is also to be seen who can be considered to be an aggrieved person. "An aggrieved person" must be one who has suffered a legal grievance, a man against whom a decision has been pronounced, which has wrongly deprived him of something or wrongly refused him of something or wrongly affect his title to something.

Learned counsel for the Petitioner states that his basic grievance is that since he is a candidate in the forthcoming election, Respondents No. 3 to 5 will vote in the forthcoming election which will prejudice his right to possibly win the election meaning that he does not want them to vote in the elections. I have gone through the order of the Independent Adjudicator and am in agreement with the order that the Petitioner does not have locus standi as he is not an aggrieved person so far as the order of the Independent Adjudicator is concerned. The Petitioner is contesting in the forthcoming election and for the purposes of contesting the election, the Petitioner cannot attempt to oust "Active" clubs from the electoral by agitating against the decision of the scrutiny committee, the Election Commissioner or the Independent Adjudicator. If a candidate is allowed to challenge the "Active" status of clubs, it would mean that every candidate could manipulate the election process and try to control the electoral college which would ultimately affect the election. This is not the mandate of the Constitution of PCB which basically requires that clubs are scrutinized and verified for the purposes of being declared "Active". Once the process has been completed and a club has gone through the process of scrutiny then appeal before the Election Commission and the Independent Adjudicator, the question of "Active" or "Non-Active" status of the cricket club cannot be raised by a candidate simply because he is desirous of winning the election. It is also noted from the record that the cricket club of the Petitioner did not challenge the "Active" status of Respondents No. 3 to 5. It is only the Petitioner in his personal capacity who has filed the appeals. Therefore I am in agreement with the decision of the Independent Adjudicator that the Petitioner is not an aggrieved person and merely apprehending the outcome of the RDCA election does not qualify as being an aggrieved person.

7. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----Through this petition along with connected writ petitions as detailed in Schedule-A, the Petitioners have challenged orders whereby their taxing jurisdiction has been changed, primarily from Regional Tax Office ("RTO") Faisalabad to Large Taxpayer Office ("LTO") Multan, from LTO Multan to LTO Islamabad or LTO Lahore and in some cases the RTOs have been changed.

2. The case of the Petitioners is that they are registered as manufacture-cum-exporters with RTO Faisalabad and their jurisdiction has been changed from RTO Faisalabad to LTO Multan vide order dated 12.10.2020. It is their case that this order is in excess of jurisdiction; that there is no provision under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") or Sales Tax Act, 1990 which allows for change in jurisdiction. More importantly, the transfer of jurisdiction has been done contrary to the principles of natural justice and without following due process. The Petitioners have argued that within the overall scheme of tax collection, as structured under the law there is no provision for change of jurisdiction and that the Respondents are obligated to facilitate the taxpayers. It is argued that by way of change of jurisdiction especially a change from the place of business not only causes inconvenience but also financial hardship on taxpayers as they are required to provide all documentations at the changed LTOs or RTOs, which becomes difficult and expensive. It is also argued that the change in jurisdiction means that the jurisdiction is exercised by the Respondents from a city where neither the registered offices are located nor any branch or factory is located, hence on this account, the order of change of jurisdiction is illegal and against the mandate of law. In this regard, the Petitioners have placed reliance on Babar Hussain Shah and another v. Mujeeb Ahmed Khan and another (2012 SCMR 1235), New Jubilee Insurance Company Ltd., Karachi v. National Bank of Pakistan, Karachi (PLD 1999 SC 1126), Government of Pakistan v. M/s. Village Development Organization (2005 SCMR 492), Hazara (Hill Tract) Improvement Trust through its Chairman and others v. Mst. Qaisra Elahi and others (2005 SCMR 678), Moulana Atta ur Rehman v. Al-Hajj Sardar Umar Farooq and others (PLD 2008 SC 663), Muhammad Khan v. Shamsuddin and others (1969 SCMR 212), Chief Commissioner, Karachi and another v. Mrs. Dina Sohrab Katrak (PLD (sic)195 SC (Pak) 45), Mrs. Anisa Rehman v. P.I.A.C. and another (1994 SCMR 2232), Messrs Dewan Salman Fiber Ltd. and another v. Government of N.W.F.P through Secretary, Revenue Department, Peshawar and others (PLD 2004 SC 441), Chairman, Regional Transport Authority, Rawalpindi v. Pakistan Mutual Insurance Company Limited Rawalpindi (PLD 1991 SC 14) and Shabbir Ahmed v. Kiran Khursheed and 8 others (2012 CLC 1236).

3. On behalf of the Respondents, report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. It is argued that there were originally three Large Taxpayers Units ("LTUs") (recently re-designated as the Large Taxpayers Offices) at Islamabad, Karachi and Lahore and now LTO Multan has been set up. Muhammad Abid, Chief Inland Revenue Formation appeared in person and explained that all cases where the turnover is of more than rupees one billion and have a revenue contribution of Rs. 20.00 Million or more have been assigned to LTOs. The object of setting up LTOs is to make the tax system more efficient, revenue responsive, large taxpayer friendly and uniformly in tax cases across geographical location. He explained that all four LTOs are fully functional and in some cases they are industry specific. In this regard, he explained that for sugar mills the designated LTOs is Lahore so as to facilitate their audit and otherwise. This includes W.P. No.54487/2020 being a sugar mill. So far as the real estate developers, their Association contacted the Respondents and requested that their LTO be shifted to Multan. In this regard, he stated that this includes the developers in W.Ps. Nos.61429 and 62392 of 2020. He further explained that the formation of LTOs is the result of the Tax Administration Reform Project ("TARP"), which was executed in 2000 and continued for some time uptil 2010 and LTO Multan was part of the original plan, though delayed. He stated that it is misconceived that transfer of jurisdiction involves hardship, both financial and otherwise as all working is online and in few cases they will be required to present documents in person. The Respondents have relied Section 209(8A) of the Ordinance read with powers contained under the Federal Board of Revenue Act, 2007 ("Act") to establish their authority on change in jurisdiction.

4. The basic contention of the Petitioners is that their taxing jurisdiction cannot be changed and specifically they have all challenged notification whereby they have been transferred to LTO Multan, LTO Lahore or a new RTO. In terms of Section 209 (8A) of the Ordinance, the power for change of jurisdiction is categorically provided for such that the power to confer jurisdiction includes the power to transfer jurisdiction from one income tax authority to another. Hence the basic contention of the Petitioners that this change in jurisdiction is illegal and beyond the scope of power given to the Respondents is totally misconceived as the law specifically gives the power to confer jurisdiction, which includes the power to transfer jurisdiction from one tax authority to another. In this regard, it is noted that the Federal Board of Revenue ("FBR") under Section 4 of the Act has the power to make regulations, policies, programs, strategies in order to carry out the purposes of this Act which includes to implement tax administration reforms and adopt modern effective tax administration methods, improve processes and to make all necessary rules and orders, circulars and instructions for the enforcement of any of the provisions of fiscal law and the provision of this Act. Hence the change in jurisdiction or transfer of jurisdiction is well within the scope of the powers of the Respondents. In this regard, by virtue of the report submitted before this Court, it is stated that there are total 350 cases transferred to different LTOs in Multan and Lahore as well as the change in jurisdiction of different RTOs. Only 122 persons have challenged their transfer whereas the rest have accepted the transfer of jurisdiction orders. In this regard, it is also noted that a criteria has been provided for LTOs, catchment areas have been defined and the Petitioners all meet the criteria, as there is no dispute on the criteria and the Petitioners' applicability to the same. In this regard, the Petitioners are not required to be issued any notice nor are they required to be consulted on the issue. The taxpayers are obligated to be processed at the relevant LTO or RTO on the basis of the criteria set out and the defined catchment area. Furthermore no right of the Petitioner is infringed as at best they have pleaded hardship and inconvenience, which does not violate any fundamental right.

5. Under the circumstances, there is no merit in these petitions and the same are dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----This single judgment decides upon the issues raised in W.P.Nos.13728 and 12697 of 2011 and Cr1. Org.No.660-W of 2013 as common questions of law and fact arise in these petitions.

2. The Petitioner is a pharmaceutical company and has prayed that it be granted the benefit of SRO 575(I)/2006 ("SRO") dated 05.06.2006 and that letters issued by Engineering Development Board, Respondent No.3 dated 17.02.2011, 25.02.2011 and 09.06.2011 be declared illegal and unlawful having no legal effect against the Petitioner.

3. The case of the Petitioner is that it is engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling and distribution of pharmaceuticals drugs and other ancillary products. The Petitioner manufactured Co-Amoxiclav for which customized Air Handling Units ("AHUs") are required to control-temperature, humidity and pressure level. As per the understanding of the Petitioner the AHUs required by it are not locally manufactured. The Petitioner made various attempts to find a local manufacturer and supplier, who could provide the AHUs of the requisite specifications, however, to no avail. The Petitioner therefore, imported AHUs in October, 2010 at which point the Petitioner sought the benefit of the SRO. This was denied on the ground that the product was manufactured locally, hence the Petitioner could not avail its benefit.

4. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the product is not manufactured locally and this fact was ascertained by the Petitioner prior to the import on the basis of letters dated 25.04.2009 and 13.10.2009 issued by Respondent No.2 wherein Respondent No.2 admitted that the AHUs of the specification required by the Petitioner are not manufactured locally. Learned counsel further argued that the Respondents have denied the Petitioner the concession under the SRO essentially on the ground that local companies have the capacity to manufacture the AHUs of the specification required by the Petitioner. However, he stated that no physical verification of this capacity was ever made by Respondent No.2, therefore, he argued that Respondent No.2 does not have actual knowledge of this fact and on the basis of the statements of some local manufacturers they are now insisting that the AHUs received by the Petitioner are manufactured locally. Learned counsel further argued that in this regard a meeting was held in the presence of Respondent No.2 with local manufacturers, who confirm that they do not manufacture the required AHU locally. He has placed reliance on letters dated 05.03.2011 and 21.02.2011 issued by Habibullah Industries (Pvt.) Ltd. and AGECO (Pvt.) Ltd. respectively. Learned counsel argued that a request was made to Respondent No.2 vide letter dated 13.05.2011 that those suppliers, who claimed that they have the capacity to make the AHUs should be physically verified by a technical team of Respondent No.2 as the Petitioner was of the opinion that the AHU it required was not locally manufactured. Learned counsel argued that on 17.05.2011 at a meeting, Respondent No.2 concluded that the AHU is a customized product and local manufacturers are technically capable of manufacturing the AHUs which are required by the Petitioner. Learned counsel argued that this statement was made without any physical verification and without conducting any independent inquiry into the matter. Again another meeting was held on 09.06.2011 wherein some local manufacturers again confirmed that they were making AHUs with Plug Fan and VFD required by a Petitioner and other pharmaceutical firms were being imported by it as a component. Learned counsel argued that the Petitioner is entitled to the benefit of stated SRO as the product is not locally manufactured and Respondent No.2 claims that it is manufactured locally is not based on any tangible evidence.

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. It is the case of CEO EDB and Technical Manager of Respondents Nos.3 and 4 that the AHU required by the Petitioner is a customized product, which can be manufactured in Pakistan. They stated that earlier in the year 2009 it was on a one time basis that Respondent No.2 stated that the AHUs were not locally manufactured. However, subsequently, local manufacturers have surfaced, who have the capacity to make the AHU required by the Petitioner. They specifically referred to a letter of Cool Point (Pvt.) Ltd. dated 04.01.2011 and relied upon minutes of the meeting dated 08.06.2011 to urge the point that Cool Point (Pvt.) Ltd. has categorically stated that it can manufacture the product and in this regard, it is willing to give a performance guarantee. He further stated that it was incumbent upon the Petitioner to check with Respondent No.2 first as to whether the product is being locally manufactured. Instead, the Petitioner without reference to Respondent No.2 imported the machinery and is wrongly seeking the benefit of the SRO. CEO EDB stated that AHUs are listed at serial No.504 of Customs General Order No.11/2007 ("CGO") as they are locally manufactured and the names of two manufacturers are specifically provided therein. He stated that this CGO is not an exhaustive list and there are other manufacturers of this product. He explained that several meetings were held wherein the local manufacturers categorically stated that they have the capacity to manufacture the AHU required by the Petitioner. It was their opinion that they are required to ascertain the capability and the actual manufacturing of the product was not necessary. In this case, there was no need for physical verification because the capability of the local manufacturers was based on the information provided in the various meeting held by them. Hence they were of the opinion that the AHU required by the Petitioner could be locally manufactured.

6. Learned counsel representing the Custom Department adopted the arguments advanced by CEO EDB as well as Technical Manager of Respondents Nos.3-4 and argued that the Petitioner is not entitled to the benefit of stated SRO.

7. Heard and record perused.

8. The basic contention of the learned counsel for the Petitioner is that the Petitioner is entitled to the benefit of the SRO as the AHU product with its technical specification is not locally manufactured. On this issue, the Petitioner and the Respondent No.2 are in disagreement as Respondent No.2 is of the opinion that local manufactures have the capacity to manufacture the AHU required by the Petitioner. Both CEO EDB and Technical Manager of Respondents Nos.3 and 4 appeared before the Court to explain the record and function of EDB. During the course of their explanation, it was admitted that no physical verification was made to ascertain the statements of local manufacturers, who claimed that they had the capacity to make the AHU required by the Petitioner. It is an admitted position that the AHU required by the Petitioner is a customized product with certain specific components. The SRO provides that if the goods are not locally manufactured as notified in the CGO issued by Federal Board of Revenue ("FBR") certified by the Engineering Development Board then the benefit of SRO is available to those goods which are imported. CGO No.11/2007 provides the list of local manufacturers of the AHU at serial No.504 with its specifications and lists the names of two companies, who are locally manufacturing the AHU. Admittedly, the AHUs imported by the Petitioner have specifications different from the ones provided in the CGO. So far as, the names of local manufacturers are concerned, they have issued letters dated 05.03.2011 and 21.02.2011 to the Petitioner confirming their inability to manufacture the AHU required by the Petitioner. The Respondents are relying upon the letter dated 03.03.2011 issued by Cool Point (Pvt.) Ltd stating therein that they can manufacture the AHU required by the Petitioner. They have also relied upon a letter dated 03.03.2011 issued by Petal Engineering (Pvt.) Ltd for this purpose. A meeting was held on 17.05.2011 where the Petitioner along with some manufacturers discussed the issue and it was concluded that the AHU is a customized product and local manufacturers are technically capable to manufacture the AHU required by the Petitioner. Another meeting was held on 09.06.2011 where the capability of the local industry was again confirmed and it was decided by Respondent No.2 that it is the local capacity which has to be seen and not what has been supplied so far. They decided that the technical specifications of any equipment have no nexus with the project requirement or the quality of a product. They also decided that capability of local manufacturers meant that the Petitioner could not avail the benefit of the SRO. Having gone through the specific letters and documents relied upon by the parties I am of the opinion that Respondent No.2 has misconceived its role for the purposes of ascertaining whether or not the AHU required by the Petitioner is locally manufactured. Respondent No.2 has simply relied upon the statement of local manufacturers and totally disregarded the technical requirements of the Petitioner for the purposes of its business. The FBR offered an incentive by virtue of the SRO on the basis of which it gave a concession with respect to import of goods which were not locally manufactured. Clearly this is to encourage the local manufacturers. The SRO requires for the product to be locally manufactured and in this regard, Respondent No.2 must physically verify the manufacture of the product. Merely relying upon statements of manufacturers does not justify the position taken by EDB. Furthermore, the record shows that uptil 2009 the EDB itself acknowledged that the AHU was not locally manufactured. Although they claimed that this was a one time situation, which subsequently changed, they have not been able to show how they have reached this conclusion and whether they verified the statements of the local manufacturers.

9. Another aspect of this Court is that the EDB is misconceived in its understanding that the technical specifications of the equipment or the quality of the product are not relevant for the purposes of the SRO. The EDB is required to certify that a particular product is locally manufactured and in doing so it must understand the requirements of the Petitioner. The Petitioner is entitled to carry on its business in the best possible way and if a customized machine essential to its business has not been locally manufactured, Respondent No.2 was obligated to certify accordingly.

Merely relying on the statements of local manufacturers without physical verification of the technical and qualitative aspect was in disregard of their basic function which is to certify that the product is locally manufactured.

10. Under the circumstances, this petition is accepted. The EDB is directed to provide certificate to the Petitioner immediately that the product is not locally manufactured and the Respondents are directed to grant the benefit of stated SRO to the Petitioner in terms thereof.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition along with connected Petitions, as detailed in Schedule "A" appended with the judgment, as all the Petitions raise common questions of law and facts. Through these Petitions, the Petitioners challenge the decision dated 6.7.2020 in Review proceedings passed by Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA") and Notification dated 31.8.2015 issued by OGRA being without jurisdiction and in violation of the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 ("Ordinance") and Natural Gas Tariff Rules, 2002 ("Rules").

2. For the purposes of payment of arrears of gas tariff, the period in dispute is from 31.8.2015 to 30.12.2016 and the sector is general industry. The Petitioners are industrial concerns who have challenged the liability created for arrears of gas tariff on the basis of Notification dated 31.8.2015 for being against the mandate of the OGRA Ordinance and the Rules. The issue is whether the Petitioners are liable to pay arrears of gas tariff for the disputed period as determined by OGRA vide its decision dated 3.7.2014 at the rate of Rs.464.94 MMBTU or as per the impugned Notification at the rate of Rs.600 MMBTU.

3. The undisputed facts of the case are that the Respondent SNGPL filed its application for determination of its revenue requirements for the financial year 2014-15 before OGRA on 13.12.2013. A decision was rendered under Section 8(1) of the Ordinance on 3.7.2014 wherein the provisional tariff prescribed by OGRA for the financial year 2014-15 with effect from 1.7.2014 was Rs.464.94 MMBTU for general industry. OGRA sent this provisional price to the Federal Government in terms of Section 8(3) of the Ordinance for its advice. The Federal Government was required to render its advice within 40 days, however it failed to render its advice within the given time. Instead the advice was sent after a delay of 14 months whereafter the impugned Notification dated 31.8.2015 was issued and the sale price was notified at the rate of Rs.600 MMBTU.

4. The Petitioners' contention as narrated by the learned counsel is that Section 8(3) of the Ordinance clearly defines what is to happen in the event that the Federal Government fails to advise the Authority within the prescribed 40 days' time. In such eventuality, it is the Authority which has to notify the sale price, as determined by it as per Section 8(1) and (2) in the official gazette. Therefore the case of the Petitioners' is that if the Federal Government fails to advise OGRA under Section 8 (3) of the Ordinance then OGRA notifies the price under Section 8(4) which is the relevant price due from the consumer for the disputed period. In these cases, the Petitioners' stance that they are liable to pay at the rate prescribed in the decision dated 3.7.2014 being Rs.464.94 MMBTU. Learned counsel further argued that the Petitioners have been made liable to pay arrears on account of the differential of Rs.464.94 MMBTU and Rs.600 MMBTU. Furthermore the Petitioners base their contentions on the judgment of the Hon'ble Sindh High Court dated 6.5.2016 passed in Suit No.1978/2015 titled Pakistan Beverage (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Federation of Pakistan and others wherein the impugned Notification was set aside.

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by Respondent OGRA. In terms thereof, learned counsel argued that the sale price has been fixed in accordance with the requirements of the Ordinance as well as the Rules; that OGRA under the applicable legal framework determines the revenue requirements of gas under Section 8(1) and (2) of the Ordinance. The Federal Government under Section 8(3) issues its advice for the sale price for each category of retail consumer of natural gas. The advice of the Federal Government is binding on OGRA and the answering Respondents on the basis of the advice rendered, issued the impugned Notification on 31.8.2015. This price was made effective from 1.9.2015, meaning thereby that the Petitioners were liable to pay the tariff for gas at the rate of Rs.600 MMBTU from 1.9.2015. It is argued that the Petitioners from the date of determination dated 3.7.2014 till the issuance of the Notification of 31.8.2015 paid tariff at the rate of Rs.488.23 MMBTU as per Notification dated 1.1.2013. However on account of the advice of the Federal Government with effect from 1.9.2015 till the issuance of the next Notification for the next financial year being 2015-16 which came in December 2016, they are required to pay tariff at the rate of Rs.600 MMBTU. Learned counsel argued that the Authority has acted in accordance with law as per the advice of the Federal Government. She further argued that the sale price of 31.8.2015 is consistent with OGRA's determination dated 3.7.2014 as the price fixed on 3.7.2014 was the provisional price which had to be finalized on actual cost. This was done on 27.11.2015 when the final price fixed at the rate of Rs.528.19 MMBTU being higher than the price paid by the Petitioners. Hence even though there was a delay, the cost was kept in mind and consequent thereof Notification dated 31.8.2015 was issued. She also argued that against this Notification, the Petitioners had remedy of appeal under Section 12 of the Ordinance and review under Section 13 of the Ordinance. However, instead the Petitioners filed writ petitions which were then converted into reviews vide the orders of this Court before OGRA which ultimately decided the matter vide the impugned decision. This practice continued in several cases which were treated as reviews and decided by OGRA. Consequently OGRA in the review petitions decided that the Notification dated 31.8.2015 will be effective from 1.9.2015, hence the outstanding amount statedly recoverable from the Petitioners is Rs.1.2 billion, which has to be paid. Hence she prays for dismissal of the petitions.

6. Report and parawise comments have also been filed on behalf of Respondent SNGPL. Learned counsel argued that there is no penal provision under the Ordinance in the event that the Federal Government does not issue a notification within the required 40 days; that non-advice from the Federal Government as required under Section 8(3) read with Rule 18(2) of the Rules does not render the impugned Notification dated 31.8.2015 as illegal. Learned counsel argued that as per Section 8(4) of the Ordinance in the event of failure of the Federal Government to render its advice within the stipulated 40 days, OGRA is empowered to notify the price. However it did not issue any notification until 31.8.2015. Learned counsel further argued that the provisions of the Ordinance in Section 8 are directory; that OGRA has no control over the actions of the Federal Government and that at the given time the tariff was fixed as per the requirement for the financial year 2014-15. Furthermore the tariff of Rs.600 MMBTU has never been challenged for the subsequent years, hence the instant challenge is hit by laches. He also stated that the Petitioners did not challenge the notified sale price as per law and instated filed petitions before this Court and obtained stay orders so as to stop making payments which they were obligated to pay. Hence these petitions are liable to be dismissed being devoid of any merit.

7. Heard. The basic dispute is with reference to Section 8 of the Ordinance and Rule 18 of the Rules which are reproduced as under:
Section 8 of the Ordinance

8. Pricing for retail consumers for natural gas.---(1) The Authority shall determine an estimate of the total revenue requirement of each licensee for natural engaged in transmission, distribution and the sale of natural gas to a retail consumer for natural gas, in accordance with the rules, and on that basis advise the Federal Government the prescribed price of natural gas for each category of retail consumer for natural gas.
(2) A licensee for natural gas referred to in subsection (1), shall submit for review by the Authority its total revenue requirement after incorporating the actual changes in the well-head prices, as notified by the Authority and other relevant factors and the Authority shall advise the Federal Government promptly of the revised prescribed prices for the licensee for natural gas.
(3) The Federal Government shall, within forty days of the advice referred to in subsections (1) and (2), advise the Authority of the minimum charges and the sale price for each category of retail consumer for natural gas for notification in the official Gazette by the Authority of the prescribed price as determined in subsections (1) and (2), the minimum charges and the sale prices for each category of retail consumers for natural gas.
(4) If the Federal Government fails to advise the Authority within the time specified in subsection (3) and the prescribed price for any category of retail consumer for natural gas determined under subsections (1) and (2) is higher than the most recently notified sale price for that category of retail consumers for natural gas, the Authority shall notify in the official Gazette the prescribed price as determined by the Authority under sub-sections (1) and (2) to be the sale price for the said category of retail consumers for natural gas.

(5) Each licensee for natural gas shall pay to the Federal Government the development surcharge in respect of each unit of natural gas sold during the calendar month within two months of the close of that month and any amount paid by a licensee under this subsection shall be an expenditure for which allowance shall be made in computing profits or gains under section 23 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979 (XXXl of 1979);

Provided that when the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001] (XLIX of 2001), comes into force the provisions of the said Ordinance shall apply for the purposes of this subsection.

(6) In this section:-

(a) "category of retail consumers for natural gas" means a category of retail consumers for natural gas designated as such by the order of the Federal Government;

(b) "development surcharge" means the amount payable by each licensee for natural gas and calculated in accordance with the rules and which represents, in respect of each category of retail consumer for natural gas to which it is applicable, the amount, if any, by which the sale price exceeds the prescribed price;

(c) "licence for natural gas" means a licence for transmission, distribution or sale of natural gas to a retail consumer for natural gas granted pursuant to subsection (1) of section 23;

(d) "licensee for natural gas" means a holder of a license for natural gas;

(e) "minimum charges" means the amount a licensee for natural gas may charge a retail consumer for natural gas as notified, from time to time, under this section;

(f) "prescribed price" means the amount determined under this section, which represents the amount a licensee for natural gas would be entitled to receive from each category of its retail consumers for natural gas in order to achieve its total revenue requirement;

(g) "sale price" means the price notified under this section at which a licensee for natural gas is authorised under this Ordinance and licence to sell natural gas to that category of retail consumer for natural gas;

(h) "total revenue requirement" means for each financial year, that total amount of revenue determined by the Authority for each licensee for natural gas so as to ensure it achieves the rate of return provided in its licence for natural gas.

Rule 18 of the Rules

18. Pricing for retail consumers for natural gas.---(1) As soon as may be but no later than three days of each determination by the Authority of the total revenue requirement of a licensee, the Authority shall advise the Federal Government the price which should apply to each category of retail consumers for natural gas of that licensee.

(2) The Federal Government shall consider the Authority's determination referred to in sub-rule (1) and as soon as may be but no later than forty days of receiving the same, advise the Authority of the minimum charges and the sale price for each category of retail consumers for natural gas which shall apply in relation to that licensee.

(3) The Authority shall, as soon as may be but no later than three days of receiving the advice from the Federal Government, notify, in the official Gazette, the price applicable to a licensee and the minimum charges and maximum sale prices which that licensee shall be permitted to charge each category of its retail consumers for natural gas.
(4) If the Federal Government fails to advise the Authority within time specified in sub-rule (2) and the price for any category of retail consumers for natural gas determined by the Authority under sub-rule (1) is higher than the most recently notified sale price for each category of retail consumers for natural gas, the Authority shall notify, in the official Gazette, the price as determined by the Authority under sub-rule (1) to be the sale price for said category of retail consumers for natural gas.
(5) No licensee shall charge any consumer, for the supply of natural gas, any sale price or minimum charge other than the sale price or minimum charge notified by the Authority pursuant to these rules and publicized by the licensee in the print and electronic media.
(6) Licensees shall be entitled to charge each retail consumer for natural gas the applicable minimum charges notified by the Authority pursuant to these rules notwithstanding that no gas has been taken by such retail consumer during the period for which such minimum charges are levied.
As per provisions of the Ordinance and the Rules, OGRA makes a determination of the estimated revenue required by a licensee for natural gas and issues the prescribed price for each licensee for a given fiscal year. The prescribed price is the amount determined which represents the amount a licensee is entitled to receive from each category of its retail consumer of natural gas in order to achieve its total revenue requirements. OGRA is then required, not later than three days of each determination, to seek advice from the Federal Government with reference to the sale price for each category of retail consumer of natural gas. The sale price is the price notified under Section 8 which a licensee for natural gas is entitled to recover against each category of retail consumer. Hence important to note is that OGRA issues the prescribed price while the Federal Government notifies the sale price. In the event of failure of the Government to advise the Authority within the stipulated time and the prescribed price for each category of retail consumer is higher than the most recently notified sale price for that category, then OGRA is required to notify the prescribed price as determined by the Authority under Section 8(1)(2) of the Ordinance to be the sale price for the said category. Meaning thereby that if the Federal Government fails to render its advice, then OGRA has to make a determination whether the prescribed price from the previous notification is the same or whether the prescribed price has gone up. In the event that the prescribed price has gone up, OGRA is required to notify that price to be the sale price. Hence Section 8 casts an obligation on the Federal Government to issue its advice within 40 days on the sale price and it also casts an obligation on OGRA to make a determination and issue a notification where the Federal Government does not issue its advice in 40 days. Section 8 in itself is a comprehensive provision. All provisions being mandatory ensure that the process of notifying the tariff and ensuring that the licensee of natural gas receives its revenue requirements is maintained.

8. In these cases essentially a dispute has arisen on the understanding of Section 8(4) of the Ordinance. Although the Petitioners have relied on the judgment of the Hon'ble Sindh High Court at Karachi where the notification of 31.8.2015 was set aside. Certain aspects of Section 8, namely the obligation of OGRA under Section 8 and the distinction between the prescribed price and the sale price was not considered in the judgment of the Hon'ble Sindh High Court. As per the said judgment, the Notification of 31.8.2015 was based on the delayed advice of the Federal Government and although the advice was placed before the Court, it was not accepted for being technical in nature issued by some third party and not by the Federal Government. Hence the case was decided in favour of the consumers and the Notification dated 31.8.2015 was set aside.

9. This gave rise to litigation as the Petitioners who originally did not challenge the Notification of 31.8.2015 nor did they challenge the prescribed price issued by OGRA on 3.7.2014 or the final prescribed price for the fiscal year 2014-15 issued by OGRA on 27.11.2015 filed petitions to challenge the Notification of 31.8.2015. It is important to note that the provisional revenue requirement for the year 2014-15 was decided on 3.7.2014. Thereafter a final determination was made on 27.11.2015 which increased the tariff from Rs.464.94 MMBTU to Rs.528.19 MMBTU. Against this final determination, the Respondent SNGPL filed a review which was disposed of on 26.10.2016. Importantly the Petitioners did not challenge the final determination and did not challenge the review determinations for the year 2014-15. The Petitioners therefore did not avail the remedy available under the Ordinance in the form of an appeal and review, which is presumed that they had no objection to the final determination of Rs.528.19 MMBTU. It is only after the decision of the Hon'ble Sindh High Court in Suit No.1978/2015 dated 6.5.2016 that the Petitioners filed writ petitions praying therein that the impugned Notification dated 31.8.2015 is against the mandate of the law. Throughout this period the Petitioners were paying gas tariff as notified on 1.1.2013 being Rs.488.23 MMBTU.

10. So far as the revenue requirements for the fiscal year 2014-15 are concerned, they were finalized as of 27.11.2015 and any increase in the sale price of the tariff vide the impugned Notification was based on the advice of the Federal Government. In this regard, it is noted that even though the Federal Government was required to issue its advice against the provisional determination and the revenue requirements for the fiscal year 2014-15 within 40 days of having received the revenue requirements determined on 3.7.2014, OGRA continued to charge tariff at the rate of Rs.488.23 MMBTU until 31.8.2015 which then notified the sale price. So until 31.8.2015 admittedly no grievance is made out against the amount that the Petitioners are liable to pay. The Notification of 31.8.2015 was made effective from 1.9.2015 which the Petitioners are required to pay until the issuance of the next Notification dated 30.12.2016 for which the tariff was at Rs.600 MMBTU being the notified sale price. Hence the dispute is limited for the period from 1.9.2014 to 31.8.2015 and the question is what price are the Petitioners liable to pay as the sale price for the gas tariff for the disputed period.

11. Gas tariff is determined under Section 8 of the Ordinance. The Petitioners want to pay the prescribed price of Rs.464.94 as decided on 3.7.2014. However this amount only reflects the prescribed price as determined by OGRA. The Petitioners have to pay the sale price as notified under Section 8 of the Ordinance. Section 8(4) requires OGRA to notify a sale price where the Federal Government does not issue its advice on time. As per the section OGRA shall notify the prescribed price as the sale price, where the prescribed price is higher than the most recently notified sale price. In these cases, the prescribed price was Rs.464.94 MMBTU and the most recent sale price was Rs.488.23 MMBTU which means that as per Section 8(4) of the Ordinance, since the prescribed price was less than the notified sale price, OGRA did not issue any notification and the Petitioners continued to pay Rs.488.23 MMBTU. During this period the revenue requirements for the year 2014-15 was finalized on 27.11.2015 at Rs.528.19 MMBTU, which became the baseline for the estimated revenue requirements for the next fiscal year being 2015-16. The Petitioners did not object to this baseline. On 30.12.2016 the notified sale price was Rs.600 MMBTU for the industrial sector and it remained the same in 2017 as well. The Petitioners did not agitate against the notified sale price. This aspect of the matter is important because tariff is determined first on the basis of estimated revenue requirements and then on actual costs. The Federal Government also plays a role as it makes an effort to balance all socio-economic factors and ensure that there is uniform sale price throughout the country. Hence the advice of the Federal Government is mandatory so far as Section 8 of the Ordinance is concerned because a sale price is required. OGRA has placed on file and the Federal Government does not dispute the same that several reminders were issued by OGRA that the Federal Government follows the 40 day requirement and issue its advice. Since they failed to issue the advice, the notified sale price from 2013 continued. The problem which arises in reading Section 8(3) and (4) is that if the Federal Government fails to render its advice in 40 days there is no sale price for each category of retail consumer for natural gas for that relevant fiscal year. OGRA can only issue the prescribed price under Section 8 of the Ordinance for any category of retail consumer and it is that prescribed price which can become the sale price, if it is higher. So while the 40 days requirement is mandatory, the issuance of a notified sale price is also necessary. Section 8(4) states that OGRA can notify the prescribed price to be the sale price for this period. However, OGRA also did not issue any notification under Section 8(4) of the Ordinance.

12. The question is whether the Petitioners get the benefit of the default of the Federal Government and OGRA. To my mind, the Petitioners do not get this benefit on account of the fact that the Petitioners did not challenge the prescribed price issued by OGRA on 3.7.2014 and the final price issued by OGRA on 27.11.2014 for the fiscal year 2014-15 and the notified sale price on 30.12.2016. After a considerable delay, the Petitioners filed writ petitions before the Lahore High Court, Multan Bench and originally obtained interim orders, restraining them from paying the notified price as per the Notification dated 31.8.2015 and then sought a direction to treat their petitions as reviews before OGRA for the purposes of the notified sale price in the impugned Notification dated 31.8.2015. This fact is relevant because until the filing of the writ petitions, the Petitioners continued to pay at the notified rate of Rs.600 MMBTU as per Notification dated 31.8.2015 and there is no objection against doing so. After the decision of the Hon'ble Sindh High Court at Karachi on 6.5.2016, they challenged the Notification and stopped making payments. They then appeared before OGRA in the form of a review which remedy they never availed during the time it was available to them. Nonetheless they were heard and as their contentions were not made out, the reviews were dismissed. Now although the Federal Government and OGRA should have been compliant with Section 8 of the Ordinance, it is important to note that the entire purpose of Section 8 is to ensure that the tariff is determined and notified in a timely manner for the benefit of all concerned. The Petitioners have no right to decide what the tariff should be for any particular fiscal year on the basis of which they can file constitutional petitions. Tariff determination is a lengthy process which requires many factors to be considered. If at all they were aggrieved during the process of determination of the prescribed price, remedy was available to them under the Ordinance.

13. The Petitioners are aggrieved because they are required to pay arrears of the tariff for the period they obtained restraining orders from the Court. The Petitioners want to pay at the rate of Rs.464.94 MMBTU as opposed to the notified rate of Rs.600 MMBTU. In this regard, the Petitioners were unable to explain why they should be required to pay at the rate of Rs.464.94 MMBTU when they were paying at the rate of Rs.488.23 MMBTU as notified on 1.1.2013. Furthermore the final tariff for the year 2014-15 was Rs.528.19 MMBTU as determined by OGRA. Hence there is no logic in seeking to pay Rs.464.94 MMBTU. The very basis of the Petitioners' contention is neither reasonable nor as per the mandate of the Ordinance. Furthermore the Petitioners continued to pay as per Notification dated 31.8.2015 (impugned Notification) at the rate of Rs.600 MMBTU and as per Notification dated 30.12.2016 at the rate of Rs.600 MMBTU until the change in the sale price vide Notification dated 4.10.2018 came into force which rose to Rs.780 per MMBTU. Hence the record shows that from the date of the impugned Notification dated 31.8.2015 the Petitioners paid at the rate of Rs.600 MMBTU and maintained this price until the notification of 4.10.2018 when the sale price went up. Therefore, the Petitioners cannot justify seeking to pay the prescribed price of Rs.464.94 MMBTU which in fact was never the notified sale price. As per Section 8 of the Ordinance, the retail consumer of natural gas has to pay the sale price as notified by the Federal Government or in exceptional circumstances by OGRA.

14. In this regard, although it has been directed that the provisions of Section 8 of the Ordinance are mandatory and should be complied with, both the Federal Government and OGRA have narrated their short-comings for this time in which they were unable to comply with the requirements of Section 8. Since the determination of the prescribed price and notification of the sale price is on-going matter, setting aside the sale price of Rs.600 MMBTU would in fact give the Petitioners a benefit they were otherwise not entitled to.

15. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. All the Petitions are dismissed.

JUDGMENT

This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the petitions detailed in Schedule "A" appended with the judgment as all petitions raise common questions of law and facts. The Petitioners have challenged notices issued under Section 3B of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 ("Act") by the Respondents for recovery of agricultural income tax.

2. The basic case of the Petitioners is the same. They have received notices of recovery of agricultural income tax for the assessment years 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017 and 2018. The Petitioners' contention is that these notices are barred by time as the Respondents cannot recover agricultural income tax beyond the two year limit prescribed, meaning thereby that if notices are issued in the year 2019, the Respondents can only recover agricultural income tax for the assessment year 2016-17 and 2017-18. It is also their contention that the Respondents have issued recovery notices on the basis of which they seek immediate recovery which denies the Petitioners the right to appeal as prescribed under the law. It is also their case that the amount sought to be recovered is not in accordance with law and the Respondents have failed to take into consideration factors such as that the Petitioners have not declared agriculture income tax in the returns filed by them or that they have not filed any income tax return; exemptions granted to the Petitioners by the Government of Punjab on account of flood and drought have not been considered; the fact that the Petitioners to whom the notices have been issued are not the owners of the property, hence not liable to pay the agricultural income tax; that the tax has already been paid or simply that the amounts sought to be collected have been miscalculated and are excessive amounts than the actual liability, if any, of the Petitioners. Some of the petitions have also alleged lack of jurisdiction of the Respondents as the subject land is not located in the Province of Punjab or the district. It is their contention that under the Act, the Petitioners are entitled to the right of appeal in terms of Section 7 of the Act which right cannot be exercised if the Respondents issue recovery notices without passing an assessment order. It is also their case that in the very least, the Respondents must hear the objections of the Petitioners with respect to the amounts sought to be recovered so as to ensure that if at all there is any liability for any assessment year, then the Petitioners are made liable to pay amounts that are due from them and not otherwise.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondents. Learned Law Officer stated that report and parawise comments filed in some of the petitions may be read into all the petitions as the grounds stated in the petitions are essentially the same. He stated that the Deputy Secretary (Recovery), Board of Revenue, Punjab vide letter dated 19.2.2019 and the Secretary (Taxes), Board of Revenue, Punjab vide letter dated 20.3.2019 brought to the notice of all Assistant Commissioners in Punjab that the august Supreme Court of Pakistan vide judgment dated 8.1.2019 titled Member (Taxes), Board of Revenue. Punjab. Lahore and others v. Qaisar Abbas and others (2019 SCMR 446) has allowed Assistant Commissioners to collect agricultural income tax from the persons who have declared agricultural income in their returns filed under the income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") in terms of Section 3B of the Act. As per their understanding, Section 3B read with Section 4(4) of the Act allows the Respondents to recover agricultural income tax for the assessment year 2012 onwards. Learned Law Officer argued that in terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2019 SCMR 446 (supra) the Respondents are not required to levy or assess agricultural income tax rather they can issue notices for direct recovery against income declared. Hence notices were issued for payment within 15 days. He further argued that after the expiry of 15 days amounts can be recovered as arrears of land revenue as provided under the Punjab Agricultural Income Rules, 2001 ("Rules"). In order to facilitate the objective to recover all amounts due as agricultural income tax, the Board of Revenue obtained a list of persons who have declared agricultural income in their returns for the tax year 2012-13 and 2013-14 onwards. The lists were consulted and on the basis of the data provided, district-wise lists were issued to the field formations for issuance of recovery notices. Hence he stated that the data provided in the notices is correct and as per the declarations made by the Petitioners in their income tax returns with respect to agricultural income tax. Therefore, the notices are not barred by time as the matter has just been decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2019 SCMR 446 (supra). The learned Law Officer argued that in terms thereof, the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax for the year 2012 onwards.

4. In terms of the arguments made from both sides, there are two issues which need adjudication. The first issue is whether the recovery notices issued are barred by time and secondly whether as a consequence of the recovery notices issued under Section 3B of the Act, the Petitioners are entitled to file an appeal/objections against the amounts sought to be recovered. With respect to the first issue, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2019 SCMR 446 (supra) considered whether notices issued for the assessment year 2014 for recovery of agricultural income tax under Section 3B of the Act could have been issued at that time, given that Section 3B was inserted through the Finance Act on 29.6.2013 and came into force on 1.7.2013. As per the judgment the relevant assessment year began on 1.7.2014, in terms of the definition of the assessment year given in Section 2(ac) of the Act. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded that the Respondents could recover agricultural income tax for the past two years, being the assessment year 2012 and 2013. Hence in terms of the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the Respondents are entitled to recover, as arrears of agricultural income tax for the assessment year 2012 and 2013. In this regard, it is noted that earlier notices were issued to the Petitioners including the Petitioner Qaisar Abbas in the instant petition, which were challenged before this Court in W.P. No. 15628/2015 and ultimately the order of this Court dated 26.10.2015 was modified by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan to the extent that recovery for the year 2012 and 2013 was allowed. Hence it is clear that in terms of the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax for the assessment year 2012 and 2013.

5. The dispute before the Court is due to the fact that the Respondents initiated a fresh process to recover agricultural income tax on the basis of which fresh notices were issued in 2019 for recovery of agricultural income tax for the year 2012 and 2013. Hence the Petitioners before the Court have raised the objection of limitation. Essentially the Respondents were required to issue recovery notices for the year 2012 and 2013 based on the original notices issued in the year 2014 for the assessment year 2012 and 2013 which were challenged in W.P. No. 15628/2015 and connected petitions and by referring to the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, notifying the Petitioners that they are now liable to pay the said amounts as the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has decided in favour of the Revenue Department. The fact that the Respondents did not mention the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the notices issued in 2019 nor have they mentioned that the demand raised is as per the original demand raised in 2014, has led to confusion consequent to which so many petitions have been filed before the Court.

