FOREWORD

Elevation of Mrs. Ayesha A Malik to the August Supreme Court is an unprecedented event in the 74 years of existence of Pakistan. She is rewriting the history books by becoming the first female Judge of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. She is a gleaming real-life story of a phenomenal woman who is an epitome of grace, strength, intelligence, & fearlessness; one who had the nerves to navigate through unchartered waters and scale the heights that were once believed to be too sacrosanct for women to tread.

I have always seen her at the best of her abilities. Her humility; her unflappable patience; her humanity; her respectful demeanor irrespective of standing and status of the person with whom she is dealing with; her concern for the weak; her commitment to fairness; and her honesty is something that makes her a real asset to the judiciary. I admire her for her sincerity, diligence and desire to work out good ideas. She never bats an eyelid with any new responsibility. She courageously accepted the tasks assigned to her and accomplished them with great expertise. Her commitment, clear headedness, discipline and punctuality made her the outstanding Judge that she is today. She has always been faithful to the commitment of the delivery of justice

I am proud that she represented our judiciary at national and international forum and raised her voice on core issues pertaining to women, children, transgender and the environment. She has helped to educate our people towards the rights of the oppressed sections of our society and has played a tremendous role in the ongoing struggle for gender equality in Pakistan. She is a role model not only for women of this country but for all of us. She proved that to accomplish great things, we must not only dream but also act, not only plan but also believe.

Her contributions for softening the image of Pakistan in respect of women in Pakistan shall be remembered even centuries after. I hope that her elevation encourages and instills confidence in our women to pursue their dreams. Justice Ayesha has proven that no mountain is too high to climb.

Her involvements in administrative matters of Lahore High Court brought reformative and innovative changes. At judicial side, she has delivered several landmark judgments and decisions in many areas of our substantive and procedural Law. Through her industry, patience, sound knowledge of law, hardworking, diligence, adhering to the professional ethics and ability to work and fairness in conduct of cases, the trust that people repose in our judicial system has been greatly enhanced. Through her judgments, she led the government departments and guided the judges of district judiciary. She has dilated upon almost every area of law such as civil, criminal, banking, tax, family, election, service and constitutional.

Her generosity of spirit with every facet of work and life is something which I will truly cherish. I have seen her as family oriented women particularly as a concerned mother. As she has never compromised on her official duties, she has also never compromised on household duties. I have witnessed her commands at both positions side by side.

Having record of incalculable and invaluable contribution in Lahore High Court, she is moving towards the Supreme hub of judiciary. Her elevation is just another rung in the ladder and another feather in the flight. She is the lady with passion and ambition and many things are yet to be done by her. Her elevation is moment of proud for all of us as she surely belongs to Lahore High Court and she has added the glory & credit to this institution.

On behalf of my brother and sister Judges, I express my best wishes to her for future endeavors and the new ventures that life has in store for her. I wish that she come out with more flying colors of the whole nation.

Owing to her outstanding impact in the legal sector, she was elevated as Judge Lahore High Court, Lahore on 26.03.2012. This was a significant elevation as after a span of 18 years a female was elevated in the Lahore High Court as a judge. As a judge, she has manifested the abounding spirit of inclusion, equality, non-discrimination and justice in our courts. She is known for maintaining decorum and discipline in Court. Her dealings with lawyers and litigants are known such that she considers diligently, understands rightly and decides justly cases before her which have led to her reputation of being an independent and law knowing judge. She inculcated discipline, honesty, ethics and confidence in her court. She has the ability of writing refined judgments in easy-to-understand terms. Her legal opinion, interpretation and analysis demonstrate her ability to foresee future controversies. Even in untouched areas of laws, she has developed new jurisprudence through her judgments. All of her decisions are self-speaking of her legal wisdom, human approach and holistic attitude. She has heard constitutional petitions on a large variety of issues including tax, environment, regulatory and service matters. She has decided important issues in constitutional jurisdiction including issues related to the public at large specifically of women, children & the environment. She rendered judgments in almost every area of law such as banking, tax, family, election and service.

In her judgments, she has discussed the scope of numerous sections of statutes and vires of various provisions of law such as Competition Ordinance, NAB Ordinance, Sugar Factories Control Act & Rules, OGRA Ordinance, Election Act, DRAP Act, Recognition and Enforcement of foreign arbitral award Act, Sales Tax etc. She has rendered judgments pertaining to jurisdiction of various courts such as Gas Utility Court, Labour Court and Federal & Provincial Ombudsman in harassment matters. Through her judgment she introduced the policy of culling of stray dogs and directed the government to neuter and vaccinate stray dogs with a joint working by the livestock, local bodies and other departments concerned. She also dealt with matters of Haj Policy & Plans. The case "Meezan Bank Limited v. Wapda First Sukuk Company Ltd", for the first time discusses the scope of an interpleader suit and explains the concept of burden of proof. There are many noteworthy judgments in her credit on important issues such as the legality of conversion fee, advertisement fee, and issues in the tender process, regulatory function of Pakistan Medical Commission and enforcement of foreign awards as well as declaration of assets by those contesting the general elections.

She is often known for giving guidance to different regulatory authorities and government departments to enable them to fulfill their legal mandate. In this way she has redressed the grievance of the public at large through her judgments. In a case "POP v. Kanwal Rashid" a daughter was denied the pension of her mother on the ground that she was already receiving pension of her father. In this case, she settled the scope of two family pensions and held that when both parents are civil servants then their legal heirs are entitled to two family pensions. In another case, "Ch. Sabir Ali v. City District Government, etc", she issued directions for regulating parking in public places. In the case of "Kainat Akhtar v. Regional Headquarter NADRA etc" she issued directions for registration of minor under guardianship with NADRA. In another case, "Superior College for Girls Vs Govt of Punjab etc" she issued direction to Registrar to make regulations and SOPs with reference to the registration process which was otherwise affecting future of a number of students. Similarly, in a case "Johnson and Johnson Pakistan (Private) Limited v. Federation of Pakistan etc.", direction was issued to DRAP to regulate medical devices & therapeutic goods involving health as the public is the ultimate beneficiary of the medical devices whether used at home or in a clinic or hospital, whether for cosmetics or in-vitro diagnostic purposes. Through another one of her judgment she determined the criteria for imposition of Pressure Factor Charges by SNGPL to save consumers from illegal charges. In another case "LPG Association of Pakistan Vs Federation of Pakistan etc.", she interpreted the article 151 of the Constitution setting out the constitutional mandate with respect to working of Federal & Provincial Government. In another case, "Flying Cement Company v. Federation of Pakistan etc." she found that the Federal Government charged the unconstitutional and illegal surcharges from the consumers of electricity, therefore she passed the direction to Federal Government to refund the amount of surcharges illegally extracted from the consumers. She has also settled through her another judgment the mandatory requirement of Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) for poultry farms keeping in view the close proximity of the poultry farm from human settlement are a cause of great concern. In another case "Qaiser Iqbal v. Member (Taxes), Board of Revenue, Punjab, Lahore etc" she clarified that in a taxing statute an assessment order is necessary in order to support the demand raised and to ensure that the taxing officer has taxed a person as per the confines of the law. She also settled that agricultural income tax can only be levied prospectively and not retrospectively.

She has always taken keen interest in issues pertaining to women. In her landmark case "Sadaf Aziz v. Federation of Pakistan etc", which acquired international recognition, first time virginity test and hymen examination of rape victims for sexual abuse was banned virginity by declaring it unconstitutional and against the dignity of women. In another case "Asma Javed v. Government of Punjab, etc" an issue arose wherein 50% seats were reserved for male candidates and 50% seats were reserved for female candidates for admissions in medical and dental colleges. So, the females were declined admission and male candidates who have a lesser merit were offered admissions. Her ladyship declared the quota illegal and unconstitutional and declared that only merit should the deciding factor for admission in medical colleges. In another case "Government of Punjab v. Qanoot Fatima" women were not appointed against the open merit seats for the post of corporals in the Counter Terrorism Department, Punjab as 75 female corporals against a 5% quota for women were appointed but her ladyship declared that the Act of employing women only against 5% quota and ousting them from open merit is discriminatory and against the spirit of the Constitution. She also declared in case "Nazar Elahi v. Govt of Punjab" that an act of Government which aims to protect women and children will be affirmative action under article 25(3) of Constitution and such action will not offend equal treatment thus judicially endorsed the relaxation of age to female candidates.

Apart from her judicial duties, she has become a voice to call out the discrimination, call out stereotyping and bring out the gender perspective. She is the voice that nudges, reminds, and suggests ways to improve things with reference to the gender perspective and make our system more inclusive. To highlight the gender perspective, for the first time in the history of Pakistan, she organized the first Punjab Women Judges Conference in 2016 to open a dialogue on gender and judiciary and how to integrate gender within the existing structures and values. She highlighted that in order to be fair and just the gender perspective requires great inclusion. This was the forum where the women judges discussed the problems of female judicial officers and highlighted them which resulted in formation of many policies to uplift the welfare and unity of female judicial officers. In the year 2017, second Women Judges Conference was held conferences in which IAWJ participated. This conference focused on improving access to justice and focused on the role female judges play and why there should be more representation. In the year 2019, she organized the Third Women Judges Conference which brought to the forefront discussions on how to improve access for female litigants and to reduce implicit biases. Other issues such as child abuse, domestic violence and transgender rights were also highlighted with special emphasis on providing better court environment. She chaired the Judicial "Female Supervisory Committee", first of its kind, to address the issues of women judges. She is also a part of the International Association of Women Judges (IAWJ), an initiative of women empowerment through equality and justice for every girl and woman. She also helped develop a course on gender sensitization for training judges at PJA for court processes and to sensitize judges to deal with the cases pertaining to women and children. This course was made part of the training of Judicial Officers at the Punjab Judicial Academy, Lahore. She has rendered lectures at national and international forums pertaining to women's rights, gender sensitivity and developing the gender perspective amongst others. She is one voice in the Judiciary who discusses gender sensitivity and breaking the stereotypes. Her objective has always been to help change the narrative, change the mindset, and make the vocabulary more inclusive. She is always passionate about developing gender-neutral sensitive language.

She has actively performed all administrative duties. She is a member of the Administrative Committee wherein she has dealt with core policy matters of high court and district judiciary. She was member of "National Judiciary Automation Committee" to improve existing automation and implement new installations in the Justice Sector. She was the inspection judge of several courts including Banking Courts, Special Courts Customs, Taxation & Smuggling, Child Protection Tribunals and Environment Tribunals in Punjab. She conducted specialized workshops for training the judges of these courts including training for the environmental & banking judges as well as developing a Manual and Handbook on Environmental laws & Banking laws for the benefit of the courts. She has also played an active role in training judges on environmental justice and looking through the environmental lens. She remained member of the Board of the Punjab Judicial Academy and contributed for capacity-building for judges. She also supervised the use of information technology working on automation at the Lahore High Court and within the District Judiciary of Punjab. She was part of the Committee on Case Management of the Lahore High Court to oversee the pace of litigation for effective and speedy dispensation of cases. She remained member of Board of Governors of National College of Arts. Lahore College for Women University, Lahore & King Edward Medical University, Lahore; Member of Federal Revenue Board; Member of Confirmation Committee, Recruitment Committee, Performance Evaluation Committee, Expunction of Adverse Remarks Committee, IT committee/ IT procurement Recommendatory Committee (LHC), and Committee for preparation of booklet of Privileges of the Hon'ble sitting and former judges. She also remained inspection Judge of Districts Multan, Kasur & Pakpattan and as such she guided the judicial officers in day to day issues.

Having all traits of intelligence, deliberations and spiritual mentorship, she is graced with well-deserved elevation to August Supreme Court of Pakistan on 06th January 2022 by the Judicial Commission of Pakistan. This eventually has raised the grace of the institution and the whole judiciary as Lahore High Court is proud of her valuable contributions to this institution.

Before Ayesha A. Malik, J
MUHAMMAD SALAH-UD-DIN---Petitioner
Versus
NADRA---Respondent
Writ Petition No.11212 of 2012, decided on 4th May, 2012.

National Database and Registration Authority Ordinance (VIII of 2000)

----Ss. 9 & 5(3)---National Database and Registration Authority (NIC) Rules 2002, R.13---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 199---Constitutional petition---Correction on National Identity Card issued by NADRA---Petitioner had sought correction on his national identity card on the ground that the name of his father had been incorrectly entered---NADRA (respondent) refused to make the necessary correction on the ground that for a change in the father's name; a court order was necessary---NADRA, to support such contention, relied on its Registration Policy and Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs)---Validity---Error was clearly a typographic mistake---National database was required to be maintained by NADRA, and every citizen was required to be registered and to effectuate such registration, every citizen was issued a national identity card---National Identity Card (CNIC) was a legal document for the identification of a citizen, and its issuance meant that the information contained therein was valid and correct---NADRA, by not correcting an error in its database or on the CNIC, was, in fact, going against the spirit of the Ordinance, and was not performing its primary function and was perpetuating a wrong in its own database, thereby negating the purpose of the national identity card---NADRA, was bound to maintain a correct database and was bound to print correct information on the CNIC and was obligated to correct any error in its database or the CNIC it issued to a citizen---Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) and Registration Policy were internal instructions to enable NADRA to achieve optimum level of efficiency and to ensure consistency and infirmity in its procedure and process---Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) did not have the force of law and were not binding on the NADRA---Standard Operating Procedures were internal documents, at best, and could not form the basis of denying the petitioner the right to have the correct information maintained in the citizen database and printed on the CNIC---Standard Operating Procedures could not form the basis for NADRA to refuse to correct an error in its record because if the error was not corrected, it would negate the very purpose of issuing a CNIC to a citizen---Delay in filing an application for correction of an office mistake could not hamper or prevent the process of actually correcting the NADRA database, or the CNIC---High Court directed NADRA to treat the pending request of the petitioner as a correction of an office mistake and to correct the petitioner's father's name in the database and issue him a new CNIC---Constitutional petition was allowed, accordingly.

Ghulam Subhani for Petitioner.

Badar Munir Malik, Standing Counsel with Jameel Khan, Legal Advisor, NADRA on court's call.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this writ petition, the petitioner seeks the correction of the error committed by the respondent when issuing the CNIC of the petitioner. The CNIC wrongfully mentions the name of father of the petitioner as "Haji Faiz Din" instead of "Haji Chanan Din". The petitioner prays for a direction to the respondent to correct the name of his father in their record.

2. Brief facts are that the petitioner, who is the son of late Chanan Din and Mst. Gulzar Begum applied for the computerized National Identity Card from the respondent in the year 2002. The petitioner stated his correct parentage on the CNIC form, showing his father's name as "Haji Chanan Din". At the time his mother, Mst. Gulzar Begum also submitted her documents for the CNIC. She stated her husband's name as "Haji Chanan Din". She was issued her CNIC on 16-2-2002 with correct particulars. Haji Chanan Din (deceased) was shown as her husband. The petitioner was also issued his CNIC on 16-2-2002 but with wrong particulars. His fathers name was printed as "Haji Faiz Din" instead of "Haji Chanan Din". In the year 2009 the petitioner applied to the respondent for the correction of the name of his father on the CNIC. This is apparent from the token receipt filed with this petition. Vide Form No.WH00047945 the respondent requested the petitioner to obtain a Court order for correction of his father's name. The petitioner has tried to reason with the respondent that this is not a case of change in name but a case of correction of office mistake of his father's name, as printed on the CNIC. However, the respondent has refused to correct his father's name on the CNIC. Hence this petition.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that name of father of the petitioner has been mistakenly written as "Haji Faiz Din" instead of "Haji Chanan Din" on his CNIC and he has requested the respondent to make the correction of office mistake. However, the respondent vide Form No.WH00047945, has required the petitioner to bring a Court order for change in the name of his father. Learned counsel for the petitioner also explained that the delay in filing this petition and for applying to the respondent for correction of office mistake is on account of the fact that he lives in the U.S.A along with his family.

4. Learned Legal Advisor for the respondent present on Court's call has shown and relied upon the Standard Operating Procedure/Registration Policy. This provides for the procedure for change of name of father as well as for correction of office mistake on the CNIC. So far as, correction of office mistake is concerned, the contention of the learned Legal Advisor for the respondent is that when a correction of office mistake is required to be made, the application should be made to the respondent within three months from issuance of CNIC. In this case the request for correction of office mistake was not made within the stipulated time. Hence the application cannot be entertained. Furthermore, he contends that for a change in father's name a Court order is necessary. Since the petitioner sought change in his father's name, hence a Court order was required.

5. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The documents available on the record show that the petitioner was issued National Identify Card on 22-1-1981, and his fathers name is printed as "Haji Chanan Din". Copy of the petitioner's passport also shows that his fathers name is "Haji Chanan Din". Application form for the computerized CNIC shows that he stated his fathers name as "Haji Chanan Din" (deceased). His mother's CNIC card shows her husbands name as "Haji Chanan Din" (deceased). The family numbers of both CNIC cards, being that of the petitioner and of his mother are the same. Two facts are apparent from a simple review of the aforementioned documents. First that the petitioner was issued NIC in 1981, which states his father's name as "Haji Chanan Din". Secondly, all the documents including the passport and application form state his father's name as "Haji Chanan Din". This means that this cannot be a case of change of name of the petitioner's father, it is clearly a typographic mistake while printing the required details of the petitioner on the CNIC. Hence it is a case of correction of office mistake on the CNIC of the petitioner.

7. Learned Legal Advisor for the respondent relied upon the terms of the Standard Operating Procedure/Registration Policy. He argued that the respondent was bound by the SOPs, which provides for a three month period for correction of office mistake. Since the application was made in the year 2009 and the CNIC was issued in the year 2002, the application of the petitioner was barred by time. Therefore, the respondent cannot entertain the request/application of the petitioner. Essentially the effect of the argument advanced by the learned Legal Advisor for the respondent is that an apparent mistake in the data base of the respondent or on the CNIC of the petitioner should continue. Meaning thereby, that the data and identity of the petitioner is factually incorrect and should remain incorrect. This goes against the very spirit of maintaining a national data base and issuing national identity cards. Hence, there is no merit in the argument of the learned Legal Advisor for the respondent.

8. The National Database and Registration Authority Ordinance, 2000 (Ordinance) provides for the establishment of a national data base and for a Registration Authority to facilitate the registration of all persons. The purpose, object, functions and powers of the respondent are provided for in section 5. Section 10 provides for the issuance of national identity card to any citizen. Section 9(1) of the Ordinance provides for the registration of all the citizen under the Ordinance and also provides that citizens registered under the previous law, being the National Registration Act, 1973 shall be deemed to be registered under this Ordinance. Section 9(1) of the Ordinance is reproduced below:--

"(1) Every citizen in or out of Pakistan who has attained the age of eighteen years shall get himself and a parent or guardian of every citizen who has not attained the age shall, not later than one month after the birth of such citizen, get such citizen registered in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance.

Provided further that all such citizens who stand validly registered under any law immediately before the commencement of this Ordinance shall be deemed to have been registered under this Ordinance and their registration shall, subject to sections 17, 18 and 30 remain valid till the expiry of two years from the commencement of this Ordinance, or such time as may be notified by the Federal Government, or till such time as such citizen is registered afresh as hereinafter provided, whichever is earlier."
The aforementioned provisions provide that a national data base is to be maintained by the respondent. This data base record maintains all the required data regarding a citizen, thus establishing a data base or information base known as the citizen data base. Every citizen is required to be registered with the respondent and to effectuate the registration every citizen is issued a national identity card. The national identity card is a legal document for the identification of a citizen. Its issuance means that the information contained therein is valid and correct. Therefore, by not correcting an error in its data base or on the CNIC the respondent is in fact going against the spirit of the Ordinance and is not performing its primary function. It is also perpetuating a wrong in its own data base, which negates the purpose of a national identity card. The respondent is bound to maintain a correct data base and is bound to print the correct information on the CNIC. Finally, since the petitioner was issued a national identity card in 1981, and the said card states his father's name as "Haji Channan Din", in view of section 9(1) he is deemed to be registered under the Ordinance and the respondent is obligated to correct any error in its database or on the CNIC it issues to a citizen.

9. On the issue of the SOPs and the argument that the respondent is bound by the same, it is seen that the NADRA (NIC) Rules 2002, provide for in Rule 13 that:- "For the incorporation of a change in the card, the Authority may, on an application made in the appropriate form provided in the regulations and subject to surrender of the original card, issue a new revised card incorporating the change.
Furthermore, the respondent under the Ordinance, 2000 enjoys enabling powers under section 5(3):--
"The Authority may take such measures and exercise such powers and perform such functions as it considers necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Ordinance.

10. The Standard Operating Procedure/Registration Policy relied upon are internal instructions to enable the respondent to achieve optimum level of efficiency, and to ensure consistency and uniformity in its procedure and process. The SOPs do not have the force of law. Hence they are not binding on the respondent. At best it's an internal document and cannot form the basis of denying the petitioner the right to have the correct information maintained in the citizen data base and printed on the CNIC. The SOPs also cannot form the basis for the respondent to refuse to correct an error in its record because if the error is not corrected, it will negate the very purpose of issuing a CNIC to a citizen. Furthermore, delay in filing an application for correction of an office mistake cannot hamper or prevent the process of actually correcting the database or the CNIC.

11. In view of the aforementioned, this petition is accepted, the respondent is directed to treat the pending request of the petitioner as a correction of office mistake and to correct his father's name, and issue a new CNIC with the correct particulars. Compliance report shall be submitted to Deputy Registrar (Judl) of this Court.

12. With the above directions, this writ petition stands disposed of.

.K.M.Z./M-195/L Order accordingly.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---- This writ petition impugns order dated 21-4-2012 passed by the respondent No.2 cancelling the recruitment process and the merit list for the post of Instructor Grade-II (BS-8) in the office of District Officer (Civil Defence) Bhakkar.

2. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that the vacancy for Instructor Grade-II was advertised in daily "Nawa-e-Waqt", Lahore. The petitioner applied for the post on 8-3-2012. Candidates were interviewed and the final merit list was posted on 14-4-2012, which showed that the petitioner had secured 86 marks out of 100 and was placed at serial No.1 on the merit list. Therefore, the counsel submits that the petitioner should have been appointed against the vacancy of Instructor Grade-II. However, on 21-4-2012 the respondent No.2 issued a letter to cancel the process of recruitment for the said post. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that apparently some inquiry was undertaken wherein it was disclosed that the candidate at serial No.2 was the son of respondent No.3, who had utilized his position to place the name of his son on the merit list at serial No.2 and was also trying to disqualify the petitioner from his position at serial No.1 on the merit list. He further submits that it is on account of the efforts of respondent No.3, that the impugned order was passed. Hence this petition.

3. Respondents have filed their reply and parawise comments. It is their case that no merit list was prepared and if at all there is a list, it was a provisional list and not a final list. Furthermore, it was argued that it was well within the discretion of the respondents to cancel the merit list, if it is concluded the recruitment process was full of irregularities.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. The basic legal question arising in this petition is that once the final merit list was issued whether the petitioner should have been considered for the appointment of Instructor Grade-II. In this regard the first requirement was to ascertain whether a final merit list was issued. Although the respondents have denied that any merit list was made, the fact of the matter is that the merit list was issued and this is borne out of the impugned order itself, which states that "complaints were received regarding defective preparation of education qualification marks list (merit list), as prescribed in the Recruitment Policy, 2004, for recruitment against the post of Instructor Grade-II (BS-8) in the office of District Officer (Civil Defense), Bhakkar". The respondents were unable to establish any further steps required to finalize the merit list. As per the record, the procedure for recruitment was finalized and there was nothing outstanding in the process. Therefore, there is no basis for the respondents to allege that a merit list was not prepared or that the existing list is a provisional list.

6. The next question is, if the merit list was finalized what were the irregularities in the recruitment process so detected. As per the report of the respondents there were allegations against respondent No.3 for managing the recruitment of his son, who was shown at serial No.2 on the merit list. The entire objection, irregularity or illegality with the recruitment process is in relation to respondent No.3 and his son. In terms of the inquiry report, it was found that the candidate at serial No.2 of the merit list was not eligible for the post, yet his name is found on the merit list. Therefore, in view of this irregularity the recruitment process was suggested to be cancelled and a fresh advertisement was recommended for the post. The findings in the inquiry process do not reveal any irregularities but instead show how the respondent No.3 utilized his position to process his son's case. This cannot be termed as an "irregularity in the recruitment process". It reveals an abuse of authority, which offends the due process of law. Reliance is placed on a case titled "Shabana Akhtar v. District Coordination Officer, Bhakkar and 2 others" (2012 PLC (C.S.) 366). In such cases it is necessary to arrest the abuse of authority by ensuring that it does not prejudice the merit of a deserving candidate.

7. The case of the petitioner is quite simple; he applied in terms of the recruitment policy; was cleared by the competent authority after being interviewed and tested, and his name appeared at serial No.1 of the merit list. As such a right had accrued in his favour and he should have been considered for the appointment of the post of Instructor Grade-II. Any allegation pertaining to undue favour advanced by the respondent No.3 for his son at serial No.2 should not and cannot be used to cancel the entire process. Firstly, a vested right is created in favour of the petitioner when his name appeared at serial No.1 on the merit list. Secondly, the allegations raised have nothing to do with the petitioner. He is neither involved in the matter nor is there any complaint against him. Therefore, there is no reason to doubt his merit. Furthermore, since there is only one vacancy for the post of Instructor Grade-II, the person enjoying the top position on the merit list is entitled to the appointment. Accordingly, there appears to be no reason to cancel the recruitment process and the existing merit list. Hence there is no reason to re-advertise the post. In this regard, reliance is placed on a case titled "Hafiz Mukhtar Ahmad v. Government of the Punjab and others" (2005 PLC (C.S.) 1449), which holds that a right is seated in favour of the petitioner when his name is displayed on the merit list. There is no doubt that the authority passing or making the list has the power to recall, modify or cancel the same, however, such power is subject to the exception that it must be done in accordance with law and it should not be to the detriment of the right accrued. In the instant case, the petitioner's merit is not in question, as he was the deserving candidate. Notwithstanding the abuse of authority by the respondent

No.3, the recruitment process to the extent of the petitioner has been finalized. He has a right to be appointed as Instructor Grade-II, in terms of the final merit list.

8. For the foregoing reasons, this petition is accepted. The impugned order dated 21-4-2012 is set aside and the respondent No.2 is directed to issue an appointment order in favour of the petitioner against the post of Instructor Grade-II (BS-8) in the office of District Officer (Civil Defence) Bhakkar.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition, the petitioner prays for the implementation of judgment dated 9-12-2011 issued by the Punjab Service Tribunal, Lahore.

2. The basic issue of the petitioner is for the implementation of the judgment dated 9-12-2011 in her favour in Service Appeal No.385 of 2010. It is the case of the petitioner that the respondent has challenged the said judgment by filing C.P.L.A before the Hon'ble Supreme Court but so far no stay has been ordered against the said judgment. Hence it should be implemented.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that the Service Tribunal does not possess the requisite power under the Punjab Service Tribunals Act, 1974 ("the Act") to implement or enforce its own judgment because the statute does not provide it with the necessary powers. He further argued that there is nothing in the Act which enables the Tribunal to execute its own judgment as it has no power to deal with contempt of court. He states that with the power of contempt, a court can ensure that its judgment is enforced. He also states that section 5 of the Act is limited to deciding the appeal. As such there is no power for enforcing the judgment in appeal.

4. Learned Law Officer argued to the contrary. He stated that the High Court in its constitutional jurisdiction is not an executing court. He argued that section 5 of the Act provides that a Tribunal shall for the purpose of deciding any appeal be deemed to be a civil court and shall have the same powers as are vested in a civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure of 1908. The Tribunal therefore, having all the powers of civil court can implement its own judgment. He places reliance on 2003 PLC (C.S.) 1186, PLD 1996 SC (AJ&K) 29, 2008 PLC (C.S.) 517 and 2012 PLC (C.S.) 106.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The Punjab Service Tribunals Act, 1974 is an Act for the establishment of a service tribunal to exercise jurisdiction regarding matters relating to terms and conditions of service within the Province of Punjab. Section 4 of the Act provides for an appeal to the Tribunal against the final order, whether original or appellate, made by a departmental authority with respect to terms and conditions of service. The powers of the Tribunal are contained in section 5 of the Act, which reads as follows:---

"Power of Tribunals.--- (1) A Tribunal may, on appeal, confirm, set aside, vary or modify the order appealed against.

(2) A Tribunal shall, for the purpose of deciding any appeal, be deemed to be a civil court and shall have the same powers as are vested in such Court under the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 (Act V of 1908) including the powers of.

(a) enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath;

(b) Compelling the production of documents; and

(c) issuing commission for the examination of witnesses and documents.

(3) No court-fee shall be payable for preferring an appeal to, or filing, exhibiting or recording any document in or obtaining any document from a Tribunal."

Section 5(2) of the Act provides that a Tribunal shall have all the powers of a civil court under the Civil Procedure Code. The language which is being stressed upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner and which requires consideration in this writ petition is "for the purposes of deciding any, appeal". Learned counsel for the petitioner reads this to mean that the Tribunal can only adjudicate upon an appeal and has no power to implement or enforce its judgment. This contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner does not cater to the correct interpretation of section 5. Section 5(2) declares that the Service Tribunal has all the powers of a Civil Court when it decides an appeal. The meaning of "deciding any appeal" is not limited to bare adjudication but will include the powers necessary to ensure that its decision is executed in letter and spirit. To achieve this, the Tribunal has all the powers available to a civil court to execute its orders/judgments and ensure its implementation. The rule is embodied in the maxim Quando lex aliquid alicui concedit concedere videtur et lid sine quo res ipsa esse non potest. This maxim provides that whoever grants a thing is deemed also to grant that without which the grant itself would be of no effect. N.S. Bindra in the Interpretation of Statutes, Eighth Edition explains that whenever anything is authorized, or required to be done by a statute and it is found impossible to do that which is authorized, then the law will by necessary intendment provide the authorization to do that what its required to be done. Therefore, where a statute confers jurisdiction, it also confers by implication, the power of doing all such acts or applying such means as are essential for its execution. Simply put the doctrine of implied power can be invoked when giving interpretation to the jurisdiction conferred upon a tribunal under a statute. So when section 5 of the Act confers the power on the Service Tribunal to decide an appeal, it also confers the power to ensure that its decision is complied with. If this interpretation is not given to section 5 it would render the power of adjudication by the Tribunal as dead letter because it would not have the power to enforce its decisions.

7. There is also another reason why constitutional jurisdiction cannot be used to enforce or implement the judgment of the service tribunal. Article 212 of the Constitution provides that Administrative Courts or Tribunal shall have exclusive jurisdiction with respect to matters relating to the terms and conditions of service for persons in the service of Pakistan. Subsection (2) of Article 212 says that no other court shall grant an injunction, make any order or entertain any proceeding in respect of any matter to which the exclusive jurisdiction of Administrative Court or the Tribunal extends. It has recently been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in an unreported judgment passed in Civil Appeal No.428-L of 2010 titled "The Chief Secretary, Government of Punjab, Lahore and another v. Sara Bani and another" which reads as under:---

"a matter relating to her terms and conditions of service could only approach the Tribunal for redressal of her grievance on whatever grounds available to her including mala fides, but could not approach the High Court as the prohibition/bar contained in the Article was absolute."

As the bar is absolute for any court, including the High Court under Article 199 of the Constitution for adjudicating upon the terms and conditions of service, then such bar will also extend to executing the order/judgment of the Service Tribunal. As such Article 199 cannot be invoked for executing a decision that it is not competent to adjudicate upon.

8. The cases relied upon by the learned Law Officer were helpful. 2003 PLC (C.S.) 1186 holds that "Under section 5(2) of the Punjab Services Tribunals Act, 1974, the Tribunal has been given the powers to decide an appeal as a Civil Court. The Tribunal will have all the powers of the Civil Court to bring issue before it to a logical end like the Civil Court. As under section 36 of the C.P.C, the Civil Court can get its orders implemented/executed under the provisions of the C.P.C. Likewise, the Tribunal also has the same powers to bring its decision to a logical end in the shape of its implementations in its letter and spirit.

In view of the above, the Punjab Service Tribunal being a Civil Court within the meaning of section 5(2) of the Service Tribunal Act, 1974, it can get its order enforced/executed as observed in the preceding paragraph."

PLD 1996 SC (AJ&K) 29 holds that

"The rule makes its clear that the law requires total obedience of orders passed by the Service Tribunal. In my view the Service Tribunal is possessed with adequate powers to see that its orders are implemented. It is an accepted principle of law that when a jurisdiction is conferred on a Court or Tribunal to pass an order the power to have the order implemented as implicit in that jurisdiction. In the interpretation of Statutes by Maxwell, 1962 Edition, at page 350 under monograph "Implied Powers and Obligations" there is a' statement to the following effect:---

Where an Act confers a jurisdiction, it impliedly also grants the power of doing all such acts, or employing such means, as are essentially necessary to its execution.

Cui jurisdictio data est, ea quoque concessa esse videntur, sin quibus jurisdictio explicari non potuit."
This well known principle was upheld by the Supreme Court of Pakistan in Commissioner, Khairpur Division Khairpur v. Ali Sher Sarki PLD 1971 SC 242. Therefore, as I read it, the power of implementing its orders is available to the Service Tribunal" 2012 PLC (C.S.) 106 holds that:---
"The above provision of law leads us to conclude that since the Balochistan Service Tribunal is a civil Court for the purpose of deciding any appeal regarding the terms and conditions of a civil servant, therefore, it has all the powers of a civil court including those required to implement its judgments as provided under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.
In view of the above legal position, the Balochistan Service Tribunal, being a civil court within the meaning of section 5(2) of the Balochistan Service Tribunal Act, 1974, in case of the disobedience of its judgment the same can be enforced under the applicable provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 if the petitioner approaches the Tribunal. The petitioner, therefore, has an alternate and efficacious remedy available to him and in case he wants to seek enforcement of the judgment of the Balochistan Service Tribunal he may approach the Tribunal for enforcement thereof."

9. The Service Tribunal is therefore, vested with the power to do complete justice; adjudicate and then enforce. Since the Tribunal may on appeal confirm, set-aside, vary or modify the order appealed against, it can also implement such orders/judgments. There is nothing in section 5 which limits the powers of Service Tribunal to simply adjudicating upon an appeal. Article 212 of the Constitution read with Section 5 of the Act is absolutely clear; the Service Tribunal has exclusive jurisdiction to decide on matters relating to terms and conditions of persons in the service of Pakistan and have exclusive jurisdiction to ensure that their orders are duly implemented.

10. Finally to address the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the Service Tribunal cannot implement its decision because it does not possess the power conferred on a court to take action for contempt of court. The said argument holds no force because the power of contempt of court is not used for implementing an order but is used to punish a person who abuses or obstructs the process of the court or in any way disobeys the order of the Court. In the instant case, the petitioner's grievance is that the respondents are not implementing judgment dated 9-12-2011.This grievance can be redressed by the Punjab Service Tribunal itself. The petitioner can seek implementation of the judgment before the Service Tribunal if he so desires.

Order

This petition impugns the judgments and decrees dated 25.07.2011 and 19.01.2012 passed by Judge Family Court and Addl: District Judge, Mandi Baha-ud-Din respectively as there are concurrent findings against the Petitioner.

2. Brief facts of the case are that Respondents No. 1 to 4 filed a suit for recovery of maintenance allowance, which was decreed on 26.02.2008 providing maintenance at the rate of Rs.2000/- per month. Thereafter, they filed a suit for enhancement of maintenance allowance on 05.04.2010, which was decreed on 25.07.2011 providing for enhanced maintenance at the rate of Rs.4000/- per month with a 5% annual increase from date of institution till legal limitation of each. Hence this writ petition.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner contends that the decree issued on 24.02.2008 has attained finality, hence the principle of `resjudicata' applies. Further contends that in view of the said principle the Respondent was not entitled to seek enhancement of maintenance allowance, that too within a period of two years. He relied upon Section 17 of the Family Court Act, 1964 which he states provides for the principle of res judicata and upon the Schedule which does not provide for a suit for enhancement of maintenance.

4. Heard the learned counsel for the Petitioner and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. The contention of the learned counsel for the Petitioner that the principle of res judicata will apply to order dated 26.02.2008, is legally flawed as the principle of res judicata will not apply to suit for enhancement of maintenance since the issues pertaining to the enhanced maintenance were not in issue between the parties in the previous suit. There is no bar in law against filing a fresh suit for enhancement of the maintenance allowance due to change in circumstances, change in cost of living and additional needs of the minor, which a father is under legal obligation to provide. Reliance is placed on Muhammad Ashraf vs. Mst, Nusrat Bibi and 3 others (2010 CLC 1411), In the case of Muhammad Akram vs. Addl: District Judge and others (PLD 2008 Lahore 560), this Court has held that Section 11 of the C.P.C in relation to the cause of action of suit codifies the doctrine of res judicata which operates when there is a judgment between the same parties and it prevents a fresh suit between them regarding the same matter. In a suit for enhanced maintenance, the growth of the children, the cost of living, change in the status of the parties, change in the expenditures incurred based on the needs of the children are some of the factors which either bring about a change of the cause of action or may make out even a fresh cause of action for the children to demand enhanced maintenance allowance. Thus fresh proceedings for maintenance allowance are maintainable before the Family Court. Since enhanced maintenance was not a matter in issue between the parties, hence, the principle of res judicata will not apply.

6. On the issue whether a suit for enhancement of maintenance is maintainable under the Schedule, the answer is that the same is maintainable. The Schedule provides for the matter over which the family Court should have jurisdiction. Maintenance is provided at Serial No. 3. As such there is no bar on filing a suit for enhancement of maintenance. There are bound to be changes in the circumstances and changes in the requirements of the children. Naturally, as the children will grow their needs will also grow. Reliance is placed on a case titled Arab Mir Muhammad Vs. Mst. Iram Iltimas and 4 others (1999 CLC 1668). It is noted that this is an unrealistic approach that the maintenance allowance should remain fixed throughout the growing period of the minor or that the 5% increase should be considered sufficient. A father is legally bound to maintain the minor in terms of the requirement of the minor and the cost of living.

7. For the forgoing reasons, the learned Court has exercised the powers in accordance with law. There is no illegality in the impugned orders, which merit interference by this Court in the exercise of its constitutional jurisdiction. The writ petition being without substance is hereby dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This is a single judgment in Writ Petition Nos.14645, 14663 & 14360 of 2012. All three writ petitions impugn the decision of the respondents Nos.1 & 2 wherein a contract for the procurement of 112 Ambulances has been awarded to respondent No.3.

2. In the instant petition being Writ Petition No.14645 of 2012 the petitioner participated in the bidding process and is aggrieved by the decision of the respondents No.1 & 2, for being contrary to the Punjab Procurement Rules, 2009 ("PPRA Rules 2009"). The case of the petitioner is that the vehicle offered by the respondent No.3 is a Chinese vehicle named Panorama, which is neither a Panel A vehicle nor a standardized vehicle, as required in the bidding document itself. Therefore, the respondents Nos.1 & 2 could not have awarded the tender in favour of respondent No.3. The petitioner made an offer as per the specifications provided and its technical bid was approved by the technical committee. Yet, in sheer violation of the rules, the contract was awarded to the respondent No.3.

3. Writ Petition No.14663 of 2012 has been filed by the petitioner in public interest. It is the case of the petitioner that the manner in which the tender has been awarded to respondent No.6 (Respondent No.3 in the instant petition) is contrary to the PPRA Rules, 2009. It is also the case of the petitioner that respondent No.6 has offered a substandard vehicle, which is not suitable for the job of emergency facilities and the people at large will suffer.

4. In Writ Petition No.14360 of 2012, the case of the petitioner is that he wanted to participate in the tender for the 112 Ambulances. However, he was informed that only standardized vans or Panel-A vehicles can be offered and that no Chinese brand will be considered. It was only later that petitioner came to know that the contract has been awarded to respondent No.11 for the supply of a Chinese brand which was neither Panel A nor standardized. It is the grievance of the petitioner that he was knocked out of the entire proceedings on account of the fact that he was willing to offer a Chinese vehicle. If Chinese vehicles were to be considered then he should have been allowed participation in the bidding proceedings.

5. The common issue in all three writ petitions is whether the tender awarded in favour of M/S Shahnawaz Motors (Pvt) Ltd respondent No.3 in W.P. No.14645-12, respondent No.6 in Writ Petition No.14663-12 and respondent No.11 in Writ Petition No.14360-12 (hereinafter referred as respondent No.3) was in accordance with the PPRA Rules, 2009. Before adhering to the merits of this case, the objections of the learned Law Officer should be considered. The Law Officer argued that disputed questions of fact arise in all three writ petitions, which cannot be decided in Constitutional Jurisdiction. He has placed reliance on PLD 2001 SC 415. He also argued that the petitioners have a remedy available to them under Rule 48 of the PPRA Rules, 2009, such that if they are aggrieved by any act of the procuring agency after the submission of the bid, a written complaint can be filed upon which a committee will investigate and decide upon the complaint. He further added that against this decision of the committee an appeal can be filed before a competent court. He has placed reliance on a case titled "Executive District Officer (Revenue) District Khushab at Jauharabad and others v. Ijaz Hussain and another" 2011 SCMR 1864. Finally, learned Law Officer argued that this is a matter of policy and policy cannot be challenged through Constitutional Jurisdiction. Reliance was placed on a case titled "Ijaz Ahmad v. The State" 2009 SCMR 98. He stated that it is for the Punjab Government to decide what its requirements are for the purposes of these Ambulances and if the Government wants to procure a Chinese Brand, there is no basis upon which this decision can be challenged.

6. I have given consideration to all the preliminary objections raised by the learned Law Officer on the maintainability of these three writ petitions. I am of the opinion -that all three writ petitions are maintainable as the only issue to be decided in the writ petitions is whether the contract awarded to the respondent No.3 was in accordance with the PPRA Rules 2009. Since the only question before the Court is whether the Respondents have acted in accordance with law, the same can be decided in Constitutional Jurisdiction. In this regard the law Officer has placed reliance on an unreported judgment dated 13-2-2012 passed by this court in Writ Petition No.23770 of 2009, which dealt with the issue of blacklisting and fresh bidding after awarding a contract. In the stated case, one of the issues was whether or not the contract executed in favour of respondent No.4 was backdated. The learned Judge held that this is a disputed question of fact, which cannot be decided in Constitutional Jurisdiction. In the instant petitions there is no disputed question of fact involved, hence reliance upon the judgment of 13-2-2012 does not advance the argument of the learned Law Officer. Therefore these writ petitions are maintainable in their present form.

7. The brief facts of this case are that a tender was advertised in "The News" and daily "Nawa-e-Waqt" on 25-4-2012. It was also placed on the PPRA web site as per the PPRA Rules 2009. The tender notice dated 23-4-2012 provides for the procurement of 112 Emergency Rescue Cardiac Ambulances. As per the specifications provided the Ambulance was to be Panel-A vehicle or a standardized van. Standardization is done by the Services and General Administration Department, (Procurement Wing). A list of standardized vans has been provided by the respondents Nos.1 & 2 dated 17 December 2008. The bidding specifications provide that Panel-A includes European, American and Japanese origin firms. The tender was a two stage, two envelope bidding procedure as per Rule 36-d of the PPRA Rules 2009. The bids were opened on 10-4-2012. The technical information received from four firms was evaluated by the Technical Scrutiny Committee. Thereafter, in a meeting of the Standing Purchase Committee the decision to award the contract to respondent No.3 was made. Hence these petitions.

8. Learned counsel for the respondents along with the learned Law Officer have argued that the entire bidding process was in accordance with the PPRA Rules 2009 and the decision of the Standing Purchase Committee is also after giving due consideration to all the information submitted before it. The bidder with the lowest bid and most acceptable terms was awarded the contract. It was argued that the petitioners have no grievance whatsoever, as their bid did not meet the requirements of the respondents Nos.1 and 2.

9. Heard learned counsel for the parties at length and reviewed the record available on the file.

10. Rule 36 of the PPRA Rules 2009 provides the procedure of open competitive bidding. Rule 36(d) provides for the two stage two envelope bidding procedure. As per the Rules the bidder will provide two separate envelopes; one will contain a financial proposal and the other a technical proposal. In the first stage, the technical proposal shall be discussed with the bidder in terms of the procuring agency's technical requirements. Those bidders, who show willingness to meet the requirements of the procuring agency, shall be allowed to revise their technical proposal after the aforementioned discussion. Bidders not willing to conform to the technical proposal for the revised requirement can withdraw their respective bids. In the second stage, the bidders, who are willing to conform to the revised technical specifications and whose bids have not already been rejected shall submit a revised technical proposal and a supplementary revised financial proposal in accordance with the technical requirements. The revised technical proposal along with the original financial proposal along with supplementary financial proposal should be opened at the date, time and place announced by the procuring agency. Finally, the procuring agency evaluates the entire proposal in accordance with the evaluation criteria and the bid found to be the lowest evaluated bid is accepted.

11. In the instant case, as per the documents provided by the petitioners and the respondents 1 & 2, the tender requirements were specified in the bidding documents. The bidding documents provided for the general conditions, special conditions and technical specifications for the emergency rescue cardiac ambulance required. The technical bids of four firms were evaluated by the Technical Scrutiny Committee in its meeting held on 11, 14 and 15 May, 2012. The Technical Scrutiny Committee rejected the bid of respondent No.3 because they offered Chinese vehicles, which did not conform to the technical, specification, being Panel-A or standardized vehicles. The bid offered by the petitioner in Writ Petition No.14645 of 2012 was accepted keeping in view past experience, durability reliability and easy availability of spare parts. The recommendation and evaluation report of the Technical Scrutiny Committee was considered by the Standing Purchase Committee, in its meeting held on 17th May and then again on 18th May, 2012. In the first meeting the Deputy Secretary, Finance Department objected to the report of the Technical Scrutiny Committee as he was of the view that technical report was not based on technical aspects but was based on operational requirements. It was also decided at that meeting that open competition should be held, which meant that all brands including Chinese Ambulances should have been considered. At this point, in terms of the arguments advanced by the respondents, revised bids were offered by three of the bidders to meet the revised technical requirements of the Standing Purchase Committee. However the petitioner in the instant writ petition did not revise its bid. On 18th May, the Standing Purchase Committee opened the financial bids and awarded the contract to the respondent No.3 who offered the lowest bid.

12. The procedure adopted by the Standing Purchase Committee and the manner in which they awarded the contract to the respondent No.3 is contrary to the PPRA Rules 2009. The Rules provide that the "lowest evaluated bid" shall be accepted. Lowest evaluated bid is defined in the definition clause as:-- "(i) a bid most closely conforming to evaluation criteria and other conditions specified in bidding document; and

(ii) having lowest evaluated cost;"

This means that the lowest evaluated bid must conform to the evaluation criteria and other conditions specified in the bidding document and it should be the lowest in terms of costs. Rule 30 provides for the evaluation of bids:--

"1. All bids shall be evaluated in accordance with the evaluation criteria and other terms and conditions set forth in the prescribed bidding documents. Save as provided for in sub-clause (iv) of clause (c) of rule 36 no evaluation criteria shall be used for evaluation of bids that had not been specified in the bidding documents.

3. A bid once opened in accordance with the prescribed procedure shall be subject to only those rules, regulations and policies that are in force at the time of issue of notice for invitation of bids."
Rule 29 provides for the evaluation criteria being:-
"Procuring agencies shall formulate an appropriate evaluation criterion listing all the relevant information against which a bid is to be evaluated. Such evaluation criteria shall form an integral part of the bidding documents. Failure to provide for an unambiguous evaluation criteria in the bidding documents shall amount to mis-procurement."
In terms of the aforementioned Rules, the purpose of the bidding documents is to set out the requirement and the criteria against which the bids will be evaluated. In any bidding process it is vital that the terms and conditions and the specifications required are known to the bidder so that he can present his bid in accordance with the specifications and conditions laid out in the bidding documents. Accordingly all bids are reviewed against the same evaluation criteria in deciding which is the lowest bid.

13. Admittedly the bid of the respondent No.3 was not in accordance with the specifications provided in the bidding document. Essentially the respondent No.3 offered a vehicle which was not specified in the bidding documents. This is precisely why the Technical Scrutiny Committee rejected their bid, as their offer did not meet the technical specifications of the bidding documents. Once the Technical Scrutiny Committee rejected the bid of the respondent No.3, the Standing Purchase Committee could not set out new specifications and then award the contract to the respondent No.3, In doing so the Standing Purchase Committee did not per se revise the technical specifications, they changed the basic specifications. The required specifications were ignored and replaced by technical specifications which were neither present nor contemplated for in the bidding documents. The Standing Purchase Committee cannot set aside the findings of the Technical Scrutiny Committee nor can it replace the technical specifications. If after due consideration of the bids, the Purchase Committee was of the opinion that the financial proposal for Panel-A or standardized vehicles was on the higher side, they could have recommended re-bidding in terms of Rule 34. This would be in line with the spirit of the PPRA Rules 2009. However to simply set aside the report' of the Technical Scrutiny Committee and then award the contract to a person whose bid was rejected by the Technical Scrutiny Committee is a gross violation of Rule 36(d) (viii), which provides that revised bids will be submitted by bidders whose bids have not been rejected. The PPRA Rules 2009 ensure transparency and open competitive bidding. They provide the procedural safeguard to achieve value for money and prevent abuse in the procurement process. Awarding the contract to a rejected bidder negates the spirit of open competitive bidding.

14. In terms of the procedure followed, the Standing Purchase Committee does not have the mandate to over rule the findings of the Technical Scrutiny Committee. It is required to consider the recommendations and findings of the Technical Scrutiny Committee and take a decision accordingly. By ignoring the decision of the Technical Scrutiny Committee the Standing Purchase Committee violated the PPRA Rules, 2009 and the objective of the said Rules. In terms of Rule 36(d) any revision in the technical specifications will be decided by the Technical Scrutiny Committee in consultation with the bidders. Such revisions should be in line with the basic specifications, conditions and evaluation criteria provided in the bidding documents. A revision in the technical specifications does not mean changing the entire basis of the specifications. In this case the specification was for Panel A or standardized vehicles. This specification set out the bench mark for the quality required. Any revision of the technical specifications should have been within the ambit of Panel A or standardized vehicles. As per the stated Rule once the revised technical bids are in place, the financial bids are to be considered. If the Standing Purchase Committee wanted to include Chinese firms then it should have called for re-bidding so that all persons, who wanted to participate in the bidding process and who could meet the new specification could have presented their proposal. This would have included persons like the Petitioner in Writ Petition No.14360 of 2012. This is also keeping with the spirit and purpose of the PPRA Rules 2009 which provides in Rule 2(c) that competitive bidding means "a procedure leading to the award of a contract whereby all the interested persons, firms, companies or organizations may bid for the contract and includes both national competitive bidding and international competitive bidding"

15. At this point it is pertinent to mention that the learned counsel for the respondent No.3 while defending the award of the contract in his favour stressed upon the reputation and the quality of the brand offered by the respondent No.3. He also argued that the respondent No.3 has been supplying Ambulances to the respondents Nos.1 & 2 previously. These arguments do not advance the case of the respondent No.3 as it is immaterial what the quality of the brand being offered by the Respondent No.3 is. Or that they have been providing such vehicles in the past. The only material issue is that the respondent No.3 offered a vehicle which was not specified or required under the bidding documents. The whole purpose of providing the bidding documents and the specifications, conditions and evaluation criteria is so that the public at large is informed of the intended procurement and interested parties can formulate their proposals in accordance with what has been specifically required.

16. An the light of the aforementioned the petitions are allowed. The decision taken by the Standing Purchase Committee in favour of the respondent No.3 is illegal and contrary to the PPRA Rules 2009. The procedure adopted by the Standing Purchase Committee is also illegal and contrary to the PPRA Rules 2009. The respondents Nos.1 & 2 may reconsider the specifications desired for the procurement of the emergency vehicles and thereby invite fresh tenders strictly in accordance with the PPRA Rules, 2009. Finally, all funds that have been processed in the name of the respondent No.3 may be set aside for the fresh bidding process and its successor. In this regard the respondents Nos. 1 and 2 are directed to ensure transparency and competitive bidding as contemplated under the PPRA Rules.
KMZ/T-21/L Petition allowed.

JUDGMENT
AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- This R.F.A. is filed against judgment and decree dated 15-12-2009 by the learned Civil Judge Lahore wherein the suit filed by the respondent No.1 was decreed in his favour.

2. The brief facts of this case are that the respondent No.1 filed a suit for declaration, possession and mandatory injunction in relation to a piece of land located in Fortress Stadium, Lahore Cantt. It is the case of respondent No.1 that he is the lessee of 16 Marlas of land adjacent to Shops Nos.5 and 6 and opposite Bundu Khan Restaurant in Bolan Block Fortress Stadium, Lahore under a Lease Agreement dated 18-7-1995. It is also his case that this land is non-transferable and that he never sold the said land to the appellants, never received any money from them and never sought transfer of the land in their favour through the respondents Nos.2 and 3.

3. On the other hand, it is the case of the appellants that the respondent No.1 sold them his lease hold rights under the Lease Agreement dated 18-7-1995 for Rs.7,000,000/-. In this regard an agreement to sell was executed between the parties on 29-7-2001 and payment was made in two instalments, Rs.3,000,000/- and Rs.4,000,000/- respectively. Transfer was made in favour of the appellant No.1 on the request of the respondent No.1 through the offices of the respondents Nos.2 and 3. To effectuate the transfer the respondent No.1 made a request for transfer in favour of the appellant No.1 dated 28-5-2001, Exh.D.3 and paid the transfer fee to the respondents 2 and 3, Exh.P.4/1 and Exh.P.4/2. After the transfer, the appellants have been paying the rent to the offices of the respondents Nos.2 and 3 and have been enjoying possession of the land in dispute. It was on 24-1-2006 that the respondent No.1 filed a suit against the appellants stating that he never sold any lease hold rights for the land to them.

4. Ten issues were framed in the suit, of which the relevant issue, as decided by the learned Civil Judge Ist Class, Lahore was issue No.8. It reads as follows:---
"Whether the so-called agreement is the result of collusion and connivance between the defendants? OPD

5. The respondent No.1 appeared himself as a witness and produced two other witnesses. He produced receipt of payment Exh.P.W.4/1 and Exh.P.4/2 showing payment to the respondents Nos.2 and 3 for transfer fee on 25-9-2001 and 10-10-2001. He says that this was actually for construction purposes. On the other hand, the appellant No.1 appeared in person and produced two witnesses. She produced letters and documents issued in her name by the offices of the respondents Nos.2 and 3 as Exh.D.1 to Exh.D.23. She produced receipts of payment of rent as Exh.D.21 to Exh.D.51 and she produced the register for issuance of stamp paper for the agreement to sell as Exh.D.52. The photocopy of the agreement to sell was produced as Mark A and receipt of payment of Rs.4,000,000/- in favour of the respondent No.1 was produced as Mark B. The original transfer letter was produced as Exh.D.53.
In its findings, the learned Judge decreed the suit in favour of the respondent No.1 on account of the following facts:---
(1) The original agreement to sell was not produced in court. In its place a Photostat copy was produced and referred to as "Mark-A".

(2) The payment made by the appellants could not be proved on account of the contradictions in the dates of the encashment certificates, showing the date when the payment had come into the account of appellant No.1 and the date of payment to the respondent No.1.
(3.) Original request for transfer issued by the respondent No.1 marked as Ex.D.3, from which the signature of the respondent No.1 could not be verified.
The findings on the basis of the aforementioned facts are as follows:--
"Therefore, the plaintiff has successfully proved that he is still entitled to hold the plot in dispute in his name and the transactions allegedly made by the defendants are void ab anitio and based on fraud /fictitious and alleged agreement Mark-A and transfer letter Exh.D.3 are declared to be the result of fraud, collusion and convenience of the defendants and hereby cancelled, hence this issue is decided affirmative in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendants. All other issues decided in favour of the plaintiff based on the findings of the aforesaid issue."

6. Learned counsel for the appellants argued that the impugned judgment and decree does not consider any of the evidence produced by the appellants. The learned Judge has simply relied upon the fact that the original agreement to sell was not produced in court and some minor contradictions in the dates of payment. Important documents produced by the appellants were totally ignored by the learned Civil Judge. He referred to Exh.D.1 being the letter requesting refund of security money in the amount of Rs.25,000/- by respondent No.1 to respondent No.2. He argued that this refund was made to the respondent No.1 since the lease hold rights were transferred to the appellant No.1. He further submitted that Exh.D.2 was ignored where respondent No.1 thanked the respondent No.2 for authorizing the transfer in favour of appellant No.1. Similarly Exh.D.8 was ignored where appellant No.1 applied for transfer in her favour and thereafter all correspondence with the respondents Nos.2 and 3 was with the appellate No.1, since she held the leasehold rights of the land.

7. Learned counsel for the respondent No.1 argued that the appellants could not produce the original agreement to sell because there was no such document and without the original document they have no case. He further argued that the appellants could not prove that any consideration was paid to the respondent No.1. It is the case of the respondent No.1 that the appellants have failed to prove the execution of the agreement to sell and payment of consideration, hence they have failed to prove a sale of the leasehold rights in their favour. He placed reliance on 2007 SCMR 1719 and 2007 SCMR 1884, PLD 1971 SC 838 and PLD 1989 SC 335.

8. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.
There are three essential questions which arise in this R.F.A.
(A) The case of respondent No.1 as pleaded and prayed for in his plaint and the evidence produced in terms thereof to prove his case.
(B) The loss of the original agreement to sell and its effect thereof.

(C) The appreciation of the evidence and the weightage given to the evidence under the law by the learned Civil Judge.

We will take up each of these questions separately.

A. The suit filed by the respondent No.1 was a suit for declaration, possession and permanent injunction restraining the respondents Nos.2 and 3 from executing any further document in favour of the appellants. Suit was originally filed in 2006 and an amended plaint was filed subsequently on account of order dated 5-3-2007. The case of the respondent No.1 as set out in the amended plaint is that he obtained lease-hold rights in the land vide a lease agreement dated 18-7-1995 and since then he has been the lessee of the land. He pleads that the respondents Nos.2 and 3 in collusion with the appellants committed fraud and transferred the property in favour of the appellants. He admits that some business deal related to the property was under negotiation with the appellants, however, since the deal never finalized no agreement to sell was executed. We have heard the counsel for the respondent No.1 at length. He has argued that the case of the respondent No.1 is one of fraud, possession and entitlement to title. The respondent No.1 states in his plaint that the transfer in favour of the appellant No.1 is fraudulent and that he was defrauded by the appellants and the respondents Nos.2 and 3. However, he has given no detail of the fraud, no description of how he was defrauded and has produced nothing in his evidence to establish a case of fraud. It is settled law that a person who takes a plea of fraud must prove each and every aspect of the fraud. Order VI, Rule 4 of the Civil Procedure Code 1908 provides that:---

"4. Particulars to be given where necessary.--- In all cases in which the party pleading relies on any misrepresentation, fraud, breach of trust, wilful default, or undue influence, and in all other cases in which particulars may be necessary beyond such as are exemplified in the forms aforesaid, particulars (with dates and items if necessary) shall be stated in the pleading."

When fraud is the basis of the action or defence then its particulars have to be furnished. Reliance is placed on a case titled "Mst. Sahib Noor v. Haji Ahmad (1988 SCMR 1703) wherein it was held that:---

"In the case of Eliza F.T. Higgs Vatcher and others v. Henry Paull and others AIR 1914 Privy Council 184 it was held that "their Lordships are of the opinion that where charges of fraud are intended to be made, full particulars thereof ought to be given in the pleadings, either as originally framed or as amended for that purpose." The ingredients of 'fraud' were enumerated as follows:---

"In order to establish fraud it must be proved first that a representation was made; secondly that this representation was untrue; thirdly that it was untrue to the knowledge of the person making it; and fourthly that it induced the contract."

On review of the plaint we note that the respondent No.1 has not explained anywhere in his plaint or even through evidence how the appellants took possession of the property. On being asked this question, counsel for the respondent No.1 argued that the appellants had illegally taken possession of the property and in fact were trespassers. This explanation cannot be accepted as there is a period of five years wherein the appellants had possession and for which the respondent No.1 claims they were trespassing. From July, 2001 to the date of filing of the suit, the appellants have paid the rent of the land. It is noteworthy that the respondent No.1 is also the owner of Shops, Nos.5 and 6, adjacent to the land in dispute, for which he has been paying the rent. However throughout this time he has not paid the rent for the land. This means that he was fully aware of the fact that the rent for the land was being paid by the appellants. These are material facts, which are relevant to the case of the respondent No.1 and necessary to the case of the appellants. The learned Judge has totally ignored the material facts of the case. Also in the instant case, there is no evidence whatsoever to explain the refund of the security deposit by the Respondent No.1. There is no detail of the fraud, no date as to when he gained knowledge of the fraud. The respondent No.1 has failed to explain why the appellants have deposited rent with the respondents Nos.2 and 3 from July, 2001 to date. Also the respondent's No.1 case that the lease is non-transferable is contrary to section 8 of the Lease Agreement, which allows a transfer of leasehold rights subject to permission by the Fortress Stadium. Hence the very basis of his case is not in accordance with the Lease Agreement. Therefore we are of the opinion that the respondent No.1 failed to prove his case of fraud. As to his case of forgery on the agreement to sell, we are of the opinion that if no case of fraud was established between the respondents Nos.3 and 4 and the appellants then the case of the respondent No.1 on forgery also fails. This is because even though he denies signatures on Mark-A, Mark-B, Exh.D.2 and Exh.D.3, he does not justify the deposit of the transfer fee, the receipt of Rs.4,000,000/- the refund for the security deposit or the fact that the appellants deposited the rent for the five years. Hence we are of the opinion that the respondent No.1 has not made out his case of fraud and as such is not entitled to possession.

B. It has been argued that the original document being the original agreement to sell was not produced by the appellants; hence they had no legitimate defence in the suit of the respondent No. 1. The appellants case is that the original agreement to sell got lost and with the permission of the court, through secondary evidence, they were able to prove that a sale of the leasehold rights had taken place in favour of the appellant No.1. The record of this case shows that an application to allow secondary evidence was filed by the appellants on 21-6-2008. Reply was filed by the respondent No.1 on 25-6-2008 and an order was passed on 12-9-2009 allowing the appellants to produce secondary evidence. In the form of secondary evidence, the appellants set out their case. The execution of "Mark-A" was proved with the help of P.W.2 and P.W.3. Payment of Rs.7,000,000/- was proven with the help of Exh.D.6 and Exh.D.7 which shows the deposit of Rs.3,000,000/- into the account of appellant No.l. Balance payment of Rs.4,000,000/- was proved through Mark B being a hand-written receipt by the respondent No.l. Then the transfer of the leasehold rights was proved through a series of documents, right from a request by the respondent No.1 to transfer the land to the appellant No.1 being Exh.D.3, the claim for refund of security money by the respondent No.1 Exh.D.1 and Exh.D.2 being a request to start construction of the restaurant by the respondent No.1 wherein he thanks the respondents 2 and 3 for authorizing the transfer in favour of the appellant No.l. It is the case of the appellants that based upon the aforementioned documents they have made out a case that the agreement to sell was executed and that payment was received by the respondent No.1, hence the transfer in favour of the appellant No.1 favour was valid and legal.

A review of the judgment especially the findings on Issue No.8 shows that the learned Judge did not consider the evidence tendered by the appellants. The most striking feature is that much emphasis was placed on "Mark-A" whereas the original transfer letter was produced in Court as Exh.D.53 showing that the property in dispute was transferred in favour of the appellant No. 1. In the presence of the original transfer letter, the existence of and the proof of the agreement to sell becomes irrelevant. In fact, this case has been incorrectly decided under the provision of secondary evidence of the Qanun-e-Shahadat Order, 1984 when the original transfer letter was available on the record and there was other relevant evidence for the Court to consider. Furthermore, the learned Judge failed to consider the fact that the respondent No. 3 in his written statement categorically stated that the respondent No.1 requested for the transfer in favour of the appellants and that upon his request the transfer was executed. In our opinion, there was no need for the appellants to prove the agreement to sell in the presence of Exh.D.53 and Exh.D.10 being the letter issued by the Assistant Secretary Fortress Stadium confirming the lease in favour of the appellant No.1. Therefore, the learned Judge has erred by deciding the case simply on the basis of the agreement to sell.

C. With respect to appreciation of evidence, the learned Judge has failed to consider the entire evidence exhibited by the appellants. The appellant No.1 has a transfer letter in her favour. She has also proved the deposit of monthly lease from 2001 to date with the respondents Nos.2 and 3 and her possession of the property was admitted by the respondent No.l. She was also able to prove through evidence the correspondence with the respondents 2 and 3 regarding the transfer and the intended construction on the land. Conversely the respondent No.1 could not explain why he had written to the respondents regarding the transfer in favour of the appellant. The explanation regarding Mark B the refund of it security deposit and deposit of Rs.3,000,000/- as transfer fee are not satisfactory nor proved in evidence. As to the issue of payment of Rs.7,000,000/- to the respondent No.1, the evidence shows that payment of Rs.4,000,000/- was made on 26-9-2001 "Mark-B" to the respondent No.l. Exh.D.6 shows that Rs.3,000,000/- was transferred to the Account of appellant No.2, which as per appellant No.1 statement was paid to the respondent No.1. In this regard we note that respondent No.1 paid the transfer fee Exh.P.4/1 and Exh.P.4/2 on 26-9-2001 and 3-1-2001 after receipt of the said amount from the appellant No.1. Furthermore, his statement that this was actually payment related to construction is neither corroborated in evidence nor does it stand to reason that such a large sum is paid in 2001 and then no construction is undertaken by the respondent No.l. The appellant No.1 was able to prove through evidence that payment was made to the respondent No.1, that she enjoyed possession and that she paid the monthly lease amount to the respondents 2 and 3. The contradictions relied upon in the dates for the payments do not carry the weightage given thereto for proving the case of the respondent No.l. Meaning that the learned Judge, in the presence of the evidence produced by the appellants, should not have relied solely upon the receipts and its dates. The appellant No.1 had produced sufficient evidence to establish payment and transfer in her favour. As such to ignore this evidence shows that the learned Judge did not apply his mind to this case at all. Finally a review of the evidence of the respondent No.1 reveals that he appeared himself as a witness, denied every aspect of the case of the appellants and stated that Exh.D.2 and Exh.D.3 do not bear his signature. There is nothing in the evidence whereby he has proved his case of fraud or explained the possession in favour of the appellants or the payment of the monthly lease by the appellants. Evidence must relate to the facts pleaded by a party as its purpose is to prove that fact. Evidence makes the existence of the fact or its non-existence more probable or less probable. Therefore the weightage given to the evidence is based on its strength to prove the fact or set of facts. Hence in the instant case the respondent No.1 had set out a case of denial as opposed to adducing evidence in support of his material facts. Furthermore, even though the respondent No.1 denied his signature on the letters, receipt and agreement to sell, once the appellants were able to establish the payment of monthly lease amount to the respondent 2 and 3 and the possession in their favour, the burden was on the respondent No.1 to prove his case. In this regard we are of the opinion that the respondent No.1 has failed to discharge his burden and has failed to prove his case. The evidence exhibited by the appellants carries more weight in establishing their case and the learned Judge could not have decided the entire case on the agreement to sell or the contradictions in the dates of the receipts.

9. In the light of the findings, this appeal is allowed, impugned judgment is set aside and the suit filed by the respondent No.1 is dismissed. No order as to costs.

MH/M-262/L Appeal allowed.

JUDGMENT

Through this petition, the Petitioner has prayed for the restoration of the domestic gas connection installed at her premises.

2. Brief facts of the case are that Petitioner is a registered consumer of the Respondent gas company bearing Consumer No. 90635916415. Meter No. MG27030734 is installed at her premises for domestic gas consumption. On 25.05.2012 the said meter was disconnected and the Petitioner was deprived of the gas connection at her premises. Learned counsel for the Petitioner has also stated that the premises of the Petitioner is divided into two portions i.e lower and upper portion. Two separate meters have been installed for domestic gas connection in the said two portions. The dispute of the Petitioner pertains to Meter No. MG27030734, which is installed in the lower portion.

3. Learned counsel for the Respondents has filed the report and parawise comments and also placed on record certain documents to justify the disconnection. It is his case that the Respondents have acted in accordance with law. Both meters installed at the premises of the Petitioner were for domestic consumption. However, they were being used for commercial purposes. Hence the Respondents were justified in disconnecting the gas supply. In this regard, they have placed reliance on the report of the inspection teams, which report shows that the Petitioner's consumption was not domestic but in fact being used for commercial purposes as it was being used by a restaurant.

4. The dispute between the Petitioner and the Respondent gas company is that the Petitioner is the consumer of the Respondent gas company bearing Consumer No. 90635916415 and accordingly Meter No. MG27030734 is installed in the lower portion of the premises of the Petitioner. The Petitioner occupies the lower portion and she has rented out the upper portion where the business of a restaurant is being conducted. Admittedly, the premises of the Petitioner has two gas connections. The aforementioned connection is in the lower portion and there is another connection which is for the upper portion of the premises of the Petitioner. It is the case of the Petitioner that there was a default with respect to the billing of the meter installed in the upper portion. However, in order to induce payment, the Respondents have disconnected the gas supply of the Petitioner's premises being the lower portion of the Petitioner's house.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The basic dispute is in relation to the gas connection for the lower portion of the house i.e for Meter No. MG27030734 vide Consumer No. 90635916415. The Petitioner has placed reliance on bills for the months of March & May, 2012 to show that she is not a defaulter and there was no occasion to disconnect the gas supply. The Respondents have placed reliance on the report of Senior Distribution Engineer (UFG-C) which provides that on 25.05.2012 the meter of the Petitioner was disconnected as it was being used for commercial purposes and not for domestic purposes. In this regard, the report provides that one small tandoor and three star burners were being used by the Petitioner against the said meter. It has been argued that the said equipment was being used in the upper portion. When the meter was disconnected from the upper portion on 10.05.2012, the star burners were being used by the lower portion. Learned counsel for the Petitioner disputes this allegation and states that no such burner or tandoor was being used and that in fact this is only being alleged to ensure payment against the bill issued for the upper portion.

7. The dispute of the Petitioner requires a factual inquiry as to whether the Petitioner was using the domestic gas connection for commercial purposes. It is settled law that in Constitutional Jurisdiction detailed inquiry cannot be undertaken. Reliance is placed on a case titled "Anjuman Fruit Arhtian and other Vs Deputy Commissioner, Faisalabad and others" (2011 SCMR 279) wherein it was held that:-

"This extraordinary jurisdiction is intended primarily, for providing an expeditious remedy in a case where the illegality of the impugned action of an executive or other authority can be established without any elaborate enquiry into complicated or disputed facts. Controverted questions of fact, adjudication on which is possible only after obtaining all types of evidence in power and possession of parties can be determined only by Courts having plenary jurisdiction in the matter and on such ground constitutional petition was incompetent."

In this regard, it is also noted that an efficacious remedy is available under the Complaint Resolution Procedure, 2003 (2003 Regulations) issued by the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority. The 2003 Regulations provide for a complaint resolution system. Any person may submit an application for any act or thing done or omitted to be done by a licensee or dealer. The Regulations also provide for the redressal of the following under the Regulations :--

(b) Non-compliance by the licensee or dealer with the service standards in the areas including but not limited to;

(i) Billing and overcharging;
(ii) Connection and disconnection of service;
(iii) Metering;
(iv) Undue delay in providing service;
(vi) Safety practices; or
(vi) Quantity and quality of natural gas, LPG or CNG being supplied; or

The Petitioner's dispute should be redressed by this complaint cell as it involves a factual inquiry, possibly even evidence to determine whether or not there has been any non compliance in the service standards in the areas specified in Regulation 3(b). Furthermore, Regulation 9 provides for an appeal against the order, if the complainant is not satisfied with the decision under 2003 Regulations. Therefore, the 2003 Regulations provide for an adequate remedy to the Petitioner in relation to her dispute of wrongful disconnection of service in the supply of gas. The remedy of a statutory appeal is adequate and effective and as such there is no basis to invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of this Court.

8. Therefore, in view of the aforesaid, the prayer sought by the Petitioner cannot be granted without a factual inquiry on the issue of whether the Petitioner was using the domestic connection for commercial purposes and also because an efficacious and adequate remedy is available to the Petitioner, which she may avail if she so desires.

9. In view of the aforementioned, this petition having no merit is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--This is an Intra Court Appeal filed under Section 15 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Ordinance, 1980 against an interlocutory order dated 15-12-2011 passed by the learned Single Judge in Chamber in Constitutional Petition No.270l3 of 2001.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the elections of the respondent No.3 were to be held on 19-12-2011. By virtue of an order dated 30-9-2011 passed by the DGTO all the actions taken by the respondent No.3 for conducting the elections were declared illegal and void. In this regard a show cause notice dated 25-11-2011 was issued. The said notice was assailed by the appellants through W.P. No.27013/2011. The learned counsel for the appellants also filed an application for the operation of the impugned show cause notice to be suspended as an interim measure during the pendency of the writ petition. The said application was dismissed by virtue of the impugned order. Hence this I.C.A. was filed.

3. The sole question which requires determination in this appeal is with reference to the maintainability of the I.C.A. filed under section 15 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Ordinance, 1980 against an interlocutory order made in a Constitutional Petition.

4. Mr. Shahram Sarwar learned counsel for the respondents submitted that an appeal against an interlocutory order is not maintainable under the Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 nor is it maintainable under Section 15 of the Code of Civil. Procedure (Amendment) Ordinance, 1980.

5. On the other hand Mr. Salman Butt learned counsel for the appellants argued that the I.C.A. is maintainable under Section 15 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Ordinance, 1980 notwithstanding the fact that the impugned interlocutory order was passed in constitutional jurisdiction. It is his case that the High Court when exercising jurisdiction under Article 199 of the Constitution in relation to the enforcement of civil right, is exercising "original civil jurisdiction".

6. Section 15 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Ordinance, 1980 and Section 3 of the Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 is reproduced hereunder.

"ORDINANCE NO. X OF 1980
Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Ordinance, 1980.
An Ordinance further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure 1980 (Gazette of Pakistan Extra dated March 26th, 1980)

15. Appeal to High Court in certain cases.--Notwithstanding anything contained in Section 3 of the Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 (XII of 1972), an appeal shall lie to a Bench of two or more Judges of a High Court from as interlocutory order made by a single Judge of that Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction."

"LAW REFORMS ORDINANCE, 1972
Appeal to High Courts in certain cases.

(1) An appeal shall lie to a Bench of two or more Judges of a High Court from a decree passed or final order made by a Single Judge of that Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction.

(2) An appeal shall also lie to a Bench of two or more Judges of a High Court from an order made by a Single Judge of that Court under clause (1) of Article 199 of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan not being an Order made under sub-paragraph (i) of paragraph (b) of that clause:
Provided that the appeal referred to in this subsection shall not be available or competent if the application brought before the High Court under Article 199 arises out of any proceedings in which the law applicable, provided for at least one appeal or one revision or one review to any Court, Tribunal or authority against the original order.

(3) No appeal shall lie under subsection (1) or subsection (2) from an interlocutory order or an order which does not dispose of the entire case before the case before the Court.

(4) Nothing contained in this Ordinance, shall be construed as affecting:--
(a) any appeal under the Provisions of the Letters Patent applicable to a High Court or under section 102 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (V of 1908) which was pending immediately before the commencement of this Ordinance; or
(b) any appeal or petition for leave to appeal from a decree, judgment or order of a single Judge of a High Court made to the Supreme Court before the commencement of the Law Reforms (Amendment) Ordinance, 1972 ."

7. The thrust of the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the appellants is based on the interpretation of the words "original civil jurisdiction" in section 15 of Ordinance X. In order to substantiate this argument learned counsel for the appellants placed reliance on a case titled Brothers Steel Mills Ltd and others v.

Mian Ilyas Miraj and 14 others (PLD 1996 SC 543). In this case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that since the High Court exercises civil jurisdiction under the Companies Ordinance 1984 section 117 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 shall apply. The reasoning advanced in this case was that since the Companies Ordinance redresses a civil right hence the High Court when exercising jurisdiction under the Companies Ordinance is in fact exercising original civil jurisdiction. The term original civil jurisdiction was explained in detail as being a jurisdiction where the court is empowered to entertain a suit and a proceeding of a civil nature which is initiated before the court as a court of first instance. Such jurisdiction is in contradistinction to the appellate jurisdiction. Interestingly, the court has held:--

"Under Article 175 of the Constitution, a Court is vested with jurisdiction as is or may be conferred on it by the Constitution or by or under any law. Therefore, the jurisdiction can be conferred on any Court including a High Court by a statute which may provide for initiating the proceedings in that Court as a Court of first instance having power to entertain and decide it. Such Court will thus be vested with original jurisdiction. If it relates to civil dispute it will be termed as original civil jurisdiction. It is not uncommon that statutes are promulgated conferring jurisdiction on the High Court to initiate proceeding as a Court of first instance for purpose of exercises of jurisdiction.