6. On this issue, the learned Law Officer was confronted with the notices issued in 2019 and was asked to explain whether the data contained in these notices are identical to the data contained in the original notices issued in 2014 for the assessment year 2012 and 2013. In terms of the detailed reply and list provided, he states that the data is the same and it is based on the information provided by the Petitioners in their income tax returns as obtained from the Federal Board of Revenue. Therefore it is his contention that for the purposes of the petitions before the Court, the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax for the assessment year 2012 and 2013 on the strength of the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan. To this extent, the contention of the learned Law Officer is correct and the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax based on the original notices issued in 2014. However any recovery will be subject to the right of appeal under Section 7 of the Act. So far as to the recovery notices issued for the assessment year 2014, 2015 and 2016 the question of limitation has to be looked into in the first instance before any recovery can be made. It is also noted that since right of appeal is available under the Act, propriety demands that the objection of limitation be decided by the competent authority under the Act in order to streamline the process of recovering agricultural tax. Hence the second issue becomes relevant on whether the Petitioners can file objections/appeal against the recovery notices.

7. The Petitioners have a right of appeal against the amounts sought to be recovered under Section 7 of the Act which provides that for the purposes of appeal, review or revision, an order passed under this Act shall be deemed to be an order of a Revenue Officer within the meanings of Sections 161, 162, 163 and 164 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act, 1967, provided that proceedings of suo motu, review or revision of an order in respect of any income year shall not be initiated after the expiration of two years from the end of the assessment year in which the total agricultural income of the said income year was first assessable. In any taxing scheme the right of appeal is provided under the law to resolve disputes of liability to pay tax. The right of appeal is a statutory right under the Act which means that any recovery is subject to the right of appeal.

8. In the cases before the Court several objections have been raised with respect to jurisdiction being that the notices issued have not been issued from the Assistant Commissioner of the relevant district where the agricultural property is located. By way of example in W.P. No. 34758/19, the Petitioner is resident of District Sheikhupura whereas the notice has been issued by Assistant Commissioner, Lahore. In W.P. No. 39480/19, the Petitioner is resident of District Narowal whereas the agriculture land is situated in North Wazirastan. In other cases objections have been raised that the Petitioners do not own any agricultural land nor have the Petitioners declared any agricultural income or that the Petitioner has never filed any income tax return. By way of example in W.P. No. 40004/19, the Petitioner claims that she is a housewife with no source of income except for foreign remittance from a family member; that she has never filed any income tax return nor declared any agricultural income yet she has been served with a recovery notice. In another set of cases, the Petitioners claim exemption on the basis of notification issued by the Disaster Management Department declaring their area exempt from agricultural income tax for the relevant years 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015 and 2016. Hence on the strength of the notifications they claim that they are not liable to pay agricultural income tax. By way of example, the Petitioner in W.P. No. 39556/19 states that he is entitled to exemption from agricultural income tax on the basis of notification dated 23.5.2012, 28.7.2016, 2.6.2017 and 21.1.2019. In another set of petitions, the Petitioners claim that they are not the owners of any agricultural land nor have they declared any agricultural income in their income tax returns yet they have been served with recovery notices. In W.P. No. 36974/2019, the Petitioner claims that he has never filed any income tax returns, hence the question of applying Section 3B of the Act is totally without jurisdiction. In other cases, the Petitioners claim that they have already paid the total agricultural income tax yet notices have been issued. By way of example in W.P. No. 36709/2019, the Petitioner claims that he has paid the total agricultural income tax for the years 2015, 2016, 2017 and 2018, hence he is not required to pay any amount. In another set of petitions, the Petitioners' claim that they took the benefit of amnesty scheme, 2018, hence they are not liable to pay agricultural income tax. These are all substantive issues which need resolution under the Act before any recovery can be initiated.

9. On the basis of the aforesaid, it is evident that notwithstanding the statement made by the learned Law Officer, that all amounts were correctly taken from the data provided by the Federal Board of Revenue is correct, there are discrepancies in the recovery notices that have been issued. The question is what is the effect of Section 7 of the Act when recovery notices are issued under Section 3B of the Act. In this regard, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in its decision 2019 SCMR 446 (supra) held that for the purposes of Section 3B of the Act, where an assessee has declared agricultural income in its income tax returns, the Respondents can issue recovery notices directly and are not required to levy and assess agricultural income tax in terms of Section 3 of the Act. Essentially the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that the Respondents are entitled to recover agricultural income tax on the basis of the declaration given in the income tax returns, as per Section 3B of the Act. In a taxing statute an assessment order is necessary in order to support the demand raised and to ensure that the taxing officer has taxed a person as per the confines of the law. It ensures uniformity and equality in the demand raised in the absence of which doubt is raised and arbitrary exercise of jurisdiction is possible as there is no check on the taxing officer, and a citizen is substantially without protection from unequal and unjust demands. Under the Act Section 3 is the charging section which calls for the levy, assessment and collection of tax. Three important steps on the basis of which agricultural income tax can be recovered. In this regard Section 3B of the Act merely provides that a person is liable to pay agricultural income tax on the basis of agricultural income declared in the income tax return. Hence it imposes a liability to pay tax on the basis of an admission of earning agricultural income. Section 3 and 3B of the Act are the charging sections of the taxing statute which have to be enforced through the procedure prescribed under the Act. The procedural machinery is provided for under Section 4, 4A, 4B, 4C and 4D read with the Rules. These Sections set out the process on the basis of which the taxing officer will compute and collect agricultural income tax and the recovery notice is the final step that has to be taken once tax has been charged. A recovery notice means that the liability to pay tax has been determined, in this case based on the declaration given under Section 3B of the Act. However it does not mean that the taxing officer cannot assess and levy agricultural income tax on the basis of the revenue record before it. Hence a recovery notice is premised on an assessment order which sets out the details of the tax liability. In the cases of agricultural income tax the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that an assessment order is not required under Section 3B of the Act and that the Respondents can initiate recovery on the basis of the declaration made in the income tax return. However it has not curtailed the right of appeal under Section 7 of the Act nor has it allowed the Respondents to ignore the procedure prescribed under the Act and the Rules especially with reference to computation of tax. In terms of the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, the judgment of this Court in W.P. No. 15628/2015 was modified to the extent that an assessment order is not mandatory under Section 3B of the Act, however at the same time the august Supreme Court of Pakistan upheld the findings that the assessment order can be challenged under Section 7 of the Act which gives the right of appeal to the taxpayer and it has also upheld the findings that calculations must be provided of the tax levied. Therefore the Respondents are required to disclose the information taken from the Federal Board of Revenue, the rate applied and the tax sought to be recovered in the recovery notices so that the taxpayer is clear on what amount is due against agricultural income tax.

10. It is further noted that the Respondents must follow the procedure under the Act and the Rules to ensure that the rights of the land owners are protected and that the obligation to pay tax follows due process. There is a complete procedure provided under the Act and the Rules to collect agricultural income tax which requires the Respondents to issue notice to the taxpayer calling for payment and requires, as of right that the taxpayer be given time to file an appeal, review or revision against the order of Revenue Officer. It appears that the Respondents failed to bring these facts into the notice of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan while arguing in the case 2019 SCMR 446 (supra) and are now misinterpreting the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan by ignoring the statutory right of appeal, review or revision available under Section 7 of the Act.

11. The thrust of the Respondents' case before the Court is that they can make direct recovery on the strength of the agricultural income declared under Section 3B of the Act. There is no cavil to the statement because the law itself provides that the Respondents can recover agricultural income tax on the basis of declared agricultural income in the income tax returns for any assessment year filed under the Act in terms of the rates specified in the second schedule. However the taxpayer has a right to appeal against the amount sought to be recovered even if it is based on a declaration in the income tax return and direct recovery inflicted by the Respondents adversely affects the Petitioners' right of appeal under Section 7 of the Act. Furthermore the objections raised before this Court are substantive issues and necessitate a decision by the competent authority before agricultural income tax is recovered. In the cases before the Court objections with regard to limitation; objections with regard to jurisdiction; with regard to amount sought to be recovered; with regard to ownership and with regard to exemptions offered by the Government itself require due deliberation and entitle the Petitioners due process under the Act.

12. Under the circumstances, the recovery notices issued under Section 3B of the Act shall be deemed as assessment orders which are liable to appeal under Section 7 of the Act. The Respondents are obligated to hear the objections and decide the same in accordance with law. For the purposes of the cases pending before this Court and the recovery undertaken by the Respondents for agricultural income tax, the Petitioners should be granted thirty days' time to file their appeals/objections, if at all under Section 7 of the Act after which the cases shall be decided in accordance with law and subsequently if any amount is due the Respondents may recover the same under the Act and the Rules.

13. In view of the aforesaid, while partly allowing the Petitions, this Court finds as follows:--

(i) The Petitioners' contention that demand for agricultural income tax for the year 2012 and 2013 is barred by time is without any merit given that the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has allowed recovery of agricultural income tax for that period. However, the amount sought to be recovered as agricultural income tax for the period 2012 and 2013 is subject to right of appeal/objections which may be availed by the Petitioners within 30 days' time from the date of release of this judgment.

(ii) It is also held that against the recovery notices issued under Section 3B of the Act, remedy of appeal is available to the Petitioners under Section 7 of the Act. In this regard, the recovery notices can be challenged within 30 days' time from the date of release of this judgment under Section 7 of the Act before the competent authority, who is directed to decide the appeals filed by the Petitioners within 30 days' time after which the Respondents can recover agricultural income tax from the Petitioners, as per law.

ORDER
C.M. No.1 of 2020.
AYESHA A. MALIK, J.----This is an application for restoration of the titled-petition which was dismissed for non-prosecution on 10.11.2020.

2. For the reasons stated in this CM duly supported with an affidavit, the application is allowed and the titled petition is restored to its original number and is fixed for hearing today with the consent of the learned counsel for the parties.
Main Case

3. Through the instant Petition, the Petitioner has impugned judgment dated 6.10.2012 passed by Respondent No.7, Additional District Judge, Chiniot.

4. The basic case of the Petitioner is that Respondent No.1 filed a suit for declaration titled Taley Bibi and others v. Mst. Jannat Bibi and others against the Petitioner on 16.1.1998, with the prayer that Hibba Nama No.1720 dated 1.10.1997 with respect to land measuring 50 kanals situated at Chak No.187/JB Chiniot, in favour of the Petitioner and subsequent sale by the Petitioner vide mutation No.674 dated 14.2.1998 in favour of Respondents Nos.2 to 6 be declared void and illegal. The Petitioner filed an application on 12.3.2012 for summoning of witnesses and for production of documents in the suit pending before Civil Judge, Bhowana which was resisted by Respondent No.1 by filing written reply to the said application. However, Civil Judge, Bhowana vide order dated 18.4.2012 allowed the application to the extent of summoning of witnesses as well as production of documents that is registered gift deed dated 1.10.1999, certified copy of Register Haqdaranzamin for the year 1991-92, certified copy of Khasra girdawari for the year 1996 as well as public documents. However, to the extent of production of record of criminal case mentioned in para 9 of the application, the same were not found relevant, hence the application to that extent was dismissed. Aggrieved of this order of 18.4.2012, Respondent No.1 filed civil revision before the Additional District Judge, Chiniot which was allowed vide order dated 6.10.2012.

5. The impugned order dated 6.10.2012 passed by the Additional District Judge, Chiniot finds that the issues in the suit were framed on 2.6.1999. After recording the evidence of the plaintiffs the case was fixed for 25.10.2009 for the evidence of the defendants which they did not produce despite having availed many adjournments. So ultimately vide order dated 17.6.2009 the right of defendant No.1 for producing evidence was closed by the trial court. This order of 17.6.2009 was challenged in revision and ultimately set aside vide order dated 13.1.2010 whereby defendant No.1 was granted only one opportunity to produce her evidence. Thereafter she produced three witnesses and sought an adjournment which was refused on 2.2.2010. Finally the right to adduce evidence was closed on 9.2.2010. The case was then fixed for final arguments when defendant No.1 moved an application seeking permission to summon 11 witnesses and to produce seven documents. The trial court allowed the application vide order dated 18.4.2012 but the revisional court set aside the order of 18.4.2012 vide impugned order dated 6.10.2012. Hence this Petition.

6. The order of the trial court dated 18.4.2012 partially allowed the application of the Petitioner on the ground that the witnesses and the documents are necessary for a just decision of the case and the same will help the court to decide the matter fairly. With respect to the Petitioner's request to produce certain criminal record mentioned in para-9 of the application, the same were not allowed on the ground that they are not relevant with respect to the dispute at hand. The revisional court vide judgment dated 6.10.2012 set aside the order of the trial court on the ground that the trial court has ignored the mandatory provisions of Order XIII, Rules 1 and 2, Order XVI, Rule 1 read with Order XVII, Rule 3 Civil Procedure Code, 1908 ("C.P.C."). The court concluded that the trial court must decide the case in accordance with law and cannot deviate from the mandatory provisions of the law.

The Petitioner is aggrieved by this order essentially on the ground that since it will not help the decision of the case, she should be allowed to produce the desired documents as well as witnesses. Further states that the law on this point is settled.

7. So far as the list of witnesses is concerned, if the witnesses have not been named in the list of witnesses as required under Order XVI, Rule 1, C.P.C., the witness cannot be called subsequently unless sufficient cause is given. In this case the application filed by the Petitioner provides "inadvertence" as a reason for not calling the eleven witnesses which reason is not sufficient since the Petitioner has essentially relied upon public documents as well as public officers namely Record Keeper and Registry Clerk along with Registry Moharrir amongst others as her witnesses. These people were all known and available to the Petitioner when she filed her list of witnesses. Reliance is placed on Muhammad Anwar and others v. Mst. Ilyas Begum and others (PLD 2013 SC 255) and Haji Zarwar Khan through L.Rs. v. Haji Rehman Bangash and others (2016 SCMR 1976). Hence the order of the revisional court is in accordance with the law and the trial courts order to allow the application to decide the case for a just and fair decision in the case is in total negation of the requirements of the law.
8. Under the circumstances, the instant Petition is dismissed and the impugned judgment dated 6.10.2012 passed by the Additional District Judge, Chiniot is maintained.

ORDER

Through this Petition, the Petitioners have challenged order dated 9.1.2021 passed by the Election Board, Bar Association, Ferozewala, order dated 29.1.2021 passed by the Vice-Chairman, Punjab Bar Council, essentially on the ground that the election of Tehsil Bar Ferozwala never took place, which fact is evident from the report of Observer dated 18.1.2021 and that the impugned notification dated 9.1.2021 notifying a new executive committee has been issued by the Election Board against the mandate of law.

2. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondents. The case has been argued at great length. During the course of arguments, an effort was made to resolve the dispute. It is brought to the attention of the Court that vide order dated 6.3.2021 passed by the Pakistan Bar Council on an appeal filed by Petitioner No. 1, the matter was remanded to the Executive Committee of Punjab Bar Council for its decision on merit, after providing an opportunity of hearing to all the parties.

3. In this regard, the basic contention of the Petitioners is that the matter of finalizing the voters' list as well as with respect to disputes that arose on election day that is 9.1.2021, an Observer Mr. Zabi Ullah Nagra, Advocate issued his report dated 15.1.2021 wherein he has clearly stated that he was available on election day till 01 PM and that the election process had not started until then. Learned counsel for the Petitioners stated that the fact that there was no election on that day is certified by the report of the Observer dated 15.1.2021, hence the impugned notification dated 9.1.2021 issued by Election Board showing that elections were held on 9.1.2021 is totally without basis as clearly the record shows that there were no elections held on 9.1.2021.

4. On behalf of the Respondents, an objection has been taken with respect to the maintainability of the instant Petition and in this regard reliance has been placed on Mirza Muhammad Nazakat Baig v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Law and Justice, Islamabad and another (2020 SCMR 631). Furthermore it is stated that the Pakistan Bar Council, in an effort to resolve the matter, gave the Petitioner an opportunity to appear before the Executive Committee of the Punjab Bar Council to ascertain the factual position with respect to the holding of elections on 9.1.2021 and decide the matter accordingly. Hence if the Petitioner go to the Executive Committee they can set out their case.

5. After much deliberations and with the consent of all the parties, subject to all legal objections on maintainability as raised by the Respondents and defended by the Petitioners on the ground of statutory violation while relying on Muhammad Shoaib Shaheen and others v. Pakistan Bar Council and others (PLD 2017 SC 231), in an attempt to resolve the matter amicably between the parties, in terms of order dated 6.3.2021 passed by the Pakistan Bar Council, Respondent No. 5 is directed to hear all the parties within a period of two weeks' time on the issue of whether the tehsil bar election took place on 9.1.2021 and whether the Petitioners have made out a case that fresh elections should take place in Tehsil Bar Ferozewala in light of the report of Observer dated 15.1.2021. In this regard, the order of this Court dated 13.4.2021 passed in CM No. 2/2021 will continue until a decision is made by Respondent No. 5. In the event that Respondent No. 5 decides the matter in favour of the Petitioners then it should issue directions to hold fresh elections for Tehsil Bar Ferozewala and in the alternate if it concludes that fresh elections are not required then the notification dated 9.1.2021 can be restored and become effective. So far as the show-cause notices dated 3.4.2021 issued by Respondent No. 5 is concerned, it is resolved that no disciplinary action will be taken against the Petitioners and the notices so issued are withdrawn.

6. Disposed of in the above terms.

ORDER
Through this Petition, the Petitioners have challenged the impugned order dated 1.3.2021 passed by Respondent No. 1, result declaration of election of Tehsil Bar Association, Jaranwala dated 5.3.2021 and the conduct of elections dated 6.2.2021 of Tehsil Bar Association, Jaranwala.

2. The case of the Petitioners is that the order of 1.3.2021 has been passed unlawfully by the Respondent No. 1, Chairman Appellate Committee, Punjab II which is against the mandate of the Legal Practitioners and Bar Councils Act, 1973 ("Act").

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondents No. 2 to 4. An objection has been taken with respect to the maintainability of the instant Petition while relying on Mirza Muhammad Nazakat Baig v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Law and Justice, Islamabad and another (2020 SCMR 631).

4. During the course of arguments, in an effort to resolve the dispute between the parties, given that the issue is of a pre-election dispute, for which the Petitioners seek a hearing by an impartial body, it is agreed in terms of Section 15 of the Act that the Appellate Committee, Punjab II shall co-opt two members, not being members from the Punjab, to hear the case afresh and decide the same on its merits.

5. After due deliberation and with the consent of the parties, it is agreed and decided that:

(i) the impugned order dated 1.3.2021 passed by Respondent No. 1, Chairman Appellate Committee, Punjab II is set aside;

(ii) the matter is referred to the Appellate Committee Punjab II who shall co-opt two members other than from Punjab and decide the matter afresh within three weeks' time from receipt of the order, after hearing all parties.

6. Disposed of in the above terms.

JUDGMENT

Through this Petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 20.10.2020 passed by Respondent No. 2 being the Chairman Executive Committee of the Pakistan Bar Council.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that he is contesting the elections of the Supreme Court Bar Association Pakistan ("SCBAP"), for the office of Vice President for the Province of KPK; that no objections were raised against his nomination papers, hence he proceeded as per the election schedule with his campaign. The Petitioner received a call from the Pakistan Bar Council, Islamabad on 16.10.2020 that an appeal filed by Respondent No. 3 was pending and that he should appear before the Executive Committee on 19.10.2020. The Petitioner in person along with his counsel argued that filing of the appeal and the hearing of the appeal is totally contrary to the election schedule issued under Rules 13 and 14 of the Supreme Court Bar Association of Pakistan Rules, 1989 ("Rules"). Learned counsel argued that the Petitioner has a right to participate in the elections which are to be held as per election schedule and that the Respondents cannot violate the requirements of the Rules as the same amounts to disenfranchising the Petitioner. Learned counsel further argued that the appeal was barred by time and the direction to remove the name of the Petitioner from the list of candidates on 19.10.2020 and 20.10.2020 is in contravention to the process issued under the election schedule, as well as with mala fide intent.

3. On behalf of the Respondents, it is argued that the constitutional petition is not maintainable. Reliance has been placed on the order dated 28.1.2020 passed by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Civil Appeal No. 1729/2019 titled Mirza Muhammad Nazamat Baig v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of Law and Justice, Islamabad and another wherein it is categorically held that constitutional petition against the SCBAP is not maintainable. The Respondent counsel also relied upon Abdul Sattar Chughtai Malik v. Pakistan Bar Council through Secretary and another (PLD 2007 Lahore 170) on the basis of which it is clear that the rules of the Supreme Court Bar Association are not statutory, hence any violation claimed thereof is not amenable to writ jurisdiction.

4. The preliminary issue before the Court is with respect to maintainability of this constitutional petition. In terms of the order of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan dated 28.1.2020 passed in Civil Appeal No. 1729/2019, a constitutional petition against the SCBAP is not maintainable as the Federal Government does not have any administrative control over the affairs of the SCBAP, the function of the SCBAP is not in connection with the affairs of the Federation, the Provinces or the local authority as contemplated under Article 199 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") and it is an autonomous body which generates its own funds. Consequently a constitutional petition does not lie against SCBAP. Further that the Rules are not statutory hence any violation of the Rules cannot be enforced though a constitutional petition.

5. Learned counsel for the Petitioner when confronted with the same could not justify the maintainability of the instant Petition as he has impugned order dated 20.10.2020 passed by Respondent No. 2 being the Executive Committee of Pakistan Bar Council and he seeks a direction against Respondent No. 4 being the Chairman Election Board, SCBAP comply with the dates given in the election schedule, meaning the enforcement of Rules 13 and 14 of the Rules. They have placed reliance "Mrs. Nasira Iqbal v. Appeal Committee (Punjab No. II), Pakistan Bar Council through Chairman and 5 others" (PLD 2010 Lahore 175), which is not relevant given the Supreme Court judgment relied upon. They have also relied upon "Pakistan Defence Officers Housing Authority v. Mrs. Itrat Sajjad Khan and others" (2017 SCMR 2010), which also requires that the rules be statutory in order for it to be enforced in constitutional jurisdiction. Hence the cases relied upon are not relevant for the purposes of the Petitioner's case on maintainability. In the case Pakistan Olympic Association through President and others v. Nadeem Aftab Sindhu and others (2019 SCR 221) the august Supreme Court has held that in order for a constitutional petition to be maintainable against an association under Article 199(1)(c) of the Constitution, the association must perform functions in relation to the Federal or Provincial Government and must be under the control of the Federal or Provincial Government. Subsequently the order relied upon dated 28.1.2020 clarifies the issue specifically with reference to SCBAP. Therefore, in terms of the august

Supreme Court judgments, this constitutional petition is not maintainable against SCBAP.

6. Under the circumstances, the instant petition in dismissed for being not maintainable.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition as well as connected W.Ps. Nos.30812/2021, 30078/2021, 30479/2021 and 34213/2021 as all the Petitions raise common questions of law and facts. The Petitioners are students of the Respondent medical and dental colleges and have challenged advertisement dated 29.4.2021 issued by the Examination Department, Pakistan Medical Commission, Islamabad ("PMC") wherein the process of re-admission is to take place with respect to the listed colleges, which includes the college of the Petitioners along with order dated 24.4.2021 issued by the PMC in the instant Petition as well as in W.P. No. 30479/2021, W.P. No.30078/2021 and W.P. No.30812/2021.

2. Facts of the case are that the Petitioners are all students who took admission in medical and dental colleges for the 2020-21 session. They have paid the fees and are attending classes for the past three months. The Petitioners are aggrieved by the advertisement dated 29.4.2021 issued by the Examination Department PMC which essentially calls for the process of re-admission in the medical and dental colleges which includes the college of the Petitioners that is Sahara Medical College, Narowal (W.P. No.30346/2021 and W.P. No.34213/2021), Akhtar Saeed Medical and Dental College, Lahore (W.P. No.30078/ 2021) and Al-Aleem Medical College, Lahore (W.P. No.30812/2021 and W.P. No.30479/2021).

3. The case of the Petitioners is that there is no justification whatsoever for commencing this process of re-admission given that the Petitioners have participated in the admission process and have passed the Medical and Dental Colleges Admission Test ("MDCAT") but also the interview. After participating in an extremely competitive process they were admitted in the respective colleges and have commenced their education in terms thereof. The Petitioners are also aggrieved by the order dated 24.4.2021 issued by the PMC on the basis of which PMC has concluded that the admission process for the respective medical colleges are tainted, in contravention to the admission regulations and that the interview process is non-transparent, in violation of the regulations, hence cancelled. The Petitioners stated that on the basis of a general order, the rights of the Petitioners with respect to their admission in medical colleges has been severely prejudiced; that they have not been heard and that the allegations levelled against the respective Respondent colleges do not necessarily establish any involvement of the Petitioners in procuring admission nor does it suggest that the merit of the Petitioners does not warrant admission.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondent PMC in all the Petitions. They have raised a preliminary objection with respect to the maintainability of the Petitions on the ground that remedy of appeal under Section 37 of the Pakistan Medical Commission Act, 2020 ("PMC Act") is available to the Petitioners and they can challenge the impugned orders of 24.4.2021 by filing an appeal before the Medical Tribunal which has been established pursuant to the Medical Tribunal Act, 2020 ("MT Act"). Learned counsel for the Respondent PMC stated that since the Medical Tribunal is functional and its rules and regulations have been framed, hence the Petitioners may approach the Medical Tribunal for redressal of their grievance. In this regard, learned counsel has relied upon Section 10 of the MT Act which provides for the abatement of any suit or proceedings with reference to any matter which falls within the jurisdiction of the Medical Tribunal. Learned counsel also stated that the PMC received numerous complaints with reference to the admission process of different colleges and after giving a hearing to the relevant colleges, the PMC concluded that there were serious violations of the regulations; that the interview process was not transparent and that the colleges were unable to substantiate that they followed due process and the regulations with reference to the admissions. Learned counsel pointed out that some of the discrepancies highlighted are that the challan forms issued by the colleges were paid prior to any merit list being issued; that the students were admitted after the cutoff date; that no interview was conducted nor any merit list was issued; that the various different provisions of the PMC Act and the Admission Regulations (Amended) 2020-2021 ("2020 Regulations") have been violated. Learned counsel stated that notices were issued to the colleges pursuant to which the impugned order dated 24.4.2021 was issued. In this regard, he further explained that the impugned advertisement does not mean or suggest that the admission of the Petitioners have been cancelled. The advertisement basically calls upon students to apply for admissions, being those students who did not get admission in any college yet are on the merit, so that their cases can be considered with reference to the colleges listed in the advertisement. Hence he stated that the objective is to find students who were deliberately denied admission even though they fell within the merit of the college.

5. Reply has also been filed on behalf of the respective colleges. It is their common case that the allegations levied are totally without basis; that they are general in nature and that the complaints filed against the colleges do not necessarily suggest that the college has compromised on the merit. It is their case that a proper inquiry has not been conducted in the matter and instead a general order has been passed declaring their admission process faulty which is totally without basis. In this context, learned counsel for Al-Aleem Medical College, Lahore in W.P. No.30812/2021 stated that the allegation levied against the college has nothing to do with the admission process rather it is with reference to the procuring a proper insurance policy. In this regard, learned counsel for Respondent PMC has clarified that show cause notices were issued to all the colleges before the Court regarding the irregularities in the admission processes for the session 2020-21, including Al-Aleem Medical College, Lahore.

6. In terms of the reply filed in the instant Petition by Sahara Medical College, documents have been appended along with specific replies to all the allegations essentially to counter the fact that the complaints filed necessitated PMC to issue the impugned advertisement. It is their case that they followed the rules and regulations; they published the interview schedule along with merit list and that with reference to the complaints appended with the reply of the PMC most of the students do not even fall within the cutoff merit of the college. So it is stated that the closing merit of Sahara Medical College is 75.909% whereas the complainants referred to in the reply filed by the PMC do not meet this merit. Essentially they have refuted the factual basis on which PMC has concluded that the college has contravened the requirements of the 2020 Regulations.

Preliminary Objections

7. The preliminary objection raised by the counsel for PMC is that in terms of Section 37 of the PMC Act, an appeal lies to the Medical Tribunal against any order of the PMC. Hence, the instant Petitions are not maintainable as the Petitioners can file an appeal before the Medical Tribunal. Section 37 of the MT Act is reproduced as under:

(1) Any person including an employee of the Commission aggrieved by any order or direction of the Commission, including the Council, Authority or disciplinary committee, under any provision of this Act, or rules or regulations may prefer an appeal only before the Medical Tribunal within thirty days of the date of communication of the impugned order or decision.

(2) An appeal to the Medical Tribunal shall be in such form, contain such particulars and be accompanied by such fees as may be prescribed.

The MT Act establishes the Medical Tribunal under section 4, to hear appeals, complaints or claims in terms of section 6(11) of the MT Act. In terms of the PMC Act, section 32 provides for disciplinary proceedings, suspension or cancellation of license. Subsection (3) of section 32 provides that the PMC shall on the complaint of any person or authority or of its own motion on information received, initiate disciplinary proceedings against any recognized institution in respect of medical negligence, misconduct or violation of any obligation under the Act or any rules or regulations or directions of the PMC. This order is appealable under section 37 of the PMC Act before the Medical Tribunal. Hence a complaint can either be heard by the PMC or can be heard by the Medical Tribunal with respect to irregular admissions or invalid admissions or refusal of admission. In these cases PMC has statedly heard about 400 complaints against different colleges with reference to irregular admissions.

8. In this context, it is also important to note that although PMC claims to have taken action as a consequence of the 400 complaints that were heard, surprisingly they have not concluded in any of the impugned orders that any one of the 400 complainants deserves admission on merit and was not granted the same. They have also not concluded that any particular complainant has established that they were deliberately and wrongfully denied admission. The PMC concluded in the impugned orders that the admission process lacked transparency and is in contravention to the 2020 Regulations. However they have not pointed out which of the admitted students was wrongfully admitted against the merit and in contravention of the 2020 Regulations. Furthermore the impugned advertisement calls for students who were denied admission to come forward, with their merit so that it can be checked as to whether the colleges acted against the 2020 Regulations yet there appears to be no justifiable reason to issue the advertisement in search of other students who have been denied admission, when in the first instance PMC should have decided upon the complaints and the fate of the complainants admissions before it went in search of other candidates. The fundamental flaw in the impugned advertisement is that it appears to be reaching out to candidates, once again to apply to the named medical and dental college on the basis of their previous merit to ascertain whether or not they were left out of the process. If these candidates have not approached the PMC till date, notwithstanding the fact that the PMC was hearing complaints on the matter, there appears to be no reason for issuing the impugned advertisement and reaching out to candidates who have not filed any complaints. Furthermore PMC should have inquired into the individual complaints filed before it to ascertain whether or not the college violated the 2020 Regulations and denied a deserving candidate admission. In this context, the biggest issue before the PMC was the discretion exercised by the colleges with respect to 20% marks that were allocated pursuant to the interviews. One of the PMC's grievance is that the interview marks were given without any guideline in a non-transparent manner, adverse to merit. However, this too is a general impression and the PMC has admittedly not considered the case of each and every complainant vis-a-vis the allocation of marks given in the interview to a candidate to conclude wrongful exercise of discretion. Although discretion is given to private medical colleges to grant 20% marks for the interview, there is nothing in the impugned orders to show that the PMC has identified candidates who were wrongfully admitted, hence their admission should be cancelled.

9. Learned counsel for PMC claims that the PMC heard 400 complaints and thereafter passed the impugned orders with respect to each of the Respondent medical college. The impugned orders before this Court, however are not specific orders against 400 complaints statedly filed, rather in all Petitions before the Court, the impugned orders are identical. When confronted with the same, learned counsel for PMC tried to show that there are distinguishable features in each of the orders. However, a bare reading of each order shows that essentially they are identical in terms of content and at best, each of the impugned orders with respect to each of the medical colleges before this Court, only gives reference the name of one student admitted beyond the cut off date. All other content is identical, reference to the Regulations that were breached are identical and the conclusion drawn in each of the impugned orders with respect to admission of the students and cancellation of the interview marks is the same. On the face of it, the impugned orders show lack of due process and natural justice as the admission of the admitted students have been suspended and their interview marks have been cancelled without hearing them and without determining whether in fact these students were in any manner responsible for procuring their admissions contrary to the merit. As the rights of these students are adversely affected, their right to due process has been totally ignored in the decision making process. More so, even though PMC claims to have heard 400 complaints with reference to the various different medical and dental colleges, the impugned orders do not reference any specific complaint or name any of the complainants or conclude that the complaint is genuine and that candidate was deprived of admission. Hence the conclusion drawn by the PMC through its disciplinary committee in the impugned orders is presumptive and not based on a factual inquiry or due process. Consequently the entire decision making process is flawed and against the mandate of the law.

10. The primary objection raised by the Petitioners is that the impugned order and the advertisement is against the norms of due process and violates the principles of natural justice as the Petitioners who are all students were never heard yet in terms of the impugned order their admissions have been suspended and their interview marks have been cancelled. This means that none of the Petitioners before the Court were given a chance to reply or refute any claims made by any of the complainants before the PMC nor were they confronted with any evidence to suggest that they were in any manner involved in wrongfully procuring admission at their respective college. There is no provision under the PMC Act or its 2020 Regulations which allows the PMC to pass an omnibus order against 400 complaints that too without giving affected parties a hearing. It may be that the PMC has formed an impression that the admission processes for some colleges was tainted and that the Respondent medical college did not diligently exercise their discretion with respect to the interview process and the interview marks or that they did not follow 2020 Regulations but PMC is required to hear a specific complaint and pass an order on its merit.

11. This Court in constitutional jurisdiction can review all actions which are contrary to the principles of natural justice, due process, in violation of statute or rules and regulations framed thereunder. The entire argument of the Respondent PMC is that the Medical Tribunal has been established under the MT Act to hear and decide all appeals, complaints or claims instituted before it. Hence the Petitioners could file a complaint before the Medical Tribunal, being the adequate, statutory remedy available to them. In this regard while the general rule is that where there is a statutory remedy available, then writ jurisdiction should not be invoked, there are exceptions to this rule, which will depend on the facts and circumstances of the case. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan in various different judgments has held that constitutional jurisdiction can be invoked to rectify errors for which there is no adequate or efficacious remedy; where orders are patently illegal; in abuse of authority, without jurisdiction or in excess of jurisdiction, in violation of the statute or even to avoid multiplicity of disputes so as to protect and preserve the rights before the Court. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan has defined adequacy and efficacious remedy so as to ensure that the forum available should redress the grievance appropriately. Reliance is placed on Town Committee, Gakhar Mandi v. Authority under the Payment of Wages Act Gujranwala and 57 others (PLD 2002 SC 452), Muhammad Aslam v. Senior Member (Colonies), Board of Revenue, Punjab and others (2004 SCMR 1587), Dr. Sher Afghan Khan Niazi v. Ali S. Habib and others (2011 SCMR 1813) and Haleem ur Rehman v. Province of Sindh and others (2019 SCMR 1653). In the instant cases, the impugned orders are not appealable before the Medical Tribunal because they are not specific orders passed on a specific complaint. The impugned orders are all identical and have suspended the admission of the Petitioners and their interview marks without hearing them. On the face of it, PMC has not exercised its authority as per law and the entire decision making process is contrary to the principles of due process.

12. Therefore in the context of the above, this Court can always in constitutional jurisdiction review the decision making process in order to ensure that the competent authority has acted in accordance with law, maintained the principles of natural justice and due process and has not in any manner abused its authority. To the mind of this Court, the orders impugned through these Writ Petitions are in violation of the statutory mandate given to the PMC to hear complaints and decide upon the same. They are also in violation of the statutory mandate given to PMC to oversee the admission process and to take disciplinary action where required. As this aspect of the matter touches merits of the case, I deem it appropriate to decide the same on its merits holding that the instant Petitions as maintainable and that the remedy before the Medical Tribunal neither adequate nor efficacious for the purposes of the dispute before this Court.

On merit

13. The basic issue before the Court is whether the PMC is authorized under the PMC Act to pass the impugned orders and issue the impugned advertisement on the basis of which it has attempted to initiate admission for candidates who applied to a medical or dental college in the published list, as per the advertisement, yet were not admitted in the medical or dental college and are re-invited on the basis of the advertisement to submit their intent for admission.

14. The PMC was established pursuant to the PMC Act. The preamble of the PMC Act sets out its objectives that is to provide regulations and control of the medical profession as well as to establish a uniform minimum standard of basic and higher medical education and training and recognition of qualifications in medicine and dentistry. One of the basic functions of the PMC is to frame regulations for conduct of admissions in medical and dental colleges and to approve the examination structure and standard of the MDCAT. It is important to note that the PMC in terms of Section 3 of the PMC Act consists of a Medical and Dental Council, the National Medical and Dental Academic Board and the National Medical Authority. The National Medical and Dental Academic Board in terms of Section 13(c) of the PMC Act is responsible to formulate examination structures and standards for the MDCAT for approval by the Council. The National Medical Authority is responsible to conduct the examinations provided for under the PMC Act and is also responsible to implement the decisions of the Council and the Board. The MDCAT is conducted pursuant to Section 18 of the PMC Act, annually on a date approved by the Council as per the standard approved by the Board. Section 18(3) of the PMC Act provides for admission to medical or dental programs conducted by public colleges to be regulated as per the policy provided by the Provincial Government and admissions to private college in accordance with the criteria and requirements stipulated by the private college, at least one year in advance of the scheduled admissions which will include any entrance test to be conducted by a private college. It also provides that the marks obtained in the MDCAT will constitute fifty percent of the weightage for the purposes of admissions in public colleges. Section 18 does not provide any information with reference to the admission criteria and the weightage that is to be given by a private college for admission. In this context, the 2020 Regulations which were issued pursuant to section 8(2)(f) of the PMC Act are relevant. These Regulations are applicable to all private and public medical and dental colleges with reference to 2021 session specifically. It is important to note that it is with reference to these regulations that the impugned orders have concluded that the Respondent Colleges have not been compliant with the prescribed admission requirements.

15. The 2020 Regulations provide that any student seeking admission in any medical or dental college has to pass the MDCAT exam and the passing marks were statedly 60%. All admissions in public and private medical and dental colleges had to be concluded before 21.2.2021 and classes were required to begin from February 2021. All private and public colleges have allocated number of seats and no college is allowed to admit beyond the allocated seats. These Regulations also regulate admissions in private colleges. Relevant to the dispute are Regulations 18, 19, 19A to 19F which PMC has relied upon to show that the Respondent colleges have not fulfilled the prescribed requirements.

16. By way of background it is important to note that the PMC was established pursuant to the PMC Act which was promulgated on 22.9.2020 and was published in the official gazette on 24.9.2020. The advertisement for holding the MDCAT by the PMC was published on 22.10.2020 and the MDCAT was conducted on 29.11.2020 and 13.12.2020 (for students who had tested Covid-19 and were unable to appear on the examination held on 29.11.2020). The result of the MDCAT was announced on 16.12.2020. During this time the relevant Regulations were the Admission Regulations 2020-2021. The PMC thereafter issued the Medical and Dental Undergraduate Education (Admissions, Curriculum and Conduct) Regulations, 2021 ("2021 Regulations") on 4.6.2021 which now govern the admission process. However, so far as the 2020 Regulations are concerned, it is important to note that these Regulations were amended twice, once on 17.11.2020 and then on 23.12.2020. Hence it would be fair to state that until 23.12.2020 the process of regulating the admissions for the year 2020-21 was undergoing change. In this regard, the Private Association of Medical and Dental Institutions ("PAMI") also challenged the role of the PMC with reference to admissions in private colleges and ultimately with the intervention of the Court, a consensus was reached between the PMC and PAMI whereafter the 2020 Regulations were amended and specifically Regulations 19A to 19F were incorporated. A significant change was brought about which allowed private medical and dental colleges to give weightage, such that 50% MDCAT, 30% F.Sc or its equivalent and 20% marks reserved for interview by the private colleges. For the purposes of the dispute at hand, PMC has raised questions specifically with respect to the manner in which the 20% marks were given, that is the decision making process and the discretion exercised by the private colleges when awarding 20% marks in the interviews. The basic contention of PMC before the Court is that transparency and merit be maintained and it is in the context of achieving these goals of transparency and merit that this entire exercise is being undertaken. Hence PMC states that it is scrutinizing the admission process and the merit list to ensure that the 2020 Regulations have been complied with, that the merit list has not been compromised and more importantly candidates who claim that they were deliberately ousted from the system notwithstanding their merit are not denied the opportunity to pursue a career in the medical or dental profession.

17. In the context of the instant Petition, as per the record, notices were issued to the college on 5.4.2021 to appear on 8.4.2021 and the impugned order was passed on 24.4.2021. As per the impugned order, para 7 refers to one student who was admitted after the close of the admission deadline in violation of Regulation 19D of the 2020 Regulations. The impugned order makes reference to various provisions of the 2020 Regulations and finds that there are inherent discrepancies and irregularities in the admission process; that the interview process is not properly documented and that the college should adopt a transparent system to inform students of the interview so as to ensure that a fair opportunity is given to all candidates; that no merit list based on the interview marks was available and that the record shows that the students were admitted on the day of their interview. So the impugned order concludes that a pick and choose approach seems to have been adopted, therefore it suggests that some students who may have been on the merit were not duly considered. In this context, they have relied upon fee deposit slips to show that fees have been deposited prior to the issuance of the merit list. The impugned order concludes that the admission process is in contravention to the 2020 Regulations and therefore the admission of the students for the session 2020-21 in the college are deemed as suspended and the interview marks by the college were held to be non-transparent and cancelled. The PMC thereafter decided that an advertisement should be issued informing any student who appeared on the national merit list of the college to re-apply if they did not get admission in any college, within five days of the impugned advertisement. A bench mark merit has been awarded to the colleges and the objective is to determine whether any candidate has a higher merit than the bench mark and has been left out from the admission process. Interestingly the impugned orders in all connected Petitions being for Al-Aleem Medical College and Akhtar Saeed Medical College are identical to the impugned orders in the instant Petition. The allegations are similar with reference to the admission of students after the close of the admission date naming one specific student and the date of their admission in the context of each of the respective colleges. However, to the extent of the specific complaints raised and the conclusions drawn by PMC from a review of the documents, the impugned orders do not specifically deal with any of the complaints it was statedly hearing. These impugned orders have led this Court to conclude that notwithstanding the complaints before the PMC, an omnibus order has been passed without checking the merit of the complaint or veracity of the complainant and a general observation has been made that the admission process is tainted, hence should be re-advertised so as to invite candidates who believe that they were wronged or pushed out of the admission process deliberately. To my mind this approach by the PMC is not only in contravention to the 2020 Regulations but also defies the logic raised. As per their own contentions there were 400 complaints which were heard and decided. However the decision of 400 complaints is in the form of an omnibus order with respect to 20 colleges. So it is unclear as to what the specific grievance of each of the complainant was and with respect to which college. Furthermore no relief was granted to any of the 400 candidates, that is no candidate has been found entitled to admission. The record of the admitted students has not been referred to, so it is unclear as to why their admission has been suspended and interview marks cancelled. Apparently, the specific allegations of each and every complainant with reference to a specific medical and dental college has not been duly considered. Where the complainant has alleged that they have been left out of the process and that even though they have the merit they were not properly considered, it required PMC to investigate/ inquire and determine whether or not that a particular candidate was left out of the process unfairly and whether they are entitled to admission. Similarly where the complainant has alleged that they were never called for the interview or that the merit list was never published, it required PMC to make some sort of factual finding before it could assume that the respective Respondent colleges have not been compliant with the 2020 Regulations. Although it is stated that the record was checked, the mere fact that there are identical orders in all Petitions before the Court suggests that the record was not properly checked and a presumption was made with respect to the admission process undertaken.