Therefore, in the statute under consideration the term original civil jurisdiction has been used in the general sense."

Mr. Salman Butt argued that for the purposes of interpreting original civil jurisdiction as provided for in Section 15 of Ordinance X, it must be given a general meaning such that it is applicable to constitutional jurisdiction when redressing civil matters.

8. In order to determine whether the High Court exercises original civil jurisdiction under Article 199 of the Constitution the first question that arises is what is original civil jurisdiction and what is constitutional jurisdiction. Article 175(2) of the Constitution provides that no court shall have any jurisdiction save as may be conferred on it by the Constitution or by or under any law. A bare reading shows that the said Article provides for two distinctive jurisdictions; a constitutional jurisdiction and a jurisdiction conferred by or under any law.

9. It is settled law that jurisdiction is the authority conferred upon a court to decide a matter before it. It enables the court to adjudicate on a particular subject-matter in a given case. The Supreme Court has held that in exercising constitutional jurisdiction under Article 199 the High Court has corrective and directory jurisdiction which has to be tempered with equity. Reliance is placed upon a case titled Syed Wajih-ul-Hassan Zaidi v. Government of Punjab and others (1997 SCMR 1901). It is discretionary jurisdiction and the High Court cannot go into disputed questions of fact. Reliance is placed upon a case titled Secretary to the Government of Punjab Forest Department, Punjab Lahore through Divisional Forest 0fficer v. Ghulam Nabi and 3 others (PLD 2001 SC 415). It has also held that this jurisdiction is to provide expeditious remedy in a case where the executive or any other authority has acted illegally without going into an elaborate inquiry as to the facts, disputed or complicated. Reliance is placed upon case titled Messrs Ittehad Cargo Service and 2 others v. Syed Tasneem Hussain Naqvi and others PLD 2001 SC 116).

10. Learned counsel for the respondents, Mr. Shahram Sawar has argued that the Lahore High Court does not possess original civil jurisdiction in the nature of a principal civil court of original jurisdiction. He relied on Pakistan Fisheries Ltd., Karachi and others v. United Bank Ltd. (PLD 1993 SC 109) to explain the meaning of original civil jurisdiction, and upon Lahore Race Club through Secretary and others v. Raja Khushbakht-ur-Rehman (2008 CLD 1117) wherein it was held that original civil jurisdiction of a court means that the court is empowered to entertain a suit and such proceedings of civil nature which are initiated before the said court. The jurisdiction can be conferred on any court including a High Court by a statute and such a court being a court of first instance would be vested with original jurisdiction. Where the matter relates to a civil dispute it will be termed as original civil jurisdiction. Mr. Asim Hafeez, learned counsel for the respondents elaborated this point and argued that there is distinction between ordinary original civil jurisdiction and extraordinary original civil jurisdiction. Both the jurisdictions were different from constitutional jurisdiction. Ordinary civil jurisdiction was confined to the trial of suits. Extraordinary original civil jurisdiction was given for the removal and trial of suits pending or falling within the jurisdiction of courts subordinate to the High Court. Therefore constitutional jurisdiction was neither ordinary nor extraordinary nor was it statutory jurisdiction. He argued that to refer to it as special jurisdiction would be to minimize its standing and importance, for it is given by an Article in the Constitution for the purposes of implementing the high directive in Article 2 that no person should be treated otherwise than in accordance with the law. The jurisdiction under Article 199 may at best be described as a constitutional jurisdiction of an original kind. Reliance was placed upon a case titled Ahmad Khan v. The Chief Justice and the Judges of the High Court, West Pakistan, through the Registrar, High Court of West Pakistan, Lahore, The Member, Board of Revenue, West Pakistan, Lahore and Muhammad Saeed (PLD 1968 SC 171).

11. We have heard all the counsel submissions and have gone through the case-law to which reference was made regarding the meaning of original civil jurisdiction. We have also reviewed Article 175(2) of the Constitution. The said Article provides for two clear jurisdictions. Constitutional jurisdiction and that jurisdiction which is conferred by or under any law. A bare reading of the Article leads us to conclude that these are two distinctive jurisdictions. Constitutional jurisdiction is a unique jurisdiction as it is created and conferred by the Constitution. Original civil jurisdiction is a jurisdiction created and conferred by or under a law. Constitutional jurisdiction cannot be taken away; curtailed or abridged by any other law whereas a jurisdiction created by or under a law can be taken away, abridged or curtailed by a law. This clear distinction between the two jurisdictions renders it impossible to read ordinary civil jurisdiction in the constitutional jurisdiction. Hence even in the most general of meanings constitutional jurisdiction is very different from civil original jurisdiction. Simply put the two jurisdictions cannot be equated nor can there be an overlap.

12. We are also of the considered view that the High Court when exercising constitutional jurisdiction in a civil matter, is not exercising original civil jurisdiction. The original jurisdiction of a court confers the power to hear a case for the first time. Hence even though at times constitutional jurisdiction has been referred to constitutional jurisdiction of an original "kind" it is not a court of first instance exercising civil jurisdiction. A judgment deciding a constitutional petition would not be a judgment in the exercise of the original civil jurisdiction of this Court within the meaning of sub section (1) of section 3 of the Law Reforms Ordinance. Reliance is placed on a case titled Asad Ali and 9 others v. Settlement and Claims Commissioner, Karachi and another (PLD 1974 Karachi 345). The distinction between the two jurisdictions as provided for in Article 175(2) of the Constitution must be retained. The mere fact that an aggrieved person comes directly to the court under Article 199 does not mean that the court exercises original jurisdiction. Original civil jurisdiction when read with Article 175(2) of the Constitution will mean original jurisdiction when created by or under any law. Obviously the jurisdiction under Article 199 of the Constitution pertains to civil as well as other matters. Therefore the jurisdiction of the court will not be determined by the nature of the proceedings. The jurisdiction is conferred either by the Constitution or by or under a law. We note that interplay of the words, such as original, civil, ordinary and extraordinary are just nomenclatures given to describe a jurisdiction and can be misleading. In a very instructive judgment of the Supreme Court Brothers Steel Mills Ltd. (supra) it was held as under:-- "Article 175 of the Constitution does not use such expressions as ordinary, extraordinary, statutory or special in relation to jurisdiction or Courts. These expressions may have been useful in a particular context in the past, in the present context; they are equivocal and can, therefore, be misleading."

13. We are therefore not convinced by the cases relied upon by the counsel for the appellants especially the Brothers Steel Mills case as the same is related to a matter under the Companies Ordinance and does not directly answer the question raised in this ICA. We are equally not convinced by the reliance placed on Hussain Bakhsh v Settlement Commissioner, Rawalpindi and others (PLD 1970 SC 1) wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the High Court can review an order under Article 199 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan under section 114 of the Code of Civil Procedure on the grounds that there is no corresponding provision in the Constitution with regard to the High Court's jurisdiction to review its own decision. This judgment does not advance the case of the appellants' counsel as the said judgment does not give any findings in relation to the nature and the scope of constitutional jurisdiction or original civil jurisdiction. It simply provides for a procedural remedy as no parallel remedy was available for a review against an order made under Article 199 of the Constitution. Finally the most elementary rule of construction is that if word and phrases are used with a technical meaning then they must interpreted with the technical meaning that they have acquired. (Maxwell; Interpretation of Statute 12th Edition). Both the words "original" and "civil" jurisdiction have specific legal meanings, which we might add even in the most general of sense should be interpreted in accordance to the meaning attributed to them. By interpreting original civil jurisdiction under section 15 of Ordinance X so as to include constitutional jurisdiction would mean creating artificial categories within the constitutional jurisdiction which clearly is not the intention of the Constitution.

For the foregoing reasons we find that the I.C.A. is not maintainable, hence dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This petition impugns the action undertaken by the respondents Nos.1, 2 and 4 of withholding the original import authorization permit issued by the respondent No.3 in favour of the petitioner.

2. It is the case of the petitioner that he holds an import authorization permit (IAP) for import of non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition. The IAP was issued by the respondent No.3 on 18-9-2007. The IAP provides for the annual quota to import non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition. As per the contention of the counsel for the petitioner, the sole authority to issue, withhold, suspend or revoke the IAP is the respondent No.3. On 17-1-2012, the petitioner received a show-cause notice from the respondent No. 1. In terms of the notice, the petitioner was informed that it has exceeded its quota limit as authorized by the respondent No. 3 for the import of non-prohibited bore arms. It is also alleged in the notice that the petitioner has used more than one NTN number to import the said ammunition, thereby attempting to hoodwink the custom authority. The petitioner filed his reply to the show cause notice and thereafter, has been making appearance in the inquiry proceedings. It is the case of the petitioner that under the pretext of this show cause notice, the respondents Nos. 1, 2 and 4 cannot hold on to the original IAP and as such they are required to return the same to the Petitioner. Reliance has been placed on PLD 1961 SC 537, PLD 1963 SC 203, PLD 1965 SC 605, 1983 PCr.LJ 670, 1983 PCr.LJ 623, 1987 PCr.LJ 1091 and PLD 1991 Quetta 36:

3. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents Nos. 1, 2 and 4 has argued that this writ petition is not maintainable as adequate remedy is provided under the Customs Act, 1969. For this he places reliance on PLD 2008 SC 779 and PLD 2010 SC 969. He has also argued that the respondents are in the process of conducting an inquiry on the excess import of the non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition. Reply and para wise comments have been filed in which they have stated that the original IAP is evidence in the pending inquiry and as such during the course of these proceedings; the respondents can withhold the IAP. It is also their case that upon completion of the inquiry, a report will be sent to the respondent No.3, who will then finally decide on the matter. He has placed reliance on sections 168, 179 and 180 of the Customs Act, 1969.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. On the issue of maintainability, since it is the case of the petitioner that the respondents 1, 2 and 4 have exceeded their jurisdiction and are acting contrary to the law the remedy provided under the Customs Act, 1969 is not efficacious as the stated respondents cannot decide whether they have exceeded their jurisdiction or whether the respondent No.3 is the competent authority to withhold the original IAP, if required. Therefore this petition is maintainable and will be decided on its merits.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner relies upon the Import Policy Order, 2009 (as amended up to 15 March, 2011) (IPO). It is his case that the IAP is issued pursuant to the IPO and any dispute in relation to the import status of any item has to be resolved by the respondent No.3. The matter in issue in this writ petition is whether the respondents 1, 2 and 4 can withhold the IAP of the petitioner given that the respondent No.3 is the issuing authority for the IAP.

7. The IAP allows the petitioner to import a given quantity of non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition on an annual basis. It provides the annual quota for the years 2008-2009, 2009-2010, 2010-2011 allowed in favour of the petitioner. The IAP refers to a notification issued by the respondent No.3 dated 25-1-2005. This notification provides for the procedure for import of non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition. As per the notification since this is a banned item, the respondent No.3 can authorize its import in terms of the guidelines provided under the said notification. In this regard the notification provides for an eligibility criteria in para 4 and the criteria in para 5. Subsequent to the 2005 notification, another notification was issued on 27-8-2007 regulating the existing entitlements issued by the respondent No.3. Para 2-c of this notification is of the particular importance as it provides that:-- "Custom will ensure that the importer was not involved in violation of law relating to custom".
Likewise Para 2-d provides that:-
"Bank will ensure that importer never indulge in violation of procedure of SBP foreign exchange regulation".
A review of both these notifications leads to the conclusion that since the import of non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition was banned, the said notifications prescribed the procedure relating to grant of permits for such imports. This means that it allowed respondent No.3 to permit the import of the non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition, in a prescribed manner and by quantifying the import entitlement.

8. As part of the procedure regulating the issuance of import authorization permits, the 2007 notification provides that the customs authority will ensure that there has been no violation of any law relating to custom and the State Bank of Pakistan to ensure that there will be no violation of any foreign exchange regulation. This means that the respondent No.3 merely prescribes the quota for the import of the non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition through the IAP. The import per se will be regulated by the customs authority under the Customs Act, 1969. Mere permission by the respondent No.3 to import a fixed quota of the non-prohibited bore arms and ammunition will not divest the customs authority from its jurisdiction. Section 16 of the Customs Act, 1969 envisages the role of the Federal Government which is to prohibit or restrict the bringing into or taking out of Pakistan of any goods of specified description by air, sea or land. Any violation of the prohibition or restrictions set out by the Federal Government will fall within the scope of the customs authority under the Customs Act, 1969. The roles are distinctive as the Federal Government decides what import or exports to prohibit or restrict whereas the Customs Act controls and regulates the act of the import and the export. In furtherance of section 16 of the Customs Act, 1969 and in terms of Section 3 of the Import and Exports (Control) Act, 1950 the IPO is issued wherein the Federal Government provides the prohibition and restriction on imports. Section 6 of the IPO 2009 (as amended up to 15 March, 2011) provides that:-- "Notwithstanding anything contained in this Order, the prohibition, restriction, condition and requirements as prescribed under any law, Act or rules, for the time being in force, shall be applicable, mutatis mutandis, on specified imports."
Section 8 provides that:-

"Any dispute or clarification regarding import status of any item which cannot be resolved by the custom authority will be referred to the Ministry of Commerce for final decision."

The aforementioned provisions substantiate the case of the respondents 1, 2 and 4 that it is well within their jurisdiction to withhold the original TAP pending an inquiry. Section 8 of the IPO clarified that in case a dispute cannot be resolved by the customs authority, it may be referred to the respondent No.3. Meaning thereby that the dispute regarding import status is to be decided by the Customs Authority.
A reading of the Customs Act, 1969, the two notifications along with IPO leads me to conclude as follow:--

(1) The respondent No.3 issued the IAP dated 18th September, 2007 in favour of the petitioner in pursuance of the IPO and notification dated 2005 and 2007.
(2) The TAP provides for an entitlement to import a prohibited item and it quantifies the amount that can be imported on an annual basis.

(3) The IAP does not take away the jurisdiction of the custom authorities to investigate, inquire, adjudicate under the Custom Act, 1969 in terms of any import in Pakistan.
(4) The fact that the respondent No.3 issued the IAP does not mean that the respondents Nos. 1, 2 and 4 cannot withhold the original IAP or seize the original IAP. This stands to reason because if there is a violation of any custom law then it is for the custom authority to proceed under their Act and send a final recommendation to the respondent No.3 for cancelling the IAP, if required. In the same way, if there is a violation of any State Bank regulation it is for the State Bank to conclude its inquiry, investigation and send a recommendation in terms thereof to the respondent No.3.
(5) Respondents Nos.1, 2 and 4 are fully authorized to withhold the original IAP of the respondent No.3 pending an inquiry conducted under the Custom Act and upon its conclusion they can send their recommendation to the respondent No.3 along with original IAP.
(6) Section 168(3) of the Customs Act, 1969 empowers the stated respondents to seize any document or thing which in his opinion will be useful evidence in any proceeding under the Act.

9. The afore stated conclusions are fortified by the statement of the respondent No.3 through the Deputy Attorney General, who appeared in Court and stated that they are the issuing authority for the IAP and they can cancel the IAP if required. However they have nothing to do with the present dispute. The respondent No.3 also filed an application to have its name deleted from these proceedings as they are a pro forma party. The prayer of deletion from the petition is based on the following statement:--

"Messrs Yousaf Zai Arms and Ammunition Dealers Peshawar was issued import authorization of NPB arms and ammunition of Rs.04 Million on annual basis vide this Ministry Letter No.19 (132)/2005 Imp-I dated 18th September, 2007 (Annex-1). The detail particulars of Messrs Yousaf Zai Arms and Ammunition Dealers Peshawar were forwarded to custom authorities on their request. (Annex-II). Para wise comments from Ministry of Commerce may be treated as "NIL"."

10. If the matter of withholding the original IAP fell solely within the jurisdiction of the respondent No.3, then they would have asserted their position. To the contrary, they have forwarded the relevant information to the custom authority, meaning thereby that even they recognize that the custom authority is acting in accordance with the law and can withhold the original IAP.

11. As to the cases referred to by the counsel for the petitioner, the same do not advance his case as they do not pertain to the matter in issue. He has also placed reliance upon an order dated 27-3-2012 wherein the Deputy Collector has written that the original IAP may be returned to the petitioner. However, the respondents 1, 2 and 4 produced another order of 2-5-2012 which provides that the noting of the Deputy Collector was conditional to certain documents being provided. Since to date the documents have not been provided, therefore it was advised that pending the inquiry the original IAP should not be returned to him. It is noted that the order of 27-3-2012 does not confer any right upon the petitioner that the original IAP has to be returned to it. Nor does it cast an obligation on the stated respondents to return the original IAP to the petitioner. Furthermore, the said order of 27-3-2012 cannot be read in isolation as it is part of the internal record of the respondents Nos. 1, 2 and 4 qua the inquiry pending against the petitioner. The same does not operate as an order which can be enforced. At best it is an observation by the Deputy Collector and that to a conditional observation. Since the conditions were never satisfied by the petitioner, he cannot seek its enforcement. Therefore the act of withholding the original IAP of the petitioner's in accordance with the powers conferred upon the respondents Nos. 1, 2 and 4 under the law.

12. For the aforementioned reasons, this petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This writ petition impugns the warrant of detention issued under Rule 186 of the Income Tax Rules, 2002, the notice under section 138(1) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 and the order dated 26-6-2012 issued by the respondent No.2.

2. The basic facts of this case are that the petitioner was a shareholder of a company namely, Irum Ghee Mill (Private) Limited ("the Company"). The petitioner owned 15% share of the Company in the year 1994. These shares were sold by the father of the petitioner in November, 1996 because at the time, the petitioner was a minor, his date of birth being 1-10-1981. The respondents issued a demand against tax due from the Company for the assessment period 1994 to 2003 in the amount of Rs.5,10,983,584. In this regard, notice under section 138(1) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("ITO") was issued to the petitioner. Thereafter, on 16-6-2012 an order for the detention of the petitioner was made for not making the required payment of Rs.5,10,983,584. The petitioner filed a writ petition before this Court bearing No.16464 of 2012 wherein it was ordered on 25-6-2012 that the respondent No.2 should decide the case of the petitioner qua his detention within 24 hours in accordance with law after providing an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner. In terms of the said order on 26-6-2012, a decision was made by the respondent No.2 wherein it was held that the petitioner is liable to pay the income tax due from the Company for the period 1994-2003. Furthermore since the petitioner did not make the tax payment the order of detention was to continue.

3. Essentially, the case of the petitioner is that he was a minor at the time when he was a shareholder of the Company. He had no role to play in the administration of the company and after 1996 he seized to be a shareholder of the Company. Counsel for the petitioner argued that the petitioner was a minor for the period 1994-1996 when he was a shareholder. That he was not a tax payer in terms of section 2(66) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001. The income of the minor for a tax year is chargeable as tax of the parent of the child in terms of section 91 of the ITO. Hence, the petitioner is not liable to pay the tax of the Company. Finally, section 138 can only be used for recovering tax from a tax payer and since the petitioner is not a tax payer, he cannot be made liable to pay the tax of the Company.

4. As a preliminary objection, learned counsel for the respondents raised an objection with respect to the maintainability of this writ petition. He argued that due to the earlier writ petition filed bearing No.16464 of 2012 and a subsequent Writ Petition No.17666 of 2012, which was withdrawn by the petitioner, he is not entitled to any discretionary relief. In the event, that the petition is held to be maintainable, at best the case of the petitioner is limited to the order dated 26-6-2012 and its findings in terms thereof. On this issue, I find that the instant petition is maintainable as the earlier writ petition was filed in relation to the warrant of detention issued on 18-5-2012 and the notice under section 138(1) of the ITO. Thereafter in terms of the order of this court a decision was rendered on 26-6-2012 by the respondent No.2 justifying the detention and the claim for the tax of the Company from the petitioner. The instant writ petition impugns the order of 26-6-2012, such that this court is required to determine whether in terms of the said Order the petitioner can be made liable for the tax due from the Company and whether the petitioner can be detained in terms thereof.

5. On the merits of the case, learned counsel for the respondents has argued that the respondents are justified in recovering the tax amount due from the Company from the petitioner on account of section 139(1)(b) of the ITO. He argued that the petitioner, having attained majority is now liable to pay the entire tax, notwithstanding the fact that he was a minor at the relevant time. He further argued that the petitioner is still a shareholder of the Company as he has brought no document, especially the transfer deeds to evidence the fact that he is no longer a shareholder of the Company. He further argued that the national interest as well as modus operandi of the petitioner should be considered by this Court, being a court of equitable jurisdiction.

6. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

7. The main issue in this petition is whether the petitioner is liable to pay the tax of the Company under section 139 of ITO. The entire case of the respondent is based on section 139(1) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001, which reads as follows:--
"Notwithstanding anything in the Companies Ordinance, 1984 (XLVII of 1984), where any tax payable by a private company (including a private company that has been wound up or gone into liquidation) in respect of any tax year cannot be recovered from the company, every person who was at, at any time in that tax year-
(a) a director of the company, other than an employed director; or
(b) a shareholder in the company owning not less than ten percent of the paid up capital of the company, shall be jointly and severally liable for payment of the tax due by the company."
By virtue of this section where any tax is payable by a private company, and cannot be recovered from the company, then every person, who was a Director of the company for the relevant tax period or a shareholder of the company, having not less than 10% shares of the company, for the relevant tax year, can be made liable for the payment of tax due by the company. In order to invoke the provision of this section, the respondents were required to show that the petitioner was a shareholder owning at least 10% shares of the Company for the assessment years 1994 to 2003. In this regard the respondents have argued that the petitioner is liable on attaining majority and that the petitioner continues to be a shareholder of the Company. Furthermore, the petitioner has placed reliance on his passport, CNIC Card and birth certificate to show that he was a minor at the time, since his date of birth is 1-10-1981.

8. On 2-8-2012, after hearing both the sides at length, this Court passed an order wherein the respondents were given one week's time to satisfy themselves on the two grounds which form the basis of the petitioner's liability and detention. The first is with respect to the minority of the petitioner and the second is with respect to the petitioner being a shareholder of the Company. On 10-8-2012, the respondents submitted their report in terms of the order of 2-8-2012. I have reviewed the report which provides that in terms of the documents provided by the petitioner the respondents were satisfied that the petitioner continued to be a shareholder of the Company and that with reference to the issue of minority, the petitioner has not brought any cogent or reliable evidence in support of his claim.

9. In order to appreciate the arguments of both the parties, I will divide the matter in two parts, first on the minority issue and second on the transfer of share:

Minority

The petitioner submitted the documents available with him to show that he was minor at the time when he was shareholder of the company from 1994 to 1996. All documents show his date of birth as 1-10-1981. However, the respondents question the authenticity of the documents produced before them. The main objection is on the birth certificate, which was issued on 7-8-2012. The learned counsel for the respondents has stated that since this document has been issued recently and shows that the date of birth has been entered in the record late, hence it is not reliable. As to the copy of the old NIC and the passport submitted, the only objection raised by the learned counsel for the respondents is that the NIC looks suspicious. The petitioner also submitted a copy of the assessment order dated 12-3-2009 for the year 1998-1999 to the year 2000-2001 wherein the Taxation Officer of Income Tax found the assessee, being the petitioner, was a minor at that time. A review of the assessment order shows that it relates to the petitioner and that at the given time, as per the order, the petitioner was a minor. Learned counsel for the respondents does not deny this assessment order. Having reviewed the documents provided by the learned counsel for the petitioner as mentioned above, I am of the opinion that the respondents do not have any valid objection to the documents presented by the petitioner for establishing his date of birth. Every document presented by the petitioner shows his date of birth as 1-10-1981. The fact that the birth certificate was obtained as late on 7-8-2012 will not effect the claim of the petitioner that he was a minor as every other document, namely, his NIC and passport provides for the same date of birth being 1-10-1981. However, the more important document is the assessment order issued by a Taxation Officer wherein he has accepted the minority of the petitioner for the assessment years 1998-1999 to 2000-2001 for the purpose of wealth tax. Therefore, there is no basis on which the respondents can deny the fact that petitioner was a minor during the assessment period 1994, 1995 and 1996.

Shareholding

The respondents have argued at length that the petitioner continues to be a shareholder of the Company as he has not been able to show any transfer deed on the basis of which he claims that his shares were transferred in the year 1996. The respondents have placed reliance on section 76 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984 and a case titled "Shahana Parvez and 2 others v. Messrs Goodluck Trade Impex (Pvt.) Ltd. Lahore and 6 others" (1998 CLC 1157). In support of his case, the petitioner has placed reliance on the Form-A for the years 1994, 1995 and 1996, which show that the petitioner was a shareholder and the Form-A for the year 1997 which does not reflect the petitioner as a member of the Company. Section 76 of the Company Ordinance, 1984 (C.O. 1984) provides for the transfer of shares. No doubt, the provisions of section 76 are mandatory in nature, however, the default if any under section 76 is a matter inter se between the Company and the Security and Exchange Commission of Pakistan (SECP). Section 76(7) of the C.O. 1984 provides that "in the event of a default under section 76 the company will be liable to a fine and every officer who knowingly or willingly was a party to such default is also a liable to a penalty". This means that if there is any default in compliance with the provision of section 76, it is for the SECP to take cognizance of such a default and impose a penalty if required. Hence the discrepancies, if any, in the Form-As filed by the Company have to be reviewed for default by the SECP. The judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the respondents also supports my understanding as it holds that "no company can register a transfer of shares or debentures unless proper instrument of transfer duly stamped and executed by the transferor and the transferee has been delivered to the company along with scrips." Furthermore, "It followed from the above, that in the absence of any instrument of transfer having been delivered to the respondent Company, the company was not justified in omitting the names of the petitioner and the respondent from the register of members and entering the names of respondents in their place as transferees". Thus in terms of the judgment, the company has to recognize the transfer of shares. In the instant case it has done so and accordingly, the Company filed the Form A for the year 1997. Furthermore, section 155 of the C.O. 1984 provides that the registers referred to in section 156 shall be prima facie evidence of the matters contained therein. Section 156(4) provides that all the particulars to be submitted under section 156(1) and (2) shall have been entered in the register maintained with the company. Reading both these sections together means that the Form A is prima facie evidence of the matters contained therein and if the respondents refute or deny the information then, it should be through cogent evidence supporting their stance. Since they have nothing in support of their claim that the petitioner is still a shareholder, based on the Form A of 1997 and those filed subsequently 1998-2000 by the Company, the petitioner ceased to be a shareholder of the Company in 1997.

10. Based on the above, the record shows that the petitioner was a minor for the assessment years 1994, 1995 and 1996. The record also shows that the petitioner ceased to be a shareholder of the Company for the assessment year 1997. Hence, he cannot be made liable for the tax of the Company for the assessment years 1994-2003. The only remaining issue is the argument raised by the respondents that the petitioner is liable for the tax of the Company upon attaining majority under section 139(1)(b) as the tax can be recovered from every person who was a shareholder, holding 10% shares in the relevant tax year. Learned counsel for the respondents argued that this is a continuing liability meaning that the minor, upon attaining majority became liable for the tax default of the Company. This argument does not advance the case of the respondents nor does it justify the arrest and detention of the petitioner. The petitioner has been arrested on account of the total default in the payment of income tax for the years 1994-2003, yet he cannot be made liable for the tax default from 1997-2003 since he was not a shareholder for the said period. As to the period 1994-1996, the petitioner was a minor, and he cannot be made liable for the total income tax of the Company for the said period.

11. In view of the aforesaid this petition is accepted. The notice under section 138 issued on 18-5-2012 and the order for detention dated 16-6-2012 and the decision rendered on 26-6-2012 are declared to be illegal and hereby set aside. The petitioner shall be released forthwith if not required to be detained in any other case. No order as to costs.

Judgment

Through this writ petition, the Petitioners have impugned order dated 25.2.2012 passed by the Respondent Cane Commissioner Punjab, Lahore.

2. Brief facts of this case are that the Petitioners are agriculturists who supplied sugarcane to Pasrur Sugar Mills Ltd. in the year 1998-1999. Despite the fact that sugarcane was supplied valuing over Rs.55,35,000/- no payment was made to the Petitioners. The Petitioners filed W.P. No. 27387-2011 wherein the matter was referred to the Respondent to pass necessary orders after hearing all the parties. The Respondent failed to redress the grievance of the Petitioner on the ground that he was not the competent authority to decide the matter and the case should be filed before the Civil Court.

3. It is the case of the Petitioners that the Respondent is the competent authority to entertain the claim of the Petitioners and that he should discharge his duties in accordance with the law.

4. Report/parawise comments have been filed by the Respondent. An application under Order I, Rule 10, CPC was filed by G.B (Pvt.) Ltd. but no one has appeared on their behalf. It is the Respondent's case that the matter was decided on 25.2.2012 wherein he has found that he is not in a position to establish the claim of the Petitioners as it relates to the crushing season of 1998-1999 and the original owners are not available and that this matter should be taken up by the competent Civil Court.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the Petitioners, the learned Law Officer and have examined the record available on the file.

6. In terms of the record, the Petitioners supplied sugarcane to Pasrur Sugar Mills Ltd. CPRs were duly issued. Thereafter the assets and liabilities of Pasrur Sugar Mills Ltd. were taken over by United Sugar Mills and then by G.B. (Pvt) Ltd. vide agreement dated 25.2.2002. The agreement clearly provides that liabilities provided in clause 1(b) shall be paid by the buyer. It also states that the record has been handed over to the new buyer. Therefore, there is no issue here with respect to the transfer of assets or liabilities upon which the Cane Commissioner is required to deliberate. The only issue is the claim of the Petitioners.

7. On the contention of the Respondent that the Cane Commissioner does not have the requisite-power to adjudicate on the Petitioners' claim, I have reviewed the Punjab Sugar Factories Control Rules, 1950. Rule 17 provides for the dispute resolution mechanism, which is re-produced hereunder:--

"Any dispute touching an agreement referred to in these rules shall be referred to the Cane Commissioner for decision or if he so directs to arbitration. No suit shall lie in a civil or revenue Court in respect of any such dispute."

Rule 17(8) reads as under:--

"On application to the Civil Court having jurisdiction over the subject matter of the decision or award, the decision of the Cane Commissioner, or the award of the arbitrator or arbitrators or the Provincial Government's order in appeal against an award, shall be enforced by all Court as if such decision, award, or orders in appeal were a decree of that Court."

In terms of the Punjab Sugar Factories Control Rules, 1950, the Cane Commissioner is the competent person to decide the claim of the Petitioners as not only can he adjudicate on the Petitioners' claim but he can also refer the dispute to arbitration under Rule 17(2). In such a case if the parties to the dispute are unable to nominate a sole arbitrator, the Cane Commissioner can refer the dispute to a board of arbitrators consisting of two arbitrators and umpire. The decision of the Cane Commissioner or the arbitrator is appealable under Rule 17(6) before the Provincial Government. The decision of the Cane Commissioner or the arbitrator or arbitrators or the Provincial Government's orders in appeal can be enforced by all the Courts as of such decision or award or orders in appeal were a decree of that Court under Rule 17(8) of the Rules (ibid). Furthermore, Section 6(1) of the Punjab Sugar Factories Control Act, 1950 provides as under:--

(1) "The Provincial Government may by notification, appoint any officer, not below the status of a Collector, to be the Cane Commissioner to exercise and perform. In addition to the powers and duties conferred and imposed on him by this Act such powers and duties, as may be prescribed from time to time."

(2) The Cane Commissioner shall be deemed to have powers of a (Collector/DCO) under the Punjab Land Revenue Act, 1887, and the Punjab Tenancy Act, 1887 (or any other enactment relating to Land Revenue and Tenancy in force in any part of the Province.

8. A review of Section 80 of the Land Revenue Act, 1967 shows that the Collector has sufficient powers for recovery of arrears of land revenue in the modes prescribed. The same powers are available to the Cane Commissioner. He can recover amounts due through the modes prescribed in Section 80 of the Land Revenue Act, 1967. Therefore, in view of the aforesaid, the Cane Commissioner has the powers to adjudicate upon the claim of the Petitioners. The Petitioners should file their statement of claims with supporting documents before the Cane Commissioner. The sugar mills can file their reply to the statement of claim. Thereafter the Cane Commissioner can adjudicate upon the matter. The decision of the Cane Commissioner can be enforced by a Civil Court as if his decision was decreed by that Court. The Cane Commissioner also enjoys the powers u/S. 80 of the Land Revenue Act, 1967 to recover amounts which are due and payable.

9. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed and order dated 25.2.2012 is set aside. The Respondent Cane Commissioner is directed to adjudicate upon the claim of the Petitioners and decide the same after hearing all the necessary parties. In this regard, the Respondent should also summon the G.B. (Pvt) Ltd. as they are a necessary party to the proceedings.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this C.O. instituted under section 227 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984 (the Ordinance), the petitioner has prayed that respondents Nos.1 and 2 be directed to pay the loss of money amounting to more than Rs.100 million in the Provident Fund to the members of the petitioner and furnish all receipts of money deposited in the Provident Fund in accordance with section 228 of the Ordinance. The petitioner has also prayed that respondent No.3 be directed to carry out a detailed investigation of the matter, especially regarding the careless and negligent conduct of respondent No.1 and take strict action against them in accordance with law and be granted costs of the case.

2. Two preliminary objections with respect to the maintainability of this petition were taken up by the counsel for respondents Nos.1 to 5. The first objection was that this Court does not have jurisdiction to decide this Petition. In this regard, he argued that an application under section 227 of the Ordinance lies before respondent

No.6. The jurisdiction conferred upon this Court under the Ordinance does not empower this Court to look into, investigate or adjudicate upon affairs of a company with regard to any alleged violation of section 227 of the Ordinance nor can this Court impose any fine or issue any direction under section 229 of the Ordinance. The second objection is that the petitioner has no locus standi to file the instant petition as any application referencing violation of section 227 of the Ordinance can only be made by a 'person' depositing money or making contributions to a provident fund in terms of section 227. In the instant case, the petitioner is not making any contribution to the ICI Pakistan Non-Management Staff Provident Fund (the Provident Fund) established by respondent No.5 pursuant to the deed of trust dated February 26, 1954. Hence the petitioner has no locus standi and is not entitled to claim any loss.

3. Learned counsel for respondent No.6 also raised objections on the maintainability of this Petition. He stated that in terms of sections 227 to 229 of the Ordinance read with section 476(1), no such petition can be filed before this Court and the remedy, if any, lies with the respondent No.6, who can take up such matters and impose penalty under the law. He argued that the petitioner has not filed any petition before respondent No.6 for redressal of their grievance, and as such, cannot seek a direction from the Court to conduct a detailed investigation against the respondent No.6.

4. In rebuttal to the preliminary objections, learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the High Court is vested with jurisdiction by virtue of section 7 of the Ordinance. He placed reliance on the law laid down in case 2003 CLD 981 (Gulzar Ahmed v. The State) to argue the point that the jurisdiction exercised by the Company Judge under section 7 of the Ordinance is a jurisdiction of civil nature. He argued that this means that the High Court as a Company Court exercises jurisdiction in all civil matters. Since the dispute is of a civil nature, hence it can be decided by this Court. He has also placed reliance on the law laid down in case 2008 CLD 1117 (Lahore Race Club through Secretary and others v. Raja Khushbakht ur Rehman) to advance his arguments that the High Court under the Ordinance has original civil jurisdiction. Meaning that this Court is the Court of first instance for the disputes in relation to and under the Ordinance. The thrust of his argument was that since the dispute of the petitioner is a civil dispute, hence this Court being the competent court has jurisdiction under section 7 of the Ordinance to grant the relief claimed by the petitioners.

5. Arguments heard. Record perused.

6. A petition under section 227 of the Ordinance is filed for ensuring deposits into the Provident Fund, and for safeguarding the said deposits. Any irregularities or failure by any company in this regard can be challenged or questioned under the said section. The question that arises in this petition is that who is to decide upon a petition filed under section 227, i.e. is it the Company Court or is it the respondent

No.6. Section 7 of the Ordinance provides for the jurisdiction of Courts. Section 7(1) provides that:--

"7(1) The Court having jurisdiction under this Ordinance shall be the High Court having jurisdiction in the place at which the registered office of the company is situate:

Provided that the Federal Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette and subject to such restrictions and conditions as it thinks fit, empower any civil court to exercise all or any of the jurisdiction by this Ordinance conferred upon the Court, and in the case such court shall, as regards the jurisdiction so conferred, be the Court in respect of companies having their registered office within the territorial jurisdiction of such court."

The section, no doubt, vests original civil jurisdiction with the High Court as was held in case PLD 1996 SC 543 (Brother Steel Mills Ltd. and others v. Milan Ilyas Miraj and 14 others). However, the context or meaning of original civil jurisdiction as decided in the case PLD 1996 Lahore 1 (Messrs Sunrise Textiles Ltd. and others v. Mashreq Bank PSC and others) is that jurisdiction is conferred by statute and is in contradiction to criminal jurisdiction.

7. A further review of the Ordinance shows that the Ordinance specifically mentions "the court" where it empowers "the court" to exercise jurisdiction. For example, section 152 of the Ordinance is the power of the court to rectify the register of members. Section 179 of the Ordinance is the power of the court to declare the election of directors as invalid, or section 305 is the Section where the court has the powers of winding up etc. The expression "having jurisdiction" means that the High Court is the authorized legal authority to hear and determine issues under the Ordinance, but section 7 does not necessitate the High Court to adjudicate upon all disputes which arise under the Ordinance. Where it is required under the Ordinance, specific Sections of the Ordinance provide that the Court shall adjudicate upon the matter.

8. The argument of the counsel for the petitioner that the High Court, while exercising jurisdiction under section 7, must adjudicate upon the instant Petition under section 227, being an original civil dispute is flawed as this interpretation goes against the spirit of the Ordinance and the rationale of section 7. I am of the opinion that the petitioner should have filed its grievance before respondent No.6, being the competent authority to adjudicate upon irregularities and management of a Provident Fund under section 227. A review of the petitioner's prayer will also testify to this fact as the petitioner itself seeks a direction to respondent No.6 to carry out a detailed investigation of the matter, and take strict action against respondents Nos.1 to 5. As such the Court, under section 7 of the Ordinance cannot direct the respondent No.6 to carry out an investigation under section 227 of the Ordinance.

9. In the case at hand, the petitioner has not moved any application or complaint before respondent No.6, yet they seek a direction from this Court that respondent No.6 conduct a detailed investigation in the matters. Without approaching the respondent No.6 for adjudication on the dispute, there is no justification for seeking a direction from this Court in the manlier sought by the petitioner.

10. Even otherwise, a review of the prayer clause shows that the petitioner is not entitled to the prayer sought as this Court, vested with jurisdiction under section 7 of the Companies Ordinance, cannot direct respondents Nos.1 to 5 to pay the loss of more than Rs.100 million as claimed by the petitioner. In order to claim loss, evidence has to be led, and the petitioner would have to establish their relationship with respondents Nos.1 to 5, the terms of their relationship, the breach and the loss suffered. This Court cannot determine the loss suffered by the petitioner, if any, under a Petition under section 227 of the Ordinance.

11. Therefore, in view of the aforesaid, I find that the Petition is not maintainable.

12. The second objection was with reference to the locus standi of the petitioner. The petitioner is a registered union of respondent No.5. Since jurisdiction under section 227 of the Companies Ordinance vests with respondent No.6, I leave it for them to decide upon this issue, in the event that the petitioner files any petition before them.

13. In view of the aforesaid, this C.O. has no merit, hence dismissed.

Muhammad Noman Yahya for Petitioner.
Sh. Nadeem Anwaar for Respondents.
Date of hearing: 15th January, 2013.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through the instant petition, the petitioner has impugned the notices dated 28-5-2012 and 24-7-2012 issued under section 38 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (the STA) by respondent No.4. The petitioner also impugns that the inquiry proceedings initiated by the respondent No.4 pursuant to the said notices for being illegal and contrary to the statutory provisions.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the petitioner is a taxpayer of respondent No.2 vide NTN No.0219047-8 and also registered with Sales Tax Department. He files his sales tax returns regularly. Notice was issued to the petitioner on 28-5-2012 for conducting an investigative audit for tax for the period from 1-7-2009 to 30-4-2012. The petitioner filed reply to the said notice on 26-6-2012. The respondent No.4 declined the contentions of the Petitioner and issued another notice on 24-7-2012.

3. The case of the petitioner is that the respondents cannot select the petitioner for audit without completing the audit under section 25 of the STA. He argued that it is only upon the completion of the audit under section 25 that investigative audit can be initiated under section 38 of the STA. He next argued that in this regard, no audit has been made under section 25 on the basis of which the decision could have been made to conduct an investigative audit under section 38 of the STA. He argued that the purpose of the impugned notices was to defeat the parameters laid down in judgment dated 10-5-2012 passed in Writ Petition No.393 of 2012.

4. Learned counsel for the respondents argued that the notices under section 38 of the STA were issued to investigate the tax fraud committed by the petitioner. He maintains that the reasons have been stated in the impugned notices which inform the Petitioner about the reasons of conducting the said investigation. He also argued that the tax fraud does not fall within the parameters of the judgment dated 10-5-2012 passed in Writ Petition No.393 of 2012. The period for audit under section 38 of the STA may overlap the period under section 25 of the STA for the audit. However, the purpose of the audit is different and as such, the respondents are well within the mandate of the law to carry out the investigative audit in order to establish whether a case of tax fraud is made out or not. At this stage, it was just a notice calling for documents and as such, there is no basis for the petitioner to impugn the same as the petitioner is under a statutory duty to maintain his record and the respondents may call upon the petitioner to submit the relevant record. He argued that the petitioner is bound to produce its record for verification in terms of sections 22, 23 and 24 of the STA.

5. I have heard the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the parties and also reviewed the record.

6. It is noted that this case was argued along with Writ Petition No.19819 of 2012. Although it was a connected matter with Writ Petition No.19819 of 2012, yet learned counsel for the petitioner requested that his case be heard and decided separately from Writ Petition No.19819 of 2012.

7. The main issue in this case is with respect to the notices dated 28-5-2012 and 24-7-2012 that have been issued under section 38 of the STA. Review of the record shows that through the impugned notice dated 28-5-2012, the petitioner was informed that there is an allegation "making illegal input adjustments" against the petitioner, therefore, an inquiry has been initiated for which purpose, the record for the period from 1-7-2009 to 30-4-2012 in terms of the documents mentioned in the notice has been called for. Review of the reply filed by the petitioner to this notice shows that the petitioner essentially denied the submission of documents on the basis of section 72 of the STA. In terms of the requirement for production of the record, the reply shows that the petitioner states that it is maintaining the record and tiling their tax returns. The respondents again replied to this letter by re-ascertaining the request to provide the relevant record as maintained by the petitioner.

8. The whole case of the petitioner is premised on the argument that the respondents cannot proceed under section 38 of the STA on account of the decision dated 10-5-2012 in Writ Petition No. 393 of 2012. As I have already stated in my judgment of even date in Writ Petition No.19819 of 2012 that the main issue in this case is with respect to the impugned notice issued to the petitioner under section 38 of the STA calling for documents to be produced by the petitioner for the period from 1-7-2009 to 30-4-2012. A review of the impugned notice dated 28-5-2012 shows that it provides that an investigation under section 38 of the STA has been initiated and the documents stated in the notice are required for the purposes of the said investigation. A reminder was issued to the petitioner on 24-7-2012, which also informs the petitioners that in the event of non compliance, proceedings under section 33(9) and 21(2) of the STA (suspension of registration) will be initiated.

9. The impugned notice was issued under section 38 of the STA, which provides that:--

"38. Authorized officer to have access to premises, stocks, accounts and record.---

(1) Any officer authorized in this behalf by the Board [or the Commissioner] [m] shall have free access to business or manufacturing premises, registered office or any other place where any stocks, business records or documents required under this Act are kept or maintained belonging to any registered person or a person liable for registration of whose business activities are covered wider this Act or who may be required for any inquiry or investigation in any tax fraud committed by him or his agent or any other person; and such officer may, at any time, inspect the goods, stocks, records, data, documents, correspondence, accounts and statements, utility bills, bank statement, information regarding nature and sources of funds or assets with which his business is financed, and any other records or documents, including those which are required under any of the Federal, Provincial or local laws maintained in any form or mode any may take into his custody such record, statements, diskettes, documents or any part thereof, in original or copies thereof in such form as the authorized officer may deem fit against a signed receipts.

(2) The registered person, his agent or any other person specified in sub-section (1) shall be bound to answer any question or furnish such information or 'explanation as may be asked by the authorized officer.

(3) The department of direct and indirect taxes or any other Government department, local bodies, autonomous bodies, corporations or such other institutions shall supply requisite information and render necessary assistance to the authorized officer in the course of inquiry or investigation under this section."

Section 38 of the STA essentially lets the authorized officer have access to business or manufacturing premises, stocks, record or documents required under the law or maintained by the registered person, required for an inquiry or investigation in any tax fraud committed by him, his agent or any other person. Therefore, section 38 of the STA requires that a notice be issued to the registered person before entering into its premises or the office or any other place where the stocks, accounts or record is kept. Such a notice must state the reasons for entering into the premises of the registered person. In terms of the two cases relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner, the requirement of a notice is essential under section 38 of the STA as the authorized officer must inform the registered person that he is going to enter upon his premises to remove goods or record from his premises and the reasons for needing to enter or seizing the record. As such section 38 of the STA and the case referred to do not relate to the case at hand, where a notice has been issued simply calling for the record of the petitioner.

10. Section 25 of the STA provides that a person is required to produce the record and the documents when required by the Commissioner, which are in his possession or control. Subsection (2) of section 25 of the STA provides that the officer of the Inland Revenue authorized by the Commissioner Inland Revenue may conduct an audit. The proviso of this section states that:-- "Provided that in case the Commissioner has information or sufficient evidence showing that such registered person is involved in tax fraud or evasion of tax, he may authorize an officer of Inland Revenue, not below the rank of Assistant Commissioner, to conduct an inquiry or investigation under section 38"

Therefore, the need to conduct an inquiry or investigation against a person thought to be involved in a tax fraud or evasion of tax is provided for under section 25 of the STA. This means that an inquiry can be initiated to investigate tax fraud. In the instant petition, the respondent No.4 issued notice to the petitioner, calling for the record. As such he has not acted in a manner contrary to section 38 of the STA, which specifically deals with access into the premises of a registered person. The impugned notice has been issued as a preliminary step to the investigation simply calling for the record. Reference to section 38 of the STA on the notice puts the petitioner to notice that there is an inquiry or investigation for tax fraud. It is noted that the show cause notice itself details the nature of the fraud that is under investigation. This means that the respondents have a reason to investigate the record of the petitioner. Hence the impugned notices do not in any manner offend the mandate of section 38 of the STA.

11. Furthermore, this is an investigative audit looking into a potential case of tax fraud. At this stage, the respondents are merely conducting an inquiry for which they require the documents. All the reasons necessitating the audit are contained in notice dated 28-5-2012. Hence the facts of this case do not attract the parameters of judgment issued in Writ Petition No.393 of 2012. The judgment passed in W.P No.393 of 2012 deals with the composite audit where the persons are selected randomly for audit under section 25(2) of the STA. This is not a case of random selection or composite audit but one of tax fraud being a specific allegation against the Petitioner. Mere issuance of the impugned notices does not mean that a case of tax fraud has been decided against the Petitioner. As such the impugned notice does not adversely affect any right of the Petitioner. No illegality is made out. Case does not call for interference in constitutional jurisdiction.

12. Therefore, there is no merit in this petition and the same is dismissed.

Punjab Civil Servants Act (VIII of 1974)---

----Ss. 8 & 3(2)---Constitution of Pakistan Art.199---Constitutional petition---Civil service---Upgradation in service grade---Alternate remedy---Petitioner sought upgradation of his post on the ground that in the year 1987 a letter was issued which updated technical posts in different departments and contended that he had been discriminated against---Validity----Petitioner was alleging discrimination against orders passed 14 years ago, and there was nothing on record to explain the delay incurred by the petitioner in agitating the issue---Petitioner was considered for upgradation and denied the same as the petitioner had a promotion channel available to him under the new 4-tier structure---Upgradation was a form of promotion and under S.8 of the Punjab Civil Servants Act, 1974, promotion was 'term and condition' of service---Civil servant would be eligible to be considered for promotion provided he possessed prescribed qualifications and under S.3(2) of the Punjab Civil Servants Act, 1974 the Service Tribunal had exclusive jurisdiction in respect of matters of 'terms and conditions' of service---Petitioner, therefore, had an effective, efficacious remedy available to him for redressal of his grievance and could approach the Service Tribunal---Constitutional petition was dismissed, in circumstances.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this Writ Petition, the petitioner seeks a direction to the respondents to grant him Selection Grade in BS-15 from BS-11.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the Finance Department issued a letter dated 27-7-1987 revising the pay and fringe benefits of the employees of the Government of the Punjab. Thereafter, in continuation of the said letter, another letter dated 21-1-

1988 was issued which upgraded technical posts in different departments and also allowed selection grades to the government servants subject to a minimum qualification. The case of the petitioner is that nearly all of the government departments have acted upon the said two letters and upgradation and selection grades were granted to the employees as per letter dated 21-1-1988. However, respondents Nos.1 and 2 have not upgraded the post of the petitioner even though he is entitled for the same. The petitioner made a representation before respondent No.1 for redressal of his grievance who vide order dated 16-6-2012 has rejected the representation of the petitioner. Hence this Writ Petition.

3. Learned Law Officer raised an objection that upgradation and award of selection grade is a matter of promotion, hence the case of the petitioner cannot be decided in a constitutional petition. That the petitioner should have filed an appeal before the Punjab Service Tribunal (the Tribunal) against the impugned order as the matter in issue relates to the terms and conditions of service, hence the bar of Article 212 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 is applicable to the case of the petitioner. He also argued that the petitioner cannot be granted upgradation and selection grade as the scheme was abolished in the year 2001 and a new structure was subsequently put in place.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner in rebuttal has relied upon the case-law cited at "Abid Hussain and 5 others v. Secretary to Government of the Punjab, Finance Department, Civil Secretariat, Lahore and 5 others (2012 PLC (C.S.) 26)" to argue that the cases of upgradation have been adjudicated upon in constitutional jurisdiction on the ground of discrimination. Since the petitioner also challenges discrimination, hence the bar of Article 212 of the Constitution is not attracted.

5. Arguments heard. Record perused.

6. The petitioner is a Laboratory Technician appointed in BPS-9 on 19-4-1993. The prayer of the petitioner is that he be awarded upgradation to BS-11 and selection grade of BS-15 from the date of his appointment. Essentially, the petitioner is seeking a higher grade for which a selection process is admittedly required. The petitioner's case was considered by the respondent No.1, but rejected as a 4-tier service structure has been created for paramedics. In terms of the order, the petitioner has available to him a promotion channel upto BPS-16 subject to availability of post, mandatory training and required length of service. However, the petitioner wants to be treated at par with the persons mentioned in para 6 of the instant petition. The record as appended with the Petition shows that the persons named in para 6 were upgraded in the years 1991 and 1994, whereas the petitioner's case was considered in the year 2012. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that the petitioner has been agitating the matter for a long time, however, there is nothing on the record to substantiate the same. As per the record, he filed Writ Petition No.23321 in the year 2009 wherein a direction was given on 7-12-2011 to decide the representation of the petitioner. The petitioner is aggrieved by the impugned order as it denies him upgradation and selection grade. The case relied upon cited at 2012 PLC (C.S.) 26 (supra) is one where the cadre was abolished and the petitioners were excluded from upgradation on the ground that their cadre was abolished. In the cited case, this Court held that they should be treated at par with their counterparts in the same department since they were all permanent government servants and the petitioner should not be denied upgradation solely on the ground that his cadre was abolished. Hence the cited case is distinguishable from the instant petition. In the instant case, the petitioner is alleging discrimination against the orders passed in the years 1991 and 1995 with respect to certain technical officers. There is nothing on the record to explain the long period of delay by the petitioner in agitating the issue. He filed Writ Petition No.23321 in the year 2009, some 14 years after the decision was made. Now at this belated stage, with a new structure in place, the petitioner has no grounds to agitate discrimination or otherwise. Furthermore, the petitioner has been considered for upgradation and denied the same as the petitioner has available a promotion channel under the new 4-tier structure and also since the selection grade scheme was abolished on 1-12-2001.

7. Be that as it may, the prayer of the petitioner is that he be awarded upgradation and selection grade from the date of his appointment. In terms of the dicta laid down in the case titled "Government of the Punjab through Secretary Services, Punjab, Lahore and 4 others v. Muhammad Awais Shahid and 4 others (1991 SCMR 696)" upgradation is a form of promotion. It was held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan that "Wherever there is a change of grade or post for the better, there is an element of selection involved that is promotion and it is not earned automatically, but under an order of the competent authority to be passed after due consideration on the comparative suitability and entitlement of those incompetent." Section 8 of the Punjab Civil Servants Act, 1974 (the Act) provides that promotion is a term and condition of service. Under Section 8 of the Act, a civil servant shall be eligible to be considered for promotion provided that he possesses the prescribed qualifications for promotion. As per section 3(2) of the Act, the service tribunal shall have exclusive jurisdiction with respect to matters of terms and conditions of service of civil servants. Since upgradation and award of selection grade is a form of promotion, therefore, in terms of section 3(2) read with Section 8 of the Act, the question of upgradation/grant of selection grade must be decided by the Service Tribunal. The petitioner has an effective, efficacious remedy available to him for redressal of his grievance by approaching the Service Tribunal which has exclusive jurisdiction to deal with such matters.

8. For the aforementioned reasons, this writ petition has no merit, hence dismissed.

ORDER

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---The issue in this case is the compliance and implementation of the judgment dated 10-5-2012 rendered by this Court in Writ Petition No.393 of 2012 titled as "Messrs Chenone Stores Ltd. v. The Federal Board of Revenue etc." whereby it has been held that the notices issued by Commissioner Inland Revenue under sections 177, 25 and 46 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001, Sales Tax Act, 1990 and Federal Excise Act, 2005 selecting the petitioners in the said Writ Petition for audit of their tax affairs are illegal and without any lawful authority. It has further been held vide said judgment that such authority only lies with the Federal Board of Revenue through computer balloting and not with the Commissioner Inland Revenue.

2. Despite the clear and unambiguous findings of this Court in the aforementioned judgment, notices by Commissioner Inland Revenue selecting the taxpayers for audit of their tax affairs are continuously being issued which is contrary to the findings thereof.

3. The respondents are essentially required to comply and follow the above referred judgment untill and unless it is reversed or some interim relief is granted by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in favour of the respondents which undeniably does not exist till date.

4. In this view of the matter, the Writ Petition in hand is disposed of with the direction to the respondents to comply with the findings of the judgment dated 10-5-2012 passed by this Court in Writ Petition No.393 of 2012 titled as "Messrs Chenone Stores Ltd. v. The Federal Board of Revenue etc.".

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---The instant Petition has been filed under section 12(2) of the OGRA Ordinance, 2002 against the decision dated 18th May 2012 passed by respondent No. 1 (Decision).

2. The basic facts are that the petitioner is a public utility company listed on three stock exchanges with its major shareholding held by the Federal Government being 55.27%. The petitioner has a License for Transmission, Distribution and Sale of Natural Gas (Licenses) issued by the respondent No.1. In terms of the License, the respondent No.1 makes an annual determination for the total revenue requirement of the petitioner for that year. The petitioner has impugned the decision of the respondent No.1 with respect to the determination made for UFG, non-operating income and provision for doubtful debt in the Estimated Revenue Requirement for the financial year 2012-2013.

3. The grievance of the petitioner is that the Decision made by respondent No.1 for the Estimated Revenue Requirement for the Financial Year 2012-2013 is not in accordance with the prescribed procedure; the penalty imposed is not in accordance with the law; the amount determined as penalty is far greater than the prescribed limit; non-operating income cannot be regulated by the respondent No.1 as it does not fall under the scope of regulated activities; that the Human Resource Cost and the provision for doubtful debts were not allowed by the respondent No.1 without consideration of the relevant and necessary factors required under the law.

4. The basic challenge is to the determination for Unaccounted For Gas (UFG) for the FY 2012-2013 which is set at 4.5% by the respondent No.1 in its decision. The petitioner projected its UFG for the FY 2012-13 at 10% and requested that the UFG for the said year be fixed in terms of the 2009-2010 determination wherein the UFG was set at 7%. It is the case of the petitioner that the respondent No.1 did not follow the prescribed procedure and failed to give due consideration to the issues raised by the petitioner whilst rendering its Decision related to UFG.

5. Learned Counsel explained that the Natural Gas Tariff Rules, 2002 (Tariff Rules), Rule 2(m) defines Unaccounted for gas as Unaccounted for gas means in respect of a financial year the difference between the total volume of metered gas received by a licensee during that financial year and the volume of natural gas metered as having been delivered by the licensee to its consumers excluding therefrom metered natural gas used for self-consumption by the licensee for the purposes of its regulated activity and such other quantity as may be allowed by the authority for use by the Licensee in the operation and maintenance of its regulated activity. UFG is therefore a part of the tariff as determined by the respondent No.1. The Learned counsel argued that the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 (OGRA Ordinance) requires the authority, respondent No.1 to follow efficient practices and enforce the conditions of the license.

6. One of the grounds for challenge raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner was that the decision of the respondent No.1 was not in accordance with the required quorum. The OGRA Ordinance required a quorum of three members whereas the impugned decision was signed by only two members. However this objection was quickly dispelled by the respondent No.1 with the production of the original decision which was signed by three members. As such now this ground is not sustainable.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the procedural requirements have been ignored by the respondent No.1 whilst setting UFG benchmarks. He argued as follows:--
(a) Rule 17(1)(c) of the Tariff Rules requires that UFG Benchmarks are set through yardstick regulation. The Rules contemplate that there be yardstick regulations on the basis of which UFG Benchmarks are set. The respondent No.1 has failed to follow the procedure and establish the yardsticks regulations which have resulted in an arbitrary exercise of power.

(b) Clause 21.1 of the License requires that the UFG Benchmark is set after consultation with the Licensee. Counsel argued that consultation has to be meaningful and purposeful. He placed reliance on PLD 1996 SC 324 and PLD 2007 SC 323. He argued that the respondent No.1 did not make any meaningful consultation with the petitioner. In fact he argued that the record will show that the said benchmarking was done in one go, for seven years, in the year 2005, effective till Financial Year 2011-2012. The case of the petitioner is that for each financial year a fresh benchmark through yardstick regulation is to be determined. For each determination respondent No.1 should consult with the petitioner.
The learned counsel argued that OGRA circulated a paper dated 12 April, 2012 and in the said paper proposed a benchmark of 5.46% for the said financial year. Yet in the decision the UFG is determined at 4.5%. The learned counsel argued that the arbitrary decision is best illustrated as the authority proposed a UFG of 5.46% on the 12th April, yet in the decision it came up with a benchmark of 4.5%.
(c) Clause 21.1 of the License also requires that there is consultation with experts for setting UFG Benchmarks. However counsel for the petitioner argued that no expert was consulted. The only time an expert was consulted was on the orders of the Lahore High Court passed in OGRA Petition 1068/2010. The expert recommended a benchmark of 7% however the respondent No.1 rejected the advice. Contention of the learned counsel is that it was rejected as it did not recommend the benchmark desired by the respondent No.1. Learned counsel argued that the consultation process is to take place every year when the respondent No.1 sets the benchmark.
(d) Benchmarks to be set for each financial year. The law requires all tariff related exercises to be carried out on a yearly basis. UFG Benchmarking has to be done in each financial year and the benchmark for one particular year has no relevance to the benchmarks for the previous years because the factors affecting UFG are numerous and vary from year to year. These factors include the size and age of network (since UFG is higher in large and old networks) the changing ratio between the volumes of bulk sales to retail sales (since UFG is higher in pipelines meant for the retail sector) expansion of network in remote areas (which causes increased leakages, thefts and monitoring issues) and the general security situation (the petitioners' network exists in the same threatened environment as the rest of Pakistan). However, despite these variable factors, respondent No.1 had illegally set UFG Benchmarks in 2005-2006 for the next 7 years, i.e. up to FY 2011-2012.
(e) Rule 17 of the Tariff Rules provides for the evaluation criteria for setting of tariff. UFG is a part of the tariff hence the requirements of Rule 17 should be followed. Most important requirement is that the respondent No.1 should strike a balance amongst the criteria specified in Rule 17(1) in order to optimize the benefits. This balancing factor is another requirement which has been ignored by the respondent No.1.

8. The case of the petitioner is that the process as defined by law was not followed by respondent No.1. Hence there is no valid determination for UFG. It is settled law that when law requires something to be done in a certain way, it has to be done in that manner. OGRA, being a statutory authority, is under a legal obligation to apply and follow the law strictly. Any deviation for the same would render such decisions a nullity.

9. Learned counsel argued that the decision has also been impugned because it has imposed heavy penalties without any default on the part of the petitioner. He argued that a three tier process should be followed for imposing a penalty. First the benchmarks should be set, each year. Once the benchmarks have been set the authority has to determine whether there has been any breach of the benchmark and to what extent, and then to determine whether the licensee should be penalized. Before such penalty can be imposed the authority has to show cause the licensee; apply its mind to the arguments raised by the licensee; determine whether there was any wilful or preventable default on part of the licensee (2004 SCMR 456, PTD 2006 1132, 2004 SCMR 456 = 2004 PTD 1179); determine whether there has been any violation of a law (PLD 2001 SC 201); use a standard of proof of "beyond reasonable doubt" (as penal provisions are quasi-criminal in nature (2010 PTD 534); and apply the principle of proportionality. It was argued that this process is also enshrined in Rule 20(3) of the Tariff Rules. Once the authority has considered all the above factors, and comes to the conclusion that the breach is attributable and relatable to the actions and omission of the licensee, only then, can it impose a penalty through a reasoned order. In the instant case the petitioner was never afforded a proper opportunity to present its defence yet it has been burdened with heavy penalties.

10. The other ground for challenge to the decision is with regard to the quantum of penalty. The OGRA Ordinance under section 6(2)(p) authorizes the Authority to prescribe fines for contravention of the ordinance, rules, regulation, terms and conditions of the license and the decisions of the authority. A penalty has been specifically prescribed by the authority in Rule 20 of the Tariff Rules which lays down that a maximum of Rs.2 million per day for a continuing breach totalling Rs.730 Million for a financial year may be imposed. It was argued that Rule 20 is all encompassing and it includes violation of any Rules/Regulations as well as orders, determinations and even instructions passed by the authority. The penalty which the respondent No.1 has imposed on the petitioner in the instant case is more than Rs.11.782 Billion being fifteen times more than the maximum prescribed by the Rules. It is submitted that a penalty which exceeds the maximum prescribed by law is unlawful (1990 CLC 784, 2005 PTD 1663 and 1984 MLD 468). Even for the maximum of any lawful penalty to be imposed, it should be shown that the acts are such that they warrant that the maximum penalty be levied instead of any other lower figure. Penalty provisions are to be strictly construed in favour of the petitioner (1998 CLC 1278, PLD 2005 Lahore 571 and 2001 PTD 19).

11. The learned Counsel for the respondent No.1 set out his case by explaining the role of the respondent No.1. He explained that the respondent No.1 was established under the OGRA Ordinance to act as the regulator for the oil and gas industry in Pakistan. One of its functions is to determine the tariff at which gas should be sold by the petitioner. To set the tariff, the respondent No.1 conducts an annual exercise to determine the Estimated Revenue Requirement (ERR) of the petitioner. The UFG is a component in determining the ERR for each year. When the UFG is high, the ERR is increased, meaning a higher gas price for the consumer. He explained that it has been the endeavor of the respondent No.1 to bring down the UFG rate of the petitioner so as to control the price of gas paid by the consumer. The respondent No.1 reviews the practices of the petitioner and all factors which affect the loss of gas in transmission so as to ensure that the loss of gas stays at a minimum and if there is loss on account of factors relatable totally to the petitioner or its inefficiency, then the respondent No.1 cannot allow the burden of such inefficiency to be passed to the consumer. He explained that the petitioner was required to control its loss of gas during transmission and that the decision under challenge considered all the factors raised by the petitioner, which were not accepted by the respondent No.1.

12. Following up on the role of the respondent No.1, he argued that the determination of UFG is a technical matter which falls within the jurisdiction of the respondent No.1. He argued that the Court should examine the procedure adopted, to ensure that the decision was made in accordance with law, that due process was followed and that the respondent No.1 has not acted arbitrarily or contrary to the statutory provision of the OGRA Ordinance.

13. He argued that the UFG benchmark was not an annual determination and that the respondent No.1 has carried out extensive research and work in order to set out the benchmarks and yardstick regulations. He argued that the petitioners understanding of yardstick regulation was contrary to Rule 17(1)(c) of the Tariff Rules and the concept of yardstick regulations in general. As per the understanding of the respondent No.1 setting of benchmarks through yardstick regulation means that the respondent No.1 sets standards for the petitioner to keep a control over its gas loss. In this regard a comprehensive exercise of studying international comparative industry along with local conditions is made by the respondent No.1. Thereafter, the benchmarks are set, which gives the target to be achieved over a period of time. In the instant cases, the benchmarks were set in the financial year 2005-2006 up till the year 2011-12 by an order dated 12-10-2005. He referred to paras 4.2.1.1 to 4.2.1.10 of the order dated 12-10-2005, which he stated was the evidence in data taken by the respondent No.1 when setting the benchmarks. He argued that review of the benchmarks would show that the respondent No.1 required the petitioner to progressively reduce its UFG over time. The 2005 Order set out the target for the petitioner for the upcoming years and they were not indicative. They were fixed through an elaborate procedure of benchmarking for UFG through yardstick regulation. He further argued that a fresh benchmark could not be set every year as it would defeat the purpose of this entire exercise as contemplated under Rule 17(1)(c) of the Tariff Rules read with condition 21.1 of the license. That condition 21.1 of the License did not require the respondent No.1 to carry out an annual factual inquiry in order to set an annual benchmark. He argued that annual benchmarking is contrary to the scheme for setting benchmarks under the OGRA Ordinance, the Tariff Rules and the License.

14. Learned counsel argued that the experts and the licensee and other stake holders were duly consulted. The consultation process adopted is meaningful and a great effort is put into studying international standards to achieve efficiency. He argued that the consultation is necessary in order to bring all possible opinion before the respondent No.1. However, this consultation does not mean that the respondent No.1 should not exercise its own independent judgment and balance the views of the individuals and experts consulted.

15. His main argument was that the petitioner was required to subscribe to the standards set out by the respondent No.1 for UFG and that the petitioner instead wanted to increase the UFG rate on the basis of a onetime benefit given to it in the financial year 2009-2010. He argued that the respondent No.1 cannot do its job successfully or efficiently if it maintains the UFG determined in the year 2009-2010.

16. The respondent No.3 submitted its statement in writing which provided that the Government of Pakistan owns 54% of SNGPL's and 80% of the SSGCL's shares. Out of 14 directors of the boards of both companies, in case of SNGPL, the Government has ten and in case of SSGC it has eleven directors. The efficient running of both these companies, the welfare of its staff and employees as well as providing gas to consumers at competitive and affordable rate, remains priority of Government of Pakistan. That while determining the final UFG benchmark, factors which are beyond the control of companies should also be considered.

17. Heard and reviewed the documents placed before the Court.

18. This is a petition filed under section 12(2) of the OGRA Ordinance, 2002. The petitioner prays for the decision to be set aside to the extent of its findings on UFG, treatment of Non-Operating Income, disallowing HR cost and the provision for doubtful debt. Although several grounds have been urged before this Court and a lot of material has been placed before the Court, the main ground urged is with respect to the procedure adopted by the respondent No.1 in making its Decision related to UFG, Non-Operating Income, HR Costs and doubtful debts. In terms of section 12(2)(a) the petitioner essentially seeks a direction from this Court to the respondent No.1 to refrain from doing anything it is not permitted by law to do or to do that which it is required by law to do. Therefore, for the purposes of this petition filed under section 12(2) of the OGRA Ordinance this Court shall review the decision making process adopted by respondent No.1 whilst rendering the decision specifically related to matters challenged.

19. The thrust of the arguments raised on behalf of the petitioner was that the process prescribed by law for determining UFG benchmarks was not followed. That the benchmark is an annual determination and that the 2005 benchmarks relied upon were at best indicative. That an annual determination was necessary to keep the benchmark abreast with the ground realities. The ground realities depended upon variable factors which may not be in the control of the petitioner. Such factors included the changing ground realities, the size and age of the network, the changing ratio between the volumes of bulk sales to retail sales, expansion of network in remote areas and the general security situation where the petitioner's network system exists. The learned counsel also gave reference to the critical nature of service also being a factor which should be considered by the respondent No.1. He argued that the petitioner could not be made responsible for all the factors which affected and increased the UFG. Hence the respondent No.1 should set its guidelines to decide which factors are within the control of the petitioner and which factors are not in its control. To the extent of the UFG determination since the respondent No.1 did not follow any guideline, they failed to appreciate the variable factors and the critical nature of the service provided by the petitioner. Without giving due consideration to the variable factors, the critical nature of the service and without striking a balance between the criteria and by not revising the benchmarks annually the respondent No.1 has set an impossible target which cannot be achieved or maintained by the petitioner.

20. The basic issue for the petitioner is that the benchmark should be an annual determination and that the respondent No.1 should set guidelines to show what factors will be considered while determining UFG benchmarks. In this regard a review of the relevant law is necessary to determine the procedure set by law.

21. OGRA Ordinance:--
21.1 Section 7 provides that the Authority shall set the tariff for regulated activities. Section 7(2) (a to g) provides for the criteria for determination, approval, modification and revision of tariff which shall be prescribed in the rules in the terms and conditions of the license and shall include 7(2) from (a to g).
21.2 Section 8 provides for the pricing for retail consumers for natural gas. In terms of the section the licensee shall submit its total revenue requirement and the respondent No.1 shall determine the total revenue requirement in accordance with the rules.

22. The Natural Gas Regulatory Authority Licensing Rules, 2002 (Licensing Rules) provide in Rule 3 that the Authority while exercising its functions shall as far as practicable look after the interest of the consumer and the licensee along with the nation as a whole. The criteria for approval of the tariff is given in Rule 19(3) which essentially repeats the criteria provided for in section 7(2)(a through g) of the OGRA Ordinance.

23. The Natural Gas Tariff Rules 2002 (Tariff Rules) provide for the process to be followed by a licensee for determination of tariff. Rule 4 provides that every licensee shall file its petition by the first day of December of each year, to determine the estimate of the total revenue requirement for one financial year. In accordance with the procedure the petition has to be admitted, notices issued, replies and rejoinders filed and then a hearing by the authority. Rule 17 lays down the evaluation criteria for the Authority to follow whilst determining the Tariff. Rule 17(c) provides that tariff should include a mechanism whereby the licensee can maintain or achieve the benchmarks set by the Authority through yardstick regulation for UFG.

24. The License:- Clause 5 provides that the Authority shall determine tariff or total annual requirement for each regulated activity in accordance with the relevant criteria laid down in the Ordinance and the Rules.
24.1 Clause 21.1 provides that the Licensee shall take all possible steps to keep the UFG within acceptable limits. The Authority for this purpose in consultation with Licensee and experts, shall fix target of UFG for each financial year. The Authority may fix UFG target separately for each regulated activity.
24.2 Clause 21.2 provides that the Licensee shall be entitled to claim the UFG to the extent of target fixed by the Authority under 21.1 for the purpose of determining its revenue requirement for each financial year.
24.3 Clause 21.3 provides that in case the Licensee improves upon the UFG target prescribed by the Authority under Condition 21.1 for any financial year, the Licensee shall be entitled to retain the gain on that account. Conversely if the Licensee fails to meet the UFG target the loss on that account shall be borne by the Licensee and shall not form part of its total revenue requirements.

25. To address the argument that benchmarking should be done annually so that it updates the factors affecting the UFG of the petitioner, I find that there is nothing in the OGRA Ordinance, the Tariff Rules and the Licensing Rules which requires benchmarking to be an annual determination. Reliance has been placed by the petitioner on Clause 21.1 of the License where it states that UFG shall be fixed for each financial year. Reliance has also been placed on the fact that the ERR is to be determined each year, hence they conclude that the UFG benchmarks should also be determined each year. I am of the opinion that the fact that the ERR is determined annually does not mean that the benchmark should be set annually. Clause 5 of the License when read with Clause 21 of the License clarifies this issue. It provides that tariff is to be determined as per the Ordinance and the Rules on an annual basis. For the purposes of determining the UFG component, the authority shall fix targets for each financial year. The licensee can claim UFG to the extent of the target fixed by the Authority for the purposes of determining its revenue requirement for each financial year. If the licensee improves on the UFG target it can retain the gain on that account. If it fails to meet the target then the loss cannot be considered or made part of the total revenue requirement. To my mind the fixation of the target as contemplated under Clause 21.1 when read with Clauses 21.2 and 21.3 makes it clear that the authority sets a target for the licensee for every year and in terms of the target set, the licensee can demand a profit or suffer a loss in its revenue requirement based on its performance. There is nothing in the license to suggest that targets should be set annually. Furthermore Rule 17(1) of the Tariff Rules lay down the evaluation criteria for determining tariff. These are the guidelines which are to be followed by the Authority, when determining the tariff. Rule 17(2) requires the Authority to strike a balance between all the criteria provided for in Rule 17(1). Hence the Authority has to consider all the elements given in Rule 17(1) and has to strike a balance between the criteria. One criteria that has been stressed upon is Rule 17(1)(c) which provides for benchmark through yardstick regulation. For the purposes of UFG, the Authority sets the benchmarks, so that the Licensee can keep a check on its costs, investment and return on assets such that it does not violate the terms of the license and also so that it protects the licensee from being penalized. The word benchmark as used in Rule 17(1)(c) of the Tariff Rules means that the Authority can set a standard against which performance of the Licensee can be measured. Essentially benchmarking is used to measure the Licensee's efficiency against a reference point such that the Authority monitors the Licensee's performance and also sets standards to achieve optimum efficiency. Yardstick regulations are the indicators set out by the Authority to measure performance for the purposes of benchmarking. It is a tool used by the authority to achieve efficiency. Hence benchmark through yardstick regulation is the scheme set out by the authority to motivate optimum performance by the Licensee. Since its object is to incentivize the industry there is no merit in the arguments raised that benchmarking is to be done annually.

26. Admittedly, a low UFG is the desired result. Hence by setting the benchmarks in 2005, the Authority informed the petitioner of what was expected from it qua UFG, over the years, up to 2012. The benchmarking process was thought through and UFG standards for the next seven years were given to the petitioner. It was now for the petitioner to work towards the standards. In doing so the respondent No.1 has not acted illegally or contrary to the OGRA Ordinance or Tariff Rules or terms of the License. The petitioner also stressed greatly on the fact that the respondent No.1 did not give due consideration to the variable and critical factors which cause a higher UFG. The entire controversy regarding UFG started with the determination for 2009-10. At the time, the UFG was set at 7%. This was a one time determination deviating from the given benchmarks. The petitioner uses this determination as a basis to justify and rationalize the fact that UFG rate cannot be lower than the 7%. In response, the respondent No.1 argued that 2009-2010 determination cannot form the basis for removing the targets set and for destroying the objective of reducing the UFG. A review of the decision shows that due consideration were given to the factors advanced by the petitioner which lead to a demand for a higher UFG. The decision also reveals that the respondent No.1 has rejected the factors put forward by the petitioner stating its reasons for doing so. I am of the opinion that it is for the respondent No.1 to determine what factors are relevant and what are not for the UFG. This Court can review the decision making process and cannot direct the respondent No.1 to change its determination where due process has been followed. The respondent No.1 has to exercise its discretion in a way to advance the objects of the OGRA Ordinance, Tariff Rules and Licensing Rules. Therefore benchmarks set in the year 2004-2005 are in accordance with the OGRA Ordinance, Rules and License.

27. On the issue that the respondent No.1 has not set the yardstick regulation on the basis of which benchmarks are set, no case is made out. The respondent No.1 has shown that the yardstick regulations were established with best international practices while accounting for local conditions. The yardstick regulations provide an incentive to the petitioner to perform better and stay within the acceptable limits. Without the yardsticks the benchmarks could not be set. In fact the benchmarks encourage optimum performance, which means that the yardstick regulations are in place. Hence there is no merit that the yardstick regulations are not set by the respondent No.1.

28. On the argument related to the consultation process, Clause 21.1 provides for a consultation with the licensee and the experts to fix the targets of UFG for each financial year. Admittedly the process of consultation has taken place, but the grievance of the petitioner is that the consultation is an annual process and that the respondent No.1 has rejected the reports filed by the experts and that in doing so they have ignored the meaningful purpose of consultation as provided for under the License. Also argued was the point that the consultation was ignored in an arbitrary manner without cause and that the respondent No.1 first set the UFG at 5.67% and then at 4.7% again without any just cause. Furthermore it was argued that since benchmarking had to be done annually hence the consultation process was to be adopted annually as well. To my mind the arguments raised with respect to meaningful consultation and the law cited does not give credence to the basic argument of the petitioner, being that the respondent No.1 did not rely on any of the reports and advice provided by the experts. The authority is required to maintain a process of open consultation with the experts and the Licensee to set targets to keep the UFG within acceptable limits. The consultation process is meaningful as it gives the authority the information it requires to set the UFG targets. Clause 21 of the License also provides that the licensee shall take all possible steps to keep UFG within acceptable limits. Therefore, the requirement of consultation is guided by the duty of the Licensee, that is the duty of the petitioner, to maintain UFG within acceptable limits. Clause 21.2 provides that the target shall be fixed by the authority. The evaluation criteria provided in Rule 17 of the Tariff Rules guides the authority in setting its targets. Therefore the consultation provided for in the License is a tool used by the respondent No.1 to regulate the petitioner. Furthermore, admittedly consultation took place. However the grievance of the petitioner is that the consultation process should be undertaken annually and should be relied upon. The decision to set UFG target lies with the respondent No.1. It can consider the views of the petitioner and experts, but ultimately it has to set the UFG after evaluating the criteria provided in Rule 17 of the Tariff Rules. Therefore, open consultation can shape the decision making but it cannot control the decision of the respondent No.1. As I have already reasoned that clause 21.2 of the License does not require the process of benchmarking to be undertaken each year, in the same way the process of consultation is also not required to be taken each year.

29. The other challenge is to the Human Resource Cost (HRC) and the provision for doubtful debts which were not allowed by the respondent No.1. Again the argument is that it was done without consideration and the request of the petitioner was denied. It has been suggested that the respondent No.1 has concluded on the basis of an arbitrary exercise of discretion. A review of the decision reveals that in fact it is a reasoned decision on HR benchmark and doubtful debts. The respondent No.1 has stated in para 9.1.9 of the decision that HR benchmark cost will be fixed after conducting a comprehensive and elaborate study in the matter. Till the final outcome of study, the increase of 10.80% was provisionally allowed, final adjustment to be after implementation of new benchmarks. In view of its findings, the respondent No.1 determined the HR cost at Rs.7.80 million. Since this is not a final determination and adjustment will be made after the new benchmarks have been determined, therefore, there is no basis to challenge this finding as the basic considerations have to be determined with respect to provision for doubtful debt as per para 9.1.65 of the decision. Furthermore, respondent No.1 has required the petitioner to reduce its provision for doubtful debts, yet the petitioner has not reduced this head. The respondent No.1 has given its findings on the issue, reasoning its decision. There is nothing in the Ordinance, Tariff Rules or License on the basis of which the petitioner can seek a direction to the authority to accept its figures for doubtful debts. This falls within the discretion guided under Rule 17 of the Tariff Rules. Hence there is no reason to set aside this finding.

30. On the issue of Late Payment Surcharge (LPS), the petitioner has argued that the respondent No.1 before 10-10-2010 used to treat LPS as operating income but after its decision of 15-10-2010, LPS became non-operating income. Since the respondent No.1 has already accepted that LPS is a non-operating income therefore, the decision with respect to LPS goes against the accepted position of the respondent No.1. A review of the decision shows that the 2010 decision was a one time allowance which the respondent No.1 did not want to grant any further. In para 7.3.10 of the decision the respondent No.1 has stated that LPS as non-operating income will be considered as part of the new tariff regime under consideration. However presently the existing regime treats it as operating income hence, the respondent No.1 rejected the request of the petitioner. Again, there is no procedural impropriety when concluding on LPS. Hence no reason to set aside the decision related to LPS is made out.

31. Finally on the issue of penalty, the petitioner argues that due process was not followed when imposing the penalty and that the quantum of penalty is not in accordance with the rules. Under the Tariff Rules, Rule 20 provides for the imposition of a penalty. Any licensee who contravenes any provision of the OGRA Ordinance, Rules, Order, determination, decision, direction or instruction of the authority shall be punishable with a fine, which may extend to one quarter of one per cent of the annual turnover of the licensee or 20 million rupees whichever is less. If the contravention is continuing with an additional fine, which may extend to one tenth of one per cent of the annual turnover of the licensee or Rs.2 million, whichever is less for every day during which such contravention continue. As per clause 20 (3) a show-cause notice is required so as to give the licensee an opportunity to show cause as to why the penalty should be imposed. The respondent argued that no penalty had been imposed and that the petitioner was interpreting UFG disallowance as a penalty. Hence there was no basis to this challenge. A review of the decision shows that there is no finding on a penalty under Rule 20 of the Tariff Rules. In terms of para 8.2.6 a determination has been made on UFG disallowance. It is this disallowance factor which the petitioner is interpreting to be a penalty imposed under section 20 of the Tariff Rules. The decision does not show any working related to imposition of penalty as stipulated by the petitioner. Hence no ground is made out on this count.

32. The role and the functions of the respondent No.1 rests in its ability to make decisions that affect the petitioner's performance when providing a public utility, in this case its sui gas. It was established, as per its preamble, to protect public interest while respecting individual rights and to provide effective and efficient regulation. Section 6(2) of the OGRA Ordinance provides that it shall safeguard public interest, that it shall protect the interest of all stakeholders including consumers and the licensees. An important function of the respondent No.1 is the fixation of tariff and prices for natural gas. A critical element in fixing tariff is the exercise of discretion. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in case "Tariq Aziz-ud-Din and others (2010 SCMR 1301)" has laid down seven points for structuring discretion. In the words of the Hon'ble Supreme Court:--

"Wherever wide-worded powers conferring discretion exists, there remains always the need to structure the discretion and it has been pointed out in the Administrative Law Text by Kenneth Culp Davis (page 94) that the structuring of discretion only means regularizing it, organizing it, producing order in it so that decision will, achieve the high quality of justice. The seven instruments that are most useful in the structuring of discretionary power are open plans, open policy statements, open rules, open findings, open reasons, open precedents and fair informal procedure"
The discretion exercised by the respondent No.1 satisfied the test laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. The discretion is not open ended but guided by the OGRA Ordinance, the Tariff Rules and the License Rules. Stakeholders have been consulted including the petitioner and opinions have been reviewed by the respondent No.1. Furthermore, the discretion exercised by the respondent No.1 was after giving due consideration to all the issues raised by the petitioner. Detailed reasons have been given in the decision for the determinations made. There is nothing on the record to show that the respondent No.1 has acted unfairly, unreasonably or contrary to the law and principles of natural justice. The respondent No.1 has applied its mind and reasoned its Decision. Therefore no case for a direction under section 12(2) of the OGRA Ordinance is made out. Consequently, this petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

Through this consolidated judgment, I intend to dispose of Writ Petitions Bearing Nos. 30214/2012, 30569/2012, 30570/2012 and 2029/ 2013 as common questions of law and fact are involved therein.

2. There are 13 Petitioners in the above mentioned Petitions. Facts of the case are almost similar in all the cases. Brief facts are that the Petitioners applied for their admission in B.S./M.A. English Session 2012-2016/2012-2014 at University of Sargodha, deposited the requisite dues with the University and joined their respective classes. Thereafter, Respondent No. 5 vide order dated 28.11.2012 cancelled the admission of the Petitioners stating that the admissions were given to them without observing the merit policy of the University. Hence these petitions.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners inter alia contended that the impugned order was issued without any notice to the petitioners. That the petitioners were attending classes, when their admissions were cancelled. He also argued that the order impugned is a non-speaking order. That the admissions of the petitioners were cancelled at the time when admissions in all universities had already closed, therefore, with the cancellation of admission of the petitioners, their one educational year is lost and they would suffer irreparably. Learned counsel for the petitioners prayed that this writ petition be allowed, the impugned order dated 28.11.2012 be set aside and the Petitioners be allowed to join their respective classes.

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents opposed these petitions on the grounds that the petitioners were admitted to the University against the merit policy and in addition to the approved number of seats mentioned in the Admission Regulations, University of Sargodha. That the names of the petitioners were not on any merit list, hence their admissions were against the University Policy. That the University is well within its right to cancel an admission made contrary to the merit. In this regard, learned counsel relied upon Regulation 4.2.1 of the Admission Regulations 2011 (Amended) 2012 which provides that the admissions contrary to the Regulations are void. That the admission of the petitioners was cancelled in accordance with law and no illegality, whatsoever, has been committed by the respondents, therefore, the instant writ petitions in hand be dismissed.

5. Arguments heard. Record perused.

6. The matter in issue in these petitions is whether the respondent University could have cancelled the admission of the petitioners. The petitioners were granted admission in September, 2012. They attended classes till 28.11.2012 when their admissions were cancelled. Pursuant to a complaint with respect to the admissions in BS and M.A. English Program of the University, a committee reviewed the admission process and came to the conclusion that the Chairman of the Admission Committee admitted 60 students beyond the approved number of seats. These students did not satisfy the merit requirements and were not included in the merit lists issued by the University. The Committee came to the conclusion that a gross violation in the admission process was committed by the Chairman Admission Committee and it was recommended that action be taken against the Chairman of the Admission Committee and the admissions of those students who were admitted without merit be declared null and void. Learned counsel for the respondent-University argued at length. He stated that the admission process was flawed. That the petitioners did not come on any merit list, hence the respondents were well within their right to cancel the admission of the petitioners.

7. The record shows that the Committee which reviewed the admission process did not call the petitioners to inquire as to whether they were involved in any wrongful act for the purpose of procuring admission in the BS English and M.A. English Program of the University. On a query put by this Court, learned counsel for the respondent-University admitted that the petitioners were never called and no inquiry took place in this regard. As a consequence, neither the petitioners were called to explain as to how they got admissions nor their involvement in getting admissions with the connivance of the Chairman Admission Committee was investigated.

8. This Court gave the respondents an opportunity on 21.01.2013 to inquire from the petitioners about their admissions. The transcript of the questions asked by the respondents from the petitioners has been provided to the Court. Review of the transcript shows that the petitioners were asked five questions by the respondent No. 1 but not a single question imputing any fraud or misrepresentation was put to the petitioners with respect to their admissions. No allegation of procuring admission through the Chairman Admission Committee was put to the petitioners. Consequently, the respondents have not been able to show to this Court what illegal act was committed and how they managed to get admissions with the connivance of the Chairman Admission Committee at the relevant time. The entire case of the respondents is based on their understanding that the previous Chairman of the Admission Committee, without adhering to the rules and policy, admitted 60 students over and above the approved number of seats. Essentially, the case against the petitioners is based on a presumption, being that since the Chairman of the Admission Committee acted contrary to the rules, hence the petitioners must have been involved in the process of getting admission unlawfully in the University. Admittedly, neither any show-cause notice was served on the petitioners nor investigation was made against the petitioners linking them directly to the fact of over admission of students by the Chairman Admissions Committee. There is no cavil to the proposition that once a student is granted admission, a vested right is created in his/her favour. As such, when a right is created, then admission can only be cancelled by following due process of law.

9. Cancellation of admission tantamounts to a penalty. In order to impose a penalty, it was necessary for the respondents to follow due process which involved an inquiry, a show-cause notice, hearing and a decision by the competent authority after having heard all those concerned. In this case, the respondents themselves concluded upon an act of over admission and cancelled the petitioners' admissions. As such, they have not proven that the petitioners, in any manner, were involved in obtaining their admissions contrary to the merit and policy.

10. The record produced by the respondents shows that they put up five different merit lists wherein the petitioners' names were not included in any of the merit lists. However, hearing was given to the petitioners at the direction of this Court made vide order dated 21.01.2013. On a question as to how they came to know about the admission, most of the students replied that they were informed telephonically. On the basis of this response, the respondents concluded that the petitioners obtained their admissions by using unlawful means. At this point, it is necessary to note that during the course of arguments, it was revealed that one of the petitioners namely Suba Khan was adjusted in the L.L.B. Program as his merit satisfied the requirements of the said program.

11. Learned counsel for the respondent-University also argued that he who seeks equity must do equity and must approach this Court with clean hands. He argued that ill-gotten gains cannot be protected through an order of the Court. He placed reliance on the dictums laid down in case titled "Muhammad Ali and 11 others Vs. Province of KPK through Secretary, Elementary and Secondary Education, Peshawar and others (2012 SCMR 673)." I have reviewed the judgment cited by learned counsel for the respondent-University and found that the petitioners of that case admittedly got their appointment from the back door without advertising vacancies calling for applications and their appointments were made without observing codal formalities. Based on this information, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan concluded that they could not challenge the termination letters issued to them. The case of the petitioners of the instant petitions is distinguishable from the case cited as there is no admission on the part of the petitioners and there is no proven case against the petitioners by the respondents. The admission was liable to be cancelled if the petitioners were found guilty of suppression or misrepresentation of material facts or it was proven that they were involved in procuring their admissions by using unlawful means. In this case, it may be said that the Chairman of the Admission Committee acted negligently or against the policy but the petitioners cannot be held responsible for the acts of the Chairman Admission Committee. Reliance is placed on the ratio laid down in case titled Chairman, Selection Committee/Principal, King Edward Medical College, Lahore and 2 others Vs. WASIF Zamir Ahmad and another (1997 SCMR 15)" wherein it was held that the petitioners of that case were not at fault, hence a vested right was created in their favour which could not be taken back arbitrarily. In the said case, the admission was given, fee was accepted and classes were attended. Subsequently, the University cancelled the admission of the students stating that the petitioners were granted admission through unfair means. It was on account of a computer error that the admission was given, hence the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that for a mistake or negligence on the part of the University, the students could not be made liable. Although in this case, it is not a computer error, nonetheless it is an act stated to be contrary to the policy committed by the Chairman of the Admission Committee. In order to cancel the admission of the petitioners, the respondents were obligated to follow due process and prove their case with respect to the involvement of the petitioners in obtaining admission with the connivance of the Chairman of the Admission Committee for admissions for which they were otherwise not entitled to.

12. There is nothing on record to show that the petitioners knowingly got admission contrary to the admission policy. Without such proof, the respondents cannot cancel the admissions of the petitioners, therefore, the impugned order cannot be sustained in the eye of law.

13. For what has been discussed above, this writ petition is accepted, the impugned order dated 28.11.2012 is set aside and the petitioners are allowed to continue their classes. It is clarified that the petitioners in the interregnum will be treated as they were attending their respective classes and their absence for the said period will not make basis to stop them to appear in the examination for want of attendance.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this Writ Petition, the petitioner has prayed that the Verbal Declaration dated 11-4-2012 made by respondent No.2 declaring respondent No.9 as Chairman of Area Water Board, Lower Bari Doab Canal (LBDC) be declared illegal, void and without any lawful authority.

2. Brief facts of the case as narrated in the Writ Petition are that under Punjab Irrigation and Drainage Authority Act, 1997 (the Act), the Pilot Area Water Boards have been established in LCC(E) Circle, Faisalabad, CRBC area of D.G. Khan comprising farmers of the distributaries duly elected by the farmers of the area. The process of establishing Area Water Board Sahiwal Circle was initiated by the respondents and 12 farmers namely respondents Nos.4 to 14 were elected as Members Area Board, LBDC Circle, Sahiwal. The petitioner Rana Sikandar Hayat is the elected member of the Area Water Board Unit One Balloki. Respondent No.2 under Punjab Irrigation and Drainage Authority (Pilot Farmers Organizations) Rules, 2005 called a meeting for 11-4-2012 vide letter dated 28-3-2012 to elect the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the Area Water Board, LBDC (the Board). The petitioner along with 5 other Members of the Area Water Board, LBDC namely respondents No.4 to 8 reached the PIDA Building, Sahiwal at 11 a.m. and orally announced his candidacy for the Chairmanship of the Area Water Board, LBDC. Respondent No.9 namely Rai Habib Ullah also declared his candidacy for the chairmanship. Both the candidates got equal 5 votes each but respondent No.2, without any lawful reason, declared respondent No.9 as the successful candidate verbally, the same day, i.e. 11-4-2012 which is under challenge in this writ petition.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner inter alia contended that respondent No.2 has acted illegally and unlawfully and has, under political influence, declared respondent No.9 as the successful candidate of the Board. He averred that six Members of the Board were on petitioner side, therefore, respondent No.9 could not be declared as the successful candidate for the chairmanship. He pointed out that in the event of absence of consensus, written nominations under Rule 6 of the Election Manual were required but neither written nominations were sought nor submitted by the candidates. He maintained that Rule 2 of the Election Manual was also ignored altogether as no written consent of the Members was obtained by respondent No.2. Learned counsel prayed that this writ petition be allowed and the impugned declaration dated 11-4-2012 be declared null and void.
Conversely, learned counsel for the respondents vehemently opposed this writ petition. He stated that there is nothing on record to show that the petitioner even tendered his candidacy for the chairmanship of the Board. He further states that nomination papers for the election were duly sought and submitted only by respondents Nos.9 and 13 for chairmanship and vice-chairmanship respectively. Learned counsel for the respondents submits that on the fateful day, eight members were present but the petitioner and respondent No.4 left the room where the election was to be conducted. That after about half an hour of their leaving the room, announcements for conducting election were made but the said two persons did not enter in the election room. That the election was conducted and respondents Nos.9 and 13 were declared Chairman and Vice-Chairman respectively. Learned counsel for the respondents avers that no illegality was committed in the election process and this Writ Petition having no force is liable to be dismissed.

5. Arguments put forth by both sides have been heard and record made available before me also reviewed.

6. The grievance of the petitioner is that in pursuance to letter dated 28-3-2012 issued by respondent No.2 went into a meeting held on 11-4-2012 to elect Chairman and Vice-Chairman of Area Water Board, LBDC. He as well as respondent No.9 being elected members presented themselves as candidates for the chairmanship of the Board. According to the petitioner, the votes were cast wherein both the candidates for the chairmanship got equal 5 votes each but respondent No.2 under the influence of respondent No.8 who is an MPA of the area declared respondent No.2 as the Chairman unlawfully and illegally. However, the whole story narrated by the petitioner has been denied altogether by the respondents saying that there were only eight elected members present in the meeting out of which the petitioner and respondent No.4 left the room where the election was to be conducted and did not come back. Learned counsel for the respondents has also submitted before the Court that the election was conducted fairly and justly in the presence of the members. In the circumstances, since the plea taken by the petitioner is denied altogether, therefore, disputed questions of fact have arisen which need recording of evidence for their resolution. It is settled law that where disputed questions of fact arise, constitutional jurisdiction cannot be invoked.

7. Even otherwise, under subsection (2) of section 16 of the Punjab Irrigation and Drainage Authority (Pilot Farmers Organizations) Rules, 2005, a remedy has been provided for settlement of dispute if any arises during the election process. Section 16 of the said Rules is reproduced as under:--- "16. Elections.--- (1) Elections under these rules shall be held and the lists of the eligible voters shall be prepared and revised in accordance with the regulations.
(2) All election disputes and disputes relating to the voter lists shall be decided by the Authority, a duly authorized officer of the Authority or by a dispute resolution committee constituted by the Authority on the application of an aggrieved person."
Bare reading of subsection (2) above shows that in the event of any dispute arising out of the election process, the matter will be referred to the Authority, a duly Authorized Officer of the Authority or by a dispute resolution committee constituted by the Authority on the application of an aggrieved person for its resolution. No such remedy has been availed by the petitioner rather this Writ Petition has been preferred. Since remedy for redressal of a dispute has been provided in the Act, section 3 of Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 is fully attracted in the case which provides that where remedy of appeal, review, revision or so has been provided, constitutional jurisdiction cannot be invoked. As such, this writ petition is not maintainable.

8. For the aforementioned seasons, this writ petition is dismissed. The petitioner is, however, at liberty to avail the remedy available to him in accordance with law.

MWA/S-26/L Petition dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This writ petition impugns Order No.GS (Univ)3-12/2012-266 dated 6-6-2012 (Impugned Order).

2. The brief facts of this case are that the petitioner is an Assistant Professor in the department of Social Work, University of the Punjab, New Campus, Lahore. He was appointed Teacher Incharge Department of Social Work w.e.f. 27-12-2011. Respondent No.5 was appointed as Associate Professor on 21-11-2007 w.e.f 30-10-2005 by the Vice-Chancellor of the University. His appointment was challenged in W.P No.319 of 2008. In terms of order in Writ Petition No. 319 dated 27-9-2011, the matter was taken up by the Syndicate of the University. On 27-12-2011 the Syndicate decided that the appointment of respondent No.5 was not in accordance with the law, hence the appointment order was withdrawn with immediate effect. The petitioner was appointed Teacher Incharge on 27-12-2011 vide Order No. D/20912/Est-1.

3. Against the order of 27-12-2011, the respondent No.5 filed a departmental appeal. The appeal remained pending and the respondent No.5 filed a revision petition under section 11-A of the University of Punjab Act, 1973 (the Act). The respondent No.1 accepted the revision petition of the respondent No.5 by his order dated 6-6-2012. The respondent No.5 was restored to his original position with all back benefits.

4. The petitioner challenged the said order dated 6-6-2012 through instant petition. Learned counsel for the petitioner states that the case of the petitioner is that the respondent No.1 being the Governor of the Province of Punjab and the Chancellor of the University of Punjab is bound by section 11(8) of the Act, such that the respondent No.1 can only exercise powers upon the advice of the Chief Minister, in terms of Article 105 of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (the Constitution). The petitioner has placed reliance on a case titled as "Aamer Raza Ashfaq and another v. Dr. Minhaj Ahmad Khan and another" (2012 SCMR 6), wherein it has been held that the powers of Chancellor of the University have been defined under the Act. The judgment holds that section 11(8) of the Act incorporates a constitutional provision by reference. It explains that:--

"When construing such a piece of legislation, the Court has to examine and keep in mind three things, the statement of reasons and objects given therein, the statement of objects given in other laws in pari materia to the one under consideration and the mandate of the Constitutional provision which stands adopted by way of reference."

To interpret section 11(8) of the Act the Supreme Court held that:--

"Verba relata hoc maxime operantur per referentiam ut in eis inesse vindentur i.e. words to which reference is made in an instrument have the same effect and operation as if they were inserted in the clause referring to them."

On the functions of the Chancellor under the Act the Supreme Court held that:--

"Except otherwise so provided under the Constitution, the President and Governor are bound by the advice tendered by the Prime Minister and the Chief Minister respectively and in the manner as provided in the afore-referred provisions of the Constitution. The Governor while acting as Chancellor is a statutory functionary. By specific mention of Article 105 of the Constitution in section 11(8) of the Act and in laying down that "in the performance of his functions under the Act, the Chancellor shall act and be bound in the same manner as the Governor of a Province acts and is bound under Article 105 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan", the Legislature has blended the same value of supremacy of the Parliament/Provincial Assembly which underlie the adopted Constitutional provision."

Essentially on the basis of the Supreme Court Judgment (supra), learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that the Governor of Punjab while acting as the Chancellor of the University is bound by the advice of the Chief Minister of the Province of Punjab. It was argued that the Chancellor cannot act other than on the advice of the Chief Minister and as such the Impugned Order violates Section 11 (8) of the Act as well as the spirit of Article 105 of the Constitution.

5. Learned counsel for the respondent No.5 took up the preliminary objection that the instant petition is a writ of certiorari, which can only be filed by an aggrieved person. He argued that the petitioner is not an aggrieved person, hence the instant petition is not maintainable. To advance this point, he argued that the petitioner has no vested right against the position of Teacher In charge. That his appointment was a stop gap arrangement. Therefore, he could not challenge the order of the Syndicate dated 27-12-2011. He further argued that the order of the Syndicate dated 27-12-2011, which cancelled the appointment of respondent No.5, was an illegal order as the Syndicate was bound to refer the matter to the Chancellor under the Act. He argued that in the event of a difference between the Selection Board and the Syndicate, the matter has to be referred to the Chancellor, whose decision is to be final. He argued that this is a statutory requirement and the Impugned Order corrected an illegality, hence the said order cannot be interfered in writ jurisdiction. He stated that when an order corrects an illegality, even if the said order is without jurisdiction, it should not be interfered with. He placed reliance on the cases titled "Messrs Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society Ltd. v. Muhammad Javed Iqbal and another" (1986 SCMR 1071) and "Dhani Khan v. M.Z. Khan (Member Board of Revenue, West Pakistan) and another" (PLD 1963 (W.P) Lahore 583). He also argued that the petitioner did not qualify for the position, as he was not eligible as per the requirements of the University. Therefore, appointing him in the first case was in contravention to the rules of the University. Reliance is placed on an unreported judgment dated 6-4-2011 passed in C.As. Nos. 987 to 988 of 2010.

6. Learned counsel for the respondent No.1 argued that respondent No.1 while exercising powers under section 11-A of the Act was not bound by the advice of the Chief Minister. His powers under section 11-A of the Act are of a judicial nature, which cannot be bound by the advice of the Chief Minister. This fact distinguishes, the instant case from the case cited at 2012 SCMR 6 (supra) as the said judgment is a case regarding the appointment of the Vice Chancellor of the University, where the advice of the Chief Minister was given but not followed. However, the instant case relates to the exercise of the statutory power to review by the respondent No.1, which power is not subject to the advice of the Chief Minister.

7. Learned Law Officer while supporting the arguments of learned counsel for the respondent No.1 further elaborated the distinction from the cited judgment with reference to the exercise of powers by the Chancellor of the University. While exercising executive powers, the Chancellor is bound by the advice of the Chief Minister, however, while exercising judicial powers, as contemplated under section 11-A of the Act, the Chancellor is not bound by the advice of the Chief Minister. He argued that the judicial power is not dependent of any advice. Under section 11-A of the Act, the Chancellor sits as an officer of the University, who has been granted the power of revision just as he has been granted the power of review under section 43 of the Act. Both these sections require the Chancellor to exercise a judicial function, which exercise of power cannot be made dependent on the advice of the Chief Minister. The same would render the entire exercise as redundant, as the spirit of judicial power lies in the exercise of independent authority. As such it would be an exercise in futility if the Chancellor were to seek the advice of the Chief Minister for deciding matters of the judicial side. It goes against the spirit of both the sections.

8. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

9. The main issue raised in this writ petition is with respect to the exercise of power by the Governor of the Province as Chancellor of the University of Punjab. The question is whether the Chancellor is bound by the advice of the Chief Minister of the Province while exercising his power to review under section 11-A of the Act. Although, the petitioner's counsel has placed absolute reliance on the Supreme Court judgment (supra), the counsel for the respondents have drawn a distinction with respect to executive functions and judicial functions exercised by the Chancellor of the University of the Punjab. They have argued that the judgment is with reference to the executive functions and not the judicial functions of the Chancellor. That when the Chancellor exercises his judicial authority he is not bound by the advice of the Chief Minister. Therefore I find that this point needs consideration from this Court.

10. The counsel for the respondent No.5 raised a preliminary objection with respect to the maintainability of this petition. I find that the objection has no merit. The petitioner is an aggrieved person for the purposes of this petition within the meaning of Article 199 of the Constitution. The petitioner is an employee of the University of Punjab, who was appointed as Teacher Incharge on 27-12-2011. His appointment was set aside by the Impugned Order issued by the respondent No.1. He is directly and adversely affected by the Impugned Order. A direct injury is caused to the petitioner as his appointment as Teacher Incharge was set aside. His interest has been prejudiced. This prejudice and injury give rise to the right to question and challenge the authority exercised by the respondent No.1 whilst setting aside the appointment of the petitioner. Reliance on the case titled "Dhani Khan v. M.Z. Khan (Member Board of Revenue, West Pakistan) and another" (PLD 1963 (W.P) Lahore 583) does not advance the case of the respondent No.5 as in that case the petitioner sought appointment to the position of lambardar. The Court found that he had no vested right to the position of lambardar hence it cannot be challenged in a writ of certiorari. The instant case is not one where an appointment is sought, but one where an appointment was made and thereafter set aside by virtue of the Impugned Order. The petitioner being the affected party can question the exercise of authority when issuing the Impugned Order. Hence, I find this petition is maintainable.

11. On the legal question, with reference to the powers exercised by the respondent No.1, the Supreme Court Judgment (supra) finds that the Chancellor while exercising its functions under the Act is bound by the advice of the Chief Minister. The case pertains to the appointment of the Vice-Chancellor of the University. Learned counsel have drawn an inference to the fact that appointment is an executive function where as the power of revision under 11-A of the Act is a judicial function. Although the issue with respect to the interpretation of section 11(8) of the Act has been decided by the honorable Supreme Court, what needs to be seen is whether section 11(8) of the Act draws any distinction between the executive function and the judicial functions of the Chancellor of the University. The Chancellor is an officer of the University in terms of section 10(i) of the Act. Section 11(1) of the Act provides that the Governor of Punjab, shall be the Chancellor of the University. Section 11(2 through 6) provides for the functions of the Chancellor. Section 11(8) of the Act provides that:-- "In the performance of his functions under the Act the Chancellor shall act and be bound in the same manner as the Governor of a Province acts and is bound under Article 105 of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan."

Section 11-A of the Act provides that:--

"The Chancellor may, of his own motion or otherwise, call for and examine the record of any proceedings in which an order has been passed by any authority for the purpose of satisfying himself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding or order and may pass such orders as he may deem fit."

The argument put forward by the learned counsel for the respondents and the learned Law Officer is that section 11(8) of the Act, will apply to executive functions but will not apply to the Chancellor's judicial functions, such as the power of revision under section 11-A of the Act or the power of review under section 43 of the Act. To my mind, this argument is fundamentally flawed. In the first case section 11(8) applies to all functions of the Chancellor under the Act. It does not distinguish between executive or judicial functions. The functions of the Chancellor are provided for in the Act and section l1(8) shall apply to all functions performed by the Chancellor. furthermore there is also no legal basis upon which this distinction can be read into section 11(8) of the Act as such a reading would negate the objective of the section. A bare reading of section 11-A of the Act, reveals that the Chancellor may of his own motion or otherwise examine or call for the record of any proceeding where an order was passed by any authority, to satisfy himself on the legality of the findings or the order so passed and may pass such an order as he deems fit. The ability to exercise power of his own motion and to pass any order as he deems fit with respect to any matter pending before any authority of the University means that the Chancellor can exercise his discretion with respect to all such matters where he would otherwise be bound by the advice of the Chief Minister. This goes against the requirement of section 11(8) of the Act and negates its meaning and purpose. Section 11(8) of the Act categorically provides that the Chancellor of the University, while performing his functions under the Act is bound in the same manner as the Governor of the Province while performing his function under the Constitution. Article 105 of the Constitution provides that the Governor while performing his function shall act on and in accordance with the advice of the Chief Minister. Article 105 of the Constitution draws no distinction with reference to the functions of the Governor as contemplated by the Constitution. The Constitutional mandate in this regard has already been discussed in the Judgment (supra), and the Court has held that the Chancellor is bound by the advice of the Chief Minister just as the Governor is bound by the advice of the Chief Minister.

12. The Constitution provides the structure of authority with respect to the office of the Governor of the Province. The same structure has been imported into the Act by virtue of section 11(8). The powers and the functions of the Chancellor are subject to the advice of the Chief Minister as provided by the Constitution. The Constitution draws no distinction between the executive or judicial functions of the Governor. Hence no such distinction can be read into section 11(8) of the Act. To read the distinction drawn with reference to the functions of the Chancellor, in section 11(8) of the Act, would go against the mandate of Article 105 of the Constitution. Section 11(8) of the Act must be read to give effect to the same structural mandate as provided in Article 105 of the Constitution. Another reason for not accepting the distinction drawn by the respondents counsel with respect to the functions of the Chancellor i.e. judicial and executive power, is that by drawing this distinction, the Chancellor could, under the garb of judicial power, exercise discretion where advice is required. The whole concept of acting on the advice of the Chief Minister would disappear.

13. Therefore, the Chancellor is bound by the advice of the Chief Minister while exercising powers under section 11-A of the Act. The petition is allowed as the Impugned order is an illegal order passed without authority, hence set aside. There is no order as to costs.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition the petitioner has impugned the proclamation wherein a relaxation of age was offered to female candidates but the same relaxation of age was not offered to male candidates. The petitioner claims that he is being discriminated against which is in contravention to Articles 4 and 25 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (the Constitution).

2. The basic facts are that through a proclamation in the newspaper applications were invited for the posts of Educators. As per clause 3 of the proclamation the maximum age for a candidate is 35 years, inclusive of five years age relaxation. The Government of Punjab granted a further age relaxation upto three years to female candidates in terms of the Punjab Women Empowerment Package, 2012, meaning thereby that female candidates up to the age of 38 were eligible to apply for the post of Educator. The petitioner moved an application to the respondent No.1 to request for an age relaxation of three years being similar to that which was being offered to female candidates. The petitioner's request was not considered. The petitioner made several requests to the respondent No.1 and ultimately filed the instant petition before this Court.

3. Written reply has been filed by the respondents Nos.2 and 3 as well as by the respondent No. 1 . In terms of the replies filed, it is stated that the petitioner cannot be considered for age relaxation on account of the Recruitment Policy, 2011 wherein it is stated that the maximum age limit is 35 years of age across the board and no further age relaxation will be allowed. It is further explained that the age relaxation offered to female candidates is on account of the Punjab Women Empowerment Package, 2012 (PWEP). Hence in terms of the replies filed the age relaxation is offered only to female candidates under the PWEP.

4. The case of the petitioner, as argued by the learned counsel is that every citizen is equal before the law and is entitled to equal protection of the law. Furthermore, in terms of Article 27 of the Constitution, no citizen otherwise qualified for appointment in the service of Pakistan shall be discriminated against in respect of any such appointment on the ground of race, religion, caste, sex, residence or place of birth. Learned counsel argued that it is the fundamental right of the petitioner to be given the same treatment as that of the female candidates and that there is no justification for giving only female candidates an age relaxation of three years. He argued that this act of the respondents is discriminatory and offends Article 27(1) read with 25(1) of the Constitution.

5. Learned Law Officer argued that the Punjab Women Empowerment Package, 2012 was introduced in terms of Article 25(3) of the Constitution. It represents a concerted effort on the part of the Provincial Government to acknowledge the mandate of Article 25(3) read with Article 24 of the Constitution. The PWEP is protected under Article 25(3) of the Constitution and represents an affirmative action on the part of the Government to protect the rights of women. He placed reliance on case titled Miss Rabia Khan. and 3 others v. Province of Sindh (2012 YLR 1801) and Syeda Sadia and 2 others v. Baha-ud-Din Zakria University through Vice-Chancellor and 3 others (2011 YLR 2867) in support of his contention that Article 25(3) of the Constitution provided for affirmative action for the protection of women.

6. I have heard the learned counsel and have reviewed the record available on the file.

7. The point that needs consideration in this case is whether the age relaxation of three years provided for in the proclamation, for the benefit of female candidates violates Article 27(1) of the Constitution. Article 27 of the Constitution reads as follows:---

"No citizen otherwise qualified for appointment in the service of Pakistan shall be discriminated against in respect of any such appointment on the ground only of race, religion, caste, sex residence or place of birth. ."

Article 25 of the Constitution being the equal protection Article reads as follows:---

"(1) All citizens are equal before law and are entitled to equal protection of law.

(2) There shall be no discrimination on the basis of sex.

(3) Nothing in this Article shall prevent the state from making any special provision for the protection of women and children."

8. It is clear from reading both the Articles that there shall be no gender based discrimination. Article 25 ensures equal treatment under the law however Article 25(3) provides that nothing in this article shall prohibit the State from making special provisions for the protection of women and children. This means that the Constitution has given the State a remedial power to protect women and children notwithstanding the fact that everyone is to be treated equally under the law. Article 25 of the Constitution guarantees equal protection to every citizen and also requires that the State undertake affirmative action for the protection of women and children. Therefore the Constitution has itself recognized and created a classification which needs special protection. Hence an act of the Government which aims to protect women and children will be an affirmative action which does not offend Article 25(1) and equal treatment. The next question is whether Article 27 is offended by the age relaxation offered to female candidates. Article 27(1) provides that no citizen shall be discriminated against in respect of any appointment he is otherwise qualified for only on the ground of race, religion, caste, sex or place of birth. Article 27 provides for a safeguard against discrimination in service. The safeguard ensures that the State will not commit gender based discrimination. However this Article does not prohibit affirmative action to protect the female gender. The age relaxation offered to females under PWEP does not discriminate against the petitioner but in fact is part of an affirmative action to protect women by creating opportunities for women professionally so that they can apply for jobs keeping in view the time spent for responsibilities such as marriage and children. Affirmative action for women and children is the remedial power given to the Government to equalize opportunities by creating special dispensation or special standards for them so as to equalize their opportunities. A similar view was considered in 2012 YLR 1801 (supra) where it was held that:---

"Furthermore, the reliance placed on Article 25 of the Constitution is also misplaced. Clause (2) of this Article prohibits gender based discrimination, but clause (3) allows positive discrimination for the "protection" of women. Now fundamental rights serve as a check on State power, i.e., they prohibit the relevant organ of the State from doing what it otherwise could do (whether in the exercise of legislative or executive power). In other words, fundamental rights do not confer powers on the State; they derogate from its powers and draw a line which cannot be crossed".

9. The question which also needs to be answered is whether the action undertaken by the Government is permissible affirmative action to protect women. In the instant case the PWEP was introduced under Article 25(3) of the Constitution. As part of the PWEP female candidates were given an age relaxation up to three years, for fresh induction, over and above the normal age for the purpose of encouraging employment in the public sector and to enable women to join professional career after marriage and child bearing. In the instant case, as explained by the learned Law Officer and provided for in the PWEP the intention of the PWEP is to give women an equal opportunity to apply for jobs given that a certain amount of their time may have been utilized for marriage and child bearing. The aim therefore is to provide women a level playing field so that they have equal representation and opportunities in the different activities of national life. To my mind the Government has a compelling reason for undertaking affirmative action by allowing age relaxation upto 38 years for female candidates. The decision to offer female candidates a three year age relaxation is taken to remedy an imbalance. And finally, even though it suggests different treatment the object is to promote gender equality.

10. I am of the opinion that the age relaxation for female candidates meets the standard of a permissible affirmative action, hence is protected under Article 25(3) of the Constitution. I am also of the opinion that the age relaxation offered to female candidates does not violate Article 27(1) of the Constitution. In fact it promotes the full participation of women in national life as contemplated under Article 34 of the Constitution, which provides that steps shall be taken to ensure full participation of women in all parts of National Life.

11. Therefore, I find that no discrimination is made out against the petitioner on account of the fact that the petitioner is not offered the three years age relation which female candidates are given. Petition dismissed.

Writ Petition No.13074 of 2013, heard on 10th July, 2013.

(a) Punjab Textbook Board Ordinance (XLI of 1962)---

----Ss. 11, 3 & Preamble---Punjab Curriculum Authority Act (XLIX of 2012) Ss.6 & 2(a)---National Textbook and Learning Materials Policy and Plan of Action (2007 Policy), Clause 2.2---Constitution of Pakistan, Art.199--- Constitutional petition ---Selection, development and regulation of manuscripts for textbooks---Selection of manuscripts by Punjab Curriculum Authority---Role and functions of Punjab Textbook Board---Scope---Petitioner was an employee of the Punjab Textbook Board and sought direction to the effect that the Punjab Textbook Board be allowed to participate in the bidding process for the selection of textbooks to be carried out by the Punjab Curriculum Authority---Contention of the petitioner was, inter alia, that per S.6 of the Punjab Curriculum Authority Act, 2012, the Punjab Textbook Board, as an "agency"; could participate in open competition for selection of manuscripts--- Validity---- Punjab Textbook Board in terms of the Preamble to the Punjab Textbook Board Ordinance, 1962 was a facilitator that was to make arrangements for the production and publication of textbooks, reading materials etc.---Section 11 of the Punjab Textbook Board Ordinance, 1962 did not provide that the Punjab Textbook Board should participate in publication of textbooks itself---Section 6, Punjab Curriculum Authority Act, 2012 provided that the Punjab Curriculum Authority shall approve standards of education and manuscripts produced by any person or agency before such textbooks were prescribed; however the said section did not explain as to when the Punjab Textbook Board could participate for publication of textbooks for selection by the Punjab Curriculum Authority and the same was explained by the National Textbook and Learning Materials Policy ("Policy")---Clause 2.2 of said Policy clearly provided that the Punjab Textbook Board could only participate in the publication of a manuscript if no letter of interest for the same was submitted by a private publisher that too after re-advertisement---Punjab Textbook Board was, therefore, essentially a regulator and facilitator, that had to make schemes for publication of textbooks for all stages for implementation of educational policy---Section 6(1)(b) of the Punjab Curriculum Authority Act, 2012 provided that the Authority could approve standards of education and manuscript of a textbook produced by any person or agency and such ability to produce a manuscript of a textbook should be in accordance with the clear objective laid down in the National Textbook and Learning Materials Policy, 2007---Punjab Textbook Board which was a regulator, should not therefore, for commercial purposes, participate in the publication process and such act of the Regulator/Punjab Textbook Board was in direct conflict with its primary function and would reduce the efficiency and objectivity of its regulatory function--- Scheme of law did not visualize the participation of the Punjab Textbook Board in open competition for selection of manuscripts of textbooks--- Ability of employees of the Punjab Textbook Board to put forward their own manuscripts for selection by the Punjab Curriculum Authority also undermined their role as regulators and if the employees of a regulator participate in a commercial venture, then the basic role of the regulator disappears---Petitioner, who was an employee of the Punjab Textbook Board had no right on its own as an employee of the Punjab Textbook Board, which was an agency of the Government of Punjab to participate in an open competition which the Punjab Textbook Board, was to regulate---National Textbook and Learning Materials Policy, 2007 was discussed and approved by Provincial Ministers to ensure the production of standard textbooks through fair competition in their respective Provinces and the role of the Punjab Textbook Board was not to undertake to produce textbooks itself, unless an expression of interest was advertised and no response was received pursuant to the first advertisement and on second advertisement, it was only after the second advertisement that the Textbook Board could produce and publish a textbook---No conflict existed between the National Textbook and Learning Materials Policy, 2007, Punjab Textbook Board Ordinance, 1962 and the Punjab Curriculum Authority Act, 2012---Constitutional petition was dismissed.

Writ Petition No.31842 of 2012 and I.C.A. No.50 of 2013 ref.

(b) Punjab Textbook Board Ordinance (XLI of 1962)---

----S. 3---Constitution of Pakistan, Art.199---Constitutional jurisdiction of High Court---Scope---Aggrieved person---Petitioner was an employee of the Punjab Textbook Board, and General Secretary of the Punjab Textbook Board Employees Welfare Society, and sought direction for, inter alia, allowing the Punjab Textbook Board to participate in the submission and selection of manuscripts by the Punjab Curriculum Authority---Maintainability of Constitutional petition---Foremost question was whether the petitioner could seek relief for the Punjab Textbook Board which was respondent in the Constitutional petition---Issue of whether the petitioner was an "aggrieved person" or not, could not be simply answered by looking at whether the petitioner was directly or indirectly injured, and instead the question that was to be determined was whether the petitioner had a right to plead a case and seek relief for the benefit of a person who himself was capable and competent to approach the court to plead its own case---Punjab Textbook Board, in the present case, was established under the Punjab Textbook Board Ordinance, 1962 and S.3 of the said Ordinance provided that the Board shall be a body corporate with perpetual succession having a common seal and could sue and be sued in its own name---Constitutional petition by the petitioner/ employee of the Punjab Text Book Board was not maintainable.

(c) Punjab Textbook Board Ordinance (XLI of 1962)---

----Ss. 3 & 11---Punjab Curriculum Authority Act (XLIX of 2012), Preamble & S.6---National Textbook and Learning Materials and Plan of Action (2007 Policy)---Punjab Textbook Board Ordinance, 1962, the Punjab Curriculum Authority Act, 2012 and the National Textbook and Learning Materials Policy, 2007; were all in consonance with each other and no conflict existed between them.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- The petitioner has impugned advertisement dated 13-5-2013 for being illegal and unconstitutional. The petitioner prays that advertisement dated 10-4-2013 may be restored and the respondent No.3 may be allowed to participate in the open competition for publication of textbooks in accordance with law.

2. The grievance of the petitioner is that the respondent No.3 has always participated in the bidding process for approval of manuscript of textbooks before the Punjab Curriculum Authority. Initially an advertisement was published on 10-4-2013 by virtue of which the respondent No.3 was allowed to submit its textbook manuscript with reference to the subject provided in the advertisement. Subsequently the advertisement was set aside by an order of the respondent No.5 and a fresh advertisement was issued on 13-5-2013 whereby the respondent No.3 could not participate in the open competition for selection of textbook manuscript by the Punjab Curriculum Authority.

3. On 28-6-2013 an interim order was issued whereby advertisement dated 13-5-2013 was suspended and the petitioner was allowed to participate in the open competition and submit its application to develop textbooks manuscript in various subjects for different grades. On 8-7-2013 C.M. No.4 of 2013 was moved by the respondent No.5 for recalling of order dated 28-6-2013 and for early hearing of the instant Writ Petition. The case was fixed for 10-7-2013, being today.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner opened his arguments by relying upon the order of this court dated 3-6-2013. He argued that the respondent No.5 was to file its report and parawise comments. However, the same has not been done. Learned counsel also argued that C.M. No.4 of 2013 does not pray for recalling of order dated 28-6-20l3. It simply prays that the case be fixed at the earliest and be heard. Finally learned counsel raised the objection that respondent No.5 Mr. Najam Aziz Sethi is the Central Chairman, Pakistan Publishers and Booksellers Association. However, the power of attorney submitted by the learned counsel Farooq Amjad Meer does not bear the signature of Mr. Najam Aziz Sethi. It has been signed by a Vice-Chairman and the Honourary Secretary-General for the Pakistan Publishers and Booksellers Association. The learned counsel argued that the Association has not been arrayed as a party. It is the Chairman of the Association Mr. Najam Aziz Sethi who has been arrayed as a party.

5. Learned counsel for the respondent No.5 argued that the case should be heard on its merits and decided as the interim order passed on 28-6-2013 is against the spirit of the relevant law. He further argued that presently Mr. Najam Aziz Sethi is not the Chairman of the Pakistan Publishers and Booksellers Association; that he himself is the Acting Chairman and he is representing the Association as the Acting Chairman. He argued that the petitioner has not arrayed Mr. Najam Aziz Sethi in his personal capacity but has arrayed the Chairman of the Association who at that time happened to be Mr. Najam Aziz Sethi.

6. After hearing both the counsel on these issues it was decided that the case be heard on its merits as the learned counsel for the respondent No.5 argued that he does not need to file any written reply and comments as he has basic preliminary objections with respect to the maintainability of this petition on the basis of which the case can be decided.

7. That facts of this case as narrated by learned counsel for the petitioner are that the West Pakistan Textbook Board Ordinance, 1962 (1962 Ordinance) established the respondent No.3 in 1962. In 1971 the West Pakistan Textbook Board was substituted by the Punjab Textbook Board by Ordinance V of 1971. Since then the respondent No.3 has been participating and getting approved its manuscripts of various books which have been scrutinized by the competent authority. In 2007 a Policy was formulated by the Federal Government being the National Textbook and Learning Materials Policy and Plan of Action (2007 Policy) whereby a role has assigned to the respondent No.3. However that role was contrary to the 1962 Ordinance. The Punjab Curriculum Authority Act, 2012 (Act of 2012) was promulgated which set out the role of the respondent No.3 and defined the respondent No.3 as an Agency of the Government under section 2(a). Learned counsel argued that the respondent No.5 filed a representation before the Chief Minister on 12-6-2012 to oust the respondent No.3 from the open bidding process. This application was not decided by the then Chief Minister. In the meanwhile, the respondent No.5 became caretaker Chief Minister. The Vice-Chairman of the Pakistan Publishers and Booksellers Association, moved another application on 18-4-2013 again seeking ouster of the respondent No.3 from the open competition for selection of textbook manuscripts. This application was decided by the respondent No.5 in his capacity as caretaker Chief Minister. As a consequence an order was passed on 2-5-2013, whereby the impugned advertisement dated 13-5-2013 was published, which withdrew the earlier advertisement of 10-4-2013 and in its place invited only publishers to participate in the open competition for selection of textbook manuscripts by the Punjab Curriculum Authority. Learned counsel argued that the respondent No.5 has acted with mala fide intention, as a judge of his own cause. Originally he moved an application himself before the Chief Minister which was never decided and when he became caretaker Chief Minister, he had the same application moved before himself and decided upon it.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also argued that the respondent No.3 has all along participated in the open competition for selection of textbook manuscript by the Punjab Curriculum Authority by virtue of section 6(1)(b) read with section 26 of the Act of 2012. Under this Act, he argued that 'agency' "means any department or organization or directorate of the Government and includes a corporation or other autonomous or semi-autonomous body set up by the Government" and Agency can participate in the production of any manuscript of textbook to be approved by the Punjab Curriculum Authority. Learned counsel has placed reliance on Writ Petition No.31842 of 2012 and its order dated 9-1-2013 as well as I.C.A. No.50 of 2013 and its order dated 23-1-2013 to advance this point. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued with respect to Article 18 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 arguing that the respondent No.3 has a right to participate in the open competition for selection of textbook manuscripts by the Punjab Curriculum Authority. Learned counsel for respondent No.3 supports the arguments of learned counsel for the petitioner. Learned counsel for respondent No.3 was asked by this court to explain why its case was presented to this court through the petitioner. The learned counsel explained that the petitioner is an office-bearer of a welfare association for the employees of Punjab Textbook Board; that the petitioner being employees of the Punjab Textbook Board put-forward their own manuscripts in the open competition bidding process for selection of textbook manuscripts. He argued that the respondent No.3 is an autonomous body which does not receive any financial assistance from the Government and meets its expenses from the fixed profit generated by the sale of textbooks and if ousted from the participation in the open competition the respondent No.3 likely to face financial difficulties. Consequently the employees of the respondent No.3 will face difficulties.

9. Learned counsel on behalf of respondent No.5 raised the objection of locus standi with respect to the petitioner. He argued that the petitioner is an office-bearer of the Punjab Textbook Board Employees Welfare Association who was appointed as the General Secretary by the Chairman Punjab Textbook Board through an order dated 27-4-2013. He places reliance on the office order appended with the petition as Annexure-H. He argued that the petitioner is an employee of the respondent No.3 and as such cannot plead the case of the respondent No.3. He referred to the prayer of the petitioner who seeks the participation of the respondent No.3 in the open competition for selection of manuscripts of textbooks. Learned counsel further argued that the mandate of the respondent No.3 in terms of the 2007 Policy is that it will be a Regulator to help/support the process of approval of textbooks for use in schools in their respective areas of jurisdiction. He further argued that the policy provided that the Textbook Boards will invite provincial/national publishsers to register their interest or intent and specify for which subjects and grades they intend to develop and submit manuscripts. Where no letter of intent is submitted by private publishers, Textbook Boards will re-advertise and if still no letter of intent is forthcoming then the Textbook Board can develop its manuscript for that subject. He argued that the Textbook Board is a Regulator who is to review the different manuscripts submitted and give its opinion on the same. It is not their mandate to participate in the open competition for selection of manuscripts and thus undertook a commercial venture of publishing its own manuscripts. With respect to the preliminary objection, learned counsel has argued that the petitioner has not filed any order of the caretaker Chief Minister whereby he has decided upon the representation dated 18-4-2013. He argued that the petitioner has relied upon order dated 7-5-2013 issued by the Deputy Secretary (Implementation) whereby he states that the Chief Minister has been pleased to desire that recent advertisement published by Punjab Curriculum Authority to invite manuscripts for textbooks and reading material may be re-advertised in accordance with Text Books and Reading Material Policy 2007 for Group-III books only. Learned counsel argued that the earlier representation filed on 12-6-2012 was decided by the then Chief Minister on 24-1-2013 wherein a policy decision was taken that only the private sector should develop manuscript and the respondent No.3 should act as monitoring and regulating agency. Learned counsel also raised an objection with respect to the maintainability of this petition in view of the section 22 of the Act of 2012 which provides the right of appeal to any person aggrieved by a direction or order of the Authority within 30 days.

10. I have heard learned counsel for the parties at length and reviewed the record available on the file.

11. The foremost question which needs to be decided is whether this petition can be filed by the petitioner who admittedly seeks relief for the benefit of the respondent No.3. Essentially the respondent No.3 has not moved the court against the advertisement dated 13-5-2013 with respect to its inability to participate in the open competition for the publication of selection of textbook manuscripts. Yet it has indirectly argued its case as a respondent in the instant petition through the petitioner who is an office-bearer of the Punjab Textbook Board Employees Welfare Association and an employee of the respondent No.3. Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the cases titled "Nisar Ahmad and 2 others v. Additional Secretary Food and Agriculture, Government of Pakistan and 3 others" (1997 SCMR 299), "Muhammad Ayub Khan v. Superintendent, Central Jail and others" (1997 SCMR 302) and "Ardeshir Cowasjee, Karachi and 4 others v. Messrs Multiline Associates, Karachi and 2 others" (PLD 1993 Karachi 237) to argue that the petitioner is an aggrieved person. With respect to the definition of an aggrieved person learned counsel argued that the petitioner is an aggrieved person if he is able to establish that he is directly or indirectly injured by the act of the respondents. I have reviewed the cases relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner. To my mind in the instant case the question whether the petitioner is an aggrieved person or not cannot be simply answered by looking at whether the petitioner is directly or indirectly injured. The question here is whether the petitioner has a right to plead a case and seek relief for the benefit of a person who himself is capable and competent to approach the court to plead its own case. The respondent No.3 is established under the 1962 Ordinance. Its section 3 provides that the Board shall be a body corporate with perpetual succession having a common seal and can sue and be sued in its own name. The reply filed by the respondent No.3 has also been reviewed by me and I find that throughout the reply the respondent No.3 has justified and explained that it should be allowed to participate in the open competition for selection of manuscripts of textbooks. Para-6 of the reply provides that the respondent No.3 has every right to prepare textbooks and compete with the private publishers and that it has started the process of preparation of textbooks on its own in anticipation of registration to avoid delay for the preparation of textbooks for the next academic year. The reply does not explain or justify the locus standi of the petitioner. The petitioner is an employee of the respondent No.3. Admittedly the employees themselves prepare manuscripts and participate in the open competition, meaning thereby that the participation by the respondent No.3 in the open competition is essentially by its employees, for the benefit of its employees, who prepare their own manuscripts for approval by the Punjab Curriculum Authority. This means that essentially between the petitioner and the respondent No.3 there is an effort to promote the interests of the employees of the respondent No.3. The employees of the respondent No.3 along with the respondent No.3, which is an autonomous body of its own participate in this commercial venture to make money. Conceptually this goes against the mandate of the respondent No.3. The respondent No.3 in terms of the preamble of its own Ordinance is a facilitator who is to make arrangements for the production and publication of textbooks, supplementary reading material and guide books for teachers. Under section 11 the powers and duties of the Board have been enumerated. It provides that the Board may take such measures and exercise such powers as it considers necessary or expedient for carrying out the purpose of this Ordinance. Subsection (3) provides that the Board may prepare claims pertaining to all or any of the following matters. The scheme involved implementation of educational policies of Government with respect to the production and publication of textbooks, supplementary reading material and teaching aids. It also provides arrangement for the publication of textbooks. Section 11 does not provide for the Punjab Textbook Board should participate in the publication of textbooks itself. The Act of 2012 provides under section 6 that the Authority shall approve standards of education and manuscript of a textbook produced by any person or agency before the textbook is prescribed for any class of an institution. Essentially case of the petitioner is based on this section. However, this section does not explain when the respondent No.3 can participate in the publication of textbooks for selection by the Authority. The same is done in the 2007 Policy which clearly provides in clause 2.2 that the Textbook Board can only participate in the publication of a manuscript if no letter of intent is submitted by the private publisher that too after re-advertisement meaning that after a first and second advertisement whereafter still no letter of intent is forthcoming. The 1962 Ordinance, Act of 2012 and the 2007 Policy are all in consonance with each other. The respondent No.3 essentially is a regulator and a facilitator who has to make schemes for publication of textbooks for all stages for implementation of educational policy. Section 6 (1)(b) provides that the Authority i.e. Punjab Curriculum Authority, can approve standards of education and manuscript of a textbook produced by any person or agency. This ability to produce a manuscript of textbook should be in accordance with the clear objective laid down in 2007 Policy. It does not mean that the regulator should, for commercial purposes, also participate in the publication process. This act of the regulator is in direct conflict with its primary function and will reduce the efficiency and objectivity of its regulatory function. To my mind the scheme of law does not visualize the participation of the respondent No.3 in the open competition. Furthermore the petitioner has no right on the basis of which it can pray that the respondent No.3 be allowed to participate in the open competition. To my mind this ability of the employees of the respondent No.3 to put forward their own manuscripts for selection by the Punjab Curriculum Authority also undermines the role of a regulator. If the employees of the regulator are to participate in the commercial venture then the basic role of the regulator disappears. The petitioner has no right on its own as employees of the respondent No.3 which is an agency of the Government of Punjab to participate in an open competition which the respondent No.3 is to regulate.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued and stressed a great deal on the question that no one can be a judge of its own cause, essentially on the ground that the respondent No.5 moved a representation before the then Chief Minister in 2012 which application was never decided and when he himself became caretaker Chief Minister, he made a decision on the same application. I have considered this argument and find that the argument is presumptive. There is nothing on the record to substantiate the claim that the representation of 12-6-2012 has not been decided. To the contrary the record shows that a decision was taken in January, 2013 by the Chief Minister which has not been placed on the file of this court. Similarly there is no order of the caretaker Chief Minister with respect to the representation filed on 18-4-2013. The report and parawise comments filed by the respondents Nos.1, 2 and 4 show that an Inter-Provincial Education Ministers Conference was held on 22-1-2013 in Islamabad. The 2007 Policy was discussed and approved by the Provincial Ministers to ensure the production of standard textbooks through a fair competition in their respective provinces. The role of the respondent No.3 as per the report and parawise comments filed by the respondents Nos.1, 2 and 4 is that the respondent No.3 will not undertake to produce textbooks themselves unless an expression of interest is advertised, no response is received pursuant to the first advertisement and on second advertisement, it is only after the second advertisement that the Textbook Board can produce and publish a textbook. Therefore, this argument has no merit as the record shows that the 2007 Policy endorsed by the Provinces is being followed. Furthermore the application was filed by the respondent No.5 as Central Chairman, Pakistan Publishers and Booksellers Association. It was not his personal cause, but the cause of the Publishers and Booksellers Association. As caretaker Chief Minister, he endorsed the decision taken in January, 2013 by the then Chief Minister and called for an advertisement as per the 2007 Policy. As I have already stated there is no conflict between the 2007 Policy, 1962 Ordinance and the Act of 2012. Hence no case of interference is made out.

13. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK. J.--- This common judgment will dispose of Writ Petitions Nos.22405 and 22406 of 2012. In Writ Petition No.22405 of 2012, the petitioner has challenged letter dated 7-9-2012 issued by the respondent No.1, notification of transfer dated 29-5-2012, memo. bearing No.3(3)/2012-E.3 dated 11-7-2012 and memo. bearing No.3(3)/2012-E-3 (Police) (Pt-II) dated 4-9-2012. In Writ Petition No.22406 of 2010, the petitioner has challenged letter dated 7-9-2012, notification of transfer dated 29-5-2009 and memo. bearing No.3(3)/2012-E-3 (Police)(Pt-II) dated 4-9-2012.

2. The case of the petitioner is that the petitioner in Writ Petition No.22405 of 2012 is a PSP Officer in BS-19 having the domicile of Punjab and having served 7 years 5 months and 20 days outside the Province of Punjab. The petitioner in 22406/2012 is a PSP Officer in BS-19 having the domicile of Punjab, who has served 6 years 23 days outside the Province of Punjab. The grievance of both the petitioners is that by virtue of the impugned letter, notification and memo, the respondent No.1 has acted in an arbitrary manner, without adhering to the policy which governs the transfer and posting of, amongst others, BS-19 officers to the Province of Balochistan. It is the case of the petitioners that the petitioners having served outside their province for more than five years, are not eligible for transfer to Balochistan in terms of the Rotation Policy of 22-7-2000 and the Amended Rotation Policy of 28-8-2012. Learned counsel argued that the respondent No.1 has set clear categories which forms the criteria for transfer of PSP officers to Balochistan vide the Amended Rotation Policy, dated 28-8-2012 and that for no plausible reason they have ignored the policy and have issued orders for the transfer of the petitioners to Balochistan.

3. The brief facts are that the respondent No.1 issued a Rotation Policy on 22-7-2000 (Rotation Policy). In terms of the Rotation Policy, PSP officers were liable to serve in at least two Provinces during their career, however in exigencies of the service, an officer may be posted to a third Province. The main feature of the Rotation Policy was that officers were to be transferred on the principle of "least rotated first transferred". Thereafter, on 28-8-2012, the Rotation Policy was amended with respect to postings to the province of the Balochistan vide Notification No.F.10/2/2006/E-5 (the Amended Policy). At this point, five categories were created which provided the criteria on the basis of which posting and transfer to the province of Balochistan was to be effectuated. In terms of the categories provided the petitioners fell in category No.4 being officers who have served outside their province of domicile and have not served in Balochistan. In terms of the Amended Policy, the first category is of officers who have the domicile of Balochistan and are serving outside Balochistan. The second category is of officers serving in the province of their domicile who have never been posted outside of their Province. The third category of the officers are those who remained posted in a province other than the province of their domicile. The case of the petitioners is that the five categories have been created to ensure transparency in selection and should be followed in the sequential order, giving priority to serials 1, 2 and 3 before enforcing serial No.4. They have also provided a list of PSP Officers BS-19 who are available in terms of the Amended Policy. They argue that the respondents are required to exhaust the first three categories before enforcing category 4. Furthermore the petitioners also argued that in terms of the list they fall at serial Nos.46 and 37 respectively. Therefore, by way of priority the respondents should transfer the other officers who are eligible for transfer and whose names are placed ahead of the petitioners. It is the case of the petitioners that respondent No.1 without any reason or explanation has totally disregarded its own Rotation Policy and Amended Policy. The Amended Policy cannot be disregarded as it structures the discretion exercised by the respondents when transferring officers to Balochistan. Learned counsel also argued that the Amended Policy was the result of the order in C.P.No.77/10 by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. By ignoring its own criteria and categories the respondent No.1 has acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner.

4. Learned Deputy Attorney General on behalf of respondent No.1 has raised an objection with respect to the maintainability of the petitions. He argued that the petitioners are civil servants and the matter of transfer is a part of the terms and conditions of their service, meaning thereby that they cannot raise this issue in constitutional jurisdiction as there is a clear bar under Article 212 of the Constitution. He further argued that the petitioners are relying on a policy which cannot be enforced in constitutional jurisdiction. He argued that it is the prerogative of the respondent No.1 to decide where to transfer the petitioners and the petitioners are bound by the terms of their contract to accept all postings. Furthermore the respondent No.1 can transfer the petitioners for administrative reasons. Even otherwise the respondent No.1 is not bound by the Amended Policy nor bound by the sequential order of categories provided in the Amended Policy. In support of his arguments he has placed reliance on the law laid down in cases titled "Mushtaq Ahmad v. Ch. Saeed Ahmad and another" (1996 SCMR 1649) and "Khalid Mahmood Wattoo v. Government of Punjab and others" (1998 SCMR 2280).

5. In response to the arguments raised on maintainability learned counsel for the petitioners argued that notwithstanding the fact that the petitioners are civil servants the issues raised in the instant petitions can only be decided in constitutional jurisdiction. In the first case, he argued that there is no transfer order meaning that there is no impugned or appealable order. The first order for transfer was issued by the respondent No.1 on 29-5-2012. Thereafter, upon the release of the petitioners by the Government of Punjab another order was issued on 7-9-2012. The petitioners filed a representation before the Chief Secretary who issued his order on 12-6-2012 wherein the transfer notification with respect to the petitioners was cancelled being contrary to the Rotation Policy. Then on 3rd August, 2012 by virtue of a notification issued in favour of the petitioners, the orders requiring the petitioners to report to the Government of Balochistan was withdrawn by the respondent No.2. Hence there is no appealable order for the petitioners to challenge. He argued that the petitioners have challenged the arbitrary manner in which a decision has been made, despite the fact that clear cut guidelines are available to respondent No. 1. On the question of enforcing and relying upon a policy, counsel for the petitioners sites case-law titled "Aman Ullah Khan and others v. The Federal Government of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Finance, Islamabad and others" (PLD 1990 SC 1092) wherein it was held that discretion must be exercised fairly and rationally.

He has placed reliance on a case titled "Tariq Aziz ud Din and others: in re:" (2010 SCMR 1301) which provides that discretion must be exercised in accordance with guidelines and not in an arbitrary and capricious manner. More importantly it should be exercised reasonably and subject to the guidelines laid down.

6. I have given due consideration to the arguments raised by respondent No.1 and the counsel for the petitioners with respect to maintainability of the instant writ petition. Although the contentions of the learned Deputy Attorney General are correct with respect to the bar of Article 212 under the Constitution, I find that the case of the petitioners falls outside the purview of the bar. Even though the petitioners are civil servants and have a remedy and a forum available to them where they can challenge a transfer order, the nature of the dispute in the instant petitions is not of a transfer simpliciter. In this case the Federation respondent No.1 made a comprehensive policy to ensure that the process of transfer is transparent and that no officer should resist the posting and transfer to Balochistan. The Amended Policy was made pursuant to and in compliance with the orders of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in C.P.No.77 of 2010 being the Missing Persons Case. The respondent No.2 is resisting the transfer and posting of the petitioners, reasoning that the two officers cannot be transferred under the Amended Policy, as their transfer is in violation of the categories set out under the Amended Policy. Furthermore, the respondent No.2 has written to the respondent No.1 that other officers can be identified and transferred in terms of the Amended Policy. Accordingly on 3-8-2012 the respondent No.2 withdrew its orders to transfer the petitioners to Balochistan. On 7-9-2012 the respondent No.1 required the respondent No.2 to relieve the petitioners for transfer to Balochistan. Hence, respondent No.1 and respondent No.2 are in disagreement over the posting of the petitioners. As a consequence of the disagreement between respondent No.1 and respondent No.2, and in the absence of a valid transfer order, the petitioners are not hit by the bar of Article 212 of the Constitution. Under the circumstances, I find these petitions to be maintainable.

7. Now to proceed with the merits of the case. The respondent No.1 has argued that the respondents are obligated in terms of the orders of the Hon'ble Supreme Court dated 23-5-2012 in C.P.No.77 of 2010 to ensure that PSP officers are duly posted to Balochistan to meet up with the requirements in the said Province. One of the concerns raised by respondent No.1, as recorded in the said orders is that officers resist being posted to Balochistan. Hence to comply with the orders of the Hon'ble Supreme Court the Rotation Policy was amended in August, 2012. Learned D.A.-G also argued that the respondent No.1 has been transferring officers regularly and as such it is not exercising a pick and choose policy. He states that in BS-19 four officers were notified for transfer to Balochistan in category I of the Amended Policy and stated that more than 15 officers have been posted to Balochistan subsequent to the orders of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in terms of the Amended Policy. He also argued that transfer is a part of the terms and conditions of the service of the petitioners and they should comply with the orders of the respondent No. 1.

8. I have heard the arguments raised by both the learned counsel and reviewed the record.

9. The policy for transfer and posting of PSP officers was notified on 22-7-2000 known as the Rotation Policy for DMG/PSP officers. The basic concept of the Rotation Policy was that officers least rotated should be transferred first. In August, 2012, the Policy was amended such that it set out five categories laying down the criteria for all current and future postings of PSP Officers to the Province of Balochistan, in terms of priority. The categories essentially were created to ensure that the respondent No.1 could effectively transfer PSP Officers to Balochistan in a transparent manner which would prevent resistance from the PSP Officers. Furthermore, admittedly it was set out in compliance with the order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the Missing Persons Case. The Amended Policy is explicit and defines clear categories which should be followed for the purposes of transfer to Balochistan. The Amended Policy structures and controls the discretion of the respondent No. 1. It sets out the criteria to be followed in order to reduce the resistance and to encourage compliance with the transfer orders. In this regard I am of the opinion that where a particular mode is laid down for doing an act and there is no impediment in adopting the procedure laid down, a deviation from that procedure amounts to being unreasonable and can be labelled as being arbitrary. Therefore when the respondent No.1 sets out clear guidelines for transfer and posting of PSP officers to Balochistan, then they must follow the same. If they want to deviate from the Amended Policy then they must provide cogent and justifiable reasons. In the case cited at PLD 1990 SC 1092 ibid, the Honorable Supreme Court specified the seven principles of transparency or good governance:----
"Wherever wide worded powers conferring discretion exist, there remains always the need to structure the discretion. The structuring of discretion only means regularizing it, organizing it, producing order in it so that decision will achieve the high quality of justice. The seven instruments that are most useful in the structuring of discretionary power are open plans, open policy statements, open rules, open findings, open reasons, open precedents and fair informal procedure. Somehow, the wide worded conferment of discretionary powers or reservation of discretion, without framing rules to regulate its exercise, has been taken to be an enhancement of power and it gives that impression in the first instance but where the authorities fail to rationalize it and regulate it by Rules, or policy statements or precedents, the Courts have to intervene more often than is necessary, apart from the exercise of such power appearing arbitrary and capricious at times."

10. During the course of the proceedings the respondent No.1 was asked several times to provide the list of names of PSP Officers (BS-19) who have been transferred to Balochistan in terms of the categories of the Amended Policy. However the respondent No.1 could only name officers belonging to category 1 of the Amended Policy. Admittedly no exercise was done to formulate a list in terms of category 2, 3 and 4 provided for in the Amended Policy. Also the respondent No.1 had no plausible response to the list provided by the petitioners, of the officers who are available in terms of the Amended Policy. They did not deny the list yet they could not explain why officers who are available in terms of the Amended Policy have not been transferred. Finally the respondent No.1 was also asked to justify the transfer of the petitioners in terms of any special requirements that the respondent No.1 may have with reference to their skill set or training or work experience. However again the respondent No.1 had no explanation whatsoever. To my mind, the Rotation Policy was amended to comply with the order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court. Once a decision was taken and the guidelines in the form of the Amended Policy were set out, any deviation or departure from the same would have to be explained and reasoned. In this case there is no explanation or justification for non-compliance with the Amended Policy. In this regard the respondent No.1 should be mindful of the Amended Policy it has formulated and should advance its aims and objectives. It should act in accordance with the Amended Policy as acting or deciding otherwise will be unfair and unreasonable. In a recent judgment in C.P. No.23 of 2012 and C.P. No.11 of 2012, Crl. Original Petitions Nos.23, 24 and 27 of 2012 in C.P. No.11 of 2012 and H.R.C. No.14427-P of 2012 (Application of Rai Manzoor Nasir) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that:--- "We are fully conscious that the aforesaid matters relate to decision making and administration of the machinery of the State. As such the responsibility of deciding as to suitability of an appointment, posting or transfer falls primarily on the exclusive branch of the State which comprises of both the political executive and civil servants. Courts ordinarily will not interfere in the functioning of the executive as long as it adheres to the law and established norms and acts in furtherance of its fiduciary responsibility. However, while hearing this petition we have recognized the need for ensuring that decision making in relation to tenure, appointments, promotions and transfers remains rule based and is not susceptible to arbitrariness or absolute and unfettered discretion"

11. In view of the aforesaid, the petitions are allowed and the letters dated 7-9-2012, notifications of transfer dated 29-5-2009, memo. No.3(3)/2012-63 dated 11-7-2012 and dated 4-9-2012 with respect to the transfer and posting of the petitioners are set aside. There is no order as to cost.

ORDER

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition the petitioner seeks a decision on an application pending before the DCO requesting him to pay the outstanding amount for supply of diesel generators by the petitioner. Learned counsel pressed for notice to be issued and a report be called for as to why the respondent has not made the payment due to the petitioner.

2. At the very outset, learned Law Officer raised an objection with respect to the maintainability of the instant petition. The learned Law Officer's objection was that the petitioner has not been duly authorized to file this petition; that the petitioner has not annexed any document to show that it is a partnership concern; that no registered partnership deed has been filed and the petition suffers from non-joinder of necessary parties.

3. The petitioner has placed documents before this Court through C.M.No.3 of 12 consisting of an authority letter from two other partners and a Deed of Association of Persons. It was explained that the petitioner is a partnership firm engaged in the business of supply of power electronics and information technology. Again learned Law Officer raised an objection that the petitioner could not file any document to show that he is duly authorized as it was a fundamental preliminarily issue and could not be rectified through a subsequent application. The Law Officer argued that if no authorization was appended with the petition it was fatal to the Petition. Reliance is placed upon the cases titled "Muhammad Ayub and Brothers through Partner v. Province of Sindh through Secretary Irrigaiton and Power Department, Karachi and others" (2009 CLD 194) "Messrs Nishat Chunnian Ltd. v. Province of Punjab through Secretary, Local Government and 2 others" (2012 CLD 1288).

4. The question before this Court is whether the petitioner stating to be a partnership firm can file a constitutional petition without a registered Deed of Association and a resolution or authority letter permitting the partner to this effect. The second question is whether the partners can rectify the filing of a constitutional petition subsequently by ratifying the act of the parties.

5. On the question that the petitioner has not filed the registered Deed of Association, section 69 of the Partnership Act, 1932 is relevant which is reproduced as under:--- Section 69 "Effect of non-registration.--- (1) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract or conferred by this Act shall be instituted in any Court by or on behalf of any person suing as a partner in a firm against the firm or any person alleged to be or to have been a partner in the firm unless the firm is registered and the person suing is or has been shown in the Register of Firms as a partner in the firm.
(2) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract shall be instituted in any Court by or on behalf of a firm against any third party unless the firm is registered and the person suing are or have been shown in the Register of Firms as partners in the firm.
(3) The provisions of subsections (1) and (2) shall apply also to a claim of set-off or other proceeding to enforce a right arising from a contract, but shall not affect---
(a) the enforcement of any right to sue for the dissolution of a firm or for accounts of a dissolved firm, or any right or power to realize the property of a dissolved firm, or
(b) the powers of an official assignee, receiver of Court under the Insolvency (Karachi Division x x x x) Act, 1909 or the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920 to realize the property of an insolvent partner.
(4) This section shall not apply---

(a) to firms or to partners in firms which have no place of business in Pakistan, or whose places of business in Pakistan are situated in areas to which, by notification under (section 56) this Chapter does not apply,
(b) to any suit or claim of set-off not exceeding one hundred rupees in value which is not of a kind specified in the Second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, or to any proceeding in execution or other proceeding incidental to or arising from any such suit or claim."
In terms of section 69, no suit can be instituted in any Court on behalf of a partner unless the firm is registered and the persons suing is shown as a partner in the Register of Firms. Similarly, no suit to enforce a contractual right can be instituted by an unregistered firm. A review of section 69 shows that there is nothing in the stated section which is applicable to constitutional petitions. It has been held in a case titled "Muslim Commercial Bank Limited Karachi v. Haji Shaikh Yaqinuddin and 2 others" (PLD 1992 Karachi 314) that the bar under section 69(3) of the Partnership Act 1932 does not extend to constitutional jurisdiction or even to rent cases because section 69 is applicable specifically to suits, claim of set-off or other proceedings to enforce a right under a contract. A bare reading of section 69 (1) and (2) reveals that for filing a suit or for the enforcement of a right under the Partnership Act, 1932, the firm must be registered. Subsection (3) provides that it shall apply to a claim of set-off or other proceedings to enforce a right arising from a contract. The use of the words "other proceedings" when interpreted, applying the rule of ejusdem generis would mean that other proceedings will not include constitutional jurisdiction as this jurisdiction, created by the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 cannot be equated with suits or claim of set-off. Therefore, I am of the opinion that section 69 of the Partnership Act, 1932 will not apply to the instant petition.

6. Having said that, with respect to the instant petition the name of the petitioner as given in the file of the petitioner does not disclose that it is a partnership firm nor is there any document appended with the petition to show that it is a partnership firm and Mr. Sajjad Muhammad Khan is a partner, duly authorized by the firm to file the instant petition. Learned Law Officer argued that in the case of a company or registered society, the Memorandum and Articles of Association are filed along with the petition and due authorization has to be filed. In the same way with respect to a partnership firm if a partner does not append the Deed of Association and his authorization the petition would not be maintainable.