18. It is also important to note that in terms of the 2021 Regulations issued on 4.6.2021, the PMC has set out the processes with respect to the admissions for public as well as private colleges but relevant to the dispute at hand, it has also set out its ability to regulate the admission process. In terms of Regulation 10 of the 2021 Regulations, reproduced hereunder, the PMC can review the admission process during or after the completion of the process and it has the power to cancel any admission if that admission is in contravention to the Regulations after giving the student a right of hearing. Also important to note is that a student can submit a complaint to the Authority or the Medical Tribunal in respect of irregular admissions made or admission being refused by a college and that this complaint has to be decided by the Authority or the Medical Tribunal within 15 days.

10. Review of Admissions Process by Authority.-(1) The Authority may review the admissions process of each college during and on completion of the process where such process shall be completed by the Authority within thirty days of the final date of admissions.

(2) If the Authority finds any irregular admission having been made by the college, the Authority shall have the right to cancel such admission subject to having granted both the college and the affected student a right to be heard.

(3) A student may submit a complaint to the Authority or the Medical Tribunal in respect of any irregular admission made or admission invalidly refused by a college. Such complaint if made to the Authority shall be heard and decided within fifteen days of the same being submitted after hearing both the complainant and the college.

Regulation 28 of the 2021 Regulations provides for penalties that the PMC can impose on the medical and dental college for violation of any provision of the Regulations. Appendix 1 set outs the contraventions and provides the penalties that can be imposed.

28. Penalties. - The Authority shall impose a penalty as may be prescribed by the Medical and Dental Council and provided for in Appendix I for any violation of any provisions of these Regulations. In the event a specific penalty is not provided for any violation, the Authority may advise the Medical and Dental Council to prescribe a penalty for such violation and if approved the same would be imposed notwithstanding that such penalty was not provided for in Appendix I.

19. On the basis of the 2021 Regulations, PMC can decide a complaint and it can declare the admission of a candidate illegal or irregular thereby cancelling it subject to granting the college and the affected students a right of hearing. This is not the process that was undertaken by the PMC with respect to the impugned orders where the Petitioners being students who were granted admission have not been heard and more importantly there is no clear specific order on a complaint made before the PMC rather an omnibus order has been passed with respect to all the colleges before the Court. Furthermore in terms of Regulation 28 of the 2021 Regulations, PMC can impose a penalty on any college for violating the Regulations. However, the impugned orders set out to suspend the admissions and cancel the interview marks but does not impose any penalty on the colleges. The mandate of the 2021 Regulations clearly provide that PMC is to hear a complaint and decide upon it and thereafter can impose a penalty if it is required. Although it was argued that the 2021 Regulations came in June 2021 and the impugned orders and advertisement were issued before the 2021 Regulations, PMC is obligated to follow the principles of due process, justice and to avoid vague and generalized enforcement as it affects the requirements of predictability and stability leaving potential for unfair surprises in their decision making. In this case, the PMC has neglected to decide upon the 400 complaints. Instead it has formed a general opinion of irregularities which it is now attempting to defend before this Court. It is clarified that even if the objective of the PMC is to retain transparency and merit, it has attempted to do so in a manner that it is not authorized under the law. Even though the 2021 Regulations were notified in June 2021, this is the PMC's own doing and there is nothing in the 2020 Regulations or the PMC Act which permits PMC to pass a general order on 400 complaints. This by itself is a violation of the mandate under the PMC Act and the MT Act.

20. In this regard, it is important to note that the process of admission from the time of announcement of the schedule of the MDCAT exam to the issuance of the merit list and the filling up of vacancies is regularly litigated upon not only by the colleges but also by students on one pretext or the other. A common dominant cause over the last few years has been the constant change in the regulator, the statute and the admission processes, that too just before the MDCAT exam. Not only have these frequent changes led to confusion and multiple litigation but has also destroyed confidence in the regulator and the system on the basis of which admission is granted in a highly competitive profession. This Court in various different judgments has looked into the issues raised and has held that change in law and admission processes should never be made at the last moment, before the MDCAT exam or during an academic session so as to disturb the preparation that candidates have made in anticipation of the MDCAT exam. Reference is made to Pakistan Medical and Dental Council v. Shahida Islam Medical Complex (Pvt.) Limited etc. (2019 CLC 1761). This Court has also held that it is the function of the regulator to set out uniform standards and prescribed conditions for admission in public and private medical colleges and that the regulator can take penal action against an institution for non-compliance with its regulations. Reference is on Muhammad Fahad Malik through Safdar Ali Malik v. Pakistan Medical and Dental Council through its President etc. (PLD 2018 Lahore 75). This judgment has been upheld by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Pakistan Medical and Dental Council through President and 3 others v. Muhammad Fahad Malik and 10 others (2018 SCMR 1956) which means that the PMC as a frontline regulator should perform its functions so as to preserve the merit and confidence of the colleges and students and refrain from arbitrary and discriminatory decisions. The present impugned orders have created further disruption by placing the Petitioners and other admitted candidates in a state of flux, as their admission stands suspended as do their interview marks and PMC has not stated what is their fate once candidates re-surface for admission. Are these admitted students to re-apply? or will their merit be scrutinized? As to the college if they have breached the 2020 Regulations to what consequence and how will PMC ensure that it is not repeated? Hence even though they allege that the college violated the 2020 Regulations, there is no action against the college, rather admitted students have been penalized without any hearing or allegation against them.

21. Hence the PMC's contention that there are irregularities and illegalities with respect to the admission process of the listed colleges in the advertisement has not been established by way of the impugned orders. The Respondent medical colleges in their report and parawise comments have addressed the various different allegations raised in the impugned order to assert their contention that they did not compromise on the merit and that they did not in any manner prejudice the rights of any of the candidates especially the complainants but stated that they were entitled to admission in the instant Petitions. As per the report and parawise comments filed in the instant Petition and the documents appended by Sahara Medical College, the complainants who stated that they were not given admission despite their merit did not meet the cut off merit of the college, hence were not granted admission. These documents and facts suggest that the PMC was required to adjudicate on each complaint separately in order to ascertain its veracity and merit and that the impugned orders are based on presumption. In this regard, where the PMC is of the opinion that a college has not complied with the terms of the 2021 Regulations, it can issue notice setting out its case with respect to breach of regulations and compromise on merit, giving not only the college but the respective complainant and any candidate who may be adversely affected by an order of the PMC an opportunity of hearing. PMC can also impose penalty on the colleges that breaches its regulations in order to curtail and prevent any of the discrepancies and irregularities/illegalities set out by PMC.

22. The fundamental job of the regulator PMC is to ensure that the processes of admission is not tainted, it is complied with the regulations so as to ensure that the students with the higher merit are given admission. The admission process itself is competitive and since private colleges were given discretion of 20% marks with respect to the interview, the entire dispute before the Court hinges on the manner in which 20% marks were granted. It is also important to note that although PMC has asserted that merit and transparency is necessary and it is in order to attain merit and transparency that this exercise has been undertaken, the manner in which the PMC is attempting to resolve the problem is in contravention to its own 2020 and 2021 Regulations and in negation to the authority it can exercise under the PMC Act. PMC should have addressed each and every complaint on its merit, passing a specific order with respect to the basic complaint against the respective college, which order would be appealable before the Medical Tribunal.

23. In view of the aforesaid, these Petitions are allowed, impugned advertisement dated 29.4.2021 and impugned orders dated 24.4.2021 issued by the PMC are set aside. However, PMC can take necessary action against the Respondent college or others in accordance with the 2021 Regulations by following due process.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned judgment dated 21.12.2018 passed by Respondent No.2, Senior Civil Judge, Okara and judgment dated 13.05.2019 passed by Respondent No.1, Additional District Judge, Okara.

2. Facts of the case are that Respondent No.3 filed a suit for dissolution of marriage, maintenance allowance, delivery expenses of Respondents Nos.4 and 5 and recovery of dowry articles or its alternate price of Rs.1,650,100/- against the Petitioner, which was decreed by Respondent No.2, Senior Civil Judge, Okara vide judgment dated 21.12.2018 holding Respondent No.3 entitled to recover dowry articles as mentioned in the plaint except the articles deleted in the findings of issue No.4 or alternate price of articles of Rs.300,000/- from the Petitioner. Respondents Nos.4 and 5 held entitled to recover maintenance allowance at the rate of Rs.4,000/- per month each from the date of institution of suit till their legal entitlement or custody is shifted. Respondent No.3 found to be entitled to recover maintenance allowance only for her period of "Iddat" at the rate or Rs.4,000/- per month. Feeling aggrieved both the parties filed their separate appeals before Respondent No.1 who vide judgment dated 13.05.2019, dismissed the appeal filed by the Petitioner and partially allowed the appeal filed by Respondent No.3 holding her entitled to recover articles mentioned in list "Mark-J" or in alternative their deprecated price Rs.100,000/-. The Respondents Nos.4 and 5 also held entitled to recover maintenance allowance at the rate of Rs.7,000/- per month each with 10% annual increase till their legal entitlement. Respondent No.3 was also held entitled to recover past maintenance allowance at the rate of Rs.6,000/- per month from February, 2016 till expiry of her Iddat period and Rs.10,000/- as maternity expenditures of Respondent No.5. Hence this petition.

3. In support of this petition, learned counsel for the Petitioner stated that the Petitioner has proved through evidence that Respondent No.3 did not bring any dowry articles at the time of marriage as it was his 3rd marriage and it is a matter of common practice that dowry is not given in 3rd marriage. Learned counsel stated 'that both the courts were required to keep in mind the financial status of the Petitioner before passing the order on maintenance allowance which was enhanced as the Petitioner is a Traffic Warden (BS-14) in City Traffic Police, Lahore having no other source of income. Learned counsel stated that there are material contradictions in the statements of the witnesses produced by Respondent No.3. Hence, the judgments passed by the courts are based on misreading and non-reading of evidence and are liable to be set aside.

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for Respondent No.3 opposes the submissions made by learned counsel for the Petitioner and prays for dismissal of the instant Petition.

5. The main issue in this Petition is whether Respondent No.3 was able to prove her case with respect to dowry articles, maintenance and delivery expenses. In terms of the record, the list of dowry articles Mark-J was produced by Respondent No.3 on the basis of which the trial court held that Respondent No.3 is entitled to recover dowry articles or in the alternate Rs.300,000/- while keeping in mind the nature of the articles and their depreciation value. In the appeal, the learned Additional District Judge not only endorsed the findings of trial court on this issue but also held Respondent No.3 entitled to recover the items mentioned in the list Mark-J based on the evidence and receipts produced. There is nothing in the evidence of the Petitioner to substantiate his claim that no dowry was given to Respondent No.3. So far as maintenance for Respondent No.3 is concerned, the Appellate Court enhanced the same from Rs.4,000/- to Rs.6,000/- per month from February, 2016 till the expiry of Iddat period and for Respondents Nos.4 and 5 maintenance allowance was enhanced at the rate of Rs.7,000/- per month each with 10% annual increase till their legal entitlement. The Appellate Court also allowed Respondent No.3 to recover Rs.10,000/- from the Petitioner as delivery expenditures on the ground that she gave birth to the minor through a midwife at home hence some expenditures was definitely borne out at the birth of the baby (Respondent No.5). Therefore, the judgment is as per the evidence and record. No illegality is made out. The fact that the Petitioner has married three times and has other children shall not deprive the instant Respondents from their rightful claim.

6. It is noted that in constitutional jurisdiction, this court is not sitting as an appellate court and cannot reappraise the evidence. Interference in constitutional jurisdiction can only be done where the Courts below have acted illegally or with material irregularity or exercised jurisdiction not vested with them or passed orders which were in excess of their jurisdiction. Even in a case where it is alleged that there is misreading and non-reading of evidence, the same will not mean re-appraisal of the evidence but will have to fall within the purview of being a material irregularity or illegality on the part of the subordinate courts.

7. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Consequently, this petition is dismissed.

ORDER

This order decides upon the issues raised in the instant Environmental Appeal No. 1441/2014 filed by Sajjad Ahmad Khan etc. along with connected Environmental Appeal No.1436/2014 filed by the Government of Punjab through Director General, Environment Protection Agency, Lahore ("EPA"). Both the appeals impugn order dated 6.5.2014 passed by the Punjab Environmental Tribunal ("Tribunal") wherein show cause notice dated 18.6.2012 and cancellation of environmental approval order dated 5.7.2013 against Respondent No.1 was set aside. Along with these appeals, W.P. No. 1998/2015 filed by the Appellants seeking a direction to the Respondents to act strictly in accordance with law has also been heard.

2. The basic facts are that Respondent No.1 established a chemical plant in an agricultural area at Pir Tannu, 38 KM Multan Bahwalpur Road, Multan to produce Sulphuric Acid ("Plant"). The EPA granted approval for construction as well as for the operations on 18.4.2011 and 12.4.2012 respectively. The Plant was constructed and became functional. The EPA carried out a site inspection and found that the Plant was violating the terms of its approval, hence issued show cause notice dated 18.6.2012 after which it cancelled its approval on 5.7.2013. These orders were challenged before the Tribunal by Respondent No.1, whereby the Tribunal set aside the show cause notice as well as the cancellation order vide its decision dated 6.5.2014 which has been impugned in the two appeals before the Court. Through W.P. No.1998/2015, the Petitioners state that they have complained against the establishment of the Plant as it has been set up in an agricultural area and it creates acid mist which is hazardous to the people residing in the area as well as to the environment which primarily is an agricultural area.

3. As per the order sheet, these cases have been pending since 2014. Vide order dated 6.4.2016, the entire record of the EPA was called for including the Environmental Impact Assessment ("EIA") and the Environmental Management Plan to assess the allegations narrated in both appeals against the Plant. Thereafter vide order dated 19.5.2016 an Environmental Consultant was appointed by the Court to verify whether the Respondent company is compliant with the environment approvals granted. The report was submitted on 15.11.2016 against which objections were filed on 20.9.2017. Vide order dated 24.10.2017 the objections were heard and the Court directed that the Consultant revisit the Plant and ascertain and verify whether the Plant is compliant with all 22 conditions imposed by the EPA and whether emissions being caused by the Plant are as per the desired standards. Thereafter vide order dated 17.4.2019 on the report filed by then Consultant after revisit to the Plant arguments were heard at length. At this point it is important to note that even the Government of Punjab has filed an appeal in which they state that the land on which the Plant has been constructed is agricultural land and has not been converted for industrial use. The Court was also informed that there are no standards on the basis of which the EPA is able to determine whether any air or water pollution is being caused and more importantly whether the acid mist emitted from the Plant being dangerous to the population residing nearby. On 4.11.2019 a detailed report was submitted by the Government of Punjab on the issue of conversion of land. In the meantime it was confirmed that there are no specific standards for a sulphuric acid plant as per international practice. Hence both the parties before the Court being the complainant in the W.P. and the Plant itself were asked to provide international guidelines and standards with reference to sulphuric acid plants and acid mist. These have been duly filed by the parties and the representative of the EPA have acknowledged that they themselves have not considered any or specific international standards with reference to the sulphuric acid plants and acid mist.

4. Learned counsel for the Respondent has also brought the attention of the Court to the fact that the EPA granted approval for construction as well as for the operations on 18.4.2011 and 12.4.2012 respectively which has now expired and in terms of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 ("Act"), the Respondent company is required to re-initiate the process of getting the permission afresh. Therefore he stated that the issues raised before this Court can be re-visited by the EPA with specific emphasis on the standards and guidelines required for sulphuric acid plants as well as the issues raised by the Government of Punjab with reference to the conversion of land. He stated that these are all factual matters which will take time and that the EPA is the competent body to look into the same before it can grant any further approvals. Learned Law Officer along with Nabila Khalid, AD Legal, EPA and all the parties before the Court agreed with the request of the learned counsel for the Respondents.

5. The Petitioners in W.P. No.1998/2015 stated that they have been pursuing this matter since the approvals were granted as they reside in the area and have agricultural land in the area. Further state that not only the people of the area but also their crops and the land is being adversely affected by the acid mist which fact has not been taken into consideration by the EPA at the time of according the environmental approval. Even with respect to the mitigation measures proposed by the EPA and the consultant he stated that nothing was specifically done to address the acid mist gases which are emitted on a large scale by the Plant when it is functional. Therefore the counsel stated that proper guidelines and standards must be adopted in the first instance before granting any permission to the Respondent Company. Learned counsel for the Respondent Company/Plant stated that the Company has invested a large amount of money in the establishment of the Plant and therefore will make every possible effort to ensure that proper standards are adopted and that it is compliant with the same before it attains any approval and commences operation.

6. In the light of what has been stated it is noted that since the approvals granted by the EPA have expired, both the appeals have become infructuous and that the prayer in the WP will now be taken up by the EPA if and when the process for issuance of permission to commence operations of the Plant begins. In the meantime the EPA should set proper standards for sulphuric acid Plants and acid mist gases emitted to ensure that international standards are followed to protect the environment.

7. Hence both the appeals and Writ Petition are disposed of accordingly.

SA/M-76/Lah. Order accordingly.

ORDER

This appeal is filed under section 22 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 (the Ordinance) to lay a challenge to order dated 30.05.2014 passed by the banking court in dismissing the application filed by the appellants objecting to the attachment of his property.

2. The relevant facts for determination of the controversy in this appeal may be stated as under Respondent No.2 being an employee of the respondent bank availed a finance facility and as security for repayment of the finance mortgaged his property measuring 1 Kanal 70 Sq. feet falling in Khasra Nos.3128 and 3129 purchased through sale, deed 25.05.1989. In consequence of his default in repayment of the finance, the respondent bank filed a recovery suit against him in which a decree was passed on 14.03.2001. The respondent bank filed the execution application and got the mortgaged property attached on 26.09.2001. The appellants filed an objection application before the banking court on 07.11.2001 claiming to be owner of land measuring 5 Marla purchased through sale deed dated 29.09.1997 from respondent No.2. It was averred that land measuring 5 Marla was a different property having no nexus with land measuring 1 Kanal 70 Sq. feet mortgaged with the respondent bank. A reply was filed by the respondent bank to the objection application stating that the 5 Marla plot under the occupation of the appellants was part of the mortgaged property.

3. The banking court on 12.07.2002 farmed the following issues:-

1) Whether the objectors are bona fide purchasers to the extent of 5-Marlas of the mortgaged property of the judgment debtor. If so, since what date with what effect?

2) Whether the objectors have come to this court with unclean hands and are in collusion with the judgment debtor?

3) Relief

4. Appellant No.1 entered the witness box as OW-1 on 24.09.2003 and tendered in evidence the sale deed in his favour as Exh.OW.1 when he was cross-examined by the respondent bank. The banking court on 24.09.2003 passed the order that the right of the respondent to lead evidence had already been closed on 10.09.2002 and accordingly fixed the case for arguments on the objection application of the appellants.

5. The record reflects that the respondent bank on 26.02.2005 stated before the banking court that it has approached the revenue authorities for demarcation of the property in dispute whereupon the matter lingered on for quite some time. During the course of arguments on the objection application, the banking court on 20.06.2009 at the request of both the parties directed the concerned Tehsildar to submit a report of demarcation in respect of the properties comprised in the two sale deeds. The report was submitted on 14.07.2011 before the banking court. The appellants thereafter filed their objections on the report of the Tehsildar and reply thereto was also submitted by the respondent bank.

6. The banking court through order dated 30.05.2014 (impugned herein) rendered its findings on issue No.1 against the appellants by placing reliance on the report of the Tehsildar which reported that respondent No.1 sold portions from his property mortgaged with the respondent bank to various persons including the appellants. It was accordingly held by the banking court that the "....decree holder bank has every right to get the mortgaged property auctioned for realization of decretal amount." Having arrived at this conclusion, the banking court paradoxically stated as under:

> The objectors should seek proper remedy against the judgment debtor from competent forum. Under the law, a summary procedure is adopted by Banking Court for determination of objections and claims of the parties. Whether the piece of 5-Marla land purchased by the objectors is different from the mortgaged property, is a complicated question and Civil Court would be the ultimate and competent forum for its determination. Therefore, it cannot be held that objectors are bona fide purchasers as they failed to take the proper care and caution in purchasing the property from the judgment debtor at relevant time. Hence the issue is decided accordingly against the objections.

7. The order passed by the banking court is not sustainable for the reason that it relied solely on the report of Tehsildar whereas he never appeared in the witness box. The said report was thus not proved in accordance with law. The banking court also failed to consider that the respondent bank did not tender any evidence, oral or documentary to rebut the evidence of the appellants. The order sheet shows that the banking court on 10.09.2002 framed the issues without fixing the onus to proof thereon and adjourned the case for evidence of the parties to 10.09.2002. On the basis of the allegations leveled in the objection petition, the appellants being the objectors were required to initiate the evidence. Be that as it may, the banking court on the adjourned date of hearing i.e. 10.09.2002 closed the right of the parties to produce evidence. On an application filed by the appellants, only they were allowed to produce one witness by the banking court on 09.01.2003. The order was a material irregularity on the part of the banking court as the respondent bank ought to be given opportunity to produce evidence. It may be pointed out that the respondent bank has now filed an application bearing C.M. No. 1-C of 2020 before us under Order XLI, Rule 27, C.P.C. for producing additional evidence in shape of certified copies of sale deed registered on 31.05.1989 in respect of land measuring 1 Kanal 70 sq. feet in favour of respondent No. 2 and mortgage deed registered on 16.03.1995.

8. The issues were also wrongly framed by the banking court. The precise allegation of the appellants was that their plot of 5 Marla was not part of the mortgaged property whereas the respondent bank asserted that it was so. On this disputed question of fact, the banking court did not frame any issue. It was not the case of the appellants that they were bona fide purchasers for valuable consideration without notice of the mortgage charge of the respondent bank. Such an allegation would imply that the appellants do not deny that the land under their occupation is part of the mortgaged property. Had this been the case, the respondent bank would only be required to prove the registration of the mortgage deed in its favour to repel the stance of the appellants. The banking court also wrongly concluded that the appellants were required to approach the civil court for determination of their objections. The executing court under section 47, C.P.C. has the necessary powers to adjudicate upon all questions for the execution, discharge and satisfaction of the decree without putting the parties to the trouble of filing a separate suit.

9. In view of what has been stated above, we allow this appeal and set aside order dated 30.05.2014 with the result that the objection application filed by' the appellants shall be deemed to be pending adjudication before the banking court. The banking court shall provide an opportunity to the respondent bank to adduce evidence, oral as well as documentary. The banking court shall also summon the concerned Tehsildar who submitted the report as court witness. In case, he is not available, the banking court shall order for a fresh demarcation report from the concerned Tehsildar to be prepared in accordance with the High Court Rules and Orders before proceeding in the matter. We also recast Issue No.1 as follows:

> 1. Whether plot measuring 5 Marla purchased by the objectors through sale deed registered on 29.09.1997 forms part of land measuring I Kanal 70 Sq.feet mortgaged with the respondent bank? OP Parties.

10. Since it is an old matter, it is expected that the banking court shall decide the objection application expeditiously within a period of three months from the date of the appearance of the parties. The parties are directed to appear before the banking court on 02.11.2021.

11. C.M. No. 1-C of 2020 stands disposed of.

Ayesha A. Malik J: Through this Petition, the Petitioners challenge the decision taken by the Government of Punjab vide advertisement dated 27.2.2020 with respect to the admissions in private sector medical and dental institutions of the Punjab.

2. Learned counsel for the Petitioners stated that the process for admission in public and private medical colleges is underway. The Petitioners along with other students applied for admission and the merit lists were under process, when suddenly on account of the advertisement dated 27.2.2020 issued by the Chairman, Provincial Admission Commission, Punjab pursuant to the decision taken by the Government of Punjab, it is stated that fresh preferences should be given to the Government of Punjab so that they can make fresh order of preference for all private medical and dental institutions in the Punjab. Effectively the advertisement required the restart of the admission process which was almost final. Learned counsel argued that the Government of Punjab has no role whatsoever with the admission process. Respondent No.3, UHS is the Admitting University which is required to conduct a centralized medical and dental admission test and make admissions in public and private medical and dental colleges. The supervisory role is of the Admission Board, under the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council ("PMDC") and the Provincial Admission Committee is required to make admissions as per the policy given by PMDC. He argued that the decision taken by the Government of Punjab was on account of the various different complaints received with respect to the admission process and the placement of students contrary to the merit by Pakistan Medical Commission ("PMC"). However, even this matter has to be considered by the Admissions Board along with the Provincial Admission Committee. He further argued that by seeking fresh preferences, the Petitioner along with others are aggrieved as they have already commenced their studies and have been attending classes at their respective institutions for almost three months. Hence any displacement at this stage would adversely affect the academic year of the Petitioners.

3. During the pendency of this Petition, several other petitions were filed challenging the same notification and the overall placement being contrary to the merit. Subsequently many applications under Order 1 Rule 10 Civil Procedure Code, 1908 ("CPC") were filed by students who also had the same grievance and were also aggrieved by the manner in which the merit lists were prepared. The common grievance of all Applicants before the Court is that the merit has been compromised and they have been treated unfairly. Further that they have not been given admission on the basis of their merit or preference and instead students with lower merit have been granted admission in high merit colleges.

4. On behalf of Respondent UHS, Professor Dr. Javed Akram, Vice Chancellor, UHS and Dr. Allah Rakha, Team Leader Admissions appeared along with their counsel and apprised the Court of the facts leading up to the problems. It is their contention that PMC in its 4th meeting held on 8.1.2020 decided to stop upgradation of the merit list and instead directed that admission be granted to candidates from the waiting list. Pursuant to this decision, UHS displayed the merit list for MBBS and BDS students on 29.1.2020. A large number of candidates who were expecting upgradation based on their merit and as per their preferences were aggrieved by this list as the merit was compromised. Furthermore subsequent to the decision of the Islamabad High Court on 11.2.2020 where the establishment of the PMC was declared unconstitutional, a void was created in the admission process which came to a hault on 19.2.2020. Therefore, the Provincial Admission Committee vide its order dated 19.2.2020 decided to grant a fresh opportunity to all candidates being the advertisement challenged before the Court.

5. During the course of arguments, the Petitioners along with all Applicants before the Court and the Respondent UHS agreed that if a methodology is devised by the Court to fix the merit then the grievance of the Petitioners and the Applicants would be redressed. The Government of Punjab made a categorical statement before the Court that their intent was only to redress the grievances of the candidates and that they have no objection whatsoever to the request of the candidates that the Court supervise the UHS in the admission process to reach a fair conclusion. Consequently the complete merit list as displayed by the UHS on 4.11.2019 was placed before the Court. Dr. Allah Rakha, Team Leader Admissions stated that if the list displayed on 29.1.2020 was disregarded in totality then an effort could be made to adjust the merit of all students as per their preference and others as per their merit. In this regard, he explained that where candidates did not meet the merit of their three preferences, they were placed in colleges as per their merit (for the purposes of this case these students are referred to as forced placement candidates). Hence vide order dated 13.3.2020, this Court directed that to the extent of forced placement candidates the list of 29.1.2020 be disregarded and forced placement be made on the basis of merit. In order to implement this decision, the Court directed that:

(i) Forced placement must be made strictly on the basis of the merit.

(ii) The 6th list of MBBS dated 10.1.2020, 7th list of MBBS dated 17.1.2020 and 8th list for MBBS dated 29.1.2020 to the extent of forced placement be revised with respect to the merit to ensure that all forced placements are made as per the merit of the college.

(iii) In the same way 5th list of BDS dated 10.1.2020, 6th list of BDS dated 16.1.2020 and 7th list of BDS dated 29.1.2020 be also revised to the extent of forced placement.

(iv) Once these lists are provided to the Court on 17.3.2020 and meet the requirements of the Court, the same shall be publicized for all candidates to see and the candidates will be given the option to decide whether they wish to be upgraded as per the list or not. It is clarified that these are provisional lists and are not to be acted upon until a clear direction from the Court is given. It is once again clarified that Government of Punjab has no role to play in the formulation of these lists.

6. It was also pointed out that two colleges namely Watim Medical College, Rawalpindi and Azra Naheed Dental College, Lahore have issued special lists on the basis of the meeting of the PMC dated 30.11.2019. It was again reiterated that candidates placed in these colleges were from the waiting list and not in accordance with the upgradation of the merit. Further that these colleges never offered admission when the process of admission was initiated. They were subsequently registered and candidates from the waiting list were adjusted in these two institutions. The counsel for the UHS also informed the Court that there are 3327 seats in the private medical colleges out of which 2501 students have been placed as per their preferred choice. 826 candidates have been placed as forced placement and in the same manner there are 824 BDS seats out of which 620 candidates have been placed as per their preferred choice and 204 candidates as per forced placement. After going through the data provided, the Court directed vide orders dated 17.3.2020 and 28.4.2020 to revise the merit list, such that all forced placement candidates can exercise the option to either stay at their given institution or else be upgraded as per their merit. With respect to the candidates exercising this option, the Court was informed that out of the candidates 485 MBBS and 71 BDS students want to stay at their current college. The Court then directed that those candidates who wanted to be moved as per their merit should be upgraded and those candidates who did not respond as well as those candidates who did not agree with the placement methodology be placed as per their merit. This list was again brought to the Court on 29.4.2020. On this date the Court directed that all preference candidates on the basis of the merit list issued on 17.1.2020 for MBBS and 16.1.2020 for BDS should be given the option to be upgraded based on their preferences. Once again the list of 29.1.2020 was disregarded as it was totally against the merit. This exercise was concluded and placed before the Court on 4.5.2020, 5.5.2020 and 12.5.2020 when UHS was directed to finalize the merit list with respect to all candidates being the preference candidates as well as forced placement candidates.

7. Professor Dr. Javed Akram, Vice Chancellor, UHS informed the Court that on 30.4.2020 a meeting was held of the Admissions Board of the Adhoc Council under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice (Retd) Ejaz Afzal Khan, President PMDC. In this meeting it was decided that merit list issued by PMC on 29.1.2020 with respect to MBBS and BDS colleges was unfair, unjust and had compromised on the merit, hence the list should be revised and candidates should be upgraded strictly on the basis of the merit. It was also decided that there should be no further placement of candidates in Watim Medical College, Rawalpindi and Azra Naheed, Dental College, Lahore as the fate of these colleges is yet to be determined by the Adhoc Council. The Vice Chancellor submitted this statement in writing before the Court. He also explained that in order to save time as the admission process is a very lengthy exercise, it was decided at the meeting that the real problem was the merit list of 29.1.2020 wherein the process of upgradation was stopped and instead candidates from the waiting list were placed in the merit list thereby compromising the merit. At this time it was clarified that the Court had already disregarded the list of 29.1.2020 with respect to the preference candidates as well as forced placement candidates as a bare review of the list of 29.1.2020 itself shows that the merit had been badly compromised.

8. Throughout the course of these proceedings the Admission Team from the UHS along with Dr. Javed Akram have assisted the Court from the original record, stating the discrepancies and sharing the contents of the e-mails of the aggrieved candidates. As per the record, the MDCAT exam was held on 28.8.2019 and the result announced on 1.9.2019. Applications for admission were called for in MBBS and BDS programs online on 30.9.2020. On 4.11.2019 Respondent No.3, UHS displayed the provisional merit list of all candidates who applied for MBBS and BDS programs. This list gave all candidates a chance to see where they fall in the overall merit. Prior to calling for the three preferences, candidates were also informed that if they do not meet the merit of their preference they will be placed in order of merit. It is important to note that on 20.10.2019 the Pakistan Medical Commission Ordinance, 2019 was promulgated, establishing the PMC which took over the admission process. The PMC continued with the admission process which is governed by the MBBS and BDS (Admissions, House Job and Internship) Regulations, 2018 ("Regulations"). On 5.11.2019 candidates were required to state their three preferences in order of preference as per the procedure prescribed for public sector medical and dental colleges. Respondent No.3 prepared the 1st merit list on 22.11.2019 on the basis of given preferences. Where a candidate did not meet the required merit as per their preference, the candidate was placed in a college as per their merit with the least number of seats left vacant, that is the highest merit college available to the candidate. This process is computerized and accordingly the following merit lists were published.

MBBS

i. 2nd Selection List displayed on 6.12.2019
ii. 3rd Selection List displayed on 18.12.2019
iii. 4th Selection List displayed on 26.12.2019
iv. 5th Selection List displayed on 31.12.2019
v. 6th Selection List displayed on 10.01.2020
vi. 7th Selection List displayed on 17.01.2020
vii. 8th Selection List displayed on 29.01.2020

BDS

i. 2nd Selection List displayed on 6.12.2019
ii. 3rd Selection List displayed on 26.12.2019
iii. 4th Selection List displayed on 31.12.2019
iv. 5th Selection List displayed on 10.01.2020
v. 6th Selection List displayed on 17.01.2020
vi. 7th Selection List displayed on 29.01.2020

9. As per the admission process under the Regulations, which was being followed by the PMC, three important decisions were made for the purposes of admission:

i) Selected candidates were bound to deposit the prescribed fee in the online account of their respective college. Where a candidate failed to make the deposit of the fee their seat became vacant.

ii) Upgradation process was adopted only for those candidates who had paid the requisite fee.

iii) On 8.1.2020, PMC in its 4th meeting decided to stop the upgradation process and admit students from the waiting list. Pursuant to this decision, the list of 29.1.2020 for BDS and MBBS was published.

By this time a large number of complaints had come to surface where candidates felt that their merit had been grossly compromised. It was also decided by the PMC that students admitted by 31.1.2020 shall be considered final and no further upgradation shall take place and admissions shall be closed. This led to absolute confusion and uproar by the candidates, particularly those whose merit had been compromised by not upgrading them. On 11.2.2020 PMC was declared unconstitutional by the Islamabad High Court, leaving the Provincial Administration Committee with the daunting task of dealing with numerous complaints and finalizing the merit lists. On 13.3.2020 this Court directed UHS to re-adjust the merit of the forced placed candidates as per their merit. On 17.3.2020, the Court was informed that there are 3327 seats in private medical and dental institutions out of which 2501 students have been placed as per their preference choice. 826 candidates for MBBS and 204 for BDS have been forced placed by UHS. In order to resolve the issue candidates were given the option to move to a college of higher merit or to stay at their respective college. On 28.4.2020 the Court was informed that 485 MBBS candidates and 71 BDS candidates exercised their option, whereas 201 MBBS and 48 BDS candidates did not agree with the admission process in total. Dr. Allah Rakha, Team Leader Admissions, UHS also stated that 179 MBBS and 96 BDS candidates failed to respond within the given time. Therefore in order to facilitate the process, the Court ordered that those who had exercised their option to stay at the admitted college should be retained there and the rest adjusted as per merit. This is essentially because it is not the fault of the candidates that they were given admission in their respective colleges and that they were studying in the colleges for three months. This is the case of the present Petitioners, who state that they followed the process, deposited the fees and commenced with the classes in their colleges as admitted by PMC and UHS. Therefore, they are not at fault and now at this stage should not be made to change their colleges even if they are placed lower in merit. The contention of the Petitioners is justified, considering the ratio in the case "Chairman, Selection Committee/Principal, King Edward Medical College, Lahore and 2 others v. Wasif Zamir Ahmad and another" (1997 SCMR 15) wherein the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that where students are not at fault they should not be made to suffer the consequences of the wrongful decisions of the authority, being the PMC in this case. Hence candidates who exercised their option to stay where they are were retained and the remaining forced placed candidates were placed as per merit.

10. So far as the preferences candidates are concerned, they are the candidates who needed to be upgraded as per their given preferences as the Court ordered on 29.4.2020 and 4.5.2020 that they be upgraded as per their given preferences. Once the list was finalized it was posted on the UHS website on 5.5.2020 and selected candidates were required to deposit the prescribed fee within the due date given by the respective college. In this way a second list was issued on 8.5.2020 after necessary adjustments were made based on the decisions of the candidates. The merit lists have been finalized and 20.5.2020 was fixed as the cutoff date for completing the lists and filling all available vacancies. Consequently after the cutoff date of 20.5.2020 the admission process will cease and no further adjustment should be made, even for the purposes of filling vacant seats.

11. Throughout this process, the Court with the assistance of the counsel for the UHS, especially Professor Dr. Javed Akram, Vice Chancellor, UHS, and Dr. Allah Rakha, Team Leader Admissions, has tried to minimize the issues and rectify the merit lists to the extent possible. It is important to note that the admission process was almost complete when this Petition along with others and all applications under Order 1 Rule 10 of CPC were filed. Eight lists for MBBS and seven lists for BDS were issued and candidates were placed at medical and dental colleges. Many candidates had accepted admissions based on the merit lists issued and have joined their respective colleges. Therefore, prudency required to cause least amount of disturbance and ensure that the merit was upheld. In this regard the Adhoc Council of the PMDC, as constituted by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan also decided that the merit should be retained and the merit list of 29.1.2020 prepared under the orders of PMC have no effect.

12. The Petitioners before the Court, after participating in this extensive process of adjusting the merit are no longer aggrieved. They have been placed in the medical and dental colleges as per the orders of the Court and have no grievance. The Court also heard several applications under Order 1 Rule 10 of the CPC where many candidates sought permission to join the proceedings and be made party to the instant Petition. The Admissions team under Dr. Allah Rakha, Team Leader Admissions and under the supervision of Vice Chancellor Dr. Javed Akram were present in Court along with their counsel and the entire record for all Petitioners/Applicants. The Applicants' grievances were heard, the record was consulted and the issue was decided through separate orders. In this regard, it is necessary to highlight that there is a lot of misconception among candidates on account of the order of preference from the three preferences called for by the UHS vide its advertisement dated 15.9.2019. The advertisement clearly prescribes that candidates should enter the names of three colleges in order of preference and that the order of preference is final and cannot be changed. This condition was mandatory, therefore subsequent changes cannot be entertained. The UHS then prepared college-wise selection lists on the basis of the preference given. Where a candidate did not meet the merit of their preference they were placed in the next highest merit college, based on the number of vacant seats. The entire process is computerized and through the upgradation process candidates are shifted to the colleges as per their merit. It is important to note that the right of upgradation is given to candidates who have paid the total fee.

13. After following this process all candidates have been adjusted and the Court also ordered that all vacant seats be filled up in this process so as to ensure maximum admission. Therefore, contentions that the merit has been ignored or that candidates have not been placed as per merit, is a misconceived argument as candidates have been considered against their three preferences and considerations such as preferred city, closer to home, preference of some other college cannot be entertained as all candidates are bound by the same process and procedure and cannot be adjusted as per their desire or convenience. At this point, it is necessary to note that the admission process for the 2019-20 session has been delayed due to the challenges raised against the establishment of the PMC and subsequently Covid-19. The process started in September, 2019 and has taken until May, 2020 to be completed. Many candidates during this time joined their respective colleges and started their classes. These candidates, being the Petitioners, cannot be penalized as they followed the process and accepted admission as per the merit lists. In the effort to adjust the candidates and fix the merit, all candidates were given the option to either be adjusted as per merit or else stay where they were placed as per the selection lists detailed in the order of the Court dated 17.3.2020. Majority of the candidates exercised their option to stay where they were, which option was granted by the Court as the students cannot be made liable for the decisions taken by the PMC with reference to admission. For the remaining candidates before the Court, the issues are more of personal convenience rather than merit. The UHS or the Court cannot ignore the Regulations or the terms provided in the advertisement of 15.9.2020 which all candidates were aware of Admissions in MBBS and BDS is highly competitive and merit is considered down to the third decimal point. Hence the only factor which determines admission is merit and candidates cannot claim preference based on personal convenience.

Muhammad Zarak Rasool

Versus

National Database and Registration Authority through its Chairman etc.

J U D G M E N T

Date of Hearing	16.10.2019
Petitioner By:	Rana Zulfiqar Ali Khan, Syed Qamar Ali Rizvi and Mr. M. Ikram Ulllah Khan, Advocates.
Respondents By:	Mr. Hamid Rafique, Advocate for Respondents No.1 to 3.

Ayesha A. Malik J: This petition filed through the mother of Muhammad Zarak Rasool, a minor, the decision of Respondent National Database Registration Authority ("NADRA") allowing the father of the minor to unilaterally change the name of the minor from Muhammad Zarak Rasool to Muhammad Umar Rasool has been called into question.

2. The Petitioner is a minor named Muhammad Zarak Rasool whose parents were divorced on 11.8.2015. Thereafter his parents have had serious differences and disputes over the Petitioner, such that it compelled the mother of the Petitioner to file WP No.35849/2016 for the issuance of the minor's child registration certificate (Form B) from NADRA. By order dated 15.7.2017 the matter was resolved and ultimately the Form B was issued on 3.5.2017 showing Muhammad Zarak Rasool as the minor son of the Petitioner (mother) and Respondent No.4. Soon thereafter Respondent No.4 without disclosing any information to the mother moved an application for change of name of the minor from Muhammad Zarak Rasool to Muhammad Umar Rasool which was allowed without any deliberation, without any notice and without seeking the opinion or consent of the mother. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that proceedings in the different suits filed by the Petitioner for recovery of maintenance allowance and petitions for the issuance of guardianship certificate and for interim as well as permanent custody of the minor are pending before the Family Court and Guardian Judge at Lahore wherein the name of the minor is shown as Muhammad Zarak Rasool. By unilaterally changing the name of the minor from Muhammad Zarak Rasool to Muhammad Umar Rasool, the rights of the Petitioner in all pending proceedings are adversely affected. Learned counsel further stated that if at all any such change was to be made, it had to be made with the consent of both the parents. Learned counsel also submitted that reliance on Clauses (a)(b)(c) of the NADRA Registration Policy ("Policy") is totally misconceived because the stated Clauses allow change of name in NADRA record without disclosing disputes and pending cases where a name change is relevant.

3. On behalf of the Respondent NADRA, it is stated that an application was moved by the father, Respondent No.4 for change of name of the minor from Muhammad Zarak Rasool to Muhammad Umar Rasool with an affidavit to this effect. Clauses (a)(b)(c) under the Modification of National Identity Card (S/CNIC-S/NICOP/CRC) of the Policy allows for name change on the basis of the affidavit by an immediate relative. Hence he argued that the name change was done in accordance with law and no illegality is made out. Learned counsel for the Respondents when confronted on whether the mother of the minor Muhammad Zarak Rasool was issued notice or whether her consent was sought, stated that in terms of Clauses (a)(b)(c), the affidavit of one family member is sufficient to change the name.

4. The basic issue before the Court is with reference to the change of name of the minor by Respondent No.4 without the consent of the Petitioner mother namely Kosar Batool on the basis of an application moved by the father/Respondent No.4 before NADRA.