7. Conversely, learned counsel for the petitioner argued that under the Partnership Act, 1932, the partners of a firm do not require to file an authorization in the same way as a registered society or limited liability company. He argued that a firm is distinct from a society and a company as the rights and liabilities of a partner are enforceable against him individually. In the case of a society or a company the person filing the petition must show that he has been duly authorized by the members or the Board of Directors as they are not enforcing a personal right. They are acting on behalf of the society or the company which is a legal entity and from whom they have to be authorized. In such cases it is necessary that the management who is acting on behalf of the members or share-holders to duly authorize a person to file a constitutional petition. In the case of a firm since it is an individual right that a partner is seeking to enforce he does not require authorization to file the constitutional petition. Learned counsel relied upon sections 19 and 22 of the Partnership Act, 1932 to argue that the same permit the individual partner to file a petition on behalf of a firm. He argued that the partners have implied authority under section 19(2) of the Partnership Act, 1932, therefore, a partner can invoke constitutional jurisdiction on behalf of the firm without placing any authorization on the file and without appending the Deed of Association. In this case, he argued that Sajjad Muhammad Khan was the Managing Partner of the firm who has been given authority for filing the instant petition. He relied upon the documents subsequently filed.

8. After hearing both the counsel and reviewing the law, it is clear that there is a distinction between a company which files a constitutional petition through its Director and a partner who files a petition on behalf of the firm. Under section 196 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984, the share-holders of the company act through the Board of Directors. The Board members are not the owners of the company and therefore, they cannot initiate proceedings on behalf of the company in their individual capacity unless they are expressly authorized by a Board Resolution. The same principle would apply to a society registered under the Co-operative Societies Act, 1925. Under section 23 of the said Act a registered society is a body corporate with perpetual succession with the power to file or defend itself in a suit. A member of the society is not an agent of the society nor does he own the society, hence, he would have to be authorized by the society in accordance with its Memorandum of Association before instituting any proceedings in any Court. A firm on the other hand is different. The partners are the owners of the firm and the rights and liability of the firm are the rights and liability of the partners. Each partner is an agent of the firm under section 18 of the Partnership Act, 1932. Under section 19 of the said Act, each partner has the implied authority to carry on business in the usual way and bind the firm. Section 19(2) provides for the exclusions to the implied authority. Under these sections implied authority does not empower a partner to submit a dispute relating to the business of the firm for arbitration, or relinquish any claim by the firm, admit any liability in a suit by or against the firm or withdraw the suit proceedings filed on behalf of the firm. These subject-matters have been specifically excluded from the implied authority of a partner. Filing of a constitutional petition has not been mentioned in the exclusion clauses. These clauses relate specifically to contractual disputes of the firm. In the instant petition, the petitioner seeks to enforce a right against the respondent to make certain payments which are due to it. In this regard, the petitioner seeks a direction to the respondents to decide upon its application pending before the respondents. Therefore, since a partner has the implied authority to act and carry on business in the usual way and can bind his firm, Mr. Sajjad Ahmad Khan can file this constitutional petition on behalf of the other partners without written authorization from the other partners.

9. The next question that arises is whether his act can be subsequently ratified by the other partners. It has been held in the cases titled "Rala Singh and others v. Babu Bhagwan Singh & Sons" (AIR 1925 Rangoon 30) and "Muhammad Azam Muhammad Fazil & Co., Karachi v. Messers N.A. Industries, Karachi" (PLD 1977 Karachi 21) that submission to arbitration by one partner can be ratified by a co-partner so as to be binding on the firm. It was held that such authorization need not be formal or in writing. By reading sections 18 and 19 of the Partnership Act, 1932 together I find that the Partnership Act declares every partner to be an agent of the firm for the purpose of business of the firm and every act of the partner which is done to carry on business, in the usual way, binds the firm. The partnership business belongs to each and every partner jointly and severally. Hence, there is no distinction between the partner and the firm. In such a situation there is no requirement under the law that one partner be duly authorized by the other partner in writing to file a constitutional petition. This is because one partner can seek to enforce a right on behalf of all the partners, through a constitutional petition. In such cases, authority can be implied or inferred from the conduct of the partners. In the instant case the petitioner has placed on file the Deed of Association of Persons as well as a copy of an earlier petition filed by the partnership to show that the same partners previously had also instituted a writ petition through same partner. Therefore, the said partner was authorized by the other partners to institute the instant petition.

10. The final objection raised was with respect to the subsequent filing of documents by the partner by the firm and non-joinder of parties. The subsequent filing of documents arose on account of the fact that the title of the petitioner does not disclose that it is a partnership firm hence, this Court at the very outset asked the petitioner to explain its legal status as the same was not clear from the contents of the petition. Learned Law Officer objected on the ground that in terms of the given title of the petitioner it appears that the petitioner is a proprietor. Furthermore, no document has been appended to show that the petitioner is a partnership. Learned Law Officer then objected that consequence of subsequent filing would create serious disability to raise objections, if they are allowed to be rectified by placing documents before the Court.

11. To my mind, in the instant case, this amounts to a technical objection. No doubt the petitioner is not described as a partnership firm in the petition and it is only upon being questioned that it became apparent that this petition has been filed by a partner of a partnership firm. However, since the main objection with respect to the authorization of the partner filing the petition and the documentation required for the purpose of filing the petition has been decided in favour of the petitioner, therefore, subsequent filing of the documents will not have a critical effect on the maintainability of the writ petition. In any event the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has held time and again that if technicalities can be avoided. Reliance is placed to cases of Brig. Muhammad Bashir v. Abdul Karim (PLD 2004 SC 271), Sajawal Khan v. Wali Muhammad (2002 SCMR 134) and Messrs Al-Raham

Travels and Tours Pvt. Ltd. v. Ministry of Religious Affairs, Hajj, Zakat and Ushr through Secretary and others (2011 SCMR 1621).

12. The subsequent filing of Deed of Association and ex-post facto rectifications by the partner is accepted. As such it has cured the technical defects in filing of the instant petition.

13. Now to come up for arguments on 16-5-2013.

ORDER

Through this petition the petitioner has impugned order dated 14-2-2013, passed by the learned Single Judge in Chamber. The impugned order has been passed under section 10 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance. 2001 (FIO) and is a leave granting order.

2. The facts of the case are that the petitioner filed a suit under section 9 of the FIO for the recovery of Rs.71457523/- from the respondents. The respondents Nos. 1 to 4 filed an application for grant of leave to appear under section 10 of the FIO. The petitioner then filed its replication. Learned Single Judge in Chamber while exercising jurisdiction under the FIO granted unconditional leave to the respondents Nos.1 to 4 through his order dated 14-2-2013.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the Impugned Order has been passed by the learned Judge in Chamber in complete disregard of an unreported order issued on 6-2-2013 by a Division Bench of this Court. He also argued that there was no lawful justification to grant leave to the respondents on account of non availability of the statement of the C.D. account. Learned counsel for the petitioner was asked at the very outset how this petition was maintainable given that section 22 of the FIO specifically bars the filing of an appeal, review or revision against an order which grants leave or rejects leave. Learned counsel argued that section 22(6) of the FIO expressly bars filing of an appeal, review or revision against the order accepting or rejecting an application for leave to defend. In such a situation a writ petition would be maintainable if the order is illegal or without jurisdiction as no other remedy was available to the petitioner. Learned counsel has placed reliance on Sheikh Abdul Sattar Lasi and another v. Judge Banking Court (2007 CLD 69), Messrs United Bank Ltd through Authorised Attorneys v. Banking Court No.II and 2 others (2012 CLD 1556), United Bank Ltd v. Presiding Officer, Banking Court No.2, Karachi and 6 others 2011 CLD 931 and Agricultural Development Bank of Pakistan and other v. Yar Muhammad and others 2004 CLD 1084.

4. Arguments heard. Record perused.

5. The order impugned before us is an order which grants unconditional leave to the respondents. Section 22(i) of the FIO provides as follows:-
"22. Appeal----(1) Subject to subssection (2), any person aggrieved by any judgment, decree, sentence, or final order, passed by a Banking Court may, within thirty days of such judgment, decree, sentence or final order prefer an appeal to the High Court".
Section 22(6) provides as follows:--
"(6) No appeal, review or revision shall lie against an order accepting or rejecting an application for leave to defend, or any interlocutory order of the Banking Court which does not dispose of the entire case before the Banking Court other than an order passed under subsection (11) of section 15 or subsection (7) of section 19".
A bare reading of section 22(1) and (6) shows that no appeal, review of revision lies against an order which accepts or rejects an application for leave to defend. Therefore, the FIO has explicitly barred the remedy of appeal, review or revision against such an order. The question that arises is whether in such a situation a constitutional petition is maintainable by a person aggrieved by an order granting or rejecting leave. Section 10 of the FIO provides for the right to file an application for leave to defend. In terms of section 10(3) an application for leave to defend is in the form of a written statement and contain a summary of the substantial questions of law and fact for which evidence needs to be recorded. In the event that leave is granted under section 10(10) of the FIO the Court shall fix a date for recording of evidence. In the event that leave is not granted section 10(11) of the FIO provides that a decree should be passed in favour of the plaintiff against the defendant. Therefore, the FIO contemplates expeditious decisions on matters relating to Financial Institution. The intent can be seen in section 13 of the FIO which provides that in a suit where leave is granted the case should be disposed of within 90 days. Hence, section 22 prevents appeal review or revision of an order granting or rejecting leave, so that cases can be decided as soon as possible once the stage of considering the PLA is over. In such a situation filing of a constitutional petition against the order granting or rejecting leave would defeat the objective of the FIO, especially section 22. It has been held in case titled Messrs Sajid Brothers and Co. through Proprietor and 2 others v. Manager, Allied Bank Limited and 8 others (2012 CLD 1858) that:-- "In the present case, the Banking Court has decided the application for leave to defend the suit of respondents Nos.5 and 6 in doing so has struck off the names of these respondents from the list of defendants. Against such order the appeal is expressly barred by law and thus there is no warrant for entertaining a Constitutional Petition as it will not only amount to circumvention the law but will also frustrate the same. Yet again, the impugned order is passed by a Judge of this Court which is not a person in terms of Article 199(5) of the Constitution, for this reason also Constitutional Petition will not be maintained. The petition, being not maintainable, is therefore, dismissed".

Therefore, we hold that the general rule is that no constitutional petition would lie against an order granting or rejecting leave.

6. The learned counsel for the Petitioner has placed reliance on 2012 CLD 1556 (supra). In the said case a constitutional petition was filed against the order in which the leave was denied. The Hon'ble court held that after dismissal of the application for grant of leave to defend the law envisages that the suit should be decreed, forthwith ,therefore, at the stage when only a decree can be passed in a suit an order for consolidation of the suit with any other suit in which evidence is to be recorded defeats the object of section 10(11) of the FIO. The order of consolidation shall also have the effect of nullifying the order whereby the application for leave to defend the suit was dismissed. Since the impugned order passed by the Banking Court has violated section 10(11) of the FIO, the impugned order was found not sustainable in law and liable to be set aside. The Hon'ble Court held that a constitutional petition is maintainable on the ground that the Banking Court failed to exercise the jurisdiction which was vested to it under section 10(11) of the FIO. Learned counsel has also relied upon 2011 CLD 1571 (supra). In the said case leave was also not granted. The Hon'ble Court held that constitutional jurisdiction could be invoked against such an order to correct a wrong in a case where no other remedy was available. In 2007 CLD 69 (supra) it was held that in cases of grave violation in following the substantive provision of law an order rejecting or granting leave could be challenged in a constitutional petition.

7. We have reviewed the cases cited by the learned counsel for the petitioner and find that the common ground in all the cited cases is one of illegality or lack of jurisdiction. To our minds these cases represent the exception to the general rule being that no constitutional petition would lie against an order granting or rejecting leave. We are of the opinion that a constitutional petition would be maintainable in exceptional circumstances, where the petitioner could show a blatant illegality in the order, such that the Banking Court has not followed the expressed mandate of law or that the Banking Court has exercised its powers outside the jurisdiction conferred. In such a situation in order to meet the ends of justice and to prevent a gross miscarriage of justice a constitutional petition would be maintainable.

8. In the instant case the learned Judge in Chamber found that the debt entries to the defendant's account did not disclose the cheque numbers and did not disclose the account which was credited. Further more that the statement of the current account from where the withdrawal was said to have taken was not available on the record. During the course of the proceedings the plaintiff sought permission to place on record the statement of account of the defendant No.1 through an application under Order VI, Rule 17, C.P.C.. The learned Judge in Chamber held that since the relevant documents were not available on the record and since the plaintiff wanted to file its statement of account a case of unconditional leave to defend was made out. We have heard the learned counsel for the petitioner at length and we are of the opinion that he was unable to point out any illegality with the impugned order. We note that the petitioner had moved an application under Order VI, Rule 17, C.P.C. for filing an amended plaint. Through the said application the petitioner wanted to place further documents with his plaint. We find that the filing of the application under Order VI, Rule 17, C.P.C. to amend the plaint and further document the plaint itself suggests that leave should be granted as the petitioner has failed to satisfy its burden under section 9 of the FIO.

9. The other argument stressed by the learned counsel was that the impugned order is in absolute disregard of an order of the Division Bench on the issue of CD account statement. We note that leave has been granted for several reasons in the impugned order. In any event each case has to be seen on its own merits and the grant of leave under section 10(8) is based upon the substantial questions raised by the defendants vis-a-vis the case and documents filed by the plaintiff with the plaint. Section 9 of the FIO places heavy burden on the Financial Institution to file along with its plaint a statement of account and all other relevant documents relating to the grant of finance. Thereafter section 10 provides that the defendant shall file an application for leave to defend which shall be in the form of a written statement and which shall contain a summary of the substantial question of law as well fact in respect of which evidence needs to be recorded. The application for leave to defend shall be accompanied by all documents which in the opinion of the defendant supports the substantial question of law and fact. The plaintiff is given an opportunity to file a reply to the application for leave to defend. Therefore, in terms of sections 9 and 10 of the FIO the plaintiff has to put across its best case and the defendant has to place his entire case before the Court. The Court then has to satisfy itself, in the first instance, as to whether any substantial question of law and fact is in issue between the parties. This first look principle gives the court an opportunity to form an opinion based on the documents filed before it, whether evidence needs to be recorded in order to settle the dispute between the parties. Therefore, an order granting leave merely gives the defendant an opportunity to lead evidence to defend its case. As such no right of the plaintiff is prejudiced. It simply means that plaintiff does not have an open and shut case on the basis of which a decree can be passed, and that the plaintiff will have to prove its claim through evidence.

10. In the case of the petitioner the impugned order finds that the entries relied upon did not provide sufficient data to show that the disbursement and utilization of the finance had been made by the respondent. There is no illegality with this order and it does not fall within the ambit of the exceptions.

11. For the foregoing reasons, this petition is dismissed in limine.

ORDER
[Ayesha A. Malik, J.] - The Petitioner is a private limited company, which has impugned the amended assessment order under Section 122(1) and (5) read with Section 124 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (Ordinance, 2001) dated 29-06-2012.

2. At the very outset, learned counsel for the Respondent has raised an objection with respect to the maintainability of this petition. He argued that adequate remedy is available to the Petitioner against the assessment order and that the statutory remedy must be availed under Section 127 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001. As such the Petitioner cannot place his grievance before this Court in constitutional jurisdiction.

3. When confronted with this point, learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that since this is a case of illegal selection of audit, hence the Petitioner has moved this Court in constitutional jurisdiction. He has placed relied on a case titled "Shahnawaz (Pvt.) Ltd. Through Director Finance v. Pakistan through the secretary Ministry Of Finance Government Of Pakistan, Islamabad" (2011) 104 Tax 164 (H.C. Kar.)=(2011 PTD 1558).

4. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and find that the statutory remedy is available to the Petitioner. The impugned order has been issued under Section 122(1) and (5) read with Section 124 of the Ordinance, 2001 against which a right of appeal lies under Section 127 of the Ordinance, 2001. It is also noted that the Petitioner participated in the audit proceedings, which led to the amendment in the assessment. At that point, the Petitioner did not raise any objection with respect to the selection for audit. Hence no case of illegality is made out against the impugned order.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the petitioner seeks a direction to the respondents for the grant of admission in the M.B.B.S. programme in D.G. Khan., Medical College.

2. The brief facts of the case are that the petitioner applied for admission to a medical college in Punjab. As per the requirement, she filled up the form listing her preferences for admission in the medical colleges. She mentioned the names of 15 colleges and failed to mention the name of the 16th college being D.G. Khan Medical College. At the time, when the merit list was announced, the petitioner was not eligible for admission in the 15 colleges but in terms of her merit, she became eligible for admission in D.G. Khan Medical College.

3. The grievance of the petitioner is that she had the required merit for admission in D.G Khan Medical College. However, she was refused admission on the ground that she did not mention the said college as one of her preference in the form submitted for this purpose.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the petitioner has a right to education and that she meets the merit requirements of D.G. Khan Medical College. Therefore, the college has wrongly denied her admission. He argued that the petitioner mentioned 15 colleges out of a total 16 colleges on the preference form and that D.G. Khan Medical College was the only one college that had not been mentioned in the preference form by the petitioner. He argued that it was an inadvertent mistake by the petitioner and given that it is the 16th medical college, it should be deemed as being her sixteenth choice. Hence, the learned counsel for the petitioner argued that this Court may direct the respondents to grant admission to the petitioner.

5. Learned counsel for the respondent-University argued that the prospectus and the admission form clearly provide that each candidate must provide a list of Medical and Dental Colleges that he or she wishes to get admission. He argued that the choice is binding on the candidate and that it cannot be subsequently changed. The list of preference requires the candidates to state their preference and they are considered for admission only in terms of the list of preference provided by them. Since the petitioner did not opt for D.G. Khan Medical College, she was not considered by the stated college and for the purposes of admission it is irrelevant that she has the merit for the said college. He relied upon the provision of prospectus session 2012-2013 given at serial (e), which provides as follows:--
"An applicant, under no circum-stances, shall be considered for a college, he/she has not named in his/her order of preferences. The admitting Authority shall not assign a college by itself if the alternate choices are not indicated."
He has also produced copy of the admission form in Court and argued that the preference requirement is provided in red colour in the admission form to highlight its importance and to ensure that it is not overlooked by any candidate. He explained that if the petitioner is granted admission to a college, which she has not stated as a preference, it will have an adverse effect on the entire admission process as the admission is granted on the basis of the preferences stated by the candidates. Furthermore, he explained that the petitioner can apply again for the next session and may be considered for admission in the next session of the M.B.B.S classes. He has also placed reliance on an unreported order dated 16-2-2010 passed in Writ Petition No.1527 of 2010 and judgment dated 21-1-2013 passed in Writ Petition No.406 of 2013 wherein a similar issue was raised and the writ petitions were dismissed.

6. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

7. The issue before us is whether the petitioner can be considered for admission in D.G. Khan Medical College, even though she had not listed it as her preference in the list of preferences. The prospectus provides for college choice, which specifically stipulates that candidates are to provide the list of names of the colleges that they would like to consider for admission. This list of preference cannot be subsequently changed. The prospectus provides that the candidates will be considered for admission in accordance with list of preferences and the candidates will be assessed and ranked according to the merit for each college. The relevant portion of the prospectus in this regard provides that under no circumstances, shall a applicant be considered for admission to a College that he/she has not named in his/her order of preferences. We have also reviewed the admission form produced in Court by the learned counsel for the respondents. On the titled form List of Preferences was typed in red colour that the candidates will only be considered for admission in the colleges stated as its preference and that no candidate shall be considered for admission to a college, which they have not shown as their preferences. To our mind, the matter has been provided for in the prospectus as well as in the admission form. The petitioner was aware at the time of filling the form that she had to mention every college that she wanted to be considered for admission. The argument that even though she has not mentioned the name of D.G. Khan Medical College, it should be deemed as being the 16th preference because there were only sixteen choices in which admission could have been granted to the petitioner does not find favour with us given that the prospectus and the admission form are clear at stating and highlighting the importance of the preference form. There is no basis upon which this Court can direct the respondents to consider the petitioner for admission to a College which is not stated in her of preference. We are of the opinion that the petitioner took a conscious decision at the time of filling of the form, hence she is now bound by it and that no right is prejudiced as she can always apply in the next academic session of admissions.

8. In view of the above, this petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT
AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition, the petitioner prays that letter No.476-W/872 dated 23-4-1970 issued by the respondent No.2 returning the ownership of land in question to the petitioner be implemented.

2. The case of the petitioner is that his predecessor Sodagar Ali (now deceased) along with the pro forma respondents are owners of land measuring 1068 Kanals and 8 Marlas situated in Village Kul, Tehsil and District Sialkot. The land was acquired by the Government of Punjab vide Notification No.911 G.S dated 24-8-1916 for the benefit of the Railway Department. Compensation was received by the predecessor of the petitioner and the pro forma respondents at that time. The land was left vacant and the Railway Department did not utilize it. Hence the purpose of the acquisition was finished. The predecessor of the petitioner along with other owners remained in possession of the land and cultivated it. They received letter dated 23-4-1970 wherein it was stated that since the land was no longer required by the Railway Department, it should be relinquished in favour of the original owner at the original cost of the land. On the basis of the said letter, Writ Petition No.789 of 1990 was filed seeking a direction that the land be returned to the petitioner. The said writ petition was disposed of on 4-7-2000 with the observation that the petitioner can approach Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot and file an application before him or if any such application had already been filed, then it should be decided in accordance with law within a period of three months. After this order, application was moved by the petitioner on 27-2-2012 seeking return of the land at the original price in terms of the aforementioned letter of 1970. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the original representation dated 7-9-2000 pursuant to the order dated 4-7-2000 has still not been decided. A fresh application was moved on 27-2-2012 and that respondent No.1 should decide the same pertaining to the proprietary rights of the petitioner.

3. Learned Law Officer argued that pursuant to the order of this Court dated 4-7-2000 passed in Writ Petition No.789 of 1990, no representation was filed by the petitioner before the respondent No.1 and no representation was pending before him at the time. He argued that the land was acquired by respondent No.1 and the landowners were duly compensated which included the predecessor of the petitioner. Despite the same, the predecessor of the petitioner and now the petitioner are illegally in occupation of the land. As such, they enjoy no right or title on the said land yet they are in illegal possession of the same. He further agued that an application was moved by some people in relation to this land before the Member Board of Revenue. The Member Board of Revenue requested respondent No.1 for issuance of NOC with respect to the land and whether respondent No.1 wanted to surrender the same in favour of the applicants. Respondent No.1 vide his Letter No.469/W/150/84 dated 1-2-1987 declined and stated that it did not want to surrender the land. He argued that the petitioner was not entitled to the return of the land. He argued that his reliance on the letter dated 23-4-1970 is grossly hit by laches and in any event, the petitioner has exhausted his remedy before the Administrative Civil Judge, Sialkot by filing a suit on the same issue which was dismissed on 28-2-1974.

4. In rebuttal, learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance primarily on the letter of 23-4-1970 as well as on the representation filed pursuant to the order of this Court dated 4-7-2000. He argued that since the purpose for the acquisition no longer existed, then in terms of Rule 14(2) of the Punjab Land Acquisition Rules, 1983, the petitioner was entitled to the return of the land at the original price.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The main issue in this petition is whether the petitioner has a right with respect to the return of the land in dispute on the basis of the letter dated 23-4-1970. The said letter was issued by Vice-Chairman, Engineering of Pakistan Western Railway in favour of the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot. It provides that the Railway land measuring 133.541 acres in Village Kul Tehsil and District Sialkot may be relinquished in favour of the original owners. Admittedly since the issuance of the letter to date, the predecessor of the petitioner and now the petitioner continue to enjoy possession of the land in dispute despite having received the compensation for the acquisition. After forty-two years from the issuance of the letter of 1970, the petitioner seeks implementation of the said letter. Learned Law Officer on behalf of respondents Nos.1 and 2 submitted that respondent No.2 does not want to surrender the land. A review of the Writ Petition No.789 of 1990 filed by the petitioner and others reveals that at the time, the petitioner prayed for return of the land on the basis of the same letter. In the reply filed by the Deputy Commissioner Sialkot, it was provided that Pakistan Railway did not want to surrender the land which was communicated to the Collector, Sialkot vide letter dated 1-2-1987. Similarly, in the reply filed by the Railway Department, in the said writ petition, it was stated that the petitioner at the time having encroached upon the government land was ejected from the land on 25-11-1989 and no letter for relinquishment was issued to the petitioner. The letter was sent to one Mehr Din and not to the petitioner. The reply also provides that a suit was filed by the petitioner at the time, which was dismissed on 28-2-1974. Based on the admitted facts and the documents relied upon by the petitioner, the petitioner has no right to the property. The letter of 23-4-1970 does not create a right in favour of the petitioner as the petitioner has already agitated against the said letter through Writ Petition No.789 of 1990. The order of 4-7-2000 required the petitioner to file a representation before the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot. There is no such application available on the record to show that the same was filed or was pending. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that a representation was filed and he has referred to Annexure-C at Page 23. However, this application does not have any diary number on it or receiving to show that it was received by the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot. Furthermore, it was filed by one Barkat Ali and not by the petitioner.

7. Counsel for the petitioner has also relied upon Rule 14 of the Punjab Land Acquisition Rules, 1983. Rule 14(2) of the said Rules provides for the return of acquired land to the owners at the discretion of the government where the project has been abandoned. The respondent No.1 stated in Writ Petition No.789 of 1990 and again in the instant petition that it does not want to surrender the land. There is nothing on the record to show that the respondent No.1 does not require the land. The petitioner relies upon the letter of 23-4-1970 to assert his claim.

8. In order to avail the benefit of constitutional jurisdiction, the petitioner must show that he is aggrieved. "A person aggrieved must be a man, who has suffered a legal grievance, against whom a decision has been pronounced, which has wrongfully deprived him of something or wrongfully refused him something or wrongfully affected his title to something"[1]. Therefore, an aggrieved person is one who has suffered a legal wrong. As such the petitioner has not suffered any legal wrong, nor has he been denied something he is legally entitled to. Through Writ Petition No.789 of 1990, the petitioner agitated the same matter in issue. After the order of 4-7-2000, the petitioner should have moved an application before the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot. He should have pursued his claim in a diligent manner. Without having done any of the aforementioned, the petitioner cannot now claim that he is aggrieved. There is nothing to support the fact that he vigilantly pursued his claim in terms of order dated 4-7-2000. The length of the delay involved in his case and the conduct of the petitioner both support the fact that the petitioner is not an aggrieved person. Therefore, the petitioner has no right on the basis of letter dated 23-4-1970 nor is he an aggrieved person under Article 199 of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan.

9. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is dismissed with no order as to cost.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this Writ Petition, the petitioners have impugned the acquisition proceedings initiated for acquisition of petitioners' land measuring 3 kanals, 16 marlas under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (the Act) for the project of Metro Bus Rapid Transit System (MBRTS).

2. The case of the petitioners is that their land measuring 3 kanals 16 marlas bearing Khasra No.3723/3 should not be made part of the acquisition proceedings as it is not mentioned in the Notification under section 17(4) of the Act or the proclamation of newspapers dated 9-9-2012. It is contended in the Writ Petition that process of law as required under sections 4, 6 and 17 of the Act has not been followed. As such, the acquisition under challenge is violative of Article 24 of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973. It has further been agitated that no notice under sections 5 and 5-A of the Act have been issued to the petitioners while initiating proceedings under section 17(4) of the Act. No opportunity was provided to the landowners to file objections upon the acquisition. The petitioners have also agitated that their land is not required for primary or the secondary purposes as the same is located at about 300/400 meters away from the route of the Project and 5 Kms away from the terminal. The petitioners next argued that they are being treated discriminately as other land is available for the said purpose. He lastly argued that the consent of the petitioner was not sought, no price for the land has been determined nor any compensation for the land paid to the petitioners so far.

3. Conversely, learned Additional Advocate-General assisted by learned Legal Adviser for LDA vehemently opposed this writ petition mainly on the grounds that the land of the petitioners and others has been acquired for public purpose after invoking provision of section 17(4) of the Act. Therefore, no notice was required to be issued to the petitioners before taking possession of the land in question. They aver that no illegality has been committed by the respondents. So far as the compensation for the land acquired is concerned, the petitioners have a remedy available to them that is to object to the amount of compensation offered and further they may file application/reference for enhancement of the price of the land, if the given price not acceptable to them. They aver that the petitioners have challenged the whole acquisition proceedings even though they have remedies available upon pronouncement of award under section 11 of the Act for raising objections with regard to the price of the land. It was also argued that the petitioners are not entitled to their prayer nor can the acquisition process be stopped. Hence the instant petition is not maintainable and merits dismissal.

4. I have heard the petitioner No.1 in person, learned Law Officer and learned counsel for LDA and also perused the record made available before me.

5. The Government of the Punjab has acquired the land in question for MBRTS. Notification under section 4 of the Act for acquiring the land was issued on 17-7-2012 which was duly published in the official Gazette on 20-7-2012. A notification dated 8-8-2012 under section 17(4) of the Act while declaring urgency was published in the official Gazette on 9-8-2012 and, as per parawise comments of the respondents, also affixed at conspicuous places of the locality for intimation of the interested persons about the acquisition proceedings. A notice under section 9 of the Act was also served upon the interested persons on 10-8-2012 and was published in the print media on 18-8-2012 whereas notice under section 10 of the Act was also served for determination of the interested persons. Furthermore, under sections 23 and 24 of the Act, the prices of the land acquired for the Project in question have already been determined by the District Price Assessment Committee, Lahore in its meeting held on 27-7-2012 which were duly approved by the competent authority and two cheques amounting to Rs.41,00,00,000/- and Rs.4,55,22,524/- stand deposited in the government treasury for payment to the effectees of the MBRTS Project.

6. Undisputedly, the above said notifications have been issued by the Government of the Punjab aimed to acquire the land of the petitioners and others for the MBRTS Project. There is no denial that the said Project is for public purpose. Under the Act, the Government has the power to acquire the land for public purpose. Upon issuance of notice under section 17(4) of the Act, the provisions of sections 5 and 5-A of the Act are done away with, upon a direction of the Commissioner. The MBRTS is a project aimed at planned development of the city. The land was required urgently, hence, provisions of section 17(4) were involved, meaning that the requirements of sections 5 and 5-A were dispensed with. In this regard it has been held in case of Muhammad Ashiq and another v. Water and Manpower Development Authority, Lahore through Chairman, WAPDA House and another (PLD 2008 SC 335) that section 17(4) of the Act was based on the subjective satisfaction of the Competent Authority to apply the provisions or not according to the given circumstances which was not available for scrutiny by the Court. Therefore, the petitioners' grievance that notices should have been served after the notification under section 17(4) is without basis. As to the procedure followed by the respondent for acquisition it is in accordance with the Act. In this regard it has been held in Suo Motu case No.13 of 2007 reported as PLD 2009 SC 217 as under:-
"The Act provides a systematic scheme for taking measurements of the property, assessment of its value and payment of compensation to the person interested, besides remedy for adjudication of rights of aggrieved persons in accordance with well-known norms of administration of justice. In the case involving any dispute of measurement of property or determination of its market value, the Act provides a remedy through a reference by the Collector to the Civil Court for settlement of these disputes where parties have the opportunity to adduce evidence in support of their stance."

7. So far as the contention of the petitioners that the consent of the petitioners should have been sought before acquiring the land, suffice it to say that when the provisions of section 17(4) of the Act are invoked and the urgency is declared, no prior notice or intimation to the owners of the land is required.

8 The petitioners have prayed in the writ petition that the entire acquisition proceedings being illegal be set aside, this prayer be granted because the land has been acquired, admittedly, for public purpose while declaring urgency under section 17(4) of the Act and the petitioners have no right to ask for setting aside of the entire acquisition proceedings initiated in public interest. As such, this prayer cannot be allowed. Instead they are bound by law to surrender their lands for a purpose declared as a public requirement. The only remedy available to them is to raise objections on the compensation being awarded with them. They can also move an application/reference for enhancement of the compensation if they are not satisfied with the same as provided under section 18 of the Act.

9. The contention of the petitioners that they are being treated discriminately does not hold water as nothing has been brought on record to show discrimination. Mere allegation of discrimination without any solid proof in support thereof is nothing and does not merit any consideration.

10. The other contention of the petitioners is that their land bearing Khasra No.3723/3 should not be mentioned in any of the notifications issued for acquisition of land. This contention has been addressed by the petitioner No.1 himself saying that Khasra Numbers of the land, as per revenue authorities, have been changed whereby khasra number of his land 3723/3 stands changed as 3733/3 which is duly mentioned in the notifications.

11. The summary of the whole discussion is that the land of the petitioners has been acquired by the Government admittedly for public purpose following due procedure prescribed by law. No illegality whatsoever has been committed by the respondents. Furthermore, when the land is acquired for public purpose, the owner is expected to surrender his land in public interest though he may object to the amount of compensation being awarded to him under the award and may also file reference for enhancement of the compensation. Resultantly, this writ petition is devoid of any force, hence dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this I.C.A the appellant impugns order dated 13-8-2012 passed by this court in Writ Petition No.1703 of 2012.

2. The facts of the case that the appellant is a D.M.G Officer BPS-21 serving as Additional Secretary Industries with the Federal Government. Previously, he was serving as Secretary Transport for the Government of Punjab. At the time the respondent No.3 allotted him residential accommodation being House No.12.A Aikman Road, G.O.R-I, Lahore. The appellant was relieved from service by the respondent No.3 in June, 2008 whereafter he reported for duty to the Federal Government and has been working in the Federal Capital since then. The respondent No.3 issued an order dated 31-12-2011 wherein it cancelled the allotment in favour of the appellant and allotted it to respondent No.4. The appellant filed a writ petition against the said order of 31-12-2011 which was dismissed by the learned Judge in Chamber vide the impugned order. The matter in issue before us is with respect to the appellants' right to retain the residential accommodation since June, 2008, notwithstanding the fact that he is no longer an employee of the respondent No.3 and now is in the service of the Federal Government.

3. The case of the appellant is that the allotment policy was first introduced on August 15, 1997 regarding the allotment of Government owned residential accommodation. This policy was amended from time to time and by virtue of an amendment vide S&GAD 1997 dated 19-1-2009 (the Allotment Policy) rule 33(g) entitled the appellant to retain Government accommodation in the Province of Punjab for a period of five years or until he obtains official residence in the Federal Capital. Rule 33(g) reads a follows:---
"Any Officer of the rank/status of Secretary, Additional Secretary and Deputy Secretary to Provincial Government, whose cadre posts exist in S&GAD, Government of the Punjab on his/her transfer out of Punjab, shall be entitled to retain allotted official accommodation, other than a designated house for a period of five years (inclusive grace period) or till the provision of accommodation at his/her place of posting whichever is earlier, providing his/her family lives in the official residence during the period."

4. It is argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that R.33(g) of the Allotment Policy confers a vested right on the appellant as the Allotment Policy had been acted upon by the respondents. He argued that the right of five years cannot be taken away from the appellant pursuant to a subsequent amendment in the Allotment Policy. Reliance has been placed on the cases titled "Senior Member BOR and others v. Sardar Bakhsh Bhutta and another" (2012 SCMR 864) and "Adnan Afzal v. Capt. Sher Afzal" (PLD 1969 SC 187) wherein it was held that a substantive right stands accrued to a party, which avails the same prior to the amendment of such a right. In the present case, the Allotment Policy was amended on 6-6-2011 wherein the right to retain official accommodation was reduced from five years to two years. Learned counsel for the appellant argues that the two year requirement cannot be imposed upon the appellant and that he is entitled to retain the accommodation at Lahore for five years in terms of the Allotment Policy.

5. Learned A.A.-G. opposes the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the appellant. He argued that no vested right is created in favour of the appellant. He is no longer in the service of the respondent No.3 and cannot retain the official accommodation. Furthermore he argued that the appellant has retained official accommodation, since 2008 and even if the amended period of two years was not made applicable to the appellant, the respondent No.3 was still well within its rights to eject the appellant from the official residence. He argued that rule 33(g) of the Allotment Policy relied upon by the appellant required the appellant to exercise his option to request for official residence by the Federal Government. He argued that it was incumbent upon the appellant to secure official accommodation from the Federal Government in a timely manner. In this regard, he stated that the appellant applied for official accommodation from the Federal Government on 5th January, 2012 being three years after his transfer in 2008 and after three years of being in occupation of the official residence. The appellant, in terms of rule 33(g) cannot remain in possession of the official residence owned by the respondent No.3 and yet at the same time delay applying for residence from the Federal Government.

6. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

7. The entire controversy revolves around policy dated 19-1-2009 rule 33(g) The said paragraph provides that an officer of the rank of Additional Secretary shall be entitled to retain allotted official accommodation for a period of five years or till the provision of accommodation at his place of posting, whichever is earlier. The meaning we attribute to whichever is earlier is that the officer upon being transferred can retain a designated house upto a period of five years provided that he applies for residential accommodation at the new place of posting. There is a requirement built into rule 33(g) wherein the officer must apply for official accommodation at the new place of his posting such that he cannot retain his previous accommodation for more than five years. Therefore, he should apply at the earliest and should get accommodation within the five year period. We do not agree with the understanding advance by the learned counsel for the appellant that on account of 33(g) the appellant can retain official accommodation up to five years and then apply for residential accommodation from the Federal Government. Admittedly, the accommodation belongs to the respondent No.3. Admittedly it was allotted when the appellant was in the service of respondent No.3. The said allotment amounts to an entitlement while in service and not a vested right of the appellant. Upon his posting to the Federal Government, he lost the entitlement to retain official accommodation owned by the respondent No.3 and by virtue of the Allotment Policy and rule 33(g) a concession is given to him to retain the accommodation until he obtains new accommodation, for a period no more than five years. We have reviewed the Allotment Policy and note that rule 15 of the Allotment Policy also clearly provides that no government servant has any vested right or claim to the allotment of government owned residential accommodation. The appellant was put to notice at the time that any entitlement in his favour to retain official residence will not create a vested right in his favour. In this regard, we find that there is no illegality with the findings of learned Single Judge in Chamber on this issue.

8. For the reasons discussed above this ICA is dismissed with no orders as to cost.

JUDGMENT

Mrs. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This single judgment, decides upon the issues raised in Writ Petitions Nos.29138, 30678 and 30782 of 2013 as common question of law and facts are involved in these petitions.

2. The petitioners have impugned notices issued under section 11-A of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (Act of 1990) and the process adopted thereunder.

3. The petitioner in Writ Petition No.29138 of 2013 is the Lahore Electric Supply Company Limited (LESCO). The case of the petitioner is that the petitioner has been filing its monthly sales tax returns as required under section 26 of the Act of 1990. The returns are being filed electronically through the E-portal of respondent No.1. The respondent No.3 issued three separate notices dated 28-10-2013 in which it has alleged that the petitioner has short paid the sales tax with respect to steel melters and re-rollers and hence the short paid amount has been made recoverable under section 11-A of the Act of 1990.

4. The petitioner in Writ Petition No.30678 of 2013 is Gujranwala Electric Power Company Limited (GEPCO), which has impugned notices issued under section 11-A of the Act of 1990 wherein it has alleged that the petitioner has short paid the sales tax with respect to the steel melters and re-rollers and the short paid amount has been made recoverable under section 11-A of the Act of 1990.

5. The petitioner in Writ Petition No.30782 of 2013 is also GEPCO, which has impugned letter dated 28-11-2013 wherein pursuant to the notice under section 11-A of the Act of 1990 (impugned in Writ Petition No.30678 of 2013) a notice under section 48(1)(b) has been issued under the Act of 1990 for recovery of the short paid amount directly from the bank accounts of GEPCO. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the basic issue in this writ petition also relates to the exercise of power under section 11-A of the Act of 1990, which has been impugned in the connected Writ Petition No.30678 of 2013, hence the matter in issue is the same as the aforementioned petition.

6. The common grievance of the petitioners is that the respondents have initiated action under section 11-A of the Act of 1990, which section is not applicable and cannot be invoked for the purposes of recovery of the alleged short paid amount.

Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that the respondents have relied upon extraneous documents and information on the basis of which it has claimed that the petitioners have short paid their sales tax in terms of the amount indicated in their returns. Learned counsel argued that the sales tax returns for their respective period have been placed on the E-portal of the respondent. He argued that it is an automated, electronic process wherein the amount of sales tax due has to be paid and if not paid by the petitioners, the returns will not be accepted by the system. Hence the system calculates the tax due and unless the liability is discharged the returns are not accepted. He argued that there is no question of any short payment as the returns were duly accepted by the E-portal of the respondents. Learned counsel argued that the figures taken by the respondents represent the billed amount and not the collected amount or the paid amount by the steel melters and re-rollers. Hence the amount claimed as short paid is disputed by the petitioners. Learned counsel argued that the petitioners have not short paid the sales tax and in fact have paid the due tax. Furthermore, in the event that the respondents dispute the amount of tax due from the Petitioners then the respondents are required to follow due process, determine the liability and thereafter, raise a claim for the amount found to be due against the petitioners. Learned counsel argued that the respondents are using section 11-A of the Act of 1990 as a short cut to recover amounts, which are disputed by the petitioners and are not due to the respondents. Learned counsel further argued that the respondents for the purposes of section 11-A of the Act of 1990 cannot rely upon outside information or documents. They are required to determine short paid amount from the returns filed by the petitioners. Learned counsel argued that in terms of the impugned notices issued to the petitioners, the respondents have collected information from the electricity bills of the steel melters and re-rollers, on the basis of which they have determined that the petitioners have short paid the sales tax due to the respondents. In this regard, learned counsel has relied upon the case titled 'Micro Corporation through Managing Partner v. Deputy Collector, Customs, Sialkot' (2006 PTD 378) to urge the point that first a determination of the liability had to be made and only then any penal provision or recovery can be made. He has also placed reliance upon the case titled 'Messrs G.M.H. Traders and Manufacturers through Proprietor/Chief Executive v. Deputy Director/Investigating Officer, Directorate of Intelligence/Investigation, Lahore' (2009 PTD 1894) to urge the point that a demand cannot be raised without finalizing adjudication proceedings. Learned counsel argued that if the respondents dispute the amount of tax paid by the petitioners then proceedings under section 11 of the Act of 1990 may be initiated wherein an order for assessment of tax actually payable by the petitioners has to be made before any amount can be recovered from the petitioners. With respect to Writ Petition No.30782 of 2013 learned counsel argued that invoking section 48 of the Act of 1990 is also misconceived as the tax liability has yet to be determined and the respondents have relied upon extraneous documents to demand recovery under section 11-A of the Act of 1990, hence the impugned notice issued under section 48(1)(b) of the Act of 1990 is also liable to be set aside.

7. Report and para wise comments have been filed by the respondents. Learned counsel for the respondents argued that the petitioners have approached this Court with unclean hands as they are avoiding payment of the required tax. Learned counsel argued that the exercise of discretion under Article 199 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 should not be in aid of injustice and he who seeks equity must come to the Court with clean hands. In this regard, learned counsel have relied upon the cases titled 'Province of the Punjab through Secretary, Health Department v. Dr. S. Muhammad Zafar Bukhari' (PLD 1997 SC 351), 'Atta Muhammad and 16 others v. Modern Textile Mills (Pvt.) Ltd., and 2 others' (2004 PLC 137) (Karachi High Court) and 'Tufail Muhammad and others v. Raja Muhammad Zia Ullah Khan, Claims Commissioner, Lahore and Director of Enforcement, Evacuee Property and Claims, South Zone, Lahore' (PLD 1965 SC 269). Learned counsel further argued that the petitioners in Writ Petitions Nos.29138 and 30678 of 2013 are collection agents for the respondents and are required to collect sales tax at the rate of Rs.4 per unit of electricity consumed from every steel melter and re-roller and thereafter, deposit the same in the government treasury. Learned counsel argued that the petitioners filed their monthly sales tax returns along with all required appenditures as provided for in section 26 of the Act of 1990. The respondents while relying upon the information provided in the returns, which includes the appended documents discovered that the petitioners were not declaring the correct amount of sales tax collected from the steel melters or re-rollers. The information provided in the returns of the petitioners were verified and checked by the respondents from the bills issued by the petitioners to the stated consumers. In the same way, the petitioner in Writ Petition No.30782 of 2013 is a collection agent for the purposes of extra tax and further tax which is also collected from the electricity bill. The petitioner in this case has not disclosed the amounts actually collected as extra tax and further tax for the months of July, August and September, 2013. Essentially they have charged the tax at its given rate but have deposited less in the government treasury. Again this information was ascertained from the return filed and the electricity bills issued by the petitioner. Learned counsel explained that the information provided for in the bills is tabulated and given to the respondents in the form of "Annexures A and C" of the returns. Learned counsel argued that no extraneous document was referred to. The information provided in "Annexure-C" was verified from the bills that were issued to the consumer of the petitioners. It was then discovered that the petitioners had short paid sales tax, as well as the extra tax and further tax, hence recovery proceedings under section 11-A of the Act of 1990 were initiated against the petitioners. Learned counsel explained that there is no dispute or assessment required as the petitioners are merely collecting agents of the respondents, meaning that they recover the sales tax, extra tax and further tax through the electricity bills and deposit the same in the government treasury. Whatever they recover they are to deposit it in the government treasury. Learned counsel further argued that this question has already been decided in Sales Tax References Nos.105 (Messrs LESCO v. The Commissioner Inland Revenue, and others) and 106 of 2011 vide judgment dated 6-10-2011.

8. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

9. The common question which requires determination before this Court is whether the documents relied upon by the respondents for the purposes of determining short paid tax, falls within the scope of as indicated in his return under section 11-A of the Act of 1990. The second question that arises is whether assessment of tax was necessary for which due process is mandated under the Act of 1990.

10. The petitioners filed their monthly sales tax returns indicating the amount of sales tax due and paid by the petitioners. The respondents initiated action against the petitioners under section 11-A of the Act of 1990 on the ground that they had paid less tax than the tax that is due. As per the notices issued by the respondents under section 11-A of the Act of 1990 this information was obtained from the electricity bills issued by the petitioners and placed on their websites. Since the information relied upon are the electricity bills found on the websites of LESCO and GEPCO the petitioners grievance is that the bills and the data contained therein are extraneous documents, which do not form part of their return, hence cannot be relied upon for the purposes of recovering short paid amount under section 11-A of the Act of 1990. Section 11-A of the Act of 1990 is re-produced hereunder:-
"Short paid amounts recoverable without notice.---Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this Act, where a registered person pays the amount of tax less than the tax due as indicated in his returns, the short paid amount of tax along with default surcharge shall be recovered from such person by stopping removal of any goods from his business premises and through attachment of his business bank accounts, without giving him a show-cause notice and without prejudice to any other action prescribed under section 48 of this Act or the rules made thereunder." Section 11-A provides that short paid amount is the amount of tax less than the tax due as indicated in his return. A dispute has arisen as the electricity bills referred to by the respondents do not form part of the returns filed by the petitioners. The requirements of a return is provided under section 26 of the Act of 1990 wherein every registered person shall furnish a true and correct return in the prescribed form indicating the purchases and the supplies made during the tax period, the tax due and paid and such other information as may be prescribed. Section 26(2) of the Act of 1990 provides that any person or class of person can be required to furnish summary or details or particulars pertaining to the imports, purchase and supplies for any tax period or period in the specified formats. The petitioners along with their returns provide information in the form of domestic purchase invoice "Annexure-A" and domestic sales invoice "Annexure-C". Annexure-A provides information pertaining to WAPDA. Annexure-C provides for the NTN number and the name of the supplier. In this case, the names of the suppliers are the names of the steel melters and re-rollers. It provides for the rate at which sales tax has been collected and the units consumed by each supplier. Thereafter total sales tax is calculated. The returns and Annexures are not disputed by either party. The respondents have reviewed the Annexures and have verified the information stating the number of units consumed by the supplier and the billed amount. It is their case that the number of units consumed as reflected in its column in "Annexure-C" is not as per the electricity bills of the supplier. The respondents have verified the number of units consumed against the bills of the supplier, which were found on the websites of the petitioners. During the course of this verification process, the respondents discovered that the petitioners have not correctly inserted the units consumed by the suppliers. Consequently, the total amount of sales tax collected from the supplier has not been correctly entered. In the same way in Writ Petition No.30782 of 2013 the electricity bills show the recovery of extra tax and further tax in the billed amounts, but the amount deposited for the said taxes is less than that billed by the petitioners.

11. The information in "Annexure-C" has been given by the petitioners to the respondents in terms of the bills that they have issued to their suppliers. The respondents have merely verified the information of units consumed by the electric consumers from the bills. To my mind, section 11-A of the Act of 1990 does not prohibit the verification process undertaken by the respondents. The contention of the learned counsel that the system is automated and electronic and will not accept the returns, if the liability is not fully discharged is misconceived. E-filing of the returns along with required information does not take away the ability or the requirement of the respondents to verify the information provided in the returns. It is only after verifying the information that the respondents can determine whether less tax has been paid than that disclosed in the returns. In fact, if the argument of the petitioner is accepted then section 11-A of the Act of 1990 would become redundant as the respondents would have to accept tax paid by a person as being the tax due from such person and no question of less paid tax could arise. In this case the entire dispute is with reference to the disclosure of units of electricity consumed by the suppliers of the petitioners in the returns filed by the petitioners. The respondents have produced copies of the bills of the suppliers of the petitioners to show that the units consumed as reflected in "Annexure-C" is not the same as the units consumed mentioned in the bills of the suppliers. The respondents have calculated short paid amount on the basis of the bills issued by the petitioners to their suppliers. The fact that "Annexure-C" contains the required data from the bills issued by the petitioners to their suppliers means that the respondents can rely upon the actual bills issued by the petitioners. It is on the basis of the units consumed that the sales tax is collected by the petitioners under the Special Procedure for Payment of Sales Tax, Chapter XI of the Sales Tax Special Procedure Rules, 2007 (Special Procedure Rules, 2007) from the steel melters, re-rollers and ship breakers. In Writ Petition No.30782 of 2013 the petitioner has not deposited the full amount of extra tax and further tax collected from the suppliers. This information was also ascertained from the electricity bills. To my mind, the electricity bills are deemed to be a part of the returns filed by the petitioners as all the relevant information from the bills has been provided to the respondents in "Annexure-C", which is a part of the returns filed by the petitioners. Hence reliance on the same is as per the information provided by the petitioners in their returns.

12. Section 11-A of the Act of 1990 enables the respondents to collect short paid amounts without giving any show-cause notice and without prejudice to any action prescribed under section 48 of the Act of 1990. The purpose of this section is to enable the respondents to recover the amount of less paid tax from the tax due as indicated in the returns without recourse to the person. The tax due is determined from the returns filed by a person and the information contained in the returns. The default become apparent from the return filed and no further information/document is needed. The return filed by the tax payer is the evidence which proves the default and renders the person liable for short paid amount under section 11-A of the Act of 1990. In the instant petitions, notices were issued to the petitioners to pay the short paid amount along with default surcharge and penalty within seven days. Since the petitioners did not make the payment, in Writ Petition No.30678 of 2013 notice under section 48(1)(b) of the Act of 1990 was issued by the respondents for direct recovery from the accounts of the petitioner. Hence the petitioners were given notice of the intended action of the respondents. It is also noted that the petitioners have only challenged the information relied upon for the purposes of determining short paid tax. Furthermore the argument of the petitioners that there is a dispute with respect to the sales tax payable by the petitioners and such dispute is subject to due process under section 11 of the Act of 1990 is without merit. I find that there is no dispute with respect to the assessment of tax. The dispute pertains to collection of sales tax by the petitioners under the Special Procedure Rules, 2007 prescribed for steel melters and re-rollers and the collection of extra tax and further tax on the billed amount. In these cases the petitioners are merely collection agents wherein they recover the extra tax, further tax on the billed amount and sales tax at the rate of Rs.4 per unit consumed through the electricity bills and deposit the same in the government treasury. Incorrect disclosure of units consumed or tax collected does not give rise to an assessment dispute. In fact it suggests that the petitioners have deliberately evaded their obligation of depositing the necessary tax, sales tax, extra tax or further tax. Learned counsel for the petitioners was unable to explain why there was a discrepancy in the units of electricity consumed in "Annexure-C". His emphasis was on the fact that due process under section 11 of the Act of 1990 must be followed to assess the tax due from the petitioners, if any. In the same way there is no explanation for the incorrect disclosure of the tax collected (extra tax and further tax). The petitioners have also argued in their petitions that the tax collected is their output tax. It is the grievance of the petitioner that this fact should have been considered before acting under section 11-A of the Act of 1990. Again this argument is misconceived as this point has already been agitated and decided by this Court in STR Nos.105 and 106 of 2011. The learned counsel for the petitioners stated that the matter is now pending before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan.

13. Therefore, in view of the aforesaid for the purposes of section 11-A of the Act of 1990 the electricity bills relied upon form part of the returns filed and the action initiated under section 11-A of the Act of 1990 is based on the information provided in the returns of the petitioners.

KMZ/L-1/L Petition dismissed.

JUDGMENT

This consolidated judgment shall decide upon the common issues raised in Writ Petition Nos. 25984/2011, 21101/2012, 11269/2012, 17237/2012, 22706/2012, 29306/2012, 31841/2012, 940/2013, 1524/2013 and 8262/2013.

2. The basic issue that arises in these petitions is with respect to the annual safety inspection of CNG stations. The case of the petitioners is that the annual safety inspection is to be carried out by third party inspectors as appointed by the Chief Inspector Explosives, under the control of the Ministry of explosives. It is their case that the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority (OGRA) has no jurisdiction or authority to appoint third party inspectors for the purposes of inspections, certifications and verification of CNG stations. This authority lies exclusively with the Chief Inspector Explosives.

3. The grievance of the petitioners is that OGRA has issued notices to conduct annual safety inspections of CNG stations through third party inspectors, appointed by them, failing which the gas supply to the CNG stations will be disconnected. The petitioners counsels argued that the annual safety inspection was carried out by third party inspectors appointed by the Chief Inspector Explosives, therefore, the petitioners should not be burdened with the fee demanded by OGRA for carrying out an inspection already completed by the Chief Inspector Explosives. The petitioners contend that the dispute between the Ministry of Explosives and OGRA over who has to conduct the annual safety inspection of the CNG stations should not transgress upon the rights of the petitioners to conduct their business.

4. The petitioners in W.P. Nos. 25984/2011, 21101/2012, 11269/2012, 17237/2012, 22706/2012, 29306/2012, 940/2013, 1524/2013 and 8262/2013 were all issued notices by OGRA for the purposes of conducting annual safety inspection by third party inspectors appointed by OGRA. W.P. No. 31841/2012 has been filed against a notice issued for re-testing of CNG cylinders. W.P. No. 1524/2013 has been filed by the association of third party inspectors who seek a declaration from this Court that they enjoy exclusive jurisdiction to conduct all safety related inspections. The case of the petitioners is that in terms of Sections 5 and 6 of the Explosive Act, 1884, (Act of 1884) Sections 4 and 5 of the Petroleum Act, 1934 (Act of 1934) read with Explosives Rules, 2010 and the Mineral and Industrial Gas Safety Rules, 2010 (2010 Rules), the Department of Explosives is exclusively empowered to grant approval of designs, specifications, standards, manufacturing and all other issues with respect to a CNG station. Furthermore, the Department of Explosives is also given the exclusive mandate under the law to ensure implementation of all safety rules wherever any industrial gases, hazardous, substances and explosives are used.

Section 7 of the Act of 1934 specifically empowers the Chief Inspector Explosives to appoint third party inspectors for inspection, certification and verification of CNG stations. It is the petitioners case that OGRA has no role to play when it comes to public safety and installation of a CNG station. In order to resolve this issue between the Department of Explosives and OGRA, the Department of Explosives wrote a letter to the Chairman, OGRA on 10.08.2011 explaining the role of the Department of Explosives as follows:--

"(I) As per Sections 5 and 6 of Explosives Act, 1884 and Sections 4 & 5 of Petroleum Act, 1934 and rules framed underthere, the Department of Explosives is empowered to grant approval of design, specification, standards, import & manufacturing and manners of installation of all sort of compressed/liquefied Gas containers (Cylinders, Vessels) Petroleum Storage Tanks, compressors, Dispensers, piping, fitting, allied equipments and all kind of safety devices.

(II) As per Section 7 of Explosives Act, 1884 and Section 26 of Petroleum Act, 1934, Department of Explosives is an entity empowered to appoint third party inspectors to enter for inspection/certification/verification of CNG stations, LPG plants, LPG automotive station, Petrol pumps, Bulk Petroleum Oil & other Petrochemicals depots, all sort of CNG/LPG/LNG/Industrial Gases carriers and containers (cylinders, vessels) etc.

(III) As compared to above, the domain of OGRA under Ordinance No. XVII of 2002, dated 28.03.2002 is that OGRA was formulated to foster competition, increase private investment and ownership in the midstream and downstream. Petroleum industry to protect the public interest while respecting individual rights. Obviously OGRA is mainly concerned with the pricing, marketing, tariff, duties, tax exemptions, supply of CNG, LPG, LNG to provide effective and efficient regulation for above mentioned purposes."

However, OGRA totally ignored the said letter and continued to issue letters to CNG stations with respect to third party inspections. In this regard, a letter was issued by the Ministry of Industries Department to the Respondents No. 4 and 5 on 11.9.2012 explaining that the relevant authority to regulate safety aspects of CNG stations is the Chief Inspector Explosives. Based on these letters, it has been argued that OGRA cannot appoint third party inspectors. The learned DAG supported the case of the Respondents No. 6 and 7 by contending that the authority for appointment of third party inspectors for annual safety inspections lies with the Chief Inspector Explosives.

5. The Respondent No. 3, Hydrocarbon Development Institute of Pakistan argued that all testing of CNG cylinders fell within their jurisdiction under the Hydrocarbon Development Institute of Pakistan Act, 2006 (2006 Act) and the CNG Rules, 1992. That OGRA is responsible to maintain the Standard Code of Practice and the CNG Safety Rules and that the competent authority for maintaining safety and conducting inspections was OGRA.

6. In the instant petitions, report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondent No. 1 OGRA, the Respondent No. 2 Ministry of Petroleum & Natural Resources, the Respondent No. 3 Hydrocarbon Development Institute of Pakistan, the Respondents No. 6 & 7 Ministry of Industries and Department of Explosives and the Respondent No. 8 Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Cabinet Division, Islamabad.

7. In order to appreciate the controversy at hand, the learned counsels appearing before this Court set out to explain the law governing the dispute at hand. OGRA was established under the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 (OGRA Ordinance 2002) to regulate the oil and gas sector especially with regard to petroleum, oil, natural gas, LPG, LNG and CNG. Section 2(1)(xxxii) of the OGRA Ordinance, defines `regulated activity' as an activity that requires a license. License has been defined under Section 2(1)(xi) as one granted under the OGRA Ordinance, 2002. Section 22 of the OGRA Ordinance, 2002 provides that OGRA shall have exclusive powers to grant licenses in respect of any regulated activity. Section 23(2) provides that no person shall construct or operate any CNG testing facility, CNG storage facility and undertake transportation, filling, marketing or distributing CNG unless a general or specific license has been issued by OGRA. OGRA has also adopted the Standard Code appended to the CNG (Production & Marketing) Rules, 1992 (CNG Rules, 1992) and is the Authority under the CNG Rules, 1992. Rule 3 of the CNG Rules 1992 provides that a license must be obtained from OGRA before the operation, or construction of works connected with compression of natural gas for the purpose of filling, storing and distributing CNG. Rule 10 of the CNG Rules, 1992 provides that the licensee, after the commencement of the license, shall execute to the satisfaction of the Authority his works in accordance with the code of practice, appended to these rules, within a period of two years or; such further period as the Authority may allow under special circumstances proved by the licensee to be behind his control. Rule 10 further provides that the Authority shall appoint third party inspectors for verification of works of the licensee in pursuance of Rule 10(1).

8. Learned counsel for OGRA argued that the license issued by the Authority is for filling, storing, distribution, transportation and marketing CNG stations. In order to establish a CNG station, a provisional marketing license is issued by the Authority OGRA. Thereafter the proprietor of the CNG station provides the Authority with all the required documentation which includes No Objection Certificates from various Departments. Under the CNG Rules, 1992 when the works commence at the CNG station, OGRA is to conduct an inspection and on the completion of the works it issues a license. Prior to the issuance of the license, OGRA obtains verification of the works through third party inspection. Subsequently after the commissioning of the station, OGRA obtains a report through third party inspectors to ensure that the terms and conditions of the license have been satisfied. He argued that the Explosive Rules, 2010 are made under the Explosive Act, 1884. Under the Petroleum Act, 1934, the Petroleum Rules, 1937, Gas Safety Rules, 1960 and the Gas Safety Rules, 2010 were framed. Under the Regulation of Mines and Oil Fields Act, 1948, the CNG Rules, 1992 were framed prior to the establishment of OGRA. Third party inspection was carried out under the CNG Rules, 1992 by the department of Explosives. However after 2002 with the establishment of OGRA, all matters related to CNG stations, such as issuance of license, testing, certifications, storage all fall under the exclusive control of OGRA.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that letter dated 28.07.2011 issued by the Ministry of Industries clarifies the matter and the legal position. Pursuant to this decision, the Chief Inspector Explosives requested OGRA to refrain from appointing third party inspectors to inspect CNG stations. However, notwithstanding the clarification from the Ministry of Industries, OGRA continued to interfere in the third party inspections carried out by the Department of Explosives. Again on 23.01.2012 the Department of Explosives addressed a letter to all the Chief Secretaries of all the Provinces stating that third party inspectors could only be appointed by the Department of Explosives. However, with reference to the petitioners' cases OGRA has issued letters calling for appointment of third party inspectors failing which the gas supply of the petitioners with the CNG stations will be disconnected.

10. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the files.

11. The Explosives Act, 1884 promulgated under the Ministry of Industries provides in Section 4(1) definition of explosives. The definition of explosives is conferred to substances whether solid, liquid or gaseous used or manufactured with a view to produce an explosion or fireworks. Section 5 gives the power to make rules as to license and manufacturing, use, sale, transport and import of explosives. Section 7 provides for conferring the rule making power for inspection, search, seizure, detention and removal. Under this Act the Explosives Rules, 2010 were framed. However, there is no provision in the said rules relevant to the controversy at hand.

12. The Petroleum Act, 1934 regulates the import, transport, storage and production, refining and blending of petroleum substances. Petroleum is defined to mean any liquid hydrocarbon or mixture of hydrocarbons. Section 4 relates to the import, transport and storage of petroleum, providing that the Federal Government may make rules in relation to import, transport and storage of petroleum. Section 5 relates to production, refining and blending of petroleum and provides that the Federation may make rules for this purpose. Section 13 provides for inspection of places where petroleum is imported, stored and produced, refined and blended. The Federal Government may authorize any officer to cause such inspection. Section 26 provides for entry and search to any place to seize, detain or remove the petroleum. Again the Federal Government is to authorize an officer for this purpose. Under the Act of 1934 the Mineral and Industrial Gases Safety Rules, 2010 were promulgated. The 2010 Rules regulate filling and manufacture of compressed gas in any vessel including the transport of vessel filled with compressed gas. Vessel is defined as a pressure vessel under Rule 2(ixxxvii) and pressure vessel is defined in Rule 2(ixviii) as a closed metal container of whatever shape for storage and transport of compressed gas. Rule 3 provides that filling and manufacture in any vessel shall be as per the specified standard or code and with the approval of the Chief Inspector Explosives. The procedure for seeking the approval of the Chief Inspector Explosives is provided under the said Rule. The 2010 Rules provide that third party inspectors carry out certifying pressure vessels and their fittings so as to ensure that the pressure vessels are designed and constructed as per the prescribed standard Rule 2(xcii). The Chief Inspector Explosives also carries out inspection and testing of cylinders filled with compressed gas under Rule 28. The filling, possession, import and transport of cylinders with compressed gas have to be approved by the Chief Inspector Explosives under Rule 129. Similarly the valves used on the gas cylinders must also comply with the required specification (Rule 130) and so must the electrical installation used at the CNG station (Rule 148). Rule 155 of the 2010 Rules provides that no person shall fill any cylinder, vessel and container with compressed gas and no cylinder, vessel and container filled with compressed gas shall be possessed by anyone except under and in accordance with the conditions of a licence granted under these rules and Rule 159 of 2010 Rules provides the plans of the premises proposed to be licensed are to be submitted to the Chief Inspector Explosives who will ensure that the compressed gas will be filled and stored in the premises as per the proposed license. Therefore the 2010 Rules regulate the design and manufacturing of pressure vessels, the cylinders, valves and the electrical installation used in CNG stations. The inspection carried out by the third party inspectors under the 2010 Rules is to ensure that the vessel, cylinder valves and electrical installation are manufactured as per the standards prescribed. The Chief Inspector Explosives is the licensing authority who has to ensure that every vessel, cylinder or container which is filled with or used for storage or transport of compressed gas is manufactured and maintained as per the rules. In this regard the Chief Inspector Explosives is required to carry out periodic inspections, which includes an annual safety inspection of the pressure vessels, cylinder, valves, electrical installation and allied fittings used in the CNG stations to ensure compliance of the 2010 Rules. The Chief Inspector Explosives will issue its approval that all the cylinders, vessels, valves and electrical installations are as per the prescribed standards. In this regard the Chief Inspector Explosives will also review the plans for the installations of the cylinders, vessels and electrical installations to ensure compliance with the prescribed standards. OGRA on the other hand is the licensing authority for the operation of the CNG stations. The regulation of OGRA starts from the inception, such that no person shall without first obtaining a license from OGRA, enter into an agreement for the operation and construction of works for storage, filling and distributing CNG. Under Rule 5 of the CNG Rules, 1992 when considering an application for issuance of license OGRA is required to give regard to public interest. OGRA regulates the total area within which the CNG is stored, filled or distributed. It regulates the price of the CNG, the location of the station and the use of the site for the CNG station and all related safety issues. It regulates the works after commencement of the license till its completion. OGRA can conduct inspections under Rules 16 and 18 of the CNG Rules, 1992 to ensure compliance of the terms and conditions of the license as well as to ensure public safety which read as follows:--

"16. Entry, inspection and enforcement of the rules.--The Authority or any person duly authorized by the Authority in this behalf may enter, inspect and examine any place in which he has reason to believe that there is any work(s) for compressing natural gas for the purpose of storing, measuring or distribution of CNG and take other necessary steps for the due observance of the provisions of these rules by licensees, consumers or any other person connected with the storage, filling, distribution and use of CNG."
"18. Protection to public.--(1) A licensee shall locate, construct and operate his pipeline and all works connected with CNG Refueling station, and installation of CNG equipment in automobiles in accordance with the licence granted by the Chief Inspector of Explosives under the Mineral Gas Safety Rules, 1960, and strictly comply with the provisions of the Petroleum Rules, 1937 and the Gas Cylinder Rules, 1940, so as to avoid any danger to the public health or safety ....."
Therefore as per the 2010 Rules and the CNG Rules, 1992, I find that the Chief Inspector Explosives conducts annual safety inspection of the vessel, cylinders, valves and electrical installation of the CNG station and allied fittings to ensure compliance of the design and manufacturing standards and OGRA conducts the annual safety inspection to ensure that the licensee is complying with the Standard Code of Practice in the operation of its CNG station. Both inspections can be carried out through third party inspectors. The primary objective for both inspections is to ensure strict compliance with the terms of the license and the safety codes. I may add here that the law and the rules referred to contemplate "public safety" not only from the perspective of the location and operation of the CNG station but also to ensure the checking of every vessel, cylinder, valve or electrical fitting used in the CNG station. Therefore both OGRA and Chief Inspector Explosives are responsible to ensure compliance of the rules and to maintain public safety and prevent accidents.

13. Each regulator is to work within its given jurisdiction. The explanation given by Respondent No. 2 does not resolve the matter at hand and has misconstrued the role of both OGRA and Chief Inspector Explosives. OGRA is the licensing authority for compressed natural gas and is required to conduct third party inspections of the licensed premises to ensure strict compliance of OGRA Ordinance, 2002 and the CNG Rules, 1992, the terms of the license and to ensure compliance with the Standard Code of Practice as prescribed in the CNG Rules, 1992. The Chief Inspector Explosives is the licensing authority for the vessel and cylinder used for filling, storing and distributing compressed gas. He has to ensure that every vessel, cylinder, valve and electrical installation used at the CNG station is as per the specifications prescribed. The role of both regulators is of paramount importance when it comes to public safety. Therefore the notices issued by OGRA for conducting annual safety inspections and for retesting cylinders are in accordance with the law and should be complied with by the petitioners.

14. In view of the aforesaid all these petitions are dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK J: Through this single judgment, I intend to dispose of Writ Petitions Nos.18373 and 13836 of 2012 filed by LESCO against Province of Punjab and others as common questions of law and fact arise in both the petitions. The petitioner in Writ Petition No.18373 of 2012 challenges the demand notice for levy of property tax against all the properties of the petitioner including its grid stations. The petitioner in Writ Petition No.13836 of 2012 impugns the levy of property tax with respect to three grid stations located at Boghiwal Grid Station, Riwaz Garden and ICI (Public) Grid Station. Consequent to the issuance of the notices the respondents sealed the grid stations for non-payment of the tax. In both cases, the petitioner is LESCO.

2. The petitioner has impugned the levy of property tax by the respondents Nos.1 to 3 under the Urban Immovable Property Tax Act, 1958 (Property Tax Act). The case of the petitioner is that the petitioner is not liable to pay property tax under the Property Tax Act on account of the following reasons: (i) Article 165 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 provides that the Federal Government shall not, in respect of its property or income, be liable to taxation under any Act of the Provincial Assembly. Since the petitioner is owned and controlled by the Federal Government hence it is not liable to pay property tax; (ii) section 4 of the Urban Immovable Property Tax Act, 1958 exempts the Federal Government from payment of tax in relation to its property. Again since the petitioner is owned and controlled by the Federal Government hence it is not liable to pay the property tax; iii) A clarification was issued by the respondent No.4 on 27 April, 2012 wherein it is clarified that the Federal Government owns 100% shares of the petitioner, hence ownership of the assets of this public sector company vests in the Federal Government. On the basis of this clarification, the petitioner's case is that respondent No.4 having clarified the issue with respect to the ownership of the petitioner, the respondents cannot levy tax with respect to the property of the Federal Government. Reliance was placed on the cases titled"Province of N.-W.F.P. through Secretary, Local Government and Rural Development Peshawar v. Pakistan Telecommunication Corporation through Chairman and others" (PLD 2005 SC 670) and "WAPDA v. Government of Sindh and others (PLD 1998 Karachi 209).

3. Learned counsel for the respondents Nos.1 to 4 and learned Law Officer argued that the petitioner is a limited liability company, which is independent from the Federal Government. Hence, it is liable to pay property tax. They relied upon Articles 165 and 165-A of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (the Constitution) to argue that the petitioner is not the Federal Government, it is a separate juristic person hence it is liable to pay tax. Learned Law Officer also raised the objection that the petitioner has not availed the remedy provided to it under the statute. Hence, these petitions are not maintainable. Learned counsel for the respondents placed reliance on PLD 2005 SC 670 (supra) to argue the point that a limited liability company is an independent juristic person which is different from the Federal Government. Therefore, the property and income of a limited liability company cannot be construed to be the property and income of the Federal Government. Hence they argued that the petitioner is liable to pay the property tax to the respondents.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. At the very onset I find that the objection with respect to alternate remedy is not relevant here as the respondents had sealed some of the grid stations of the petitioner rendering it impossible for the petitioner to provide electricity to the public. In such a situation the alternate remedy suggested by the learned Law Officer is not efficacious for the purposes of these petitions. The issue before this Court is whether the respondents can impose property tax on the property of the petitioner. Section 3 of the Property Tax Act provides that the Government may levy tax in an urban area and that the tax shall be due from the owners of the building and the land. The entire case of the petitioner is that since the owner of the land and building is the Federal Government, it is exempt from paying the property tax. Section 4 (a) of the Urban Immovable Property Tax Act, 1958 provides that:---
"4. Exemptions. The tax shall not be leviable in respect of the following properties, namely:
(a) buildings and lands other than those leased in perpetuity vesting in the Federal Government."
Article 165 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 provides that:--- "165. Exemption of certain public property from taxation.--- (1) The Federal Government shall not, in respect of its property or income, be liable to taxation under any Act of Provincial Assembly and, subject to clause (2), a Provincial Government shall not, in respect of its property or income, be liable to taxation under Act of (Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or under the Act of the Provincial Assembly of any other Province.
(2) If a trade or business of any kind is carried on by or on behalf of the Government of a Province outside that Province, that Government may, in respect of any property used in connection with that trade or business or any income arising from that trade or business, be taxed under Act of (Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or under Act of the Provincial Assembly of the Province in which that trade or business is carried on.

(3) Nothing in this Article shall prevent the imposition of fees for services rendered."

Article 165-A of the Constitution provides that:---

"Power of (Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) to impose tax on the income of certain corporation, etc.--- (1) For the removal of doubt, it is hereby declared that (Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) has, and shall be deemed always to have had, the power to make a law to prove for the levy and recovery of a tax on the income of a corporation, company or other body or institution established by or under a Federal law or a Provincial law or an existing law or a corporation, company or other body or institution owned or controlled, either directly or indirectly, by the Federal Government or a Provincial Government, regardless of the ultimate destination of such income."

The basis of the arguments of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that petitioner is owned and controlled by the Federal Government, hence the property owned by the petitioner vests in the Federal Government. The respondents have taken the stance that since the petitioner is a limited liability company, it is an independent legal entity, which is not the Federal Government, hence it is liable to pay property tax. The petitioner is incorporated under the Companies Ordinance, 1984. It is a limited liability company, which is owned hundred per cent by the Federal Government. Form-A dated 29-10-2010 evidences this fact and the respondents have admitted to this fact. The shares of the petitioner are issued in the name of President of Islamic Republic of Pakistan. The question that arises is whether the petitioner being owned and controlled one hundred per cent by the Federal Government can take the benefit of Article 165 of the Constitution and section 4 of the Property Tax Act. In order to determine whether they can take this benefit, it is important to review the leading judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan on this issue. Both the learned counsel have placed reliance on PLD 2005 SC 670 (supra). In this case, the issue was with respect to levy of octroi tax by the Provincial Government on the Pakistan Telecommunication Corporation. The argument raised was that the corporation was performing the function of the State, its assets were acquired by the Federal Government, its employees were public servants and it was totally in the control and in the administration of the Federal Government. Hence Pakistan Telecommunication Corporation was entitled to the exemption under Article 165 of the Constitution and not liable to pay the octroi tax. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan after considering the arguments held that since the company was a juristic person, it was no longer immune and exempt from paying the property tax. The basis of the decision of the Hon'ble apex Court was that the Federal Government was not the sole owner of the Pakistan Telecommunication Corporation, therefore, the assets and liabilities of the company were held to be owned by the company and not by the Federal Government. The principle laid down in this case is that a company being a juristic person was a separate legal entity from the Federal Government.

6. Another case to consider is titled "Water and Power Development Authority through General Manager and Project Director and another v. Administrator, District Council, Swabi and 5 others" (2005 SCMR 487). In this case, WAPDA was executing a project for electricity generation by the name of Ghazi Barotha Hydropower Project on behalf of the Federal Government. The contractor made payments under intimation of WAPDA and WAPDA then reimbursed the payments under a written contract. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that since WAPDA had undertaken qua the reimbursement of Ghazi Barotha Contractors with respect to export tax and educational tax, it was a contractual liability which could not be avoided on the pretext of the exemption under Article 165 of the Constitution. It was also found that the tax was imposed on the contractor and not on WAPDA hence the contractual obligation did not get the benefit of Article 165 of the Constitution.
In the case entitled "Pakistan Television Corporation Limited v. Capital Development Authority and others "(2011 SCMR 1117) the basic facts were that by virtue of S.R.O. 24(1)/2001 dated 11-1-2001 buildings and lands owned by the Federal Government or a Provincial Government but excluding public and private corporation, were exempt from payment of property tax. After reviewing the provisions of the S.R.O. the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan found that the use of the word excluding public and private corporation meant that building and lands vesting in the Federal Government through public and private corporation were not exempt. The benefit of the S.R.O. would thus be given to building and lands directly owned by the Federal or Provincial Government. Therefore, by an express provision in the S.R.O. a tax was imposed on public and private companies owned by the government.
In the case titled "Zila Council Jhang District Jhang v Daewoo Corporation Kot Ranjeet, Sheikhupura (2001 SCMR 1012) the Hon'ble apex Court after lifting the veil of incorporation found that Daewoo Corporation was not a corporation owned and controlled by the Federal Government. The reasons amongst several, were that the Government had not contributed any capital to the corporation, the directors were not appointed by the Government, the Government had no power to remove the directors, the Government was not a shareholder, the Government has no power to audit its accounts. Therefore, the Court reviewed the effective control of the Federal Government over the company. Having found that the Federal Government did not have effective control, it was liable to pay the tax.

7. The cases reviewed have considered the nature of the ownership and control of the Federal Government as well as the basis or reasons for which Article 165 of the Constitution is being invoked. Based on the principles laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in the aforementioned cases it is important, as a first step, to lift the veil of incorporation to determine to what extent the petitioner is owned and controlled by the Federal Government and the degree of control exercised by the Federal Government. The petitioner is a public limited company incorporated under the Companies Ordinance, 1984. The petitioner was incorporated by the Federal Government to discharge the function of distribution of electricity within its licensed territory. Admittedly, the Federal Government owns one hundred per cent of the petitioner with only one shareholder, being the President of Islamic Republic of Pakistan. This means that the petitioner is totally owned by the Federal Government. A company is controlled by its board of directors who are elected by the shareholders. In this case, the share-holder is the Federal Government, hence the Board of Directors are representatives of the Federal Government. The Federal Government nominates the Board of Directors of the petitioner and they hold office at the pleasure of the Federal Government under the Companies Ordinance, 1984. The petitioner provides a public utility being the distribution of electricity. Article 154 of the Constitution provides that a Council of Common Interest can regulate policy in relation to matters of Part-II of the Federal Legislative List and shall exercise supervision and control over related industries. Electricity is at Serial No.4 Part-II of the Federal Legislative List. Therefore, the petitioner provides a public utility, which is under the control and supervision of the Federal Government. The Federal Government makes its policy on electricity and implements it through the petitioner. Consequently not only does the Federal Government own and control the petitioner but it also controls the public utility provided by the petitioner. This also means that the facts of the instant petition are distinguishable from the PLD 2005 SC 670 (supra) as admittedly Pakistan Telecommunication Corporation was not owned one hundred per cent by the Federal Government. There were other private shareholders in the company, on account of which the Hon'ble apex Court found that it cannot be said that the Federal Government owned this company or the assets of this company. Furthermore, if the reasons reviewed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in 2001 SCMR 1012 (supra) for determining whether a company is effectively controlled by the Federal Government are applied on the petitioner then it can be said that the petitioner is a juristic person which is owned and effectively controlled by the Federal Government. In the case of the petitioner, the shares are owned one hundred per cent by the President of Pakistan. The directors of the petitioner are appointed by the Federal Government. They can be removed at the pleasure of the Federal Government under section 183 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984. Furthermore the Federal Government controls the public utility provided by the petitioner. So notwithstanding the fact that the petitioner is an independent juristic person, it is essentially the Federal Government doing its business through a corporate structure. In such cases the distinction between the Federal Government and the petitioner become obscure.

8. Where the Federal Government enjoys effective control and carries out a constitutional function through a juristic person the question which arises is whether the company being an independent juristic person is an instrumentality of the Federal Government which is immune from the provincial property tax.

9. The Doctrine of Immunity of Instrumentalities is applied in taxation cases. The Doctrine provides that the instrumentalities of the central government have immunity from paying tax imposed by the provincial government unless expressly stated otherwise. The meaning of federal instrumentalities was given in a case entitled "McCulloch v. Maryland, 17 U.S. 316 4 Wheat. (1819)" a judgment of the US Supreme Court where it was found that federal instrumentalities were immune from State taxation. The reasons given was that the State government cannot tax any of the means employed by the federal government to execute its constitutional powers. The argument used in this case was that the power of State legislature to tax the instruments used in carrying out the functions of the Federal Government would mean that the State could impede or control any of the constitutional functions of the Federal Government. Hence the Doctrine of Immunity of Instrumentalities was made applicable to a company owned and controlled by the Federal Government for preserving the Federal Government's ability to carry out its powers and duties under the Constitution. To apply this Doctrine the Courts have examined the relationship between the government and the statutory corporation to determine whether the corporation was a government instrumentality. The following test was applied:

(1) Whether the body has any discretion of its own; if it has, what is the degree of control by the Executive over the exercise of that discretion;

(2) Whether the property vested in the corporation is held by it for and on behalf of the Government;

(3) Whether the corporation has any financial autonomy;

(4) Whether the functions of the corporation are Governmental functions."
With the help of this test the distinction between the Federal Government and the juristic person becomes clear. Therefore I shall apply the test to determine whether there is a real distinction between the Federal Government and the petitioner or is it simply a case where the Federal Government has used a corporate structure to execute its function and duty. At this point I also find that the arguments with reference to Article 165 A of the Constitution were not relevant as it deals with income tax and the instant case is with reference to property tax.

10. The status of the petitioner as an instrumentality of the Federal Government is evident from the fact that the petitioner is owned and effectively controlled by the Federal Government. Once it is determined that the Federal Government has effective control the third requirement of financial autonomy is also satisfied. The petitioner was incorporated to carry out a function of the Federal Government. In order to give the benefit of section 4 of the Property Tax Act read with Article 165 of the Constitution to the petitioner, this Court has lifted the veil of incorporation to determine firstly, whether the Federal Government owns and controls the petitioner. In this regard, I find that the petitioner is totally owned and controlled by the Federal Government as the President of Pakistan is the only shareholder of the petitioner. The second test was to determine the degree of control exercised by the Federal Government over the petitioner. In this regard, 1 find that the Federal Government exercises total control over the corporate structure of the petitioner, as it is the only shareholder and the Board of Directors are nominated and removed at the pleasure of the Federal Government. Furthermore the petitioner was incorporated to undertake a function of the Federal Government that is to provide electricity. All policies related to electricity, its distribution and transmission is under the control of the Federal Government. The third test was to determine, whether the function of the petitioner is that of the Federal Government. Here I find that the petitioner provides a public utility which is totally controlled by the Federal Government. The Federal Government uses the corporate structure to carry out a function specifically provided for it in the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution. The company is left with no authority of its own. Furthermore the providing of electricity is an essential public utility which is a basic necessity. In such a situation the petitioner can be described as an instrumentality of the Federal Government. This means that the Federal Government is executing its function through the petitioner. Hence the use of the word Federal Government in Article 165 of the Constitution would include an instrumentality of the Federal Government. In this case, the petitioner is an instrumentality of the Federal Government hence it is entitled to the exemption section 4 of the Property Tax Act.

ORDER
C.M. Nos.3, 5, 1182, 1225, 1231 and 1241 of 2013.
MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this single order I intend to dispose of aforementioned six applications filed in the instant writ petition under Order I, Rule 10, C.P.C. wherein the applicants pray for their impleadment as respondents to the instant petition on account of being necessary and proper party to the proceedings.

2. The case of the applicants is that the petitioner has filed the instant petition wherein it has impugned the import of Carbon Dioxide (CO2) from India through Wahga Border under Rule 20 of the Import Policy Order, 2009. The applicants have argued their case to be made party on the following grounds:--
(i) The petitioner has prayed that the respondent No.1 be restrained from allowing import of CO2 from India through Wahga Border.
The applicants argued that they are all users of CO2 either in as direct importers or purchasers or as consumers. Therefore, it is necessary for them to be made party as their right with respect to the permits giver for import could be adjudicated upon in this petition.
(ii) The petitioner has prayed that quality of CO2 imported from India through Wagha Border, which is of substandard quality and affect the public health, should be destroyed in the larger interest of justice of the citizens of Pakistan."
The applicants argued that they have imported CO2, from India through Wahga Border. Hence if this Court was to pass any order with respect to this prayer, the rights of the applicants would be seriously prejudiced and they should be heard in order to ensure that the relevant information is placed before this Court:--
(iii) The petitioner has arrayed respondent No 6. as a party. The respondent No.6 is a user and importer of CO2 in the same manner as the applicants and that there is no justification for arraying it as a party and leaving out the applicants.
Therefore, they pray that they may be made as party to the instant petition. Reliance has been placed on a judgment dated 25-8-2009 passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.P.L.A No.857 of 2007 (2014 SCMR 531) in which it has been held that in the cases of public interest litigation, the Court should take more liberal stance with respect to the impleadment of the parties and which should hear all such parties, who are likely to be affected by any judgment in such proceedings.

3. Learned counsel argued that the petitioners have relevant and necessary information to place before this Court to explain the circumstances in which Rule 20 of the Import Policy Order, 2009 has been invoked and to explain the circumstances in which they have been given permission. They argued that the petitioner has not placed all the relevant information before this Court and therefore, in the very least, they are proper and necessary parties to this petition. Hence they should be arrayed as respondents in this petition.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that the applicants are not necessary party to this petition. He argued that the provisions of Order I, Rule 10, C.P.C. do not suggest that any person, who in any manner is connected with the judgment, should join the proceedings. A remote issue with the parties would not make them necessary or proper party in this petition in terms of Order I Rule 10 C.P.C. He has raised specific objection with respect to the applications filed and the documents appended with them. He argued that it is not possible to implead every one, who has been conferred an advantage in a general way, which benefit may be lost, if that provision of law is struck down or its usage is restricted in any way. He argued that the Court would not be able to control the amount of persons, who would be affected and want to be arrayed in a petition. He has placed reliance on the cases titled "Jiand Rai v. Abid Esbhani" (2010 YLR 1666), "Syed Khurram Shah v. Mian Muhammad Shahbaz Sharif and 4 others" (PLD 2009 Lahore 140), "Syed Ahmed Saeed Kirmani v. Punjab Province and others" (1982 CLC 590) and "Dr. Saleem Javed and others v. Mst. Fauzia Nasim and others" (2003 SCMR 965). He argued that the dispute can be decided in the absence of the applicants as they are not the necessary party.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the case-law relied upon by the learned counsel for the parties.

6. The basic issue in this petition is the import of CO2 from India through Wahga Border. The petitioner has raised certain concern with respect to storage facilities, testing laboratory and transportation facilities at the Wahga Border. He has also raised an objection with respect to the quality of CO2 that is being imported, voicing concern with respect to the health and lives of citizens of Pakistan. This is a matter of public importance and in the judgment dated 25-8-2009 passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.P.L.A No.857 of 2007 (2014 SCMR 531) it has been held that in the cases involving issues of public interest litigation more liberal stance is needed to be taken by the Courts for impleadment of parties to such litigation, to enable it to hear all the parties concerned, who are likely to be affected by any judgment in such proceedings. The Hon'ble apex Court has also held that when matters are of pubic importance then it is not only proper but necessary to make a person party whose interest is at stake in the petition and who can render proper assistance to the Court about the technical aspects of the issue involved.

7. In view of the above, these applications are accepted and applicants are allowed to join the proceedings in the titled writ petition as respondents Nos.7 to 12.

8. Let amended memo of the parties be filed and the newly arrayed respondents are directed to file their report and parawise comments on or before the next date of hearing.

9. Re-fix on 12-6-2013.MWA/C-1/L Applications allowed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---The petitioner has impugned summons issued to him under section 37 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 on 21-6-2013 by the respondent No.4, Assistant Director/Investigation Officer, Directorate of Intelligence and Investigation Inland Revenue, Lahore.

2. The case of the petitioner is that he is an advocate who was engaged by Pearl Enterprises, Lahore, Shop No.14, Shah Alam Paint Center, Shahalam, Lahore (the Client). The Client required the petitioner to reply and to defend the Client in show-cause notice dated 6-5-2013 issued by the Commissioner Inland Revenue, Lahore. The petitioner accepted the case and filed a reply to the said show cause notice on behalf of the Client. Essentially the petitioner was defending the Client before the Commissioner Inland Revenue, Lahore. On 1-6-2013 the respondent No.4 issued a letter to the petitioner stating therein that the petitioner was representing the Client before the Commissioner Inland Revenue Zone-5 Regional Tax Office. The Directorate of Intelligence and Investigation, Lahore was also investigating the Client in the matter of tax fraud. Therefore, in order to proceed with the matter the petitioner was requested to provide a power of attorney to represent the Client before the respondent No.4. The petitioner issued a reply to this letter on 4-6-2013 stating therein that he was engaged to represent the Client before the Commissioner Inland Revenue and that he has not been engaged to represent the Client before the respondent No.4, hence the petitioner was unable to furnish the required power of attorney. The respondent No.4 replied to this letter through letter dated 7-6-2013 stating therein that while investigating matters related to the Client the Directorate of Intelligence and Investigation tried to locate the Client however they were unable to locate the Client and that they required the petitioner to share information with regard to the particulars of the person who had contacted or engaged the petitioner so that they could proceed with their investigation. The petitioner did not respond to this letter and on 21-6-2013 summons were issued to the petitioner under section 37 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (Act of 1990) requiring him to appear before the respondent No.4 so as to provide particulars of the Client. The petitioner has impugned the said summon on the grounds that it is in violation of Article 9 of the Qanun-e-Shahadat Order, 1984 (Order of 1984) which renders all professional information communicated between the petitioner and the Client as privileged communication. Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the case titled 'Muhammad Maqsood Sabir Ansari v. District Returning Officer, Kasur and others' (PLD 2009 SC 28) wherein it has been held that the provisions of Article 9, Qanun-e-Shahadat, 1984 not only secures the secrecy of professional communication but prohibits in express terms an advocate from disclosing any information, communication, instruction and advice made to him, or received, obtained, and tendered by him during the course of his professional engagement and said prohibition is not limited to the knowledge of events or things acquired by him but also extends to facts observed by him in the course and for the purpose of his professional employment. Learned counsel argued that the respondents Nos.3 to 5 cannot summon the petitioner to obtain information from the petitioner with regard to the Client. Learned counsel argued that the respondents are proceeding with an investigation against the Client and the petitioner cannot be compelled to disclose information with reference to his Client because he is an Advocate representing the Client in a case and all information between the Client and the petitioner is privileged, which will include the identity of the Client. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner cannot be forced to disclose any communication made to him as the Advocate of the Client as this will destroy the trust and confidence between a client and his advocate and will destroy the essence of their relationship. Learned counsel argued that this privilege is to protect the Client of the petitioner such that he may freely consult with the advice of his advocate. Even otherwise he argued that the respondents cannot summon the petitioner under section 37 of the Act of 1990 in furtherance of an inquiry that they are conducting against the Client.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respondents. In terms of the reply filed, learned counsel for the respondents argued that the respondents required the assistance of the petitioner with the investigation in a case of tax fraud allegedly committed by the Client, causing heavy loss to the public exchequer. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner is obligated to disclose the identity of the Client under Article 9(2) of the Order of 1984. He argued that since the petitioner resisted assistance to the respondents, hence he was summoned under section 37 of the Act of 1990. He further argued that the petitioner is obligated in his capacity as a citizen of Pakistan to provide the required information to the respondents in order to assist them in their on-going investigation. Learned counsel argued that the respondents are unable to locate the Client of the petitioner as all addresses given, telephone numbers provided are found to be fictitious. The respondents in order to proceed with their investigation need to know who runs the business of the Client and have simply asked for the name of the proprietor of the Client of the petitioner. Learned counsel argued that it is also the moral duty of the petitioner to assist the respondents catch persons who are involved in tax fraud. Learned counsel argued that the respondents can summon any person whose attendance it considers necessary to tender evidence or produce documents in any inquiry which is being made under the Act of 1990.

4. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. The issue before this Court in the instant petition is whether the identity of the Client is privileged communication under Article 9 of the Order of 1984. The petitioner has been called upon by the respondent No.4 to provide details with respect to the person who has contacted or engaged the petitioner to defend him before the Commissioner Inland Revenue Zone 5. The respondent No.4 issued summons to the petitioner when the petitioner failed to provide the information so required and because he did not respond to letter dated 7-6-2013. There is no cavil to the proposition that the respondents can summon any person under section 37 of the Act of 1990 in relation to a pending inquiry. However in this case the question is whether an Advocate who has been engaged by a client can be summoned under section 37 of the Act of 1990 to provide information with respect to his client. Respondents Nos.3, 4 and 5 are conducting an investigation of tax fraud against the Client. They are unable to locate the proprietor of the Client, hence in the first instance they required the petitioner to file a power of attorney in the inquiry pending before them and then required the petitioner to provide information with respect to the person who had engaged him for representation before the Commissioner Inland Revenue. I am of the opinion that letter dated 1-6-2013 issued by the respondents requiring the petitioner to furnish a power of attorney in the inquiry pending before the respondent No.4 is totally without any legal justification. The respondent No.4 does not have the authority to compel or even require an Advocate to represent a person who is under inquiry before him. The very request of the respondent No.4 in letter dated 1-6-2013 is misconceived. The petitioner responded to the respondent No.4 by stating that the Client has not engaged him for the inquiry pending before the respondent No.4, therefore, he cannot file a power of attorney in that inquiry. Instead of accepting the reply of the petitioner, the respondents went further to demand particulars from the petitioner with respect to his client. Specifically the petitioner has been summoned to provide information with respect to the identity of his Client and the whereabouts of his Client so that the Client can be interrogated by the respondents.

6. Article 9 of the Order of 1984 reads as follows:--
"No Advocate shall at any time be permitted, unless with his client's express consent, to disclose any communication made to him in the course and for the purpose of his employment as such advocate, by or on behalf of his client, or to state the contents or conditions of any document with which he has become acquainted in the course and for the purpose of his professional employment, or to disclose any advice given by him to his client in the course and for the purpose of such employment:

Provided that nothing in this Article shall protect from disclosure;
(1) any such communications made in furtherance of any illegal purpose; or

(2) any fact observed by any advocate, in the course of his employment as such, showing that any crime or fraud has been committed since the commencement of his employment, whether the attention of such advocate was or was not directed to such fact by or on behalf of his client.
Professional communication is privileged communication meaning that an advocate cannot be asked to disclose any communication made to him by his client in the course of his employment as the advocate. This privilege is necessary to ensure that a client has absolute confidence in his advocate from whom he seeks professional advice. The privilege promotes the freedom of consultation with legal advisors by clients. Communication held to be privileged information includes instructions, advice, documents communicated to the advocate during the course of his professional relationship with a client. It extends to information that the advocate becomes acquainted with in the course of his employment. Reliance is placed on the case titled 'Syed Ali Nawaz Gardezi v. Lt. Col. Muhammad Yusuf' (PLD 1963 SC 51). The identity of a client or the fact that a person has become a client of an advocate would generally not be termed as professional communication, hence it is not considered as privileged communication. This is because the relationship of advocate-client is generally not confidential information and is not information given by the client for the purposes of the employment as his advocate. It is usually a pre-requisite to the advocate-client relationship. However the circumstances in the instant case are unusual. The Client has engaged the petitioner to represent it before the Commissioner Inland Revenue in relation to a notice issued under section 21(2) of the Act of 1990. The matter pertains to fraudulent input tax adjustment and issuance of fake sale tax invoices. The notice under section 21(2) of the Act of 1990 was also copied to the Director, Directorate of Intelligence and Investigation, Inland Revenue with a request to depute an officer to attend the hearing along with record. The respondent No.4 on the basis of the same show cause notice initiated an investigation against the Client. Since the stated respondent was unable to identify and contact the proprietor of the Client, he required that the same information be provided to him by the petitioner. Essentially the respondent No.4 required the petitioner to identify the Client so that the investigation initiated by the respondent No.4 can proceed against its proprietor. The respondents have argued Article 9(2) of the Order of 1984 in their defense, however the said Article is not applicable or relevant as the identity of the Client is not a fact that the petitioner observed in the course of his employment. A communication is professional communication for the purposes of Article 9 of the Order of 1984 when it is made to the advocate in confidence, not intended to be disclosed to any person. The privilege is that of the client and not the advocate. The question of whether a client's identity is privileged communication is one of fact and should be decided on the basis of the facts of that case. In this case the Client has not required the petitioner to appear or represent the Client before the respondent No.4 and it has not disclosed the identity of its proprietor before the respondent No.4. The petitioner has been called upon to disclose the identity of the Client because the petitioner has been engaged by the Client in a case and the respondent No.4 wants to use the information that the petitioner has about the Client in furtherance of his investigation. It is also important to note that the Client has not revealed its identity to the respondent No.4 in its ongoing investigation. In such a situation the identity of the client becomes privileged communication under Article 9 of the Order of 1984. The respondents cannot use the machinery available to them for the purposes of investigation to compel an advocate engaged by a client to disclose the whereabouts of his client when the whereabouts and the identity of the client are under investigation. In the instant case, the petitioner has been summoned so that he may provide the identity and the whereabouts of the Client so that the Client can be interrogated with respect to the allegations of tax fraud levied against it. This fact is apparent from the letter issued by the respondent No.4 dated 7-6-2013 wherein the respondent No.4 has clearly stated that he is unable to locate the proprietor of Pearl Enterprises and that the petitioner should reveal the identity of the proprietor of Pearl Enterprises, the Client, since he is representing the Client in a matter pending before the Commissioner, Inland Revenue. The respondent No.4 cannot compel the petitioner to disclose the identity of the Client on the grounds that he is representing the Client before some other forum or in some other case. In such a circumstance the identity of the client becomes privileged communication under Article 9 of the Order of 1984.

7. n view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed and the impugned summon dated 21-6-2013 issued by the respondent No.4 is declared to be illegal.
MH/H-4/L Petition allowed.

(a) Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance (XLVI of 2001)---

----Ss. 9(2) & 10(4)---Bankers' Books Evidence Act (XVIII of 1891) Ss.2(8) & 4---Suit for recovery---Application for leave to defend---Certification of the statement of accounts---Mode of proof of entries in bankers' book---Persons authorized to certify statement of accounts---Scope---Interpretation of S. 2(8) of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891---Contention of the defendants/ applicants was inter alia that statement of accounts had not been certified by the competent authority in terms of S. 2(8) of the Banker's Books Evidence Act, 1891 which was a requirement under S.9(2) of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001---Validity---Statement of accounts filed with the plaint had been certified by the Senior Vice-President, Accounts Department as well as the Senior Vice-President and the Assistant Vice-President of the plaintiff Bank---Section 2(8) of the Banker's Books Evidence Act, 1891 required that certification be made by the principal accountant or the manager of the bank with his name and official title and said definition did not provide for the designation or title of the principal accountant or manager of the bank but required that a responsible officer of the bank certify the statement of accounts---Such an officer would provide his official title in the certification, meaning thereby, that the official title did not have to be a principal accountant or manager of the bank---Title of the persons maintaining the books of accounts may vary from bank to bank and may also change over time and the intent was to ensure that a responsible officer whose work related to accounts or management sign the certificate---In the present case, the certification had been issued by the Senior Vice-President, Accounts Department which was a certification by the principal accountant and the signature of the Senior Vice-President and Assistant Vice-President of the bank was a certification by the manager of the bank---Certification through the responsible officer meant the bank owned the statement of accounts and certified that the same represented the true and correct statement, as maintained in its books of accounts---Such certification enabled the court to consider the copies of the statement of accounts as admissible evidence in the suit---Requirements of S. 2(8) of the Act of 1891 was not mandatory but directory and that sufficient compliance would depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case---Where the accounts were duly signed by the agent of the bank, it implied that it was a true copy maintained by the bank in its ordinary course of business and that such book was in the custody of the bank---Contention that leave to defend had to be granted to ascertain that the signatures were that of the principal accountant and the manager of the bank was related to the authority of the persons signing the statement of accounts and no such objection had been made with regard to said authority in the present case---High Court held that the statement of accounts was compliant with S. 2(8) of the Banker's Books Evidence Act of 1891.

(b) Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance (XLVI of 2001)---

----Ss. 10 & 9---Suit for recovery---Application for leave to defend---Counter-claim made by the defendant---Effect---Res judicata in relation to counter claim of the defendant--- Procedure of Banking Court--- Scope---Contention of the defendant was that leave to defend be allowed on the ground that defendant had raised counter-claim against the plaintiff bank---Validity---Counter-claim of the defendant was based on the failure of the plaintiff Bank to disburse the total facility amount in terms of a commitment made by it, whereas the plaintiff Bank had filed a suit for the recovery of amounts disbursed to and due from, the defendant---Such were two separate and distinct issues where the suit of the plaintiff Bank would not operate as res judicata against the claim of the defendant---Section 9(3) of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 clearly provided that the suit should specifically provide as to what finance had been availed, what amounts had been paid and what amounts were due from the defendants and under S.10 of the Ordinance, the defendant in their leave to defend application had to show the finance availed and the finance due from them---Recovery suit was with respect to finance availed and due to the plaintiff where the issues were not directly and substantially the same as in a counter claim for damages being claimed on account of the conduct of the plaintiff bank---Held, that any grievance that the defendant had with respect to amounts not disbursed would not operate as res judicata against the defendants and such a counter claim could not be included in the leave to defend application as the leave to defend under S. 10 of the Ordinance was merely an application stating the grounds on the basis of which the defendant sought leave from the court with respect to the questions of law and fact for which evidence needed to be recorded specifically with respect to finance availed and finance due---Claim for damages could not be included in the leave to defend application as it did not give rise to the same questions of law or fact on the basis of which the court would adjudicate to decide on the claim of the plaintiff---Question of sustaining losses by the borrowers on account of conduct of the bank could be sorted out in some other forum instead of claiming relief from the Banking Court---Counter-claim related to damages was not germane to the issues raised for the purposes of grant of leave---Application for leave to defend was dismissed, in circumstances. JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This is a suit for recovery of Rs.112.102 million as on 24-3-2006 under section 9 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 (F.I.O. 2001) along with cost of funds, markup, liquidated damages and other charges till realization of whole amount, through sale of mortgaged properties and other assets of the defendants.

2. After service of notices, Preliminary Leave Application (P.L.A.) No.45-B of 2006 and PLA No.59-B of 2006 were filed by the defendants Nos.1-3 and defendants No.4 respectively. The defendant No.1 is a public limited company duly incorporated under the Companies Ordinance, 1984 with its registered office at Lahore. The defendants Nos.2 and 3 have issued personal guarantees in favour of the plaintiff for the liabilities of the defendant No. 1. The defendant No.4 is holding pari passu mortgage on the immovable property of the defendant No.1. The defendant No.4 has been arrayed as a pro forma defendant and no relief is being claimed against it.

3. The case of the plaintiff is that the plaintiff issued a facility letter dated 8-11-2003 sanctioning a finance facility in the amount of Rs. 150.00 million for setting up a new yarn dyeing unit. The defendant No.1 passed a resolution on 1-12-2003 to obtain the finance of Rs.150.00 million for the purchase of machinery for the yarn dyeing unit. The finance agreement was executed on 24-12-2003 by the defendant No.1 along with the security documents including Demand Promissory Note. On 29-12-2003 personal guarantees were executed by the defendants Nos.2 and 3 and the property of the defendant No.1 was mortgaged vide a Memorandum of Deposit of Title Deed (MDTD) dated 29-12-2003. Letter of Hypothecation and Deed of Floating Charge were issued with respect to the moveable assets of the defendant No.1 on 29-12-2003. The mortgage and charge was duly registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan (SECP) on 31-12-2003. Finance of Rs.48.840 million was disbursed to the defendant No.1 for execution of civil works. In this regard the loan account of the defendant No.1 was debited on 31-12-2003. The plaintiff paid Rs. 36.557 million to PICIC Commercial Bank Limited to meet the liabilities under the letters of credit established by the defendant No.1. Two Letters of Comfort dated 11-11-2004 for Rs.45.628 million and Rs. 13.464 million were issued by the plaintiff in favour of the defendant No.1 against the LCs opened by the defendant No.1 for import of machinery. At present the defendant No.1 is liable to pay Rs. 11.505 million and Rs. 11.839 million under the Letter of Comfort. Total amount due from the defendants Nos.1-3 is Rs. 112.102, Rs.108.742 million being finance availed and the balance being mark up, rebate and pre-payment premium.

4. The learned Counsel for the defendants Nos.1-3 argued that the defendants were entitled to unconditional leave to defend in the suit. The learned counsel raised an objection with respect to the statement of accounts (SOA). It is the case of the defendants that the SOA have not been certified by the competent authority as required under section 2(8) read with section 4 of the Banker's Book Evidence Act, 1891 (Act of 1891). The learned counsel argued that as per section 2(8) of the Act of 1891, the principal accountant or manager of the bank has to certify the SOA. In the instant case the SOA has been certified by the Senior Vice-President and the Assistant Vice-President of the plaintiff bank. Learned counsel argued that this is not in accordance with the mandate of section 2(8) read with section 4 of the Act of 1891 and they were not the officers contemplated under the section. He further argued that in terms of section 9(2) of the F.I.O. 2001, the certification of the SOA must be strictly in terms of the Act of 1891 otherwise it cannot be considered as a SOA under the Act of 1891. Learned counsel further argued that the SOA does not show any debit entries and therefore the SOA as filed with the plaint cannot be treated as a SOA contemplated under the Act of 1891 and the F.I.O., 2001. The second objection is with respect to the counter claim raised in the PLA. Learned counsel argued that the counter claim entitles the defendants to grant of leave as the defendants have a right to set off under Order VIII, Rule 6 of the Civil Procedure Code on account of the counter claim raised in the PLA against the plaintiff. Learned counsel further argued that leave has to be granted in this case because if the PLA of the defendants is dismissed, the counter claim of the defendants will be hit by the principle of res judicata. The third objection raised by the learned counsel is that the finance and security documents were novated on 26-10-2004 through a supplemental agreement which has not been appended with the plaint. Learned counsel argued that since the relevant documents have not been filed with the plaint, the defendants Nos.1 to 3 are entitled to leave to appeal. Defendants' counsel has relied upon the cases titled 'Mian Muhammad Shahbaz Sharif through Attorney v. Election Commission of Pakistan, Islamabad and 15 others' (PLD 2003 Lahore 646), 'Pakistan Kuwait Investment Company (Pvt.) Limited through Authorized Representative v. Messrs Active Apparels International and 6 others' (2012 CLD 1036), 'Messrs Soneri Bank Limited v. Messrs Compass Trading Corporation (Pvt.) Limited through Director/Chief Executive and 3 others' (2012 CLD 1302), 'Fine Textile Mills Ltd. v. Haji Umar' (PLD 1963 SC 163), 'Ali Khan & Co. v. Allied Bank of Pakistan' (PLD 1995 SC 362), 'Ravi Associate (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Industrial Development Bank of Pakistan' (2005 CLD 393), 'Bankers Equity Ltd. v. Betnonite Pakistan Ltd.' (2010 CLD 651), 'Suo Motu Case No.18 of 2010 dated 8-8-2011' (2012 PLC (C.S.) 394) and 'Messrs Muhammad Siddiq Muhammad Umar and another v. The Australasia Bank Ltd.' (PLD 1966 SC 684).

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The first issue raised by the defendants' counsel is with respect to the certification of the SOA filed with the plaint. Learned counsel has relied on section 2(8) read with section 4 of the Act of 1891, which read as follows:--
"(8) Certified copy" means a copy of any entry in the books of a bank together with a certificate written at the foot of such copy that it is a true copy of such entry, that such entry is contained in one of the ordinary books of the bank and was made in the usual and ordinary course of business, and that such book is still in the custody of the bank, such certificate being dated and subscribed by the principal accountant or manager of the bank with his name and official title."
4. Mode of proof of entries in bankers' book. Subject to the provision of this Act, a certified copy of any entry in a bankers' books shall in all legal proceedings be received as prima facie evidence of the existence of such entry, and shall be admitted as evidence of the matter, transactions and accounts therein recorded in every case where, and to the same extent as, the original entry itself is now by law admissible, but not further or otherwise".

The SOA filed with the plaint has been certified by the Senior Vice-President, Accounts Department as well as the Senior Vice-President and the Assistant Vice-President of the Plaintiff bank. The objection is that the signatories of the SOA are neither the principal accountant nor the manager of the bank. Section 2(8) of the Act of 1891 requires that the certification be made by the principal accountant or the manager of the bank with his name and official title. The definition does not provide for the designation or title of the principal accountant or manager of the bank. It requires that a responsible officer of the bank certify the SOA. Such an officer would provide his official title in the certification meaning thereby that the official title does not have to be principal accountant or manager of the bank. The title of the persons maintaining the books of accounts may vary from bank to bank and may also change over time. The intent is to ensure that a responsible officer whose work relates to accounts or management sign the certificate. Hence in this case the certification has been issued by the Senior Vice-President, Accounts Department which is a certification by the principal accountant and the signature of the Senior Vice-President and Assistant Vice-President of the bank is a certification by the manager of the bank. The certification through the responsible officer means the bank owns the SOA and certifies that the SOA represent the true and correct statement, as maintained in its books of accounts. The certification enables the Court to consider the copies of the statement of accounts as admissible evidence in the suit. In this regard it has been held in the case titled 'Barthels and Luders GmbH v. M.V. Dominique' (AIR 1988 Bombay 380) that the requirements of section 2(8) of the Act of 1891 is not mandatory but directory and that sufficient compliance would depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. The court was of the view that where the accounts were duly signed by the agent of the bank, it implied that it was a true copy maintained by the bank in its ordinary course of business and that such book was in the custody of the bank. In the case titled 'Barker v. Wilson' 1980 (2 All ER 81) at page 83 it has been held that for the purposes of Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1879, the Bankers' Book would include a micro film. Lord Bridge LJ held that 'I agree that the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1879 was enacted with the practice of Bankers in 1979 in mind. It must be construed in 1980 in relation to the practice of Bankers as we now understand it. So construing definition of the Bankers Books and the phrase an entry in the Bankers Books it seems to be that clearly both phrases are apt to include any form of permanent record kept by the Bank of transactions relating to the Bank's business made by any of the methods which modern technology makes available including in particular micro film.' The Learned Counsel has also argued that leave has to be granted to ascertain that the signatories are that of the principal accountant and the manager of the bank. However in order for leave to be granted on this issue the defendants would have to raise an issue with respect to the authority of the persons signing the SOA. No such objection has been made in the PLA. Learned counsel has also argued that the SOA do not show debit credit entries. No particular date or entry has been questioned. It is a general objection raised against the SOA. A perusal of the SOA shows that the debit and credit entries are there and the learned Counsel was unable to point out a single entry on the basis of which this objection was made. Therefore, I find no merit in this argument and find that the SOA are compliant with section 2(8) of the Act of 1891.

7. The second objection is with respect to the counter claim raised by the defendant No.1 in the PLA. The counter claim is for Rs.617,389,000 on account of loss and damages for failure to disburse the finance in terms of the commitment between the plaintiff and the defendant No.1. Consequently, the defendant No.1 claims that it has suffered loss of profit, marginal loss and financial loss as detailed in para 16 of the PLA. The counter claim filed in the PLA is one for damages, which has no nexus with the suit of the plaintiff for recovery of amounts due to it. The counter claim is based on the failure to disburse the total facility amount in terms of a commitment made by the plaintiff, whereas the plaintiff has filed a suit for the recovery of amounts disbursed to the defendants and due from them. These are two separate and distinct issues where the suit of the plaintiff will not operate as res judicata against the claim of the defendants Nos.1 to 3. Section 9(3) of the F.I.O., 2001 clearly provides that the suit should specifically provide what finance has been availed, what amounts have been paid and what amounts are due from the defendants. Under section 10 of the F.I.O. the defendants in their PLA have to show the finance availed and the finance due from them. Therefore a recovery suit is with respect to finance availed and due to the plaintiff where the issues are not directly and substantially the same as in a counter claim for damages being claimed on account of the conduct of the bank. Therefore in the instant suit, any grievance that the defendants have with respect to amounts not disbursed will not operate as res judicata against the defendants. Furthermore I am of the opinion that such a counter claim cannot be included in the PLA as the leave to defend under section 10 of the F.I.O., 2001 is merely an application stating the grounds on the basis of which the defendant seeks leave from the court with respect to the questions of law and fact for which evidence needs to be recorded specifically with respect to finance availed and finance due. Hence a claim for damages cannot be included in the PLA as it does not give rise to the same questions of law or fact on the basis of which this Court will adjudicate to decide on the claim of the plaintiff. Reliance is placed on the case titled 'Siddique Woollen Mills and others v. Allied Bank of Pakistan and others' (2003 CLD 1033) wherein it was held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that the plea of the borrowers neither constituted a defence in their favour independently nor it gave rise to a bona fide dispute between the parties because in such cases the court was required to examine the liability and acceptance by the borrowers. Question of sustaining losses by the borrowers on account of conduct of the bank could be sorted out in some other forum instead of claiming relief from the banking court. It has also been held in the case titled 'Messrs Razzaq & Company v. Messrs Riazeda (Pvt.) Ltd.' (1990 CLC 1243) that a counter claim related to damages was not germane to the issues raised for the purposes of grant of leave. Therefore in view of the aforesaid there is no merit in the objection raised.

8. The third objection raised by the learned Counsel for the defendants is with respect to the novation of the finance agreements. Learned counsel for the defendants has relied upon a date mentioned in the letter of hypothecation on the basis of which the entire argument of novation is built. To my mind, there is no merit in this argument. Nothing has been brought on the record to show that the agreement of finance was novated between the parties. The reliance of the date in the letter of hypothecation has not been connected with any other document of the plaintiff or relied upon by the plaintiff. Hence there is no merit in this objection.

9. The availing of the finance, creation of security in favour of the bank, mortgage deed and the execution of the documents have been duly established by the plaintiff. The liability is admitted in the balance sheet as at December 31, 2004. Disbursement of Rs.48,840,000 on 31-12-2003, Rs.700,000 dated 10-3-2005, Rs.2,204,460 dated 23-6-2005, Rs.809,566 dated 24-6-2005, Rs.3,604,833 dated 1-9-2005, Rs.8,511,932 dated 13-9-2005, Rs. 16,100,070 dated 18-2-2006 and Rs.4,627,213 dated 20-3-2006 are duly shown in the SOA. The total claim is for Rs. 108.741 plus Rs.23.344 million under the Letters of Comfort. The plaintiff also prays for mark-up of Rs.5.161 million and rebate of Rs.1.664 million and pre-payment premium of Rs.1.517. The plaintiff is not entitled to pre-payment premium of Rs.1.517 million.

10. Therefore, the suit of the plaintiff is decreed in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendants Nos.1, 2 and 3 under section 9 of the F.I.O., 2001 jointly as well as severally in the sum of Rs.110.585 million together with the cost of funds calculated from the date of default i.e. 24-3-2006 till realization of the decreetal amount. The plaintiff shall also be entitled to the costs of the suit.

11. The defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 3 shall have 30 days to pay the decreetal amount to the Decree Holder whereafter this decree shall automatically stand converted into execution proceedings without the need to file a separate application and no fresh notice shall be issued to the Judgment Debtors in this regard. Particulars of the mortgaged/hypothecated assets of the Judgment Debtors shall be filed by the Decree Holder for consideration of this Court on expiry of the afore-noted period of 30 days.

KMZ/N-3/L Suit decreed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK J.---This single judgment decides upon the common issues raised in W.Ps. Nos.22349 and 22356 of 2013 as both the petitioners have impugned the placement of their names on the Exit Control List (ECL) vide Office Memorandum dated 9-4-2013.

2. The case of the petitioners is that they are directors/shareholders in various corporate entities. Based on a request by the State Bank of Pakistan (SBP) and United Bank Limited (UBL) their names were placed on the ECL under Section 2 of the Exit from Pakistan (Control) Ordinance, 1981 (1981 Ordinance). In terms of the Office Memorandums, the names of the petitioners were placed on the ECL on account of some outstanding liability of UBL against each of the petitioners.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that the placement of the names of the petitioners on the ECL is illegal and without any justification. No notice was issued to the Petitioners prior to passing the impugned order. He argued that there is no determination that there is a default of any amount from the petitioners yet on the request of UBL and SBP the respondents have placed the names of the Petitioners on the ECL. Learned counsel argued that inclusion of the names of the petitioners on the ECL is a violation of the fundamental right of freedom of movement guaranteed under the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (Constitution). Further argued that the placement of names of the petitioners on the ECL cannot be used for collateral purpose for the recovery of bank dues. Learned counsel argued that the order of placing the names of the petitioners on the ECL is the result of highhandedness and abuse of authority as it is not a case of public interest but simply a case of recovery of amounts claimed by a financial institution. Further argued that mechanism for recovery is provided to financial institution under the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 (FIO 2001) and as such the respondents cannot use State machinery to coerce the petitioners in paying an amount which may or may not be due against the petitioners. Learned counsel argued that the Writ Petitions are maintainable against the order directing the placement of the names of the petitioners as they are patently illegal. Further argued that the remedy available under section 2(3) of the 1981 Ordinance is not an adequate remedy. In this regard he has placed reliance on the case titled "Mian Ayaz Anwar v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Interior and 3 others "(PLD 2010 Lahore 230).

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respondents. Admittedly, the names of the petitioners have been placed on the ECL by the Ministry of Interior on the request of State Bank of Pakistan through its letter dated 29-3-2013. Learned DAG has placed copies of both the letters on the file. Learned DAG has relied upon the request made by UBL to the Director Banking Policy and Regulation Department, State Bank of Pakistan. Learned DAG has argued that public interest is always involved in money matters. Further argued that the petitioners are defaulters and should not be allowed to leave the country. While relying on the case titled

"Dossani Travels Pvt. Ltd. and 4 others v. Messrs Travels Shop (Pvt.) Ltd. and others" (2013 SCMR 1749), learned DAG states that this is a policy matter and should not be interfered with by the Court. He has also placed reliance on the case titled "Miss Naheed Khan v. Government of Pakistan and others" (PLD 1997 Karachi 513) wherein it has been held that freedom of a person can be restricted in public interest.

5. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The Office Memorandums dated 9-4-2013 state that the names of the petitioners have been placed on the ECL pursuant to a request made by the State Bank of Pakistan on behalf of UBL dated 29-3-2013. As per the record both the petitioners are obligated to pay some amounts to UBL. Since they have failed to pay, UBL made a request to SBP for placement of names on ECL. Copies of the request letters sent by UBL to the State Bank of Pakistan are available on the file. UBL requested that the names of the petitioners be placed on the ECL for the following reasons:--
"Various efforts are being made for the recovery of funding extended to Paramount Spinning Mills Limited by all the banks/financial institutions and we fear that the main sponsors may leave the country to avoid any legal repercussions. In order to protect the interest of the bank and to exert pressure on the management for a workable solution, we see SBP 's approval to place name of the following Director/Sponsor of Paramount Spinning Mills Limited on the Exit Control List (ECL) under Exit from Pakistan (Control) Ordinance, 1981 on an urgent basis."
A bare review of the reason provided in the said letters shows that the financial institution is using State machinery to exert pressure on the petitioners to repay amounts due to it. Nothing has been appended with the letters to show the default, if any, or to show that the default has been established by a Court of competent jurisdiction. The FIO, 2001 is a special law with exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate upon disputes between the financial institution and its customer. Where the financial institution is seeking to recover amounts due to it from a customer, the Banking Court after following due process of law adjudicates upon the matter and decide whether or not the customer is in default. Without a clear determination from the Court of competent jurisdiction on the question of default, the State Bank cannot use State machinery for recovery purposes.

7. Rule 2(e) of the Exit from Pakistan (Control) Rules, 2010 (Rules 2010) provides that case of two or more key or main directors of a firm, in default of loan or liabilities exceeding one hundred million rupees. The key word in this Rule is 'default' of loan or liabilities. Admittedly, there is no decree against the petitioners with respect to the amount stated to be due to UBL. The 1981 Ordinance aims to control the exit of certain persons from Pakistan. The Rules provide for the grounds to prohibit persons from proceeding abroad. In the case of petitioner in W.P. No.22349 of 2013 the outstanding liability due against him is stated to be Rs.307.216 million. Similarly in the case of the petitioner in W.P. No.22356 of 2013 the outstanding liability due against him is stated to be Rs.711.141 million.

However there is no decree from the Banking Court declaring the petitioners to be in default. Furthermore there is no explanation provided by UBL or SBP as to whether the petitioners are main directors of the company whose loan is due. A review of the record shows that the respondents did not require any information from the SBP or from UBL but simply processed the request of the SBP for placing the names of the petitioners on the ECL with immediate effect. The SBP did not question the request of the UBL and instead mechanically placed the request before the respondents. To the mind of this Court, the reasons given by UBL for the placement of the names of the petitioners on the ECL are not legal. A review of the request shows that they clearly want to put pressure on the petitioners for 'workable solution'. State machinery cannot be used for the purposes of extorting pressure. Furthermore State machinery cannot be used for the purposes of a private dispute unless government interest is at stake. This is clearly provided in Rule 2(2)(a) of the Rules 2010 that persons involved in private disputes where government interest is not at stake, except cases of fraud against foreign banks and reputable companies with significant foreign investments. In the case cited at "Munir Ahmad Bhatti v. Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Interior through Secretary and others" (PLD 2010 Lahore 697) it was held that the respondents should keep in mind public interest that is the interest of the country being a common interest and not just for the interest of an individual before placing the name of citizen on the ECL. In the case of cited at "Hassan Raza through Lawfully Constituted Attorney v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of Interior, Islamabad and 2 others" (2012 CLD 92), it was held that ECL Rules 2010 are not applicable in the case where person is involved in a private dispute unless government interest is at stake or where person is involved in fraud against foreign banks and reputable companies with significant foreign investment or if it is shown that person involved in heinous crime or in drug trafficking. In the case cited at "Wasatullah Jaffery v. Ministry of Interior through Secretary, Federal Government of Pakistan and 4 others" (PLD 2014 Sindh 28) it was held that where a Ministry of Interior has placed the name of a person on the ECL in a mechanical manner without applying its mind, without passing a speaking order and without disclosing the basis of its intention of exercising power under section 2(3) of the 1981 Ordinance, then such action on the part of the Ministry of Interior was unfair, unreasonable; not in a good faith and in violation of a fundamental right.

8. Therefore in terms of the law laid down the names of the petitioners have been placed on the ECL without application of mind, in a mechanical manner and without considering the element of public interest by the respondents. The petitioners have been denied their fundamental right without due process of law.

9. In view of the aforesaid, these Petitions are allowed. The request of the UBL through letter dated 13-2-2013 is set aside and the name of the petitioners be removed from the ECL forthwith.

KMZ/T-6/L Petition allowed.

Judgment

Through this Petition, the Petitioner has impugned the letter dated 19.11.2013 issued by the Respondent No. 1, Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB).

2. The facts of the case are that the Petitioner is the president of an active club i.e. `Baghbanpura Cricket Club' and has submitted his nomination papers for the seat of Secretary of the North Zone Cricket Association. The Governing Body of the Respondent No. 1 decided on 8.5.2013 that interim committees of Regions and District/Zones would facilitate the holding of elections at Regional/District/Zonal

Cricket Associations. This appointment of interim committees for Regions and Districts was challenged through several constitutional petitions where-after this Court ordered on 20.5.2013 that the role of interim committee shall be limited to make arrangement for holding of elections and facilitating the same. The committee can also look after the day to day matters of the Associations till the elected office bearers take charge of the Associations. The elections have not been held yet the Respondent No. 1 issued the impugned letter dated 19.11.2013 whereby the interim committees were dissolved with immediate effect and the PCB Domestic Cricket Department are to manage and regulate the affairs of the LCCA/LRCA until the electoral process was completed. The grievance of the Petitioner is that by dissolving the interim committees the process of transparency has been done away with mala fide reasons as the Respondent No. 1 wants to control the election results. The strength of the argument of the learned counsel for the Petitioner is based on the order dated 20.5.2013 in W.P. No. 12166/2013 as he argued that the Court had allowed the continuation of the interim committees until the finalization of the election process and the new elected office bearers take charge. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the interim committee was to continue until the new office bearers took charge and it was only then the interim committees would dissolve. Hence the Petitioner is aggrieved by the fact that his nomination and participation in the election is adversely affected by the impugned letter as the Respondent No. 1 will only allow persons of its own choosing to succeed in the District/Zonal elections.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned counsel for the Respondents has raised a preliminary objection that the Petitioner claims to be the president of the `Baghbanpura Cricket Club', however nothing has been appended with the instant Writ Petition to show that he is the president or that he has been authorized by the club to institute the instant petition. Furthermore he has raised the objection that the Petition is not maintainable against an executive decision. Further argued that there is nothing in the orders of this Court dated 20.5.2013 in W.P. No. 12166/2013 wherein the Respondent No. 1 was directed to continue with the interim committees. The interim committees were set up to ensure fair and transparent elections by way of an executive decision. Subsequently the Respondent No. 1 found that many of the members of the interim committees were themselves contesting the elections, hence in order to ensure fairness in the election process, the interim committees were dissolved and the matter was handed over to the Domestic Cricket Department. Learned counsel argued that these are executive decisions and as such cannot be challenged in a constitutional petition. Learned counsel further argued that these decisions are made in the best interest of the game to ensure transparency in the election process.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. The basic objection with respect to the authorization of the Petitioner is based on merit consideration as the Petitioner has filed this petition in his individual capacity as a contestant in the election for the seat of Secretary North Zone Cricket Association, hence no requirement of authorization to be filed by the Cricket Club of which the Petitioner asserts to be the president.

6. The question before this Court is whether the Respondent No. 1 could have issued the impugned letter and done away with the interim committees that it had originally set up. The interim committees were constituted vide letter dated 9.5.2013 to facilitate the election process of the Regional Cricket Associations. The committees were not involved in any substantive work other that facilitating the election process. The committees were also to look after day to day routine matters till such time that the election process was completed and the new office bearers would take charge. In WP No. 12166/ 2013 the constitution of the interim committees was challenged and it was held in order dated 20.5.2013 that without prejudice to the right of the petitioners to raise objections regarding legality of appointment of the interim committee, and without recording any finding on the same, that the role of the said committee shall be strictly limited to making arrangements for holding of the elections of the associations and facilitating the same. The committee shall not directly or indirectly take any steps for disqualification of any member/association. Further, the elections shall be held on a date within one week commencing 18th June, 2013. The exact date shall be fixed by the Election Commission in strict compliance with the requirements of the Constitution of PCB. The Committee may also look after routine day-to-day matters of Associations till the elected office bearers take charge of the Associations. This order of 20.5.2013 was upheld in ICA No. 549/2013 on 3.6.2013. A review of both the orders shows that there was no direction to maintain the interim committees. Based on the submissions made by the Respondent PCB the constitution of the interim committees was maintained for a limited purpose. Subsequently the Respondent No. 1 keeping in mind the changed circumstances issued the impugned letter dated 19.11.2013 wherein the interim committees were dissolved with immediate effect and the role of the interim committees was handed over to the PCB Domestic Cricket Department until the completion of the electoral process. The Petitioner has no vested right on the basis of which it can claim that the decision to constitute the interim committees should continue until the election process is completed. To the mind of this Court the decision was taken in order to ensure transparency and fairness in the election process. With the same spirit in mind, the decision was reviewed and the work of the interim committees was handed over to the PCB Domestic Cricket Department for the same reasons, to ensure fairness and transparency in the election process. The explanation rendered by the learned counsel for the Respondents that the members of the interim committees themselves are participating in the election process, therefore allowing them to facilitate the election process and allow them to run day to day affairs of the Regional Cricket Association would adversely affect the election process is a justified reason for handing over the work of the interim committees to the PCB Domestic Cricket Department. Furthermore the decision to constitute interim committees is a policy decision made by the Respondent No. 1 and the impugned letter dated 19.11.2013 is also a policy decision made by the Respondent No. 1. The Petitioner has failed to show the malafide of the Respondent No. 1 and has also failed to show how he is adversely affected by the impugned letter. His primary objective is to participate in a fair and transparent election. Nothing has been brought on the record or argued before thus Court on the basis of which the Petitioner has been able to show how the election process is being managed or manipulated by the Respondents and in particular consequent to the decision in the impugned letter.

7. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made. Petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the petitioner has impugned the decision of the respondent No.2 to purchase pentavalent vaccine from UNICEF without following the procedure under the Public Procurement Regularity Authority Ordinance, 2002 (PPRA Ordinance).

2. The case of the petitioner is that the respondent No.2, Ministry of National Health Services, Regulations and Coordination, Islamabad provides free vaccination to the children up to the age of five years. The respondents invite open bids for the procurement of the required vaccination. The pentavalent vaccine has been procured by the respondent No.2 through public tender in the years 2010, 2011 and 2012. However, by virtue of a proclamation issued on 17-12-2013 bids for the procurement of vaccination for the financial year 2013-2014 were made in which the pentayalent vaccine was not advertised. The grievance of the petitioner is that the respondent No.2 has not followed the procurement procedure and instead has awarded the contract to purchase pentavalent vaccine to UNICEF, which is against the settled law.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that this issue has already been decided in Writ Petition No.2902 of 2011 and I.C.A. No.132 of 2006 wherein this Court held that the vaccine procured for the Expending Program of Immunization (EPI) must be done through the Public Procurement Rules, 2004 (PPRA Rules). Learned counsel argued that instead of following the prescribed procedure and the law, the respondents have entered into an agreement with UNICEF for the purchase of the vaccine. Learned counsel argued that the agreement is against public interest because the vaccine must be of a prescribed standard, must contains the required potency, efficacy and quality and that must not be expired. Further argued that in the minutes of meeting held on 9-5-2012 under the Chairmanship of the Special Secretary, Health Department, it was observed that in terms of the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) signed with UNICEF, UNICEF is absolved of any liability with regard to the value, adequacy, quality, stability or usefulness of the supplies made. UNICEF does not take responsibility for any defective medication nor does it offer any warranty for the vaccine that is provided. On the basis of this, it was discussed and recommended that free supply of vaccines should not be accepted. It was also discussed that UNICEF did not participate in the competitive process, hence its prices should not be accepted. Finally, it was agreed that no procurement should be made with public money without obtaining proper warranty of the vaccine. Learned counsel emphasized the fact that at this meeting it was unanimously agreed that the vaccine procured for the EPI program would be in terms of the PPRA Rules and the PPRA Ordinance. Learned counsel argued that under the PPRA Ordinance in the event that there is a conflict with an international or internal government commitment arising out of international treaty or an agreement then the international commitment or agreement shall prevail. Learned counsel argued that in the instant case there is no international treaty or commitment with the state or with any international institution, hence the respondents cannot take the benefit of Rule 5 of PPRA Rules. Learned counsel further argued that there is no justification for deviating from the prescribed procedure, which the respondents have themselves followed for some time. Learned counsel has relied upon the case cited at "Human Rights Cases Nos.4668 of 2006, 1111 of 2007 and 15283-G of 2010" (PLD 2010'SC 759) in support of his contention that for the purposes of public money, open bidding must be undertaken in every project of the government. Learned counsel argued that this not only ensures the best price offered but also protects the quality and fairness in the process. Reliance has also been placed upon the case titled "Atta Ullah Khan Malik v. Federation of Government of Pakistan through President of Pakistan and 3 others" (PLD 2010 Lahore 605).

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respondents Nos.2 and 4. Learned DAG explained that the Government of Pakistan is implementing the EPI policy. In its effort, the Government is supported by a number of partners including GAVI Alliance, which is an international immunization financing institution. With the help of GAVI Alliance, Pakistan is able to procure vaccine including the pentavalent vaccine for routine immunization. Learned DAG argued that the respondents have been procuring this vaccine through an open tender, however on account of a default in its obligations, GAVI Alliance has compelled Pakistan to purchase the vaccine from UNICEF. He further argued that another reason for not following the procurement process was that the only person that opted for local tender was Novartis Pharma, who has been enjoying this contract for the last several years as it is the single bidder in each auction. Resultantly, the price being offered by Novartis Pharma is far higher than that being offered by the UNICEF. Learned DAG has explained that under the GAVI Alliance, a country enters into default status when it does not fulfil its co-financing commitment by 31st of December. In the instant case, Pakistan did not fulfil its co-financing status by 31-12-2013, hence a letter was issued by GAVI Alliance that Pakistan should procure the pentavalent vaccine through UNICEF. He argued that the purchase of pentavalent vaccine through UNICEF is covered under Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules as the Government is honouring an international commitment. He further argued that the procurement of the vaccine needs to be done urgently as the government is running out of its stock. Learned DAG stated that under these circumstances the petitioner has no vested interest and is not an aggrieved person to file the instant writ petition. Rana Muhammad Safdar, National Programme Manager, EPI explained that for the pentavalent vaccine there is only one manufacturer in the world and whether the vaccine is purchased through UNICEF or through a local bidder, it has to be procured from the same source. He explained that all required warranties are taken from the manufacturer and it is ensured that the vaccine procured is not expired and is of the required standard.

5. No one has entered appearance' on behalf of the Respondent No.3 nor has any reply been filed on his behalf.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that, a reply was filed in the similar writ petition by the respondent No.3 wherein he stated that the agreement between the respondent No.1 and UNICEF does not fall within the ambit of Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules. Learned counsel has also placed on record a letter dated 21-1-2014 to show that the Public Procurement Regulatory Authority, Islamabad had given its legal opinion on the issue stating that MOUs signed between the respondent No.2

and UNICEF does not fall under Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules. He has placed on record the opinion given by the respondent No.2 on 3-10-2013 that before procuring vaccine from UNICEF exemption from the Public Procurement Regulatory Authority, Islamabad should be obtained.

7. Learned DAG pursuant to the orders of this Court has placed on record the relevant documentation to show the approval process for procurement of the pentavalent vaccine from UNICEF. In terms of the documents on 4-12-2013 the issue was referred for approval to the Secretary, Ministry of National Health Services, Regulations and Coordination, Islamabad on the ground that Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules was not applicable. On 10-12-2013 Deputy Director Procurement advised that there is no conflict with the PPRA Rules or with the decision of the Court. On the basis of this opinion, payment of Rs.1,272,184,985/ to UNICEF was approved for the purchase of pentavalent vaccine. On 27-12-2013 it was informed that the competent authority has allowed advance payment of Rs. 1,272,184,985/- to UNICEF for the purchase of vaccine, syringes and safety boxes.

8. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

9. The issue before this Court is with respect to the purchase of the pentavalent vaccination. Under the EPI, Pakistan has been approved for support by GAVI Alliance. As per the GAVI Alliance policy vaccination is provided for routine immunization of children under 12 months of age and Pakistan is required to co-finance the cost of the vaccination. As per the contentions made by the learned DAG and Rana Muhammad Safdar, National Programme Manager, EPI, 10% of the total cost has to be co-financed by Pakistan. In terms of the MOU executed with GAVI Alliance, Pakistan is required to communicate the steps that it has taken to co-finance its portion of the approved vaccination. In the event that this commitment of co-financing is not followed and notified by the respondent No.1, it is considered as a default under the GAVI Alliance policy and the participating country is put to notice of its default and thereafter required to purchase the vaccination from UNICEF. In theinstant case on 15-10-2013 the respondent No.2 was informed that Pakistan has been approved by GAVI Alliance for the procurement of pentavalent vaccination and that GAVI Alliance required proof of satisfying the co-financing requirement for the year for which the vaccination has been approved. On 7-11-2013 GAVI Alliance informed the respondent No.2 that Pakistan appears to be at risk of entering into a default status with GAVI as UNICEF has not reported the necessary steps to procure the vaccination to meet the GAVI co-financing commitment for the year, 2013. Through this letter dated 7-11-2013 Pakistan was informed that it has to procure the vaccination through the UNICEF. On 22-11-2013 the costs estimates were sent for procurement through UNICEF. On 4-12-2013 the matter was discussed and Dr. Rana Muhammad Safdar, NPM, EPI who gave his recommendation that the procurement and the co-financing with GAVI Alliance is covered under clause 5 of the PPRA Rules, therefore, the amount of Rs.1,272,184,985.00 should be paid to UNICEF. On 10-12-2013 Deputy Director (Procurement) agreed with the advice of Dr. Rana Muhammad Safdar, NPM, EPI stating that there was no conflict with Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules and there was no conflict with the judgment rendered by this Court in I.C.A. No.132/2006 because the question of default as per GAVI co-financing facility had not been considered. The matter was subsequently approved by the Secretary and the amount of Rs. 1,272,184,985/- in favour of the UNICEF as advance payment was allowed. The record shows that Pakistan was in default in the year, 2012 on its co-financing requirement and again was in default in the year, 2013. A MOU was signed with UNICEF for the supply of the vaccination on 17-12-2013. On 21-1-2014 the Federal Public Procurement Regulatory Authority communicated its advice that this was in violation of Rule 5 of PPR Rules. Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules reads as follows:-

"Whenever these rules are in conflict with an obligation or commitment of the Federal Government arising out of an international treaty or an agreement with a State of States, or any international financial institution the provisions of such international treaty or agreement shall prevail to the extent of such conflict"

The Procurement Rules have been made under the PPRA Ordinance wherein the basic objective is to regulate the public procurement of goods or services. In the instant case the pentavalent vaccination is to be procured. Through an order in an earlier W.P. No.1858 of 2006, on 10-11-2006 the respondents Nos.l and 2 agreed to follow the PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules for the purchase of the vaccines from the next fiscal year. Against this order an appeal was filed wherein it was' held on 30-5-2007 that the respondents shall follow the PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules in letter and spirit to procure the vaccination under the EPI. They also ensured that the medicines are supplied strictly in accordance with the laws applicable in Pakistan. Since then the record shows that the respondents have been procuring the pentavalent vaccination as per the process laid down in the PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules. The issue for the respondents arose in the year, 2013 on account of the fact that only one bidder was appearing in the past in the tendering process for the procurement of the pentavalent vaccines. It has been emphasized at great length that the bidder being Novartis Pharma is offering a higher rate than the rate being offered by the UNICEF, hence the PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules were not followed. I am of the opinion that this argument is not available to the respondents. PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules are there to ensure transparency in spending public money. Under the circumstances there is no justification not to adhere to the PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules simply because a single bidder is appearing in the bidding process. Therefore this argument has no merit.

10. It has also been argued at great length that Pakistan entered into a default situation with GAVI Alliance in its co-financing obligation, hence the respondents were compelled to procure the vaccination from UNICEF. Both the petitioner and the respondents have placed documents on file to show the manner in which the procurement of the vaccination through UNICEF was allowed. I am of the opinion that the emphasis on the argument of the default in the co-financing requirement is not available to the respondents because the default if caused is by the respondents themselves. They were aware of the obligation of co-financing the procurement of the pentavalent vaccination and there is nothing on the record to show that a default was caused or even that a default situation arose. In the numerous explanations offered before the Court nothing has been brought forward which explains or justifies the delay caused by the respondents in meeting up with their co-financing requirement. Furthermore the record shows that the respondents were in default in the year 2012 and GAVI Alliance anticipated a default for its future commitment for the year, 2013-14, hence it informed the respondents that in order to avoid a default situation, the vaccination should be procured through UNICEF. This is evident from the letter communicated by GAVI Alliance on 15-10-2013. The letter provides that GAVI Independent Review Committee has considered Pakistan's Annual Progress Report submitted in May, 2013 and on the basis of this report has rendered support for the pneumococcal and pentavalent vaccines for the year 2014. Appendix A with the said letter communicates the co-finance requirement. Appendix B details the vaccination support programme and for the pentavalent vaccination it says that the country shall release its co-finance payment each year to UNICEF. Subsequently a follow up letter was issued on 7-11-2013 wherein it provides that Pakistan appears to be at risk of entering into default status with the GAVI Alliance, as UNICEF has not reported that the necessary steps to procure vaccines to meet the GAVI co-financing commitment for 2013. Therefore a direction was given by GAVI Alliance that in order to avoid default status and to ensure that the co-financing commitment for 2013 is fulfilled before 31-12-2013, the country should procure its co-finance portion of the approved vaccines through UNICEF. Immediately state machinery was put to work and the advance payment of Rs.1,272,184,985.00 was approved before 30-12-2013. The quickness of the respondents in their approval was based on the understanding that Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules was not applicable and the commitment made in W.P. No.1859 of 2006 and I.C.A. No.132 of 2006 was also not applicable. To the mind of this Court, the justification for not following the PPRA Rules is not available to the respondents. Not only did they give their commitment before the Court in W.P. No.1859 of 2006 as well as in the I.C.A. No.132/2006 that they would adhere to the PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules but Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules shows that the same is not applicable for the purposes of the co-financing obligation with GAVI Alliance. The commitment with GAVI Alliance is not an international treaty nor is it an agreement with the State nor is it an agreement with an international financial institution that it would prevail over the PPRA Rules. On the basis of Rule 3 of the PPRA Rules all procurements made by the Federal Government within or outside Pakistan, the PPRA Rules are applicable. It is also observed that respondent No.3 first took the stance that the PPRA Rules were not applicable (Ref. Deputy Director (Procurement) dated 10-12-2013) and then took the contradictory stance, after all approvals were given, that the PPRA Rules were mandatory (Ref. Deputy Director (Legal) letter dated 21-1-2014).

11. Under the circumstances, the respondents cannot bypass the-procurement process as provided under the PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules. Any commitment with GAVI Alliance falls outside the scope of Rule 5 of the PPRA Rules, hence not applicable to the case at hand.

12. Therefore in view of the aforesaid, this Writ Petition is allowed. The respondents are directed to hold open tenders under the PPRA Rules for the procurement of the pentavalent vaccination and the commitment it has entered into with UNICEF for the procurement of pentavalent vaccine is illegal for being contrary to the PPRA Ordinance and the PPRA Rules.

Sales Tax Act (VII of 1990)---

----Ss. 2(22A), 7, 2(20)(c) & 2(4)---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 199---Constitutional petition---Interpretation of Ss. 2(22A) and 7 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990---Provincial sales tax---Adjustment of provincial input tax by the taxpayer under S. 7(1) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990---Specific nature of right of adjustment of input tax---Determination of sales tax liability---Petitioner / taxpayer impugned denial of input tax adjustment on provincial sales tax paid by petitioner---Such adjustment was denied to the petitioner by the Department on the ground that notwithstanding promulgation of provincial sales tax law in three Provinces, the same were not recognized as provincial sales tax law for the purpose of input tax adjustment by the Department---Department further contended that S. 2(22A) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 provided a discretion to decide as to which provincial sales tax should be allowed for adjustment of input tax under S. 7 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990---Held, that basic right of the petitioner was provided under S. 7(1) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 wherein taxpayer was entitled to adjustment of input tax from their output tax for a given tax period---Sales Tax Act, 1990 had clearly defined input tax under S. 2(14) and output tax under S. 2(20)(c) to mean provincial sales tax levied on services rendered or provided to the person---Section 2(22A) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 defined provincial sales tax to mean tax levied under provincial laws which meant provincial sales tax as promulgated in any or all of the Provinces of Pakistan and further defined that for purposes of the Islamabad Capital Territory, provincial sales tax would be that which was declared by the Federal Government to be a provincial sales tax for purposes of input tax adjustment, which declaration was required in the Official Gazette only for the purpose of Islamabad Capital Territory---Respondent Department, in the present case, had assumed under the cover of S.2(22A) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 a discretionary power to decide as to which provincial sales tax should be allowed for input tax adjustment, and such discretion had the effect that S. 7 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 had become subject to the discretion of the Department and the Federal Government; which clearly was not within the scheme of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 which on the contrary, provided a specific right of adjustment of input tax---Section 2(22A) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 could not be used to deny the right of input tax adjustment by a declaration in the Official Gazette---High Court directed the Department to accept sales tax return filed by the petitioner by allowing adjustment claimed by the petitioner of provincial sales tax on services under provincial laws---Constitutional petition was allowed, accordingly.

Date of hearing: 7th March, 2014.

JUDGMENT

Mrs. AYESHA A. MALIK J.---Through this single judgment, the instant writ petition along with all the writ petition detailed in Schedule-A are being decided as all the petitioners have impugned the decision of the respondents wherein they have denied adjustment of input tax under section 2(22A) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (STA) as amended by the Finance Act, 2013 to the petitioners.

2. The grievance of all the petitioners is that respondent No.2, Federal Board of Revenue has misinterpreted section 2(22A) of the S.T.A. whereby adjustment of input tax to the Provinces including the Provinces of Punjab and Sindh are not being allowed whereas the adjustment of input tax for the Islamabad Capital Territory and Balochistan is being allowed.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners have argued that the petitioners acquire services on which the sales tax is paid by them to the provincial governments such as Government of Punjab under Punjab Sales Tax on Services Act, 2012 and the Government of Sindh under the Sindh Sales Tax on Services Act, 2011. Learned counsel argued that in terms of section 2(14) of the STA provincial sales tax levied on services rendered or provided to a registered person constitutes input tax. Similarly, in terms of section 2(20)(c) of the STA provincial sales tax levied on services rendered or provided by a person falls within the definition of output tax. Provincial sales tax is defined under section 2(22A) of the STA. Learned counsel for the petitioners have argued that the scheme of the law is that under section 7(1) of the STA a registered person is entitled to claim the adjustment of input tax for the purposes of its sales tax liability subject to section 8 of the STA. Section 8(1)(a) of the STA provides that all provincial sales tax on services are adjustable as input tax except where the services used or to be used for any purpose other than for taxable supplies. Consequently all provincial sales tax on services are adjustable as input tax except where the services used are for purpose other than making taxable supplies. Section 2(22A) of the STA defines provincial sales tax to mean sales tax levied under provincial law for all the Provinces and sales tax levied in Islamabad

Capital Territory through a notification in the official Gazette by the Federal Government. Learned counsel argued that section 2 (22A) of the STA is being misinterpreted by the respondent No.2 wherein they are of the opinion that the Federal Government through a notification will declare which provincial sales tax is relevant for the purposes of claiming input tax. Learned counsel further argued that this is an incorrect interpretation of the law as they have interpreted the said section to mean that it can only include those provincial sales tax, which have been duly notified in the official Gazette. Learned counsel argued that such an interpretation is against the scheme of the STA which clearly entitles a registered person to claim adjustment of input tax for the purposes of determination of his sales tax liability. Further argued that the provincial sales tax on services shall be determined by a provincial law and the provincial law does not require a declaration of a Federal Government through a notification deeming it to be a law for the purposes of input tax adjustment. Learned counsel argued that the Federal Government cannot control the applicability of a provincial law through a notification. Further argued that the petitioners are entitled to the adjustment of input tax on the basis of the STA being a clear statutory right and the mandate of the law cannot be such that it would allow the Federal Government to control this right through a notification. It has been argued that although the vires of the section have been challenged, essentially the petitioners are aggrieved the interpretation given to section 2(22A) of the S.T.A. by the respondent No.2.

4. Report and para wise comments have been filed by the respondent No.2 in Writ Petition No.28917/2013, which have been adopted in all the writ petitions. In terms of the report and para wise comments filed by the respondent No.2, section 7 of the S.T.A. provides for a procedure regarding the determination of a tax liability. Input tax on provincial services is admissible when the law permits it in terms of section 2(14) read with section 2 (22A) of the STA, this means that input tax on provincial services are only admissible and available to the petitioners when notified by the Federal Government. The Federal Government has not issued any such notification for any of the Provinces. The input tax is being allowed for the Islamabad Capital Territory because it is a Federal Territory and for Balochistan because it has not promulgated its provincial sales tax law. The respondent No.2 has further explained that the respondent No.2 has always collected sales tax on specified services under the STA and has allowed adjustment of input tax with respect to such sales tax. After the Eighteenth Amendment three Provinces with the exception of Balochistan promulgated separate statutes for the levy of sales tax on services. These three Provinces have set up their own collecting authorities and therefore, for all intents and purposes the provincial sales tax is a separate tax collected by the different provincial authorities irrespective of the sales tax collected under the STA. It is for this reason that insertion of section 2(22A) of the STA was brought through the Finance Act, 2013 such that provincial sales tax can only be levied under provincial law if it is declared by the Federal Government through the notification that the provincial sales tax can be considered as input tax for the purposes of adjustment under section 7 of the STA. Learned counsel for the respondent No.2 argued that since no provincial sales tax law has been notified by the Federal Government therefore, the petitioners are not entitled to claim input tax adjustment under the STA. Learned counsel further explained that the Federal Government is in the process of developing arrangements with the Provinces whereby the mutual adjustment of input tax will be allowed. However, this shall be on the basis of an agreement with the Provinces. Learned counsel has also stated that to date on the basis of the interim order passed by this Court, the respondents have accepted the manually filed sales tax returns from the petitioners.

5. Report and para wise comments have also been filed by the respondents Nos.4 and 5. It is their case that they are in full agreement with the contentions made by the petitioners. They have explained that the STA enables the Federal Board of Revenue to collect sales tax on services and make adjustments in order to avoid multiple taxes. After the Eighteenth Amendment, the Federal Board of Revenue is no longer entitled to levy sales tax on services in the Provinces, hence each Province was to promulgate its own law and devise its own mechanism for the levy and collection of sales tax. So far only three Provinces Sindh, Punjab and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa have promulgated their own laws and have started collection of sales tax on services within the Provinces. The sales tax on service in the Province of Balochistan has not commenced as they have not promulgated any law or set up any mechanism. Hence the respondent No.2 is allowing the adjustment of input tax against the Province of Balochistan. Similarly, there is no provincial law for the purposes of the Federal Capital Territory, hence the respondent No.2 is allowing input tax adjustment in the Federal Capital Territory of Islamabad. They argued that this unilateral action by the respondent No.2 and is against the mandate of the law.

6. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

7. The basic dispute in all these petitions is with respect to the Federal Board of Revenues (FBRs) interpretation of section 2(22A) of the STA. Section 2(22A) of the STA provides for the definition of provincial sales tax. The significance of this definition is that under section 7(1) of the STA a registered person is entitled to deduct input tax paid or payable during the tax period for the purposes of taxable supplies made or to be made by it from the output tax. The definition of input tax and output tax as provided in the STA means provincial sales tax levied on services rendered or provided by the person. The question arises what is provincial sales tax. Section 2 (22A) of the STA reads as follows:--

"(22A) provincial sales tax means tax levied under provincial laws or laws relating to Islamabad Capital Territory, which are declared by the Federal Government, through notification in the official Gazette to be provincial sales tax for the purposes of input tax"

The respondent No.2 has denied the petitioners input tax adjustment on the grounds that notwithstanding the promulgation of provincial sales tax law in three Provinces, they are not recognized as provincial sales law for the purposes of input tax adjustment by the respondents. The respondent No.2 claims that it is for the respondent No.1 to decide which provincial tax is relevant for input tax adjustment, because section 2(22A) of the STA gives the respondents Nos.1 and 2 the discretion to decide which provincial sales tax should be allowed under section 7 of the STA for input tax adjustment.

8. I have heard the learned counsel for the respondents at length and find that the manner in which the respondent No.2 is interpreting section 2(22A) of the STA is totally contrary to the mandate of the law. The basic right of the petitioners is provided for under section 7(1) of the STA wherein they are entitled to adjustment of input tax from their output tax for a given tax period. The STA has clearly defined input tax under section 2(14) of the STA and output tax under section 2(20)(c) of STA to mean provincial sales tax levied on services rendered or provided to the person. Section 2(22A) of the STA defines provincial sales tax to mean tax levied under provincial laws. This means provincial sales tax as promulgated in any or all of the Provinces. Section 2(22A) of the STA further defines that for the purposes of Islamabad Capital Territory, provincial sales tax will be that which is declared by the Federal Government to be a provincial sales tax for the purposes of input tax adjustment. This declaration in the official Gazette is required for the Islamabad Capital Territory, which is not a Province. The respondents Nos.1 and 2 under the cover of section 2(22A) of the STA have assumed a discretionary power to decide which provincial sales tax should be allowed for input tax adjustment. The effect of this discretion is that the provisions of section 7 of STA become subject to the discretion of the respondent No.1. This clearly is not the scheme of the STA, which provides a specific right of adjustment to input tax. I am of the opinion that section 2(22A) of the STA cannot be used to deny the right of input tax adjustment by a declaration in the official Gazette. Furthermore admittedly there is no declaration in the official gazette yet adjustment is being allowed for the province of Balochistan and for the Islamabad Capital Territory. This act of the respondents shows that their understanding of section 2(22A) of the STA is that they have the ability to decide who should be granted input tax adjustment. Such an understanding is clearly against the specific provisions of the STA granting input tax adjustment.

9. In view of the aforesaid, these petitions are allowed and the respondents are directed to accept the sales tax return of the petitioners electronically or manually by allowing adjustment claimed by the petitioners of provincial sales tax on services under provincial laws.

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this single judgment, I intend to decide Writ Petitions Nos.1991, 23107, 30394, 24912 and 26449 of 2012 as all the petitioners seek a direction to be paid their unutilized Privilege Leave (PL).

2. The case of the petitioners is that, they are all retired officers of National Bank of Pakistan. During the course of their employment through a decision made on 16-6-1999 by virtue of Instruction Circular No.37/99, the PL, on the unutilized amount was frozen w.e.f. 31-12-1998 for encashment at the time of retirement. The grievance of the petitioner is that they were not granted this PL at the time of their retirement and they are entitled to the same.