5. National Database and Registration Authority Ordinance, 2000 ("Ordinance") preamble stipulates that it is an Ordinance to provide for the establishment of the National Database and Registration Authority so as to facilitate the registration of all persons and the establishment and maintenance of multipurpose database, data warehouses, networking, interfacing of databases and related facilities. Section 9 of the Ordinance 2000 provides that every citizen in or out of Pakistan who has attained the age of eighteen years shall get himself and a parent or guardian of every citizen who has not attained that age shall, not later than one month after the birth of such citizen, get such citizen registered in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance. The primary purpose of this Ordinance and the authority thereunder is to register persons or classes thereof including citizens. Section 5 of the Ordinance provides that the basic purpose of NADRA is to develop and establish a system of registration to bring within its purview all persons and things as deemed necessary. Section 21 of the Ordinance calls for information regarding births and deaths, marriages and divorce. B-Form is the Child Registration Certificate ("CRC") for children under the age of 18 years. Hence in terms of its mandate NADRA must ensure that the correct data is entered with reference to the citizens and in this case in the CRC.

6. NADRA has invoked Clauses under Registration Policy (Version 4) which states as follows:

Modification of National Identity Card (S/CNIC-S/NICOP/CRC)

	a.	Original S/CNIC-S/NICOP/CRC of applicant AND
	b.	Affidavit as per format attested by Oath Commissioner/Certificate from Dar-Ul-Afta (due to religion change only) AND
	c.	Application of CNICF from any blood/immediate relative.
Exceptions /Remarks	i.	Above mentioned document(s) are for modification only, for correction in name no document(s) is required and every possible measure shall be used to facilitate applicant.
	ii.	Applicant neither can revert back to his/her previous name nor can modify name for 2nd time except female applicant (modified name with husband/father).
	iii.	Once applicant modifies his/her name, all dependents shall also modify their registration document (if required).

7. On the basis of the stated Clauses, Respondent No.4 moved an application and required that the name of the minor be changed from Muhammad Zarak Rasool to Muhammad Umar Rasool. The name change was done in a routine matter without notice to the mother and without consideration of the earlier writ petition seeking a direction to NADRA to issue the CRC in the name of the minor which is a clear indication of the troubled relations between the parents over the minor. NADRA granted the permission to Respondent No.4 without application of mind and without due consideration of the fact that there may be disputes pending between the parents over the minor. In this regard, the Respondent NADRA was obligated to call both the parents and get an affidavit from each of the parents on the name change request in the CRC. This prevents misuse of the Policy and ensures that both the parties are agreeable with reference to the change of name. In the event that there is a dispute between the parties, the same will become apparent to NADRA who should not allow the change of name unless the disputes are settled. By allowing change of name in the CRC through a unilateral process, disputes pertaining to a minor between parents are in fact prejudiced or adversely affected where the name has been changed without due notice to the parents. Under the circumstances the decision of NADRA to change the name of the minor from Muhammad Zarak Rasool to Muhammad Umar Rasool is declared illegal. However, if Respondent No.4 is desirous to change the name, he can always move a fresh application with the consent of mother which should be processed accordingly.

8. In view of the aforesaid, the instant petition is allowed and the NADRA is directed to revert the name of the minor in the CRC to his original name of Muhammad Zarak Rasool immediately and issue a fresh certificate accordingly. NADRA should also amend its policy on change of name so as to ensure that the policy is not misused through unilateral name change applications.

Ayesha A. Malik J: This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the instant Petition along with connected Petitions, as detailed in Schedule "A" appended with the judgment, as all Petitions raise common questions of law and facts. The instant Petition along with connected petitions essentially challenge the vires of provisions of the Lahore Development Authority Act, 1975 ("LDA Act") as well as provisions of the Lahore Development Authority Land Use Rules, 2014 ("2014 Rules") and consequently demand that notifications seeking payment of commercialization/conversion fee be set aside.

The case of the Petitioners

2. The Petitioners before the Court are either owners or tenants of properties who have been asked to pay conversion fee by the LDA under the 2014 Rules for carrying out commercial activity at their property. The Petitioners have either impugned demand notices issued by Lahore Development Authority ("LDA") for payment of conversion fee or have challenged public notices dated 28.12.2012 and 5.1.2013 issued in leading newspapers both english and urdu on the basis of which, a list was provided of commercial areas and the public was informed that they have seven days to have their properties converted permanently, for commercial use after payment of conversion fee. In some cases the Petitioners have challenged the vires of certain provisions of the LDA Act on the ground that they do not have the power to levy conversion fee as this power vests with the Local Government and in some cases the challenge is with respect to the authority of the LDA to demand a one time conversion fee.

3. The instant Petitioner is a school located within the Gulberg Scheme whose contention is that they have been paying temporary commercialization fee for the property for a long time and that there is no basis to charge permanent commercialization fee from the Petitioners. There are several other petitions filed by schools on the same ground being WP Nos.12224/16, 12222/16, 12225/15, 12216/16 and 12220/16. In other cases, the Petitioners state that they are engaged in commercial activity on commercial roads, that their property is located in a commercial area, hence there is no reason to convert the land usage as its usage has been declared commercial. In this context, the relevant areas where the business of the Petitioners are located within the Gulberg Scheme are MM Alam Road, Jail Road, Main Boulevard Road and Zafar Ali Road amongst others. The other locations in dispute are Iqbal Town Scheme, Multan Road, College Road and Lawrence Road which are all declared commercial by the LDA. In this context, the basic arguments of the Petitioners are as follows:

(i) The Petitioners have been doing commercial business at their properties for a long time and have been paying commercialization fee having all requisite permissions in place. Therefore there is no legal justification for charging a one time conversion fee under the LDA Act and the 2014 Rules for the purposes of carrying out commercial activity on their properties;

(ii) The Petitioners are located on a road or segment of road which has been declared commercial, hence there is no legal justification for charging conversion fee as the land usage is declared commercial. Hence the Petitioners should not be required to pay conversion fee;

(iii) The Petitioners have challenged the demand for one time conversion fee on the ground that they should be allowed to pay annual commercialization fee and that a one time lumpsum amount not only is financially not viable but that no quid pro quo is offered on the basis of such a huge amount charged by LDA;

(iv) That Sections 4, 6, 13, 14, 14A, 18, 19, 28 and 37 of the LDA Act ("the Challenged Provisions") violate Article 140A of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") which envisages a three tier system of government being Federal, Provincial and Local, hence are ultra vires the Constitution and should be declared so;

(v) That the impugned sections usurps the power of the Local Government in favour of the LDA which is not only against the mandate of the Constitution but also deprives the Local Government of its ability to raise revenue to carry out its functions under the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013;

(vi) That the quantum of the conversion fee prescribed is arbitrary, excessive and discriminatory;

(vii) That the 2014 Rules do not prescribe the manner in which the fee shall be charged rather a flat rate of 20% of the commercial value of the property is the required rate charged by the Respondents.

4. The argument essentially made by the learned counsel for the Petitioners is that LDA does not have the power to levy or collect a conversion fee under Section 28 of the LDA Act for land usage which is declared commercial that is where the land usage has been declared commercial, there is no legal basis to recover conversion fee. Further that if at all any fee can be levied it is only to recover cost incurred for conversion within a specified scheme. This requires proper disclosure by LDA of the cost incurred and the amounts statedly to be recovered. Hence it is argued that the conversion fee at the rate of 20% of the commercial value of the property is arbitrary, without basis, exorbitant and does not fall within the mandate of Section 28 of the LDA Act. It is also argued that there is no quid pro quo offered by the LDA for the fee they are charging. In this regard, the argument is that in order to levy a fee quid pro quo is mandatory. Reliance is placed on Collector of Customs and others v. Sheikh Spinning Mills (1999 SCMR 1402), Pakcom Limited and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2011 SC 44), Federation of Pakistan through Secretary M/o Petroleum and Natural Resources and another v. Durrani Ceramics and others (2014 SCMR 1630).

5. Learned counsel for the Petitioners also argued that LDA cannot charge a one time fee for permanent conversion as that not only goes against the quid pro quo requirement but also against the mandate of Section 28 read with Section 31 of the LDA Act. Learned counsel for the Petitioners also argued that the LDA Act read with the 2014 Rules seeks to vest the powers of the Local Government in a non-elected authority which is fundamentally opposed to Article 140A read with Article 32 of the Constitution and offends the fundamental rights of the Petitioners. Reliance has been placed on Lahore Development Authority through D.G. and others v. Ms. Imrana Tiwana and others (2015 SCMR 1739) ("Imrana Tiwana Case") to urge the point that these aspects of the matter have not been considered by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the said judgment. Learned counsel further argued that Local Government is an elected body which is responsible under the Local Government Act, 2013 (as the relevant law at the time) to essentially develop land use plans, classification and re-classification along with development of markets and zoning rules while considering public transport, roads and other infrastructure. In this regard, the function of the Local Government has been handed over to the LDA which not only is unconstitutional but deprives the Local Government from its ability to do its functions through its elected representative as well as to raise revenue to carry out its functions as contemplated under the Local Government Act. Hence they argued that there is no means of harmonizing the functions of an elected local government viz-a-viz the impugned Sections of the LDA Act.

The case of the Respondents

6. On behalf of LDA it is argued that the vires of the sections challenged has already been settled in the Imrana Tiwana Case wherein it was held that these provisions being the Challenged Provisions of the LDA Act are to be construed harmoniously with the functions of the Local Government under the Local Government Act, such that they are compliant with each other in furtherance of their functions and responsibilities. It is also argued that LDA carries out most of the development works in the Lahore Division with the help of WASA and TEPA and that the re-classification of various different schemes falls within the mandate of the LDA Act as well as the 2014 Rules; that the Gulberg Scheme was re-classified so as to facilitate the inhabitants of the areas and to ensure that commercial activity was restricted to particular zones to protect overflow issues and that the District Planning and Design Committee, Lahore has reviewed all recommendations made by the LDA with respect to the commercial and frozen roads which led ultimately to the Notification of 29.6.2011 issued by the Director General, LDA; that the LDA can charge conversion fee on the basis of Section 28 of the LDA Act read with Rule 28 of the 2014 Rules and as such no illegality has been committed by the LDA.

7. So far as the quid pro quo argument is concerned, it is argued that LDA provides a large number of services for the development and facilitation of its schemes, hence it can charge a one time permanent conversion fee. In this regard, learned counsel argued that the LDA maintains the LDA Fund and the Urban Development Fund from which it is required to provide various different services. In this regard, learned counsel argued that if there was no quid pro quo the properties being used commercially or industrially would be of no use to the Petitioners as the commercial or industrial value of the land is on account of the services provided by LDA for that area. During the course of arguments, learned counsel also informed the Court that the Lahore Development Authority Land Use Rules, 2014 have been repealed by the Lahore Development Authority Land Use Rules, 2020 ("2020 Rules") on the basis of which many of the pending Petitions have become infructuous as the 2020 Rules have once again introduced the concept of temporary commercialization, hence for those Petitioners who are aggrieved by permanent conversion, the option of availing temporary commercialization is once again available. However, LDA's counsel requested that the matter be decided on its merit to settle the long standing issue.

Issues before the Court

8. On the basis of the arguments made, the issue before the Court is primarily whether the LDA can levy a conversion fee in areas which are declared to be commercial; whether such a fee can be a one time fee and whether the fee charged is as per the requirements of Section 28 of the LDA Act. Also in issue are the vires of Sections 4, 6, 13, 14, 14A, 18, 19, 28 and 37 of the LDA Act with specific reference as to whether these powers should be exercised by the Local Government and whether the Imrana Tiwana Case considered the issue of financial autonomy of the Local Government, particularly with reference to the impact on revenue generation for the Local Government viz-a-viz conversion fees.

The Background

9. The dispute between the parties is essentially under the 2014 Rules, on account of the changes in policy with respect to commercial use of land and levy of fee for conversion in land use. In order to appreciate the dispute of the Petitioners, it is necessary to understand the changes in policies adopted by the LDA over the years with respect to commercialization that is commercial use of land and the levy of conversion fee along with the concept of change in land use.

10. On 26.12.1990 the Government of Punjab through the Housing, Physical and Environmental Planning Department issued the first commercialization policy for residential plots on the basis of which residential property could be converted into commercial property. On 27.3.1993 the policy was revised whereby commercialization was allowed subject to the permission granted by a committee, after due deliberation of the roads and streets which could be converted for commercial usage, thereby allowing residential plots to be used for commercial purposes. As per this policy commercialization fee was charged in lumpsum at the rate of 25% of the market value, in advance and it required an NOC to be obtained from adjoining properties prior to converting the land use of the property.

11. The Commercialization Rules 2001 ("Commercialization Rules") were notified for the first time on 2.7.2001 by the Government of Punjab, Housing, Urban Development and Public Health Engineering Department, Lahore under Section 44 of the LDA Act and Section 43 of the Punjab Development of Cities Act, 1976. As per these Rules, a commercialization committee could notify the roads and streets on which commercial activity was permitted and commercialization fee was charged at the rate of 20% of the value of the property, based on the valuation table prepared under the Stamp Act, 1899 or 20% of the average sale price for the preceding 12 months in case of rural areas. The Commercialization Rules provided for annual commercialization as well as temporary commercialization and also constituted a commercial committee to implement the rules.

12. On 17.3.2008 in exercise of powers under Section 44 (rule making power) of the LDA Act, Lahore Development Authority Land Use Conversion Rules, 2008 ("2008 Rules") were notified and the Commercialization Rules were repealed. As per these Rules, the LDA had to prepare List A, B, C and D which provided for the roads or segment of roads and buildings declared commercial as well as plots and buildings where temporary commercialization was permitted. In terms of Rule 9 of the 2008 Rules, LDA could deem a building, plot or land facing a commercial road as converted to commercial use after payment of conversion fee and an occupant of a building, plot or land facing the roads on List A could use the land for commercial use without payment of conversion fee. It also provided for temporary commercialization in terms of List C and D and required phasing out of temporary commercialization of buildings in List C. Rule 18 of the 2008 Rules provided for the fee for conversion of land use when residential or open areas were converted to commercial use. The rate prescribed was 10% of the value of the land as per the valuation table or the average sale price over the preceding 12 months where valuation table was not available. Important to note that until 2008 roads declared commercial could be used for commercial purposes, without any conversion fee.

13. The 2008 Rules were repealed vide Notification dated 10.02.2009 and the LDA Land Use (Classification, Re-classification and Re-development), 2009 ("2009 Rules") were notified which Rules introduced the concept of land use classification and essentially provided for the various different land uses which were permissible or prohibited. As per these Rules, land use was classified as residential, commercial, industrial, peri-urban, agricultural and notified area. A procedure was set out in Chapter III of the 2009 Rules for the classification of land use and in terms of Chapter IV, land use could be reclassified by the LDA and notified accordingly. An entire process was set out for reclassification of land use, based on the development and growth in the area, which required for the re-classified scheme to be notified. Fee for land use conversion was prescribed in Rule 55 and also provided under Rule 62 that a building, plot or land facing the roads mentioned in List A as converted for commercial use, however the land owners had to pay a conversion fee.

14. Consequent to the 2009 Rules, Notification dated 5.11.2009 was issued by the LDA, which covered 58 roads and segments of roads, which were declared as commercial, named in List A. This List A published on 13.11.2009 provided for the names of the roads and the segments, its starting point, its ending point with all dimensions and also provided for the type of commercial activity allowed on roads. Important to note that these roads were declared as permanent for commercial use. Hence their land usage was declared to be commercial. The LDA also provided for the list of roads, segments of roads, which were not allowed any future or further commercial use as List B. Some of the areas under dispute before this Court are named roads or segments of roads provided in List A such as Jail Road, Main Boulevard Gulberg, M.M Alam Road, Hali Road, Stadium Road, Shahrah-e-Quaid-e-Azam Road, Mall Road and Link Road which have been declared as commercial roads. In the same way, Model Town Link Road, Al-Madinah Road Township, Maulana Shoukat Ali Road, College Road and Zafar Ali Road are also listed as roads in commercial use. This Notification was amended on 29.6.2011 published on 25.7.2011 such that List A and List B were further amended to add roads which can and cannot be commercial in future.

15. On 1.2.2012 a Notification was issued under Rule 42 of the 2009 Rules providing for the land use reclassification plan of the Gulberg Scheme as approved by the Authority as per its reclassification plan. Rules 1 to 3 of the Notification provides as under:-

(1)	The general restrictions/terms of this re-classification scheme shall apply on the respective roads/commercial corridors and in Institutional Zones permitted for future commercial/institutional use, in addition to any restrictions specifically imposed on these roads (commercial corridors) and institutional zones.

(2)	Nothing in this notification shall affect the status of a building, plot or land, which has been converted on payment of the conversion fee under any law for the time being in force.
(3)	Subject to any legal restrictions imposed under any law for the time being in force, an occupant of a building, plot or land may use the building, plot or land for a purpose permitted under the Re-classification Plan on payment of the conversion fee.

Essentially this Notification re-classified land use in the Gulberg Scheme, as per the Reclassification Plan but importantly did not affect the status of a building, plot or land which had been converted on payment of conversion fee under any law. This meant that for land use, which had been converted and conversion fee had been paid, that property retained its converted land use. The Notification is silent so far as the named roads in List A are concerned, which suggests that they maintain their status of being declared commercial despite the reclassification exercise. It also required a conversion fee be paid for commercial use as per the re-classified plan.

Hence the dispute starts at this point when conversion fee was sought for conversion of land use as per the re-classification of a scheme.

16. The 2009 Rules were repealed by the 2014 Rules, which essentially maintained the same concept of classification and reclassification of land use. Fee for conversion of land use was prescribed in Rule 28 and Rule 31 deals with temporary commercialization. In April 2014, LDA also notified the Master Plan Rules, 2014 which provided for the master plans, its amendments and provided that these rules shall prevail in the event of inconsistency with the 2009 Rules. Some of the Petitioners before this Court have relied on the LDA Integrated Master Plan for Lahore 2021 dated 6.10.2004 to show that the land use is commercial since 2004 under the Master Plan. Most of the Petitioners before the Court are involved in commercial activity in areas where commercial use is permissible and they have been carrying on commercial activity by way of permanent or annual commercialization fee under the different rules and Notifications. Also important to note is that the LDA was given the power to carry out land use classification and re-classification by way of an amendment to the LDA Act by the Lahore Development Authority (Amendment) Act XXVI of 2013 ("2013 Amendment") . So prior to 2013, LDA could modify a scheme but change of land use, through re-classification was specifically introduced vide the 2013 Amendment wherein Section 14 of the LDA Act provides that LDA can notify a scheme by change of land use through classification or reclassification or redevelopment. In the same way through the 2013 Amendment in Section 28 of the LDA Act, an amendment was made allowing LDA to raise funds by imposing fees to meet the cost of reclassification and conversion of any property, amongst others. Prior to the amendment, LDA could only levy fees with the consent of the Government and a scheme could be modified as per the prescribed rules, in the same way as prescribed for the preparation of a scheme. Consequently the 2013 Amendment allowed LDA to raise funds without any approval from the Government and for reasons such as planning, expansion, classification, re-classification which by itself is general and means and suggests any and all functions of the LDA.

17. The Government of Punjab has now issued the 2020 Rules under Section 44 of the LDA Act and repealed the 2014 Rules. The 2020 Rules defines commercial area and commercial use of property and has maintained the chapter on conversion, commercialization and permissibility fee as well as temporary commercialization.

18. From the aforesaid, it can be said that the Government of Punjab and the LDA through various different policies and rules have regulated land use, its conversion and commercial use of the land. Over time, due to rapid development and population growth, there has been an increase in the commercial use of property and on account of this rapid growth reliance on the master plan eroded and instead LDA's land use rules governed conversion of land use. The Government of Punjab also issued the Punjab Land Use (Classification, Reclassification and Development) Rules, 2009 under Section 191 of the Punjab Local Government Ordinance, 2001 for the benefit of the Local Government which are similar to the 2014 Rules. These Rules still exist and are to be enforced by the Local Government to the extent of the notified controlled area which defines their jurisdiction. Consequently what has resulted is a haphazard manner of land use conversion and approval for commercial use of land which then necessitated the concept of re-classification by the LDA.

This essentially meant surveying the areas and notifying new usages as per the existing use of land in the area. Important to note is that historically LDA has relied upon different commercialization policies which allowed for the commercialization of properties on temporary or annual basis subject to certain conditions. At the time there was no land use plan guiding conversion and commercialization policies. Reliance was made on the Master Plan of Lahore. Commercial use of land was granted on need basis and was fairly random. LDA then introduced Lists A to D which set out roads which were commercial and roads which were frozen, so no further commercial activity could take place on these roads and roads on which temporary commercialization was allowed. The idea was to regulate land use conversion and streamline classified land use as declared by LDA. Ultimately through re-classification it increased the areas where commercial activity is permissible and required a conversion fee to be paid simply on account of the re-classification of the Gulberg Scheme. Hence the conversion fee under challenge in these cases, primarily arises on account of the re-classification exercise. During this time, LDA has also tried to phase out temporary commercialization, however it has not been successful in doing so. LDA has again provided for phasing out temporary commercialization through the 2020 Rules.

19. The shift in policies has not advanced the cause of LDA, that is to make the process of land use conversion for commercial purposes effective and more efficient. Under the 2008 Rules, there was no definition given to conversion of land use and instead Rule 9 provided for a deemed conversion status of buildings, plots or land facing a commercial road as mentioned in List A, being the list of land converted for commercial use. As per the 2008 Rules, an occupant of any building, plot or land facing a commercial road as notified in List A did not have to pay any conversion fee. Conversion fee was defined under Rule 18 of the 2008 Rules where LDA could levy the said fee for change of residential or open area to commercial use at the rate of 10% of the value of the commercial land. The 2009 Rules defined commercial area under Rule 2 as well as commercial use being land which is predominantly used for commercial purposes. Land use was classified as per its usage introducing several categories of land use which meant that LDA was allowing other than residential land to be converted for commercial use or other usage. The 2014 Rules defined land use plan as the plan that sets out land uses and defined master plan as the traditional method for presenting land use. A detailed process of reclassification of land use was carried out which was an effort to keep pace with the rapid urban growth. The dispute before the Court pertains to the fee levied on conversion of land use for properties covered under List A. Therefore in order to appreciate the case of the Petitioners, it is necessary to understand the concept of land use and its conversion as the entire dispute is based on this.

Conversion of Land Use: The Concept

20. The LDA Act defines conversion under Section 3 of the LDA Act to mean change in use of land from the one provided in an approved scheme or master plan. Scheme is also defined under Section 3(w) of the LDA Act to mean a project approved for urban development, re-development or renewal and includes larger area plan, areas specified and notified for specific use, traffic control plans, classification and re-classification plans, housing scheme or zoning scheme. Section 13 of the LDA Act requires the LDA to prepare schemes and provides for its requirements. Section 14 of the LDA Act provides that LDA can change the land use within a scheme through classification or re-classification or redevelopment as per the prescribed manner. Section 38 of the LDA Act provides that where a property's usage is converted to a different usage, then the one provided under a scheme or master plan or classification it must be with the approval of the Authority. The 2014 Rules defines conversion of land in Rule 2(c) to mean the change in use of land or property from the one originally provided in an approved scheme or the master plan. Master Plan has been defined to mean the traditional method for presenting a set of land usage, allocation and control measures in the form of a map in graphical form and is supported by written statement of goals and objectives, strategy, financial implications and policies for planning and development for an area and includes a structure plan, an outline development plan a spatial plan, peri-urban structure plan. The relevant master plans referred to are the Master Plan of Greater Lahore 1966, and the Lahore Integrated Master Plan 2021. These Master Plans initially served as the fundamental document responsible for urban planning and future growth of Lahore. However, with time LDA relied upon its land use rules and land classification and re-classification schemes as they were based on more recent surveys and represented a more accurate picture of land use. Land Use is classified as residential, commercial, industrial and institutional amongst others in Chapter II of the 2014 Rules. As per the 2014 Rules, Commercial Area means an area which is designed for commercial use as per approved scheme or master plan, or is being used as such in the established built up area. Commercial Use means land use which is predominantly connected with sale and distribution of goods and services. List A means roads or segments of roads, on which commercial use has been permitted under the Lahore Development Authority Land Use (Classification, Reclassification and Redevelopment) Rules, 2009 or Punjab Land Use (Classification, Reclassification and Redevelopment) Rules, 2009. List B means roads or segments of roads, on which commercial use has been prohibited under the Lahore Development Authority Land Use (Classification, Reclassification and Redevelopment) Rules, 2009 or Punjab Land Use (Classification, Reclassification and Redevelopment) Rules, 2009. The 2014 Rules prescribe the permitted land use of commercial areas amongst other land usage. It also requires LDA to prepare a land use classification map and prepare a land use reclassification scheme of a project area. The intent being to allow LDA to change land use permissibility as per the trending usage in the project area. As per the 2014 Rules temporary commercialization was not allowed by the LDA in areas permitted for commercialization in the master plan, re-classified areas or areas permitted for commercial use and roads mentioned in List A. This means that for these given areas LDA required land usage to be permanently converted by the owners against a one time conversion fee.

21. So in the scheme of planning and development the master plan sets out a general plan of the areas and their land usages. The land use plan set out the overall vision of the manner in which land can or cannot be used as it separates uses which are incompatible with each other, so that areas are earmarked with a purpose which is conducive to the environment and provides the required amenities for the given land use. This was necessary as schemes like Gulberg had changed from largely residential to permanently commercial. The land use rules, provided for the classification of land use and allowed conversion as per the rules. List A provided for the declared roads and segment of roads which were commercial as it reflected the permanent usage of the road or segment of roads. Essentially roads mentioned in List A were declared as commercial by the LDA since 2008 on the basis of the prevailing land use.

22. The challenge faced by the LDA through the process of devising policies for commercialization and then conversion of land use has been to maintain the conversion process as close to the master plan and the land use plan devised by them. However this has not been possible or practical as the increased pace of development put pressure on land use for commercial purposes whereas the aspects of planning, development and execution did not necessarily keep the same pace. LDA then entered into a phase of reclassification of certain areas where on the basis of the existing usage of land, they modified the land usage and developed a new land use plan. As per the 2014 Rules, in areas where the land use is declared as commercial, those who were carrying on business in these areas and have paid permanent commercialization fee or conversion fee under a previous policy or rules were made liable to pay a one time conversion fee, based on the reclassification of the scheme. Essentially there was no conversion of land use, but the exercise of re-classification became the basis of the demand for the one time fee. In the cases before the Court, this is primarily relevant to the Gulberg Scheme. Interestingly LDA is charging a one time conversion fee even though the status of land use has not changed by way of the reclassification scheme. That is to say the land use has not been converted as the Petitioners before the Court are covered under List A. Hence LDA is charging conversion fee on roads that have been declared commercial that is where the land use is declared as commercial. LDA claims that even though the roads have been declared commercial, the individual properties on that road are not commercial. This logic totally defies the concept of land use plan and land use classification as the only objective of land use classification and land use plan is to declare areas within which classified usage can take place. Hence there appears to be no logic in requiring the owner to pay for conversion of land use, as the land use has not been converted. However, in individual cases which relate to housing schemes or areas not covered under List A, LDA has to first ascertain whether the area is commercial or residential and whether in fact there is any land use conversion.

23. Land use essentially is a planning device which ensures that individuals use their land in the interest of the environment and for the surrounding area. The purpose of classifying land use, is to provide the permissible limits of land usage. Conversion of land use means that the owner of the land, takes permission to convert the land use from that which is prescribed in the land use plan or scheme. So land use conversion means that where the area is classified as residential or institutional permission is sought to use the land for a different purpose other than that prescribed. Where the land usage is as per its classification, then there is no element of conversion involved. This is why conversion must be as per the rules with the permission of the Authority. In the present cases, LDA seeks to recover conversion fee, where there is no element of conversion involved.

24. The argument given by the LDA that each individual property is required to be converted even though it is located on a road or segment of roads declared commercial (List A) is totally misconceived, as the reason the said roads were declared commercial in the first case is because the usage on that road was primarily commercial, hence the road was declared permanently commercial. This means that the land use for the area is commercial. Since the land usage was declared on the basis of existing usage of the land, the requirement of individual property owners to convert the land usage of property has no basis as their property stands converted with the declaration made by the LDA. In this regard, it is important to note that the declaration of a road as commercial is based on the usage of the property around that road and not per se the actual road itself. Hence there is no justification to demand a conversion fee on properties facing roads or segment of roads as named in List A. The entire concept of land use conversion is based on changing the use of land from the one provided in the scheme or master plan or land use plan. Hence where there is no conversion in land use, a conversion fee cannot be levied. The Petitioners have also challenged the quantum of the fee being contrary to the requirements of Section 28 of the LDA Act. Hence the scope and purpose to charge conversion fee is also relevant, to decide on the basic issue.

On the issue of levy of fee for conversion of land use

25. One of the justifications that the LDA has given for charging conversion fee is that it is responsible for preserving, protecting and developing areas which are declared commercial for which it requires revenue as it has to provide a large number of facilities such as roads, parking, water, sanitation including facilities such as fire fighting arrangements, water hydrants which are the requirements of any major urban city today. Hence the power to levy and collect fee is co-related to the basic function of the LDA which involves planning and development, to improve the environment which includes aspects of traffic, transport, water supply, sewerage, drainage, waste disposal and matters connected therewith. In this context, they allege that both services and quid pro quo are present to justify the fee. They state that Section 28 of the LDA Act allows LDA to raise adequate funds to meet its costs, hence conversion fee is a valid fee under the LDA Act.

26. The power to levy and collect fee is pursuant to Section 28 of the LDA Act which reads as follow:-

> 28. Rates and fees.– (1) The Authority may raise adequate funds to meet the cost of planning, expansion, execution, development, redevelopment, maintenance, zoning, classification, reclassification, augmentation, supervision, regulation and conversion of any property or any present and future scheme or any part of the scheme, by imposing rates, fees, surcharge, other charges and fines in the prescribed manner.
> (1a) The Authority may, in the prescribed manner, impose fee on change of land use owing to classification and reclassification.
>
> (2) The rates, fees and other charges for water supply, sewerage and drainage schemes] shall be such as to provide sufficient revenues
>
> (i) to cover the operating expenses including taxes, if any, and interest to provide adequate maintenance and depreciation;
>
> (ii) to meet repayments on long term indebtedness to the extent that such repayments exceed the provision of depreciation;

	(iii)	to finance the normal year to year extension of any of such schemes and to provide a reasonable portion of the cost of future major expansion of such schemes.

27. As per Section 28(1a) of the LDA Act, the LDA can levy a fee on the change of land use owing to classification or re-classification, to raise adequate funds to meet the cost of planning, expansion, development and re-development amongst other reasons as listed in Section 28 of the LDA Act. Section 3(k) of the LDA Act defines the word 'fee' to mean an amount levied by the Authority on the land, area, scheme or property on account of any privilege, benefit, services, transfer of rights and interests, issuance of a licence or permission or any cost and includes charges for provision of water supply, construction, maintenance and network of roads, drainage, sewerage and other services. So the conversion fee is for a benefit or service or for recovering costs which includes charges for water supply, maintenance of roads, drainage, sewerage and other services all relevant to conversion of land use. Section 28(1) vests power in LDA to raise adequate funds to meet the cost of conversion of any property. Hence what is fundamental to the levy of conversion fee is that it requires adequate funds to meet the cost of conversion. Although LDA can raise adequate funds to meet the cost of planning, expansion, development, maintenance, for the purposes of a conversion fee, all amounts raised have to be adequate to meet the cost of conversion. As per Section 3(i) conversion means change in land use from the approved scheme or master plan. So a conversion fee can be charged for change of land use and change of land use is on account of the change from the classification or re-classification of a scheme. Section 44 of the LDA Act provides for the powers to make rules for carrying into the effect the purpose of the LDA Act. Pursuant to these powers, the Commercialization Rules were issued vide Notification dated 02.07.2001, the 2008 Rules, the 2009 Rules, the 2014 Rules and now the 2020 Rules. Rule 28 of the 2014 Rules prescribes as follows:

28. Fee for conversion of land use. (1) Conversion of land use, by preparation, amendment in the master plan, by declaration of peri-urban area under the Lahore Development Authority Master Plan Rules 2014, and by reclassification under Lahore Development Authority Land Use (Classification, Reclassification and Redevelopment) Rules, 2009, Punjab Land Use (Classification, reclassification and Redevelopment) Rules, 2009 or under these rules, shall not entitle any person to use the land for such notified, converted, reclassified use unless the conversion fee is paid in a manner given hereinafter:

Land Use	Rates
I. On the approved roads as mentioned in list A of the Gazette Notification dated 29.06.2011	20% of the commercial value of the total area of ownership, as provided in the valuation table.
II. Upon Re-Classification under the Lahore Development Authority Land Use Rules, 2009, Punjab Land Use (Classification, Reclassification and Redevelopment) Rules 2009 or under these rules:
a. From Peri Urban, Residential, Agricultural Areas to Commercial.	a. 20% of the commercial value of the total area of ownership, as provided in the valuation table.
b. From Residential, Agricultural, Peri Urban to Industrial, Institutional, Intercity Service Area.	b. 10% of the commercial value of the total area of ownership, as provided in the valuation table.
c. From Institutional or Industrial and Intercity Service Area to Commercial.	c. 10% of the commercial value of the total area of ownership, as provided in the valuation table.
III. Upon Declaration of Peri- Urban Area:
a. from agriculture area to residential area	a. 5% of the residential value of the total area of ownership, as provided in the valuation table.
b. from agriculture area to commercial area
c. from agriculture area to Industrial, Institutional, intercity	b. 20% of the commercial value of the services.	total area of ownership, as provided in the valuation table c. 10% of the commercial value of the total area of ownership, as provided in the valuation table

IV. On permissible uses under rule 4(b), 7(b), and 8(b)	20% of the commercial value of the total area of ownership, as provided In the valuation table
(2) The Authority shall not levy conversion fee for the conversion of land use to an educational or a healthcare Institutional use if the proposed educational Institution or healthcare institution is: (a) owned by a philanthropic, charitable or non-profit organization; (b) is exempt from the payment of income tax; and (c) its audited accounts for last three years reflect that it provides services to the needy or the poor, free of cost or on no profit basis. (3) The Authority may allow payment of fee in four equal quarterly installments over a period of one year. In case of default, the fee already paid shall, subject to an opportunity of hearing, be forfeited and the offer of commercialization shall stand withdrawn.

28. As per the 2014 Rules, conversion fee applicable to properties located on approved roads or segments of roads was 20% of the commercial value of the total land. Annual commercialization fee is applicable only to properties located on non-approved roads or in frozen zones operating prior to the 1.2.2012 Notification issued by the Chief Metropolitan Officer, LDA, Lahore. This means that for areas declared commercial, a permanent conversion fee has to be paid, one time and for roads not declared commercial an annual fee is to be paid on a temporary basis as the area is not declared commercial. The question that arises is that once an area is declared commercial, how does a one time fee raise adequate funds to meet the costs of conversion and whether LDA is obligated to declare the costs incurred or likely to incur in order to justify the quantum of the fee charged. LDA has justified its fee structure for commercial use of land on permanent basis as being a regulatory fee, a service fee and a quid pro quo fee required for providing services both as regulator and facilitator for the given area. They argue that fee for conversion of land use is necessary as it is in the nature of a license granted by the LDA to use the land for a specific purpose. Also that LDA has to ensure that the area meets the requirements of the given land use, in terms of facilities such as road, network, parking, traffic flow and impact, utility services, water, sanitation, sewerage etc. Furthermore as it is a regulatory fee, it does not require any quid pro quo and the only test is to ascertain if there is a nexus between the fee charged and the administrative services provided. Reliance is placed on Collector of Customs and others v. Sheikh Spinning Mills (1999 SCMR 1402), Seven Up Bottling Company (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Lahore Development Authority (L.D.A.), Lahore through Managing Director, WASA and its Deputy Director Revenue (South), WASA, Lahore Development Authority and another (2003 CLC 513), Pakcom Limited and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2011 SC 44), Federation of Pakistan through Secretary M/o Petroleum and Natural Resources and another v. Durrani Ceramics and others (2014 SCMR 1630) and Trade Serve International (Private) Limited and others v. Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority and others (PLD 2017 Lahore 563). From the arguments raised it appears that the fee charged under Section 28 of the LDA Act is an all encompassing fee to serve the purpose of revenue collection.

29. In the cases before the Court, land use conversion is from residential to commercial, hence LDA seeks to levy a conversion fee for commercial use of the land. However, where roads, buildings, areas have been declared commercial, can it be said that a conversion fee should be charged for the purposes of development and maintenance of the area. Historically LDA charged a commercialization fee for carrying out commercial activity in a permitted area. The Commercialization Rules provided for permanent as well as temporary commercialization fee as per the users' requirements. In cases where permanent commercialization fee was paid under the Commercialization Rules, the land use stands permanently converted consequent to the said Rules. In the same way, the 2008 and 2009 Rules declared certain roads or segments of roads as approved for commercial use, permitting commercial activity on those roads. With the re-classification exercise, LDA required that a one time fee be paid for conversion of land use to commercial for all properties including those declared commercial permanently. They state that re-classification meant that the classifications were decided afresh, hence the fee has to be paid. They also state that while the road has been declared commercial the individual plots have not been converted, hence given that it is a declared commercial area, a land owner can convert its residential plot to commercial on payment of conversion fee. They also argue that once this fee is paid, no further fee will be required with respect to land use conversion. However, this does not address the issue raised by some of the Petitioners who have paid permanent commercialization fee under the Commercialization Rules. Why are they required to pay any further amounts as they have converted their land permanently prior to the re-classification scheme. Then there are other Petitioners, who have been paying annual commercialization fee in areas declared as commercial because the rules at the time allowed it. These Petitioners are required to pay a one time fee, in a declared area, where in fact there is no land use conversion. Some of the Petitioners before the Court have been doing business on these roads, by paying temporary commercialization fee and their main grievance is that they should not have to pay a conversion fee or in the alternate should be allowed to pay a temporary fee at a reasonable rate. Their argument is that as the land use has been converted by the LDA, hence there is no reason to charge a conversion fee. This argument is supported by the 2020 Rules which allows occupants of already approved property to apply for temporary or annual commercialization at the rate of 1.25% of the commercial value of the land as per the prevailing valuation table. Hence the entire case of LDA of charging a one time fee has itself undergone a change with the 2020 Rules as the 2020 Rules again gives land owners the option to pay annual fee in declared commercial areas. It also totally negates the argument that the one time fee is necessary to meet the adequate costs incurred by the LDA in developing the area to meet the cost of conversion.

30. Important to note is that once again through the 2020 Rules LDA has stated that temporary commercialization shall be phased out by 30.6.2024 which means that on approved roads (List A) conversion fee will have to be paid after 30.6.2024. Hence the basic dispute remains that is should the Petitioners pay a conversion fee, for land declared as commercial. In the first case, as already has been stated once the land use has been declared by LDA, no further conversion is required. As the only justification for the levy of the fee is revenue collection then it is necessary to understand the purpose and manner of revenue collection. Section 28 of the LDA Act requires LDA to charge a fee for conversion of land use to meet the cost of classification or re-classification and conversion. This means that LDA can charge a fee to recover the cost it has incurred to develop an area as per its land use. This stands to reason as the LDA is the Authority responsible for planning and development in the area of the Lahore Division by devising policies and programs for improvement in housing, traffic, transport, education, water supply, sewerage, drainage, sold waste disposal and connected matters. Hence it can raise funds to meet the cost of planning. In this context, LDA is required to execute its planning through itself and government agencies, hence it uses the assistance of WASA and TEPA amongst others to execute its plans. However, nothing has been argued or filed in support of the cost incurred with reclassification or the anticipated cost for which the one time conversion fee is being charged. Nothing has been placed on record to show what if any, reclassification costs were incurred, especially since many parts of Gulberg were already classified as commercial areas under the master plan or as per List A and List B, which means that these areas were already providing facilities needed for a commercial area, and reclassification, at best, necessitated enhancement of the facilities. LDA has stated that it provides maintenance of infrastructure for the benefit of property owners in the area which includes repair works, expanding sewerage systems, roads, under and over passes and additional infrastructure. They have relied on a self created document which claims to reflect the cost incurred from 2009 to 2015 specifically on tube wells, sewerage, water supply drains and filtration plants. They have also relied on their own list of infrastructure development in the Gulberg area. These documents do not detail the cost incurred or even planned. It also does not explain the rational to pay a permanent fee for conversion of land use which land was already converted and the re-classification exercise has not changed the land use. Consequently they have failed to establish the extent of the cost incurred in the re-classification of the Gulberg Scheme or any other scheme or road and have failed to show what further development is required on the declared commercial roads or segments of roads for which the conversion fee is required. They have also failed to justify a one time levy and its nexus with the conversion fee.

31. It is noted that under the repealed land use rules 2008 and 2009, LDA was required to keep a separate account for revenue collected from conversion of land use so that the revenue is spent on infrastructure development. LDA has not been able to show that it ever maintained such accounts and whether revenue from conversion fees have all been used for planning and development of the given areas from where fees were recovered. A valid concern that arises is that if LDA uses the conversion fee to develop a flyover or underpass or express way in some part of Lahore, which is not relevant to the area from where the conversion fee was recovered can that be referred to as adequate funds to meet the cost of expansion and development in any scheme or expansion of the scheme. As per the judgments of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, a fee is extracted from a specific purpose and for providing privilege to particular individuals or a community or a specified area. The distinction between a fee and tax is that a tax is part of the common burden, but a fee is for a specific purpose. So the fee will be for a specified purpose which must co-relate to the expenses incurred. Reliance is placed on 1999 SCMR 1402 (supra), PLD 2011 SC 44 (supra) and 2014 SCMR 1630 (supra).

32. In terms of Section 28 of the LDA Act, LDA must declare its costs for the conversion, classification or reclassification and can then seek to recover its costs through a conversion fee, where the land use is converted. Whether the fee is regulatory or a license fee, it can only be recovered for conversion purposes to meet the declared cost of conversion. As conversion of land use is a benefit sought by the owner, hence a conversion fee can be levied to recover costs. Accordingly the requirement is that LDA declares its planning, development and expansion plans with the expected costs on an annual or bi-annual basis not only to meet the requirements of good governance and transparency but also to justify the adequacy of the costs incurred and its nexus with the fee sought to be recovered. The fees paid under Section 28 of the LDA Act are amounts paid by the public for purposes relevant to the public. Hence they have a right to know where the money is being spent and what to expect from the LDA for the fees they have paid. However, in the cases before the Court, there has been no conversion of land use, as the roads have already been declared commercial and there is no declaration of the costs incurred the LDA for the fees sought to be recovered nor have they explained where conversion amounts have been spent. As the cases before the Court challenge specific demands for conversion fee under the 2014 Rules, the judgment is confined to the levy under the 2014 Rules and the LDA Act.