3. Learned counsel argued that petitioners claim the balance PL of their frozen PL, which they are entitled to and in this regard several representations were made. However, nothing was forthcoming from the respondents and ultimately in the year 2011, the respondents denied the petitioners unutilized amount of their PL on the ground that Circular 57/99 subsequently curtails the entitlement to 180 days.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respondents. Learned counsel for the respondents argued that the petitioner is relying on Circular No.37/99 whereas Circular No.57/99 clearly provides that the frozen PL can be enchashed upto 180 days at the time of retirement subject to availability of funds. He argued that in the case of the petitioners, they have all availed the benefit of PL, for 180 days. Further states that there is no further amount that is due to the petitioners and that at the time of retirement they were given PL for 180 days. Learned counsel further argued that this is specifically provided for in the Instructions Circular 57/99.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The issue before this Court is whether the petitioners are entitled to any amount exceeding 180 clays for PL. Learned counsel for the petitioners admits that PL amount for 180 days has been given to the petitioners and that through the instant petitions, they seek the balance unutilized amount. Circular 57/99 in this regard is clear as it is provided therein that frozen PL balance can be claimed upto a maximum of 180 days at the time of retirement. Therefore, the PL amount has been availed by the petitioners and there is no further amount due to them. It is also noted that the petitioner in W.P.No.1991 of 2012 retired in 2006, the petitioner in W.P.No.23107 of 2012 retired in 2005, the petitioner No.2 in W.P.No.26449 of 2013 retired in 2002, and petitioner No.1 in W.P.No.24912 of 2012 retired in 2011. The claim of the said petitioners is hit by laches as the petitions were filed in 2012. Furthermore all the petitioners have filed the instant petitions after having availed all retirement benefits when all outstanding dues were paid at the time of retirement at which point no claim for any amount was made.

7. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out, Petitions dismissed.

(a) Constitution of Pakistan---

----Art. 199---Constitutional petition---Laches---Bank employee---Delay in seeking relief for (ante dated) promotion---Effect---Petitioner worked as a clerk-cum-typist with National Bank of Pakistan ("Bank")---Grievance of petitioner was that he was entitled to promotion as Grade-III officer with effect from 1-1-1992, but he was denied such promotion for no justifiable reason---Validity---Record showed that petitioner was promoted to Officer Grade-III on 5-1-2006---Petitioner accepted his promotion in the year 2006 without any objection---Issue of (ante-dated) promotion was not agitated by petitioner until filing of present constitutional petition, therefore it was hit by laches---Nothing on record substantiated claim of petitioner rather it showed that he was told time and again that the issue of his (ante dated) promotion was closed and that he had no claim---Admittedly petitioner presently stood retired and sought a promotion, which he was repeatedly told he was not entitled to---Constitutional petition was dismissed in circumstances.

(b) Constitution of Pakistan---

Umar Hayat Khawaja for Petitioner.
Umar Abdullah for Respondents.
Date of hearing: 14th April, 2014.

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition, the petitioner seeks promotion w.e.f. 1-1-1992.

2. The case of the petitioner is that he worked as a clerk-cum-typist with the National Bank of Pakistan. He was entitled to promotion as Grade-III officer w.e.f. 1-1-1992. However, he has been denied the said promotion for no justifiable reason. Learned counsel states that petitioner made several representations before the respondents. However, no positive action was taken by the respondents. It has also been stated that it is a case of discrimination against the petitioner because others have been promoted yet the petitioner has been denied his promotion.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respondents. At the very outset, learned counsel for the respondents raised the preliminary objection that the petition is grossly barred by laches. He argued that the petitioner was promoted on 5-1-2006 to Grade-III and never agitated this issue at that time. He further argued that the petitioner retired on 9-2-2008 and this fact has not been mentioned in the petition. Learned counsel argued that petitioner has sat on this issue since 2006 and brought it before this Court after more than five years. Further argued that there is no right to promotion after the retirement particularly when the petitioner was promoted and never agitated the issue at the relevant time.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that petitioner was pursing his remedy before the competent forum and therefore, the instant writ petition was filed late.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The basic objection raised by the learned counsel for the respondents is that the petitioner seeks promotion from 1992, which is barred by laches. The record shows that the petitioner was promoted to Officer Grade-III on 5-1-2006. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that this promotion was subject to a decision in some appeal. However, learned counsel for the respondents has denied that any such insertion was made on the said letter regarding any appeal. The petitioner accepted his promotion in 2006 without any objection. This issue has not been agitated since until the filing of the instant petition. Hence it is hit by laches. Furthermore, the petitioner retired on 9-2-2008 which fact he has not been disclosed in the petition. On this ground alone he is not entitled to the relief claimed. Even otherwise, the petitioner's case rests upon the letter dated 26-11-1992 wherein it is stated that in case he is promoted w.e.f. 1-1-1992 he will have to adjust three special increments that he has received in the pay scale. The letter does not promise any promotion from 1992, it simply suggests that the petitioner will have to refund the three special increments that he has received in case of his promotion form 1992. There is nothing on the record to substantiate his claim or even to show that the matter is pending. The record shows that the petitioner was told time and again that the issue is closed and that he has no claim. Now he admittedly stands retired w.e.f. 9-2-2008 and wants a promotion which he was repeatedly told he is not entitled to.

7. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petition dismissed.

Date of hearing: 3rd December, 2013.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the petitioner has impugned the recovery of Rs.90,471,388, Rs.107,217 and Rs.43,920 by the respondents Nos.2 to 6 as the same were made during the pendency of a stay order issued by the Appellate Tribunal on 11-9-2013.

2. The case of the petitioner is that show-cause notices were issued to him on 19-2-2013 and 2-4-2013. Replies of the same were made by the petitioner on 26-2-2013 and 17-4-2013 respectively. Thereafter, the order-in-original was passed on 25-4-2013, which culminated into a demand of Rs.6,888,265,303. The petitioner filed an appeal against the order-in-original before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeal), Faisalabad. Against the order in appeal dated 16-8-2013, the petitioner filed an appeal before the Appellate Tribunal. Thereafter, the respondents Nos.2 to 6 issued recovery notice under section 48(1)(ca) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (Act, 1990) to the petitioner on 3-9-2013. The petitioner moved a miscellaneous application seeking a restraining order against the respondents for the recovery of any amount during the pendency of the appeal before the Appellate Tribunal. On 6-9-2013 the Appellate Tribunal heard the petitioner and granted a stay against the recovery to the petitioner. The respondents Nos.2 to 6 notwithstanding the order of the Appellate Tribunal dated 6-9-2013 pursued the recovery proceedings and sought recovery of amounts of Rs.90,471,388, Rs.107,217 and Rs.43,920 from the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9.

3. The grievance of the petitioner is that the respondents Nos.2 to 6 could not have pursued the recovery on account of the stay order issued on 6-9-2013. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that respondents Nos.2 to 6 pursued the recovery proceedings notwithstanding the stay order of 6-9-2013 and the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9 complied with the request of the respondents Nos.2 to 6 issued on 11-9-2013 to attach all the bank accounts of the petitioner notwithstanding the stay order of 6-9-2013. He further argued that the stay order of 6-9-2013 was made in the presence of the respondents and therefore there was no justification for pursuing the recovery and attaching the bank accounts of the petitioner. Learned counsel further argued that when the respondents Nos.2 to 6 approached the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9 on 11-9-2013, they did not give the stated respondents any time to confirm from the petitioner whether or not any stay order has been issued in favour of the petitioner and instead compelled the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9 to facilitate the recovery proceedings by attaching the bank accounts and issuing pay orders in favour of the respondents Nos.2 to 6. Learned counsel argued that such an act on the part of the stated respondents is illegal and in defiance of an order issued by the Appellate Tribunal. Further argued that respondents acted with mala fide intent in total disregard of the order of Appellate Tribunal and so the petitioner is entitled to immediate refund of amounts so recovered.

4. Report and para wise comments on behalf of respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9 have been filed. In terms of the report and para wise comments filed by the stated respondents and the arguments made by the learned counsel for the respondent No.9, the respondents Nos.2 to 6 contacted the respondent No.9 on 11-9-2013 and immediately required that two pay orders in the amount of Rs.18,885 and Rs.25,085 be issued in favour of the Officer Inland Revenue, Regional Tax Office, Faisalabad. Learned counsel argued that respondent No.6 did not give any time to the respondent No.9 to contact the petitioner or to confirm whether any stay order has been issued in favour of the petitioner. The respondent No.9 in compliance with the recovery notice under section 48 (I)(ca) of the Act, 1990 made two pay orders and handed them over to the respondent No.6. In terms of the report and para wise comments filed by the respondent No.7, the respondent No.6 issued notice under section 48(I)(ca) of the Act, 1990 for the attachment of the bank accounts of the petitioner maintained with the respondent No.7. The respondent No.6 served the respondent No.7 with notice on 11-9-2013 and required immediate compliance. As per the report and para wise comments filed by the respondent No.7, the respondent No.6 raided the respondent Bank with armed personnel, waving handcuffs and creating harassment so as to effectuate compliance of notice issued under section 48

(I)(ca) of the Act, 1990. On the same day, immediate compliance was made, the accounts were attached and a cashier cheque in the amount of Rs.5,113,805 was issued to the respondent No.6.

5. Report and para wise comments have been filed by the respondents Nos.2 to 6. Learned counsel for the respondent No.6 argued that even though the stay order was passed on 6-9-2011, it was communicated to the respondents Nos. 2 to 6 in the later hours of 11-9-2013 and was informed to the respondent No.3 on 12-9-2013. Since the stated respondents did not have any knowledge of the stated order of 6-9-2013, hence they acted totally in accordance with law and have in no manner violated the order of 6-9-2013. Learned counsel argued that no harassment was made to the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9 for recovery. He argued that in terms of the procedure under the Act, 1990 due process was followed as no valid stay order was served upon the respondent No.6. He further argued that now the proper course for the petitioner is to file an application before the respondent No.3 for refund of any amount which feels that it is entitled to. Learned counsel argued that petitioner is not entitled to the relief claimed before this Court as no order for refund can be made.

6. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

7. The basic issue before this Court is whether the recovery made by the respondent No.6 from the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9 pursuant to notices issued on 3-6-2013 were legal recoveries? The basic case of the petitioner is that the said recovery was made during the subsistence of a stay order issued by the Appellate Tribunal on 6-9-2013. The pendency of the appeal and the issuance of stay order of 6-9-2013 by the Appellate Tribunal is not denied by the respondents Nos.2 to 6. The case of the respondents Nos.2 to 6 is primarily that they had no knowledge of the stay order and that the stay order would be effective when communicated to the respondents. Since they had not been served with the stay order, hence it was not effective and therefore, the recovery made on 11-9-2013 in the amount of Rs.90,471,388, Rs.107,217 and Rs.43,920 is in accordance with law. A review of the order dated 6-9-2013 shows that the respondents were present before the Appellate Tribunal on that day. Mr. Muhammad Jameel Bhatti DR was present before the Appellate Tribunal and this fact is not denied by the respondents Nos.2 to 6. Therefore, the basic contention of the respondents Nos.2 to 6 that they had no knowledge of the order of 6-9-2013 or that they were not served with the order of 6-9-2013 is factually incorrect. The stay order was made in the presence of the respondents, Hence they had knowledge of the order of 6-9-2013. The respondent No.6 notwithstanding the order of 6-9-2013 pursued the recovery proceedings and ensured recovery on 11-9-2013 through the bank accounts of the petitioner maintained with the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9. To my mind this act of the respondent No.6 is in gross violation of a stay order issued by the Appellate Tribunal and therefore, is totally illegal. The respondent No.6 could not have continued with the recovery process when the recovery proceedings had been specifically stayed for a period of 30 days by the Appellate Tribunal. The respondents Nos.2 to 6 have no justification whatsoever to state that they had no knowledge of the order of 6-9-2013 when Mr. Jameel Bhatti DR was present before the Appellate Tribunal on 6-9-2013. Hence the order of 6-9-2013 was served upon the respondents and duly communicated to them. Learned counsel for the respondents Nos.2 to 6 argued that Mr. Jameel Bhatti DR did not inform the stated respondents, hence they did not know about the order of 6-9-2013. If that is the case, then it is an internal issue between Mr. Jameel Bhatti DR and the respondents Nos.2 to 6 for which the petitioner should not be made to suffer. The argument of the learned counsel for the respondents Nos.2 to 6 that the petitioner should now move an application for refund of the amount is also totally misconceived for the reason that the recovery itself was illegal and there is no reason for the petitioner to move an application before the respondents for refund of amounts illegally recovered. Learned counsel for the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9 have stated in their report and para wise comments and argued before this Court that respondent No.6 caused immense pressure on the stated respondents to effectuate the recovery from the bank accounts of the petitioner without allowing them to complete their due process in order to comply with the demand made under section 48(I)(ca) of the Act, 1990. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled "Attock Cement Pakistan Ltd. v. Collector of Customs, Collectorate of Customs and Central Excise, Quetta and 4 others" (1999 PTD 1982) has condemned the extra ordinary zeal shown by the respondents for the recovery of amounts from the appellant on the ground that an impatient department with a view to achieving a target of recovery of revenue also reflects upon the mala fide of their demand. In the instant case, the notices under section 48(I)(ca) of the Act, 1990 were issued on 11-9-2013 and the respondent No.6 on the same day ensured its compliance by the respondents Nos.7, 8, and 9. This clearly suggests undue haste on the part of the respondent No.6 to recover amounts form the petitioner. Therefore, the respondent No.6 has acted in total disregard of the orders of the Appellate Tribunal and due process. The respondent No.3 is directed to immediately look into this matter and to ensure that such an act is not repeated. Compliance report to be filed within three weeks time through Deputy Registrar (Judicial) of this Court.

8. Therefore, in view of the aforesaid, this petition is accepted. The recoveries made from the accounts of the petitioner by the respondents Nos.7, 8 and 9 in the amount of Rs.90,471,388, Rs.107,217 and Rs.43,920 are illegal and the respondents Nos.2 to 6 are directed to refund the said amount to the petitioner within 15 days of the receipt of certified copy of this order.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this writ petition, the petitioner prays for his promotion as per the terms given in Notification No.94/2008 dated 19-8-2008 issued by the respondent Bank.

2. The case of the petitioner is that he was an employee of the respondent No.1 for 29 years and retired on 10-4-2008. On 29-4-2008, the respondent approved its Promotion Policy 2008, giving promotion to the regular employees of the bank from clerical to Officer Grade-3 Staff and up to EVP Cadre, w.e.f. 1-1-2008. It is the case of the petitioner that he is entitled to a promotion, notwithstanding the fact that he retired from his job on 10-4-2008. It is also the case of the petitioner that as a consequence of being denied promotion, the petitioner suffers monetary loss, as the promotion would entitle him to better monetary benefits.

3. Learned counsel for the respondent-Bank argued that this petition is not maintainable and in any event suffers from laches. On maintainability, he argued that since there are no statutory service rules for the respondents, hence no writ can be filed against the respondents. The Staff Service Rules of the respondent-Bank are the 1980 Rules, which have not been notified. He places reliance on the cases titled "National Bank of Pakistan and another v. Punjab Labour Appellate Tribunal and 2 others" (1993 SCMR 105), "Pakistan International Airline Corporation and others v. Tanveer-ur-Rehman and others" (PLD 2010 SC 676) and "Pakistan Telecommunication Co. Ltd. through Chairman v. Iqbal Nasir and others" (PLD 2011 SC 132). On laches, learned counsel for the respondents argued that petitioner retired on 10-4-2008 and the notification from which he seeks benefit is dated 19-8-2008, whereas this petition was filed in the year 2012. He relies upon the cases titled. "Shahbaz Khan Mohmand v. Islamic Republic of Pakistan and another" (1975 SCMR 4), "Muhammad Latif v. Chief Settlement Commissioner and others" (1975 SCMR 217) and "Tayyab Iqbal v. Member (Colonies) Board of Revenue Punjab Lahore and 3 others" (2005 CLC 1447).

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the writ petition is maintainable, as the respondents are governed by the 1973 Rules, which Rules are statutory. On laches, he argued that since this was a service matter, therefore, the question of any delay would be considered differently, as held in a case titled "M.H. Mirza v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Cabinet Division, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad and 2 others" (1994 SCMR 1024).

5. Although much emphasis has been placed on the maintainability of this writ petition due to the non statutory nature of the present staff service rules governing the respondents, in a recent judgment dated 13-7-2007 passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.P.No.552/2007 it was held that:--- "The submission has been considered. In fact there are two sets of service rules framed by the petitioner-bank. One framed in 1973 and the other in 1980. The former rules are statutory but the latter are not statutory. This is not disputed by the learned counsel for the petitioner, but he submits that the latter rules will prevail. We do not subscribe to the argument. The statutory rules will prevail as against non-statutory rules as held by this Court in National Bank of Pakistan and another v. Punjab Labour Appellate Tribunal and 2 others (1993 SCMR 105).

Therefore it would be in the interest of justice to decide this matter on merits as both parties argued at length on the merits of their respective case.

6. Learned counsel for the respondents, argued that once an employee retires from the service he cannot seek benefit under any prospective circular. He further argued that a retired employee is not entitled to promotion. Going through the notification dated 19-8-2008 the learned counsel argued that this notification does not grant any promotion to the petitioner as it applies to those officers who were in service of the respondents at that time. He places reliance on the cases titled "The Collector, Customs and Central Excise, Peshawar and other v. Messrs Rais Khan Limited through Muhammad Hashim (1996 SCMR 83), "Shafiul Mulk v. Chairman Agriculture Development Bank of Pakistan, Islamabad and 5 others" (2000 PLC (C.S.) 1034), "Wali-ur-Rehman and others v. State Life Insurance Corporation and others (2006 SCMR 1079) and "Abdul Hameed v. Ministry of Housing and Works, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad through Secretary and others" (PLD 2008 SC 395). Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the notification shall apply to all those persons who were in the employment of the respondent-Bank from 1-1-2008, being the effective date. Since the effective date is 1-1-2008, and the petitioner was in employment at the time, he is entitled to promotion.

7. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

8. The entire case of the petitioner is based on notification dated 19-8-2008. The notification pertains to promotion from OG-III to OG-II and OG-II to OG-I of those, who were last promoted on or before 1-12-2002. The petitioner seeks promotion from OG-III to OG-II. For OG-III to OG-II the notification provides that all officers in OG-III are promoted to next higher Grade OG-II. The effective date of promotion as per the notification reads as under:--- "(a) Officers who have completed 25 years of total service as on 31-12-2006 will be promoted with effect from 1-1-2007.
(b) All others to be promoted with effect from 1-1-2008."
The petitioner's representation before the respondent dated 17-2-2010 provides that the petitioner seeks promotion from Grade-III to Grade-II as he has put in 29 years of service and he is a Graduate from the University of Punjab, meaning thereby that he has fulfilled the criteria laid down for the promotion in the notification. A plain reading of the notification shows that its operation is prospective. It applies to all existing Officers in Grade-III who should be promoted to Grade-II. Of these officers, all those, who have completed 25 years as on 31-12-2006, will be promoted w.e.f. 1-1-2007 and all others will be promoted from 1-1-2008. There is nothing in the language to suggest that this benefit will apply to retired employees. To the contrary, states that it will apply to all officers in OG III, meaning thereby all officers presently employed in OG-III. The notification in pursuant to the Promotion Policy, 2008, which also provides that it will apply to all regular employees of the Bank from clerical to OG-III and above upto EVP. Clearly only those employees are eligible for promotion who were in the service of the respondent at the time.

9. Furthermore the notification cannot have retrospective effect unless it is specifically stated. If the notification was intended to include retired employees it would clearly say so. To read into the effective date of promotion being 1-1-2008 that it will include all those employees who were in the employment of the respondent at the time will be extravagant. This does not appear to be the intent of the notification, it does not, by its own terms and conditions state that it will apply to those employees who retired prior to its issuance. Therefore there is no reason to assume that the effective date of promotion will include retired employees. A retired employee cannot take the benefit of a notification issued after his retirement. Once he has retired he has severed all ties with the employer and there is no basis upon which any benefit can be claimed. It is a settled law that notification is prospective in its operation from the date of its issuance and cannot be given retrospective effect unless specifically stated. Reliance is placed on a case titled "Senior Member BOR and others v. Sardar Bakhsh Bhutta and another" (2012 SCMR 864).

10. In this case, the language of the notification does not suggest that it will apply to employees who were in the service of the Bank on 1-1-2008. Petition dismissed.

JUDGMENT
MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This is a suit for recovery of Rs.252.640 Million under section 9 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 with costs of funds in terms of the prayer in the plaint. After presentation of the plaint, notices were duly served and the defendants filed PLA No.74-B of 2006.

2. The case of the plaintiff is that the defendant No.1 is a private company limited by shares and is being sued in the capacity of customer and mortgagor of the plaintiff, whereas, the defendants Nos.2, 3 and 5 to 8 are guarantors for the defendant No.l. The defendant No.4 is being sued in the capacity of mortgagor. The defendant No.1 requested the plaintiff for various credit facilities. The same were approved and sanctioned and the defendants availed them from time to time. The plaintiff's claim as detailed in the plaint is as follows:--

Total	287.715	237.227	15.413	252.640

Amounts were duly disbursed into the account of the defendant No.1 under the various finance facilities and the finances were duly utilized by the defendants. To avail the aforementioned facilities, finance and security documents were duly executed, copies of which are appended with the instant suit. Property of defendant No.4 was mortgaged by way of deposit of title documents with the plaintiff. Thereafter, the defendants failed to liquidate their liabilities as per the terms of the finance agreements. Hence this suit.

3. The defendants in their application for leave to defend (PLA) have denied the liabilities alleged by the plaintiff Bank in its plaint and submit that the suit under reply is liable to be dismissed. The grounds raised in the PLA are that the suit has not been signed and verified in accordance with law. The statement of accounts have not been duly verified as per the relevant law. The documents have not been properly witnessed in accordance with Article 17 of Qanun-e-Shahadat Order, 1984.

The guarantees do not relate to the finance facility extended by the plaintiff Bank. Reliance has been placed on the cases titled "Abdul Basit v. Bank of Punjab" (2003 CLD 751, 753 (DB LHC), "Cantor Index Ltd. v. Thomson" (2008 All ER (D 271), "Muhammad Shahnawaz v. KESC" (2011 PLC (C.S.) 1579, 1599), "Rauf B. Kadri v. SBP" (PLD 2002 SC 1111, 1121), "HRCP v. GOP" (PLD 2009 SC 507, 519), "Muzaffar Abbas v. Pak PVC Ltd." (PLD 1998 Karachi 71, 78), "Sandoz Limited v. Federation" (1995 SCMR 1431, 1447), "Green Fuels v. Shell Pakistan Ltd. (2005 CLC 1602 1611) "Sandoz Limited v. Federation" (1995 SCMR 1431, 1452), "PICIC v. Frontier Ceramics Ltd." (2000 CLC 287, 289), "Ali Shan v. Essen Hotel Ltd." (2007 SCMR 741, 750).

4. Learned counsel for the defendants also raised an objection with respect to the authority of the person filing the instant suit. The suit has been filed by Mr. Waseem A. Sheikh, who is not the branch Manager. The power of attorney relied upon is signed by one director and counter signed by the company Secretary. It is his contention that the plaintiff bank cannot authorize an officer to institute a suit merely on the basis of a power of attorney, unless they are expressly authorized under the Articles of Association. He argued that neither the Articles of Association nor the board resolution has been filed. Learned counsel argued that a substantial question of fact with respect to the authority of the person filing the suit has been raised, for which leave may be granted. He also argued that the entries in the statement of accounts do not correlate to any of the finance agreements or other documents. In some of the finance agreements there is no date for repayment, hence no liability is made out against the defendants. The main point argued by the learned counsel was that a re-scheduling arrangement was offered by the plaintiff through letters dated 9-3-2006 and 3-4-2006. The defendants accepted the arrangement and performed under the rescheduling agreement but the plaintiff terminated it unilaterally on 8-5-2006. Learned counsel argued that the rescheduling agreement was agreed upon and duly acted upon by the defendants, hence the plaintiff was barred from filing the instant suit on the basis of the original finance and security documents. He argued that the new agreement came into existence vide letter dated 9-3-2006 and 3-4-2006 which has not been pleaded in the plaint. He argued that consequently the previous agreements have been novated, hence there is no liability under the documents relied upon. Learned counsel further argued that even under the novated agreement, the plaintiff is in breach on various counts. In this regard the defendants have filed C.O.S. No.184 of 2009 which suit is pending.

5. Learned counsel for the plaintiff argued that all documents have been duly executed and signed by the defendants. He argued that the documents and disbursement are admitted by the defendants who claim rescheduling of their liabilities. He argued, admittedly no amounts have been paid to the plaintiff under the claimed rescheduling. Learned counsel for the plaintiff argued with respect to the letters dated 9-3-2006 and 3-4-2006 that where only one party to the agreement alleges novation or alteration in the original agreement without any proof of the novation, mere allegation of novation would not absolve the parties from performing the original agreement. Reliance is placed upon the case titled "Mrs.

Musarrat Shaukat Ali v. Mrs. Sofia Khatoon and others" (1994 SCMR 2189). Learned counsel argued that the argument of novation and rescheduling of the agreement was never raised in the PLA. This argument was raised for the first time on 12-10-2011 in the application filed under Order VII, Rule 11 of the Civil Procedure Code (C.P.C.) by the defendants, which application is still pending. He further argued that after filing the PLA no new ground can be added through the application under Order VII, Rule 11, C.P.C. Also that the PLA has to be decided first and foremost before any application filed in the suit of the plaintiff. Reliance is placed upon the case titled "Messrs Al-Kashmir Traders and 6 others v. United Bank Limited through Muhammad Jarar" (2005 CLD 1116). He further argued that the defendants have not satisfied the duties and responsibilities of a customer as provided under the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 (F.I.O.) whilst filing the leave to defend application as mentioned in the case titled "Apollo Textile Mills Ltd. and others v. Soneri Bank Ltd." (2012 CLD 337). With regard to the objection of the defendants on the statement of account, learned counsel argued that the same have been prepared and certified as per law applicable thereof. The Statement of Accounts attached with the plaint has been generated electronically and is governed under the Electronic Transaction Ordinance, 2002. Reliance is placed upon the case titled "Habib Metropolitan Bank Ltd. v. Mian Abdul Jabbar and another" (2013 CLD 88). The statement of accounts has been filed in accordance with law and show the required debit credit entries. As such no triable case has been made out by the defendants. Learned counsel argued that PLA filed by the defendants is in violation of the mandatory provisions of law contained in section 10(4) and (5) of the F.I.O., 2001. Reliance is placed upon on the case titled "Bolan Bank Limited through Attorneys v. Baig Textile Mills (Pvt.) Limited through Chief Executive and 6 others" (2002 CLD 557). Learned counsel argued that the defence set up by the defendants is evasive and without any substantial question of law or fact requiring recording of evidence. Reliance is placed on the case titled "Messrs Al-Madan Coal Company (Pvt.) Limited and others v. Regional Development Finance Corporation" (2009 CLD 645). Further argued that once the plaintiff has attached with the plaint the statement of accounts and other documents in support of its claim, the burden is shifted upon the defendants to answer the claim.

6. Heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

7. The main argument raised for grant of leave is with respect to the rescheduled agreement. The defendants admittedly raised this plea in the application filed under Order VII, Rule 11, C.P.C. filed by them after filing the PLA. The Defendants rely upon letters dated 9-2-2006 and 3-4-2006 to argue that an agreement re-scheduling the debit was executed by the parties through correspondence. This was duly acted upon by the defendants. On the basis of this agreement the entire liability of the defendant No.1 was re scheduled and an amendment to the arrangement was proposed on 3-4-2006. Learned counsel for the defendants has stressed a great deal on the application under Order VII, Rule 11, C.P.C. as well as on the re-scheduled agreement, the documents of which have been appended. The record shows that the PLA was filed on 21-7-2006. Thereafter in 2011 through C.M. No.639-B of 2011 the defendants moved the application under Order VII, Rule 11, C.P.C. introducing the ground of rescheduling for the first time. The said application raised a whole new ground challenging the claim of the plaintiff which was not raised in the PLA. I am of the opinion that the defendants cannot raise a new ground through the application under Order VII, Rule 11, C.P.C. after having filed their PLA. In Para xviii the defendants state that they have borrowed Rs.367.43 Million and repaid Rs.627.27 Million. Hence the defendants claim that an excessive amount has been paid to the plaintiff which is liable to be refunded. The new ground agitated in the Order VII, Rule 11 application is that the debt was rescheduled through Correspondence. The stance taken in the PLA and the new ground adopted in the application under Order VII, Rule 11, C.P.C. are clearly contradictory. Through its PLA, the defendants are required to raise all substantial questions of law and fact, within 30 days from the date of first service by any one of the modes prescribed in section 9(5) of the F.I.O. in the instant case, through a C.M. No.639/B of 2011 filed more than four years after filing the PLA, the defendants have raised, as per their contention, a substantial question of law and fact for which evidence needs to be recorded. To my mind, the defendants cannot raise a new ground after filing the PLA as it would defeat the purpose of section 10(2) of the F.I.O. as a defendant could at any stage, after filing the PLA, raise a new ground through an application, hence rendering the 30 days requirement under section 10(2) meaningless. Reliance is also placed upon the case titled "Messrs Mohib Exports Ltd. and 4 others v. Trust Leasing Corporation Ltd. through Chief Executive" (2005 CLD 581) in which it has been held that defendants were not allowed to raise a new plea which was not the subject matter of their PLA, for the first time before the High Court. Furthermore the facts relied upon in the application were available to the defendants at the time when the PLA was filed and should have been raised at that time. The grounds raised therein cannot be considered for the purpose of leave to defend, as it was never raised in the PLA. The plaint reveals a cause of action against the defendants. The same has been defended by the defendants through P.L.A. No.74-B/06. Hence the C.M. No.639-B of 2011 is dismissed.

8. The first ground agitated in the PLA is with respect to the competence of the person filing the suit. The record shows that the suit has been filed by Waseem A. Sheikh and Arif Kamran both holders of a valid power of attorney. The power of attorney appended with the plaint authorizes them to file the suit and verify it. This establishes sufficient authority on the persons instituting the suit. No substantial question arises out of this ground.

9. The second Objection is on the certification on the statement of accounts, that it has not been testified as required under section 2(8) Bankers Book of Evidence Act, 1891. The statement of accounts is certified as required under the Bankers Book of Evidence, 1891. At the end of the statement of accounts the required stamp is available. No ground is made out.

10. The learned counsel for the defendants has argued that there was no disbursement under the agreement and that the repayment dates are not given in some agreements. No specific entry in the statement of accounts has been challenged in the PLA. The plaintiff has shown the disbursement for the FATR; FAPC cash finance and the T.F facilities. The FATR was disbursed on 7-11-2005, on 12-9-2005; on 10-11-2005, on 14-11-2005 and on 21-11-2005. As per the statement of account, the disbursement of the TF-IV was on 16-12-2003. Disbursement of TF-III was in four tranches on 7-1-2003, 14-1-2002, 1-3-2003 and 4-3-2003. TF-V was dismissed on 23-7-2004. Disbursement of FAPC-II was on 30-8-2003 in the amount of Rs.100,000,000. Cash finance was disbursed on 24-6-2005. Details of overdue acceptance is given in the plaint. An amount of Rs.6,134 is due by the defendants. Details of amounts due are given in the plaint. The defendants have admitted that the defendant No.1 availed Rs.367.43 Million yet, there are no details of the claimed repayment of Rs.627.27 Million. As to the SNGPL guarantee, since it has not been encashed, hence no claim is made out against it. The record shows that there is no statement of account showing the mark up being claimed by the bank in the amount of Rs.15.413 Million. Hence the plaintiff is not entitled to claim any mark up. No substantial question of law or fact has been raised in the PLA. The principal amounts disbursed utilized and still outstanding are as follows:-

1. FAPC Rs.100,000,000
2. TF-III Rs.5,830,000
3. TF-IV Rs.3,143,336
4. TF-V Rs.85,000,000
5. FATR Rs.6.133,646
6. Overdue Acceptance. Rs.17,630,853
7. Cash Finance. Rs.2,998,636.15

Total Rs.220,736,471

Therefore the PLA is dismissed and the suit is decreed in the amount of Rs. 220,736,471 along with cost of funds under section 3 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 from the date of default. The Plaintiff is also entitled to recover the decreed amount through sale of mortgaged and hypothecated properties.

ORDER
C.M. No.460-B of 2013

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This is an application seeking grant of interim relief against the auction dated 28-6-2013 filed by the Plaintiff with respect to its property in Blocks E, F & G of defendant No.2 society. On 1-7-2013 the suit was instituted by the plaintiff and on 11-7-2013 this court ordered that the defendants were not to finalize the auction proceedings scheduled for 28-6-2013 for the plots in Blocks E, F and G. This interim order was extended from 30-7-2013 till today. Today the instant application has been argued at length along with the PLAs. Learned counsel for the Bank had questioned the interim relief given by this court on 11-7-2013 on the ground that the plaintiff is not the owner of the property which have been put to auction.

2. The case of the defendant No.1 Bank is that the plaintiff, Acro Developers (Pvt.) Ltd. is not the owner of the property which was the property for the auction scheduled for 28-6-2013. Learned counsel for defendant No.1 argued that the defendant No.1 re-scheduled the debt of the plaintiff vide proposal dated 22-12-

2010. In terms of this proposal, the principle funded liability as detailed in the proposal was adjusted through the acquisition price of plots of the Acro Group. The plots are 302 in number. Further adjustment was made through acquisition price of plots of BACHS/defendant No.2. Learned counsel argued that these were 103 plots and the total number of plots adjusted were 505 for the benefit of the debt to the plaintiff outstanding against the Bank. The total amount adjusted is Rs .1369.108 Million. Learned counsel for the Bank argued that the plaintiff was neither the owner of these 505 plots nor the owner of 224 plots which were subject to auction. The plaintiff at best is the beneficiary, as its debt was adjusted by the Bank. Learned counsel argued that pursuant to this proposal an agreement was executed on 5-4-2011. The allotment in favour of the original owners were cancelled and the plots were transferred in the name of the bank. Thereafter in July 2011 provisional allotment letters were issued to the Bank and finally the property was transferred to the Bank by virtue of the allotment letters issued on 3-7-2013. Learned counsel for the Bank states that all the provisional and final allotment letters in favour of the bank have been appended through C.M. No.555-B of 2013. He argued that the plaintiff was never the owner of any of these plots and the plaintiff has not brought any title document on the record to show that it was the owner of the 505 plots which were the subject-matter of the adjustment and 224 plots which are the subject matter of the auction.

3. Learned counsel for the plaintiff has relied upon an arbitration award dated 16-1-2010 to show its ownership. The learned counsel argued that it became the joint owner of the plots which were put to auction on the basis of the award. He relies upon para 6 and 7 of the Award to show that certain plots were to be allocated to the petitioners. He argued that in terms of the matter before the Arbitrator the plaintiff was petitioner No.1 who was allocated plots by the Arbitrator. The entire case of the plaintiff for preventing the auction is that since it is owner of the plots put to auction, the same should not be put to auction as the plaintiff did not enter into any settlement with the Bank of its own free will. Learned counsel for the plaintiff argued that the adjustment proposal dated 22-12-2010 and the documents executed thereafter were executed under duress by the plaintiff.

4. I have heard both the learned counsel at length and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. The suit of the plaintiff challenges the offer letter dated 22-12-2010 and 2-3-2011 pursuant to which outstanding facilities were adjusted by the Bank. The plaintiff claims that these documents were executed under duress, hence these documents are void and of no consequences. The plaintiff also claims rendition of accounts and damages in the suit. There is nothing on the record to show that the plaintiff is the owner of the plots which are to be auctioned by the Bank. The plaintiff was given an opportunity to place on record all documents which would establish its claim. On 5-9-2012 this court gave all the parties time to file additional documents on the basis of which C.M. No.460-B of 2013 could be argued. The defendant No.2 has placed on record the allotment letters through C.M. No.546-B of 2013. The plaintiff is not shown as the owner of any plot in the attached documents. The defendant No.1 has also placed documents on the record evidencing its ownership through allotment letters dated July 2011. Again no document shows the plaintiff as the owner of any plot. A summary by the arbitration award was also filed by the plaintiff through C.M. No.542-B of 2013. A review of the summary confirms that the plaintiff does not own any plot but claims an interest in the allotment of the plots on account of the losses it has suffered due to the failure of the housing project i.e. Banker's Avenue Cooperative Housing Society (BACHS). Furthermore the record shows that the plaintiff was to develop the infrastructure facilities in BACHS, for which BACHS was to make payment based upon work performed. The prayer in the suit is for damages and rendition of accounts, cancellation of letters dated 22-12-2010 and 2-3-2011. I am of the opinion that even if the prayers were to be granted to the plaintiff it would still not be entitled to the plots in the name of the Bank. None of the owners of the plots are before this court. Therefore based on the prayers of the plaintiff in the suit and based on the fact that the plaintiff is not the owner of the plots which are to be auctioned, the defendant No.1 may proceed with the auction strictly in accordance with law.

6. C.M. is dismissed.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This is an application for interim decree in the sum of Rs.590,947,714 on the basis of admissions made by defendants in their P.L.A. No. 155-B with respect to the claim of the plaintiff in the above titled suit.

2. The case of the plaintiff is that the defendants in the P.L.A. No.155-B have admitted the net amount of Rs.590,947,714 as due and payable to the plaintiff. The defendants have also relied upon the same documents as attached with the plaint including the statement of accounts, dates and figures, hence, under the circumstances; the interim decree can be issued for the admitted amount. Learned counsel for the plaintiff has relied upon Order XII, Rule 6 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 to argue that if at any stage of a suit an admission has been made in the pleadings or otherwise then any party can apply to the court for a judgment or order based upon the admission made. In such a situation the person does not have to wait for the determination of any other question between the parties and the court can pass any such order as it deems fit. Learned counsel argued that the court can exercise its power under section 7(a) read with section 11 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 and for the balance amount arguments may be heard as to whether it is a case in which leave needs to be granted.

3. Learned counsel for the defendants argued that under the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 if an interim decree is issued then for the balance amount leave has to be granted. He argued that for all disputed amounts leave must be granted in the event that an admission is relied upon. Learned counsel has argued that if this court was to pass an interim decree then since the balance amount is disputed by the defendants leave should be granted.

4. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. A review of the P.L.A. 155-B shows that the amount of Rs.590,947,714 is admitted by the defendants as net amount due and payable to the plaintiff-Bank. The suit filed by the plaintiff is for Rs.1,539,878,000 under section 9 of the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001. Section 11 of the said Ordinance read with Order XII, Rule 6 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 empowers this court to pass an interim decree on the basis of admitted amount. In the instant case the defendants are yet to argue their PLA. Under the circumstances the amount of Rs.590,947,714 stands admitted, therefore, a preliminary decree is issued against the defendants Nos.1 to 6 jointly and severally in the amount of Rs.590,947,714. For the balance amount arguments on the PLA shall be heard on 24-3-2014.

Date of hearing: 14th February, 2014.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition, the petitioner seeks a direction that representation dated 3-7-2013 filed by the petitioner may be replied to and that the respondents Nos.1 to 4 should not disturb the seniority of the petitioner by giving promotion to the respondents from 8-4-2013.

2. The case of the petitioner is that he was appointed as Engineer PTV Centre Mehmood Ghaznavi Road, Lahore on 30-4-1987 and was confirmed at that post on 30-7-1987. He was allowed to function as a News Producer 1-9-2006 and was re-designated to the post of News Producer/Reporter with effect from 8-4-2007. He was promoted as News Producer and Reporter G-6 with effect from 8-4-2010. The grievance of the petitioner is that the respondents Nos.5 to 41 are being promoted with effect from 8-4-2010 which promotion if granted will affect the seniority of the petitioner. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that this act of the respondents is contrary to the rules and has relied upon sections 4.02, 4.07 and Chapter 8 of the Pakistan Television Employees Service Rules. Learned counsel argued that pursuant to a judgment dated 4-11-2010 of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.P. No.48 of 2009, respondents Nos.5 to 41 were granted relief, however the petitioner was not heard before the said Bench and his grievance could not be put up before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. He also argued that the petitioner moved a representation before the respondents Nos.1 to 4 on which no positive action has taken place. He argued that if the respondents Nos.5 to 11 are given the seniority from 8-4-2010, it will adversely affect the seniority of the petitioner.

3. Learned counsel on behalf of the respondents Nos.1 to 4 is not present today but had previously argued his case on the last date wherein he had stated that the representation of the petitioner could be decided in accordance with law and that the respondents Nos.5 to 41 are being treated in accordance with the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan as well as the decision of the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court.

4. Learned counsel on behalf of the respondents Nos.5 to 10, 13, 14, 16 to 18, 26 and 34 at the very outset raised an objection that the petitioner is not entitled to the relief claimed; he is not entitled to the decision on any representation and he is not entitled to the relief whereby he required the respondents Nos.1 to 4 to be restrained from disturbing his seniority. Learned counsel argued that the entire petition is based on an apprehension which is repeatedly stated in the petition itself. He argued that as such no seniority list has been made and a bare reading of the petition will show that the petitioner on the basis of an apprehension that his seniority will be disturbed has filed the instant petition. Learned counsel argued that the petition is not maintainable when it is based on an apprehension; no right has accrued in favour of the petitioner on the basis of which the instant petition has been filed and no right of the petitioner has been infringed. Further argued that the petitioner requires that the entire process as heard and decided by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan be ignored by the respondents and the seniority be determined as per the wishes of the petitioner. Learned counsel argued that the matter was heard by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in C.P. No.48 of 2009 wherein it was decided that respondents Nos.5 to 41 were regularly appointed on probation for a period of two years from 20-2-2006 where-after their probation period has not been extended. Further argued that the respondents were not issued their permanent employment letters, hence it was decided that the permanent employment letters should be issued to those who have completed their probationary period. Learned counsel argued that pursuant to this decision, the respondents Nos.1 to 4 had failed to implement the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan whereafter the respondents went before the Hon'ble Islamabad High Court in W.P No.1556 of 2011 which decided that the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has to be implemented. Thereafter the respondents Nos.5 to 41 had to file a contempt petition pursuant to which the respondents Nos.1 to 4 issued permanent employment letters. Learned counsel further argued that a bare reading of the petition shows that so far no seniority list has been made and that the grievance of the petitioner is pre-emptive and designed to nullify the effect and the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. Learned counsel further argued that in any event notwithstanding the arguments raised the instant petition is not maintainable as the rules being relied upon by the petitioner are not statutory rules.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The basic issue is whether the petitioner is entitled to a direction on the basis of which the respondents Nos.1 to 4 would be restrained from disturbing the seniority of the petitioner as maintained. I have reviewed the petition and find that the petitioner has repeatedly stated that the instant petition has been filed on the basis of an apprehension that his seniority will be disturbed. Furthermore the request of the petitioner that the respondents Nos.l to 4 should maintain the seniority of the petitioner is a prayer which cannot be granted at this stage as no seniority list has been made after the issuance of appointment letters and permanent employment of the respondents Nos.5 to 41 as decided by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. The respondents Nos.1 to 4 are obligated to implement the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan and Hon'ble Islamabad .High Court. The learned counsel for petitioner also requested that his representation be decided, however Malik Amjad Pervaiz, learned counsel for the respondents Nos.5 to 10, 13, 14, 16 to 18, 26 and 34 has objected to such a direction as he stated that the matter in issue has already been decided by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan and the petitioner is trying to take a direction from this Court to undo the orders of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. I have reviewed the representation of the petitioner which is pending and on which he seeks a direction. I find that the objection of the learned counsel for the respondents Nos. 5 to 10, 13, 14, 16 to 18, 26 and 34 is correct that the petitioner is in fact seeking the respondents Nos.1 to 4 to review the entire matter and to determine the date on the basis of which the respondents Nos.5 to 41 will be granted their appointment letter. This matter was agitated before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan and it was decided that the respondents Nos.5 to 41 should be appointed if they have completed their probationary period. The issue of seniority inter se the petitioner and the respondents has still not been decided as the respondents Nos.1 to 4 have not issued the seniority list. At this point in time only appointment letters which have been issued in pursuance of the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. The grievance of the petitioner at this stage regarding seniority is premature and the petitioner may if so advised, seek appropriate remedy if his seniority is adversely affected once a list is made, before the competent forum.

7. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is dismissed.

ORDER

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- This Writ Petition decides upon the issues raised in W.Ps. Nos.7072, 4118, 4651 4652, 8828, 11906, 17989, 30917 of 2013 and 504 of 2014.

2. There are two common issues that have been raised in the instant petitions. The first issue is that the petitioners were appointed on contract posts. Their contracts were extended in 2012 for a period of five years. However through an arbitrary and unilateral act, the respondents cancelled the five years extension and reduced the contract period to one year. This issue was heard and decided vide order dated 21-11-2013 wherein the respondents impugned letter dated 22-2-2013 was set aside and the term of contract was maintained as per its last extension in the year 2012.

3. The second issue that is common to all the writ petitions is the prayer for regularization. The petitioners seek regularization in the same manner as the similarly placed colleagues who were regularized by the respondents in the years 2009, 2010, 2011 and 2012. The case of the petitioners is that they were employed as School Health and Nutrition Supervisors (SH&NS) (BS-17) in the Health Department, Government of Punjab on contract basis. Their contracts were extended from time to time. During the course of their employment, under various different policies, similarly placed colleagues in the Health Department were regularized by the respondents. The petitioners are aggrieved by the policy set out in the Notification No.DS(O&M) (S&GAD)5-3/2013 dated 1-3-2013 on the basis of which their case for regularization is to be considered. The grievance of the petitioners is that under the notification of 1-3-2013, the cases of the petitioners will be considered after determination by the Punjab Public Service Commission (PPSC) of their suitability for appointment on regular basis. In this regard, the petitioners have impugned paragraphs 'C' and 'D' of the Notification No.DS(O&M) (S&GAD)5-3/2013 dated 1-3-2013.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioners in W.P. No.7072 of 2013 argued that the competent authority has regularized the services of their colleagues without reference to the PPSC and therefore it is discriminatory for the petitioners cases to be sent to the PPSC on the basis of the notification dated 1-3-2013. Learned counsel argued that the petitioners were appointed to the post of the SH&NS (BS-17) in pursuance of different advertisements through Selection Committees. However for the purposes of regular appointment, the petitioners' cases will be referred to the PPSC which is discriminatory because others who have been regularized in the Health Department have been regularized without recourse to the PPSC. Learned counsel has relied upon Notifications No.SO.D.G(Dev)(LG)9-3/2010/BDA dated 28-3-2011 issued by the Government of Punjab, Local Government and Community Development Department, Lahore to show regularization of Director Community Development and Administration, Deputy Director (CD), Assistant Director (CD), Research Officer, Director Engineering, Deputy Director Construction, Assistant Director, Auto Cad Draftsman, Sub-Engineer (Mechanical), Draftsman, Sub-Engineer (Civil), Lab. Assistant, Assistant Director Finance, Deputy Director Computer, Computer Programmer, Assistant Computer Programmer, Computer Operator, Junior Clerk, Office Assistant, Senior Clerk, Junior Clerk, Driver, Daftri, Naib Qasid, Chowkidar, Mali and Sweeper, S.O.WMO/Misc-16/2008 dated 1-1-2010 to show regularization of Women Medical Officers, No.S.O.WMO/1-1/2009(MNCH)(DEGREE) dated 5-1-2010 to show regularization of Women Medical Officer, No.S.O.WMO/1-1/2009(MNCH)(DEGREE) dated 5-5-2010 to show regularization of Women Medical Officer, S.O.WMO/1-1/2009(MNCH)(DEGREE) dated 23-11-2010 to show regularization of Women Medical Officers, S.O.WMO/1-1/ 2009(MNCH)(DEGREE) dated 7-3-2010 to show regularization of Women Medical Officer, S.O.WMO/1-1/2009(MNCH)(DEGREE) dated 17-6-2010 to show regularization of Women Medical Officer, S.O.WM0/1-1/ 2009(MNCH)(DEGREE) dated 27-3-2010 to show regularization of Women Medical Officer, No.S.O.WMO/1-1/2009(MNCH)(P) dated 26-1-2011 to show regularization of Women Medical Officer, issued by the Government of the Punjab, Health Department, No.SO(CD)1-R-56/2009 dated 16-7-2010 issued by the Government of the Punjab, Home Department to show regularization of all officers in BS-16 and above of the Punjab Emergency Service (Rescue 1122), No.1-16/2011-Admn dated 12-11-2013 issued by the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Education, Trainings and Standards in Higher Education, Islamabad to show regularization of contract persons of BPS 19, 18, 17, 16, 15, 9, 7, 4 and 1 of National Commission for Human Development (NCHD), Islamabad and No.F.5(3)/2012-HW/LHWs dated 21-1-2013 issued by the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Inter-Provincial Coordination, Islamabad to show regularization of LHWs etc.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.11906, 4651 and 4652 of 2013 argued that many different employees of the Health Department have been regularized without recourse of to the PPSC and the petitioners should not be sent to the PPSC for regularization. Learned counsel further argued that the respondents have formulated a policy of pick and choose and regularize those who they desire and impose harsh conditions on those who they do not want to regularize. Learned counsel has also relied upon various different notifications to show that employees of the Health Department have been regularized on the recommendations of the Recruitment Committees taking their posts out of the purview of the PPSC.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioners in W.P. No.4118 of 2013 argued that it is the fundamental right of the Petitioners to be regularized and not to be discriminated against. He argued that employing the petitioners on contract is a form of exploitation when regular posts are available and there is no justification for the change in the policy of regularization so far as the petitioners are concerned. He argued that the contract employees are vulnerable and at the mercy of their employers. He argued that the petitioners are entitled to be regularized under a fair policy across the board being the same for all government employees.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.8828, 17989, 30917 of 2013 and 504 of 2014 argued that the petitioners since their initial appointment against the posts have been performing their responsibilities and assignments to the satisfaction of their superiors. The petitioners are entitled to be regularized without recourse to the PPSC. Learned counsel argued that regularization of employees in the same category but on different principles is unfair and unjust.

8. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the respondents. Learned Law Officer argued that the petitioners have all been appointed on contract on the recommendations of the relevant Selection Committees. Learned Law Officer argued that as per the terms of their contract, their appointment is a temporary appointment on contract basis extendable by the appointing authority. Learned Law Officer further argued that the contract specifically provides that the petitioners have no right of regular appointment. Learned Law Officer argued that the posts at which the petitioners have been appointed are programme posts and they cannot be equated with other posts where people have been regularized. Learned Law Officer further argued that the petitioners can be considered for regularization under the relevant notifications and prevailing policy. The fact that similarly placed employees were regularized under the different terms and conditions does not create a case of discrimination against the petitioners. Learned Law Officer argued that many of the petitions have been filed prematurely because the petitioners have not filed any representation before the competent authority to be considered for regularization. Learned Law Officer further argued that some employees did approach the Secretary Health, where-after he gave due consideration to this matter and passed an order bearing No.SLO/WP-30854/2012 dated 7-2-2013. In terms of the order, it was found that Basic Health Unit was created to cater to health facilities at school level on temporary basis and all posts were filled on contract, on the basis of recruitment criteria. Their regularization, if at all, will be done after a decision is made by the competent authority to regularize the post. Learned Law Officer further submitted that the petitioners fall under the 2013 policy for which their cases have to be referred to the PPSC.

9. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

10. The basic issue before this Court is whether the petitioners are entitled to regularization without referring their cases to the PPSC. The impugned notification of 1-3-2013 provides for the procedure for appointment of contract employees in BS-16 and above working against project posts, programme posts, PMUs and PMOs. The gist of the policy is that regularization will be done on the recommendations of the PPSC. The cases of contract employees in BS-16 and above who were appointed on the recommendations of the Selection Committee may be referred to the PPSC for determining their suitability for appointment on regular basis against the posts held by the contract employees. The contract employees who were appointed on the recommendations of Departmental Selection Committee will be referred to the PPSC for determining their suitability for appointment on regular basis against the posts held by the contract employees. The contract employees who were appointed on the recommendations of the PPSC are to be considered for regular appointment by the competent authority subject to the framing of service rules stipulating the basic eligibility criteria, qualifications and experience required for regular appointment. The petitioners are aggrieved by paragraph 'C' and 'D' of the notification of 1-3-2013 because on the basis of the said paragraphs, their cases will be referred to the PPSC for appointment on regular basis. The petitioners have relied upon numerous notifications of the Health Department wherein they have regularized services of Medical Officers, Women Medical Officers, Registrars, Assistant Anesthetists, Demonstrators, Blood Transfusion Officers, Assistant Professor of Pediatrics and Charge Nurse. The petitioners have also relied upon the notifications issued for Elementary School Teachers, Educators, Headmasters, Headmistress and Subject Specialists who were regularized without referring their cases to the PPSC. I have reviewed the notifications which have been appended with the petitions and relied upon by the petitioners. The regularization notifications relied upon by the petitioners are not for the post of SH&NS. They include different posts in the Health Department, Education Department, Home Department, Local Government and Community Development Department, Ministry of Education, Trainings and Standards in Higher Education and Ministry of Inter-Provincial Coordination. The Government of Punjab has from time to time regularized different posts in terms of its policy. Regularization of one post will not entitle persons on another post to demand regularization and on the same terms. In terms of the dicta of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held in S.M.C. No.15 of 2010 and C.M.As. Nos.2689, 3244 of 2010 and C.M.As. Nos.5383, 3068 of 2011 (2013 SCMR 304), the petitioners do not have a vested right for regular appointment. The record shows that the petitioners have never been denied regularization as the petitioners have not even moved the competent authority for the purposes of regularization. Furthermore it has been stated by the learned Law Officer that these are programme posts which have not been converted to regular posts at the moment, hence the petitioners' cases, presently, cannot be considered for regularization. The petitioners are working under their contract and can always apply to the competent authority for regularization of their post. However, the fact that others in the Health Department have been regularized without recourse to the PPSC does not create a case of discrimination simply because all employees who were regularized previously were working in the Health Department. For the purposes of discrimination in regularization, each post has to be seen, and not the regularization of every post in the department. Furthermore none of the petitioners have placed anything on the record to show that the Government of Punjab has regularized SH&NS under the 1-3-2013 notification without recourse to the PPSC. The petitioners on the basis of the order of this Court dated 21-11-2013 have a subsisting contract for 3 to 5 years. The petitioners during the subsistence of their contract may apply for regularization before the competent authority. However there is no illegality with the impugned Notification dated 1-3-2013, simply on the strength that others in the Health Department have been regularized without recourse to the PPSC.

11. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petitions are dismissed.

MWA/T-19/L Petition dismissed.

Date of hearing: 30th April, 2014.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, under Section 97 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984 (1984 Ordinance), the petitioner seeks consideration of reduction of capital from 9,456,752 of Rs.10 each to ordinary share face value equivalent to Rs.10 each to Rs.7,000,000 ordinary shares divided into 700,000 ordinary shares of Rs.10 each.

2. According to the petition, petitioner is a company limited by shares. As per the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company, the authorized capital of the company at the time of incorporation was Rs.100,000,000 divided into 10,000,000 ordinary shares of Rs.10 each with the power to increase, reduce, consolidate or otherwise re-organize the share capital and to divide the shares of the company into different classes in accordance with the provisions of 1984 Ordinance. The shareholder directors of the petitioner company through a special resolution held in its meeting on 20-12-2013 unanimously decided that the paid up capital of the petitioner company from Rs.9,456,752 be reduced to Rs.7,000,000 divided into Rs.7,000,000 ordinary shares of Rs.10 each.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the reduction of capital would not in any manner affect the ownership or voting rights of the shareholders. Similarly the same will not be detrimental to the rights of any director, shareholder or the petitioner company, hence it may be allowed. Further, argued that presently the petitioner company does not have any creditors. The previous creditor is in Court to state that no amount is due to it and they have no objection to the reduction.

4. Learned counsel for the respondent SECP stated that the respondent SECP has no objection. Further stated that there are no creditors of the petitioner company, as such no prejudice is caused.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file. The petitioner company was incorporated on 20-3-2006. The resolution dated 20-12-2013 is duly registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan (SECP) under Form 26. There are presently no creditors and no prejudice is caused to the shareholders.

6. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed with the direction that the petitioner company can reduce its capital from Rs.9,456,752 of Rs.10 each to ordinary share face value equivalent to Rs.10 each to Rs.7,000,000 ordinary shares divided into 700,000 ordinary shares of Rs.10 each as per the shareholders special resolution dated 20-12-2013 which reduction stands confirmed. The petitioner company is exempted from writing the words 'and reduced' as part of the name of the company upon reduction of its capital.

----S. 40B---Federal Excise Act (VIII of 2005) S. 45(2)---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 199---Constitutional petition---Posting of Officers of Inland Revenue/Federal Board of Revenue ("FBR") at manufacturing premises of taxpayer/petitioner---Exercise of powers under S. 40B of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 and S. 45(2) of the Federal Excise Act, 2005; interpretation and scope---Show-cause notice not required before exercising of powers under S. 40B of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 and S.45(2) of the Federal Excise Act, 2005---Taxpayers had impugned orders of Chief Commissioner Inland Revenue/FBR under S.40B of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 and 45(2) of the Federal Excise Act, 2005 whereby officers of Inland Revenue were posted at the manufacturing premises of the taxpayers---Contention of taxpayers was that such powers had been exercised without issuance of a show-cause notice to the taxpayers; therefore due process was not followed and principles of natural justice were violated---Held, that word "monitor" meant observe and check over a period of time and the FBR understood monitor to mean that team posted at manufacturing premises physically watched the production, sales and stock positions and collected data maintained by taxpayers---Respondent FBR needed to ascertain whether collected tax had been duly deposited and therefore power to monitor under the Federal Excise Act, 2005 and the Sales Tax Act, 1990 was to watch and observe and to take information maintained by the taxpayer with respect to its daily production, sales and stock position---At such stage, there was no investigation or inquiry but a simple desire to ascertain whether volume of business was duly reflected in tax returns of the taxpayers---For purposes of the FBR/Inland Revenue, no restriction had been placed by the Sales Tax Act, 1990 and Federal Excise Act, 2005 on power of monitoring; however said statutes required the Commissioner to have material evidence and pass a speaking order under S. 45(2) of the Federal Excise Act, 2005 and S.40B of the Sales Tax Act, 1990---Said sections envisioned a specific distinction in the manner in which powers were to be excised by the FBR, Chief Commissioner and Commissioner---Section 4(1)(o) of the Federal Board of Revenue Act, 2007 gave powers to make regulations, policies, programs and strategies in order to carry out purposes of said Act---In the present case, it was explained by the Chief Commissioner Inland Revenue that the entire sugar industry was under review for not paying required tax and previous data provided by taxpayers showed discrepancies when compared with present data therefore it was decided that the taxpayer's mill was to be monitored---Decision of the FBR or Chief Commissioner did not require material evidence but could be a decision based on broader principles---While at present there was no specific allegation raised against the taxpayers for evasion of tax and the taxpayers were given due notice under S. 40B of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 and S. 45(2) of the Federal Excise Act, 2005 and were given sufficient reasons for invoking of said sections---Show-cause notice, was therefore, not required and similarly a hearing was also not required because an order under S. 40B of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 and S.45(2) of the Federal Excise Act, 2005 was not an adverse order against the taxpayers---High Court also observed that the taxpayers in the present case had not challenged the vires of said sections but only impugned the orders for monitoring---High Court further observed that in order to prevent arbitrary exercise of powers , that when such an order was passed such order must provide a reasonable timeframe within which monitor would take place and be completed and in the event that the required data and information was not obtained within the contemplated time, the FBR, Chief Commissioner or Commissioner were always free to extend the time by informing the taxpayer---Appeals and Constitutional petition of the taxpayers were dismissed, in circumstances.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this single judgment, we have decided upon the common issues arising in I.C.As. Nos.124, 129 of 2014 and Writ Petition No.5072/2014 with respect to the exercise of powers by the respondents under section 40B of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (Act of 1990) and section 45(2) of the Federal Excise Act, 2005 (Act of 2005).

2. The appellants are both sugar mills and the petitioner is a textile mill. I.C.As. Nos.124 and 129 of 2014 have been filed against judgment dated 3-2-2014 passed in Writ Petition No.33429/2013 and Writ Petition No.1824/2014 and Writ Petition No.5072/2014 has been filed against the impugned order dated 21-2-2014 passed by respondents Nos.3 and 5 (Chief Commissioner and the Commissioner Inland Revenue) wherein they have issued an order under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 to post officers of the Inland Revenue at the manufacturing premises of the petitioner.

3. The case of the appellants (in I.C.As. Nos.124 and 129/2014) is that vide an order dated 13-12-2013 issued by the respondent No.3 powers under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and 45(2) of the Act of 2005 have been invoked to post officers, at the business premises of the appellants, with immediate effect, in order to monitor production, sales of taxable goods and their stock position. The appellants received letter dated 19-12-2013 in which the respondent No.3 in pursuance of the earlier letter dated 13-12-2013 of the respondent No.3 posted officers at the business premises of the appellants with immediate effect.

4. The grievance of the appellants is that the powers under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 have been exercised without any show-cause notice to the appellants. It is their case that the principles of natural justice were violated as the respondents levied allegations of under declaration and tax evasion against the appellants, on the basis of which they decided to monitor production, sales of taxable goods and stock position of the appellants, by posting officers within their business premises. Learned counsel argued that no reason or justification has been given for exercising powers under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005. They argued that this is contrary to the mandate of the law as provided under section 24A of the General Clauses Act, 1897 which requires public functionaries to give reasons while exercising powers under any statute. It was also argued that where any action adversely affects the vested rights of a party, show-cause notice or a preliminary hearing must be given before passing any order. It has also been argued that the concerned person must be aware of the reasons considered by the respondents before invoking section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005.

5. The learned counsel stated that the impugned judgment dated 3-2-2014 passed by the learned Single Judge in Chamber holds that the show-cause notice was not required because no adverse action was contemplated in the order dated 19-12-2013 and the appellants have not been prevented from doing their lawful business. The impugned judgment also finds that since the officers were posted simply to monitor production, sales of taxable goods and stock position, therefore, no right of the appellants was prejudiced and the principles of natural justice are not violated. Learned counsel argued that in terms of the impugned judgment, the learned Single Judge in Chamber held that the respondents can post officers to the premises of a registered person to monitor production, sales of taxable goods and stock position. The learned Counsel argued that this is not the spirit of the law as the monitoring team sits and monitors the business of the appellants within their business premises which act is intrusive and infringes upon their fundamental right to do lawful trade, business or profession. They argued that it also means that the respondents are collecting data, which they will use against the appellants in the case of tax evasion which the respondents are building against the appellants. This seriously prejudices the rights of the appellants to defend themselves in any proceedings initiated by the respondents. Learned counsel further argued that any action under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 can only be initiated if there is material evidence showing involvement of the taxpayer in evasion of sales tax or federal excise duty or fraud. Learned counsel argued that in the instant cases no material evidence was presented before the court nor was there any material evidence available on the basis of which the order dated 13-12-2013 was issued by the Chief (Automation & ST).

6. Learned counsel also objected to the competence of the Chief (Automation & ST) to direct the Chief Commissioner to invoke section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 against the appellants. They argued that letter dated 13-12-2013 was issued by the Chief (Automation & ST) to all Chief Commissioners Inland Revenue and that he was not the competent authority to pass any order with respect to section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005. They further argued that the Chief Commissioner cannot act on the directions of the Chief (Automation & ST) as was directed in the letter of 19-12-2013. Learned counsel argued that the subsequent letter issued by the Chief Commissioner dated 19-12-2013 was on the direction of the Chief (Automation & ST) who is not the competent authority to pass any such order. Learned counsel argued that this factor was not considered by the learned Single Judge in Chamber who has upheld the posting of officers under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005.

7. Report and para wise comments have been filed by the respondents. Learned counsel on behalf of the respondents argued that the respondents have acted totally in accordance with law, hence the impugned order issued on 19-12-2013 was upheld by the learned Single Judge in Chamber. Learned counsel argued that the appellants are involved in under declaration of production and sales, they are not paying due tax and do not provide correct data. Hence it was decided that the provisions of section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 should be invoked and officers be posted at the premises of the appellants to monitor their production, sales of taxable goods and stock position. Learned counsel argued that this order was passed in compliance with the directions issued by the Federal Board of Revenue (FBR) on 13-12-2013. Learned counsel argued that the proceedings are meant simply to monitor the production, sales of taxable goods and stock position and do not in any way interfere in the normal business operations of the appellants. Learned counsel further argued that the objective is to collect data from the business premises. They argued that the respondents are not conducting any inquiry or investigation within the business premises but simply monitoring the process and collecting data as compiled by the appellants on their production, sales and stock position. On the basis of the data so collected the respondents are then able to ascertain whether the appellants are making a full and proper declaration and paying the required tax and federal excise duty. Learned counsel argued that no adverse action is taken against the appellants and no fundamental right of the appellants has been violated by the respondents.

8. In Writ Petition No.5072/2014 the petitioner has called into question order dated 21-2-2014 passed by the respondents Nos.3 and 5 under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005. Hence the same issues and questions arise in the Writ Petition as in the two I.C.As. before us.

9. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record available on the file.

10. The appellants and the petitioner have questioned the invoking of section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 by the order issued on 19-12-2013 by the respondents Nos.3 and 4. They have challenged the exercise of power by the Chief (Automation & ST) as well as the fact that due process was not followed and the principles of natural justice were violated. The impugned judgment upheld the powers exercised under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 on the ground that show-cause notice was not required, no adverse order or action was being taken against the appellants and that it was issued by the competent authority. The impugned judgment finds that section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 simply post officers to monitor production, sales and stock position which does not render the appellants as tax evaders nor does it find them guilty of tax evasion.

11. Section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 are reproduced below for ease of reference:--

40B Posting of Inland Revenue Officer.---Subject to such conditions and restrictions, as deemed fit to impose, the Board or Chief Commissioner may post Officer of Inland Revenue to the premises of a registered person or class of such persons to monitor production, sale of taxable goods and the stock position:

Provided that if a Commissioner on the basis of material evidence has reason to believe that a registered person is involved in evasion of sales tax or tax fraud, he may, by recording the reason in writing, post an Officer of Inland Revenue to the premises of such registered person to monitor production or sale of taxable goods and the stock position.

(2) Subject to such conditions and restrictions, as deemed fit to specify, the Board or Chief Commissioner may, post an officer of Inland Revenue' to the premises of registered person or class of such persons to monitor production, removal or sale of goods and the stock position or the maintenance of records:

Provided that if a Commissioner on the basis of material evidence has reason to believe that a registered person is involved in evasion of duty, he may, by recording the reason in writing, post an officer of Inland Revenue to the premises of such registered person to monitor production, removal or sale of goods and the stock position or maintenance of records.

In terms of section 40H of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 the Board or the Chief Commissioner may post an officer to the premises of a registered person or class of persons to monitor production, sale of taxable goods and stock position. The impugned orders dated 19-12-2013 have been issued by the Chief Commissioner, Faisalabad. The orders provide that the appellants are involved in under declaration of production/supplies and are not paying due amount of tax in the national exchequer with respect to the volume of business. Hence it is believed that they may be involved in the evasion of tax and duties. In terms of the orders, ten officers were placed with immediate effect at the business premises of the appellants. The officers included two Auditors, four Inspectors, two Havaldars/Constables and two Notice Servers/Naib Qasids. The first grievance of the appellants is that this notice dated 19-12-2013 was issued on the directions of the Chief (Automation & ST) who was not the competent authority to pass any such order. The direction of the Chief (Automation & ST) dated 13-12-2013 is based on a decision of the FBR to post Inland Revenue Officers to the premises of all sugar mills to monitor their production, sale and stock position. The basic challenge of the appellants is that the Chief (Automation & ST) cannot issue any direction to the Chief Commissioner and that the Chief Commissioner must pass its own independent order. In both the I.C.A. No.124/2014 the order of the Chief Commissioner is dated 19-12-2013 and the order of Chief (Automation & ST) is dated 13-12-2013. In Writ Petition No.5072/2014 the order of the Chief Commissioner is dated 21-2-2014 and available on the record.

12. The Chief Commissioner, Faisalabad appeared before us on 9-4-2014 on which date he explained the reasons and basic rationale for invoking section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005. He stated that soft data was reviewed and it was found that production for the current year was less than the preceding year notwithstanding the fact that the circumstances were the same. He explained that after analysis of the data it was recommended that section 40-B of the Act of 1990 be imposed. He explained that the modalities for monitoring the process under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and Section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 is simply to check the production, stock and sale position. He further explained that the data collected is countersigned by the Management and generally there is no dispute in relation to the data that is collected. Further stated that in the event of any dispute it can always be brought to the notice of the Assistant Commissioner or any senior member of the Monitoring Team. He explained that each case was reviewed and the overall sector was also considered. He stated that it was found that certain sectors such as the sugar mills were not paying the required tax and duty. Hence an effort was being made by the respondents to collect data from such mills or industries so as to determine whether they are paying the required tax and duty. He stated that the process of monitoring enabled the respondents to determine whether the information provided by the taxpayer was correct and reflective of the industry and its income. He further explained that the respondents did not have any other means to check the data and information provided to them because the appellants and the petitioner are assessed to tax under the Self Assessment Scheme. They are required to furnish their details online and the system determines the tax that is due. The respondents while comparing this years data with the previous years and with other information found that the appellants and the petitioner are paying less tax than the previous years for no apparent or justifiable reasons. Hence he stated that the law specifically caters to such a situation and allows the respondents to monitor the sale, purchase and stock positions maintained by the registered person.

13. We have gone through the contents of the notices dated 19-12-2013 and 21-2-2014. The first objection to these notices is that they have been issued at the instance of the Chief (Automation & ST) dated 13-12-2013. We are of the opinion that the notices dated 19-12-2013 and 21-2-2014 sufficiently explain the reasons for its issuance. We also find that the letter of 13-12-2013 issued by the Chief (Automation & ST) can at best be called a guideline, however in each case before us the respondent No.3 has thought through the issues before invoking section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005. Furthermore the Chief Commissioner is not required under the stated sections to give detailed reasons for invoking section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005. Therefore with respect to the basic objection on the competence of the order issued on 19-12-2013 we find that in terms of section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005, the Chief Commissioner was competent to issue the orders of 19-12-2013 and 21-2-2014 and that he is not required to provide material evidence before invoking section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005. We also find that the letter of 13-12-2013 issued by the Chief (Automation & ST) is at best a guideline issued on the direction of the FBR. Therefore there is no merit in this objection.

14. The second set of objections pertains to due process and the violation of the principles of natural justice. Section 40B of the Act of 1990 is divided into two parts. The first part empowers the Chief Commissioner or the Board to post officers for the purposes of monitoring production, sale of taxable goods and the stock position. The proviso states that the Commissioner can also pass an order for posting of Inland Revenue Officers only if there is material evidence before him and he has reason to believe that the registered person is involved in evasion of sales tax or tax fraud. In such a situation the Commissioner has to record his reasons in writing, before passing such an order. The argument made before us essentially was that no show-cause notice was issued, no hearing was given and that the fundamental rights of the appellants and the petitioner to do their business have been violated. We have considered the meaning and the scope of the power to "monitor" under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and 45(2) of the Act of 2005. The word 'monitor' has not been, defined anywhere in the stated Acts. In the Concise Oxford English Dictionary, eleventh edition, the word 'monitor' means observe and check over a period of time. The respondents understand monitoring to mean that the team posted at the manufacturing premises physically watches the production, sales and stock positions and collects the data maintained by the appellants and the petitioner. They are observing and recording the data as maintained by the appellants and the petitioner. The voluminous data produced before us by the respondents also shows that the respondents are collecting data made by the appellants and the petitioner related to production, sale and stock positions. They watch over the process and collect the relevant information as maintained and documented by the appellants and the petitioner on a daily basis. This enables the respondents to collect data for a given period of time and consequently ascertain whether due tax is being paid. The reasons explained by the Chief Commissioner was that in these cases the taxpayer did not provide the correct information with respect to the volume of their business and the stocks maintained. The appellants and the petitioner file their returns under the Self Assessment Scheme which means that they provide the total income for the relevant period, which is then assessed to tax. The respondents state that the appellants and the petitioner do not reflect the correct position in their returns and the respondents cannot determine the factual position for the purposes of levy of tax. Furthermore the appellants and the petitioner collect the sales tax from the end consumer and deposit it with the national exchequer. Hence the respondents need to ascertain whether the collected tax has been duly deposited. Therefore we understand that the power to monitor is to watch and observe and to take the information maintained by the taxpayer with respect to its daily production, sales and stock position. At this stage there is no investigation or inquiry but simply a desire to ascertain whether in fact the volume of business in the form of purchase, sale and stock positions is duly reflected in the tax returns.

15. The basic function of the FBR is to declare a tax system and collect tax as per the Act. Section 40B of the Act of 1990 and 45(2) of the Act of 2005 gives the FBR or the Chief Commissioner the authority to post an officer to monitor production, sales of taxable goods and stock positions. For the purposes of the FBR or the Chief Commissioner no restriction has been placed by the Act of 1990 or Act of 2005 on the power of monitoring. However the said sections require the Commissioner to have material evidence and pass a speaking order under the said sections. We are of the opinion that 40B of the Act of 1990 and 45(2) of the Act of 2005 envisions a specific distinction in the manner in which the power under Section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 is to be exercised by the FBR, Chief Commissioner and the Commissioner. The Federal Board of Revenue Act, 2007 (Act of 2007) provides for the establishment of the FBR and its powers and functions. Section 4 of the Act of 2007 provides for the powers and functions of the FBR such that 4(1)(c) provides that the FBR may adopt modern effective tax administration methods, information technology system and policies in order to consolidate assessments, improve processes and widen the tax base. Section 4(1)(b) provides that the FBR should promote voluntary tax compliance and to implement comprehensive policies and programs to ensure efficient collection of tax. Section 4(1)(o) of the Act of 2007 gives the powers to make regulations, policies, programs, strategies in order to carry out the purposes of the Act of 2007. The provision of monitoring under section 40B of the Act of 1990 and section 45(2) of the Act of 2005 essentially means that the respondents need to watch over the production, sales and stocking of taxable goods in order to ascertain whether the returns being filed and the information provided is reflective of the actual production, sales and stocks maintained by the taxpayer. In the instant cases, as explained by the Chief Commissioner, the entire sugar industry was under review and it was opined that the sugar industry was not paying the required tax. Furthermore previous data was compared with present data and the respondents could not reconcile the discrepancies. Hence it was decided that the petitioner's mill be monitored. The decision of the FBR or the Chief Commissioner does not require material evidence but can be a decision based on broader principles. At this point, there is no specific allegation raised against the appellants or the petitioner for evasion of tax. The appellants and the petitioner were given due notice under 40B of the Act of 1990 and 45(2) of the Act of 2005 and were given sufficient reasons for invoking these sections. Hence a show cause notice is not required and a hearing is not required because an order under sections 40B of the Act of 1990 and 45(2) of the Act of 2005 is not an adverse order against the appellants or the petitioner for which a show-cause notice or hearing is required. In this regard we note that the appellants and the petitioner have not challenged the vires of the sections but have only challenged the impugned orders dated 19-12-2013 and 21-2-2014.

16. We have also taken notice of the arguments raised by the appellants and the petitioner that the respondents can utilize sections 40B of the Act of 1990 and 45(2) of the Act of 2005 to enter and sit within their business premises for an unlimited period of time and disturb their ability to do business. The orders dated 19-12-2013 and 21-2-2014 issued by the Chief Commissioner do not provide any timeframe within which the process of monitoring should be completed by the officers. However the section also does not stipulate any time frame. In order to prevent arbitrary exercise of powers under sections 40B of the Act of 1990 and 45(2) of the Act of 2005, we are of the opinion that when such an order is passed by the FBR or the Chief Commissioner or Commissioner, the order must provide a reasonable timeframe within which the monitoring will take place and be completed. In the event that the required data and information is not obtained within the contemplated time, the FBR, the Chief Commissioner or Commissioner are always free to extend the time by informing the taxpayer.

17. Therefore in view of the aforesaid, we find no merit in these appeals and the petition which are dismissed.

JUDGMENT

Through this common judgment, I intend to decide upon the common issues arising in the following Writ Petitions:--

W.P. Nos.	Title
8640/2010	Rabab Zahira vs. University of Agriculture etc.
10882/2010	Dr. Abdul Ghaffar vs. University of Agriculture etc.
15312/2010	Dr. Asif Javaid vs. University of Agriculture etc.
19178/2010	Mohsin Saleem etc. vs. University of Agriculture etc.