33. The issue becomes relevant when seen in the context of the LDA Act and the 2013 Amendment. Originally under the LDA Act, LDA Fund was to be established and the amounts deposited in the Fund were utilized by the Authority in connection with its functions under the LDA Act including payment of salaries and other emoluments. There were two heads within the Fund, Urban Development and Environment Sanitation in which amounts including collection from fees, rates and charges would be credited separately. With the 2013 Amendment, Section 27 was amended and 27(3) was inserted which provided that the LDA Fund shall be credited with all stated amounts including fees, rates and charges received by the Authority and that all these amounts with respect to services related to water supply, sewerage and drainage shall be credited in water supply and sanitation head and all other amounts under the Urban Development head. The amounts used under the water supply and sanitation head are to be used exclusively for the purposes of water supply and sanitation, sewerage and drainage and urban development to be used towards development of infrastructure. Similarly Section 28 was amended which allowed the Authority to raise funds to meet the cost of planning, expansion, execution development, re-development, maintenance, zoning, classification, re-classification, augmentation, supervision, regulation and conversion of property presently or need in future scheme and further LDA was allowed to impose a fee on change of land use owing to classification or re-classification. Under the original LDA Act, all rates and fees were to be charged with the consent of the Government and these rates, fees and charges were imposed to cover operating expenses, repayment and finance of any scheme or to provide for future expansion of a scheme. The 2013 Amendment allows LDA to generate revenue through conversion fee without any government control. It also enables LDA to charge conversion fee after completing the re-classification process, even though the land use did not change. This means that in areas declared commercial land owners are made liable to pay conversion fee, simply on account of the reclassification process. The net result of which is that the areas declared commercial remain commercial. This means that essentially conversion fee has become a major source of revenue for the LDA to pay for the various different infrastructure projects it undertakes. So the 2013 Amendment expanded the power of the LDA to recover rates and fees without any intervention of the Government, for a wide variety of reasons without actually providing for any accountability in the manner as to where the funds are used. The basis of the rates prescribed under Rule 28 of the 2014 Rules is also not explained in terms of costs incurred by the LDA or even in terms of adequacy. This amount statedly is deposited in the LDA Fund and can be used for urban development which means that its open ended and not specified on what urban development is and how it is related to conversion of land usage. Further that fees for water supply and sanitation works are collected separately and also are a part of the cost for conversion of land use without specifically stipulating whether the conversion fee raised from a scheme is actually used within that particular scheme. Hence LDA's argument that the conversion fee is used for maintenance, development and expansion within a scheme is not evident from the manner in which it maintains its fund or from the manner in which it has undertaken the task of re-classification.

34. Another aspect of the matter is that even though a lot has been said with respect to the utilization of the conversion fees for development, expansion and maintenance, the fact that the fee is collected one time, on a permanent basis in itself suggests that the collected amount does not necessarily represent the cost incurred for the purposes of development, planning or expansion or even maintenance of any scheme. In this context, LDA was specifically asked to explain how they have budgeted future expansion and plans within the scheme in the context of the fee that is being charged at the rate of 20% of the value of the property. Learned counsel for the LDA has argued that the Gulberg Scheme is a re-classification project where the land use was re-surveyed and re-planned to accommodate the growing commercial activity within Gulberg which originally was a residential area. However, given that LDA has been charging commercialization fee since 1990 under various different rules and polices, it does not explain the one time fee for areas already declared commercial. LDA has not disclosed as to what the cost of conversion has been since 2008 and how the charging of a one time fee fulfills that mandate for all times to come. It has also been brought to the attention of the Court that LDA charges other fees such as betterment fee, development fee and water and sanitation fee, meaning thereby that it is charging under different heads for specific purposes, which is part of maintenance and development. The Lahore Development Authority (Miscellaneous) Rules, 2014 ("Misc. Rules 2014") also sets out rates, fees and charges that the Authority can levy. These are as follows as per Rule 2 of the Misc. Rules, 2014:

Imposition of rates and fees: (1) The Authority may, by notification in the official Gazette, levy the rates, fees, charges, surcharge, penalties or fines in the area.

(2) In addition to rates, fees, charges, surcharge, penalties or fines specified in the Act or any other rules, the Authority may, in like manner, levy the following rates, fees, charges, surcharge or fines;

(a) transfer fee;
(b) placement of documents fee;
(c) permission to mortgage fee;
(d) power of attorney fee;
(e) copying fee;
(f) processing fee;
(g) no objection certificate fee;
(h) development charges;
(i) augmentation charges;
(j) water conservancy charges;
(k) emission charges;
(l) congestion charges;
(m) toll; and
(n) parking fee.

(3) The authority may, by notification in the official Gazette, increase or decrease the rates, fees, charges, surcharge, penalties or fines.

(4) For purposes of assessing the increase in the value of property for charging betterment fee in accordance with sections 23 and 24 for the Act, the approved assessor of the Authority shall assess such increase in the value of the property.

(5) The Authority may undertake development of infrastructure and may levy toll on such infrastructure and, for the purpose, the Authority may, in accordance with law, enter into a joint venture or concession agreement with private parties in accordance with law.

(6) The Authority may outsource or sublet the collection of rates, fees, charges, surcharge, penalties or fines.

(7) Where the owner of property or person liable to pay, defaults in payment of any rate, fee other charges, surcharge, penalty or fine, the Authority, Director General or the person so authorized in this regard may, subject to notice, take one or more of the following actions;

(a) withhold the transaction of the property of such person such as transfer or sanction of building plan till such time as the default continues;
(b) seal the property of such person;
(c) impose surcharge on the defaulted amount at a rate to be determined by the Authority; and
(d) declare the defaulted amount to be recoverable as arrears of land revenue.

Hence LDA collects various different fees and charges like development charges, augmentation charges which are also related to the same purpose as planning, development and expansion of a present or future scheme. Again I have found no explanation or justification for the levy of conversion fee to pay for services covered under the Misc. Rules, 2014.

35. In this context LDA supports the quantum of its fee on the ground that it is reasonably related to the estimated cost of expenditures incurred by the LDA and is likely to be incurred by the LDA for providing administrative and utility services in the area. Learned counsel argued that in terms of the case law, it is not possible for the LDA to work out arithmetical equivalence of the amount of fee that should be reasonably charged and the only criteria or basis is that the fee charged should be related to the expenditure incurred. It is also argued that LDA provides many facilities with respect to infrastructure works, utility services, waste management and so on, on the basis of which redevelopment schemes will require constant upgradation over time. Hence the fee charged is neither unreasonable nor illegal as the Petitioners have been paying temporary commercialization fee for the same reasons. Reliance is placed on Secunderabad Hyderabad Hotel Owners Association and others v. Hyderabad Municipal Corporation, Hyderabad and another (AIR 1999 SC 635), Shell Pakistan Limited, Karachi through Attorney v. Capital Development Authority through Chairman and 2 others (PLD 2015 Isl. 36) and Trade Serve International (Private) Limited and others v. Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority and others (PLD 2017 Lah. 563). It is also argued that quantum of fee is a policy decision which is not subject to judicial review. Reliance is placed on Pakcom Limited and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2011 SC 44) and Syeda Abida Hussain Imam and others v. The Province of Punjab through Secretary and others (2015 YLR 1522). However as already reasoned above, there is no basis to justify the rates and there is no accountability for the money collected as fee and where it is spent. This is totally against good governance, which requires a public body to be transparent and declare its costs and use of the fees collected. Therefore for the fee to be levied to cover costs under Section 28 of the LDA Act, LDA has to declare the costs, the development and maintenance works required or undertaken to recover the costs. In this context, Section 28 of the LDA Act cannot be used as a ways and means of generating revenue, to undertake projects which are made under the garb of general development and improvement. LDA has a specific mandate to plan and coordinate with government agencies for preparing a master plan to develop, operate, maintain water supply, sewerage, drainage with WASA and to plan annually for development programs and maintain planning controls and building regulations. Hence the purpose of levying a conversion fee has to be such that LDA fulfills its mandate and makes the necessary disclosures and declarations. Consequently the levy of conversion fee at the rate of 20% of the commercial value of the property is without any justification and against the requirements of Section 28 of the LDA Act.

On the issue of vires of the Challenged Provisions

36. LDA was established to provide a system of planning and development to improve the quality of life in the metropolitan area of Lahore which then became the Lahore Division. It was established to assist the Provincial Government and prepare schemes appropriate for urban development. The word "scheme" is defined in Section 2(w) of the LDA Act being a project approved for urban development, redevelopment or renewal and includes larger area plan, areas specified and notified for specific use, traffic control plans, classification and reclassification plans, housing scheme or zoning scheme, therefore the Authority plans and develop schemes and then implements them with the help of the government agencies. However, all this is done in aid of the Provincial Government and not to usurp the functions of the Local Government. This aspect was discussed by a learned Full Bench of this Court in Ms. Imrana Tiwana etc. v. Province of Punjab etc. (PLD 2015 Lahore 522) which concluded as follows:

> 95. LDA can prepare "schemes" under the LDA Act (section 13). "Scheme" means a project approved for urban development, redevelopment or renewal and includes larger area plan, areas specified and notified for specific use, traffic control plans, classification and reclassification plans, housing scheme or zoning scheme [section 3(w)]. The schemes are prepared and then executed by the LDA in the "Area," which means the Lahore Division [section 3(c)] subject to the approval of the Government. Section 13(5) specifically provides that a "Government Agency" (which includes a local government [section 3(m)(ii)]) shall not prepare a planning or development scheme within the Area except with the concurrence of LDA. Similarly, LDA has the power to prepare housing, building infrastructure services, commercial and semi-commercial projects (section 13A) or do land use classification (section14), make master plan (section 14A), or give direction to the local government to execute a scheme in consultation with the Authority, or take over and maintain any of the works and services in that area, to provide amenity in relation to the land which in the opinion of the authority ought to be provided and to enforce regulations on behalf of the Authority (section 15). General power to execute Schemes (section 16). LDA can declare any locality within an area to be controlled area and issue such directions for the prevention of haphazard growth or encroachments and unauthorized construction in such area (section 18). Power to remove sources of pollution (section 20). Imposition of betterment fee (sections 23 and 24). LDA enjoys the power to impose rates, fees, surcharges or other charges and fines (section 28). Extension of time and cancellation of approved schemes (Sections 34A and 34B). Punishment for offences (section 35). Conversion of property to different use (section 38). LDA Act is to override other laws (section 46). All these powers usurp the responsibilities and authorities devolved to the local government under PLGA and offend the constitutional mandate of Article 140A.

96. For the above reasons, the powers and functions of LDA under sections 6, 13, 13A, 14, 15, 16, 18, 20, 23, 24, 28, 34A, 34B, 35, 38 and 46 of LDA Act, 1975 to the extent that they usurp, trump, encroach, dilute and abridge the powers, responsibility and authority devolved on to the elected representatives of the Local Government System under Article 140A through PLGA are therefore, declared ultra vires Articles 9, 14, 17 and 25 of the Constitution and further declared to be offensive to Articles 32, 37(i) and 140A of the Constitution.

97. LDA, however, does continue to be a development authority of the Provincial Government for the assistance of the Provincial Government but it cannot assume jurisdiction or interfere in the political, administrative and financial powers devolved on to the local government through PLGA under Article 140A. It matters less if LDA Act has undergone amendment after the promulgation of PLGA. The constitutional mandate to devolve and establish a local government system, once devolved, cannot be usurped through subsequent collateral legislation. The Provincial Legislature has the power to alter or withdraw the devolved powers subject to the principles of subsidiarity and federalism discussed above but till then the said powers are protected under the vertical separation of powers introduced by Article 140A of the Constitution and no provincial or federal legislation can impair or impede the political, administrative and financial responsibility and authority of the elected representatives of the Local Government.

The august Supreme Court of Pakistan while hearing the appeal in the Imrana Tiwana Case decided as follows:-

54. The Province is under an obligation under Article 140A of the Constitution to establish, by law, a Local Government System and to devolve political, administrative and financial responsibility on the Local Government. Yet, in doing so it is not stripped bare of its executive and legislative authority under Articles 137 and 142 of the Constitution. The Provincial and the Local Governments are to act in a manner, which complements one another. The Constitution, therefore, envisages a process of participatory democracy, where the two governments act in harmony with one another to develop the Province. The authority of neither destroys the other. Article 140A cannot be used to make the provisions of Articles 137 and 142 either subordinate to it or otiose. One constitutional provision cannot, unless it is so specifically provided, override another and must be harmoniously construed together, as repeatedly held by this Court……..

55. The creation of a Local Government System, and the conferment upon the Local Government of certain political, administrative and financial responsibilities does not deprive the Province of authority over its citizens and deny it all role in the progress, prosperity and development of the Province. The creation of a Local Government System does not spell the end of the Provincial Government in the Province. To the contrary it strengthens the Provincial Government by entrenching democracy at grass root level.

56. That even after the insertion of Article 140A the Provincial Government would continue to have the authority to enact and amend statutes, make general or special laws with regard to Local Government and local authorities, enlarge or diminish the authority of Local Government and extend or curtail municipal boundaries. This power of amendment has, however, to be informed by the fact that if the Provincial Government oversteps its legislative or executive authority to make the Local Government powerless such exercise would fall foul of Article 140A of the Constitution. An excessive or abusive exercise of such authority would not be countenanced by this Court. It would be struck down.

74. The solution, therefore, lies in reading the provisions of the two statutes in harmony. The LDA Act, 1975 is to be regarded as an enabling statute. It allows LDA to act in support of and to complement the Local Government in the exercise of its functions and responsibilities. Where the Local Government is unable to act because of a lack of resources or capacity, or where the project is of such a nature that it spills over from the territory of one Local Government to another or where the size of the Project is beyond the financial capacity of the Local Government to execute; the LDA can step in and work with the Local Government. Economies of scale, spillovers and effectiveness are merely illustrative of the situations in which the LDA can act in the exercise of its functions to carry out developmental and other work and perform its statutory functions. These are not exhaustive. Life and time may throw up other situations and create circumstances which may warrant LDA action to be taken in consultation with the Local Government within the purview of PLGA, 2013. Closing the categories today will freeze growth and retard progress.

(emphasis added)

37. As per the Imrana Tiwana Case, the sections challenged before this Court being 4, 6, 13, 14, 14A, 18, 19, 28 and 37 of the LDA Act were upheld for not being ultra vires to the LDA Act or Constitution and the Court required that a harmonious interpretation be given such that functions of the LDA compliment and facilitate the Local Government. During the course of arguments, a lot was said with respect to the fact that the conversion fee collected by the LDA for Lahore in fact disables the Local Government from collecting revenue by way of conversion fee which revenue is relevant for the purposes of development and maintenance of the city. It was also argued that it impinges upon the financial autonomy of the Local Government as the LDA is to work in aid of the Provincial Government as well as the Local Government and cannot in fact use amounts collected under the garb of conversion fee for undertaking large infrastructure development projects which is the present case, as per the contention of the Petitioners. However, during the course of arguments there has been no representation from the Local Government on account of the repeal of the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 and the promulgation of the Punjab Local Government Act, 2019. Therefore this aspect of the matter has not been looked into in these cases with the help of the Local Government, therefore this question may be raised again in some other appropriate case by the Local Government. For the purposes of these cases, this issue stands decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the Imrana Tiwana Case which declared that the Challenged Provisions are not against the mandate of the LDA Act and the Constitution.

38. In view of the aforesaid, the instant Petition along with connected Petitions as detailed in Schedule A, are allowed in the following terms:-

(i) LDA cannot levy or recover conversion fee under Section 28 of the LDA Act read with Rule 28 of the 2014 Rules from roads or segment of roads declared commercial as per List A or otherwise converted for commercial use. The demand for a one time conversion fee is not justified in terms of Section 28 of the LDA Act and is against the mandate of the LDA Act. Consequently the demand notices raised and the public advertisement issued in newspapers both english and urdu, cannot form the basis to collect conversion fee from an area which is already declared commercial;

(ii) It is clarified that for the purposes of the Petitioners before this Court whose properties as per LDA's understanding do not fall in List A or in an area declared commercial or has not been declared commercial, LDA first issue notice to the Petitioner and grant a right of hearing to justify the demand for conversion fee based on land use classification;

(iii) For the purposes of Section 28 of the LDA Act where LDA seeks to raise adequate funds to meet the cost of planning, expansion, execution, development, re-development, maintenance, zoning, classification, re-classification, augmentation, supervision, regulation and conversion of any property in any present or future scheme, it must declare the cost so incurred, which it seeks to recover in the form of a fee with full disclosure of all amounts spent on development and expansion projects and schemes to maintain good governance and transparency and to establish the need to meet the costs for the fee that it has imposed;

(iv) The vires of sections challenged before this Court being 4, 6, 13, 14, 14A, 18, 19, 28 and 37 of the LDA Act have already been upheld by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the Imrana Tiwana Case, hence to this extent prayer of the Petitioners cannot be granted.

IN THE LAHORE HIGH COURT AT LAHORE JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT

WP No.61452/2021

Khan Construction Company

Versus

Punjab Province through Secretary HUD and PHED Government of the Punjab, Lahore etc.

J U D G M E N T

Date of Hearing	8.10.2021
Petitioner By:	Mr. Raiz Karim Qureshi and Mr. Farrukh Ilyas Cheema, Advocates.
Respondents By:	Mr. Akhtar Javed, Additional Advocate General, Punjab along with Sadam Hussain, Assistant Director in the office of Respondent No.2 and Jawad Kalim Ullah, XEN, Public Health Engineering Division, Multan.

Ayesha A. Malik J: Through this Petition, the Petitioner has impugned the act of the Respondents disqualifying the Petitioner's pre-qualification technical bid for the construction of Tuff Tile Drain in UCs 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 63, 64, 65 and 66, District Multan.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that it is a contractor registered with Pakistan Engineering Council in category C-4 who responded to an advertisement calling for pre-qualification bids for the above mentioned public work. The Petitioner's case is that the technical bid was rejected on 30.9.2021 without specifying any reasons and without giving the Petitioner an opportunity to improve upon its technical bid. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Respondents have acted against the mandate of the Punjab Procurement Regulatory Authority Act, 2009 ("Act") and the rules made thereunder that is the Punjab Procurement Rules, 2014 ("Rules"). Learned counsel argued that the Petitioner has been disqualified in violation of the Act and the Rules in order to allow the favourites of the Respondents to get the tender. Learned counsel argued that the Petitioner is a licensed contractor who is entitled to be duly considered for its bids, both technical and financial but the Respondents have failed to do so. Learned counsel has relied upon the order of this Court dated 5.10.2021 whereby the Respondents were ordered to open and consider the financial bid of the Petitioner subject to the outcome of this Writ Petition. Learned counsel argued that the Respondents have not considered its financial bid, hence strict action should be taken against the Respondents.

3. On behalf of the Respondents, learned Law Officer has raised several objections and has stated that the Petitioner has misled this Court on several grounds. He stated that in the first instance the subject matter of the tender is with reference to the construction of Tuff Tile Drain in UCs 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 63, 64, 65 and 66, District Multan. The Petitioner is a contractor from Multan. The bids were opened in Multan and all the relevant officers hail from Multan. He states that the Petitioner has deliberately concealed this fact and has failed to inform the Court that the bids were opened in Multan, hence this Court should have not entertained the instant Petition, as it was appropriate for the Petitioner to file this Petition before the Multan Bench. Learned Law Officer has also argued that alternate remedy under Rule 67 of the Rules was available to the Petitioner which the Petitioner has failed to avail. Finally learned Law Officer argued that the Petitioner is seeking relief which is beyond the mandate of the Act and the Rules. Learned Law Officer stated that prequalification process is clearly provided in Rule 17 of the Rules wherein the procuring agency will consider the prequalification documents on the basis of the evaluation criteria and determine whether the contractor is prequalified or not. In the event that a contractor is not prequalified, it is informed immediately and such a contractor may ask for the reasons from the procuring agency in terms of Rule 17(4) of the Rules. Therefore the Petitioner's contention that the reasons have not been given is incorrect as the reasons are provided for if the contractor asks for the same and in this case the Petitioner did ask for the reasons which were also communicated to it vide letter dated 7.10.2021. Learned Law Officer stated that even this fact has been withheld by the Petitioner. Learned Law Officer has also argued that in terms of Rule 38(2)(a) of the Rules single stage two envelopes bidding requires the bidder to provide two envelopes marked as ‘financial proposal’ and ‘technical proposal’. The procuring agent first evaluates the technical proposal and if the contractor does not meet the evaluation criteria, it is rejected. The financial proposal can only be opened if the technical proposal has been accepted. Learned Law Officer stated that there is no requirement under the mandate of the law to discuss the technical evaluation or to provide reasons on the spot rather the Petitioner was required to ask for the reasons which it eventually did. Learned Law Officer argued that by misleading the Court, the Petitioner now seeks the implementation of order which is not possible under the mandate of the law as the relief sought by the Petitioner is beyond the scope of the Petitioner’s entitlement.

4. Heard and record perused. The basic dispute between the parties is with regard to the procedure followed by the Respondents for the single stage two envelope tender notice with respect to the bid for the construction of Tuff Tile Drain in UCs 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 63, 64, 65 and 66, District Multan. The Punjab Procurement Regulatory Authority Act, 2009 establishes the Procurement Regulatory Authority for regulating the procurement of goods, services and works in the public sector and for matters connected therewith. In terms of Section 26 of the Act, the Government may, by notification, make rules for carrying out the purposes of the Act. In terms of Section 27, subject to the provisions of the Act and the rules, the Authority may make regulations for giving effect to the provisions of the Act. The Punjab Procurement Rules, 2014 set out a detailed procedure to be followed with respect to the procurement.

5. In terms of Rule 17 of the Rules, the prequalification process requires the procuring agent to provide for all instructions for the submission of prequalification documents, to provide the evaluation criteria, list of documentary evidence required by contractors to demonstrate their respective qualifications and other information as per the criteria set out by the procuring agency. In terms of Rule 17(3) of the Rules, the procuring agent must promptly inform the contractor who has applied for prequalification as to whether or not it has been prequalified and only on the request of the applicant provide for a list of contractors who have been prequalified. Sub Section 4 provides that the procuring agent shall on the request of the bidder communicate to the contractor, who has not been prequalified, the reasons for not prequalifying the contractor. Sub Section 5 requires that only prequalified contractors shall be entitled to participate in procurement proceedings. As per this Section, prequalification is required on the basis of the criteria prescribed by the procuring agent. The procuring agent is required to inform the contractors of whether or not they have been prequalified. Rule 17(3) merely requires that the contractor is informed as to whether it has been prequalified or not and therefore the procuring agent is not required under Rule 17 to provide for reasons of disqualification. In the event that a bidder wants to know the reasons, it can apply to the procuring agent for the reasons which the procuring agent shall then communicate to the said bidder. Rule 38 is relevant to the dispute. Rule 38(2) provides for the procedure for selection of contractors. As per Rule 38, there are three methods to select a contractor, either through single stage two envelope bidding or through two stage bidding or through two stage two envelope bidding. The procuring agent specifies the procedure for carrying out the bidding process and accordingly the relevant procedure is adopted. In this case, it is a single stage two envelope bidding process which selects the contractor.

6. As per Rule 38(2)(a), single stage two envelopes bidding process can be used for the procurement of goods where the bids are evaluated on technical and financial grounds. As per Rule 38(2)(a) of the Rules, the applicant shall provide two envelopes marked as financial proposal and technical proposal. The technical proposal shall be opened in the first instance and the financial proposal shall be retained unopened by the procuring agent. The procuring agent shall first evaluate the technical proposal and shall reject any proposal which does not conform to the specified requirements. Rule 38(2)(a) and (v) of the Rules specifically provides that during technical evaluation no amendment in the technical proposal shall be permitted. Rule 38(2)(a)(v)(vi) provides that after the evaluation and approval of the technical proposals, the financial proposals of the technically accepted bid shall be opened. So far as the financial proposals of the technically non-responsive bids are concerned, they remain unopened and will be returned to the applicant on the expiry of the grievance period or the decision on a complaint, if any, which can be filed by the non-responsive bidder. Therefore in terms of the prescribed procedure, the applicant will provide two envelopes for bidding, one contains its technical bid and the other its financial bid. The procuring agent will first open the technical bid and immediately see whether the applicant meets the technical requirements on the basis of the criteria given. In the event that the applicant does not meet the requirements, the bid will be rejected there and then and the applicant is not given any opportunity to amend the technical proposal. Rule 38(2)(a)(iv) and (v) does not prescribe that any reasons could be given rejecting the technical bid. When read with Rule 17, with reference to prequalification of the contractor, it appears that at the stage of the prequalification, a bidder is merely to be informed whether it meets the prequalification requirements or not. In the event that the bidder is desirous to know the reasons, it must move an application seeking the reasons why it is not qualified. Important to note is that against this decision remedy is available to the bidder under Rule 67 which provides as follows:

67. Redressal of grievances by the procuring agency

(1) The procuring agency shall constitute a committee comprising of odd number of persons, with proper powers and authorizations, to address the complaints of bidders that may occur prior to the entry into force of the procurement contract.

(2) Any bidder feeling aggrieved by any act of the procuring agency after the submission of his bid may lodge a written complaint concerning his grievances not later than [ten days] after the announcement of the bid evaluation report.

(3) The committee shall investigate and decide upon the complaint within fifteen days of the receipt of the complaint.

(4) Mere fact of lodging of a complaint shall not warrant suspension of the procurement process.

7. Learned counsel for the Petitioner has repeatedly stated that since this is not submission of a bid as the bidding process has to be completed wherein technical and financial aspects have to be considered, hence remedy of Rule 67 is not available to it. However, this understanding of Rule 67 is totally misconceived. As per Rule 67, any bidder feeling aggrieved by any act of the procuring agent after submission of its bid may lodge a written complaint not later than 10 days after the announcement of the bid evaluation report. This means that where a bidder participates in a single stage two envelopes bidding procedure and is technically disqualified, remedy under Rule 67 is available to such bidder to file its complaint not later than 10 days after it has asked for the reasons for rejection of his technical bid from the procuring agent.

8. In this regard, it is important to note that single stage two envelope bidding process is designed, such that the bidders submit two envelopes simultaneously, one showing the technical proposal and the second containing the financial proposal. The procuring agent first evaluates the technical proposal without reference to the financial proposal or the price and bidders who do not conform to the technical requirements as specified are rejected being deficient. The basic difference between the single stage two envelope bidding and the two stage bidding is that in the single stage bidding procuring agent is clear about its technical requirements and needs to evaluate price proposal of those bidders who are technically sound and meet the requirements. However, where it is two stage bidding process, in that case the bidders can be given an opportunity to meet the technical requirements which are prescribed under the Rules in terms of Rule 38(2)(b) and (c). In the two stage process, there is room to improve and discuss technical requirements whereas in the single stage, the technical requirements are specific and need to be met with.

9. In this case the tender notice clearly provides that the tender documents will be provided for the single stage two envelope bidding. The bidding shall be a single package consisting of the technical and financial proposal. The bidding took place in Multan at Raza Hall defunct Zila Council, Multan on 27.9.2021 at 2.00 PM and the technical bids were opened on the same day. The Petitioner participated and was informed on 30.9.2021 that its technical bid did not meet the criteria. The technical evaluation committee notified by the Chief Engineer (South), Punjab, PHE Department, unanimously did not qualify the Petitioner in its meeting held on 29.9.2021. As per the report filed, the Petitioner's technical bid was deficient in terms of experience, in terms of requirements of personnels and also in terms of its ability to establish its financial soundness. The Petitioner then applied on 7.10.2021 for the reasons for rejection of its technical bid and was informed of the same on the same day being 7.10.2021. Interestingly the Petition was filed on 4.10.2021 and on 5.10.2021 the Petitioner stated that it did not know the reasons as to why its technical bid was rejected and therefore it should be given an opportunity to participate in the financial bidding process as its bid has been submitted.

10. The filing of the Petition and the arguments made by the Petitioner are totally misconceived and against the mandate of the law. The Petitioner was well aware of the fact that in terms of Rule 38(2)(a) read with Rule 17 of the Rules, the Petitioner had to apply to the procuring agent for the reasons why its proposal was rejected. The Petitioner did file its application and was communicated the reasons, yet in an attempt to have its financial bid considered, the Petitioner misrepresented itself before this Court and misstated the facts so that it could get an opportunity to have its financial bid considered notwithstanding the fact that it was technically deficient. During the course of arguments, it appears that there are two relevant facts which the Petitioner failed to mention even today to mislead this Court. In the first instance the Petitioner has insisted that the offices of the Respondents are at Lahore which are relevant to the dispute at hand being Respondent No.2, Chief Engineer (Sought), Punjab Public Health Engineering Department, Lahore and Respondent No.1, Secretary HUD and PHE Department, whereas the record shows that the bid was to take place in Multan and all communications between the Petitioner and the Public Health Engineering Department have been done through the Multan office. Hence the Petitioner filed this Petition and impleaded the Secretary, HUD and PHE Department, Lahore who is not relevant to the dispute at hand, simply so that its Petition should be fixed at Lahore. Although this Court may exercise constitutional jurisdiction at the Principal Seat in Lahore on all and any matters, the Petitioner is not at liberty to mislead the Court nor is the Petitioner at liberty to misstate the facts. The second factual misrepresentation by the Petitioner is with respect to the procedure adopted by the Respondents. The Petitioner participated in the single stage two envelope procedure for the bidding of construction of Tuff Tile Drain in various UCs of District Multan. The Petitioner therefore for the purposes of the prequalification of its technical bid is governed not only by the process set out under Rule 38(2)(a) of the Rules but is also governed by the dispute resolution mechanism provided under Rule 67. The Petitioner deliberately and with malafide intent has misled the Court by insisting that due procedure was not followed whereas the record as produced by the learned Law Officer shows that the procedure was followed in terms of the Act and the Rules and that the Petitioner was technically deficient and could not have its financial proposal considered. During the course of arguments today, the Petitioner was aware of its technical deficiencies on the basis of which the Petitioner's technical proposal was rejected yet it failed to mention the same and it is only when confronted with the documents provided by the learned Law Officer, that this fact was admitted.

11. From the aforesaid, it appears that the Petitioner has used this Court for its own benefit in a manner which is not contemplated under the law but also against the concept of a single stage two envelope bidding process. At the very outset, the Petitioner was aware when providing its technical and financial proposal that this is a single stage bidding process which means that if the technical bid of the Petitioner is rejected, its financial bid cannot be considered. Moreover the Petitioner was aware that against the rejection of its technical bid, the Petitioner may ask for the reasons from the Respondents. During the pendency of the Petition, the Petitioner did apply for the reasons and was informed. The Petitioner' remedy was before the Grievance Committee yet by abusing the process of law, the Petitioner sought to have its financial proposal considered by filing this Petition. Even today learned counsel for the Petitioner has insisted that its financial bid be considered which is totally against the mandate of the law and the single stage two envelope bidding process. Hence the Petitioner is directed to pay cost in the sum of Rs.50,000/- for wasting the time of the Court and abusing the process of the Court. This amount shall be deposited with the Dispensary of the Lahore High Court Bar Association, within one week's time positively.

12. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. The instant Petition is dismissed.

Versus

Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Revenue Division, Islamabad etc.

J U D G M E N T

Date of Hearing	13.10.2021
Petitioner By:	Mr. Salman Akram Raja and Mr. Arslan Riaz, Advocates.
Respondents By:	Syed Zain ul Abidien Bokhari, Advocate

Ayesha A. Malik J: Through this Petition, the Petitioner has challenged the proceedings under Section 161(3) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") pursuant to which notices dated 7.1.2021, 25.1.2021, 2.3.2021, 10.3.2021 and 25.3.2021 were issued by the Respondents and seeks a declaration that the stated notices be declared illegal and of no lawful authority.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that it has been issued show cause notices and reminders under Section 161 of the Ordinance with respect to the tax year 2014. The Respondents have also rejected the Petitioner's plea of Section 174(3) of the Ordinance vide notice dated 25.3.2021. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the tax year 2014 came to an end on 31.12.2013 for the Petitioner company. As per the impugned notices, the Petitioner has been asked to provide documentary evidence of certain transactions and details of payments called for in the show cause notices. Learned counsel argued that in terms of Section 174(3) of the Ordinance, the taxpayer is to maintain accounts and documents for six years after the end of the tax year. States that six year period expired on 31.12.2019 for the Petitioner company with reference to the tax year 2014 and therefore the Petitioner in terms of Section 174(3) of the Ordinance is not required to maintain any accounts or documents which are now being asked for by the Respondents. In this regard, learned counsel for the Petitioner has placed reliance on Maple Leaf Cement Factory Ltd. v. The Federal Board of Revenue and others (2016 PTD 2074) as well as Habib Bank Ltd v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Revenue Division and 5 others (2013 PTD 1659).

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of Respondents. Learned counsel argued that the provisions of Section 174(3) of the Ordinance do not bar proceedings initiated under Section 161 of the Ordinance. Learned counsel further argued that the issue in question with respect to the tax year 2014 is about failure to pay tax which can be investigated by the department at any given time. He argued that the limitation period to maintain the record is for the purposes of assessment or any other proceedings which does not include the incidence of recovery of tax. Learned counsel further argued that limitation under Section 174 of the Ordinance with reference to maintaining of documents and accounts does not mean or suggest that proceedings under Section 161 of the Ordinance cannot continue or that the said proceedings should be quashed. He has also placed reliance on 2016 PTD 2074 (supra) and D.G. Khan Cement Co. Ltd. through Chief Financial Officer and others v. Federal Board of Revenue through Chairman and 5 others (2020 PTD 2111).

4. Heard and record perused. The basic dispute of the Petitioner is with reference to the impugned notices and reminders issued by the Respondents under Section 161 of the Ordinance. In terms of the notices issued under Section 161(1A) of the Ordinance, the Respondents have sought from the Petitioner documentary evidence of three sets of transactions and party-wise detail of payments made. The Petitioner has provided an excel sheet of all payments made, however the Respondents seek documentary evidence for which they have issued the impugned notices along with reminders dated 7.1.2021, 25.1.2021, 2.3.2021, 10.3.2021 and 25.3.2021. The relevant tax year is 2014 and the period in question is from 1.1.2013 to 31.12.2013. The Petitioner informed the Respondents of their obligation to maintain the record for a period of six years under Section 174 of the Ordinance which matter was also disregarded by the Respondents vide notice dated 25.3.2021.

Hence they continued to pursue their request for documentary evidence by terming the objections raised by the Petitioner as unconvincing and not relevant.

5. Section 174 of the Ordinance is reproduced as under:

> 174. Records. -- (1) Unless otherwise authorised by the Commissioner, every taxpayer shall maintain in Pakistan such accounts, documents and records as may be prescribed.
>
> (2) The Commissioner may disallow [or reduce] a taxpayer's claim for a deduction if the taxpayer is unable, without reasonable [cause], to provide a receipt, or other record or evidence of the transaction or circumstances giving rise to the claim for the deduction.
>
> (3) The accounts and documents required to be maintained under this section shall be maintained for [six] years after the end of the tax year to which they relate [:]
>
> [Provided that where any proceeding is pending before any authority or court the taxpayer shall maintain the record till final decision of the proceedings:
>
> Explanation. – Pending proceedings include proceedings for assessment or amendment of assessment, appeal, revision, reference, petition or prosecution and any proceedings before an Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee.]
>
> [(4) For the purpose of this section, the expression "deduction" means any amount debited to trading account, manufacturing account, receipts and expenses account or profit and loss account.]
> [(5) The Commissioner may require any person to install and use an Electronic Tax Register of such type and description as may be prescribed for the purpose of storing and accessing information regarding any transaction that has a bearing on the tax liability of such person.]

In terms of this Section, a taxpayer is required to maintain documents and accounts for a period of six years after the end of the tax year to which they relate unless there are pending proceedings before the authority or court where the tax payer may be required to produce the accounts or documents. Pending proceedings mean proceedings for assessment or amendment on assessment, appeal, revision, reference petition or prosecution as the case may be. In this case admittedly there is no pending proceeding. Instead the Petitioners were issued notices under Section 161 of the Ordinance wherein a person who fails to collect tax or deduct tax can be made liable to pay that tax and no recovery can be made unless they are not given an opportunity of being heard. In this case, the Petitioner has been asked to explain or demonstrate the deposit of tax with respect to the certain payments for which the Petitioner provided a summary of the payments made through an excel sheet. However the Respondents now seek documentary evidence against which the Petitioner has taken the plea of limitation under Section 174(3) of the Ordinance.

6. The matter in issue has been considered by the Hon'ble Sindh High Court in 2013 PTD 1659 (supra) wherein it has held that:

> 20. As noted above, the central issue raised is that of limitation. Are the notices, and impugned action, under section 161 barred by limitation?. The issue of limitation can arise in three ways: (a) where there is an express time bar, imposed by statute; (b) where such a bar can or is to be inferred from and on a proper reading and interpretation of the relevant provisions; or (c) where the action has been taken beyond a reasonable period of time. There is of course no express time limit within which action under section 161 must be taken, so the first possibility does not arise. The petitioners' case rested primarily on the second possibility; on a proper reading of the various provisions including in particular section 161 and 174, such a bar had or ought to be inferred. The third possibility was also canvassed but very much as a secondary submission, without prejudice to the main case. Clearly, the three possibilities are distinct. However, there is one point of commonality. If any one of them is found to exist or apply, then the impugned action cannot be taken at all beyond the period identified. This, after all, is what is meant by the action being barred by limitation.

The Court concluded that:

> 32. Having carefully considered the matter, and in light of the discussion in the foregoing paras, we are of the view that the rule laid down by the Supreme Court in Pakistan Mobile is applicable as much to the 2001 Ordinance as it was in respect of the 1979 Ordinance. Therefore, as held by the Supreme Court, there can be no period of limitation or time bar for action under and in terms of section.

34. To this question, our answer would be in the affirmative. In our view, section 161, on its proper interpretation and application, entails that even though there is no period of limitation, a point in time must eventually be reached such that if action is to be taken thereafter, this must be properly justified by the Commissioner. In other words, beyond the stipulated point in time, the onus would lie on the Commissioner to show why action is being taken belatedly and if he fails to discharge this onus, then the proceedings would be liable to be set aside. It is important to keep in mind that there is no limitation involved here. The Commissioner is not barred from taking action under section 161 after the stipulated point in time. But he does then carry the onus of justifying the delay in taking action. There may be a superficial similarity between what we say here and a rule that states that action must be taken within a reasonable period, but this is not so. There is a material difference. The rule of the reasonable period (as enunciated and applied, e.g., by the Delhi High Court in the cited decision or this Court in the cases of Said Ghani and Kamran Model Factory or endorsed in Agha's Supermarket is in the end a rule of limitation. Action beyond the period is barred. What we enunciate here raises no such bar.

36. For the foregoing reasons, we are of the view that such a time related limiting factor does exist in relation to the exercise of powers under section 161, although it is not of course, a bar of limitation as such. This brings us to the next question: what is the point in time, beyond which the Commissioner, if he is to act at all, must justify the taking of action? Where does the, dividing time line lie, beyond (but not before) which the Commissioner carries the onus that he must discharge? In our view, it is in answer to this question that section 174 becomes relevant. If the Commissioner takes action under section 161 for a failure to deduct tax, and the amount from which the deduction had to be made was relatable to the deducting authority's income (in the manner explained in para 29 above) then any such action taken beyond the period up to which the deducting authority had to maintain its books of account, etc. under section 174 would require proper justification. The onus would then be on the Commissioner to explain why action was being taken belatedly. If there is a proper justification, then the onus would stand discharged and the action would be sustainable in law (subject of course, to any other defences available to the deducting authority). If however, there is no proper justification, then the onus would not be discharged and the action would be liable to be set aside. The reason why the time fixed for purposes of section 174 provides the necessary dividing time line is as canvassed by learned counsel for the petitioners. Beyond that time, in law and for purposes of the 2001 Ordinance, the deducting authority/taxpayer would not be under any obligation to maintain the books of account, etc. The opportunity of hearing envisaged by section 161(1A), which is mandatory, may well become illusory. But by reason of section 174, it is not for the deducting authority/taxpayer to show that this is so once the period stated in this section has elapsed. Rather, it would be for the Commissioner to justify his belated action. The onus would lie on him and not the other way around. It is pertinent to note that section 162 has no equivalent to subsection (1A) of section 161. This of course does not mean that the primary taxpayer is not to be given an opportunity of hearing. However, the strong language employed in subsection (1A) ("No recovery under subsection (1) shall be made ...") does suggest that what we have said herein above in relation to there being a time related limiting factor for action under section 161 may not be the case in relation to section 162. The later section may apply without any time related limiting factor. This would of course be understandable; after all, the basic liability is that of the primary taxpayer. However, we leave this point open for further consideration in an appropriate case.

7. The matter in issue has also been considered in 2016 PTD 2074 (supra) wherein it has been held by this Court as follows:

> 17. Although, in the judgment of the Sindh High Court, the exercise of statutory powers and the action taken under section 161 were declared unlawful, I will not go to the extent of declaring those actions as unlawful as, in my opinion, the provisions of section 161 and the soliciting of information under sections 165 and 177 of the Ordinance, 2001 may proceed on its own and the only power which can be placed is on the department to compel the petitioners to furnish records beyond a period of five years. However as can be seen, the Sindh High Court did not conclusively render a holding on whether a taxpayer was or was not obliged to provide the documents beyond a period of five years. By relying upon a concept of 'time related limiting factor' and by reading section 164 with section 161, it was held that 'justification had to be provided for the belated action'. What if the justification was in fact forthcoming? In my opinion, as adumbrated, the taxpayer is relieved of his obligation to maintain the record beyond a period of five years and to produce it upon notice to do so.

The matter is issue was also considered in 2020 PTD 2111 (supra) wherein the Court held:

> In view of above, both these petitions are allowed. However, it is made clear that the proceedings of audit of income tax under section 177 of the Ordinance may continue but the petitioners shall not be required by the department to produce the record.

8. As per the aforementioned judgments, it has been held that the taxpayer cannot be compelled to produce documents which the statute does not require it to maintain beyond six years in terms of Section 174(3) of the Ordinance. The judgment passed by the Hon'ble Sindh High Court 2013 PTD 1659 (supra) went a step further to hold that there is some obligation on the department when it initiates actions beyond the six year period and calls for documents and record which the taxpayer is not required to maintain under the law. The Court held that purpose of setting a time limit and maintaining accounts and documents is to ensure that proceedings under the Ordinance are held within time and where there is a delay, the obligation then rests on the Respondents being the relevant Commissioner to justify the cause of delay and the reasons for seeking documents beyond the six year period. In this regard I am of the opinion that there lies a burden on the department to justify delayed proceedings, especially in view of Section 174(3) of the Ordinance.

9. There is no cavil to the understanding that the proceedings under Section 161 of the Ordinance are independent proceedings for which no time limit has been prescribed. However, in terms of the notices issued to the Petitioner, the issue for the Respondents is the provision of documents for the tax year 2014 which demand is squarely hit by Section 174(3) of the Ordinance. The Petitioner has already provided the relevant information, however the same is not sufficient for the Respondents or they have expressed their dissatisfaction by the response of the Petitioner, hence they have repeatedly asked for documentary evidence. In this regard, it goes without saying that there is no obligation on the taxpayer to produce the accounts and documents beyond the six year period as they are not required under the law to maintain the same. Hence the repeated requests and reminders to produce the documents is without appreciation of Section 174(3) of the Ordinance.

As the matter has been decided by this Court and the Sindh High Court, it was incumbent upon the department to be mindful of the rulings of the Court with reference to Section 174(3) of the Ordinance.

10. The issue then remains, can the Respondents proceed under Section 161 of the Ordinance without the documentary evidence in question. To the mind of the Court, the burden lies on the Respondents as clearly the notices issued by the Respondents are delayed as they are with reference to the tax year 2014 and the proceedings started in 2021. The Petitioner taxpayer has provided them with the relevant details in the form of an excel sheet, however the Respondents seek details in the form of documentary proof which it cannot compel the taxpayer to provide as per Section 174(3) of the Ordinance. Therefore at best they can continue with their proceedings under Section 161 of the Ordinance subject to any other objections that the taxpayer may have but they cannot compel the Petitioners to produce documentary evidence. In the event that the Respondents are unable to conclude on a liability under Section 161 of the Ordinance, that is that there was failure to pay tax collected or deducted then the burden would lie on the Respondents to establish their case as opposed to relying on the Petitioner to produce documents before the Respondents. Therefore as held by the Hon'ble Sindh High Court in 2013 PTD 1659 (supra) even though the Commissioner is not barred from taking action under Section 161 beyond the six year period, they will have to justify the late action taken and determine the liability on the basis of the information provided if at all possible but cannot penalize the taxpayer for not producing any documentary evidence. In this regard, it is clarified that the Respondents have to discharge their burden before declaring any liability and cannot simply conclude that for want of documentary evidence and accounts, the taxpayer is rendered liable. Essentially the action under Section 161 of the Ordinance should have been taken at the right time and any delayed action means that the burden is on the Commissioner to justify the demand raised and the imposition of any liability.

11. Therefore to the extent of the repeated demands for production of documents in the impugned notices, the same are without any legal basis and against the mandate of the law. However, the proceedings under Section 161 of the Ordinance are independent proceedings which may continue but it is for the department to make the most of the information provided to it and to pass speaking orders on the basis of which it will determine whether there is a failure to pay the tax collected or deducted without placing any burden on the taxpayer and its inability to produce the relevant documents.

12. Under the circumstances, the instant Petition is accepted in the above terms and the requirements for documentary evidence under the impugned notices dated 7.1.2021, 25.1.2021, 2.3.2021, 10.3.2021 and 25.3.2021 issued by the Respondents are set aside. It is clarified that the proceedings under Section 161 of the Ordinance may continue.

Ayesha A. Malik J: This RFA along with connected RFAs No.54270/17, 50966/17, 67900/20 have been filed under Section 96 of the CPC wherein the Appellants have impugned judgment and decree dated 14.4.2017 passed by the Civil Judge 1st Class, Lahore ("Impugned Judgment").

2. The Appellants include financial institutions being banking companies and a non-banking company as well as the Central Depository Company of Pakistan Limited ("CDC"). In this regard, it is noted that the CDC (RFA No.67900/2017) is only aggrieved to the extent of the decision on Issue No.14-H in the Impugned Judgment. The remaining Appellants have impugned the judgment and decree in its entirety praying therein that it be set aside and that they be declared the lawful owners with all rights of the disputed sukuks and as a consequence ijara rentals with accumulated mark up/profits be paid to them. In the alternative they pray that the Appellants be paid damages by Respondent No.1, Wapda First Sukuk Company Limited ("Sukuk Company") for the loss suffered not only with respect to the amounts paid by the Appellants for the disputed sukuks but also equivalent to the ijara rentals due to the Appellants.

3. The Respondent No.1 Sukuk Company is a public limited company wholly owned by Respondent No.2, Wapda. Respondent No.1 issued sukuk certificates for the purpose of raising money for the Mangla Dam Project which became the subject matter of a dispute between the parties. Respondent No.1, the Sukuk Company and Wapda filed an interpleader suit under Section 88 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 ("CPC") against the Appellants on 12.12.2009 praying therein that the court decide which of the defendants (Appellants before this Court and NFC) is the true and lawful owner of the disputed sukuk certificates. The Appellants each filed their written statement in the suit. Issues were framed. One of the parties, Bank Islami Pakistan Limited ("Bank Islami") was proceeded ex-parte on 21.5.2015. They are Respondent No.3 in the instant RFA and also have an ownership claim of 10000 sukuk certificates. The parties produced their respective evidence, documentary as well as oral, after which the trial court concluded through the Impugned Judgment that National Fertilizer Corporation Pakistan (Private) Limited ("NFC"), Respondent No.3 was the lawful owner of the disputed sukuk certificates and ijara rentals including the 7th ijara rental should be paid to NFC. Hence these appeals.

The dispute

4. The dispute between the parties relates to the ownership of sukuk certificates. The basic transaction documents giving rise to the sukuk certificates is a Purchase Agreement signed on 15.11.2005 wherein Respondent No.1 purchased from Respondent No.2, ten turbines installed at the Mangla Hydel Power Station for Rs.8,000,000,000 (Rupees eight billion) which became the trust assets. Though the Purchase Undertaking dated 15.11.2005, Respondent No.2 undertook to buy back the ten tribunes on maturity of the sukuk certificates. An Ijara Agreement was also executed between Respondents No.1 and 2 and Muslim Commercial Bank ("MCB") whereby the turbines were leased back to Respondent No.2, Wapda for which rental payments were to be paid semi annually. Under the Declaration of Trust, the Sukuk Company issued sukuk certificates to the public, as issuer and also took on the role of trustee for the trust assets. The rights of the certificate holders were set out in the Declaration of Trust, which included the right to receive Periodic Distribution Amounts ("PDA"), being the profit on the sukuk certificate, twice a year. Under the Agency Agreement, Wapda Bonds Cell was appointed as the Registrar, Transfer Agent and Replacement Agent with respect to the sukuk certificates. Wapda Bonds Cell is a part of Respondent No.2, Wapda and not a separate entity. NFC purchased 300 physical sukuk certificates, each certificate representing 500 sukuk units, of the value of Rs.750,000,000 (Rupees seven hundred and fifty million) on 24.01.2006 and subsequent thereof the Sukuk Company has been paying ijara rentals to NFC.

5. A dispute arose on the basis of letter dated 12.2.2009 (Ex.P24) when purportedly Deputy General Manager, Accounts of NFC stated that NFC had sold 72 sukuk certificates (being 36000 sukuk units) worth Rs.180,000,000 (Rupees one hundred and eighty million), out of its holding of Rs.750,000,000 (Rupees seven hundred and fifty million) to Swift Engineering Solutions ("SES") and consequently 72 sukuk certificates were transferred to SES. On the request of SES, Wapda Bonds Cell replaced the 72 sukuk certificates with 6 certificates representing 6000 sukuk units each on 14.3.2009. SES then sold its 6 sukuk certificates to Al-Meezan Investment Management Company Limited ("AIMC") for Rs.190,792,800 (Rupees one hundred and ninety million, seven hundred ninety two thousand and eight hundred) and thereafter AIMC sold its sukuk certificates to Bank Islami. Other claimants are Soneri Bank Limited ("SBL") and Meezan Bank Limited ("MBL") who purchased sukuk units through the CDC and received ijara payments until the dispute arose.

6. In the meantime, in April 2009 NFC inquired as to why they had not received their full profit on their sukuk certificates, to which they were informed that vide letter dated 12.2.2009 (Ex.P24) NFC informed the Sukuk Company that have sold their sukuk certificates to SES. NFC denied all claims of having sold the sukuk certificates and they accordingly informed the Sukuk Company that they made no such sale. Wapda constituted a team of officers to inquire into the matter and also stopped future transfers by informing the CDC. A complaint was registered with the Federal Investigation Agency ("FIA") and FIR No.28/2009 dated 5.8.2009 was registered against SES along with employees of Wapda whereby criminal proceedings commenced, to inquire into the fraudulent sale. The FIA issued an interim report which finds that the transfer to SES was fraudulent as the real certificates are still in the possession of NFC.

Litigation between the Parties

7. In the meantime, the Appellants filed suits for declaration, permanent injunction and damages before the Sindh High Court, and NFC and Respondents No.1 and 2 filed suits in Lahore, the details of which are as under:

a) Suit No.1497/2009 filed by AIMC for declaration, injunction and damages filed on 22.10.2009 titled Al-Meezan Investment Company etc. v. WAPDA First Sukuk Company etc. praying therein that demand of refund of ijara rentals is illegal, hence Wapda should be restrained from taking any action which would adversely affect the rights of the Appellant in respect of ijara rentals and/or their ownership of sukuk certificates (Ex.D2-36);

b) Suit No.1269/2010 filed by SBL for declaration, mandatory injunction, recovery of monies and damages filed on 10.8.2010 titled Soneri Bank Limited v. WAPDA First Sukuk Company etc. praying therein that SBL is the owner of 4000 certificates and that Wapda be directed to pay ijara rentals and damages of Rs.4,000,000/- along with profit of 15% from the date of default or alternately (if the plaintiff is not declared rightful owner) then direct

UBL to return the consideration amount and UBL and CDC pay damages and profit at the rate of 15% along with costs of fund;

c) Suit No.726/2012 (previous Suit No.187/2009) filed by MBL for declaration, mandatory injunction and recovery filed on 26.12.2009 titled Meezan Bank v. WAPDA First Sukuk Company etc. praying therein that Appellant is the owner of 22000 sukuks and entitled for ijara payments and that Wapda be directed to pay PDA and other payable dues. Wapda be also directed to make donation to charity as required by clause 3.6 of ijara agreement dated 15.11.2005 along with cost of fund and cost of suit (Mark D6-B);

d) Suit No.40163/2015 filed by NFC before the civil court at Lahore against Wapda and the Sukuk Company for recovery of Rs.466,972,916/- along with loss of profits and damages on 21.10.2015 titled National Fertilizer Corporation of Pakistan (Pvt.) Limited v. Wapda First Sukuk Company Limited etc., praying therein for recovery of Rs.466,972,916/- along with up to date profits at the rate of 13% on the above said amount till realization. NFC also prayed in the suit for recovery of the profits earned on the PDA/ijara rentals and dissolution distribution amount, earned either on account of the above amounts deposited by defendants No.1 and 2 into the civil court pursuant to their interpleader suit and invested by the court into a profit bearing scheme or earned by defendants No.1 and 2 during the time they utilize the above amount (not exhibited).

e) Suit No.15370/2020 filed by the Sukuk Company and Wapda before the Senior Civil Judge, Lahore for recovery on 20.4.2020 titled Wapda First Sukuk Company Limited etc. v. Al-Meezan Investment Management Limited etc., against Al-Meezan Investment Management, praying for recovery of Rs.13,640,900/- plus mark up accruing at 20% on the principal amount of Rs.Rs.13,640,900/- from the date of payment of the said amount to the AIMC (defendant No.1) on 21.4.2009 till realization of full payment plus costs.

Interpleader Suit

8. Respondent No.1, Sukuk Company Limited filed an interpleader suit under Section 88 of the CPC on 12.12.2009 against all the Appellants including CDC praying therein that the court decide which of the defendants is the true and lawful

The defendants filed their written statements and on 21.5.2010 the suit was dismissed for being not maintainable. This order was challenged before this Court through RFA No.779/2010 which was allowed vide judgment dated 17.2.2015. This judgment of 17.2.2015 was challenged before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan whereby the appeal was dismissed and the suit was remanded vide order dated 10.10.2016. Thereafter a review was filed before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan by the CDC in which a clarification was issued on 21.8.2017, where after the review was disposed of.

16. Respondent No.4, Bank Islami was also a party in the interpleader suit as they claim ownership of 10000 sukuk certificates. However after remand from the High Court on 17.2.2015, they failed to appear before the trial court and were proceeded ex-parte on 21.5.2015. Against this order, they filed an application under Order 9 Rule 13 read with Section 12(2) CPC for suspension of the Impugned Judgment. Through order dated 13.10.2017 the application of suspension of the Impugned Judgment was dismissed on account of the pendency of the instant appeal along with connected RFAs before this Court. This order dated 13.10.2017 has been impugned in FAO No.181619/2018 wherein the Appellant Bank seeks suspension of the Impugned Judgment till the final decision on the main application filed by the Appellant under Order 9 Rule 13 read with Section 12(2) CPC. Hence they have not filed any claim in the interpleader suit and for the purposes of the FAO, it has become infructuous and hence has been dismissed vide a separate order of even date.

The facts of the dispute

17. (i) In the year 2005, Respondent No.2, Wapda launched a scheme for raising money through sukuk certificates. Several agreements were executed between Wapda, the Sukuk Company as well as with MCB and Jahangir Siddiqui and Company Limited. The transaction was such that a Purchase Agreement (Ex.P12) was executed wherein the Sukuk Company purchased from Wapda, 10 hydel power generation units (turbines) installed at Mangla hydel power station for Rs.8,000,000,000 (Rupees eight billion);

(ii) These hydel power generation units were leased back to Wapda by the Sukuk Company under the Ijara Agreement (Ex.P14) wherein the rentals were to be paid twice a year on the 22nd of April and 22nd of October of each year until the maturity date;

(iii) A Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16) was executed by the Sukuk Company wherein it assumed the role of the trustee for the trust assets for the benefit of the certificate holders. The rights of the certificate holders were submitted in the Declaration of Trust which includes the right to receive payment of the PDA. The profit on the Sukuk was to be paid inter alia on the basis of the rent paid by Wapda for the lease of the turbines under the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15);

(iv) An Agency Agreement was executed between the Sukuk Company and Wapda which appointed the Wapda Bonds Cell as the Registrar, the transfer agent and replacement agent with respect to the sukuk certificates. Citibank was appointed as the paying agent and Jahangir Siddiqui and Company was the reference agent. Wapda Bonds Cell also acted as the mercantile agent responsible for the buying and selling of physical sukuk certificates which meant that the physical sukuk certificates had to be bought and sold through the Wapda Bonds Cell;

(v) Subsequently the sukuk units were transferred in book entry form through the CDC which meant that the subsequent sales were not of physical certificates but of sukuk units through the CDC;

(vi) The relevant regulations were the Wapda Sukuk Certificates (1st Issue) Regulations, 2005 issued by the Government of Pakistan on 28.11.2005;

(vii) NFC was one of the initial subscribers as it purchased 300 physical certificates valuing Rs.750,000,000 (Rupees seven hundred and fifty million) (Ex.P17). Letter issued by Citibank to Wapda Bonds Cell provides that 300 sukuk certificates were despatched to the NFC amongst others;

(viii) Payments were made to the subscribers without any dispute upto the sixth ijara payment (Ex.P18 to Ex.P23) being letters issued by the Sukuk Company to Citibank regarding the payments of ijara rentals;

(ix) On 12.2.2009 (Ex.P24) a letter was issued to Wapda Bonds Cell by Faiz Ali Bokhari, Deputy General Manager (Accounts), NFC that NFC has no objection in transferring 72 sukuk certificates to SES. Hence Wapda Bonds Cell should verify the transfer deeds regarding the physical certificates. These sukuk certificates were also exhibited being 72 certificates along with transfer deeds presented to Wapda Bonds Cell for verification (Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72);

(x) On 20.2.2009 the Sukuk Company issued a letter to SES stating therein that against 72 certificates that were issued to them, 6 new physical certificates having denomination of Rs.30 Million each has been issued (Ex.P29). Consequently 72 certificates were replaced by 6 new physical certificates of equal value. The physical certificates were exhibited as Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/6;

(xi) Letter dated 4.3.2009 (Ex.P26) was issued by AIMC to the Sukuk Company wherein it claimed that they have purchased 6 sukuk certificates from SES and required processing of transfer of the same;

(xii) On 6.3.2009 a letter was issued by SES confirming the sale in favour of AIMC (Ex.P.27). The transfer deeds were verified and approved by the Sukuk Company on 7.3.2009 (Ex.P.26/7 to P26/12);

(xiii) On 9.3.2009 the Sukuk Company issued a letter to Global Securities Pakistan Limited ("Global Securities"), confirming the transfer in favour of Respondent No.7 (Ex.P28). On 12.3.2009 CDC sought verification of the transfer deeds from the Sukuk Company (Ex.P30);

(xiv) On 14.3.2009 CDC confirmed that 6 sukuk certificates transferred by SES to Respondent No.7 have been verified and confirmed (Ex.P31) and required that the physical certificates be transferred to the Central Depository System ("CDS");

(xv) On 24.4.2009 NFC issued a letter to the Sukuk Company with reference to the payment of the 7th ijara rentals stating therein that they had not been paid complete rental owed to them on their investment of Rs.750,000,000 (Rupees seven hundred and fifty million). Hence NFC communicated to the Sukuk Company that they had not received the full ijara payment (Ex.P.33). This letter was issued by Faiz Ali Bokhari, Deputy General Manager (Accounts), NFC;

(xvi) On 25.4.2009 NFC communicated to Wapda that they have been informed that certificate valuing Rs.180,000,000 (Rupees one hundred and eighty million) have been transferred from NFC as per the books maintained by Wapda whereas NFC had not made any such transfer and they still retain their investment of Rs.750,000,000 (Rupees seven hundred and fifty million) (Ex.P.34). This letter was issued by Faiz Ali Bokhari, Deputy General Manager (Accounts), NFC;

(xvii) On 27.4.2009 the Sukuk Company informed NFC that NFC had transferred 72 certificates to SES for Rs.180,000,000 (Rupees one hundred and eighty million) after fulfilling all codal formalities and that 72 original certificates along with duly signed transfer deeds were transferred to SES (Ex.P35).

18. On the basis of these facts a dispute arose with reference to the ownership of NFC's certificates worth Rs.180,000,000 (Rupees one hundred and eighty million). Subsequent thereof, sukuk certificates of various denominations were sold to Respondent No.7, AIMC and then to Investment and Finance Security Limited ("IFSL") (Ex.D-2/22 to Ex.D-2/29). They then sold some certificates to MBL (Ex.D6/5 to Ex.D6/9). SBL and Bank Islami also purchased sukuk certificates from the market around this time. The Appellants are claimants with reference to the sukuk certificates who seek their entitlement to the principal and rental payments on the sukuks. Respondent NFC is also claimant in whose favour the Impugned Judgment has been passed who seeks the principal and rental payments on the sukuks certificates. Hence the interpleader suit was filed by the Sukuk Company and Wapda. Currently the Appellants and NFC before the Court claim to be the owners of sukuk units in the following amounts:

Meezan Bank Limited	22000
Al Meezan Investment Management Company Limited	Nil
Soneri Bank Limited	4000
NFC	36000

Arguments of Appellant in RFA No.54274/17, MBL

19. Learned counsel for MBL argued that MBL acquired good title to the disputed sukuks because NFC and the Sukuk Company along with Wapda failed to establish a case of fraud and forgery and the Impugned Judgment failed to take into consideration the plea of bonafide purchaser raised by MBL. Learned counsel argued that there is no independent evidence of fraud or forgery and that there is no forensic analysis to establish that letter dated 12.2.2009 (Ex.P24) was fake or that the signatures were forged. Learned counsel argued that burden of proof is on the person denying signatures and claiming fraud and forgery to establish the same which burden has not been discharged. He further argued that SES was not made a party in the suit and yet the Impugned Judgment has declared SES to be a fake entity without any evidence on this issue whatsoever. He further argued that the Impugned Judgment has totally failed to consider the evidence of MBL in favour of its transfer which establishes that the Wapda Bonds Cell and the CDC recognize and acknowledged the transfers in favour of MBL. He further argued that the effect and process of transfer on the CDC was not taken into consideration nor the concept of trading in the CDS as prescribed under the Central Depositories Act, 1997 ("CD Act"). Learned counsel argued that it was not the case of NFC or the Sukuk Company that MBL had played any part in the fraud or had knowledge of the fraud. Under the circumstances, the case of MBL as bonafide purchaser was not considered. Learned counsel further argued that the Impugned Judgment has relied upon a decision of the criminal court which is not relevant in civil proceedings. Learned counsel places reliance on Section 31 of the Securities and Exchange Ordinance, 1969 which protects title of a person who acquires title on the floor of the stock exchange for being bonafide purchaser. Learned counsel argued that the interpleader suit filed by Wapda is simply to avoid any responsibility as fraud admittedly was committed by their own employees against which Wapda has not taken any action. Learned counsel argued that Wapda is vicariously liable for the action of its employees. Hence if this Court were to decide in favour of NFC then MBL in the alternative seeks damages for the loss suffered by it for not being paid the PDA and for the transaction amount paid by it as well as ijara rentals due to it.

Arguments of Appellant in RFA No.50966/17, SBL

20. Learned counsel for the Appellant adopted the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Appellant MBL in RFA No.54274/2017. Learned counsel further added that the Impugned Judgment ignored the transaction documents, their sanctity and their contractual relevance in favour of the Appellant, SBL. He argued that the entries of transfer and title are available in electronic form on the CDS which aspect of the matter was also ignored. He argued that admittedly the employees of Wapda were involved in the fraud and in order to avoid any liability, they have filed an interpleader suit claiming therein that the only dispute relevant is as to who is the lawful owner of the sukuk certificates and not of any loss or compensation to the Appellants. He argued that the Appellant being a bonafide purchaser, having good title on the CDS, having no knowledge of any fraud is the authentic owner of 4000 sukuk certificates which aspect of the matter has not been considered.

Arguments of Appellant in RFA No.54270/17-AIMC

21. Learned counsel for the Appellant adopted the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Appellant in RFA No.54274/2017. Learned counsel states that the Appellant manages amongst others Meezan Islamic Income Fund ("MIIF") which is a collective investment scheme in accordance with the provisions of the trust deed of that fund. CDC is the trustee of MIIF. They not only act as the regulator of the sukuk certificates but also as the trustee of MIIF. The Appellant through the CDC purchased 6 sukuk certificates from the SES through Global Securities (the Broker). Payment for these sukuks was made by the Appellant into the account of SES maintained with MCB Bank Limited, Main Market Gulberg Branch, Lahore (Ex. D2-15, D2-16). A total of Rs.190,792,800/- was paid by the Appellant to SES for the 36000 sukuk units with the face value of Rs.180,000,000 (Rupees one hundred and eighty million). Vide letter dated 4.3.2009 (Ex.P26), the AIMC requested the Sukuk Company to transfer 6 physical sukuk certificates (Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/6) against 36000 sukuk units issued to it in the name of the CDC, Trustee MIIF. This request was complied with after completing all codal formalities and the 6 sukuk certificates were transferred in favour of the Appellant. This transfer testifies to the fact that Wapda Bonds Cell verified the transaction. Subsequently the Appellant received ijara rentals (Ex.D2-20). However on 29.4.2009 Wapda sent a letter whereby it requested the CDC to stop any further transfer of ijaras in favour of the Appellant. The Appellant questioned the stoppage of ijara payment, however they were not informed. Thereafter on 18.5.2009 and 23.6.2009, the Appellant sold 6 sukuk certificates to IFSL (Ex.D2-22 to Ex.D2-29) for a total consideration of Rs.181,570,600/- and therefore the ijara amount was ultimately passed on to the subsequent buyer. The Appellant is now aggrieved by the Impugned Judgment to the extent of demand for the refund of ijara rentals paid to it. Learned counsel argued that the Appellant had no notice of the fraud nor was it aware of any forgery and was a bonafide purchaser without notice whose case was not duly considered in the Impugned Judgment. Learned counsel argued that the Impugned Judgment has wrongfully applied the principle that fraud vitiates the most solemn proceedings. Learned counsel argued that as per the Special Audit Report (Ex.D2-10), the Sukuk Company and Wapda were grossly negligent with respect to the issuance of the sukuks for failure to make the rules at the right time and for the fraud committed by their employees. He argued that interpleader suit is merely a device used to transfer the loss caused by Wapda and the Sukuk company on to either NFC or subsequent buyers like the Appellant. Hence the Appellant also seeks a declaration that it was the lawful owner of 36000 sukuks and that it had lawfully received the ijara payments.

Arguments of Appellant in RFA No.67900/17-CDC

22. The Appellant is the CDC which is aggrieved by the findings rendered in Issue No.14-H. Learned counsel stated that Section 11 of the CD Act has been wrongfully interpreted as the protection under Section 11 is applicable in all cases including fraud. Learned counsel argued that fraud has not been established and the CDC being the Central Depository Company is not concerned with whom the court concludes to be the lawful owner of the sukuks. However, its concern and grievance is with respect to the findings rendered while interpreting Section 11 of the CD Act. Hence the Appellant prays for setting aside the findings on issue No.14-H in the Impugned Judgment.

Arguments of Respondents No.1 and 2 - Wapda and the Sukuk Company

23. Learned counsel on behalf of Respondents No.1 and 2 has raised an objection with respect to the scope of the interpleader suit. She stated that an interpleader suit is filed under Section 88 of the CPC on the basis whereof two or more persons have claims that are adverse between one another on the same debt or money or property from another person, who has no interest in that claim, then the interpleader suit will decide, only to the extent as to whom the payment should be given to and it cannot award damages or compensation in the manner argued by the Appellants. Learned counsel argued that in this regard admittedly the Appellants have all filed civil suits which are still pending where they have raised their claim for damages and compensation. Hence this Court in the interpleader suit cannot decide on the issue of damages or compensation. She further argued that in order to award damages or compensation, the Court has to consider evidence and in this case there is no evidence on this issue. Hence she has raised objections with regard to the alternative prayer made by the Appellants. She argued that interpleader suit is distinct form of lis available to any applicant who is in possession of res in which they have no interest in the claim and where it is unclear as to whose claim is genuine. Therefore the Appellants cannot raise their own claim for compensation or damages in the interpleader suit.

24. With reference to the case of the Appellants on fraud and bonafide purchaser, learned counsel argued that the issue of fraud was made out against SES to whom it is suggested that sukuk certificates were sold. She argued that NFC tendered in evidence the original 72 sukuk certificates as Ex.D1-23/1 to D1-23/72. Since NFC holds the original certificates, the issue of fraud is patently clear and the transfer so alleged is fake. She further argued that fraud vitiates the most solemn proceedings and any subsequent transfers made after the fraudulent transfer to SES are illegal and as such do not create title in favour of any of the Appellants. She argued that it is settled law that the seller can only pass title of property as good as his own title. Hence all subsequent transfers whether physical or in book entry form in the CDS stand vitiated.

25. On the issue of Wapda's liability, she argued that the question of vicarious liability only arises in case of negligence, where there is proof of the same and proof of cause of action and damages. For the Appellants to claim damages or compensation, they would first have to show that there is breach of duty and that they suffered damages on account of the breach of duty. She argued that the party claiming damages must specifically prove damages. In this regard, she stated that there was no issue with respect to damages and the Appellants did not lead any evidence on damages. Wapda has also filed a suit against AIMC. She stated that Wapda has filed suit No.15370/2020 being a suit for recovery in which it has prayed for recovery of Rs.13,640,900 plus mark up which is pending. She further argued that if at all there is a case of negligence against Wapda and its employees, the same will be dealt with in accordance with law. However that does not justify or substantiate the claim of the Appellants to be compensated in the event that NFC is found to be the true and lawful owner of the sukuk certificates.

Arguments of Respondent No.3, NFC

26. Learned counsel for the NFC argued that the Impugned Judgment is in favour of NFC. The fundamental issue of fraud has been decided in favour of NFC. That NFC still has in its possession the original 72 sukuk certificates, meaning thereby that the alleged transfer to SES as depicted in letter dated 12.2.2009 is totally without basis. Learned counsel argued that the Appellants have failed to make out a case of ownership and title as fraud vitiates all actions and decisions. That NFC has discharged its burden through oral and documentary evidence to show that fraud was made out, hence the sale in favour of SES is illegal and void and all subsequent transfers become void as it is based on fraud. Learned counsel also argued that the argument of bonafide purchaser is not relevant to the dispute in hand as they are barred under law to claim good title, given that no title was ever passed in favour of SES. He argued that protection to a bonafide purchaser cannot be given to transferees with defective title. He supported the contention of counsel for Wapda on the scope of interpleader suit and argued that even if this Court finds that a case of fraud is made out in favour of NFC, the Appellants would not be entitled to any compensation or damages in the interpleader suit. He stated that in this regard their own suits are pending before the learned Sindh High Court. Learned counsel stated that NFC has already filed suit No.40163/2015 before the civil court at Lahore against Wapda and the Sukuk Company wherein they have sought up to date profits as earned on the PDA/ijara rentals or in the alternative to be paid to them as damages.

27. The issues raised before this Court from the Impugned Judgment fall into three broad categories: the element of fraud and its effect on the transaction; title and who is the owner of the sukuk certificates and finally the nature and scope of the interpleader suit and the jurisdiction to grant relief therein. We note that on the issue of maintainability of the interpleader suit has been dealt with in Issues No.6, 12 and 14-B. Vide judgment dated 21.5.2010, the trial court held that the interpleader suit was not maintainable. This decision was challenged by the Appellants but ultimately, the issue of maintainability of the interpleader suit was decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Al-Meezan Investment Management Company Limited and 2 others v. WAPDA First Sukuk Company Limited, Lahore and others (PLD 2017 SC 1) holding the interpleader suit to be maintainable notwithstanding the fact that at the time, one suit was pending before the Sindh High Court as filed by AIMC. Hence we proceed with these RFAs on the basis of the issues of fraud, title and the relief to be granted in the interpleader suit.

The issue of fraud and its effect on the transaction

28. The trial court framed issues No.2 and 14 on the question as to whether there was fraud and forgery in the sale transaction of 72 sukuk certificates from NFC to SES and the effect of the fraud, if any. The burden to prove Issue No.2 with reference to proving fraud and forgery was on the plaintiff Wapda, the Sukuk Company and NFC whereas the burden to prove fraud with reference to the sale in favour of SES being Issue No.14 was on NFC. These issues decide the basic dispute between the parties which decided the outcome of the interpleader suit. The Impugned Judgment has essentially decided Issue No.14 and concluded that SES was a fake entity and that Ex.P24, the letter issued by NFC's D1-DW2 informing Wapda Bonds Cell of the sale of 72 sukuk certificates valuing Rs.180,000,000 in favour of SES, was a forged and fabricated document as per the evidence and the record. The Impugned Judgment further concluded that undisputedly, the SES was fake body therefore it was the duty of the defendant No.2 (AIMC) to prove that the letter dated 12.02.2009 Ex.P24 was validly issued by the defendant No.1 (NFC) and that the letter dated 13.2.2009 Ex.P25 along with 72 Sukuk Certificates as Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72 were genuine. So the Impugned Judgment concluded that AIMC was the beneficiary of the fraud, hence had to prove the genuineness of the transaction in favour of SES, with reference to the disputed 72 sukuk certificates. On the issue of fraud, the Impugned Judgment finds that fraud is admitted by defendant No.2, AIMC and has placed reliance on the criminal proceedings and judgment by the Special Judge Central, Lahore (Ex.D1-32) along with the forensic report of the 72 sukuk certificates (Ex.D1-22). Consequently on the issue of fraud, the Impugned Judgment finds that the 72 sukuk certificates transferred in the name of SES on the basis of Ex.P24 was fake and fraudulent and that all subsequent transfers to defendants No.2, 3 and 6 (Appellants before this Court) were consequently illegal and void. The Impugned Judgment declared NFC to be the lawful owner of the disputed 72 sukuk certificates and therefore entitled to the payment of ijara rentals.

29. The Appellants have challenged the Impugned Judgment with reference to Issues No.2 and 14 on several grounds, essentially being that there was no evidence on the basis of which the Court concluded that SES was a fake entity and that the transfer from NFC to SES was fraudulent. They argued that there was no independent evidence of fraud or forgery and that reliance on the criminal proceedings and judgment was not relevant for the purposes of the civil suit. In this regard, reliance has been placed on Muhammad Khurshid v. the State (PLD 1963 SC 157) and Ghulam Rasool v. Muhammad Waris Bismil (1995 SCMR 500). They also argued that the disputed letter dated 12.2.2009 (Ex.P24) issued by NFC was never established to be a fraudulent or a forged document before the trial court as there was no forensic analysis of the signature on the letter and the burden to establish that this was a forged letter was placed on the author of the letter, who did not discharge his burden in accordance with law. Reliance is placed on Land Acquisition Collector, Sargodha and another v. Muhammad Sultan and another (PLD 2014 SC 696) and Allah Dino and 2 others v. Mohammad Umar and 2 others (1974 SCMR 411).

30. One of their main arguments made was that as per the record, employees of the Wapda Bonds Cell were party to the fraud and that the NFC failed to establish that it was not party to the fraud or had no knowledge of the fraud. Hence if at all there was any fraud at best it made the transaction voidable and it did not vitiate the transfers in favour of the Appellants. The Appellants have also argued their case of bonafide purchaser stating that the Impugned Judgment failed to consider their plea of bonafide purchaser and has wrongfully concluded that fraud has vitiated the transactions subsequent to the transfer to SES, such that title did not pass on to the Appellants as it never passed on to SES. It is their contention that the Impugned Judgment did not consider the record and the significance of the transaction documents nor did it consider the argument of bonafide purchaser in its true perspective as per the cases relied upon, hence failed to decide the issue as per law.

31. On behalf of Wapda, the Sukuk Company and NFC, the Impugned Judgment was defended as it was argued that the issue of fraud was established in favour of NFC. Consequently NFC was declared the owner of the disputed sukuk certificates as NFC specifically denied the execution of Ex.P24 and the sale of the sukuk certificates, the transfer deeds (Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72 and Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/12) including the surrender of 72 sukuk certificates (Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72) by SES for issuance of 6 sukuk certificates in their place. NFC has relied upon the original 72 sukuk certificates (Ex.D1-23/1 to Ex.D1-23/72) which it states are still in its possession, hence the question of sale in favour of SES does not arise. They have essentially argued that as the sale in favour of SES was fraudulent, then all subsequent transfers are void as SES could not transfer valid title in favour of any of the Appellants. They further argued that once their witness Faiz Ali Bokhari, D1-DW2 appeared and denied the execution of Ex.P24, thereafter the burden shifted on the Appellants to establish that the transfer to SES was not fraudulent. Learned counsel for Respondents No.1 and 2 has relied upon Talib Hussain and others v. Member, Board of Revenue and others (2003 SCMR 549), Abdul Hameed through L.Rs and others v. Shamasuddin and others (PLD 2008 SC 140), Reddaway v. Banham ([1896] AC 199) and Lazarus Estates Ltd v. Beasley ([1956] 1 Q.B.702) to establish the point that fraud vitiates all transactions and on the effect of fraud on a transaction Learned counsel for NFC has relied upon the following judgments in support of their contention that fraud vitiates the most solemn of proceedings and that the burden to prove the transaction shifts on the beneficiary of that transaction that is Lal Din and another v. Muhammad Ibrahim (1993 SCMR 710), Government of Sindh through the Chief Secretary and others v. Khalil Ahmed and others (1994 SCMR 782), 2003 SCMR 549 (supra), Baja through L.Rs and others v. Mst.

Bakhan and others (2015 SCMR 1704) and Administrator Municipal Corporation, Peshawar v. Taimoor Hussain Amin and others (PLD 2020 SC 249).

32. In order to appreciate the arguments made with reference to fraud and its effect, the relevant facts based on the evidence are as follows:

(i) 72 physical sukuk certificates owned by NFC valued at Rs.180,000,000/-;

(ii) Letter dated 12.2.2009 (Ex.P24) was issued by Faiz Ali Bokhari, Deputy General Manager (Accounts) NFC (D1-DW2) to the Director Finance, Wapda Bonds Cell, Lahore which provides that NFC has sold 72 physical sukuks in favour of SES having serial Number from 512029 to 512100 amounting to Rs.180 Million. Further provides that NFC has no objection in transferring these physical certificates in favour of SES;

(iii) Internal noting on file (Ex.D2-1) shows SES inquired about the procedure for transfer of the 72 sukuks to SES in the form of physical certificates having serial No. from 512029 to 512100 amounting to Rs.180 Million. It was requested to verify the transfer deeds regarding the physical certificates from Serial No. from 512029 to 512100;

(iv) On 13.2.2009 a letter was issued by Akhtar Saleem, Chief Financial Officer, SES to the Director Finance, Wadpa Bonds Cell, Lahore (Ex.P25) requesting for transfer of the physical sukuk certificates from Serial No. 512029 to 512100 to SES's name and to issue 6 new physical certificates in the denomination of Rs.30 Million each. The 72 sukuk certificates were presented by SES to Wapda Bonds Cell (Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72);

(v) On 20.2.2009 (Ex.P29), a letter was issued by Masood Raza, Deputy Director Finance, Sukuk Company (PW-1) to Akhtar Saleem, Chief Financial Officer, SES enclosing therewith 6 new physical sukuk certificates having denomination of Rs.30 Million (Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/6);

(vi) Entry in the Register of Certificates Holders (Ex.D2-2) maintained by Wapda Bonds Cell which shows the transfer in favour of SES. Letter dated 4.3.2009 (Ex.P26) issued by AIMC to Masood Raza, Deputy Director Finance, Sukuk Company (PW-1) stating that they have purchased 72 sukuk certificates of the Sukuk Company;

(vii) Letter dated 4.3.2009 by Global Securities, Broker of AIMC to CDC Trustee, MIIF confirming purchase from SES (Ex.D2-13);

(viii) Letter dated 5.3.2009 (Ex.D2-14) from AIMC to Trustee, MIIF, Karachi, seeking transfer of 72 sukuk certificates amounting to Rs.180,000,000/- in value. The letter also states that initially the sukuks will be physically transferred in the name of CDC Trustee Meezan Islamic Fund ("CDC Trustee MIIF") and then will be lodged with CDC into the Central Depository System (CDS);

(ix) Letter dated 13.3.2009 from SES to CDC Trustee (Ex.D2-16) confirming purchase of sukuk certificates as on 18.3.2009, transfer on the CDC (Ex.D2-19).

33. Respondents No.1 and 2 produced only one witness namely Masood Raza, Additional Director Wapda Bonds Cell and Accountant Sukuk Company as PW-1 and exhibited 43 documents which included correspondence and the transfer deeds of the sukuk certificates. PW-1 admitted to having received letter dated 12.2.2009 (Ex.P24) by NFC and letter dated 13.02.2009 (Ex.P25) issued by Akhtar Saleem, Chief Financial Officer, SES to the Director Finance, Wadpa Bonds Cell, Lahore. He explained the verification process followed by Wapda Bonds Cell when NFC sold 72 sukuk certificates to SES. He admitted that the 72 certificates were returned by SES against which 6 new certificates were issued to SES vide Ex.P29 by Wapda Bonds Cell. He admitted to the issuance of the sukuk certificates under his signatures (Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/6). He deposed on the verification process and security measures adopted by Respondents No.1 and 2 to transfer the sukuk certificates physically. Hence Respondents No.1 and 2 admitted to the transfer from NFC to SES and also admitted to having replaced 72 sukuks with 6 sukuk certificates after due verification. PW-1 does not state that these transactions were fraudulent or that SES was a fake entity. In fact in his cross-examination he states no knowledge of SES being a fake entity:

> مجھے یاد نہ ہے کہ SESکس کی ملکیت ہے۔ مجھے علم نہ ہے کہ SES ایک fake body تھی۔ SES کی طرف سے ہمیں جو لیٹرز Ex.P27, Ex.P25 موصول ہوئے وہ اختر سلیم (CFO) کی طرف سے محکمہ کو لکھے گئے ۔ مجھے علم نہ ہے کہ آیا اختر سلیم (CFO) یا کوئی دیگر شخص بطور نمائندہ SES کبھی سکوک سیکشن میں اپنے حق میں منتقلی کے لیے آیا۔

34. Respondent No.3, NFC produced Muhammad Sageer Khan, Deputy General Manager Account, NFC as D1-DW1 and Faiz Ali Bokhari as D1-DW2 and exhibited 39 documents which included the original 72 sukuk certificates Ex.D1-23/1 to Ex.D1-23/72. So far as the two witnesses are concerned, they produced no evidence to establish that SES was a fake entity. D1-DW1 in his evidence stated that NFC never sold its 72 sukuk certificates and the fraud came to light during the fact finding inquiry by Respondents No.1 and 2. He stated that since NFC has the original certificates, they had no knowledge of the fraud and it is only when the FIA commenced proceedings on Wapda's complaint that this matter was brought to their attention. In his evidence D1-DW1 stated that Ex.P24 was fake as were the transfer deeds in favour of SES (Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72). He also admits that NFC never carried out any forensic analysis of Ex.P24 nor was any internal fact finding committee established to look into the matter. The second witness namely Faiz Ali Bokhari appeared as D1-DW2. He made a categoric statement that he did not execute Ex.P24 nor did NFC sell 72 sukuk certificates to SES. He also admits that he never had his signatures on Ex.P24 checked by a handwriting expert. Therefore in terms of the witnesses produced by NFC, they denied execution of Ex.P24 and the sale in favour of SES.

35. Respondent No.7, AIMC produced Syed Awais Wasti, Company Secretary/Chief Finance Officer as D2-DW1 as their witness and 36 documents were exhibited. D2-DW1 stated that he had no knowledge of any fraud and that they purchased 6 sukuk certificates from SES in 2009 through Global Securities and went through the verification process set out by Wapda Bonds Cell. He also stated that the sale in favour of AIMC was verified by the broker, Global Securities as well as CDC Trustee, MIIF. So far as Respondent No.5 SBL is concerned, they produced Qaisar Samdani AVP and Credit Incharge SBL, Clifton Branch Karachi as D4-DW1 as their witness and 13 documents were exhibited. Respondent No.6 CDC produced Muhammad Khurram Manager Legal Compliance CDC Karachi as D5-DW1 as their witness and 11 documents were exhibited in support of the sale of sukuk certificates in their favour which was essentially through the CDS and not a physical sale. They also relied on the verification process to show that they were bonafide purchasers of their sukuk certificates.