2. A description of the petitions is as follows:--

(i) WP No. 8640/2010. The Petitioner in WP No. 8640/2010 was appointed ad-hoc on contract basis for a period of six months by the Respondents vide notification dated 4.4.2007 with effect from 29.3.2007 which stipulates the terms and conditions of the contract of the Petitioner. The name of the Petitioner is at Sr.No. 51. The contract was extended vide notification dated 31.5.2008 for another six months with effect from 26.5.2008. The Petitioner's name is at Sr.No. 21. Again vide notification dated 30.6.2009 the contract was extended for another six months with effect from 27.5.2009, expiring on 27.11.2009. The Petitioner requested for extension in her ad-hoc appointment for another six months, however, the Respondents did not respond to the repeated reminders and requests of the Petitioner. Throughout this time the Petitioner kept performing her duties, however, she was not paid any salaries. The Petitioner was also recommended by the Respondent No. 1 for extension in her ad-hoc appointment, however, no heed was paid to this recommendation. The Petitioner filed appeal before the Chancellor which is still pending. Ultimately based on a verbal order dated 15.4.2010 the services of the Petitioner were terminated. The Petitioner has also impugned the act of the Respondents of rejecting the Petitioner and appointing the Respondents No. 4 and 5 as lecturers on regular basis for being in violation of the merit. Hence this petition.

(ii) WP Nos.10882, 15312 and 19178 of 2010. The Petitioner in WP Nos.10882 along with Petitioners in WP Nos.15312 and 19178 of 2010 have all impugned the verbal order of Respondent No. 4 dated 15.4.2010 by virtue of which they were not allowed to take their classes on the grounds that the verbal order is unconstitutional and against the principles of natural justice.

Therefore the common challenge is with respect to a verbal order on the basis of which the Petitioners were not allowed to carry on lecturers at the Respondent University and in WP No. 8640/2010 the Petitioner has also challenged the appointment of the Respondents No. 4 and 5 for being without merit.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the Petitioners have served in the Respondent University for a long time as Lecturers, being paid initially on lecture basis and ultimately being given ad-hoc appointments through different notifications. The Petitioners ad-hoc appointments were extended from time to time and after the expiry of the ad-hoc appointments, the Respondents did not extend the ad-hoc period despite the recommendations made in their favour and despite the long standing service of the Petitioners. The Petitioners have challenged the verbal orders of the Respondent No. 4 on the grounds that there is no sanctity in the verbal orders and that they have no knowledge as to the reasons or the grounds on which they have been denied the right to deliver their lectures at the Respondent University.

4. Learned counsel for the Petitioner in WP No. 8640/2010 argued that the Respondents advertised for three posts of lecturers in BS-18 on regular basis for which the Petitioner applied. She was called for interview, however, she was not selected. The grievance of the Petitioner is that the Respondents No. 4 and 5 were selected as lecturers on regular basis, however, they did not have the requisite merit and that the Petitioner has a far better merit and is a more deserving candidate and it is on account of the malafide acts of the Respondent University that the Petitioner was denied regular appointment. In this regard, the learned counsel has relied upon the marks given by the Selection Board to the different candidates to show that the Petitioner was not given the appropriate or deserving marks, given that she satisfied the eligibility criteria set out by the Respondent University in the advertisement dated 12.10.2009. Learned counsel argued that the Respondents No. 4 and 5 were appointed on favouritism. They did not have the requisite experience, qualification and even necessary publication. He argued that this appointment is based on the *malafide*s of the Respondents.

5. The Respondents have filed their report and parawise comments. Learned counsel for the Respondent University argued that so far as the ad-hoc appointment of the Petitioner is concerned and their extensions from time to time, the same is not denied. However, he argued that the extensions granted to the Petitioners in WP No. 8640/2010 expired in November 2009. The extensions granted to the Petitioner in WP No. 10882/2010 expired on 23.3.2010, the extension granted to the Petitioners in WP No. 19178/2010 expired in the year 2009. The Petitioners in WP No. 19178/2010 applied for regular position as lecturer. They were duly considered and interviewed by the Selection Board, however, they were not recommended for regular appointments. He argued that similarly the Petitioner in WP No. 8640/2010 applied for regular position and she was duly considered and interviewed by the Selection Board, however, she was also not recommended by the Selection Board. The Petitioner in WP No. 15312/2010 extension expired in June 2010 after which no further extension was granted. Learned counsel argued that the Petitioners were all appointed as ad-hoc lecturers on contract which were duly extended from time to time and after their contract expired the Petitioners ceased to be employees of the Respondent University. Learned counsel stated that the Petitioners have no vested right on the basis of which they can claim extension in their ad-hoc appointments. He further argued that the Petitioners were aware of the fact that they were granted one last extension and that their contracts had expired. Thereafter the Respondents were not required to issue any notice or give the Petitioners any hearing on this issue. He further stated that the Petitioners have impugned a verbal order stating they are no longer required to deliver lecture with the University, however, he states that after the expiry of the contract period, since the Petitioners ceased to be the contract employees of the University, they were no longer allowed to deliver lectures at the University. Therefore, the question of any verbal order restraining them from delivering lecturers is misconceived and contrary to the record. In this regard, learned counsel has relied upon the case titled 'Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs vs. Muhammad Azam Chattha' (2013 SCMR 120) that The contract employees are governed by the doctrine of master and servant and in the event of arbitrary dismissal or unwarranted termination of employment, the employee can sue for damages equal to wages, allowances and other benefits which would have been otherwise been payable under the contract of employment, in which case the writ petition is not maintainable. He has also relied upon 2013 SCMR 304 in S.M.C. No. 15 of 2010 and C.M.As Nos.2689, 3244 of 2010 and CMAs Nos.5383, 3068 of 2011 that a contract employee does not have a vested right for regular employment. Learned counsel argued with respect to the grievance of the Petitioner in WP No. 8640/2010 that the appointment of the Respondents No. 4 and 5 are contrary to the merit, that the Petitioner had also filed an application before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in which a direction was given to the Respondent No. 1 to decide her application. He argued that the grievance of the Petitioner was duly heard and a comprehensive order was passed by the Vice Chancellor through its order dated 11.5.2010. He argued that all the allegations raised by the Petitioner of favouritism and nepotism were duly considered at this hearing and thereafter the Vice Chancellor passed an order. Therefore, the Petitioner cannot re-agitate the matter again before this Court. He argued that the Petitioner has not raised any ground or challenged this matter specifically in the instant writ petition. He further argued that the Petitioner's case was duly considered by the Selection Board who unanimously approved the selected candidates and as such there is no justification in questioning the decision of the Selection Board. He further argued that due process was followed, the Petitioner was considered and the Selection Board did not recommend her for a regular appointment.

6. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

7. The first issue before this Court is with respect to the common prayer of the Petitioners that they were restrained from delivering lecturers at the Respondent University through verbal orders. In terms of the record and as per the arguments made by the learned counsel for the Petitioners, it is an admitted position that the Petitioners were all appointed on ad-hoc basis through different notifications whereby their period of ad-hoc appointment was extended from time to time. The expiry of the ad-hoc period is also an admitted position. The grievance of the Petitioners is that after the expiry of the contract period, the Petitioners requested for further extensions, they were denied the same even though they were recommended by their departments for extensions in the ad-hoc appointments. The Petitioners are also aggrieved by the fact that one fine day through a verbal order they were denied the right to deliver their lectures at the Respondent University. The record produced before this Court is not disputed and from this record it is clear that the Petitioners were all appointed on contract for ad-hoc lecturing, which contracts were extended from time to time. The Petitioners were all aware of the expiry of their extension period. After the expiry of the extension period, admittedly no further extension was granted to the Petitioners. There is nothing on the record to show on what basis the Petitioners did deliver the lectures, if at all, at the Respondent University. The Respondent University has categorically denied that the Petitioners were allowed to continue giving lectures at the Respondent University. I am of the opinion that the Petitioners have no right to continue lecturing after the expiry date of their contract period. There is also no vested right of the Petitioners for seeking extension or regular appointment. Finally there was no reason for the Respondent University to issue any notice or inform them that they are no longer required to continue delivering lectures, as the Petitioners knew that they were appointed as ad-hoc lecturer and that such contract was for a limited period of time. After its expiry, there was no reason for the Respondent University to issue any notice or inform the Petitioners that their contract period had expired. Therefore the very basis upon which these writ petitions have been filed wherein a verbal order has been impugned is totally misconceived and contrary to the record. So far as the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the Petitioner in WP No. 8640/2010 challenging the appointment of the Respondents No. 4 and 5 for being devoid of merit, I am of the opinion that due process was, followed. The Petitioner applied for regular appointment. She was duly considered by the Selection Board and ultimately after considering all the candidates the Selection Board unanimously appointed the Respondents No. 4 and 5. Learned counsel for the Petitioners relied upon the case titled 'Pakistan Defence Officers' Housing Authority and others vs. Lt. Col. Syed Jawaid Ahmad' (2013 SCMR 1707) that the failure to appoint the Petitioner is in fact a procedural violation and infringement of the Petitioner's rights to natural justice. In the case of this Petitioner there has been no procedural violation and no right of natural justice has been violated as she has been duly heard, interviewed and more importantly pursuant to her own application before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan, her matter was heard by the Vice Chancellor who passed a detailed order with respect to her allegations of the appointments being based on favouritism and nepotism. Now she cannot re-agitate the same issue through her writ petition.

9. In view of the aforesaid these petitions are dismissed.

Income Tax Rules, 2002---

----R. 44(4)---Income Tax Ordinance (XLIX of 2001) Ss. 161 & 205---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 199---Constitutional petition---Furnishing of annual statement of tax collected or deducted---Petitioner/taxpayer impugned notice under R. 44(4) of the Income Tax Rules, 2002 requiring him to furnish a reconciliation statement---Contention of the petitioner was that said notice was illegal and that the petitioner had already given all necessary record and information along with his tax return, and that the same was tantamount to proceedings under S. 161 of the Income Tax Ordinance 2001---Held, that the petitioner/taxpayer had only been asked to furnish required information and at such stage, contention that the same were proceedings under S. 161 of the Income Tax Ordinance 2001, was incorrect---No determination for the purposes of S. 161 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 had been made and even otherwise, a perusal of the notice showed that petitioner had been asked to submit reconciliation of all payments mentioned in the annual statement along with payments made against trading and profit and loss account mentioned in income tax return and audited accounts; and the Department had clearly stipulated different heads on which information was sought and amounts paid in terms thereof; and as such no illegality was made out----Constitutional petition, being not maintainable, was dismissed.

Date of hearing: 12th May, 2014.

ORDER

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the petitioner has impugned a notice issued under Rule 44(4) of the Income Tax Rules, 2002 (2002 Rules).

2. The case of the petitioner is that the said rule is read with sections 161/205 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (2001 Ordinance) hence the proceedings are illegal and contrary to law. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner has given all the necessary record and information to the respondents along with his return, therefore, there is no justification in issuance of show-cause notice to the petitioner under Rule 44(4) of the 2002 Rules.

3. Learned counsel for the respondents has raised a preliminary objection and states that the instant petition is not maintainable as no proceedings under section 161 of the 2001 Ordinance have commenced against the petitioner, therefore, it is a misstatement of the petitioner that the matter should be connected with the pending cases under section 161 of the 2001 Ordinance. He further argued that notice under rule 44(4) of the 2002 Rules has been issued for furnishing of information, which is not contrary to the law. He further states that at this stage, the petitioner has only been asked to submit information under Rule 44(4) of the 2002 Rules.

4. I have heard learned counsel for the parties at length on the question of maintainability of this petition. Rule 44(4) of the 2002 Rules provides that:--
"A person required to furnish the statements under sub-rule (1) or (2) shall, wherever required by the commissioner, furnish a reconciliation of the amounts mentioned in the aforesaid annual and monthly statements with the amounts mentioned in the return of income statement, related annexes and other documents submitted from time to time."

In terms of the said rule, the petitioner has only been asked to furnish required information. At this stage, the statement of the petitioner that these are proceedings under section 161 of the 2001 Ordinance is incorrect. There has been no determination for the purposes of section 161 of the 2001 Ordinance. Even otherwise, a review of the notice shows that the petitioner has been asked to submit reconciliation of all payments mentioned in the annual statement along with the payments made against trading and P&L account mentioned in the income tax return and Audited accounts. The respondents have stipulated clearly the different heads in which the information is sought and the amounts paid in terms thereof. As such no illegality is made out. This petition is dismissed being no maintainable.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the petitioner has impugned the blocking and detaining of its consignments consisting of 13 containers of electrical silicon steel sheets imported by the petitioner.

2. The case of the petitioner is that it has imported 13 containers of electrical silicon steel sheets falling under PCT heading 7225.1900 at unit value of US$ 600.00 per

M.Ton on the basis of its transaction value vide GD-LAPR-HC-9675 dated 3-3-2014. The consignments of the petitioner were examined and found to be in accordance with the declaration. Assessment was made and duty and taxes were paid. After payment of the duties and taxes the consignments should have been released. However, instead samples were drawn from the consignments and sent to the Pakistan Standard and Quality Control Authority, Lahore as well as People Steel Mills, Ltd., Karachi for reconfirmation of the description of the goods. The report of both testing labs stated that the goods imported were electrical silicon steel sheets as per the declaration made by the petitioner. The goods were to be released, however, they were blocked at the exit gate again on the allegation that the department is not satisfied with the testing reports and that fresh samples shall be taken for the purposes of having them tested from another lab. The petitioner is aggrieved by this act of the respondents on the ground that the respondents cannot illegally detain the goods of the petitioner once they have been released and duties and taxes have been paid. Furthermore, learned counsel argued that this entire exercise is being undertaken at the behest of one Principal Appraisal and his so called hunch that the consignments do not contain electrical silicon steel sheets. Learned counsel argued that even his hunch is based on speculation in relation to some other consignment of electrical silicon steel sheets wherein it was found that in fact the consignment contained tin plates and not electrical silicon steel sheets. Learned counsel argued that in the case of the petitioner the consignments have been physically examined and tested twice and it has been found that the consignments contain the goods declared. The duties and taxes were paid and they were released by the respondents.

3. Report and para wise comments have been filed by the respondents. Learned counsel for the respondents argued that the respondents have good cause to believe that the goods imported and described as electrical silicon steel sheets are in fact tin plates. Learned counsel argued that the samples have been sent to yet another lab. Learned counsel argued that the entire department and the testing laboratoris are involved in this fraudulent transaction, hence the goods have been detained for further testing purposes. Learned counsel further argued that the respondents are authorized under section 186 of the Customs Act, 1969 (Act of 1969) to detain the goods as an inquiry is underway on the basis of which the proper categorization of the goods has to be made so as to ensure that the appropriate duties and taxes are paid. Learned counsel argued that there is sufficient evidence with the respondents on the basis of which this act of detaining has been taken and as such no illegality is made out.

4. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. The basic issue before this court is whether the 13 containers of the petitioner could be detained after having been released by the respondents. Admittedly, the goods were examined and samples were drawn. One set of sample was tested by Pakistan Standard and Quality Control Authority, Lahore. In terms of the report provided on 10-3-2014 the consignment contained electrical silicon steel sheets.

The consignment was also tested to confirm the findings of Pakistan Standard and Quality Control Authority, Lahore. The samples were sent to the Peoples Steel Mills Ltd, Karachi and the report was issued on 10-3-2014, which also confirmed that the consignment contained electrical silicon steel sheet. The respondents have relied upon a letter issued with respect to another consignment by some other company, which was sent for testing and found that the goods were not electrical silicon steel sheets but were in fact contained tin plates. On the basis of this report, in relation to another consignment, the respondents have detained the consignments of the petitioner for yet another round of testing and re-examination. The samples have been sent to HFJ Lab by the respondents by virtue of their letter dated 25-3-2014. Learned counsel for the respondents was not able to satisfy this court on the question as to what necessitated a third testing of the sample when two independent labs had confirmed that the consignment contained electrical silicon steel sheets. The record shows that the only material available to the respondents is the letter issued on 25-3-2014 in relation to similar consignments. Learned counsel for the respondents has also relied upon the section 186 of the Act of 1969. However, a bare reading of the section shows that it is not relevant to the case at hand because no fine or penalty has been imposed or is even under consideration at the moment. The respondents are acting on a hunch and still have to satisfy themselves that the goods imported by the petitioner are in fact tin plates and not electrical silicon steel sheets. Learned counsel for the respondents was also not able to show whether any investigation or adjudicatory process was pending under the Act of 1969 against the petitioner. Admittedly, the consignments were opened and samples were drawn by the respondents to check the contents of the consignments. Admittedly, two reports have been furnished in favour of the petitioner. Although, allegations of mala fide on the part of the testing labs have also be inferred by the respondents, there is nothing on the record to substantiate this claim. Detaining the goods at the exit gate after having released them is totally contrary to the provision of the Act of 1969. The respondents have available to them the provision of the Act of 1969 and to proceed with the matter where they are unsure of the classification or status of the goods imported. In the instant case, due process was followed and the goods were cleared. However while acting on a hunch, the respondents have detained the goods at the exit gates even though taxes and duties have been paid and the goods have been released.

6. Under the circumstances, this petition is allowed and the respondents are directed to release the goods of the petitioner instantly. It is noted that in the event, the respondents need to investigate into this issue, they have already detained samples of the goods of the petitioner and are free to adopt due process of law and investigate into the matter in accordance with law.

MH/O-2/L Petition allowed.

JUDGMENT

This single judgment decides upon the common issues arising in the aforementioned writ petitions. The impugned orders in the petitions are the orders passed by the (i) Scrutiny Committee, PCB (ii) Election Commissioner, PCB as well as the orders of the (iii) Independent Arbitrator, PCB.

2. The grievance of the petitioners in all the petitions is common, however the petitioners have come to this Court at different stages. The petitioners shown in the aforementioned Annexure-A have come against the order of the Scrutiny Committee dated 10.6.2013. The petitioners shown in Annexure-B have come against the order of the Election Commissioner, PCB dated 4.1.2012, 19.7.2013 and the petitioners in Annexure-C have come against the order of the Independent Arbitrator, PCB dated 21.5.2012, 22.5.2012 and 24.5.2012.

3. The petitioners are all cricket clubs which have been declared 'inactive' through the order of the Scrutiny Committee. The ease of the petitioners is that the Scrutiny Committee passed a non-speaking order contrary to the record, without recording any evidence and collecting any information about the status of the petitioner clubs. Learned counsel for the petitioners detailed in Annexure 'A' argued that the order of the Scrutiny Committee dated 10.6.2013 is a non-speaking order. The petitioners were not given an opportunity of hearing nor was any evidence recorded before passing the impugned orders. The Scrutiny Committee in a slipshod manner passed the impugned order without detailing as to why the petitioners have been declared as 'inactive' clubs. Learned counsel further argued that the decision of the Scrutiny Committee is contrary to the record because the petitioner's clubs fulfills the criteria as stipulated in the Constitution of the Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB Constitution) for 'active' clubs.

4. The petitioners who have come against the orders of the Election Commissioner and the Independent Arbitrator are essentially aggrieved by the orders wherein they have upheld the orders of the Scrutiny Committee and maintained the status of the petitioners as an 'inactive' clubs. The grievance of these petitioners as mentioned in Annexure 'B' and `C' is that the decision of the Scrutiny Committee is contrary to the PCB Constitution. They have also agitated the ground that since the District Cricket Association did not organize any tournament, therefore the petitioners should not have been made responsible for not playing any tournament. They have also argued that the orders of the Election Commissioner and t he Independent Arbitrator are contrary to the record.

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondent PCB. Learned counsels for the Respondent PCB argued that the petitions have been filed on behalf of the cricket clubs, however no resolution has been appended with the instant petitions to show that the president of the cricket club has been authorized to file the instant petitions. He further argued that the Province of Punjab has not been impleaded as necessary party which is a fatal defect and on this ground alone the petitions merit dismissal. Learned counsel argued that the petitioners have impugned the decisions of the Scrutiny Committee, however, the instructions/guidelines and the procedure of the Scrutiny Committee are not statutory in nature, hence these petitions are not maintainable, lie further argued that against the order of the Scrutiny Committee the petitioners have a right to file an appeal under Para 40(2) of Part VIII (Dispute Resolutions or Appeals) of the PCB Constitution which right of appeal has not been availed. He further argued that against the decision of the Election Commissioner, PCB, another appeal lies before the Independent Arbitrator in terms of Para 40(6) of Part VIII (Dispute Resolutions or Appeals) bf the PCB Constitution. The petitioners mentioned in Annexure 'A' have come directly to the Court against the orders of the Scrutiny Committee without availing remedy before the Election Commissioner and the Independent Arbitrator. Both remedies are adequate and efficacious remedies which should have been availed by the petitioners. The petitioners named in Annexure 'B' and 'C' have availed their remedies and cannot re-agitate their case through the instant writ petitions.

6. Learned counsel for the Respondent PCB argued that the criteria and the guidelines of the scrutiny procedure have been set out under the Necessary Instructions/Guidelines for Clubs Appearing in PCB Scrutiny (Scrutiny Guidelines). In terms of the said Scrutiny Guidelines the cricket club provides its information in the Club Scrutiny Form. The Scrutiny Committee visits the site of the cricket club and thereafter physically verifies the information provided by the cricket club in the Club Scrutiny Forms. Learned counsel argued that each of the petitioners have filled the Club Scrutiny Form (2013) and in W.P. Nos.14127, 14128, 16098 of 2012 and W.P. No. 842/2014 Club Scrutiny Form (2011) in which they have provided all the relevant data in relation to their club such as the number of players, cricket field and its playing facilities. The Scrutiny Committee makes a spot inspection to verify whether the playing facilities and the players of the club are in terms of the criteria given in the Scrutiny Guidelines and also are in terms of the information provided by the clubs itself in the Club Scrutiny Forms. He argued that it is necessary to determine whether or not the cricket club is 'active' or 'inactive' for the purposes of election because an 'active' club is eligible to vote in terms of Part V of the PCB

Constitution. Learned counsel argued that if the club does not meet the stipulated criteria it is declared as 'inactive' club, hence it cannot vote. Learned counsel argued that in the cases of the petitioners in W.P. No. 30655, 30656, 30658, 30659, 30660, 30661, 30662, 30663 and 30673 of 2013, the petitioners have availed the remedy of appeal before the Election Commissioner, PCB but this fact has not been disclosed in the Petition. Learned counsel further argued that the issues raised in the instant petitions are of a factual nature and as such cannot be decided in a constitutional petition.

7. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondents No. 4, 6 and 7 in W.P. Nos.20103, 30654 and 30056 of 2013. Learned counsel for the stated Respondents have provided the complete record of the tournaments held and the clubs that have played those tournaments.

8. Heard the learned counsels for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

9. The petitioners in Annexures A, B, C claim that the Scrutiny Committee passed its order dated 10.6.2013 hastily without recording evidence and collecting information and totally contrary to the PCB Constitution. The PCB Constitution defines an 'active' club in Paragraph 2(ii). An 'active' club has to be scrutinized in order to be declared eligible for the elections of the Regional District Associations. An 'active' club has the right to vote in terms of Paragraph 5 of Part-V of the PCB Constitution which is reproduced below:

> "The BOG shall appoint the scrutiny committees to scrutinize eligible clubs and associations for holding elections".

The PCB Constitution does not set out the procedure in relation to the process of scrutiny. However the respondents have framed the Scrutiny Guidelines which provides for the criteria that the club has to be meet in order to be declared an 'active' club. It is an internal document made for the benefit of the clubs. A review of the Scrutiny Guidelines shows that it essentially requires the cricket club to verify the information provided for by the clubs with respect to its players data, its playing facilities and its playing activities. In terms of the record produced by the learned counsel for the Respondent PCB, the petitioners all filled in their Club Scrutiny Form (2013) and Club Scrutiny Form (2011) in which they have provided their data. The Scrutiny Committee visited the club at its playing site to ensure that the information so provided is correct. Again the data provided on the Club Scrutiny Forms (2013) and (2011) was verified. On the basis of the information provided a decision was taken whether the petitioner's club satisfied the criteria for being declared an 'active club'. After the inspection at site, the Scrutiny Committee found that the petitioners did not satisfy the requirements. Hence the clubs were declared 'inactive'. Nothing has been brought on the record to show that the process conducted in the year 2013 or 2011 with respect to the scrutiny of the petitioners clubs was mala fide or against the mandate of the PCB Constitution. The petitioners have impugned the scrutiny process on the ground that no recording of evidence took place and that information was not collected. Furthermore the order was passed in a slipshod manner. However to the mind of this Court these grounds also do not merit any consideration because the scrutiny process does not require recording of evidence. The purpose of scrutiny is to verify whether the club meets the criteria of an `active club'. The Scrutiny Committee verifies the team, its playing facilities and ground available as well as tournaments played from the data given by the petitioners themselves in the Club Scrutiny Form (2013) and (2011). Hence the information is provided by the petitioners and the Scrutiny Committee verifies its correctness. If the petitioners dispute the findings of the Scrutiny Committee then remedy of appeal before the Election Commissioner is available and thereafter before the Independent Arbitrator. The petitioners detailed in Annexure 'A' have come directly against the order of the Scrutiny Committee. The issues raised in these petitions are of factual nature and efficacious remedy is available to them before the Election Commissioner and then before the Independent Arbitrator under the PCB Constitution, hence these petitions are not maintainable. So far as the petitioners detailed in Annexures 'B' and 'C are concerned, they have also come against the order of the Scrutiny Committee which they challenged before the Election Commissioner and the Independent Arbitrator. Again the issues raised are factual in nature and these petitioners have availed the remedy provided under the PCB Constitution. Therefore these petitioners cannot re-agitate the same issue through these Writ Petitions.

10. Even otherwise several preliminary objections have been raised by the learned counsel for the Respondent PCB which require adjudication. In the first instance they argued that the petitions have been filed by the cricket clubs through their presidents without due authorization. Review of the record of each of the instant petitions except W.P. No. 30580/2013 shows that the petitioners are all cricket clubs who have filed the petitions through their presidents, without any authorization in favour of the president. There is merit in this objection as the club had to have authorized the president before he could have instituted the instant petitions.

11. The second objection raised is that the Province of Punjab has not been made a party in any of the petitions and this is fatal to the petitions. This objection also has merit in view of the dicta laid down in the case titled 'Government of Balochistan, CWPP&H Department and others vs. Nawabzada Mir Tariq Husain Khan Magsi and others' (2010 SCMR 115) and 'The State through Prosecutor General, Punjab vs. Hafiz Ikram Saeed and others' (2013 SCMR 1045) the Province or the Federation must be impleaded as a party while invoking constitutional jurisdiction under Article 199 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pak

12. It is further noted that the petitioners in W.P. No. 842/2014 have impugned the scrutiny process conducted in the year 2011. After the order of the Scrutiny Committee they filed an appeal before the Election Commissioner, which was decided on 4.1.2012. It is noted that the petition is hit by the laches and further that alter the 2011 scrutiny, the scrutiny of 2013 has also taken place. Therefore, there is no merit in these petitions.

13. It is also noted that the petitioners in W.P. Nos.14127 and 14128 of 2012 have impugned the scrutiny process of 2011. Thereafter they filed the appeals before the Election Commissioner who dismissed their appeals. Thereafter they availed the remedy before the Independent Arbitrator. These petitioners seek the benefit of order passed in W.P. No. 262/2014. However the said order cannot be applied to the case of the petitioners because they have availed their remedy against the order of the Scrutiny Committee in 2011. Both the Election Commissioner and the Independent Arbitrator have dismissed their appeals and found that they are 'inactive' clubs. Therefore the process of scrutiny and the availing of remedy against the same has been completed and no illegality has been made out in the said orders.

14. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petitions are dismissed.

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- This single judgment decides upon the common issues arising in the W.Ps. Nos.6990 and 9234 of 2011.

2. Through these petitions, the petitioners have impugned the action of the respondents of trespassing on to the property of the petitioners measuring 29 Kanals, 19 Marlas and 187 Sq.ft. known as 34 Lawrence Road, Lahore (Property) and demolishing the superstructure built thereon and taking possession of the same.

3. The facts of this case are that the petitioner in W.P. No.6990 of 2011 and the pro forma respondents are the children of Col. (R) Dr. Ilahi Bakhsh and Begum Usman Abida Sultan. The dispute relates to the property measuring 29 Kanals, 19 Marlas and 187 sq.ft. known as 34 Lawrence Road, Lahore. The property was purchased from the Custodian by Begum Usman Abida Sultan. The sale was approved by the Ministry of Rehabilitation, Government of Pakistan under section 25(2)(s) of the Pakistan (Administration of Evacuee Property) Act, 1957 (Act of 1957) on 18-2-1959. The value of the property was assessed at Rs.144,000 which amount was duly paid by Col. .(R) Dr. Ilahi Bakhsh and his wife Begum Usman Abida Sultan through two cheques dated 17-8-1959..The Deed of Conveyance was executed by the Custodian of Evacuee Property, West Pakistan, Lahore (Custodian) in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan. This Deed of Conveyance dated 12-12-1959 was registered on 15-12-1959. The property was used for the purposes of Ilahi Clinic which provided free medical treatment. The hospital was run by Dr. Ilahi Bakhsh for many years. However after his death, his children moved away and sometime later the hospital became disfunctional, but the property continued to be used in connection with medical services and facilities, such as Zeenat Laboratory and other Medical Laboratories.

4. On 28-3-2011, the respondents Nos.1-5 under the garb of an anti-encroachment drive trespassed into the property of the petitioners and demolished the superstructure built there and took possession of the property. No notice or prior warning was given to the petitioner or the pro forma respondents or the occupants of the medical facilities on the property. This act of the respondents has been impugned in the instant writ petition. Learned counsel for the petitioner also argued that Col.(R) Dr. Ilahi Bakhsh is buried on this property and his shrine (mazaar) is standing there and has not been damaged by the respondents.

5. W.P. No.9324 of 2011 has been filed by The Medical Laboratories (Pvt.) Ltd. on the ground that they are tenants of the petitioner in W.P. No.6990 of 2011 and the pro forma respondents 6-12. They have challenged the Impugned Action as tenants of the petitioner in W.P. No.6990 of 2011.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that the Impugned Action is illegal and in violation of the principles of natural justice. No notice or opportunity of hearing was given. Learned counsel argued that there was no reason or justification for demolishing the property of the petitioner and the pro forma respondents. The petitioners and the pro forma respondents have been deprived of their property in violation of the law. The Petitioners and the pro forma respondents in W.P. No.6990 of 2011 are not encroachers of the property as they are the owners in possession of the property and the petitioner in WP No.9324 of 2011 is their tenant and the respondent No.1 have illegally demolished their property and claim to be the owners of the said property. Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the Deed of Conveyance of the property which shows that Begum Usman Abida Sultan was the absolute owner of the Property along with building and vacant property being 34 Lawrence Road, Lahore. He argued that the transfer in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan was approved on 18-2-1959 under section 25(2)(s) of the Act of 1957. He argued that a valid Deed of Conveyance was executed in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan which cannot be cancelled without a proper decree from the competent court. The respondent No.1 through the Impugned Action simply grabbed possession of the property of the petitioner and the pro forma respondents and claim it to be their own property. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the registered Deed of Conveyance in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan is still an effective legal document on the basis of which the petitioner and the pro forma respondents are the owners of the property. In this regard, he has placed reliance on the cases titled `Mrs. Sultana Ahmed v. Sindh Industrial Trading Estate Ltd. through Managing Director and 2 others' (2003 YLR 1760) and Mst. Fazeelat Tahira v. Aftab Ahmad etc.' (2000 UC 91). Learned counsel for the petitioner also argued that the registered Deed of Conveyance prevails over the revenue record and the same cannot be cancelled or nullified through the Revenue Record. Learned counsel argued that after the Impugned Action the respondent, Government of Punjab had the property mutated in its favour which in itself is an illegal act. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the property was transferred to Begum Usman Abida Sultan and is a past and closed transaction which cannot be reopened and transferred by a notified officer. Learned counsel places reliance on the cases titled 'Ussama Tariq v. Administrator (Residual Properties)/Additional Commissioner (Revenue), Lahore Division, Lahore and 3 others' (2003 SCMR 616), Mst. Badshah Begum and others v. The Additional Commissioner (R) Lahore Division and others' (2003 SCMR 629) and 'Sher Afzal Khan and others v. Haji Razi Abdullah and others' (1984 SCMR 228). Learned counsel further argued that this is a complete transfer in favour of the petitioner and the pro forma respondents and the respondent No.1 could not have taken the possession and mutated the property in its favour. He further argued that due process was never followed hence the Impugned Action is illegal. Learned counsel further argued that the proprietary rights of the petitioner and the pro forma respondents are protected under the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 and under the law. He further argued that the Petitioner and the pro forma respondents are entitled to restoration of their possession through the instant writ petition. In this regard he has placed reliance on the cases 'Aitzaz Ahsan and 2 others v. Municipal Committee, Gujrat' (1994 CLC 255), `Ijaz Ahmad and others v. The State and others' (PLD 2001 Lahore 94), `Mussarrat Afza v. Shaukat Iqbal, Deputy Commissioner, District Mandi Bahauddin and 4 others' (1998 CLC 733), 'Muhammad Aslam v. Assistant Commissioner/Collector, Khanpur, District Rahim Yar Khan and 4 others' (1998 CLC 1596) and 'Muhammad Aslam v. Station House Officer and others' (1993 MLD 152).

7. Learned counsel on behalf of the petitioner in W.P. No.9324 of 2011 adopts the arguments of the learned counsel for the petitioner and states that the petitioner being tenant has been paying the rent regularly and that the respondent No.1 has unlawfully dispossessed the petitioner from the property.

8. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respondents Nos.3 and 4. In terms of the report and parawise comments filed, this property has been transferred in the name of the Provincial Government and now belongs to the Provincial Government vide mutation No.7661 dated 14-4-2011. The Provincial Government intends to build a Kidney Transparent and Dialysis Center. The Deed of Conveyance dated 15-12-1959 is a void document as the Federal Government acquired the property on 17-3-1959 after which the Custodian had no authority to transfer the property and execute the Deed of Conveyance. The Property was mutated in favour of the Federal Government on 15-6-1963 through mutation No.3581, hence there was no transfer ever made in favour of the petitioner or the pro forma respondents. The approval letter being relied upon by the petitioner dated 18-2-1959 is a bogus document as it is totally in contravention to section 3 of the Displaced-Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act, 1958 (Act of 1958). Learned Law Officer argued that even otherwise the Property was given to the petitioner for a specific purpose. Hence it was a conditional sale. Since the purpose for which the sale took place was not being carried out, the Government of Punjab took the property from the Petitioners and the pro forma respondents.

9. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respondent Administrator (Residual Properties), Board of Revenue, Punjab who is respondent No.14 in W.P. No.9324 of 2011. The report and parawise comments have been signed by the Chief Settlement Commissioner, Board of Revenue, Punjab, Lahore who is represented through two counsel Mr. Ghazanfar Khalid Saeed and Mr. Mehmood A. Sheikh, Advocates. The case of the respondent No.14 is that the Property became part of the compensation pool through notification issued under section 3 of Act of 1958. Therefore it is their case that the Custodian had no jurisdiction with respect to the property and could not have sold the same. Learned senior counsel has relied upon the cases titled 'Sher Muhammad and others v. Azmat Ali' (PLD 1968 Lahore 1171), 'Mehra v. Zahur Ahmad' (PLD 1971 Lahore 834), 'Maj. Mehtab Khan v. The Rehabilitation Authority and another' (PLD 1973 SC 451) and 'Talib Hussain v. Secretary, Evacuee Property and 7 others' (1986 CLC 2536) to urge the point that the Custodian could not have sold the property to the Begum Usman Abida Sultan. The case of the respondent Chief Settlement Commissioner is that the property was notified and formed part of the compensation pool. Thereafter mutation No.3581 was issued in favour of the Federal Government on 15-6-1963. The Federal Government thereafter transferred the property in favour of the Provincial Government vide mutation No.7661 dated 14-4-2011. The petitioners are therefore trespassers and encroachers upon the government property and the Impugned Action was strictly in accordance with law.

10. Report and parawise comments have also been filed on behalf of the respondents Nos.6-12 who are the legal heirs of Lt. Col. Dr. Illahi Buksh and they have essentially reiterated the case as argued on behalf of the petitioners.

11. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record available on the file.

12. The petitioner along with respondents Nos.6-12 rely upon Deed of Conveyance dated 12-12-1959 registered on 15-12-1959 bearing Khasra Nos.309, 310, 311 and 312 of Khasra Imrati of Mozang, Lahore as their title document on the basis of which they are owners of the Property. This Deed of Conveyance is between the Custodian and Begum Usman Abida Sultan wife of Lt. Col. Illahi Buksh. The recital in the Deed of Conveyance provides that this was Lala Haveli Shah and Sardari Lal sons of Rai Bahadur Sundardas, caste Khatri Hindu who became evacuees from Pakistan as they migrated from Pakistan and settled in India. The property became evacuee property under the provisions of the Act of 1957. Consequently the property vested in the custody of the Custodian. The Government of Pakistan through its letter dated 18-2-1959 addressed to the Custodian granted approval under section 25(2)(s) of the Act of 1957 to sell and transfer the said property to Begum Usman Abida Sultan as per the price assessed by the Custodian under section 26 of the Act of 1957 and upon cash payment. Two other conditions were imposed, that the property will be utilized for building a hospital and that it should be constructed and completed within two years' time. The value of the property was fixed at Rs.144,000 which was paid through cheque No.006953 dated 17-8-1959 and cheque No.008982 dated 17-8-1959. Thereafter the property was transferred to Begum Usman Abida Sultan through the Deed of Conveyance dated 12-12-1959.

13. The basic issue before this Court is whether the Custodian had the power to sell the property under the Act of 1958. The Act of 1958 came into force on 26-3-1958 whereas in terms of the Deed of Conveyance, the approval was granted by the Federal Government in favour of the Custodian under section 25(2)(s) on 18-2-1959. It is the case of the respondents that this property became part of the compensation pool and could not have been sold by the Custodian. The respondents have relied upon SRO No.392 dated 17-3-1959 in their parawise comments to urge the point that the property was acquired-under section 3 of the Act of 1958 and therefore could not be sold by the Custodian. However, they have not placed a copy of the said notification on the record nor was it produced during arguments. The petitioners have placed a copy of SRO No.392 dated 17-8-1959 on the record to show that SRO No.392 is not relevant as it essentially notifies the Displaced Persons (Land Settlement) Rules, 1959. Therefore it appears that there is no specific notification issued under section 3 of the Act of 1958 with respect to this property. Under the Act of 1957, the Custodian is vested with all Evacuee property with effect from 1-3-1947. The Custodian has the power under section 25(2)(s) of the Act of 1957 to transfer any evacuee property, notwithstanding anything contained in any law or agreement to the contrary relating thereto section 26 of the Act of 1957 provides that the Custodian may determine the value of the property vesting in him and section 42 of the Act of 1957 provides that Every order purporting to be made or signed by the Custodian under this Act shall be presumed to have been made or signed by the Custodian until the contrary is proved. Therefore in terms of the Act of 1957, the property vested in the Custodian. The Custodian obtained permission to transfer the Evacuee Property to Begum Usman Abida Sultan on 18-2-1959 and thereafter received the consideration for the property. The Deed of Conveyance was executed on 12-12-1959 in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan finalizing the transfer of ownership rights in her favour. To the mind of this Court a valid and legal transfer of proprietary rights in the property was made by the Custodian in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan (the petitioner and respondents Nos.6-12 being her legal heirs). The argument raised by the respondents that the property was part of the compensation pool and therefore the Custodian had no right to transfer the property is not substantiated by any document. They have not been able to show any notification on the basis of which this property was acquired by the Federal Government under sections 3 and 4 of the Act of 1958. The petitioners have relied upon a gazette Notification No.U-8-79/3113 dated 21-8-1959 which provides that any notification issued under section 3 of the Act of 1958 will not be applicable to property for the acquisition or sale of which sanction of the Federal Government under the Act of 1957 has already been given. Therefore in order for the property to be transferred under the Act of 1958 into the compensation pool, it was necessary that it was acquired under section 3 of the Act of 1958. It appears that the property was never acquired under section 3 of the Act of 1958, hence never formed part of the compensation pool and the Custodian who had already taken permission for selling the property from the Federal Government executed the Deed of Conveyance, being the competent authority. Furthermore Notification No.U-8-79/3113 dated 21-8-1959 read with the permission accorded on 18-2-1959 shows that the Property was never acquired under section 3 of the Act of 1958 and it did not form part of the compensation pool.

14. Even otherwise to the mind of this Court, the Federal Government as the owner of the property, gave permission to sell the property to Begum Usman Abida Sultan on 18-2-1959. The respondents Nos.1-4 have not challenged or questioned the permission given on 18-2-1959 or the Deed of Conveyance dated 12-12-1959 to date before any forum. The property has been in the possession of Begum Usman Abida Sultan and then her legal heirs since 12-12-1959 being more than 52 years. In all this time the ownership and possession of the property remained in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan and her legal heirs which was never questioned or challenged by the respondents Nos.1-4 before any forum. However suddenly on 28-3-2011 the respondent No.1 on an anti-encroachment drive demolished the building and superstructure on the property of the petitioners on the understanding that they became owners of the property vide mutation No.7661 dated 14-4-2011. There is nothing on the record which explains this mutation or why the Federal Government effected mutation No.7661 in favour of respondent No.1. The Federal Government ceased to be the owner of the property on 12-12-1959 when it executed the Deed of Conveyance through the Custodian in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan. Effectively the Federal Government entered into an agreement to sell with Begum Usman Abida Sultan through the Custodian on 18-2-1959 when they approved transfer of the property in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan. The subsequent mutation in favour of the Federal Government on 15-6-1963 is of no legal consequence because the Property had already been transferred and sold in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan. Even otherwise mutation dated 14-4-2011 relied upon by the Provincial Government merely shows that property has been registered in the revenue record as being in the ownership of the Government of Punjab. However it does not show or prove title to the said property. It is settled law that mutation simply records ownership but it is not a title document in itself. It is maintained for fiscal purposes and on the basis of mutation No.7661, the Government of Punjab cannot claim to be the owner of the Property. Furthermore there is a registered Deed of Conveyance in favour of Begum Usman Abida Sultan which cannot be cancelled by a mere entry in the revenue record.

15. The respondents Nos.1-4 have raised several arguments to justify the Impugned Action. Learned Law Officer argued that this was at best a conditional sale where the property in question had to be used for the purposes stipulated in the Deed of Transfer. Since the hospital was never built, the condition was violated, hence the Provincial Government had every right to demolish the buildings on the Property and take over its possession. This argument has no merit because in the first instance the Government of Punjab should have issued notices prior to any act of demolition explaining the reasons for demolition. Secondly they claim to be owners since 14-4-2011 yet the Impugned Action took place on 28-3-2011 prior in time to their own claim. Further they are not party to the Deed of Conveyance in which they alleged breach of conditions. For 52 years the property has been in the ownership and possession of the petitioners. The Federal Government has never objected to the sale, transfer or possession in their favour nor have they claimed any breach under the Deed of Conveyance. The Provincial Government has no right whatsoever in the property and the mutation in its favour dated 14-4-2011 does not create any right in their favour. If at all the Government of Punjab lay any claim to the property, due process should have been followed before any demolition or taking possession. The Impugned Action was taken without following due process and without any justifiable reasons. If the respondents dispute title in favour of the petitioners or even the documents in their favour then such a dispute should have been raised before the competent forum. Merely based on an entry in the revenue record, the respondent No.1 cannot claim to be the owner of the property. Therefore, respondent No.1 has taken illegal possession of the petitioners' property under the garb of its anti-encroachment drive. After hearing all the parties at length, it appears that the Government of Punjab acted without considering the rights of ownership and possession, due process and the principles of natural justice. The respondent No.1 with the help of its officers forcibly took possession of the property from the petitioners without any consideration of the law through a show of force which was totally unjustified and without the sanction of law.

16. Therefore, for the aforementioned reasons, this writ petition is allowed. The respondent No.1 is directed to hand over the possession of the entire property to the petitioners within 24 hours. The petitioners are at liberty to proceed against the respondent No.1 to seek damages for the loss that they have suffered on account of the illegal acts of the Provincial Government.

JUDGMENT

This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule 'A', appended with this judgment.

2. The Petitioners are all working with the Prosecutor General Punjab. They are aggrieved by the transfer orders issued by the Secretary Government of Punjab, Public Prosecution Department in this case dated 30.06.2014. The main grievance of the Petitioners is that the Respondent No. 2, Secretary Prosecution Department is not competent to issue the transfer orders because under the Punjab Criminal Prosecution Service (Constitution, Power & Service) Act, 2006 (2006 Act), the competent authority is the Prosecutor General Punjab, being the Respondent No. 3.

3. The Petitioner in W.P. No. 19330/2014 is Assistant District Public Prosecutor (ADPP) (BS-17) who was transferred vide order dated 30.6.2014 from District Sheikhupura to District Rahim Yar Khan. The Petitioner in W.P. No. 19613/2014 is ADPP who was transferred vide order dated 30.6.2014 from District Sheikhupura to District Nankana Sahib. The Petitioner in W.P. No. 19614/2014 is ADPP who was transferred vide order dated 30.6.2014 from District Sheikhupura to District Attock.

The Petitioner in W.P. No. 19615/2014 is ADPP who was transferred vide order dated 30.6.2014 from District Sheikhupura to District Rahim Yar Khan. The Petitioner in W.P. No. 19616/2014 is ADPP who was transferred vide order dated 30.6.2014 from District Sheikhupura to District Gujranwala. The Petitioner in W.P. No. 20545/2014 is ADPP who was transferred vide order dated 30.6.2014 from District Lahore to District Gujranwala. The Petitioner in W.P. No. 33302/2014 is ADPP who was transferred vide order dated 9.12.2014 from District Lahore to District Kasur.

4. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the Petitioners are public servants by virtue of Section 18 of the 2006 Act. The Prosecutor General is the head of the Service in terms of Section 5(2) of the Act, 2006. The Prosecutor General is the competent authority to pass all orders of transfer and posting as has been laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled Province of Sindh through Chief Secretary, Sindh, Sindh Secretariat and another v. Prosecutor General Sindh, Criminal Prosecution Department and Others (2012 SCMR 307). Learned counsel argued that in terms of the dicta laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan, the Prosecutor General is the competent authority to order the transfer and posting of his subordinates because he is the head of the Service. He is responsible for the superintendence of the working of all Prosecutor General, Deputy Prosecutor Generals and Additional Prosecutor Generals. The Prosecutor General is in a better position to make decisions vis-a-vis transfer of members of the Service because he is the administrative head. Learned counsel further argued that transfer and posting falls within the administrative control and supervision of the Prosecutor General. He argued that the terms and conditions of the Service are subject to the 2006 Act. Learned counsel further argued that the Petitioners are public servants. Hence this Court has jurisdiction.

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned Additional Advocate General (AAG) argued that the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan cited at 2012 SCMR 307 (supra) is not applicable to the case of the Petitioners. He further argued that the said judgment was rendered in relation to the Sindh Criminal Prosecution Service (Constitution, Functions and Powers) Act, 2009 (2009 Act). He argued that there are two distinguishing features. The first distinguishing feature is that under the 2009 Act, no rules have been framed whereas under the 2006 Act, Punjab Criminal Prosecution Service (Conditions of Service) Service Rules, 2007 (2007 Rules) have been made in exercise of the powers conferred under Section 15 of the 2006 Act. The second distinguishing feature is that the prosecution service in Sindh is headed by the Prosecutor General because the relevant Secretary there is the Special Secretary Law & Parliamentary Affairs. In the Punjab, he argued that there is a Secretary, Prosecution Department who is the head of the prosecution department and all the transfer and posting are ordered by the Secretary Prosecution Department. This is in line with all departments in the Government of Punjab, where for BPS-17 and above the Secretary is the appointing authority. Under the 2006 Act and 2007 Rules, the Secretary Prosecution Department is the appointing authority for BPS-17 and above. Since these are appointments by transfer the competent authority is the Secretary Prosecution Department. He further argued that the Petitioners are bound by the orders of the competent authority and their reliance on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan is misplaced. He stated that under the Punjab Criminal Prosecution Service (Conditions of Service) Rules, 2007 and the Prosecutor General (Miscellaneous Posts) Service Rules, 2011 the following are the Appointing Authorities in the Prosecution Department:--

1.	Director Human Resource	:	BS-1 to BS-4
2.	Prosecutor General	:	BS-5 to BS-15
3.	Secretary Prosecution	:	BS-16 to BS-18
4.	Chief Minister	:	BS-19 and above.

The Appointing Authorities are competent to initiate disciplinary proceedings/suspend or dismiss an officer under Section 2 of the Punjab Employees Efficiency, Discipline and Accountability Act, 2006 read with Notification No. SORI (S&GAD) 1-30/2003 dated 13.02.2013 issued under Section 2 of the Act ibid.

6. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record.

7. The Petitioners are all ADPPs in BPS-17, who have been transferred from their existing postings by the Secretary Prosecution Department. The 2006 Act establishes the prosecution department which includes the Punjab Criminal Prosecution Service. Under Section 4 of the 2006 Act, the Service shall consist of the Prosecutor General, Additional Prosecutors General, Deputy Prosecutors General, District Public Prosecutors, Deputy District Public Prosecutors and Assistant District Public Prosecutors. Under Section 5 of the 2006 Act, the superintendence and administration of the Service shall vest in the Prosecutor General. Under Section 8(3) of the 2006 Act, all the appointments, except that of the Prosecutor General, to various posts in the Service, shall be made through initial recruitment in the manner as may be prescribed. Section 8(5) of the 2006 Act provides that the promotion or transfer in the Service shall be made in the manner as may be prescribed. By virtue of the rule making power under Section 15 of the 2006 Act, the 2007 Rules have been framed. Rule 4(1) of the 2007 Rules provides for the manner of appointment such that appointment to a post in the Service may be through initial recruitment, promotion and transfer. Rule 7 of the 2007 Rules provides that appointment through transfer may be made from amongst the eligible officers in accordance with the provisions with the schedule. The schedule appended with the 2007 Rules provides that for the post of ADPP the appointing authority is the Administrative Secretary. Therefore the 2006 Act and 2007 Rules when read together the competent authority for the purposes of appointment through transfer is the Secretary Prosecution Department.

8. The Petitioners have relied upon 2012 SCMR 307(supra) to urge the point that the competent authority is the Prosecutor General because he is the Administrative Head of the Service, he supervises the Service and all members of the Service report to him. In the said judgment when considering the issue of the competent authority for he purposes of transfer and posting, the relevant law was the 2009 Act. In that case it was argued that the Government of Sindh has the power to order the transfer and posting of members of the Service under Section 5 (1) and (3) of the 2009 Act. The argument relied upon the Sindh Government Rules of Business, 1986, read with Sindh Civil Servants (Appointment, Promotion and Transfer) Rules, 1974 which rules are framed under Section 26 of the Sindh Civil Servants Act, 1973. The argument there was that the power of transfer and posting vests with the Sindh Government, to be exercised by the Secretary Law who has been notified by the prosecution department. The distinction drawn by the learned AAG is that in the instant case the 2006 Act have to be read with the 2007 Rules in order to settle this controversy whereas before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan under the 2009 Act no rules have been framed. To the mind of this Court, this distinction draws the instant cases out of the ambit of 2012 SCMR 307 (supra). In the instant case the 2007 Rules categorically provide for the competent authority with regard to appointment by transfer whereas in the matter before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan no such rules were available. Therefore reliance on the dicta of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan with respect to the administration head and supervisory head would not be relevant to the case of the Petitioners.

9. In view of the aforesaid, all these Petitions are dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK J.--- This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule 'A', appended with this judgment.

2. The petitioners are civil servants in BS-20. The petitioners were recommended for promotion by the Central Selection Board (CSB), however the Competent Authority, being the Prime Minister referred their cases back to the CSB for reconsideration on the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception. The grievance of the petitioners is that they have been discriminated against and that the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception are not an objective criteria on the basis of which promotion can be denied.

3. The petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.12094, 3340 and 14612 of 2014 belong to the Inland Revenue Service. The petitioner in W.P. No.17924 of 2014 belongs to Railways (Commercial and Transportation) Group. The petitioner in W.P. No.17944 of 2014 belongs to the Railways (Civil Engineering Department). The petitioners in W.P. No.19657 of 2014 belong to the Income Tax Group. The petitioner in W.P. No.28201 of 2014 belongs to Pakistan Administrative Service Group. The grievance of all the petitioners in the stated Writ Petitions is identical to that of the petitioners in W.P. No.11192 of 2014.

4. Mr. Haris Azmat and Mr. Ali Saleem, Advocates for the petitioners (in W.P. No.28201 of 2014), Mr. Riaz Ahmad Tahir, Advocate for the petitioners. (In W.Ps. Nos.14612 and 17944 of 2014) and Mr. Sajid Ijaz Hotiana, Advocate for the Petitioners (in W.P. No.19657 of 2014) adopted the arguments made by the learned counsel for the Petitioners in W.P. No.11192 of 2014).

5. The facts of the case are that the petitioners are all civil servants in the Pakistan Administrative Service Group (PASG) in BS-20. The promotion of the petitioners from BS-20 to BS-21 is through selection and recommendation by the CSB. As per Promotion Policy 2007, 70% marks are allocated to the quantification of Personal Evaluation Reports (PER) in the previous and present grades while 15% of the marks are allocated to the quantification of the Training Evaluation Reports (TER) and the remaining 15% marks are allocated for evaluation by the CSB. The minimum marks required are 75%. The recommendations of the CSB are then forwarded to the Competent Authority, being the Prime Minister, for appointment. The grievance of the petitioners is that they were recommended by the CSB, however the Competent Authority did not confirm the recommendations of the petitioners and instead sent the matter back to the CSB for reconsideration with respect to attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception. In terms of the summary issued by the Prime Minister's Office dated 3-4-2014, the Competent Authority observed that CSB failed to apply its mind and exercise its discretion in an objective manner in evaluating the attributes of general reputation and perception with reference to the petitioners. The CSB was required to be mindful of these attributes which were inserted in the objective assessment form in order for the CSB to evaluate officers not only on the basis of integrity as reported in the ACRs and PERs but also to form a collective opinion as to the general reputation and perception of the officers for consideration in a reasonable, fair and equitable manner. The Competent Authority was of the opinion that the CSB had made its recommendations in a mechanical manner without application of mind. He therefore, required the CSB to reassess the general reputation and perception related to the petitioners.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that the petitioners were promoted in February 2013, however on account of the case titled Orya Maqbool Abbasi v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Establishment and others (2014 SCMR 817) before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan, their promotions/appointments were withdrawn. Subsequently the petitioners were again considered by the CSB and were recommended for promotion. Out of 124 officers in BS-20, 45 were recommended for promotion. The Competent Authority promoted 37 officers and deferred the promotion of 18 officers which included the petitioners. Learned counsel argued that the deferment of promotion of the petitioners on the ground that the CSB had not applied its mind and did not give due weightage to attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception is contrary to the dicta laid down in 2014 SCMR 817 (supra). Further argued that the selection of some officers from those recommended and deferment of others, tantamounts to abuse of discretion. She argued that there is no basis or objective criteria which compelled the Competent Authority to promote some and defer others. She further argued that it was an exercise of pick and choose because the CSB was told to rethink the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception with respect to the petitioners whereas the recommendations of the other officers on these attributes were not questioned. This amounts to abuse of discretion and discrimination.

7. She further argued that in terms of the dicta laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan, the discretion to award marks on the basis of integrity, general reputation and perception cannot be exercised subjectively or on the basis of personal information, opinion and perceptions. The decision must be based on information which is based on the record. She argued that the Competent Authority was not justified to pick out certain officers for promotion and require the re-assessment of others on their general reputation and perception. She argued that good governance is based upon a transparent decision making process. The service record of the petitioners was before the CSB and the Competent Authority, in which there is no room for perceptions. She further argued that the case of the petitioners was sent back to the CSB by the Competent Authority without assigning any reason, without any explanation as to why their cases were singled out. Learned counsel for the petitioners places reliance on the cases titled Syed Mahmood Akhtar Naqvi and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2013 SC 195), Liaqat

Ali Chughtai v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Railways and 6 others (PLD 2013 Lahore 413), 2014 SCMR 817 (supra) and Abdul Wahab and another v. Secretary, Government of Balochistan and another (2009 SCMR 1354). She further argued that discretion wherever and by whomever exercised must be structured and is never absolute. It is also subject to judicial review. Reliance has been placed on the case titled Habibullah Energy Limited and another v. WAPDA through Chairman and others (PLD 2014 SC 47).

8. Mr. Saad Rasul, Advocate for the petitioner (In W.P. No.14612 of 2014) argued that in his case the petitioner is a civil servant of the Internal Revenue Service, posted as Commissioner Inland Revenue Service (BS-20), Regional Tax Office, Lahore. He has an unblemished service record, of over 35 years which includes about 30 years of service in the Federal Board of Revenue. As a testament to his unblemished career, the petitioner has been appreciated by the Full Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Appellate Court of Gilgit Baltistan vide its order dated 12-10-2009 and judgment dated 5-10-2010 in SMC No.13/2009. He further argued that no disciplinary or departmental proceedings are pending against the officer. The petitioner secured the highest marks in his evaluation made by his parent department being the FBR as well as in the PER, TER and yet he was not approved by the Competent Authority. Learned counsel argued that by sending the petitioner's recommendation for reconsideration by the CSB, the Competent Authority ignored the dicta laid down in the case cited at 2014 SCMR 817 (supra). No cogent reason has been given for reconsideration and there is nothing on the service record which justifies such a decision.

9. Dr. Ikram ul Haq and Mr. Mansoor Beg, Advocates for the petitioners (In W.Ps. Nos.12094 and 3340 of 2014) argued that the petitioners belong to Inland Revenue Service. In the cases of the petitioners, the Prime Minister only confirmed 11 officers out of 16 in W.P. No.12094 of 2014, and 17 in W.P. No.3340 of 2014, recommended by the CSB. No reasons have been conveyed for this decision. Learned counsel stated that under section 9(3) of the Civil Servants Act, 1973, (1973 Act) promotion to posts in basic pay scales 20 and 21 and equivalent shall be made on the recommendations of a Selection Board which shall be headed by the Chairman Federal Public Service Commission. Further argued that Rule 7 of the Civil Servants (Appointment, Promotion and Transfer) Rules, 1973 (1973 Rules) also requires the Competent Authority to act on the recommendation of the CSB as it says Promotions and transfer to posts in basic pay scales 2 to 13 and equivalent shall be made on the recommendation of the appropriate Departmental Promotion Committee and promotions and transfer to posts in basic pay scales 19 to 21 and equivalent shall be made on the recommendation of the Selection Board. Learned counsel further argued that section 9(3) of the 1973 Act and Rule 7 of the 1973 Rules contain the word 'shall' confirming that these provisions are mandatory and not mere directory. The deliberate use of the word 'shall' in the statute and corresponding rules make it clear that the recommendations of the CSB are mandatory in nature and the Prime Minister has to act on the same. Learned counsel further argued that the decision of the Competent Authority to send the recommendations back to the CSB for reconsideration is not based on any record nor is there any reason available. Learned counsel argued that promotion cannot be decided on the basis of personal information, opinion or perception as held in the case cited at PLD 2013 Lahore 413 (supra).

10. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the respondents. Learned D.A.-G. raised an objection with respect to the maintainability of these petitions on the ground that the bar of Article 212 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (Constitution) is applicable. However this ground was over-ruled by this Court, given that the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception relate to the fitness of officers for the post in question and it is settled law that assessment of officers for fitness is excluded from the ambit of the Service Tribunal under section 4 of the Federal Service Tribunals Act, 1973 (Act of 1973). Therefore the bar of Article 212 of the Constitution is not attracted to the present cases.

11. The next objection raised by the learned D.A.-G. was that the order of the Competent Authority was not justiciable because it is an interim order and on the ground that the order itself protects the rights of the petitioners by keeping their seats vacant until the matter is reconsidered by the CSB. Learned D.A.-G. argued that this Court cannot interfere with an interim order. Furthermore given that the seats have been kept vacant, the petitioners have no grievance and no cause of action against the respondents. Learned D.A.-G. placed reliance on the case titled Dr. Habibur Rahman v. The West Pakistan Public Service Commission, Lahore and 4 others (PLD 1973 SC 144). Learned D.A.-G. argued that the petitioners have no vested right on the basis of which these petitions have been filed. A civil servant cannot ask for promotion as of right and the refusing of promotion falls within the exclusive domain of the executive authority. In the event that a promotion has been denied it cannot be termed as a denial of any fundamental right and therefore the petitions are not maintainable. Reliance has been placed on the case titled Government of Pakistan through Establishment Division, Islamabad and 7 others v. Hameed Akhtar Niazi, Academy of Administrative, Walton Training, Lahore and others (PLD 2003 SC 110). Learned D.A.-G. further argued that no case of discrimination is made out. The executive is required to provide similarity of treatment but is not required to give identical treatment. Due process was followed and the Competent Authority has not deferred the cases of the petitioners nor any adverse remarks have been issued against the petitioners. Simply reconsideration has been called for while ensuring that the seats remain vacant so as not to prejudice the rights of the petitioners. Reliance has been placed on the case titled Asdullah Mangi and others v. Pakistan International Airlines Corporation and others (2005 SCMR 445). Learned D.A.-G. further argued that the recommendations of the CSB are advisory in nature and are not binding on the Competent Authority. Reliance has been placed on the case titled Dr. Habibur Rahman v. The West Pakistan Public Service Commission, Lahore and 4 others (PLD 1973 SC 114).

12. With respect to the issue raised against the criteria of integrity, general reputation and perception, learned D.A.-G. stated that these are objective in nature and have been made a part of the Promotion Policy, 2007 after the case cited at 2014 SCMR 817 (supra) giving full consideration to the dicta of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. Learned D.A.-G. further argued that the recommendations of the CSB are to be given weightage by the Competent Authority, however ultimately it is his prerogative. In these cases as per the summary, he required a clear decision on the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception, hence he asked the CSB to reconsider the cases of the petitioners with specific reference to the said attributes.

13. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record available on the file.

14. All the petitioners have challenged the decision of the Competent Authority wherein he has referred their cases back to the CSB for reconsideration on attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception. The learned D.A.-G. raised an objection with respect to the maintainability of these petitions on the ground that the decision of the Competent Authority being an interim order could not be interfered with because it fell within the domain of the executive authority and that it protects the rights of the petitioners by keeping their seats vacant until the matter is finally decided. In the cases before the Court, the petitioners were all duly considered for promotion by the CSB and were recommended for promotion having fulfilled the objective criteria set out in the Promotion Policy, 2007. The Competent Authority approved the promotion of some candidates while in the case of the petitioners, he was of the opinion that the CSB did not apply its mind to the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception. So far as the petitioners are concerned, he required a comprehensive and objective decision from the CSB as per the dicta laid down in the case cited at 2014 SCMR 817 (supra). The learned D.A.-G. was asked to show the documents and the record on the basis of which the Competent Authority came to the conclusion that the CSB did not apply its mind to the case of the petitioners. The learned D.A.-G. placed a summary prepared for the Competent Authority with reference to the recommendations of the CSB. The CSB recommended 45 candidates out of 124. Table No.1 in the summary provides for the Total Score of PER and Training of the officers recommended for promotion and the marks awarded to them by the CSB. For the purposes of the dispute before this Court, marks awarded by the CSB are relevant. The names of the petitioners are provided in the list of 45 officers recommended for promotion. The learned D.A.-G. has placed before this Court the objective assessment criteria for the CSB. The objective assessment criteria before the CSB is as follows:---

S.No.	Parameters/Attributes	Total Marks	Marks Assigned
1.	Output of Work and Quality of Work
2.	Variety and Relevance of Experience Secretariat/Field Postings; Federal/Provincial Government Posting; Leadership/Routine Postings; Deputation/Foreign Postings.

3.	Professional Expertise.
4.	Personality Profile (As known to the Board Members)
5.	Conduct, Discipline and Behaviour [Observation by RO/CO during last 05 years OR as known to the Board Members]
6.	Functional Ability and Leadership	10
7.	Estimated Potential for Middle/ Higher Management Based on PERs and Training Evaluation Reports: Management Skills, Ability to take decisions, Strategic Thinking, Leadership Qualities, Drive for Results and Accomplishments in BPS-19 and 20 in policy formulation and implementation.
8.	Integrity/General Reputation/ Perception On the basis of PERs/TERs/Opinion of the Board	5
9.	Total Marks by CSB	15
10.	Overall Category Cat A Cat B Cat-C (11-15) (06-10) (0-05)

The attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception are out of five marks and if an officer under consideration gets less than three marks, he may be deferred or superseded by the CSB at their discretion with reasons to be recorded in writing. If the officer gets 3 marks, he is awarded 5 marks. The summary placed before the Competent Authority provided for the marks awarded by the CSB as per the Objective Assessment Criteria. The marks shown are out of 30. The marks for all petitioners on attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception are 5 because they got the required 3 marks. There is no specific information before the Competent Authority on the basis of which he could have concluded that the CSB did not give due consideration to the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception in the case of the petitioners. The learned D.A.-G. also confirmed that no other material or information was placed before the Competent Authority. Therefore based on summary, the Competent Authority could not have singled out the cases of the petitioners on the ground that the CSB decided upon the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception in a mechanical manner without due consideration. The Competent Authority as per the minutes has recorded that the recommendations being confirmed are for those officers who unquestionably have the public reputation and perception of being honest and not corrupt. To the mind of this Court, there is nothing before the Competent Authority on the basis of which he could have come to this conclusion. The Competent Authority also concluded that with reference to the cases of the petitioners, the CSB should assess the general reputation and perception regarding these officers particularly since they had been in the service for 25 years. He required that a collective opinion on their general reputation and perception be made by the CSB in a fair and equitable manner. This decision of the Competent Authority is clearly discriminatory as he has promoted some and referred others for reconsideration without just cause. There was no information available to him on the basis of which he concluded that the CSB applied its mind in some cases and did not apply its mind in other cases with respect to the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception. The objective assessment form shows that the CSB awards at least three marks out of five for integrity, general reputation and perception based on the PER/TER opinion of the CSB and if a candidate has obtained three marks he will be given the full marks. With such a formula in place there is no rationale to conclude that the CSB did not apply its mind and that the CSB did not give due consideration to these attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception. It also means that the decision of the Competent Authority was not fair or transparent because no reasons have been given for this decision. The Competent Authority is required to give basis for his decision so as to ensure transparency, fairness and good governance. The petitioners have a right to be considered for promotion which includes the right to know why their cases have been singled out when the CSB awarded them five marks for the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception.

15. The other issue argued in these Petitions is the requirement of the Competent Authority for information with reference to the opinions and perceptions regarding the petitioners. In the case cited at 2014 SCMR 817 (supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that Government as well as the CSB had to adhere strictly to the law and the rules as well as instructions on the subject and if any action is taken against an officer denying him promotion then such action should be unlawful and no leg to stand. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has also stated in its decision that the credibility of civil servants can be judged while examining concrete matters such as his family assets at the time when he joined service, his life style, his expenses on children's education, on marriage, foreign tours and political affiliation. However, the judgment does not provide for attributes such as integrity, general reputation and perception to be given special consideration by the CSB. The Promotion Policy, 2007 provides for the eligibility criteria to be considered at the time of promotion:---

(i) Fulfillment of prescribed minimum length of service in BPS 17 and above for promotion to various scales.

(ii) Satisfactory completion of mandatory training.

(iii) Should possess qualification/experience and other conditions as prescribed in the relevant Recruitment Rules.

(iv) An officer superseded earlier shall be considered after earning Performance Evaluation Report (PER) for one full year. For example, an officer superseded on the basis of his PER's upto 2004, will become eligible for consideration after earning PER for 2005.

It also provides for the quantification of PERs, Training Evaluation and CSB Evaluation as follows:---

S.No.	Factor	Marks
1.	Quantification of PERs relating to present grade and previous grade (s) @ 60%:40%.	70%
2.	Training Evaluations reports in ratio of 60% : 40%.	15%
3.	Evaluation by CSB	15%

Total 100%

The office memorandum dated 12-10-2012 make changes in the policy guidelines stating the following to be relevant for the purposes of promotion:---

(a) (1) Quality and Output of Work (2) Variety and Relevance of Experience (3) Top Management Potential.

(b) (1) Integrity/General Reputation/Perception (2) Conduct, discipline and Behaviour.

(c) A new Objective Assessment Form (Annexure-A) for assessment of each officer on the panel by CSB against the attributes namely (1) Quality and Output of Work; (2) Integrity/General Reputation/Perception; (3) Variety and Relevance of Experience; (4) Top Management Potential; (5) Personality Profile; and (6) Conduct, discipline and Behaviour is hereby introduced.

(d) The said Objective Assessment Form shall be placed before the CSB along with panel pro forma of every officer for his/her objective evaluation by the CSB. The Board shall assess each officer on the panel on the basis of said parameters/attributes. After assessment/evaluation, the CSB shall place the officer in any of the following categories and assign appropriate marks accordingly.

By virtue of the stated letter of 12-10-2012, the following was decided:---

Sr. No.	Category	Range of Marks
1.	Category-A =	11 to 15
2.	Category-B =	6 to 10
3.	Category-C =	00 to 5

The dossiers of the petitioners provided for all the information regarding the PER Training which were placed before the CSB. The CSB considered the cases of all candidates and admittedly recommended 40. Even though the criteria of perception has been made a part of the objective assessment on the basis of case cited at 2014 SCMR 817 (supra), it is subject to the collective wisdom of the CSB as well as to the formula of getting at least three marks out of five. This may ensure that subjective attributes regarding integrity and reputation will not play a dominant role in the promotion of senior civil servants. However for the Competent Authority to require the CSB to reconsider the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception suggest that he is acting on personal information or on his personal opinion which totally defies the collective wisdom of the CSB and the requirements of due process, fairness and transparency. The Competent Authority must give due consideration to the collective wisdom of the CSB on the attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception because these attributes are not objective in nature and there is no way to assess them objectively, therefore he must rely on the collective wisdom of the CSB which has objectified the assessment. It also means that the respondents have totally misunderstood the dicta laid down in the cases cited at 2014 SCMR 817 (supra) and PLD 2013 Lahore 413 (supra) which makes it clear that the civil servants should be promoted on the basis of an objective criteria which can be assessed and graded in a fair manner to ensure transparency and good governance. In the light of this judgment there is no justification to require the CSB to deliberate further on integrity, general reputation and perception. These attributes have been factored into the objective assessment criteria and are subject to collective wisdom and a formula for assessment. Hence there can be no re-assessment on these attributes unless concrete material is provided which justifies rethinking integrity, general reputation and perception. Hence to the mind of this Court, the Competent Authority has made a decision which is discriminatory and which amounts to abuse of discretion. It is also found that the decision of re-assessment on attributes of integrity, general reputation and perception was not based on any cogent reason. Hence the decision is set aside and the respondents are directed to promote the petitioners forthwith from the same date when the other recommendations were approved and notified.

16. In view of the aforesaid, all these petitions are allowed.

Nasir Nazir Butt and Nizam ud Din Khan for Petitioner.
Muhammad Siraj ul Islam Khan, Addl. A.G. along with Naveed ul Islam, Sub-Registrar Samanabad Town, Lahore and Tasawwar Hussain Patwari Halqa for Respondents.
Date of hearing: 19th November, 2013.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the petitioner has impugned orders dated 13-12-2011 and 25-4-2012 passed by the respondent No.2 and respondent No.1 respectively.

2. The petitioner and three other persons executed a gift deed in favour of Ghulam Rasool, donee, and duly presented the gift deed for registration before the respondent No.2. The respondent No.2 refused to register the gift deed through its order dated 13-12-2011 on the ground that the document has been presented by the local commission for registration on the basis of Fard Jamabandi issued by the Patwari for record instead of for sale of the house. He further ordered that the Fard Jamabandi did not contain a note in red ink about the nature of the land and the status of the property i.e. whether it is commercial or residential as required by letter No.NTO/3725 dated 12-11-2011. The petitioner filed an appeal against this order before the respondent No.1 which appeal was dismissed and the order of the Sub-Registrar was upheld.

3. The grievance of the petitioner, as argued by the learned counsel is that the respondent No.2 was obligated to register the gift deed and in terms of Rule 135 of the Registration Rules, 1929 (The Rules) he could not demand the Fard Bay or the note in red ink. The learned counsel argued that these documents relate to the title and ownership of the property and cannot be looked into by the respondent No.2. Learned counsel further argued that if the document is presented in a proper manner by a competent person at the right time before the respondent No.2, he is then required to register the document without any inquiry into its possible effects. Learned counsel further argued that the revenue record is maintained for fiscal purposes and not for the purposes of validating ownership and title, therefore the respondent No.2 could not call for the Fard Bay or the note in red ink on the Fard Jamabandi. He further argued that there is no provision in the law for issuance of Fard Bay, hence the respondent No.2 could not have asked for the said document. In this regard, learned counsel has placed reliance on the case titled 'Roshan Din v. Tehsildar and others' (2010 YLR 5) wherein it was held that the Sub-Registrars and Patwaris have developed a strange practice of demand of certified copy of the Fard Bay and this demand of the Sub-Registrar before registering a document is not in accordance with law. As per the findings of this judgment, the learned counsel argued that there is no law, instruction or order on the basis of which the Registering Officer can call for the Fard Bay or for any note on the Fard Jamabandi, so the same is against the law. Learned counsel has also relied upon the cases titled 'Fida Hussain and others v. Abdul Aziz' (2005 CLC 180), 'Muhammad Hameed v.

District Officer (Revenue), Lahore and another' (PLD 2007 Lahore 490) and 'Aurangzeb through L.Rs. and others v. Muhammad Jaffar and another' (2007 SCMR 236). However, with respect to the specific question raised in the instant writ petition, learned counsel has placed emphasis on 2010 YLR 5 (supra).

4. The respondents have filed their report and para wise comments. In terms of the comments filed, the learned Law Officer argued that a note in red ink on the Fard Jamabandi is necessary as it reveals the value of the property that is whether it is commercial or residential. In terms of letter dated 12-11-2011 it is necessary that this note in red ink be enclosed on the Fard Jamabandi. So far as the requirement by the respondent No.2 for the Fard Bay, the learned Law Officer argued that the same was necessary to ascertain the execution of the gift deed as the executants were not before the respondent No.2. He argued that the document was presented before the respondent No.2 through a local commission and that the respondent No.2 in order to ensure that the executants executed the gift deed, required that the local commission provide the Fard Bay. He argued that the Fard Bay is issued by the Patwari on the request of the owners of the property to indicate the transfer of property in the form of sale or gift, as the case may be. He further argued that no illegality has been made out by the respondents where the Registering Officer required the document to be produced before him. Since the local commission refused to produce the document, hence the order was issued by the Sub-Registrar declining to register the document.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The question that needs to be answered is whether the Registering Officer by virtue of Rule 135 of the Rules is required to execute the document presented before him without calling for any further documentation. Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon Rule 135 of the Rules which is reproduced below:--
'Registering officers should bear in mind that they are in no way concerned with the validity of documents brought to them for registration, and that it would be wrong for them to refuse to register on any such grounds as the following e.g. that the executant was dealing with property not belonging to him, or that the instrument infringed the rights of third persons not parties to the transaction, or that the transaction was fraudulent or opposed to public policy. These and similar matters are for decision, if necessary, by competent courts of law and registering officers, as such, have nothing to do with them. If the document is presented in a proper manner by a competent person at the proper office within the time allowed by law and if the registering officer is satisfied that the alleged executant is the person he represents himself to be, and if such person admits execution, the registering officer is bound to register the document without regard to its possible effects'.
The answer to this question lies in sections 34 and 35 of the Registration Act, 1908 (Act of 1908). Section 34 provides for an inquiry by the Registering Officer that no document shall be registered under the Act unless the persons executing the documents or its representative, assign or agent appear before the Registering Officer within the time allowed for presentation of document. The Registering Officer shall inquire whether or not such document was executed by a person by whom it purports to have been executed and satisfy himself as to the identity of the person appearing before him alleging that they have executed the document. He will also satisfy himself with respect to the right of the representative to appear on behalf of any person. Section 35 of the Act of 1908 provides for the procedure on admission and denial of execution respectively. Section 34 of the Act of 1908 requires the Registering Officer to satisfy himself on the identity of the persons who have executed the document presented before him. Section 35 of the Act of 1908 requires the Registering Officer to satisfy himself that such persons have executed the document. Therefore the Registering Officer can examine any person in his office to determine whether the document has been executed by the persons it purports to have been executed by. Under section 35 of the Act of 1908, any person appearing through a representative, assign or agent then such representative, assign or agent can admit the execution. However, section 35(2) of the Act of 1908 provides that the Registering Officer in order to satisfy himself that the persons appearing before him are the persons they represent themselves to be, may examine such person in his office. The question before this Court falls within the scope of the inquiry that the Registering Officer may make under section 35 of the Act of 1908 in order to satisfy himself that the document placed before him for registration purports to be executed by the persons stating to have executed the document. In the instant case the gift deed was presented by the local commission before the Registering Officer. The Registering Officer first had to satisfy himself with respect to the identity of the persons presenting the document. Then in order to satisfy himself that the document was executed by the executants, he required that the local commission produce the latest Fard Bay. This document can be issued by the Patwari at the behest of the owners of the property for the purposes of transfer of the property by virtue of the gift deed. The Registering Officer objected to the Fard Jamabandi presented before it as it did not satisfy him that the gift deed was executed by its executants as the Fard Jamabandi was issued for record purposes and not for transfer purposes. The learned counsel have argued that the requirement of Fard Bay is in violation of Rule 135 of the Rules as the Registering Officer cannot question the validity of the document produced before it. To my mind requiring the local commission to produce Fard Bay to ensure that the executants of the gift deed have executed the gift deed does not in any way amount to questioning the validity of the document. Rules 135 of the Rules does not prevent the respondent No.2 from fulfilling his statutory duty under sections 34 and 35 of the Act of 1908. The said Sections require the Registering Officer to ensure that the document presented before it has been executed by the persons appearing before it and that the persons who claim to have executed the document admit the execution of the document. The requirement of satisfying himself means that the Registering Officer has to apply his mind to the case before it and determine whether or not the execution of the document is admitted. In the instant case the gift deed was presented by the local commission. Although the local commission could admit to the execution of the document, the Registering Officer still had to satisfy him under section 35(3)(a) of the Act of 1908 that the gift deed was executed by its executants.