36. Essentially the dispute between the parties with reference to issues of fraud and forgery is whether the sale in favour of SES by NFC was a valid and legal sale or whether it was a sale based on fraud and forgery as NFC claims that Ex.P24 was not executed by Faiz Ali Bokhari as D1-DW2. Subsequent to the sale in favour of SES, AIMC purchased sukuk certificates and thereafter the other Appellants before this Court also purchased sukuk certificates. Hence the dispute essentially in the interpleader suit was who is the lawful owner of the sukuk certificates that is whether NFC is still the owner of the 72 disputed sukuk certificates which it claims they never sold to SES or whether the Appellants are lawful owners of their sukuk certificates which they claim they bought in accordance with law with no knowledge of fraud and forgery. In this regard, we note that all parties produced documentary as well as oral evidence which had to be appreciated in its entirety in order to determine the issues set out by the trial court. We have examined the Impugned Judgment with reference to Issues No.2 and 14 and find that the trial court failed to appreciate the evidence in its entirety. In fact we note that for the purposes of determining fraud and forgery, the trial court failed to discuss the evidence produced by Wapda in particular as well as the evidence produced by NFC and the subsequent purchasers. The Impugned Judgment has not discussed Ex.P24, Ex.P25, Ex.P26 and Ex.P29 in its entirety and has not discussed the consequence of the verification process undertaken by the Wapda Bonds Cell or the issuance of 6 sukuk certificates against 72 sukuk certificates originally issued. We find that the evidence on this issue was relevant because the entire case of NFC is that Ex.P24 was never executed by Faiz Ali Bokhari, D1-DW2. He made a categoric statement that he did not execute Ex.P24. However, this statement had to be seen in conjunction with the evidence on record. The Appellants have relied on the Register of Certificates Holders (Ex.D2-2) maintained by Wapda Bonds Cell to establish the transfer in favour of SES and from SES to AIMC. They also rely on their internal noting (Ex.D2-1) to establish the issuance of 6 new sukuk certificates to SES. We have examined Ex.D2-1 and find that it discusses the procedure to be followed for the transfer of sukuk certificates in favour of SES in great detail. This is relevant as it shows the procedure adopted by Wapda Bonds Cell to transfer the sukuk certificates from NFC to SES and the re-issuance of 6 new certificates to SES. We have also examined Ex.D2-2 which is the Register of Certificate Holders maintained by Wapda Bonds Cell. We note that there is an entry in favour of NFC in the Register of Certificates Holders on 5.1.2006 as owners of certificates having Serial No.012029 to 012328 and thereafter another entry showing transfer of sukuk certificates in favour of SES on 17.2.2009 being Serial No.512029 to 512100 and thereafter re-transfer of 6 sukuk certificates in favour of SES on 18.2.2009 from Serial No.012390 to 012395. The entries in the Register of Certificates Holders maintained by Respondents No.1 and 2 is not denied nor is its genuineness denied by PW-1. NFC has also not questioned its genuineness nor have they stated that the entries are fraudulent. Furthermore the subsequent transfer in favour of AIMC is also reflected in Ex.D2-2 and the payments made to SES are shown in Ex.D2-18. These transfers and payments were verified and accepted by Wapda Bonds Cell for whom Ex.D2-2 represents the names of title holders of the sukuk certificates. Hence for the purposes of title and ownership, Respondents No.1 and 2 have relied on Ex.D2-2 as it mentions each certificate holder as owner of the sukuk certificates. These entries are neither denied nor questioned by Respondents No.1 and 2 or even by NFC. In fact PW-1 states that Wapda was neither negligent nor did it play fraud in these transfers:

2- سکروٹنی میں غفلت نہ ہو سکتی ہے-
3- جو فراڈ ہوا و ہ واپڈا کے ساتھ ہوا جو کہ سائنٹیفک اور clever طریقے سے کیا گیا جس کا نقصان واپڈا کو ہوا-

In his evidence PW-1 categorically states that Wapda did not commit fraud. This is significant and relevant because for the purposes of the trial court and the evidence before it, the transfer in favour of SES has not been denied by Respondents No.1 and 2 nor have they stated that the transfers to SES and from SES were fraudulent. In fact PW-1 has relied on the internal notings and Register of Certificate Holders as well as the numerous correspondence with SES to establish that a valid transfer of physical sukuk certificates was made in favour of SES.

37. One of the most relevant set of facts in this case is that initially 300 sukuk certificates were physically transferred in favour of NFC, which is evident from the entries in the Register of Certificate Holders (Ex.D2-2). Thereafter, 72 physical certificates were transferred to SES, which is again evident from Ex.D2-2. For the purposes of the physical transfer, the witness PW-1 admits to the process undertaken for the transfer and the verification of the transfer. This is all detailed in the internal notings of Respondents No.1 and 2. This verification process of the 72 sukuk certificates took place several times with reference to SES, that is when it bought the 72 certificates from NFC and again when it substituted 72 certificates with 6 certificates and again when AIMC purchased 6 sukuk certificates from SES. In fact independent of the Wapda Bonds Cell verifications of the transfers made by SES, the broker, Global Securities and the CDC also confirmed the transfers after verifying the same which goes to the fact that SES bought and sold sukuk certificates. Ex.D2-13 being correspondence of Global Securities, the broker with MIIF, the CDC Trustee, confirming the purchase by AIMC of sukuk certificates from SES. Ex.P27 is a letter issued by SES to Respondents No.1 and 2 dated 6.3.2009 which encloses the 6 certificates and transfer deeds sold to AIMC. The transfer deeds (Ex.P26/1 to P.26/12) reflect the sale in favour of AIMC from SES, which is also reflected in the internal noting by Wapda and the Register of Certificate Holders (Ex.D2-1 and Ex.D2-2). The witness PW-1 vide letter dated 9.3.2009, Ex.P28 confirmed the sale in favour of AIMC from SES, after due verification. The witness confirmed that he issued Ex.P28 and that he verified the transaction. Hence PW-1 does not deny corresponding with SES and there is no evidence to assert or show that the correspondence with SES is fake or fraudulent. Further PW-1 states that all required approvals were taken to verify and confirm the transfers and that they were duly carried out. Accordingly he does not allege fraud in his evidence. Furthermore independent of Respondents No.1 and 2 and NFC, the CDC Trustee MIIF also verified the sale in favour of AIMC from SES as did the broker Global Securities vide Ex.D2-15 which finds mention in Respondents No.1 and 2 records, (Ex.D2-1) and which is admitted by PW-1. Finally, the 6 sukuk certificates were transferred to the CDS on 17.3.2009 (Ex.P32 and Ex.D2-19), which fact is also not denied. Payments made by AIMC to SES were also produced in evidence, Ex.D2-18 and confirmed by Syed Awais Wasti Company

Secretary/Chief Finance Officer AIMC as D2-DW1 and Muhammad Khurram Manager Legal Compliance CDC Karachi as D5-DW1. These payments are not denied or contested by PW-1 or by D1-DW1, D1-DW2. So Respondents No.1 and 2 have repeatedly verified the transfer to and from SES as have Global Securities and CDC and the issue of fraud or it being a fake entity is not in the evidence of Respondents No.1 and 2 and NFC.

38. On the issue of SES being a fake entity, the trial court concluded that SES is a fake entity yet interestingly there is no evidence on this issue nor was any document or witness relied on. The trial court has relied on the decision of Special Judge Central, Lahore (Ex.D1-32) and a forensic report (Ex.D1-22) to conclude that SES was a fake entity. We note that on this issue, there was no independent evidence before the trial court to conclude that SES was a fake entity. In this regard, it appears that the trial court accepted Respondents No.1 and 2 and NFC's version based on Ex.D1-22 and Ex.D1-32 without due appraisal of the evidence before it. What is also important to note is that SES was neither a party in the suit nor was SES called as a witness by any of the parties. So without any evidence from SES or against SES, the trial court concluded that it was a fake entity. Furthermore there is nothing in Faiz Ali Bokhari's D1-DW2 evidence to suggest that SES was a fake entity. He merely denies the execution of Ex.P24, however he does not state that SES is a fake entity. We find that NFC did not provide any evidence with reference to SES to establish that it did not exist and that it was a fake entity. So far as PW-1 is concerned, he denies any knowledge of SES being a fake entity. In this regard, neither Respondents No.1 and 2 nor NFC were able to explain Ex.D2-1 and Ex.D2-2 with reference to entries showing payments received by SES from AIMC nor did they adduce evidence to establish SES as a fake entity nor did they rely on Ex.D1-32 to endorse the decision of Special Judge (Central) Lahore.

39. The issue of fraud and forgery came to the knowledge of Respondents No.1 and 2 on 24.4.2009 (Ex.P33) when NFC wrote to Respondents No.1 and 2 that they had not been paid the full amount of the 7th ijara rentals payment as per the value of the 300 sukuk certificates. They again wrote on 25.4.2009 (Ex.P34) that they did not sell any certificates to SES. Respondents No.1 and 2 informed NFC of the sale in favour of SES vide letter dated 27.4.2009 (Ex.P35) and NFC claimed that it never sold any certificate to SES vide letter dated 28.4.2009 (Ex.D1-7). Thereafter Respondents No.1 and 2 formed a fact finding committee on 29.4.2009 which issued its report on 8.5.2009 (Ex.D1-11). It is in this Report that discrepancies are pointed out with the procedure followed for the sale of transfer of the sukuk certificates by Wapda Bonds Cell.

40. As per the fact finding report dated 8.5.2009 (Ex.D1-11), the employees of Wapda Bonds Cell were questioned regarding 72 sukuk certificates, its transfer to SES and also the issuance of 6 new sukuk certificates to SES. A comparison of the original certificates retained by NFC with the ones stated to have been transferred by NFC to SES was made, which revealed some discrepancies. Importantly, the fact finding committee concluded that employees of the Wapda Bonds Cell were negligent and did not comply with its contractual duties. Further that a forensic analysis should be carried out of the 72 sukuk certificates and related documents on the basis of which the sale by NFC to SES was made. On 5.8.2009 FIR No.28/2009 was registered by the FIA (Ex.D2-3) under Sections 409, 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 109 of the Pakistan Penal Code, 1908 ("PPC") read with Section 5(2)47 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 ("PCA") for investigating the fraudulent transfer to SES on a complaint by Anwar ul Haq, General Manager Finance, Wapda. Interim challan was submitted in the FIR Ex.D1-26 and Ex.D1-27, on 8.3.2010 (Ex.D1-25) and supplementary challan on 3.12.2010 (Ex.D1-28). The allegation in the FIR was that 72 sukuks were prepared and used fraudulently causing loss to Wapda. It was not Wapda's case that SES was a fake entity. This matter was brought up during the criminal investigation while finding that Mohammad Fajid, the account holder for SES, was allegedly impersonated for opening SES accounts, but we note that even during the investigation by the FIA, he was never called as a witness nor was any investigation made on this issue of impersonation. Furthermore the Special Judge Central Lahore relied on the use of a PCO fax machine to establish that SES was a fake entity. Most importantly the investigation primarily involved Wapda Bonds Cell employees and Faiz Ali Bokhari who was also questioned. However Ex.P24 and Ex.D2-2 were not considered. Even the correspondence with SES in its entirety was not considered. Ultimately, Special Judge Central, Lahore rendered his judgment (Ex.D1-32) and convicted some employees of Wapda Bonds Cell without actually giving any finding on the fraud. The Impugned Judgment has placed reliance on the criminal court's judgment as well as on the forensic report obtained with reference to the 72 sukuk certificates (Ex.D1-22) which finds that 72 sukuk certificates issued in favour of SES are fake certificates. What emerges from the Special Judge Central's judgment (Ex.D1-32) is that some officers of the Wapda Bonds Cell have been held responsible for forging and fabricating 72 sukuk certificates, which were statedly sold by NFC to SES. However there is no evidence on the forgery of Ex.P24. We also find that the offences under Sections 409, 419, 420, 468 and 471 of Pakistan Penal Code, 1908 were investigated by the FIA which are for offences committed by public servants being employees of Wapda, depriving it of a huge sum of money. So the judgment of Special Judge Central, Lahore essentially decides that Wapda was defrauded by some of its employees.

41. In a civil case where fraud is alleged, the general rule is that the person who pleads fraud must establish fraud. So the burden is on the person alleging fraud. The requirement of law is that the alleged fraud must be detailed, such that the person alleging fraud must set out all the details of the fraud that was committed with clarity and certainty. This is because the allegation of fraud is a serious allegation with significant consequences. Fraud is a term with wide connotations and cannot be construed within a strict definition. It has to be appreciated within the set of facts it is alleged in and it has to be asserted through evidence. Although fraud in general is a false representation or concealment of material facts made to induce a person to act upon it, the injured party has to provide the details of the fraud, has to show how they were deceived and the loss they have suffered so that its context can be assessed and the loss if any ascertained. In Taj Muhammad Khan through L.Rs and another v. Mst. Munawar Jan and 2 others (2009 SCMR 598), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the ingredients of fraud have to be narrated and stated by the person alleging it. In Ghulam Shabbir v. Mst. Nur Begum and others (PLD 1977 SC 75) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the person alleging fraud has to provide details of the fraud and has to provide clear and cogent evidence of the fraud. In Mst. Sahib Noor v. Haji Ahmad (1988 SCMR 1703) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that fraud must be described fully in the pleadings and the person alleging fraud must establish that a fake representation was made, that the representation was untrue and that the injured party acted on the untrue representation. Order VI Rule 4 CPC provides that in all cases in which fraud has been alleged, particulars have to be stated in the pleading. In a case of fraud, the pleadings have to clearly spell out a case of fraud. Further we find that when a deed is fraudulent it is a void transaction but if it is a voidable transaction then the court has to decide the matter accordingly. We also find that this case required the court to ascertain first and foremost whether fraud was proved from the evidence and then whether the fraud rendered the transaction void or voidable, which was fundamental to this case.

42. In this context, the standard of proof in civil cases is on the balance of probabilities that is what fact is more likely to have happened based on the evidence. This means every fact becomes relevant, its falsity is relevant, the deceitor's intent is relevant and the injury is relevant. The court will first ascertain the facts and once the facts are established decide whether they amount to fraud. Reliance is placed on Abdul Wahid v. Mst. Zamrut (PLD 1967 SC 153). In Zaheer Ahmed Qureshi through Legal Heirs v. Syed Iftikhar Hussain Shah (1999 SCMR 2605) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that both parties lead their evidence in respect of an issue, then the issue is to be decided on the basis of the evidence produced and placing onus to produce on one or the other party looses significance as the issue has to be decided on the preponderance of evidence. In Zakaullah Khan v. Muhammad Aslam and another (1991 SCMR 2126) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held as follows:

> The circumstances of each case must determine whether a prudent man ought to act upon the supposition that the facts exist from which a liability is to be inferred. What circumstances will constitute proof can never be the subject of a general definition. But one thing is clear that in Civil cases what is required or considered sufficient is preponderance of probability, while, in Criminal cases, owing to the serious consequences of an erroneous > condemnation both to the accused and the society, the persuasion of guilt must amount to such a moral certainty as convinces the minds of the tribunal, as reasonable men, beyond all reasonable doubt, Parket, B. in R. v. Sterne cited in "Best on Evidence", 11th Edition, page 34, In the Queen v. Madhub Chander Giril (1873) 21 W.R.Cr.13)

The august Supreme Court of Pakistan further held that:

> In ordinary Civil cases, a Judge of fact must find for the party in whose favour there is a preponderance of proof, although the evidence be not entirely free from doubt. In Criminal cases, no weight of preponderant evidence is sufficient, short of that which excludes all reasonable doubt. The party accused is entitled to the benefit of the legal presumption in favour of innocence, and in doubtful cases that may suffice to turn the scale in his favour.

Therefore as per the dicta of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan it is mandatory for the court in a civil trial to look at the entire evidence and decide the case on the basis of the evidence before it. Hence the overall appreciation of evidence is relevant and the burden of proof looses significance as that is relevant only to set out who is to adduce evidence. Also relevant is that the civil courts need to determine what facts are 'proved' or 'disproved' because it is on the basis of the facts that a case of fraud is to be established. This has been highlighted in Mst. Bakht Bibi v. Muhammad Aslam Khan and others (2016 MLD 1411). In the instant case, the trial court neglected to ascertain what facts are proved and whether on the basis of the proven facts, a case of fraud is made out.

43. The Qanun-e-Shahadat Order, 1984 provides for the rules of evidence on the basis of which the relevancy of facts, of proof, production and effect of evidence is made out. Essentially the person asserting a fact has to prove that fact, and a fact is proved when a court either believes it to exist or considers its existence to be probable, such that a prudent man ought to believe its existence. The balance of probabilities in civil cases gives the court the ability to determine whether a fact has occurred or is likely to have occurred. Hence the trial court tries to ascertain the factual truth from the evidence before it in its entirety. This is why the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that placing burden on one or the other party looses significance as the issue has to be decided on the preponderance of evidence. In a recent judgment, Messrs Sazco (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Askari Commercial Bank Limited (2021 SCMR 558), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that fraud requires strict proof and the onus to prove fraud remains on the asserter who must assert fraud through clear and cogent evidence. This means that the evidence adduced has to not only be proven but must also be relevant. Relevance has the tendency to make a fact more or less probable, for the purposes of evidence, otherwise the evidence cannot be fully appreciated. We find that the basic rules of evidence and appreciation of the same have not been followed by the trial court especially since this case relies a great deal on documentary and oral evidence which had to be considered in its entirety.

44. In this regard, the Respondent NFC has relied a great deal on cases to establish that it had satisfied the burden to prove fraud by denying the execution of Ex.P24, hence they argue that the burden shifted on to AIMC who was a beneficiary of the transactions in dispute. Even the Impugned Judgment has repeatedly held that the burden shifted on AIMC and the other subsequent buyers to establish the genuineness of Ex.P24 and the sale of the 72 sukuk certificates. NFC has relied on a host of cases wherein it has been held that it is the duty and obligation of the beneficiary of a transaction or document to prove the same. We have examined these cases and find that they are not relevant for the dispute at hand. The cases relied on deal with obligations inter se parties based on an agreement to sell (2015 SCMR 1), mutation (2010 SCMR 1370), (2010 SCMR 1358), sale deed (2010 SCMR 1351), gift (2005 SCMR 236). In these cases the beneficiary of the transaction was asked to establish the genuineness of the transaction being cases where the plaintiff asserted fraud and based on the plaintiff's evidence, the burden shifted to the beneficiary. In the cases before us, an interpleader suit was filed by Respondents No.1 and 2 to ascertain who is the owner of the 72 disputed sukuks. Respondents No.1 and 2 do not allege fraud in the suit. They claim they came to know of the forged letter when NFC informed them vide Ex.P33. NFC claims that it did not execute Ex.P24, hence it has discharged its burden to allege fraud and that AIMC had to establish the genuineness of Ex.P24 and the sale transactions in its favour. This assertion is incorrect as there is no set of facts or documents on the basis of which NFC has proved its assertion that Ex.P24 was not executed by D1-DW2. We note that the signatures of D1-DW2 were not compared with other signatures of D1-DW2 on letters produced in evidence nor was an expert consulted or any forensic made of Ex.P24 to establish that it was a forged document. Even the trial court of its own accord did not attempt to compare the letter head or contents or signatures of Ex.P24 with admitted documents of D1-DW2. In this regard, the cases relied upon by NFC as S.M. Zahir v. Pirzada Syed Fazal Ali Ajmeri (1974 SCMR 490), Ghulam Rasool and others v. Sardar-ul-Hassan and another (1997 SCMR 976) and Muslim Commercial Bank Ltd. through General Attorney and another v. Amir Hussain and another (1996 SCMR 464) do not support their contention, as in these cases the court made a comparison itself from admitted documents before concluding on fraud. AIMC established the transactions in its favour which issues have been decided in its favour (Issues No.14-E, 14-F and 14-G). Hence AIMC established its case of being the owner of 72 sukuk certificates. Furthermore, in these cases the relationship between the parties is tripartite, that is the buyer, the seller and Respondents No.1 and 2 who have a contractual obligation to the certificate holders on the basis of Ijara Agreement (Ex.P14) and Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16). Therefore the contractual obligations had to be considered. Furthermore AIMC and the other Appellants are subsequent purchasers and if at all a case of fraud was asserted, their plea of bonafide purchaser with no knowledge of the fraud had to be examined based on the evidence adduced. Hence the reliance on the cases by NFC and Respondents No.1 and 2 do not support their case.

45. In this context, Respondents No. 1 and 2 assert fraud came to their knowledge from letter dated 24.4.2009 (Ex.P33) when NFC wrote to Respondents No. 1 and 2 with reference to the 7th ijara payment and it not being paid as per the required value of their sukuk certificates. Respondents No. 1 and 2's only witness PW-1 does not give any particulars of the fraud or deceit rather exhibits all the relevant letters, transfer deeds, registers etc. to establish the procedure followed by Wapda Bonds Cell for the transfers made in favour of SES and the subsequent buyers. PW-1 does not rely on Ex.D1-32 to assert a case of fraud. In fact he affirms that Respondents No.1 and 2 took all necessary care and precaution while verifying the transfer of the sukuk certificates from NFC to SES, from SES to AIMC and subsequent thereof. During examination in chief PW-1 deposed that:

اس میں ہماری کوئی negligence نہ ہے۔

He also deposed during his cross-examination:

سکروٹنی میں غفلت نہ ہوسکتی ہے۔

Therefore we find that Respondents No. 1 and 2 failed to establish a case of fraud or forgery. So far as NFC is concerned, they relied upon the forensic report of the 72 sukuk certificates (Ex.D1-22) which cannot be relied upon because the author of the report was never examined in court. For the purposes of the trial court, the author of the report had to appear in court as a witness and had to be subjected to cross examination. Without this, the evidence is inadmissible as this fact has not been proven. Reliance is placed on PLD 2014 SC 696 (supra) and 1974 SCMR 411(supra). So far as the judgment in the criminal case (Ex.D1-32), this also could not form the basis of a decision for the trial court, especially since the Impugned Judgment failed to examine the total evidence before it. Reliance is placed on PLD 1963 SC 157(supra) and 1995 SCMR 500(supra) wherein the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that a court has to judge upon the facts in its case, established by evidence and cannot rely on the findings in some other case. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also held that the findings in a criminal case are not binding on a civil court because the findings in a criminal case are not relevant for a civil dispute which has to be decided on the preponderance of probabilities. Reliance is placed on Mst. Mehrun Nisa v. Zainul Abidin and 5 others (1995 SCMR 1139). Once again the emphasis in these cited cases is on the balance of probabilities and appreciation of the entire evidence before the court. Therefore we find that reliance on the criminal judgment in totality is misconceived and against the law. The only other aspect of NFC's case of fraud is that they have in their possession the original sukuks Ex.D1-23/1 to Ex.D1-23/72. However these were never examined in evidence nor were Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72 or Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/6 examined for being fraudulent or fabricated. Hence to this extent their entire case is that they have in their possession Ex.D1-23/1 to Ex.D1-23/72 which they claim were the original sukuk certificates issued by Wapda Bonds Cell in their favour yet they did not attempt to have these examined during evidence to compare them with the so called fraudulent sukuk certificates.

46. We have examined the record and the evidence and find that for the purposes of establishing clearly that fraud and forgery took place NFC had to establish its case of forgery of Ex.P24 and also had to establish its case that the certificates issued to SES were not the original certificates. Respondents No.1 and 2 have placed heavy reliance on the statement of PW-1, however, he provides no evidence or details of the fraud and is not able to explain how fraud or the forgery was committed by the employees of Wapda Bonds Cell. In fact he does not depose on the issue of fraud as he claims that the sale to SES by NFC was genuine and if at all there is fraud it was against Respondents No.1 and 2 and not by them. The emphasis placed on Ex.P24 being the letter issued by Faiz Ali Bokhari (D1-DW2) dated 12.2.2009 instructing Wapda Bonds Cell to transfer 72 sukuk certificates in favour of SES was denied by D1-DW2 yet there was no forensic examination of the said letter and there was no comparison of the signatures by a handwriting expert. The author of the letter Faiz Ali Bokhari (D1-DW2) merely stated that he did not write the said letter and did not sign the same but he gave no other evidence to establish that Ex.P24 was a forged document. Interestingly while Respondents No.1 and 2 formed an internal fact finding committee to ascertain who amongst its employees were responsible for carrying out the forgery and the fraud yet NFC never conducted any internal inquiry with reference to Ex.P24 nor did they submit any independent evidence to establish that the letter Ex.P24 was a forged and fabricated letter. This fact is admitted by their witness D1-DW1 and D1-DW2. We also note that Ex.P24 was not discussed in the judgment rendered by the Special Judge Central, Lahore nor was any finding given with reference to the signatures and its forgery as alleged by NFC. As already stated the evidence on the transfer deeds and the noting on its back side showing the transfer from NFC to SES and then from SES to AIMC is not denied by PW-1 (Ex.P25-1 to Ex.P25-72 and Ex.P26-1 to Ex.P26-6). The Register of Certificate Holders (Ex.D2-2) which testifies to the transfer taking place is not denied. NFC did not have its original 72 sukuk certificates examined in evidence by the trial court nor was any independent forensic report called for or relied upon in the proceedings before the trial court with reference to the forged sukuk certificates being Ex.P25-1 to Ex.P25-72 or the subsequent 6 sukuks being Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/6. Hence there is no evidence in the trial court on the forgery and fraud of the sukuk certificates or any evidence to establish that the certificates issued to SES were fraudulently made and the ones in NFC's possession are genuine. Also NFC did not produce any bank statement or account statement to show that at the relevant time, it never received any payment from SES. So if there was any fraud the trial court failed to ascertain the beneficiary of the fraud and forgery. Furthermore the Impugned Judgment has relied totally on the findings given in the forensic report (Ex.D1-22) issued with reference to the sukuk certificates which as we have already held it could not have. We find that since the transfer from NFC to SES was made through physical sukuk certificates, the evidence of Respondents No.1 and 2 was vital as they carried out the entire transaction and were responsible for the physical verification of the sukuk certificates. As they admit to the transaction and do not allege fraud, they cannot assert that a case of fraud has been established.

47. We have also examined the evidence of NFC through the D1-DW1 and D1-DW2 as well as the documentary evidence with reference to the issue of fraud and forgery. Even if the trial court were to rely on the judgment of Special Judge Central, Lahore (Ex.D1-32) at best a case of criminal breach of trust of public servants and negligence is made out against the employees of Wapda and the Sukuk Company. This means that even if the trial court were to give some consideration to Ex.D1-32, it had to balance the evidence produced by the Appellants, particularly with reference to the transfer of the sukuk certificates to the subsequent buyers and their plea of bona fide purchasers. Also the transfer into the CDS and the effect thereof should have been duly considered. Most importantly, the transaction documents and the relationship of the parties under the transaction documents should have been considered. The Purchase Agreement (Ex.P12) shows that the Sukuk Company is the purchaser of turbines from Wapda who is the seller. Along with this Purchase Agreement, a Purchase Undertaking (Ex.P13) was issued by

Wapda whereby it provided an irrevocable undertaking in respect of the turbines to the Sukuk Company. The Sukuk Company entered into an Ijara Agreement (Ex.P14) with Wapda and MCB as the delegatee. As per this Agreement, rental payments had to be paid by Wapda, semi-annually to the investor in the sukuks issued by the Sukuk Company pursuant to the Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16). The parties also executed an Agency Agreement (Ex.P15) with Jahangir Siddiqui and Company Limited as the reference agent, where Wapda Bonds Cell is the Registrar, Transfer Agent and Replacement Agent for the sukuk certificates. As per this agreement, Wapda Bonds Cell, which is not a separate entity but part of Respondent No.2, was appointed as the Registrar and Transfer Agent in respect of the sukuk certificates and as Replacement Agent of the certificates. The duty of the Registrar that is Wapda Bonds Cell was to register all transfers, receive documents in relation to or effecting the title of any certificate and maintain proper record of the details of the documents and certificates, and prepare a list of certificate holders amongst others. As the Transfer Agent, Wapda Bonds Cell was required to implement the regulations set out in the Agreement for the transfer of certificates. The Agreement provided that Wapda Bonds Cell can make regulations for the purposes of the transfer of the sukuk certificates and that it can also issue replacement of the certificates and cancel certificates. As per the Agency Agreement, the owner of the certificate should be clearly reflected in the Register of Holders of Certificates. This document essentially sets out the rights of the certificate holders and the obligations cast upon the trustee with reference to the rights of the certificate holders. Admittedly, Respondents No.1 and 2 did not issue any regulations until 9.5.2009 for transfer of the sukuk certificates, when Wapda issued the SOP's for transfer of the certificates through its notification dated 9.5.2009 (Ex.D2-9) which means that for the purposes of the disputed transfer from NFC to SES and for SES to AIMC, the relevant process for transfer is contained in the internal noting of Respondents No.1 and 2 Ex.D2-1 and reflected in Ex.D2-2. We therefore find that the transaction documents creates several obligations on the part of Respondents No.1 and 2 to maintain, verify and transfer the sukuk certificates and it offers certain guarantees and warranties to certificate holders. Significantly the name in the Register of Certificate Holders is the name of the owner of the sukuk certificates which document is not challenged or denied.

48. The other relevant factor which was not considered was the concept of trading through the CDC system. As per the record and the evidence before us the initial sale in favour of NFC was through physical sukuk certificates, the sale from NFC to SES was also on the basis of physical sukuk certificates, however the sale in favour of AIMC from SES was not only in the form of physical certificates but it was also registered on the CDS and subsequent thereof the sales were through the CDC. The Appellants provided evidence in respect to their contention that they had no knowledge of the fraud, were not party to the fraud as the sukuk certificates were purchased through the CDS in book entry form. Hence they argued that the effect and process had to be considered. We find that these facts and the evidence relied upon were also relevant because the issue of fraud is between Respondents No.1 and 2, NFC and SES. The Appellants are all subsequent purchasers who as per the evidence of Respondents No.1 and 2 and NFC were not involved in the fraud or forgery. Furthermore, for the purposes of the transfer in favour of the Appellants, the CD Act and the Central Depository Company of Pakistan Limited Regulations ("Regulations") had to be taken into consideration. PW-1 recognizes this fact and acknowledges it in his evidence that once the trade began through the CDC, their rules and regulations were applicable and Wapda's SOPs were no longer relevant. This means that the sale in favour of AIMC and the subsequent buyers, being the Appellants before this Court had to be seen in the context of the CD Act and the Regulations and their rights had to be determined accordingly.

49. What transpires from the above is as follows:

(a) Wapda did not prove fraud or forgery with reference to the sale in favour of SES by NFC;

(b) NFC did not prove fraud or forgery with reference to the sale in favour of SES by NFC;

(c) NFC did not prove that Ex.P24 is a forged document nor did it prove that D1-DW2, Faiz Ali Bokhari did not execute Ex.P24;

(d) The record shows the transfers in favour of SES and by SES were verified and confirmed on the basis of Ex.D2-1 and Ex.D2-2 and the evidence of PW-1;

(e) Consequently Issues No.2 and 14 are decided such that no fraud or forgery took place with respect to the transfer of 72 sukuk certificates in favour of SES and therefore the subsequent transfers were not vitiated.

Title

50. Issues related to title that is who is the lawful owner of the disputed sukuk certificates have been decided through Issues No.3, 8, 13, 14-A and 14-E, 14F and 14G. Amongst these the relevant issues are Issue No.3, 13 and 14-A which are with reference to the title of the Appellants and the title of NFC. The burden to prove Issue No.13 was on NFC. The Impugned Judgment concluded that since the original 72 sukuk certificates were produced in evidence as Ex.D1-23/1 to Ex.D1-23/72 and since the sukuk certificates surrendered by SES being Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72 are forged and fraudulent, consequently no valid transfer was made in favour of the Appellants, hence NFC is the true and lawful owner of the 72 sukuk certificates. With reference to Issue No.3, the burden was placed on the Appellants and the Impugned Judgment concluded that since the 72 sukuk certificates (Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72) were transferred in favour of SES fraudulently, hence the transferees stepped into the shoes of SES and do not have valid title in their favour. The Impugned Judgment concluded that the issuance of 6 new sukuk certificates (Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/6) in substitution of the 72 sukuk certificates does not create a new debt, hence it cannot be said that the Appellants are the owners of any sukuk certificate. Issue No.14-A was consequently decided against the Appellants and in favour of NFC.

51. The Impugned Judgment has relied upon its finding on Issue No.2 and 14 with reference to fraud while deciding in favour of NFC but again it has not considered the evidence of the Appellants or the evidence produced by Respondents No.1 and 2. In this regard, PW-1 has not denied the sale in favour of SES by NFC and the sale in favour of AIMC. We have already given details of the evidence in favour of the transfer where reliance has been placed on Ex.D2-1, the internal noting of Wapda Bonds Cell and Ex.D2-2 being the Register of Certificate Holders. We have also relied upon the repeated verifications made by Wapda Bonds Cell confirming the transfers in favour of SES (Ex.P25 and Ex.P29). PW-1 also does not deny that he issued letter dated 20.2.2009 (Ex.P29) for issuance of 6 sukuk certificates against 72 sukuk certificates originally issued to SES. The 72 sukuk certificates were presented by SES to Wapda Bond Cell (Ex.P25/1 to Ex.P25/72) and Wapda Bonds Cell issued 6 new physical certificates valuing Rs.180,000,000 (Ex.P26/1 to Ex.P26/6) in place of 72 sukuk certificates. This transfer is duly noted in Ex.D2-1 and registered in Ex.D2-2 and accepted by PW-1. From the evidence we note that it is an admitted position that at the time of issuing 6 new sukuk certificates, Wapda Bonds Cell carried out its verifications and verified the transfer in favour of SES. The Impugned Judgment in Issue No.11 held this exchange to be part of the same debt, which is not questioned by the Appellants before us. SES then sold its 6 sukuk certificates to AIMC which is evident in letter dated 4.3.2009 (Ex.P26) by AIMC to the Sukuk Company intimating the purchase of 6 sukuk certificates from SES. This sale was carried out by Global Securities, the broker of AIMC who wrote to the CDC Trustee, MIIF and confirmed the purchase in favour of SES (Ex.D2-13 and Ex.D2-15). Thereafter AIMC issued letter dated 5.3.2009 to CDC Trustee, MIIF issuing instructions for the purchase of 6 sukuk certificates (Ex.D2-14). Subsequently letter dated 13.3.2009 from SES to CDC regarding purchase of 6 sukuk certificates by AIMC (Ex.D2-16) and thereafter letter dated 13.3.2009 (Ex.D2-17) confirming the purchase. In this regard, we note that this evidence has not been denied or questioned by NFC. In fact the correspondence issued by SES has also not been challenged or questioned for being fraudulent or by a fake entity. The payment made by AIMC to SES was produced in evidence as Ex.D2-18 which shows payment of Rs.190,792,800/- on 16.3.2009 and entries in favour of AIMC in the Register of Certificate Holders in place of NFC. This fact is verified and confirmed by PW-1 confirming the same through his evidence:

یہ درست ہے کہ جبSES نے 72 فزیکل سکوک سرٹیفیکیٹس حاصل کئےSES نے اُن کو پہلے واپڈا بانڈ سیل میں Surrender کیا پھر 6 نئے سرٹیفیکیٹس اُن کو جاری ہوئے۔

This sale in favour of AIMC of 6 sukuk certificates was then transferred to the CDS. Again PW-1 verifies and testifies to this fact in his evidence as does D2-DW1. In continuation of this transaction, ijara payments were made to AIMC (Ex.D2-20) which was also confirmed by PW1 in his evidence. D2-DW1, the witness of AIMC also testifies to the facts of verification, payment and transfer on the CDS. He suggests no knowledge of the fraud and states AIMC to be the owner of the 6 sukuk certificates. In this context, Issue No.14-E was framed with reference to the confirmation to Global Securities of the transfer of 6 sukuk certificates in the name of AIMC, which the court concluded in favour of AIMC holding that this transfer did take place. Issue No.14-F was framed regarding 6 transfer deeds pertaining to 72 sukuk certificates verifying and confirming AIMC as the owner of the sukuks, which the court decided in favour of AIMC. Furthermore Issue No.14-G was framed pertaining to the verification of transfer deeds and that six physical certificate replacing 72 sukuk certificates be converted into scripless form and be transferred in the CDC account. We note that this issue was also decided in favour of AIMC, based on the evidence. Hence for the purposes of the sale from SES to AIMC, we find that the same stands established from the record and decided in favour of AIMC.

52. AIMC sold its 6 sukuk certificates (representing 36000 units) to IFSL in the open market on 18.5.2009 and 23.6.2009. In this regard the evidence produced by AIMC was Ex.D2-22 to Ex.D2-27 which basically includes letter dated 18.5.2009 from AMIC to CDC Trustee-MIIF (Ex.D2-22) regarding the sale of sukuk through three transactions being 10000, 12000 and 14000 sukuk units, letter dated 18.5.2009 (Ex.D2-23) from IFSL to CDC Trustee, MIIF regarding the purchase of 10000 sukuks, letter dated 23.6.2009 (Ex.D2-24) from AIMC to CDC Trustee MIIF regarding sale of 12000 sukuks, letter dated 23.6.2009 (Ex.D2-25) from IFSL to CDC Trustee MIIF regarding purchase of 12000 sukuks and letter dated 23.6.2009 (Ex.D2-26) from AIMC to CDC Trustee, MIIF confirming sale of 14000 sukuks. Sale consideration received by the CDC Trustee, MIIF in its accounts were exhibited as Ex.D2-28 and Ex.D2-29. This evidence stands proven and is neither denied nor questioned by Respondents No.1 and 2 and NFC. Presently AIMC is not the owner of any sukuk certificate.

53. Thereafter IFSL sold its 22000 sukuks in favour of MBL through the CDC which is evident from letter dated 23.6.2009 issued by IFSL to MBL for the confirmation of the sale of 12000 sukuks (Ex.D6-5). The second transaction was through the CDC as is evident from letter dated 23.6.2019 from Al Falah Securities (Private) Limited to MBL (Ex.D6-6) confirming purchase of 10000 sukuks, MBL produced RTGs message dated 24.6.2009 (Ex.D6-7) for Rs.60,532,200/-, RTGs message dated 29.6.2009 (Ex.D6-9) for Rs.49,814,750/-. In this regard MBL made payment in the amount of Rs.110,346,950/- and thereafter entry of MBL in the Register of Certificate Holders was also made. Furthermore entry was also made in the CDC record regarding MBL. Its witness D6-DW1 also testified in favour of the purchase having no knowledge of the fraud. He testified to the purchase, the verification and payment and asserts MBL to be the owner of the sukuk certificates. Presently MBL is the owner of 22000 sukuks.

54. Thereafter SBL being Appellant in RFA No.50966/2017 purchased 4000 sukuks and received ijara payments until the dispute arose. On 18.9.2009 UBL offered 4000 sukuks originally issued by the Sukuk Company having face value of Rs.20,000,000 to SBL which were available in electronic/scripting form on the CDC system. On 28.9.2009 SBL agreed to purchase the sukuks and subsequently the said sale was confirmed by the broker and the CDC on 29.9.2009. SBL has relied upon Ex.D4-1 being CDC's Activity Report dated 29.9.2009 showing ownership of SBL of the sukuk certificates on the CDC system as a purchaser from UBL Amin, letter dated 18.9.2009 (Ex.D4-4) from UBL Amin to SBL offering outright sale of the sukuk certificates, letter dated 28.9.2009 (Ex.D4-5) acceptance of letter dated 18.9.2009 issued by UBL Ameen communicating its acceptance of UBL Ameen's offer. Ex.D4-6 is Rts/X System Report demonstrating confirmation of transaction between SBL and the UBL Ameen regarding sukuk certificates. Its witness D4-DW1 also testified in favour of the purchase in its favour having no knowledge of the fraud. He testifies to the purchase, verification and payment and asserts SBL to be the owner of the sukuk certificates. Presently SBL is the owner of 4000 sukuk certificates. Bank Islami was proceeded against ex-parte by the trial court vide order dated 21.5.2015. Presently Bank Islami claims ownership of 10000 sukuk certificates.

55. The evidence which goes to the root of the issue of title is Ex.D2-2, the Register of Certificate Holders. The Register of Certificate Holders records the Appellants as owners and is not denied by PW-1 or DW1-D1 or DW1-D2 being the witnesses of NFC. The Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16) executed by the Sukuk Company provides that a certificate holder is one whose name is in the Register, thereby certifying to the title. Hence the Register of Certificate Holders is the document of title, which is binding on all parties as it names the owner of the sukuk certificate. As per the terms and conditions of the certificates contained in the Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16), title to the certificates passes only by transferer in the CDS and registration in the Register of Certificate Holders kept by the issuer, the Sukuk Company. As per this document, the registered holder of a certificate is the absolute owner of the sukuk certificates for all purposes. Then there is the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15) wherein clause 19.4 also provides that each registered holder of a sukuk certificate is the absolute owner of the sukuk certificates. As the Register of Certificate Holders is admitted by PW-1 and each registered owner is also accepted by PW-1, this Register testifies to the title of the owners registered in it.

56. From the evidence adduced by PW-1, it is clear that PW-1 accepts all the transfers and states that every transfer is a valid transfer certifying their ownership. Furthermore PW-1 has not questioned any transfer of sukuk certificates or units nor alleged any to be fraudulent. In the same way neither has NFC denied the title in the Register of Certificate Holders. Therefore on the basis of the transaction documents for all intents and purposes since the Appellants are all registered in the Register of Certificate Holders they are the lawful owners of their sukuk certificates. Issues No.3, 8, 13, 13A and 14A are decided such that the Appellants are the lawful owners of their sukuk certificates entitled to all ijara payments and NFC is not the owner of the 72 sukuk certificates under dispute.

Section 11 of the CD Act and its effect

57. Connected with the issue of title, is the effect of the trade through the CDC and its impact on the rights of certificate holders. In this regard, CDC, Respondent No.6 has filed RFA No.67900/2017 limited with respect to Issue No.14-H which is whether there is a bar on the rectification of the Central Depository Register in light of section 11 of the CD Act. The Impugned Judgment concluded that Section 11 of the CD Act cannot override fraud, if it is established as it is settled law that fraud vitiates the most solemn of proceedings and any structure built on a foundation of fraud will fall like a house of cards. The court concluded on the basis of its findings on Issue No.14 that the sukuk certificates in favour of SES were fraudulent. Hence the entire transaction and subsequent transactions are fraudulent and Section 11 of the CD Act does not protect these transactions.

58. Learned counsel for Respondent CDC stated that the CDC is the Central Depository registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan ("SECP") which operates as a central depository system for securities under the CD Act and the Regulations framed thereunder. It is a Non-Banking Finance Company ("NBFC") which provides services as a trustee to various NBFCs including AIMC.

Learned counsel argued that interpretation of Section 11 of the CD Act as given in the Impugned Judgment is contrary to the basic mandate of the law and that the trial court has not given due consideration to the effect of Section 11 of the CD Act and the role of the CDC. Learned counsel argued that the CDC's role in the sale/purchase of the sukuk certificates was that of trustee and it has acted in accordance with the instructions of the AIMC as per clause 9 of the Trust Deed. Learned counsel further argued that transfers on the CDC are not in physical form but through a book entry system. He explained that CDS was established in accordance with the Regulations wherein accounts are opened and maintained with the Central Depository by the account holder so as to record the title of the account holder to book entry securities entered in their accounts. Transfers on the CDC are affected electronically and Section 6 and 7 of the CD Act regulates the transfers under the book entry system and its effect. He further explained that Section 11 of the CD Act clearly provides that where an account holder does not give its consent to transfer of any book entry security from or to his account or where the name of account holder is fraudulently entered or omitted from the CDS, the aggrieved party can apply to the court for relief and can be awarded damages but they cannot order for the rectification of the Central Depository Register. Learned counsel explained that Central Depository Register is a computerized electronic register in respect of book entry securities which evidences the name of the holders of the securities. These names are protected by virtue of Section 11 of the CD Act, particularly in the case of fraud and therefore the finding that fraud vitiates the most solemn of proceedings with reference to the entry in the CDS is totally without basis. Respondent No.6, CDC produced one witness namely Muhammad Khurram son of Muhammad Zikar, Manager Legal Compliance CDC, Karachi as D5-DW1 and relied on Ex.D5-1 to Ex.D5-9 and Mark D5-A and Mark D5-B to show the transactions made through the CDS and its correspondence with the Sukuk Company with reference to the rectification of the entries in the CDS as well as stoppage of transaction through the CDS.

59. We have examined the documents and the evidence deposed by D5-DW1 and find that the transfers on the CDS are regulated by the CD Act and the Regulations. Important to note is that the registration of book entry transfers on the CDS are not denied by PW-1 nor were they questioned by the witnesses of D1-DW1 and D1-DW2. The initial transfers were in physical form from NFC to SES and from SES to AIMC. However, the physical certificates were converted into electronic scripless form and entered on the CDS in the account of the CDC trustee with reference to the transfer in favour of AIMC. As per the CD Act, the Central Depository Register is a computerized electronic register maintained by the Central Depository in respect of book entry securities. A transfer of the book entry security made under the CD Act is a valid and effective transfer of title of the securities represented by the book entry securities in terms of Section 6 of the CD Act. Section 11 of the CD Act reads as follows:

> Bar on rectification of central depository register. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 152 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984 (XLVII of 1984), if
> (a) an account-holder or a sub-account holder did not consent to a transfer of any book-entry securities from, or to, his account or sub account, as the case may be; or
>
> (b) The name of any account-holder or sub-account holder is fraudulently or without sufficient cause entered in, or omitted from, the central depository register,
> The aggrieved party may apply to the court for relief and the court may award damages to the aggrieved party but shall not order rectification of the central depository register.

The purpose of Section 11 of the CD Act is essentially to allow the smooth transfer of securities on a reliable and regulated system, such that it not only protects the transaction but also the title of the security holders. PW-1 admits to this fact and also admits that the transfer in favour of AIMC or the other Appellants and admits that subsequent sales were all verified from the CDC. Hence again Respondents No.1 and 2 have not denied the ownership rights of the Appellants as reflected on the CDS:

> یہ درست ہے کہ فزیکل سکوک سرٹیفیکیٹس کے اوپر Transaction Document لاگو ہوتے ہیں جبکہ CDC سسٹم پر CDC کی ریگولیشن اور قانون لاگو ہوتے ہیں۔
> سوال منجانب کونسل مدعا علیہم 6! کیا جب CDC کے اندر سکوک ایک شخص سے دوسرے کو منتقل ہو تے ہیں تو اس منتقلی کی اطلاع فرسٹ سکوک کمپنی یا واپڈا بانڈسیل کو آتی ہے؟

جوا ب منجانب PW-1 : میرے علم کے مطابق CDC یہ اطلاع نہیں دیتی۔
یہ درست ہے کہ مدعا علیہم نمبر 6 نے مذکورہ -/22,000 سکوک CDC پر خریدے تھے۔ ازخود کہا کہ یہ خرید واپڈا کی Involvement کے بغیر خریدے تھے۔
یہ درست ہے کہ فزیکل سرٹیفیکیٹس کے CDS سسٹم پر آنے کے بعد واپڈا بانڈ سیل کے قواعد و ضوابط لاگو نہ ہوتے ہیں۔ یہ درست ہے کہ CDS سسٹم پر آنے کے بعد Sale Purchase سے متعلق CDC کے قواعدو ضوابط لاگو ہوتے ہیں۔
یہ درست ہے کہ قواعد و ضوابط کے تحت کسی بھی Subsequent ٹرانسفری کے لیے ضروری نہ تھا کہ وہ الیکٹرانک فارم یا بک انٹری کی صورت میں سکوک سرٹیفیکیٹس لینے سے پہلے سکوک کمپنی سے Verify کرتا۔

So far as the interpretation of Section 11 of the CD Act is concerned, the Impugned Judgment has relied upon the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, in this case, in review being C.M.A. No.3443-L/2016 in C.R.P. Nil/2016 in C.A No.104-L/2015 and C.R.P. 71-L/2016 in C.A 104-L/2015 dated 21.8.2017 where the august Supreme Court of Pakistan clarified its order in PLD 2017 SC 1 (supra) that the interpretation given is peculiar to the set of facts of this case and that the observation made shall not affect the authority of the CDC or the finality of its record. In this regard we find that the CDC is the only securities depository in Pakistan, established for handling electronic transactions, in book entry form. This means that the system issues and transfers securities electronically where the physical existence of the security does not have any relevance. Section 11 of the CD Act prohibits any rectification on the CD Register and requires the aggrieved party to approach the court for relief in the form of damages. However the CD Register cannot be ordered to be rectified. Clearly this means that even in a case of fraud at best, the aggrieved party can seek damages but cannot seek rectification of the CD Register. The sanctity attached to the register which depicts title is clearly protected under the CD Act and is fundamental to investor trust, for the CDC to function effectively. So far as the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan is concerned in the review, the stance of the CDC was accepted. Hence we find that the matter in issue has also been decided by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in favour of the CDC. Furthermore since we have relied on the CDS for the purposes of title and ownership, the findings in the Impugned Judgment on issue

No.14-H are totally without basis. Therefore Issue No.14-H is decided in favour of CDC, such that statutory protection under Section 11 of the CD Act is available to the transactions on the CDC, even in cases of fraud.

The scope of an Interpleader Suit

60. The objection raised by the counsel for Wapda is with respect to the scope of the interpleader suit. This objection has been partially discussed in issue No.4, 14-C being, If forgery or fraud took place, the plaintiffs are vicariously liable to the holders or Sukuk Certificate for such forgery or fraud committed by their employees, and the plaintiffs are liable to their negligence, for an amount equivalent to the value the Sukuk and the Ijara thereon? and Whether the plaintiffs have committed serious breach of the trust and contract and have failed to discharge their obligations, duties and responsibilities and are thus not entitled to obtain indemnity for themselves?.

61. As per the contention of the counsel for Respondents No.1 and 2, the interpleader suit in terms of Section 88 of the CPC will decide the question of ownership of the disputed sukuk certificates and the alternative relief that the Appellants seek in the form of damages and compensation cannot be granted in the interpleader suit. On the other hand, the Appellants contend that the dispute has to be decided in its entirety before this Court in the RFAs as Respondents No.1 and 2 have to be made responsible for payments due to the Appellants in the form of the principal amount, ijara payments and mark up, the court not declare in their favour. They argue that the scope of interpleader suit has to be construed liberally so as to ensure that the Appellants are not deprived of their right to raise claims against Wapda and the Sukuk Company. Under the circumstances, it is necessary to examine the scope of an interpleader suit and whether the alternative prayer for damages and compensation for the Appellants can be adjudged in the interpleader suit. The Impugned Judgment finds that Wapda and the Sukuk Company are not liable for the transfer in favour of SES because they had no knowledge of the fraud and acted in good faith on the instructions of NFC. The Impugned Judgment finds Wapda and the Sukuk Company to be victim of fraud, hence not liable for breach of trust or negligence.

62. Section 88 read with Order XXXV of the CPC provides for the interpleader suit in the following terms:

Section 88 CPC

Where inter-pleader suit may be instituted.—Where two or more persons claim adversely to one another the same debt, sum of money or other property, movable or immovable, from another person, who claims no interest therein other than for charges or costs and who is ready to pay or deliver it to the rightful claimant, such other person may institute a suit of interpleader against all the claimants for the purpose of obtaining a decision as to the person to whom the payment or delivery shall be made and of obtaining indemnity for himself;

Provided that where any suit is pending in which the rights of all parties can properly be decided, no such suit of interpleader shall be instituted.

Order XXXV CPC

1. Plaint in interpleader suits. In every suit of interpleader the plaint shall, in addition to other statements necessary for plaints, state—(a) that the plaintiff claims no interest in the subject matter in dispute other than for charges or costs;

(b) the claims made by the defendants severally; and ,

(c) that there is no collusion between the plaintiff and any of the defendants.

2. Payment of thing claimed into court.—where the thing claimed is capable of being paid into Court or placed in the custody of the court the plaintiff may be required to so pay or place it before he can be entitled to any order in the suit.

3. Procedure where defendant is suing plaintiff,-- where any of the defendants in an interpleader suit is actually suing the plaintiff in respect of the subject matter of such suit, the Court in which the suit against the plaintiff is pending shall, on being informed by the court in which the interpleader suit has been instituted, stay the proceedings as against him; and his costs in the suit so stayed may be provided for in such suit; but if and in so far as, they are not provided for in that suit, they may be added to his costs incurred in the interpleader suit.

4. Procedure at first hearing.-(l) At the first hearing the Court may--

(a) declare that the plaintiff is discharged from all liability to the defendants in respects of the thing claimed, award him his costs, and dismiss him from the suit; or

b) if it thinks that justice or convenience so require, retain all parties until the final disposal of the suit.

(2) Where the Court finds that the admissions of the parties or other evidence enable it to do so, it may adjudicate the title to the thing claimed.

(3) Where the admissions of the parties do not enable the Court so to adjudicate it may direct--

(a) that an issue or issues between the parties be framed and tried, and

(b) that any claimant be made a plaintiff in lieu of or in addition to the original plaintiff and shall proceed to try the suit in the ordinary manner.

5. Agent and tenants may not institute interpleader suit. Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to enable agents to sue their principals, or tenants to sue their landlords, for the purpose of compelling them to interplead with any persons other than persons making claim through such principals or the landlords.

63. As per this Section, where there are rival claimants with respect to the same debt against the same person, which person being the stakeholder claims no interest in the debt other than for charges or cost, who is ready to pay or deliver the debt to the rival claimants then such a person can institute a suit of interpleader against all claimants for the purposes of obtaining a decision as to whom the payment or delivery must be made to. The interpleader suit therefore is filed by a person to determine the rightful owner of a debt or property amongst rival claimants so as to avoid multiplicity of litigation and conflicting judgments. It is a joinder device whereby all those who claim any interest in the same debt or property are joined in one action within which they may assert their claim against the debt or property. In terms of the requirements of Section 88 CPC, the rival claimants must all seek a claim against the same debt, against the same person who claims no interest in the debt and is willing to make payment or delivery of the debt or property to the lawful claimant. So the party which is confronted with conflicting claims from rival claimants does not itself have any claim in the debt and may in good faith interplead various different claimants so as to ensure that conflicting rights or claims against the same property or debt are decisively determined in one case, such that to whom the debt has to be paid. It is imperative that the party faced with the rival claimants must not have any interest in the debt itself and must be willing to discharge its liability in totality towards those seeking the debt. Hence the purpose of the interpleader suit is not only to avoid multiple litigation but also to protect the stakeholder from conflicting claims to the same debt or property. The logic being that when all actions are joined together then all claims are adjudged with respect to the same debt or property in the same suit to determine who is entitled to the same debt or property. This avoids the expenditures and inconvenience of multiple cases which may also result in conflicting orders and adverse rulings by different courts.

64. In this regard, it is important to note that in the instant case, the interpleader suit was originally filed on 12.12.2009 but was rejected by the trial court vide order dated 21.5.2010 on the ground that interpleader suit is not maintainable. Wapda then filed an appeal being RFA No.779/2010 before the Lahore High Court, Lahore which concluded that the interpleader suit was maintainable vide its judgment dated 17.2.2015 in WAPDA First Sukuk Company through Director/Company Secretary and another v. National Fertilizer Corporation of Pakistan (Pvt.) Ltd. through Chief Executive and 4 others (2015 CLC 934). Against this judgment, the Appellants went to the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in PLD 2017 SC 1 (supra) which also concluded that the interpleader suit was maintainable and a direction was given to the civil court to proceed with the interpleader suit on a day to day basis and decide the same as soon as possible. Against this judgment, a review was filed by the CDC with reference to their own grievance which was decided on 21.8.2017. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan in PLD 2017 SC 1(supra) held that the law of interpleader may have its origins in equity but since it has been codified in the CPC, equity must yield to law. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan also held that there are certain condition precedents which are required to be satisfied before an interpleader suit can be filed. First there must be rival claimants, second it must be for the same debt, sum of money or property movable or immovable claimed by two or more claimants and third the person from whom the debt, sum of money etc. is being claimed must have no interest in the debt or property. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan further held that interpleader suit brings all claimants of the disputed sukuk certificates before the civil court at Lahore and it is in this interpleader suit that it can be definitively decided as to who is the true and original owner of the disputed sukuk certificates. Hence the august Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded that the suit was lawful and all claimants should be joined and made party to the interpleader suit. Hence for the purposes of Issues No.6,12 and 14-B the decision of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan prevailed that the interpleader suit is maintainable.

65. The question that arises is whether the alternative prayers of the Appellants can be granted in the interpleader suit. Although we have concluded that no case of fraud or forgery was made out, meaning that the Appellants are entitled to payment of ijara on their sukuk certificates. The issues pertaining to the scope of an interpleader has to be considered as it was part of the Impugned Judgment and was argued at great length before us. Furthermore it is significant to give finality to the dispute related to the transfer of 72 sukuk certificates. As has already been stated, the Appellants' essentially each claim to be the owners of sukuk certificates either presently or at some point in time and therefore state that if the appeals are decided against them, they should be compensated by Wapda and the Sukuk Company in the form of ijara payments due and the principal amount paid for the sukuk certificates. Learned counsel for the Appellants argued that the Impugned Judgment found NFC to be the true and lawful owner of the disputed sukuk certificates yet failed to address the claims of the Appellants. They argue that the Appellants are entitled to be compensated for the amounts they have paid towards the purchase of the sukuk certificates and for the rentals they have been deprived of as they had no knowledge of the fraud played with reference to the sukuk certificates.

66. Historically an interpleader suit has been as equitable proceeding to determine adverse claims to the same debt or property. The concept of the interpleader suit is that rival claimants litigate against each other with reference to their conflicting claims over the same debt or property. The person facing the compelling claims will eventually discharge its liability towards the lawful claimant. The issue before the Court is whether the discharge of liability includes any other liability which arises out of allegations of negligence, breach of trust or fiduciary duties or on account of further liability, related to the capacity or duties of the person facing the claims. So to put it succinctly the issue is whether the Appellants can have their claim of compensation and damages against Wapda and Sukuk Company decided in the interpleader suit. In support of their contentions Respondents No.1 and 2 have relied upon Halsbury Laws of England, Vol.47 (2014)/2, para.89 which narrates as under:

> Subject to certain restrictions as to the nature of the claims made against the person desiring to interplead, the former Court of Chancery extended the remedy of interpleader to all cases to which in conscience it ought to extend, namely where a person not interested was exposed to conflicting claims, whether an action or suit had been begun by any claimant or only a claim made. Thus it applied to cases where two or more persons severally claimed delivery of the same property, payment of the same debt or rendering of the same duty, under different titles or in separate interests, from another person, and the latter did not know to which of the claimants he ought to deliver the property, pay the debt or render the duty.

Respondents No.1 and 2 have also relied upon the Law of Interpleader as Administered by the English, American, Canadian and Australian Courts (RJ MacLennan, 1901 pub. Carswell:

> Interpleader defined.-Interpleader is a legal proceeding devised to enable a person of whom the same debt, duty or thing, is claimed adversely by two or more parties, to compel them to litigate the right or title between themselves, and thereby to relieve him from the suits which have been or otherwise might be brought against him.
>
> The object in interpleader.- The supreme object' of an interpleader proceeding is to protect a person when he stands in the situation of a stakeholder not knowing to whom to pay the money or to deliver the property, so that he shall not be vexed by contending claimants, whose contention is not in reality with him but with each other, when a recovery against him by one party will not be a protection against the claim of the other.
> Principles of interpleader in equity.-The essential principles of interpleader in equity, may be summarized in a paragraph as follows: The jurisdiction of courts of equity to grant relief by interpleader is properly applied to cases where two or more persons, in some manner of privity, severally claim the same debt, duty or property, under different titles or in separate interests, from another person, who not claiming any title or interest therein himself, and not having incurred any independent liability to either of the claimants, > and not knowing to which of them he ought of right to render the debt or duty claimed, or to deliver the property in his custody, and being unwilling to take the risk of deciding between the claimants, is either molested by an action or actions brought against him, or fears that he may suffer injury from the conflicting claims of the parties.

Consequently they argue that the scope of an interpleader suit is set out in Section 88 CPC for obtaining a decision as to the person to whom the payment or delivery shall be made. Similarly, Order XXXV Rule 4(2) CPC states that in an interpleader suit, the Court may adjudicate the title to the thing claimed. Hence they argue that the scope of an interpleader suit, as set out in Section 88 and Order XXXV CPC is clearly limited to determining which claimant is entitled to the thing claimed (in this case being the disputed sukuk certificates and the final encashment value) and the payments due (the Ijara rentals). They argue that there is no provision in the CPC for expanding the scope of an interpleader suit to include damages, compensation or the claims of the Appellants. Respondents No.1 and 2 have relied on the following judgments in support of their claim National Insurance Co. Ltd. v Antony T George and Ors (Ker HC 1989) which held as under:

> The only two purposes of an interpleader suit as S. 88 C.P.C. indicates are (1) Obtaining a decision as to the person to whom the payment or delivery shall be made and (2) Obtaining indemnity for the plaintiff. The purpose is not settlement of any disputed issues as between plaintiff and defendants or any of them though in some cases an ordinary trial with all the parties may become necessary as Order 35 Rule 4(2) and (3) indicate."

Jagdish Chandra and Ors v Krishna Mohan Aggrawal and Ors (All HC 2020) which held as under:

> To interplead means to litigate with each other to settle a point concerning a third party. Section 88 of the C.P.C. enacts that two or more persons claiming adversely to one another, the same debt, sum of money or other property, movable or immovable property from a person who does not claim any interest therein except the charges and costs incurred by him and is ready to pay or deliver the same to the rightful claimant may file an interpleader suit.
>
> The object of the aforesaid is to get claims of rival defendants adjudicated. It is the process where the plaintiff calls upon the rival claimants to appear before the Court and get their respective claims decided. The decision of the Court in an interpleader suit affords indemnity to the plaintiff on the payment of money or delivery of property to the person whose claim has been upheld by the Court.

Respondents No.1 and 2 also relied on extracts [pp.11 RJ, MacLennan (1901) which opined as under:

> Same thing must be claimed.- The' same thing, debt, or duty, must be claimed by both or all of the parties against whom the relief is demanded. When the subject in dispute has a bodily existence, no difficulty can arise on the ground of identity; but where the subject is a chose in action, which has no bodily existence, it becomes necessary to determine what constitutes identity. Where the claims made are of different amounts, they can never be identical, but where they are the same in amount, that circumstance goes far to determine their identity. The amount may not be sufficient of itself, for the amount may be the same, and the debts different. The claims must refer to the same subject matter, and not to collateral demands arising out of the right immediately in dispute interpleader was never intended to apply to different claims, merely because they originate out of one transaction; so interpleader was refused to a person who had had a house built for himself, and admitted a sum due, when the architect sued for the contract price, the contractor employed by the architect and who had been dismissed claimed the price of his contract or damages for dismissal, while claims were also made by an assignee of the contractor, and by artisans. It has been decided in Mississippi, that it does not matter, that the claims are upon an open account for the value of the property, so long as each claimant claims the same amount. When one person claims the subject matter or its proceeds, from the applicant for relief, and a second claims unliquidated damages for conversion, or for breach of warranty, or for negligence in selling, or for not accepting a bill of exchange for the price, interpleader will not lie, be-cause the parties do not claim the same thing, the claim of the person seeking damages is against the applicant personally and not against the fund or property in his hands. Nor will interpleader lie, when both claimants claim damages against the person seeking to interplead.
> [pp.81 RJ, MacLennan (1901)
> Evidence restricted to subject in dispute.-The evidence must, be limited to the property which was the subject of the interpleader. The contest proceeds between the claimants to the specific property involved, and as to that property alone. To permit outside issues, and matters affecting the claimants, but not connected with the subject of the action, would confound the action and lead to confusion.

[pp.281 RJ, MacLennan (1901)]

67. The Appellants have relied on American Jurisprudence, Second Edition, Volume 45 to show the shift in understanding interpleader suits and their scope such that the strict requirements of interpleader are no longer relevant, that is to say that a court can permit interpleader action even where the rival claimants assert the stakeholders liability, so long as there is a connection to the stakeholders capacity and the debt. Hence if the proceedings create a genuine issue of fact as to the liability of the claimants other than to title of the debt or property, the stakeholder seeking interpleader can be made liable in the interpleader suit. They have relied upon several cases of different jurisdiction to substantiate their point on the extent to which relief can be given in an interpleader suit. Reliance was placed on Dakota Livestock Company and Farmers Union Marketing & Processing Association v. Gary Keim et. al (552 F.2d 1302 (1977), a decision rendered by the United States Court of Appeals, Eighth Circuit to urge the point that the party seeking compensation from a stakeholder in an interpleader action if not seeking to be paid out of the particular fund which was in dispute, the interpleader suit will not preclude the court from determining the claim of the parties. The court found that the claimants' assertion against the stakeholder was an independent liability with a nexus to the basic dispute, hence it can be decided in the interpleader suit. In this case the Dakota Livestock Company and Farmers Union Marketing and Processing Association appealed before the United States Court of Appeals, Eighth Circuit against the decision of the District Court dismissing their interpleader action against various creditors. The Appellate Court held that the rights of the claimants can be protected adequately within the framework of the interpleader action as provided under the statute.

In Odell Dick v. The First International Bank of Birmingham, a National Banking Association (334 So 2d 922 (1976) the Court of Civil Appeals of Alabama held that:

> independent liability can be looked into in an interpleader suit after settlement of the claimants' dispute to avoid multiple litigation where a genuine issue of fact is created as to the liability of the stakeholder. In this case the Bank filed an interpleader suit against certain depositors. One of the depositors alleged that the Bank was in breach of its duty to depositors, being an independent liability from the Banks claims, as the claimant Odell Dick claimed the entire amount plus compensation. The court maintained the interpleader suit and remanded the unit for a proper determination in the suit by the trial court.

In Hebel v. Ebersole (543, F.2d 14 (1976) the court held that:

> independent stakeholder liability is asserted, however, need not vitiate a suit in interpleader as long as the necessary adversity between the interpleader parties exists in some fashion.

In Syed Shamshul Haque v. Sitram Singh (AIR 1978 Patna 151), the court in a case where money was due from harvested crops that the trial court had to try the suit in the ordinary manner and decide all relevant questions substantially in issue between the parties. The Court concluded that:

> the findings of this interpleader suit are to operate as res judicata. It is difficult to hold that it is open to the civil court, where such suits are filed to decide only the question of possession and to exercise a power similar to the power conferred on a Magistrate under the CPC while disposing of a property which has been used for commission of an offence. In our view it was incumbent upon the trial court to decide the suit in an ordinary manner recording findings of the issues.

In Raja Bhagwali Baksh Singh v. The Civil Judge (AIR 1961 All. 559) the high court held that:

> under sub rule (3) of Rule 4 of Order XXXV, which applies to interpleader suits, there is clear direction that once the suit has proceeded on trial, it shall be tried like any other suit in the ordinary manner. Order VI of the Code is applicable to suits and there is no reason why it should not be applicable to a suit which had its beginning as an interpleader suit.
> If the pleadings placed by the several claimants to the property, the subject matter of the interpleader suit, should claim that there is some further property which is part of the estate but has somehow or the other being omitted from it and should also be brought within the suit, there is no reason why it cannot be done so. Neither Section 88 CPC nor Order XXXV has required to the contrary. On the other hand, the later has enjoyed that the suit shall proceed in the ordinary manner.

68. In terms of the cases cited, it is clear that the person filing the suit being the stakeholder should be neutral so far as the rival claims to the debt or property are concerned for which the parties have been interpleaded. However claims that are incidental to the title dispute must be addressed because if they are not decided in the interpleader suit, one consequence of the decision in the interpleader suit is that it will discharge the stakeholder of all liabilities towards the debt or property and the decision will operate as res judicata against all claims. This is detriment to the rights of the claimants. It also means that multiple cases can be filed with reference to allegations of negligence, breach of fiduciary duty and capacity which may lead to decisions in various claims which are inconsistent with one another. Furthermore the stakeholder cannot use the interpleader suit to protect itself from any liability, meaning that a valid interpleader action cannot be a shield for the stakeholder from counter claims, where the stakeholder is not free from blame with reference to the disputed claimants.

69. In this context while reading Section 88 of the CPC, the words "for the purposes of obtaining a decision" means that an interpleader suit shall be filed where a person fears multiple claims for the same debt or money or property so as to ensure that ownership or title is decided in one suit, where all parties are interpleaded. So the person filing the suit has some obligation to discharge with reference to the debt, money or property and needs to know whom to discharge it against. This being the primary purpose of the suit will not restrict a decision on liabilities that are related to the title dispute. There is nothing in Section 88 CPC which prevents a decision on claims against the person filing the suit which are related to its obligation to pay the debt, money or property. Section 88 CPC does not create special jurisdiction in which the interpleader suit is to be heard, it merely sets out the procedure to be followed in such cases. The true origin of this jurisdiction is in equity, where the plaintiff comes to court claiming no interest in the debt, money or property, against several claimants so as to rid itself of the controversy in one suit. Interpleader relief is discretionary subject to the plaintiff meeting the basic conditions that is it has no interest in the debt, money or property, has not colluded with any claimant and is willing to make the payment or transfer. Therefore it is a power that the court has while deciding cases of this nature. Accordingly there is no bar in Section 88 of the CPC with respect to consequential relief sought by the claimants, nor do the words "for the purposes of obtaining a decision" in Section 88 CPC limit the jurisdiction of the court to decide connected issues. In fact it is vital to determine interrelated issues, because otherwise they continue to perpetuate the adversity between the parties being relevant to the title issue. We have examined the cases cited by the Respondents and find that the cases relied upon by the Respondents do not limit the extent to which relief can be granted in an interpleader suit by the Court. The cases relied upon set out the requirements to file an interpleader suit and the procedure to be adopted, but do not limit the jurisdiction to grant relief. In fact the literature suggests that the decision of the Court in an interpleader suit shall indemnify the plaintiff on the payment of money or delivery of property against claimants and that if other suits are filed they must be stayed. This goes to the point that if the claimants claims are not decided in the interpleader suit, they will be adversely affected and even if the plaintiff claims it does not seek indemnification the decision will operate as res judicata between the parties.

70. We are persuaded by various judgments from other jurisdiction, which show the liberal approach to interpreting interpleader suits so as to ensure that the entire controversy is decided upon in the suit to avoid multiple litigation on the question of the extent to which relief can be given. In Johnston v. Sunwest Bank of Grant County (116 N. M. 422, 863 P.2d 1043 (1993) the court held that a stakeholder cannot be granted immunity from liability of damages that are related to the reasons for interpleading the parties. The court found that the purpose of interpleader is to avoid multiple litigation, and to protect disinterested stakeholders against conflicting claims to property or a fraud. It allows a party against whom two or more persons are making a claim to bring an action joining as defendants all such claimants for the purpose of adjudicating whether he is liable to anyone. The Court further held that Interpleader is remedial in nature, and interpleader statutes are to be liberally construed. The Court further held that Further, while interpleader relieves a petitioner from any necessity to litigate ownership of a fraud, it does not relieve the petitioner from defending itself from negligence allegations, even if the same funds are involved. The Supreme Court of the United States in Republic of the Philippines, et al., v. Jerry S. Pimentel, Temporary Administrator of the Estate of Mariano J. Pimentel, Deceased, et al. (128 S.Ct.2180 (2008) held that the purpose of the interpleader device is to allow "a party who fears being exposed to the vexation of defending multiple claims to a limited fund or property that is under his control a procedure to settle the controversy and satisfy his obligation in a single proceedings". Accordingly, the interpleader allows a stakeholder who "admits it is liable to one of the claimants, but fears the prospect of multiple liability to file suit, deposit the property with the court, and withdraw from the proceedings." Metro Life Ins. Co. v. Price, 501 F.3d 271, 275 (3d Cir. 2007). The result is that the competing claimants are left to litigate between themselves" while the stakeholder is discharged from any further liability with respect to the subject of the dispute. The court further held that the typical interpleader action proceeds in two distinct stages. During the first stage, the court determines whether the interpleader complaint was properly brought and whether to discharge the stakeholder from further liability to the claimants. During the second stage, the court determines the respective rights of the claimants to the interpleaded funds. The court further held that under the old interpleader practice, if a claimant alleged that the stakeholder was independently liable to him or her, the stakeholder would lose its right to bring the interpleader action. The modern approach, however, is that, where a claimant brings an independent counterclaim against the stakeholder, the stakeholder is kept in the litigation to defend against the counterclaim, rather than being dismissed after depositing the disputed funds with the court. In Travelers Ins. Co. v. Montoya (566 P.2d 105 (1977), the Court of Appeals of New Mexico held that a counter claim should be considered in an interpleader suit, especially since the stakeholder had filed the suit. In the same way in Christina Louise ROBERTSON, Executrix of the Estate of Marian Winski v. La LINDA, INC. and John Z. Winski (548 So.2d 1308 (1989), the Supreme Court of Mississippi has also allowed a counter claim to be adjudicated upon in an interpleader suit as it arose out of the same transaction which is subject matter of the interpleader suit.

71. After hearing the parties and examining the case law, we find that the scope of an interpleader suit must be liberally construed while the person filing the suit must be neutral to the outcome of the suit, that is to whom the debt or property is to be transferred. So for clarity the person filing the interpleader suit should have no claim in the debt or property. That does not mean that the claimants' contention with reference to the role of the stakeholder, the person filing the suit, should not be considered or any liability of the stakeholder not be considered if it is directly linked to the transaction of the debt or property. The typical interpleader is an innocent stakeholder, who is subject to competing claims, however where the claims of the defendants are inextricably interrelated it has to be adjudged in the same suit. The relevant ingredient to file the interpleader suit is that the plaintiff/stakeholder be neutral to or disinterested in the payment of the debt or property. However if the plaintiff/stakeholder has incurred a liability against the claimant(s), which has nexus to its obligations and capacity, then such claims should be finally decided in the interpleader suit. The trial court cannot discharge the plaintiff/stakeholder from further liability in order to sustain the interpleader suit as this would give an undue advantage to the plaintiff filing the suit, where there is potential for claims for damages. No doubt there are conflicting claims for the same debt or property, however the plaintiff cannot escape the outcome of its liability simply by electing to file an interpleader suit. Hence the interpleader suit will not discharge the plaintiff from allegations of negligence, fraud or on fiduciary duty which go to the duties and obligations and capacity of the plaintiff and gives rise to a counter claim of damages and loss.

72. We are also of the opinion that Order XXXV Rule 3 and 4 of the CPC sets out the procedure to be followed where there is potential of a counter claim. Order XXXV Rule 3 CPC provides that where any defendant in the interpleader suit is suing the plaintiff in respect of the subject matter in the interpleader suit that suit of the defendants shall be stayed and his cost in the stayed suit may be provided for in the interpleader suit, meaning that the interpleader suit shall proceed and the defendants suit has to stop. As the rules provide that the suit of the defendants be stayed and the defendants can claim its costs in the interpleader suit, it means that the defendants can raise their claim in the interpleader suit as to be able to recover its costs. So long as the defendants claim emanates out of the same debt, money or property over which ownership is in dispute and is related to the capacity or obligations of the plaintiff in the interpleader suit, including allegations of negligence and breach of duty, there is no reason why it cannot be taken up in the interpleader suit. Consequently, where the interpleader suit relieves the plaintiff from defending itself against rival claims it does not relieve the plaintiff from defending itself from allegations of negligence or breach of duty with reference to the debt, money or property in question. Furthermore given that a fundamental purpose of the interpleader suit is to avoid multiple litigation and cost, interpleader suits must cover the entirety of the disputes to avoid all possible exposure to litigation on the same debt, money or property.

73. Therefore, we find that an interpleader suit is decided in two stages, the first where the court determines the issue of ownership or title and the second to decide on any consequential or incidental relief with respect to the rights of the claimants. In this case, based on the facts, we find that this is necessary because Respondents No.1 and 2 opted to bring the interpleader suit against the Appellants opting to have its case decided in one case, against all claimants. Hence Respondents No.1 and 2 cannot hide behind this suit to avoid any independent liability arising out of negligence, breach of duty and capacity issues, basically all relating to the manner in which the sukuk certificates and its transfer was handled by Respondents No.1 and 2 in the first instance. So Respondents No.1 and 2 cannot use the interpleader suit to shield itself and to protect itself from valid counter claims, which counter claims would have been adjudged but for the interpleader suit. Hence we are of the opinion that the relief claimed by the Appellants should have been decided in the interpleader suit.

74. In this context, the Impugned Judgment has decided Issue No.4 on vicarious liability of Wapda and the Sukuk Company based on its findings on Issue No.14-C. The said issue relates to breach of trust and failure of Respondents No.1 and 2 to discharge their obligations. The Impugned Judgment finds that Wapda and the Sukuk Company are victims of the fraud and they acted in good faith especially with reference to Ex.P24 when they acted on NFC's instructions. It also finds that Wapda and the Sukuk Company were diligent and gave the required duty of care, hence were not negligent. At the very outset, we note that these findings run contrary to the findings in Issue No.14 on fraud where the Impugned Judgment finds that a case of fraud is made out based on Ex.D1-32, which finds certain employees of Wapda and the Sukuk Company to be liable for fraud and criminal breach of trust under the PPC. On the one hand the Impugned Judgment has relied totally on Ex.D1-32, the judgment of the Special Judge (Central) Lahore whereas in Issues No.14 and 14-C, the Impugned Judgment finds that Wapda and the Sukuk Company to be a victim of fraud. These findings on the face of it are contradictory.

75. Issue No.4 is that If forgery or fraud took place, the plaintiffs are vicariously liable to the holders or Sukuk Certificate for such forgery or fraud committed by their employees, and the plaintiffs are liable to their negligence, for an amount equivalent to the value the Sukuk and the Ijara thereon? This issue is with reference to the vicarious liability of Respondents No.1 and 2, in the event of fraud, forgery or negligence. Issue No.14-C is Whether the plaintiffs have committed serious breach of the trust and contract and have failed to discharge their obligations, duties and responsibilities and are thus not entitled to obtain indemnity for themselves? This issue is with respect to the breach of trust and contractual obligations of Respondents No.1 and 2 and whether they are entitled to indemnity under Section 88 CPC. The Impugned Judgment finds that there is no evidence of negligence or breach of trust or failure to perform as per the obligations of Respondents No.1 and 2. This is the same argument made by Counsel for Respondents No.1 and 2. Although Respondents No.1 and 2 do not seek indemnity under Section 88 CPC, the issue of breach of trust and contractual obligations is relevant to the dispute between the parties. Respondents No.1 and 2 instituted the interpleader suit on 12.12.2009. In the plaint they claim that fraud came to their knowledge on 25.4.2009 (Ex.P34) when NFC wrote to them informing them that they had not sold 72 sukuk certificates to SES. Respondents No.1 and 2 formed a fact finding committee (Ex.D1-10) which inquired into the matter and concluded in its report (Ex.D1-11) that Wapda Bonds Cell did not comply with the requirements set out in clause 10 of the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15). Further that the special security marker provided by the Pakistan Security Printing Corporation vide letter dated 3.5.2006 for verification of the sukuk certificates was not used when verifying the 72 sukuk certificates for transfer to SES. They also found issues with the authorization of Hammad Rasool as Company Secretary (Ex.P32) and with his letter of 22.4.2009 (Ex.D2-20). These findings by the fact finding committee (Ex.D1-11) are sufficient to establish a case of breach of contractual obligations and negligence by Wapda Bonds Cell. Furthermore the judgment by the Special Judge Central Lahore (Ex.D1-32) also finds that Wapda Bonds Cell and employees of the Sukuk Company were negligent of their duties. Hence findings of criminal breach of trust were made against some of the employees of Wapda Bonds Cell. Again this document also testifies to the negligence and breach of contractual obligations by Respondents No.1 and 2.

76. We have also gone through the transaction documents being the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15) and the Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16). As per the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15) Wapda Bonds Cell was the Registrar and Transfer Agent with respect to the sukuk certificates as well as the Replacement Agent. The duties and obligations of the Registrar and Transfer Agent are provided for in clause 9 and 10 of the Agency Agreement. Amongst the duties of the Registrar, we note that clause 9 requires the Registrar to maintain proper records of the details of all documents and certificates received by itself or any other Transfer Agent, to register all transfers and to prepare the list of certificates holders. Under clause 10, the Transfer Agent is responsible for the transfer of the certificates in accordance with the terms and conditions prescribed in the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15). As per clause 19.5, the Agent is obligated to perform such duties as is set out in the Agreement and the certificates which essentially means the duties related to the transfer of the sukuk certificates and the registration of title holders. The manner in which the register and transfer of certificates is to be delivered is provided for in the schedule to the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15). In the same way the Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16) renders the Sukuk Company liable for performance in accordance with the terms and conditions and obligations set out in the transaction documents and further requires in terms of clause 10 that they have the duty of care towards their investors and are liable with respect to the negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust. In his evidence PW-1 acknowledges the obligations and duties under the transaction documents particularly the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15) and the Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16) which includes the process of scrutiny and verification at the time of transfer and registration of the sukuk certificates in the Register of Certificate Holders. With reference to these duties and obligations he admits in his evidence that investigation against the employees of Wapda Bonds Cell which is responsible for the security and scrutiny of the sukuk certificates:

> واپڈا کے افسران جن کے خلاف FIR درج ہوئی اُن میں محمد نقی ریاض بجٹ اینڈا کاؤنٹ آفیسر آغا غضنفر علی اسسٹنٹ، بجٹ اینڈ اکاؤنٹ آفیسر اور محمدسعید رانا اسسٹنٹ بجٹ اینڈ اکاؤنٹ آفیسر کے نام شامل تھے۔ یہ تینوں ملزمان واپڈا بانڈ سیل میں تعینات تھے۔
> واپڈا کے جن تین ملزمان کا میں نے ذکر کیا ہے یہ وہ افراد تھے جن کےذمہ واپڈا بانڈ سیل میں منتقلی ملکیت فزیکل سکوک سرٹیفیکیٹس کی سکرونٹی تھی۔ سکرونٹی بابت فزیکل سکوک سرٹیفیکیٹس جوکہSES کے حق میں جاری ہوئے۔ اُن تینوں افراد نے کی۔ سکرونٹی ٹیم کے انچارج محمدنقی ریاض تھے۔

He also admits to the fact that he also saw 72 sukuk certificates in the verification process to affect the transfer from SES to AIMC and consequently he initialed Ex.P32 (letter from the Sukuk Company to the CDC requesting the use of global terminal facilities). He admits in his evidence that all necessary steps were taken for the transfer of the sukuk certificates from NFC to SES and from SES to AIMC. As per his evidence, Respondents No.1 and 2 followed the procedure and were not negligent in their duties. At the same time he admits that he along with another were terminated from service by Respondents No.1 and 2 on account of their negligence in the verification of the sukuk certificates and their transfers but he stated that subsequently they were reinstated by the Federal Service Tribunal.

77. Therefore, from the evidence of PW-1 the obligations and duties set out in the transaction documents especially the Agency Agreement (Ex.P15) and the Declaration of Trust (Ex.P16) were complied with and followed by Respondents No.1 and 2. However, this evidence is contradicted by the Wapda's own fact finding committee's report (Ex.D1-11) which clearly states that the employees of Wapda Bonds Cell were negligent in their duties with respect to the transfer and verification of the sukuk certificates.

78. Another document of relevance is the Special Audit Report (Ex.D2-10) which also sets out a case of negligence against Respondents No.1 and 2. This report finds that Respondents No.1 and 2 did not exercise proper verification of the sukuk certificates nor did they confirm from the transferors and transferees of the sukuk certificate's transfers. It finds that regulations for transfer of the sukuk certificates by the Wapda Bonds Cell were made on 9.5.2009 (Ex. D2-9) after transfer to SES and AIMC were effected. Consequently senior management of Respondents No.1 and 2 should have set out internal checks to prevent fraud. Further that the transfer should have been on the CDC and not physically. Also that there was no application of security checks by Respondents No.1 and 2 as required by the Pakistan Security Printing Corporation (Private) Limited to check the genuineness of the certificates. That they did not use the required security marker, which means that it was easier to make fake certificates. The Audit Report details the areas where Respondents No.1 and 2 were negligent and failed to take necessary steps, including an internal audit of the sukuk certificates. PW-1 admits to these facts and states that the public accounts committee unilaterally concluded that Wapda Bonds Cell should improve its internal controls to avoid fraud. In this regard, the Special Audit Report finds that the Sukuk Company failed to function as an efficient company which caused reputational damage to Wapda. In the context, the Auditor's Report as at June 30, 2015, dated 18.9.2015 (Ex.D2-4) finds Respondents No.1 and 2 should bear the loss of Rs.180,000,000/-. Hence a clear case of negligence and breach of duty is made out against Respondents No.l and 2, that its employees were involved not only in the negligence but also failure to ensure performance of its contractual duties. Consequently we find that the stated Respondents failed to take appropriate steps to prevent fraud and were negligent as they failed to ensure the required safety and security mechanisms for transfer of the sukuk certificates. This is evident from the fact that they devised the required SOPs for the verification process on 9.5.2009 whereas they began the process of sale and transfer of the sukuk certificates in 2006.

79. In this regard, we find that Respondents No.1 and 2 have tried to shield themselves from any liability with reference to their negligence by filing the interpleader suit, and thereafter claiming that the only issue which needs determination in the interpleader suit is as to whom payment of ijara should be made, that is to decide who is the owner of the disputed sukuks. While we have held that they failed to make out a case of fraud, a case of negligence and breach of duties is evident from the evidence. Therefore, Respondents No.1 and 2's contention that there is no cogent evidence of the negligence and breach of duty by its employees is without basis, as their own documents testify to the negligence. Consequently, Respondents No.1 and 2 are liable for the negligence which resulted in the duplication of 72 sukuk certificates. They failed to provide the investors with the required contractual duty of care and trust which is evident from their own fact finding report, special audit report and audit report. Hence they are liable to pay NFC the price of the 72 sukuk certificates that it claims it did not sell and by way of compensation it cannot recover the ijara payments made to NFC. Consequently we find that Respondents No.1 and 2 cannot seek to recover ijara payments from NFC on account of its own negligence and payments by NFC received will suffice as compensation for NFC. This is especially so as NFC has not claimed any specific loss or damage from Respondents No.1 and 2 and the compensation in the form of retaining the ijara payments is to compensate for the negligence caused by Respondents No.1 and 2.

80. In view of the aforesaid, all these appeals are allowed and the impugned judgment and decree dated 14.4.2017 passed by the Civil Judge 1st Class, Lahore is set aside.