The executants were not present before the Registering Officer, hence he called for latest Fard Bay which would have satisfied him that the executants have executed the gift deed. Learned counsel have stressed mainly on 2010 YLR 5 (supra) with respect to the demand for a Fard Bay. However, this case is distinguishable on a fundamental fact. In that case the executant of the document appeared before the Registering Officer himself and therefore the court found that it was unnecessary to ask for a Fard Bay. In this case the executants of the document were not before the Registering Officer, hence he required the additional document to satisfy himself that the executants of the gift deed admit to the execution of the said document. To my mind, the requirement of satisfying the Registering Officer may be more stringent in cases where the document is presented by the local commission, to protect the interest of the public. Therefore, no illegality has been made out by the respondent No.2 while asking for the Fard Bay for the purposes of registering the gift deed as presented by the local commission.

7. The duty of the Registering Officer under sections 34 and 35 of the Act of 1908 should not be entangled with the restriction under Rule 135 of the Rules. The Registering Officer should not concern himself with the validity of the document sought to be registered that is he should not be concerned whether the registration is opposed to public policy or whether the document sought to be registered will infringe upon the rights of a third person. The Registering Officer, however, is required to satisfy himself that the document presented before it for registration is admitted by its executants, in that they have executed the document. This inquiry entails more than simply checking that the document has been signed. The Registering Officer must satisfy himself that the executants own the document presented before him. The Registering Officer under section 35 of the Act of 1908 must satisfy himself on the execution of the document presented before it and should not rely merely on a signature.

8. The next objection of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the Registering Officer could not ask for a specific note in red ink with respect to the status of the property as the same is evident from the document presented before it. The respondents have relied upon a letter dated 12-11-2011 which is reproduced below:-
The letter provides that the Registering Officer to ensure that a note in red ink has been affixed on the Fard presented to him which states the status of the property i.e. whether it is commercial or residential. On the basis of this document, the Registering Officer is able to ascertain the valuation of the document to ensure that the applicable stamp duty has been paid. Again to my mind requiring the red note to be affixed on the Fard does not amount to questioning the validity of title but is only related to the question of valuation of the property for the transfer by a document that has to be registered. Hence it does not fall in the ambit of Rule 135 of the Rules.

9. Therefore in view of the aforesaid the petition is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition, the petitioners challenge the notification issued on 18-9-2014 by the Pakistan Medical and Dental Council, Islamabad (PM&DC) wherein the number of seats for male and female medical and dental students was fixed at 50% each, for the admissions in the academic year commencing 2014-15.

2. Notices were first issued on 23-10-2014. On 28-10-2014, learned counsel for the respondent PM&DC appeared before this Court and informed the Court that the final merit list was to be issued on 30-10-2014. Therefore, keeping in mind the urgency of the matter, all the learned counsel agreed that the case should be argued on 29-10-2014.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that the entrance test for the candidates for medical and dental colleges was held on 31-8-2014. As per the prospectus issued to the petitioners and other candidates, admission to medical and dental colleges was to be on open merit basis in the public sector medical and dental colleges of Punjab. It was announced that all candidates having domicile of Punjab or Federal Capital Area, who secured 82% or above aggregate marks will be eligible to apply for admissions to the medical and dental colleges. The respondent PM&DC held a meeting on 4-2-2014 being its 137th session wherein it made a decision to abolish admission on open merit and instead fixed a quota so that 50% seats were reserved for male candidates and 50% seats were reserved for female candidates. The decision taken by the Respondent PM&DC in this meeting was essentially on the ground that there was a growing trend of females in medical education however their sustainability in the medical field was decreasing. Learned counsel argued that essentially as per the Respondents this means that the number of female candidates qualifying on merit was increasing year by year, however since female candidates did not continue with the medical profession open merit was done away with and a quota was imposed. The learned counsel argued that the fixation of 50% quota for female candidates is totally presumptive and there is no data whatsoever on the basis of which the respondents have concluded that female candidates do not continue their careers in the medical or dental profession after obtaining their professional education. Further argued that admittedly the respondents accept that female candidates show better merit in the entrance exam as more than 68% of the candidates admitted to medical and dental colleges are females. Learned counsel argued that this means that male candidates are not at par with their counterparts and have a lesser merit. However, the Respondent PM&DC is promoting male candidates despite their low merit and giving a wrong message to the aspiring male candidates that even if they do not meet the merit they will still get admission in medical and dental colleges on account of the 50% quota reserved for them. Learned counsel argued that this decision of the respondent PM&DC is discriminatory and a gross violation of Article 25 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (Constitution). Learned counsel further argued that the mala fides of the Respondent PM&DC is evident from the fact that this decision was taken on 4-2-2014 yet made public on 18-9-2014, just five days before the commencement of the admission process. Learned counsel further argued that the prospectus and other documents show that admission has to be on open merit yet the Respondent PM&DC notified its policy on 18-9-2014 creating panic amongst the female candidates. He argued that the policy prevented female candidates from entering into the medical and dental profession, even though they had the required merit. Learned counsel argued that the formula prescribed by the respondent PM&DC is not a guaranteed formula on the basis of which it will ensure that female candidates will continue in the medical profession or that the issues, if any, which prevent female candidates from continuing with the medical profession will be addressed. Learned counsel stated that there are remedial measures that can be adopted by the Respondents to encourage female candidates and facilitate them to continue in the medical profession, however a clog on their right to enter into the medical and dental colleges not only violates Article 25 of the Constitution but is also violative of the dicta laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled Shrin Munir and others v. Government of Punjab through Secretary Health, Lahore and another (PLD 1990 SC 295). Further argued that in terms of this judgment, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan declared that the fixation of number of seats on the ground of sex is violative of Article 25(2) of the Constitution unless it is justified as a protective measure for women and children under Article 25(3) of the Constitution. Learned counsel argued that the said policy offends the right of all candidates who deserve admission on the basis of open merit. Learned counsel stated that a similar issue was also decided by the Hon'ble Sindh High Court in a case titled Miss Farhat Jaleel and others v. Province of Sindh and others (PLD 1990 Karachi 342).

4. Learned counsel on behalf of respondent University of Health. Services (UHS) produced a copy of letter dated 24-10-2014 issued by it to the Secretary Health, Government of Punjab wherein they have stated that they will proceed with admission in the current session on the basis of open merit and do not support the policy of the respondent PM&DC. Learned counsel stated that the policy is under discussion with the Respondents for consideration. Learned counsel on behalf of the Respondent PM&DC explained that the 137th session of the Council was held on 4-2-2014 and the decision was taken regarding fixation of quota for entry of female candidates in medical and dental colleges. Learned counsel argued that the delay in publicizing this decision was not mala fide but on account of the various different disputes pertaining to the existence of the respondent No.3 and its council. Learned counsel for the respondent PM&DC argued that the respondent No.3 as a regulator is highly concerned with the fact that qualified female students from medical and dental institutions do not go on to become specialist and do not carry on with their profession. The problem therefore is that there are lesser doctors whereas there is a dire need of more doctors. The PM&DC thought that one way to control this problem is to create a level playing field such that entry into medical and dental colleges be based on 50% quota for male and female candidates each, which ensures that 50% of the candidates who study medicine will continue in the profession. Learned counsel argued that the respondent PM&DC has relied upon a study made by Dr. Shaista Faisal, Deputy Registrar-Tech, a copy of which has been placed before this Court, to show the growing trend of female candidates in the medical and dental colleges. In terms of the study learned counsel stated that female Doctors and Dentists have increased since the year 2000 and the number of female students in Medical and Dental Colleges has also increased. However, the number of medical specialist registered with PM&DC since 2005 show that there is a far greater number of male specialists compared to female specialist. States that this shows that even though the number of female candidates in medical and dental colleges has increased multifold over the years, female doctors do not go on to practice nor do they go on for specialization in the profession. Learned counsel stated that the study further shows that the number of doctors registered with the PM&DC in 2011 shows a larger number of male doctors than female doctors. This shows that even though female candidates study medicine they do not necessarily practice in the profession. Learned counsel further stated that the research provides certain recommendations to keep female doctors in their profession such that the number of seats for male and female students should be 50% each. This is as per National male and female ratio i.e. 1.07 male(s)/female (2011 est). Learned counsel stated the PM&DC decided to approve these recommendations to control the problem. Twenty five participants under the Chairmanship of Professor Dr. Masood Hameed Khan, President PM&DC considered all aspects of the research and the problem of female candidates not continuing in the medical profession and ultimately decided to fix a quota of 50% each for entry into medical and dental colleges. Learned counsel argued that no mala fide was intended by the Respondents by the delay and the objective of the policy was to improve the conditions in the profession. Learned counsel further argued that the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioners in para 21 specifically mentioned that at the time no scientific study had been carried out on the basis of which the seats for female and male candidates were fixed. Further argued that the judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioners was the need of the hour at that time, as it addressed the issues relevant at the time and the judgment specifically states that this has been made on the basis of the issues faced by educational and professional institutions at the time. Hence the learned counsel argued that the present scenario is different and this Court should look into the issues faced by the profession and the decline of doctors/dentists which should increase. Learned counsel further stated that it was necessary to increase the number of doctors and the fact that female candidates out did male candidates in the medical examination yet did not continue with the medical profession meant that the medical profession was losing on specialists and practitioners. Learned counsel emphasized that no bias was intended by this decision and it was made simply to address a growing concern in the medical profession.

5. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record available on the file.

6. The issue at hand is the fixation of quota for female candidates entering into medical and dental colleges. The petitioners question the policy on the ground that it restricts their right to compete on open merit for entry into medical and dental colleges which right is not only guaranteed by the Constitution but also in terms of the dicta laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. I have heard all the learned counsel at length and find that the policy of fixing of quota offends Article

25 of the Constitution as well as the dicta laid down in PLD 1990 SC 295 (supra). Article 25 of the Constitution being the equal protection article reads as follows:---

"Equality of citizens.--- (1) All citizens are equal before law and are entitled to equal protection of law.

(2) There shall be no discrimination on the basis of sex.

(3) Nothing in this Article shall prevent the State from making any special provision for the protection of women and children."

Article 25 of the Constitution provides for the equality of citizens such that all citizens are equal before the law and are entitled to equal protection of the law. This is a fundamental right guaranteed to all citizens of this country irrespective of their gender. Article 25(2) of the Constitution specifically provides that there shall be no discrimination on the basis of sex. This Article specifically prohibits any kind of discrimination on the basis of gender, meaning thereby that gender cannot be made the basis to cause an inequality between men and women. The Constitution specifically provides for equality of all citizens making men and women equal before the law and entitled to equal protection of the law. Article 25(3) of the Constitution provides that the State can make special provisions for the protection of women and children, meaning that if required the state can make policies which facilitate and enable women and children to progress. This Court has already held in a similar case titled Nazar Elahi v. Government of Punjab and others (2013 CLC 1457) as follows:---

"7. The point that needs consideration in this case is whether the age relaxation of three years provided for in the proclamation, for the benefit of female candidates W.P.20018 of 2012 violates Article 27(1) of the Constitution. Article 27 of the Constitution reads as follows:---

"No citizen otherwise qualified for appointment in the service of Pakistan shall be discriminated against in respect of any such appointment on the ground only of race, religion, caste, sex residence or place of birth... ...

Article 25 of the Constitution being the equal protection Article reads as follows:---

"(1) All citizens are equal before law and are entitled to equal protection of law.

(2) There shall be no discrimination on the basis of sex.

(3) Nothing in this Article shall prevent the state from making any special provision for the protection of women and children.

8. It is clear from reading both the Articles that there shall be no gender based discrimination. Article 25 ensures equal treatment under the law however Article 25(3) provides that nothing in this Article shall prohibit the State from making special provisions for the protection of women and children. This means that the Constitution has given the State a remedial power to protect women and children notwithstanding the fact that everyone is to be treated equally under the law. Article 25 of the Constitution guarantees equal protection to every citizen and also requires that the State undertake affirmative action for the protection of women and children. Therefore the Constitution has itself recognized and created a classification which needs special protection. Hence an act of the Government which aims to protect women and children will be an affirmative action which does not offend Article 25(1) and equal treatment. The next question is whether Article 27 is offended by the age relaxation offered to female candidates. Article 27(1) provides that no citizen shall be discriminated against in respect of any appointment he is otherwise qualified for only on the ground of race, religion, caste, sex or place of birth. Article 27 provides for a safeguard against discrimination in service. The safeguard ensures that the State will not commit gender based discrimination. However this Article does not prohibit affirmative action to protect the female gender. The age relaxation offered to females under PWEP does not discriminate against the petitioner but in fact is part of an affirmative action to protect women by creating opportunities for women professionally so that they can apply for jobs keeping in view the time spent for responsibilities such as marriage and children. Affirmative action for women and children is the remedial power given to the Government to equalize opportunities by creating special dispensation or special standards for them so as to equalize their opportunities."

7. The essence of Article 25 has been clearly declared in the judgment cited as PLD 1990 SC 295 (supra). Para 20 of the same reads as follows:---
"There being no repugnance between Article 25 and Article 22, the two have to be read harmoniously. No discrimination on the ground of sex alone can be permitted except on the ground of reasonable and intelligible classification. Such classification in our Society permits for the present establishment of educational and professional institutions exclusively for the females or exclusively for the males. However, where co-education is permitted and the institution is not reserved for one sex alone, the fixation of number on the ground of sex will directly be opposed to the requirement of Article 25(2) unless it is justified as a protective measure for women and children under Article 25(3). In other words the number of girl students can be fixed as the minimum but not as the maximum particularly so where on merit they are likely to get more than the fixed number of seats. The Constitution assumes that the women and children in our Society need protection and not the males and as long as the Constitution mentions that assumption and basis, we cannot reverse it by affording protection to male and adults at the cost of women and children. That would be opposed to the very fundamental mandate of the Constitution."
A bare reading of the said judgment shows that, if at all there is to be fixation of seats, the minimum number of seats can be fixed and not the maximum number. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has also held that the fixation of the number of seats reserved exclusively for female offends Article 25(2) of the Constitution unless it is a protective measure for women and children under Article 25(3) of the Constitution. Learned counsel for Respondent PM&DC when confronted with the provisions of the Constitution and the dicta laid down in PLD 1990 SC 295 (supra) was unable to justify the policy especially on the touchstone of a protective measure. Therefore this writ petition stands decided on the basis of the provisions of the Constitution and the dicta laid down in PLD 1990 SC 295 (supra).

8. This case was argued at length by the learned counsel for respondent PM&DC. Given the arguments made and the data placed before this Court, it is necessary to look into the aspects of this case urged by the respondent PM&DC. Learned counsel for the respondent PM&DC stated that a scientific research was consulted by the respondent PM&DC before arriving at its decision on 4-2-2014. He also explained that the study was by a "female" doctor. I have gone through the documents placed before this Court and it appears that the respondents have relied upon a research done by Dr. Shaista Faisal, Deputy Registrar (Tech) during her MPH studies 2011-12 in which the objective of her study was to determine the growing number of females in medical education, to ascertain the number of female doctors who carry on with the profession and to identify the reasons that female doctors were unable to continue with their profession. The study was relied upon by the Respondent PM&DC primarily on the fact that it was made by a female doctor, hence possibly rendering more credibility to their decision. The study finds that female candidates out number male candidates in medical colleges. However they are less likely to take part in post graduate training and research. The study also finds that there are few females in specialties and in position of leadership even though they perform better in the entrance exam. At the time 62% of the medical students were stated to be females. The study concludes that there is a need to adopt measures to keep female doctors in the profession. Learned counsel for the respondent PM&DC was asked that whilst considering the research why did'nt the respondent consider and adopt positive steps making it easier for the female doctors to continue with their profession. Learned counsel for the respondent stated that these measures have yet to be considered but will be implemented at some point. From the arguments raised the major issues identified by the research is that female doctors do not specialize and do not continue with the medical profession. The respondent No.3 while making its decision on 4-2-2014 relied upon a study made in the year 2011-12 without considering all the recommendations, without first requiring a solution to save the merit and without ascertaining whether the quota will ensure that female doctors will continue in the profession or continue to specialize in the profession.

9. What transpires from the decision is that the respondent PM&DC compromised on the merit for entry into the medical and dental profession thus impacting the overall merit of this profession. The policy of the Respondent PM&DC accepts male candidates with a lesser merit with no guarantee that the other 50% will continue in the profession. It also prevents the 12% high merit candidates from pursuing a medical education simply on the basis of their gender. The policy of the respondent PM&DC in fact does not ensure that the best of the candidates enter into the medical profession to produce the best of doctors and dentists, but instead allows a candidate who previously could not possibly have entered into a medical and dental college, now to study medicine and become a doctor or dentist. It has been seen over the years that entry into medical and dental colleges is very competitive and as per the study produced before this Court, 62% of the candidates who succeed into medical and dental colleges are females. This was the figure given in the year 2011-12 whereas in terms of the arguments made before this Court, the figure has increased to 68%. Hence to the mind of this Court it is alarming that merit has been wasted and compromised, which ultimately means that the quality of doctors in the medical and dental profession has also been compromised. This affects the public at large. Furthermore it goes against the very spirit and purpose of the mandate of the regulator PM&DC whose job is to ensure optimum results from medical and dental colleges as well as the medical profession. In the very least they should have conducted a study to ascertain the problems and their reasons and then worked on solutions and improvements.

10. Another glaring reality of the impugned policy is that the decision taken on 4-2-2014 was never made public for discussion by the respondent PM&DC. Stakeholders were admittedly not consulted and an old study which existed since 2011-12 was relied upon. No measures were adopted to control the problem, even in terms of the recommendations made in the Report of 2011-12. The respondent PM&DC should have considered all the recommendations made in the study relied upon so as to retain the female doctors in their profession and involved the stakeholders, find a more acceptable solution which would ultimately increase the number of doctors and save the merit. The minutes of the meeting produced before this Court show that twenty five members of the PM&DC deliberated on the issue that there was a growing trend of females in the medical education but they did not continue in the profession. They decided to impose a quota for female candidates who excelled on merit. Interestingly all twenty five members of the PM&DC were men.

11. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed. The policy of fixation of quota is declared to be unconstitutional, against Article 25 of the Constitution and the dicta laid down in PLD 1990 SC 295 (supra).

mall was located was busy with different commercial activities, which had been going on for a long time and the petitioner had never objected to the manner in which the land was allowed to be used---Constitutional petition did not involve any bona fide public interest and was hit by laches---Constitutional petition was dismissed accordingly.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK J.--- Through this petition, the Petitioner seeks a declaration that the construction of a shopping mall, in fortress stadium called Fortress Square Shopping Mall (FSSM) on the basis of Project Agreement dated 27-10-2007 and Lease Agreement dated 27-10-2007 is illegal and in violation of the law (Impugned Transaction).

2. The petitioner is a journalist. The respondents Nos.5, 11 and 13 are the company and its Directors, who are developing the FSSM. The respondent No.4 is the Fortress Stadium Management, who has executed the Project Agreement and the Lease Agreement with the respondent No.5. The respondent No.12 is a consulting agent engaged by the respondent No.5. Report and parawise comments have been filed, by all the respondents.

3 The petitioner has instituted this writ petition in public interest. It is his case that he resides in Lahore, Cantt. and that he is an investigative reporter and a well-known journalist. The petitioner came across information with respect to the construction of a shopping mall under the name of FSSM. The construction is taking place on land owned by the Government of Pakistan for which the respondent No.4, Fortress Stadium Management has entered into a long term lease agreement with the respondent No.5, which tantamounts to sale of government land. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that the land of the FSSM is Class A-I land which can only be used for specific purposes as stipulated in the Cantonment Land Administration Rules, 1937. A shopping mall is not contemplated as the permissive use of the land, therefore, the Impugned Transaction is illegal and against the mandate of the law. Learned counsel also argued that the Government respondent No.1 gets no revenue in this transaction as the respondent No.4 has without lawful authority sold government land without an approval. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner having a legitimate interest relating to the national exchequer wrote several letters to the respondent No.4 to question the authority on the basis of which they had sold government land through the Impugned Transaction, however no response was forthcoming.

4. Learned D.A.-G. on behalf of the respondent No.1 raised an objection on the maintainability of this petition and stated that the land belongs to the Government of Pakistan. The Government of Pakistan has allowed this land to be used and managed by the military authority and the petitioner has no cause of action. Learned D.A.-G. stated that the Government in terms of its policies has allowed the military authority to utilize the land of the fortress stadium, as they deemed appropriate. In this regard, he referred to two polices dated 2-4-2008 and 29-11-2009. He stated that in terms of these policies, no illegality has been made out and the utilization of the Class A-I land is not in contravention of any law or policy.

5. Syed Shahab Qutab and Mr. Sameer Khosa, learned counsel for the respondents Nos.5, 11 and 13 raised objections on the maintainability of the instant writ petition. It is their case that the instant petition has been filed in public interest, however, it does not meet with the standards laid down by the Superior Courts with respect to public interest litigation. The learned counsel argued that the petitioner is not an aggrieved party and the petitioner has not been deprived of any of his fundamental rights with the construction of the shopping mall. Learned counsel argued that no public wrong has been committed and the petitioner has failed to make out a case of public importance. Learned counsel argued that the instant petition is hit by laches because as per the petitioner's own contention the Project Agreement and the Lease Agreement were executed in the years 2007 yet the instant petition is being instituted in the year 2014, after seven years. Learned counsel further argued that the petitioner has not come to this Court with clean hands and has not been able to show his bona fide as the construction of the shopping mall has been under way over the last several years and this fact has not been hidden from the public-at-large. However, the petitioner has come to this Court at this late stage, right before the completion of the project and its opening, simply to harass the respondents. He stated that this is the mala fide of the petitioner. Learned counsel further argued that the mala fide of the petitioner is also evident from the fact that this is not the only commercial venture in the fortress stadium as there are many other commercial ventures, which have been carrying on their business in the fortress stadium for a long time and the petitioner never objected against any of them but has targeted the instant respondents and the FSSM through this petition. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner claims to be an investigative reporter and a journalist but he cannot use this Court or public interest litigation for the purposes of a fishing expedition where he is trying to dig out information for no useful purpose. Learned counsel have stated that the petitioner has not been able to explain what interest or right of the public at large is affected by the construction of FSSM and how it is detrimental to the general public. Learned counsel argued that in order for this Court to entertain this petition, in public interest a genuine public wrong or public injury must be involved. The petitioner must be an aggrieved person such that he has suffered a legal wrong or his right has been infringed on the basis of which he seeks indulgence of this Court. Leaned counsel argued that it is important for the petitioner to explain the delay in approaching this Court and in such cases the principle of laches plays a vital role and has to be considered by this Court because it goes to the bona fide of the public interest pleaded before the Court. Learned counsel argued that in fact this is a self-serving petition, which the petitioner has instituted and there is no public interest or public wrong involved. Furthermore, they have argued that the land belongs to the Government of Pakistan, who has no objection to the manner in which the land is being used and the management exercised by the respondent No.4. Hence they stated that the instant petition is liable to be dismissed being not maintainable. Reliance is placed upon the cases titled "Dr. Muhammad Tahir-ul-Qadri v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary M/o Law, Islamabad and others" (PLD 2013 SC 413), "Dr. Akhtar Hassan Khan and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others" (2012 SCMR 455), "Dossani Travels (Pvt.) Ltd. and others v. Messrs Travels Shop (Pvt.) Ltd. and others" (PLD 2014 SC 1), "Nawab Syed Raunaq Ali and others v. Chief Settlement Commissioner and others" (PLD 1973 SC 236) and "Messrs Airport Support Services v. The Airport Manager, Quaid-e-Azam. International Airport, Karachi and others" (1998 SCMR 2268).

6. In rebuttal, learned counsel, for the petitioner on the question of maintainability has stated that the instant petition is maintainable because the petitioner is a resident of Cantt. and therefore, he is affected by any construction undertaken within the Fortress Stadium. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner has not targeted FSSM specifically but has drawn attention to the fact that this building where the FSSM is being constructed was the headquarters of the 114 Brigade hence it cannot be converted into some commercial project. It was a functional military building whereas the other projects within the Fortress Stadium have been built on land/open space and therefore do not have the same significance. Learned counsel argued that the matter is of public importance because the land belongs to Government of Pakistan and if the land is to be leased out or used by the respondents Nos.5, 11 and 13 then the benefit of such lease, that is the rental amount, should be deposited in the Government treasury. In this case, the rent amount is going to the respondent No.4 and a meager amount is going to the Government of Pakistan and it is the private respondents, who are making a huge profit at the expense of the Government. Learned counsel argued that public outrage is, also not a requirement for public interest cases. In this case it is public property and the petitioner is aggrieved if the national exchequer is deprived of amounts due to it. Learned counsel argued that this is a case of a continuing wrong, hence the issue of laches does not arise and the petitioner in his capacity as a citizen of Pakistan has uncovered this illegal deal for which he has impugned the transaction being contrary to the law. He has placed reliance on the cases titled "Mian Ansar Abbas Bhatti v. Muneeb Hayat Bhatti and 5 others" (2004 YLR 979), "Jani and others v. Abdul Haq and others" (1989 MLD 141), "Khurram Khan, Advocate v. Government of Punjab through Chief Secretary and 6 others" (PLD 2009 Lahore 22), "Ardeshir Cowasjee and 10 others v. Karachi Building Control Authority (KMC), Karachi and 4 others" (1999 SCMR 2883) and re: Suo Motu Case No.10 of 2009 decided on 26th October, 2009" (2010 SCMR 885).

7. Mr. Ahmer Bilal Sufi Advocate on behalf of respondent No.4 argued that the land in question is in the ownership of Government of Pakistan. However, it is managed by the Quarter Master General. The said land is not administered under the Cantonment Act but through a legitimate chain of command and control of military authorities. The Fortress Stadium Management was constituted to manage the land entrusted to it by the Quarter Master General. Learned counsel stated that the Impugned Transaction comprising of the Project Agreement and Lease Agreement have been executed by the Fortress Stadium Management and countersigned by Chairman Fortress Stadium, who also is a serving Brigadier of the Armed Forces, therefore, the Impugned Transaction is strictly in accordance with law. He further argued that the land in question has been put to use as per the policy of the Ministry of Defence and the respondent No.1 and as such its use cannot be questioned by this Court. He further stated that the land has not been sold out but has been leased out to the respondent No.5 with the approval, of HQ 4 Corps.

8. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record available on the file.

9. The basic issue before this Court is the maintainability of this petition. The petitioner requires this Court to declare the Impugned Transaction as being illegal, unlawful and discriminatory. The Impugned Transaction comprises of a Project Agreement dated 27-10-2007 and Lease Agreement a dated 27-10-2007. These Agreements have been executed between the respondents Nos.4 and 5. Pursuant to these Agreements, the respondent No.5 commenced the FSSM Project. It is primarily a large shopping mall which has been under construction for some time and now complete. The grievance of the petitioner is that the land on which the mall is built is Class A-I land which cannot be used for the purposes of commercial shops and a mall of this kind. The petitioner is also aggrieved by the fact that the land has been leased out by the respondent No.4 which is not the competent authority and instead the respondent No.1 being the Federal Government was competent to lease out this land as they are owners of the land and any revenue generated on the basis of the lease amount should go to the national exchequer. The petitioner is aggrieved by the fact that a very small amount is going to the national exchequer and instead a major portion of the rental income and profit is going to the respondent No.5.

10. Learned counsel for the respondent No.5 have objected to the locus standi of the petitioner on the ground that he is not an aggrieved person. Article 199 or the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (Constitution) requires that a petition be instituted by an aggrieved person. The basic objection here is that this is litigation in public interest where the petitioner has to meet the criteria for instituting his case in public interest. To satisfy the requirements of an "aggrieved person" in public interest litigation under Article 199 of the Constitution, the petitioner needs to disclose a personal interest in the performance of legal duty owed to him which if not performed would result in the loss of some personal benefit or advantage or curtailment of a privilege in liberty or franchise. Reliance is placed on 1999 SCMR 2883 (supra). It has also been stated that to establish locus standi in the context of public interest litigation, the petitioner would have to show that he belongs to class of affected persons who are unable to access the Court for the protection of their rights. Reliance is placed on 2012 SCMR 455 (supra). In this case, the petitioner claims that he is an aggrieved because he is. resident of Cantt. and he has sufficient interest in the matter, hence he falls within the definition of an aggrieved person. Sufficient interest as per the judgment cited at 1999 SCMR 2883 (supra) means any legal interest which can include civic, environment, cultural interests and it is the gravity of the issue which should be taken into consideration, such that the more serious the issue at stake the less significance will be attached to arguments based on the applicant's alleged lack of standing. The basic contention of the petitioner is that even though the property has been stated to be leased out, the long term lease means and suggests that the land has been sold by the respondent No.4. This ground and claim based on 'sufficient interest' has been dispelled and objected to by the respondent No.1 and the respondent No.4, who have categorically stated that the land belongs to the respondent No.1 and the land has not been sold to the respondent No.5 or any other person. The land has been given on lease to the respondent No.5 vide the Lease Agreement. Therefore, I find that there is no force in the argument that this Court should consider along term lease as a sale in favour of the respondent No.5. The petitioner also claims 'sufficient interest' on the ground that he is a resident of Cantt. and is concerned by the manner in which the land is used. The respondent No.1 has shown that it is their discretion to hand over the land to the respondent No.4 and further it is their discretion to decide what portion of the lease amount they want to retain. The respondent No.1 has also stated that it has no objection to the FSSM being constructed on the land and that it had no objection to the Project Agreement or the Lease Agreement. The record shows that the land in question was never allocated for any public purpose or for any public use. It was given to the military authorities. Hence no right or interest of the petitioner or the public-at-large is involved or has been infringed. The public has not been denied access to the land and no harm is being caused to the public at large by the construction of the FSSM. There is no wrong, being caused to the public. The petitioner states that his claim is in public interest to ensure that the public money is paid to the government exchequer. The petitioner has relied upon the case titled "Raja Mujahid Muzaffar and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others" (2012 SCMR 1651) to urge the point that since it is a matter of public money and public resource, hence every citizen is an aggrieved person. However, I am of the opinion that this is not a case of public money or public resource. In this case, the owner of the land being the respondent No.1 handed over the land of the Fortress Stadium to the military authorities to use as they deemed appropriate. The military authorities through the Fortress Stadium Management have been managing the property within the fortress stadium where different commercial activities have been undertaken and exist even today. In fact the public-at-large has benefited from these commercial activities and there has been no objection to any of the commercial activities or its management by the respondent No.4 by the petitioner. Furthermore, during the course of arguments, the learned counsel for the petitioner stated that the petitioner does not seek demolition of the FSSM but prays that public money i.e. the lease amounts be deposited with the respondent No.1. I am of the opinion that the petitioner is not an 'aggrieved party' and has no `sufficient interest' because the respondent No.1 owes no duty to the petitioner on this issue nor is there any obligation on the respondent No.1 under any law that it has to receive all the rental income from its property. The respondent No.1 as owner of the land has categorically stated that they have given the land to the military for its use and that they have no objection to the Project Agreement or the Lease Agreement on the FSSM. Hence the petitioner cannot claim a right or interest that he was not entitled to. The larger public interest is not adversely affected. Under the circumstances, the petitioner has failed to establish that he is all aggrieved person for the purpose of public interest litigation.

11. It is also seen that as per the petitioner's own contention, the Agreements were signed in the year 2007 and today the FSSM is almost at completion. A period of seven years has gone by in which the petitioner did nothing. Now the petitioner has questioned the use of the land through the instant petition. I am of the opinion that the question of laches is relevant in this case because it does go to the bona fides of the petitioner. The land has been in the use of the respondent No.5 since 2007. The construction is almost complete yet at no point did the petitioner approach this Court. This delay of seven years to bring the case to the Court without any explanation of the delay makes the question of laches relevant as it is directly related to the public interest pleaded by the petitioner. The land around the Fortress Stadium has been used and managed by the respondent No.4 for a very long time. The decision of the respondent No.4 for use of land around the Fortress Stadium has never been questioned or objected to by the petitioner. Similarly, the entire area, around the Fortress Stadium is busy with different commercial activities. These have been going on for a long time and the petitioner has never objected to the manner in which the land has been used or authority which has allowed the land to be used in this manner. He has also never objected the loss of revenue being caused by the respondent No.1 for the land around the Fortress Stadium. Hence his specific objection levied against the FSSM after seven years shows that there is no bona fide public interest involved in this petition. The issue raised before this Court cannot be seen in isolation to one specific project and the fact that the petitioner has no objection with any other activity within the Fortress Stadium or to the management and the authority of the respondent No.4 leads me to the conclusion that the petitioner is not an aggrieved person for the purpose of the instant petition and that the petition is hit by laches for which no explanation has been rendered by the petitioner.

12. Under the circumstances, this petition is dismissed.

Mr. Muhammad Akram Nizami, Advocate for Petitioner.
Mr. Muhammad Zikria Sheikh, DAG with Syed Majid Raja Intelligence Officer, I&I FBR.
Mr. Nadeem Mahmood Mian, Standing Counsel for Respondents.
Date of hearing: 19.2.2015.

ORDER

Through this petition, the petitioner has impugned seizure of vehicle bearing Registration No. LEB-07-2858 and implementation of Order-in-Original No. 131/2012 dated 18.10.2012 passed by the Additional Collector Customs (Adjudication), Customs House, Sambrial.

2. The case of the petitioner is that he is driver of aforesaid vehicle. On 15.3.2012 the staff of Respondent No. 1 intercepted the said vehicle and seized the same under Section 160 of the Customs Act, 1969 (Act of 1969). The petitioner was issued a show-cause notice where-after a detailed order was passed on 18.10.2012. The said order required 166 bottles of foreign origin liquor to be confiscated. It did not require the vehicle of the petitioner to be confiscated. The petitioner moved an application for the return of the vehicle however no positive action was taken by the stated respondent. Hence this petition.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned counsel for the respondents stated that subsequent to the Order-in-Original dated 18.10.2012, a corrigendum was issued by the Government of Pakistan on 20.10.2012 correcting the fourth row of Para 19 of the Order-in-Original such that "I, therefore, order its outright confiscation" may be read as "I, therefore, order its outright confiscation alongwith with the seized vehicle". Learned counsel stated that in view of this corrigendum the vehicle has been sized being illegal and is subject matter of FIR No. 02/2012 dated 14.3.2012 registered under Section 156(1), (89) read with Section 2 (S), 157, 169 of the Act of 1969.

4. Heard. Record perused.

5. The basic issue before this Court is that Order-in-Original was amended through a corrigendum issued under Section 206 of the Act of 1969. Section 206 of the Act of 1969 provides that clerical or arithmetical errors in any decision or order passed by the Federal Government, the Board or any officer of customs under this Act, or errors arising therein from accidental slip or omission may, at any time, be corrected by the Federal Government, the Board or such officer of customs or his successor-in-office, as the case may be. In the instant case, the correction is neither clerical nor arithmetical. In this case a substantive change has been brought about by ordering for the confiscation of the Petitioner's vehicle. This is a patent illegality, which has been committed by the Respondents.

6. Therefore, this petition is accepted and the substantive change made by the Respondent through corrigendum dated 20.10.2012 is set-aside. So far as any other proceedings pending pursuant to FIR No. 2/2012 is concerned, the same is a separate issue which shall be dealt with in accordance with law by the competent authority.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this Petition, the petitioner has impugned the letter dated 30-7-2011 issued by the respondent No.1.

2. The case of the petitioner is that he qualified for the post of Assistant Director Investigation (BS-17) in the Federal Investigation Agency (FIA) on the recommendation of the respondent No.4, Federal Public Service Commission (FPSC), Islamabad. He was issued appointment letter on 27-4-2011 by the respondent No.1. He submitted his acceptance on 4-5-2011. The grievance of the petitioner is that the FPSC withdrew its recommendation on 25-5-2011 and consequently the respondent No.1 withdrew the appointment of the petitioner on 30-7-2011 with immediate effect. In the same letter, the respondent No.1 requested for nomination of the candidate, in the place of the petitioner. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the petitioner's appointment was withdrawn pursuant to the recommendation of the FPSC. The FPSC had become functus officio because its recommendation had been acted upon and therefore it was no longer competent to withdraw its recommendation. Learned counsel further argued that once the petitioner was appointed, his services could not be terminated without issuance of a show-cause notice and hearing, given by the respondent No.1. Learned counsel argued that Show-Cause Notice (Notice) dated 25-5-2011 was issued by the FPSC who had no authority under the law to issue the said Notice. Learned counsel further argued that the withdrawal letter dated 30-7-2011 is in pursuance of the Notice. Learned counsel explained that in terms of the application form he applied against his Domicile of Punjab whereas his appointment is against a seat of Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJK). Learned counsel explained that the petitioner has a Subject State Certificate (SSC) of AJK and that he never concealed this fact from the FPSC. Further submitted that the petitioner submitted his SSC along with his Certificate of Domicile issued in the month of October, 1994. The petitioner was initially considered against his Domicile of Punjab which is evident from letter dated 20-5-2010, however the respondent No.1 placed him at Sr.No.4 of the merit and showed his domicile as AJK on 12-4-2011. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner was recommended by the FPSC against an AJK seat whereas he had fully disclosed that he has a Domicile of Punjab and SSC of AJK. The Chairman of the FPSC considered this issue as per documents filed by the respondent No.4 and noted that the petitioner was not at fault because he did not conceal any fact from the FPSC. Learned counsel further argued that even otherwise the function of the FPSC is to conduct tests and take examinations and to advise the President. Once these functions are completed, the FPSC becomes functus officio and has no role in the matter. The petitioner was appointed on the recommendation of the FPSC. The recommendation stood acted upon and the FPSC could not subsequently withdraw that recommendation. Learned counsel argued that any grievance in this regard, if at all, was for the respondent No.1 who had to follow due process. Learned counsel further argued that the law governing issuance of SSC and Domicile in AJK is under the Azad Jammu and Kashmir State Subjects Act, 1980 (Act of 1980) and Azad Jammu and Kashmir State Subject Rules, 1980 (Rules of 1980) whereas the issuance of Certificate of Domicile is governed under section 7 of the Succession Act, 1925 (Act of 1925). In this regard, learned counsel argued that the petitioner does not have a domicile of AJK. His Certificate of Domicile has been issued in the month of October, 1994 by the District Magistrate, Lahore. Learned counsel argued that any mistake on the part of the respondent No.4 in the appointment of the petitioner against a seat of AJK is the fault of the stated respondent and the petitioner should not be penalized.

3. Learned counsel for Iftikhar Ahmad Khan filed C.M. No.3277 of 2011 under Order I Rule 10 read with section 151, C.P.C. for impleading him as respondent No.5 on 17-9-2011. The grievance of the applicant is that he was recommended by the FPSC for the post of Assistant Director Investigation (BS-17) against the seat of the petitioner. The petitioner filed the instant petition and obtained interim order on 16-8-2011 which continues to date and as a result of which, the applicant has not been able to work at the post he was appointed.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the respondents Nos.1-4. Learned D.A.-G. argued that the petitioner was appointed by concealment of facts. Further argued that the very appointment of the petitioner is illegal and contrary to the rules as he has been appointed on the basis of his domicile being AJK. The status of the petitioner's domicile is that of the Punjab and therefore he is not entitled to occupy the present seat given to him on the basis of AJK domicile.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record available on the file.

6. Two legal questions arise from this petition. The first question is whether the FPSC can withdraw its recommendation once it has been acted upon. In this case the FPSC recommended the petitioner for appointment as Assistant Director Investigation (BS-17) on 12-4-2011 which recommendation was acted upon. The petitioner was appointed vide letter dated 27-4-2011 and submitted his acceptance on 4-5-2011. He started to work when on 25-5-2011 the respondent No.4 issued the Notice on the allegation that the petitioner was a domicile of Punjab but was appointed against a seat of AJK and that he had concealed this fact from the FPSC. The FPSC then withdrew its recommendation on 25-5-2011.

7. The FPSC was established under section 3 of the Federal Public Service Commission Ordinance, 1977 (Ordinance of 1977). The functions of the FPSC are given in section 7 of the Ordinance of 1977 which are as under:---

(a) To conduct tests and examinations for recruitment of persons to All Pakistan Service, the civil services of the Federation and civil posts in connection with the affairs of the Federation in basic pay scales 16 and above or equivalent.
(1a) The recruitment to the posts in basic scales 11 to 15 made by any authority or person on or after the 28th May, 2003, other than through the Commission, shall, notwithstanding any provision of this Ordinance or any other law, rule, notification or any order, decision or judgment of any Court or forum, be deemed to be, and always to have been, validly made taken or done and shall not be called in question in any Court or forum on any ground whatsoever.
(b) to advise the President
(i) on matters relating to qualifications for and method of recruitment to, services and posts referred to in clause (a);
(ii) on the principles to be followed in making initial appointments to the services and posts referred to in clause (a) and in making appointments by promotion to posts in BS-18 and above and transfer from one service or occupational group to another; and
(iii) on any other matter which the President may refer to the Commission.
From the above provisions, it is clear that the functions of the FPSC are limited to conduct tests and take examinations for recruitment of civil service in basic pay scales 16 and above and for advising the President on matters relating to qualifications and method of recruitment. After nominating a candidate for appointment in the service of Pakistan, the role of the FPSC comes to an end. Once the recommendation of the FPSC has been acted upon and a candidate has been notified at his position, the role of the FPSC has concluded. Thereafter the FPSC cannot withdraw its recommendation because the same has been acted upon. At best if it discovers any omission or error in the application, it can bring it to the notice of the competent authority being the appointing authority of that candidate. The FPSC also cannot issue a Notice to an appointed candidate, as to why action should not be taken against him in terms of instruction No.23 of General Instructions for concealing the material information. It is for the competent authority to take notice of the fact and take action as per law. In the instant case, pursuant to the Notice issued by the FPSC and withdrawal of its recommendation in favour of the petitioner, the respondent No.1 recalled the appointment of the petitioner through the impugned letter dated 30-7-2011. There is nothing on the record nor has anything been argued before this Court to show that the respondent No.1 had any problem with the petitioner. The only reason for withdrawing his appointment is on account of the allegations raised by the FPSC. Since the FPSC could not issue the Notice or withdraw its recommendation, therefore the respondent No.1 could not have recalled its appointment order without looking into the merits of the case.

8. This case has been argued at length and therefore it is necessary to look into the merit of the allegation raised by the FPSC. The petitioner applied for the post of Assistant Director as per application form in which against district of domicile he has written Jammu and in his educational qualification it shows Lahore Board and University of Punjab. Similarly against his experience qualification, it shows all experience in Punjab. His home address is also shown in Lahore. The petitioner appended along with this application form, Certificate of Domicile which was issued in the month of October, 1994 of Punjab and his SSC of Jammu and Kashmir dated 19-10-1994. Thirteen Assistant Directors were called for interview on 20-5-2010 and the petitioner is at Sr.No.7 of the list where his domicile is shown as Punjab. Subsequently he qualified the interview for the post of Assistant Director (Investigation) and his name is found at Sr.No.4 of the list dated 12-4-2011. Against his name it says AJK, meaning that he is appointed against AJK seat. The petitioner accepted the position on 4-5-2011 and joined on 10-5-2011. He started work and the Notice is issued by the FPSC on 25-5-2011. It is alleged in the Notice that he claimed to be a Domicile of AJK and he was appointed against a vacancy reserved for the AJK. However, subsequently it transpired that he joined the service on his Punjab Domicile, hence he was concealing material information. The petitioner rendered his explanation, however the FPSC withdrew its recommendation and hence the impugned order was issued on 30-7-2011. Admittedly the petitioner submitted both the domicile certificates and the SSC to the FPSC. Both documents are distinct and have their separate functions. Evidently the FPSC was not aware of the distinction. Furthermore the Chairman also found that the petitioner did not conceal anything at the time of his appointment. The error is totally on the part of the FPSC, who did not consider his documents properly and subsequently blamed the petitioner for concealment. Interestingly, their own internal documents appended with the petition show that they considered him on his Punjab Domicile and ultimately recommended him against an AJK seat. Therefore, the petitioner was not at fault.

9. Applicant Iftikhar Ahmad Khan was appointed on 30-8-2011 due to the erroneous acts of the FPSC. He gave his joining and on account of order of this Court he has not been able to join his position.

10. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed. The impugned letter dated 30-7-2011 issued by the respondent No.1 is set aside. The respondent No.1 is directed to adjust the petitioner retaining his original position as Assistant Director Investigation BS-17 against a seat for Punjab.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---The petitioner seeks a declaration that search and seizure conducted by respondent No. 3 on 2-12-2008 is illegal and all actions taken are contrary to the mandate of the law.

2. The case of the petitioner is that a search was carried out on 2-12-2008 by respondent No.4 on the business premises of the petitioner and during the process of search, business records, documents and computers were removed from its premises. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the petitioner has challenged this search and seizure as it was done without a proper warrant and without fulfilling the requirements of section 40 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 ("Act"). Learned counsel argued that the search warrant relied upon was issued under section 40 of the Act read with section 84 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 ("Cr.P.C.") for searching the business premises of the petitioner. Learned counsel further stated that it was issued in the name of Jawad Zafar Malik, Assistant Collector, Sales Tax and Federal Excise, Gujranwala. The SHO Police Station Saddar, Jhelum endorsed the warrant which was issued by the Magistrate Ist Class, Sheikhupura. Learned counsel argued that the search warrant was issued in favour of respondent No.4, however, the search was conducted by respondent No.3. Learned counsel argued that respondent No.3 was given permission to conduct the search by respondent No.4 which is not permissible under the law. Learned counsel further argued that respondent No.3 does not fulfil the criteria of being an officer of sales tax for the purposes of the search warrant as he belongs to the Sialkot Region whereas the petitioner's premises are located in Jhelum. Learned counsel argued that respondent No.3 was competent for the purposes of Sheikhupura, Gujranwala, Faisalabad and Sialkot in terms of S.R.O. 547/2008 dated 11-6-2008 but he was not competent for the purposes of conducting search on the premises of the petitioner which premises fell within the jurisdiction of Regional Sales Tax Office, Rawalpindi. Learned counsel further argued that the search warrant was issued by Magistrate Ist Class, Sheikhupura without complying with the requirement of Section 84 of the Cr.P.C and further that he is not the relevant Illaqa Magistrate. In this regard, learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance on the case titled Chairman, Central Board of Revenue and others v. Messrs Haq Cotton Mills (Pvt.) Ltd. Burewala (2007 SCMR 1039). Learned counsel further argued that there are no proceedings pending against the petitioner before the respondents. Learned counsel further argued that the business record and documents seized by the respondents was also done contrary to the procedure provided under section 40 of the Act. He stated no seizure report was prepared nor any reasons were provided for conducting the search under section 40 of the Act.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of respondent No.3. Learned counsel for the respondents argued that a case of massive fraud involving units located in Districts Sheikhupura, Jhelum and Lahore were involved, therefore, the Department sought permission for issuance of one search warrant from the Magistrate at Sheikhupura. In this regard, the Department made a written request to the learned Sessions Judge, Sheikhupura who was pleased to direct the concerned Magistrate through his orders in writing to do the needful as required under the law. The warrant was issued as per law under Section 84 of the Cr.PC read with Section 4(1)(i) and (2) of the Federal Board of Revenue Act, 2007. She argued that on 2-10-2007 and then on 11-10-2007 a letter was issued by Aftab Ahmad Bhatti, Second Secretary (STM), Government of Pakistan, Revenue Division, Central Board of Revenue, Islamabad for investigation into tax fraud, search warrant was issued on 11-12-2007 and the search was conducted on 2-12-2008. The material which was retrieved during the search was documented in an inventory which was duly signed and acknowledged by Mirza Bashir Ahmed, Director Pakistan Chip Board Jhelum. Learned counsel argued that from the retrieved data, it was revealed that the petitioner has not been filing correct sales tax returns for making due payments of sales tax nor has it been paying the due tax on the basis of its end products and the petitioner is involved in evasion of sales tax. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner's unit has suppressed its sales to the tune of Rs.791.94 million involving evasion of sales tax in the amount of Rs.119.43 million for the period from July 2004 to October 2008.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The basic issue is the issuance of search warrant under section 40 of the Act read with section 84 of the Cr.P.C. and the search conducted on 2-12-2008. The relevant facts are that search warrant was issued by the Civil Judge/Magistrate 1st Class, Sheikhupura in favour of Jawad Zafar Malik, respondent No.4. There is no date on the search warrant, however on 26-11-2008, respondent No.4 endorsed the search warrant in favour of respondent No.3. During the process of the search, admittedly business record, documents including accounts ledger and invoice books were seized by the respondents. Section 40 of the Act provides as follows:--

Searches under warrant (1) Where any officer of [Inland Revenue] has reason to believe that any documents or things which in his opinion, may be useful for, or relevant to, any proceedings under this Act are kept in any place, he may after obtaining a warrant from the magistrate, enter that place and cause a search to be made at any time.

(2) The search made [in his presence] under subsection (1) shall be carried out in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (V of 1898).

The basic requirement of section 40 of the Act is that an officer of Inland Revenue must have reasons to believe that a search is necessary to obtain document or things relevant in a pending proceeding. The respondents have relied upon letters dated 2-10-2007 issued by the Collector, Sales Tax and Federal Excise, Gujranwala and letter dated 11-10-2007 issued by Aftab Ahmad Bhatti, Second Secretary (STM), Government of Pakistan, Revenue Division, Central Board of Revenue, Islamabad to show that the respondents had reason to believe that the search was necessary. After going through the record, it appears that earlier the record of Arshad Traders, Sialkot was taken into custody under section 38 of the Act and from that record the respondents claim that they suspected tax fraud has been committed by other registered suppliers in the same business, including the petitioner. Subsequent thereof a letter was issued on 11-10-2007 granting approval on behalf of the board to conduct an investigation against suppliers located outside the jurisdiction of the Sialkot Collectorate. Subsequently the respondents went to the Magistrate at Sheikhupura, on 3-12-2007 who then issued the search warrant under section 84 of the Cr.P.C. on 11-12-2007. The letters relied upon by the respondents do not satisfy the specific conditions of section 40 of the Act. Admittedly at the time there were no proceedings pending under the Act against the petitioner. Admittedly there is no order explaining and detailing what documents or things were required from the petitioner for which a search under section 40 of the Act was necessary. In the case titled as Collector of Sales Tax and others v. Messrs Food Consultants (Pvt.) Ltd. and another (2007 PTD 2356), the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that where an officer of sales tax has reason to believe that any document or things, which, in his opinion, may be relevant to any proceedings under the Act, are concealed or kept in any place and there is a danger of removal of such documents or records, he may, after obtaining a warrant rom the Magistrate, enter that place and cause a search to be made at any time. The respondents have not complied with the requirements of section 40 of the Act because firstly there are no proceedings pending against the petitioner and the letters on the basis of which search warrant was obtained suggest that the respondents are still at an inquiry phase, trying to ascertain whether or not the petitioner is an evader of sales tax. Section 40 of the Act can only be invoked when there are proceedings pending under the Act for which a document or other material is necessary. Secondly it has been held in 2007 PTD 2356 (supra) that the mandate of law as enunciated in subsection (2) seems to be that search authorized under the above provision of law shall be carried out strictly in accordance with relevant provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. Such provisions are contained in sections 96 to 105 of the Code and need not be dilated upon as admittedly the petitioner did not invoke these important provisions of law while seizing the records of the respondent company. In this case, even the requirements of the Cr.P.C. for issuance of search warrant have not been complied with. The search warrant was issued by Civil Judge/Magistrate 1st Class, Sheikhupura on 11-12-2007 whereas the search was carried out one year later on 2-12-2008 and more importantly the search warrant was issued in favour of respondent No.4 who on his own endorsed the search warrant in favour of respondent No.3. The procedure regarding issuance of search warrant is provided for in sections 96, 98 and 103 of the Cr.P.C. whereby firstly the search warrant is to be obtained from Illaqa Magistrate where search of the premises is to be made. Under section 103 of the Cr.P.C. before making a search, the officer or other person about to make it shall call upon two or more respectable inhabitants of the locality in which the place to be searched is situate to attend and witness the search, which are taken into possession.

6. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed. The search warrant dated 11-12-2007 issued by Civil Judge/Magistrate 1st Class, Sheikhupura is set aside. The respondents are directed to return all the records, documents and computers confiscated by the respondents during search on 2-12-2008 to the petitioner immediately.

Date of hearing: 5th March, 2015.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule 'A', appended with this judgment. The petitioners have impugned the Notices ("Notices") issued by the Deputy Commissioner Inland Revenue under Section 161 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2002 ("Ordinance") read with Rule 44(4) of the Income Tax Rules, 2002 ("Rules").

2. The case of the petitioners is that the Notices have been issued by the Deputy Commissioner (IR) who is not authorized under Rule 44(4). It is their case that the Rules specifically provide that the Commissioner (IR) has to issue notice, so only he can issue notice under the Rules. The petitioners are also aggrieved by the fact that proceedings under Rule 44(4) are actually an audit of the income tax affairs of the petitioners which cannot be carried out by a notice simplicitor.

3. Mr. Shahid Pervez Jami, learned counsel for the petitioners argued that the Notices issued by the Deputy Commissioner (IR) calling for reconciliation under Rule 44(4) are illegal and unlawful because the power to issue notice is vested with the Commissioner (IR) yet the Notices have been issued by the Deputy Commissioner (IR). Learned counsel argued that there is no delegation of power with respect to Rule 44(4) and only the Commissioner (IR) can issue notices under the stated Rules as the law specifically empowers him to do so. He argued that Section 210 of the Ordinance is not applicable to the Rules because if the law contemplated delegation of powers under the Rules, it would have specifically mentioned when the power could be delegated. The fact that there is no provision for delegation of power under the Rules means that the notices were issued without jurisdiction, hence liable to be declared illegal.

4. Learned counsel further argued that calling for reconciliation of statement under Rule 44(4) amounts to an audit of the income tax affairs of the petitioners and that the proceedings initiated under the Notices cannot be carried out without prior selection for audit under Section 214(C) of the Ordinance. Learned counsel argued that the substantive power to call for books of accounts and the record is under Section 177(1) of the Ordinance for which it is necessary to first select the petitioners for audit of their income tax affairs. Learned counsel also argued that even in this respect the petitioners accounts are audited every year by the Federal Board of Revenue and as such the respondents cannot continuously under the garb of Rule 44(4) audit the accounts of the petitioners. Learned counsel argued that the power under Rule 44(4) of the Rules is unguided and the taxpayer is subjected to an inquiry into its tax affairs which is against the mandate of the law. Learned counsel argued that there are many accounting issues such as entries which are on accrual basis, which are totally discounted by the respondents. He explained that withholding tax can only be collected/ deducted when the payment is made and it cannot be claimed against accrued payments which are yet to be made. He argued that the respondents do not give consideration to this fact and discount it totally which in turn prejudices the rights of the petitioners.

5. Mr. Khurram Shahbaz Butt, learned counsel for the petitioner in W.P. Nos.5189/2015 stated that in addition to the arguments already made, the case of the petitioner in this writ petition is that he has been subjected to an audit even though his accounts have not closed for that particular year. The Notice was issued for the months of July 2014 to September, 2014, however, he argued that the Notice was issued during the financial year without waiting for the financial year to close. He stated that this is against the spirit of an audit and the respondents cannot initiate audit proceedings in the middle of the tax year.

6. Mr. Sarfraz Ahmad Cheema, learned counsel for the respondents first addressed the issue of jurisdiction. Learned counsel argued that the Commissioner (IR) can delegate his authority under Section 210 of the Ordinance by an order in writing to any officer of the Inland Revenue subordinate to him. He argued that the Commissioner can delegate all or any of his powers and functions subject to the provisions of Section 210(1A) of the Ordinance. He argued that in this case the relevant Commissioners (IRs) delegated their powers under Section 210 of the Ordinance. Learned counsel argued that so far as the issues raised against the Notice under Rule 161 read with Rule 44(4), the same have already been decided by this Court in W.P. No.9866/2014 on 12-5-2014 and W.P. No.9015/2011 on 5-6-2014. He said that as such no adverse order has been passed against the petitioners and they have simply been called upon to provide documents in order to ascertain whether they have deducted the tax on payments received by them in accordance with law. He argued that every petitioner is a withholding agent for the Government of Pakistan and is liable to file statements of withholding tax in the prescribed format within the statutory time as given under Section 165 of the Ordinance. The tax as collected or deducted by the petitioners belongs to the Government of Pakistan and it must be deposited in the government treasury. Therefore Rule 44(4) of the Rules simply calls for reconciliation of the information provided in the statement submitted under Section 165 of the Ordinance.

7. Mr. Muhammad Yahya Johar, learned counsel for the respondents argued that under the Ordinance, there are two types of taxable liabilities, one a taxpayer must declare his own taxable income and pay the required tax and secondly the taxpayer acts as a withholding agent of the Government of Pakistan which requires him to deduct or collect tax against payments received in terms of Section 161 of the Ordinance. The taxpayer is required to file monthly statements as well as a yearly statement under Section 165 of the Ordinance to show the total withholding tax deducted under Division III of Chapter 12 of the Ordinance and the total amount of tax collected under Division II of Chapter 12 of the Ordinance. Rule 44(4) of the Rules provides for the forms in which statements under Section 165 have to be filed and for the statutory period within which they have to be filed. Sub-Rule 4 of Rule 44 provides that a Commissioner can call for a reconciliation statement by a taxpayer with respect to all amounts mentioned in the monthly or yearly statement filed under Section 165. Therefore, he argued that it is not an audit of the income tax affairs of the petitioners but is a reconciliation statement to ensure that the petitioners, as withholding agents of the Government, have deposited all amounts that they were required to collect or deduct of withholding tax in the government treasury.

8. Mr. Muhammad Ilyas Khan, Senior Counsel for the respondents argued that under Rule 43 of the Rules, the petitioners are required to make payment into the Government treasury of the taxes withheld by them within seven days. Further argued that the petitioners are also required to e-file monthly statements of tax deduction for salary payments as well as for non-salary payments made by them, even if no tax is collected or deducted under Section 165 of the Ordinance. Further argued that the tax deducted or collected pertains to the receipt of payment and there is no impact on the taxpayer. Further argued that the petitioners are required to disclose the names, NTN, address, particulars of payments made and reasons of non-deduction of tax in case no tax is deducted as required in columns 15 to 18 of the statement under Section 165 of the Ordinance prescribed for payments other than salary payments.

9. Heard and record perused.

10. The preliminary objection raised by the petitioners with respect to the Notices impugned is that an illegal person has issued the Notices under Rule 44(4) of the Rules. Rule 44(4) of the Rules is reproduced below:--

44. Annual statement of tax collected or deducted.---(1) An annual statement required to be furnished under subsection (1) of section 165 for a financial year shall be in the form as set out in Part VIII and Part IX of the Second Schedule to these rules.

(4) A person required to furnish the statements under sub-rule (1) or (2) shall, wherever required by the Commissioner, furnish a reconciliation of the amounts mentioned in the aforesaid annual and (monthly) statements with the amounts mentioned in the return of income, statements, related annexes and other documents from time to time.

The argument of the petitioners is that the Commissioner is the competent authority to issue notice under Sub-Rule 4. Delegation of power is provided under the Ordinance. Section 210 read with Section 211 of the Ordinance reads as under:--

210. Delegation.---(1) The Commissioner (subject to subsection (1A) may, by an order in writing, delegate to any (officer of Inland Revenue, subordinate to the Commissioner) all or any of the powers or functions conferred upon or assigned to the Commissioner (subject to subsection (1A) under this Ordinance other than the power of delegation.

211. Power or function exercised.---(1) Where, by virtue of an order under section 210 (an officer of Inland Revenue) exercise a power or performs a function of the Commissioner, such power or function shall be treated as having been exercised or performed by the Commissioner.
In terms of Sections 210 and 211 of the Ordinance, the Commissioner can delegate his powers to any officer subordinate to him except the powers of amendment of assessment as contained in subsection (5A) of Section 122 of the Ordinance. In such cases, only the power can be delegated to an officer not below the rank of Additional Commissioner Inland Revenue. The argument that the delegation of power does not apply to the Rules is totally misconceived. The Rules are framed under Section 237 of the Ordinance and are subordinate to the substantive law being the Ordinance. The Ordinance provides for delegation of power under Sections 210 and 211 which is applicable to the Rules framed under the Ordinance. Therefore the Rules do not have to specifically provide for delegation of power by the Commissioner. As per Section 210 of the Ordinance, the Commissioner can delegate his powers by an order in writing which order was admittedly issued. Hence there is no merit in this objection.

11. The substantive issue raised by the petitioners with respect to the Notices issued under Section 161 of the Ordinance read with Rule 44 of the Rules is that calling for a reconciliation statement amounts to an audit into the income tax affairs of the petitioners. Their argument is that an audit is subject to conditions under Section 214C and subject to selection under Section 177 of the Ordinance. The emphasis of the argument raised by the petitioners is that use of the word "income tax affairs" under Section 177 of the Ordinance as well as under Section 214C of the Ordinance includes information pertaining to the collection and deduction of withholding tax which cannot be done separately under the garb of Rule 44(4) of the Rules. The petitioners do not dispute the fact that they are required to deduct or collect withholding tax and they are admittedly filing returns under Section 165 of the Ordinance. They dispute the calling for the reconciliation statements under Rule 44(4) of the Rules. Under Section 165 of the Ordinance every person collecting tax under Division II of this Part (or Chapter XII) or deducting tax from a payment under Division III of this Part (or Chapter XII) shall furnish to the Commissioner a monthly statement in the prescribed form set out in the stated Section. Rule 44(4) of the Rules empowers the Commissioner to call for a reconciliation statement of the amounts mentioned in the monthly statements filed by the petitioners. Since the monthly statement is specifically with respect to the withholding tax deducted and collected by the petitioners, it is not an audit of the income tax affairs of the petitioners. Audit under Section 214C read with Section 177 of the Ordinance is of a wider scope involving the tax affairs of the petitioners whereas Rule 44(4) of the Rules is specifically with respect to the withholding tax. It is a verification of the amounts mentioned in the statements to ensure that the petitioners have deducted or collected tax in accordance with law. The petitioners are agents of the Government and the amounts collected and deducted by them are amounts which belong to the Government and have to be deposited into the Government treasury. Therefore reconciliation of the statements filed by the petitioners under Rule 44(4) of the Rules cannot be equated with an audit of the income tax affairs of the petitioners.

12. The Notices issued in these petitions mentioned in Schedule-A have all challenged the calling for reconciliation of amounts mentioned in the monthly statements. The requirement of furnishing a reconciliation statement is not an adverse order because it does not prejudice the petitioners rights or interest nor does it infringe upon any right of the petitioners. The Ordinance requires the petitioners to file monthly statements with respect to the withholding tax collected or deducted by them and Rule 44(4) of the Rules requires the respondents to reconcile the information provided in the statements so as to ensure that the correct tax amounts have been deducted or collected by the petitioners. Calling for such information is the right of the respondents Authorities duly conferred under the law. The respondents have issued notices to the petitioners calling upon them to furnish reconciliation statements along with evidence of deduction and payment of tax whenever such deductions or collections are made. At this stage, the Notices issued under Rule 44(4) of the Rules simply calls for certain information. There is no finding or ruling against the petitioners meaning that there is no adverse order issued against them. For those cases pursued under Section 161 of the Ordinance read with Rule 44(4) of the Rules, no determination has been made and the matter is still pending. All accounting objections or otherwise can be made at the time when the case is heard. It was held in the case titled Deputy Commissioner of Income Tax/Wealth Tax, Faisalabad and others v. Messrs Punjab Beverage Company (Pvt.) Ltd., (2007 PTD 1347) that tendency of by-passing the remedy provided under law, and resort to Constitutional jurisdiction of High court was deprecated. In view of the contents of the notice the Department only contemplates to take action against them. The petitioner instead of rushing to the High Court and consuming sufficient time should have submitted reply before invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court. We have held in the judgment that such practice is to be deprecated because if merely on the basis of show-cause notice proceedings are started then in such position department would never be in a position to proceed with the cases particularly the recovery of revenue etc. Thus keeping in view the circumstances of the case we are of the opinion that respondent had wrongly availed remedy under Article 199 of the Constitution.

13. In view of the aforesaid, the Impugned Notices have been issued in accordance with law under Rule 44(4) of the Rules. Mere filing of monthly statements will not absolve the petitioners from their obligation to reconcile their statements with respect to the withholding tax deducted or collected. Since the petitioners are performing their duties as withholding agents of the Government, the respondents are well within the statutory right to reconcile the information provided by the petitioners for the purposes of the withholding tax.

14. Under the circumstances, all the petitions are dismissed.

Mirza Bilal Zafar for Petitioner.

Sarfraz Ahmad Cheema for Respondents.

Date of hearing: 14th May, 2015.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the petitioner has impugned order dated 9-4-2015 issued by respondent No.4 which requires the petitioner to deposit 30% of the impugned tax for grant of stay against the recovery of the assessed tax.

2. The facts of the case are that respondent No.3 issued a show cause notice to the petitioner on 28-6-2014 with respect to inadmissible input tax and its recovery under Section 11(2) of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 ("Act") along with default surcharge. The petitioner appeared before respondent No.3 and sought adjournments as the record was not available. Respondent No.3 passed an assessment order on 12-9-2014 directing the petitioner to deposit the principal amount of sales tax of Rs.4,989,459 along with default surcharge (to be calculated at the time of recovery) under Section 34(1)(c) of the Act. A penalty of Rs.4,989,459 (equal to 100% of principal amount of sales tax) under subsection (13) of Section 33 of the Act was also imposed. Aggrieved of this order, the petitioner filed an appeal before respondent No.2 which was dismissed on 27-11-2014. The petitioner challenged the said order before respondent No.4 which has not been fixed for hearing so far. In the meantime, respondent No.3 initiated recovery proceedings against the petitioner vide recovery notice dated 25-2-2015. The petitioner moved an application for grant of stay against the recovery proceedings initiated by respondent No.3. Respondent No.4 vide order dated 9-4-2015 passed the following order:--

"Therefore, we are inclined to grant stay against recovery of impugned tax demand for a period of 60 days subject to payment of 30% of the impugned tax demand, which will be deposited in the Treasury within 5 days of the receipt of this order otherwise this order will not hold the field."

Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that respondent No.4 failed to consider that the appeal of the petitioner is pending, therefore grant of conditional stay against recovery is wholly unwarranted and is without authority. It is their case that the petitioner is entitled to interim relief until adjudication of its dispute by one independent judicial forum. Learned counsel argued that the demand in dispute has yet to be settled by an independent judicial forum, hence the petitioner is entitled, as of right, to interim relief. He argued that in this regard respondent No.4 could not impose any condition on the petitioner for deposit of the disputed tax. Learned counsel further argued that no coercive measures for recovery of the disputed tax can be taken pending a decision in appeal. He also urged that in similar cases, no deposit was sought yet in his case deposit of 30% has been ordered which is discrimination.

3. Learned counsel for the respondents submits that the petitioner was given sufficient time to defend his case but he failed to do so and kept delaying the matter. The petitioner did not respond to the show cause notice, therefore, an assessment order was issued. He stated that the conduct of the petitioner before the respondents does not entitle him to any discretionary relief. Further argued that under the law, it is the discretion of respondent No.4 to grant interim relief and in this case no delay has been caused by respondent No.4 in hearing the stay application. He explained that each case will be seen in the light of its own facts and circumstances, so there is no question of discrimination.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The basic issue is whether respondent No.4 can impose a condition to deposit a certain percentage of the tax when granting interim relief thereby preventing recovery of the tax under the Ordinance. The relevant Section for the purposes of this petition is Section 131(5) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") which reads as follows:-

Notwithstanding that an appeal has been filed under this section, tax, shall, unless recovery thereof has been stayed by the Appellate Tribunal, be payable in accordance with the assessment made in the case:
Provided that if on filing of application in a particular case, the Appellate Tribunal is of the opinion that the recovery of tax levied under this Ordinance and upheld by the Commissioner (Appeals), shall cause undue hardship to the taxpayer, the Tribunal after affording opportunity of being heard to the Commissioner, may stay the recovery of such tax for a period not exceeding one hundred and eighty days in aggregate:
Provided further that in computing the aforesaid period of one hundred and eighty days, the period, if any, for which the recovery of tax was stayed by a High Court, shall be excluded.
It is noted that the same provision exists in Section 128 of the Ordinance which reads as follows:--
128. Procedure in appeal.---(1) The Commissioner (Appeals) shall give notice of the day fixed for the hearing of the appeal to the appellant and to the Commissioner against whose order the appeal has been made.
[(1A) Where in a particular case, the Commissioner (Appeals) is of the opinion that the recovery of tax levied under this Ordinance, shall cause undue hardship to the taxpayer, he, after affording opportunity of being heard to the Commissioner against whose order appeal has been made, may stay the recovery of such tax for a period not exceeding thirty days in aggregate.]
(2) The Commissioner (Appeals) may adjourn the hearing of the appeal from time to time.
(3) The Commissioner (Appeals) may, before the hearing of an appeal, allow an appellant to file any new ground of appeal not specified in the grounds of appeal already filed by the appellant where the Commissioner (Appeals) is satisfied that the omission of the ground from the forum of the appeal was not wilful or unreasonable.
(4) The Commissioner (Appeals) may, before disposing of an appeal, call for such particulars as the Commissioner (Appeals) may require respecting the matters arising in the appeal or cause further enquiry to be made by the Commissioner.
(5) The Commissioner (Appeals) shall not admit any documentary material or evidence which was not produced before the Commissioner unless the Commissioner (Appeals) is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from producing such material or evidence before the Commissioner.
As per Section 131(5) of the Ordinance, the tax must be paid in accordance with the assessment order unless its recovery has been specifically stayed by the Appellate Tribunal. The Appellate Tribunal can stay the recovery of the tax in hardship cases where deposit of the tax shall cause undue hardship to the taxpayer. A bare reading of the Section shows that stay against recovery of tax is not a matter of right. It is subject to the discretion of the Appellate Tribunal who has to hear the taxpayer and decide upon the question of hardship. The same condition exists in Section 128 of the Ordinance which clearly provides that irrespective of the filing of an appeal and the pendency of an appeal, the tax must be paid. There is no ambiguity in the words of the statute in this regard. The Appellate Tribunal or the Commissioner (Appeals) at its discretion can stop the recovery of tax if it finds that it is a case of undue hardship for the taxpayer. The appellate forum will by exercising its discretion decide whether it is a fit case of undue hardship. For proper evaluation the taxpayer has to specifically plead its undue hardship.

6. The word 'hardship' has not been defined anywhere in the statute. As per the Black's Law Dictionary by Bryan A.Garner, Ninth Edition, hardship has been defined as suffering or adversity. In the Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary of Current English by A.S. Hornby, Eighth Edition 'hardship' is defined as a situation that is difficult and unpleasant because you do not have enough money, food, clothes etc. economic/financial, etc. The Ordinance does not require the taxpayer to show 'hardship' but requires it to be a case of undue hardship which means something more severe, harsher than simple difficulty, unpleasantness. "Undue" is something greater or more extreme than is wanted expected or thought to be reasonable. The meaning of undue hardship has been examined in the case titled Prestige Lights Ltd. v. Custom, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (Uttaranchal) (D.B.) (2004 (2) U.D.265) as follows:--
The term 'undue hardship' is, however, not defined in any Law Dictionary. Reading the two words together the meaning would be 'unwarranted hardship'.
In order to appreciate the meaning of the word 'undue hardship' as used in sections 128 and 131(5) of the Ordinance the rules of construction in a taxing statute must be considered. A taxing statute is to be construed literately in the sense in which it has been provided. The intent of the legislature should be clear from the words in the legislation. The Court must look squarely at the words of the statute and interpret them in the light of what has been clearly expressed. If there is any ambiguity caused by the language, the benefit of that ambiguity goes to the taxpayer. Reliance is placed on the cases titled Sohail Jute Mills Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Finance and others (PLD 1991 SC 329) and Messrs Elahi Cotton Mills Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary M/o Finance, Islamabad and 6 others (PLD 1997 SC 582).

7. Therefore the taxpayer must show its absolute inability to pay the tax. He must establish that under existing financial circumstances, his income and expenses do not allow him to pay the required tax. It is not about inability to pay the tax or inconvenience to pay the tax. Nor is it about commercial viability or profit making. It is a financial disability to pay the tax making it virtually impossible for the taxpayer to pay the tax. The taxpayer must specifically plead undue hardship based on its income and expenses so that it can be evaluated. The appellate forum must assess and evaluate whether it is a case of undue hardship. This evaluation is in the form of a concession available to the taxpayer under the Ordinance. The appellate forum in order to form an opinion as to whether the recovery of a tax would amount to undue hardship must consider the financial position of the taxpayer through its documents and ascertain whether on the basis of available assets and income, a taxpayer is prevented from meeting the required demand. Undue hardship can also include situations where the taxpayer is able to show a strong prima facie case. It was held in Messrs L.G. Electronics India (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Commissioner of Central Excise Nodia (Allahabad) (2009 (6) ADJ 246) while considering the case of 'undue hardship', the authority is required to examine the prima facie on merits of the dispute as well. Pleading of financial disability would not be the only consideration. Where the case is fully covered in favour of the assessee by a biding precedent like that of the judgment of the Supreme Court, jurisdictional High Court or a Special Bench of the Tribunal, then to still insist upon the deposit of duty and penalty levied would certainly cause undue hardship to the assesse. Therefore the appellate forum will also have to assess the nature of the case and ascertain if the taxpayer has a strong case in law. In each case, a determination has to be made as to whether the recovery will cause undue hardship to the taxpayer. Each order must reflect application of an objective and judicious mind. Each case must be decided on its own merits.

8. In this case, the Appellate Tribunal heard the stay application filed by the petitioner against the recovery proceedings initiated by respondent No.3 and passed a conditional order on 9-4-2015. The petitioner questions that condition of deposit on the ground that he is entitled to the stay from the recovery process until a decision is delivered by the independent forum. As already stated, the grant of stay as per the Ordinance is not granted as of right. It is subject to the discretion of the appellate forum when considering undue hardship. In this case, the deposit of 30% of the disputed tax as a precondition to stop the recovery of the assessed tax falls within the discretion of the Appellate Tribunal. Essentially the Appellate Tribunal has given the taxpayer a concession by requiring him to deposit a small part of the disputed tax and not the entire tax because he did not plead undue hardship but emphasized on irreparable loss caused to him. The petitioner has relied upon the case titled Z.N. Exports (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Collector of Sales Tax (2003 PTD 1746) which is not applicable to his case because in the said case, there was a delay in hearing the case, hence it was held that since the Tribunal as a forum of first appeal did not dispose of the appeal, the petitioner could not be blamed. In all fairness, equity and justice, an assessee should not be forced to pay a demand created by a Revenue Authority unless the order creating such demand has undergone the scrutiny of at least one independent forum. In this case, his stay application was heard and a conditional order was passed. There is no delay element at this point. The other cases relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioners i.e. Messrs Pak Saudi Fertilizers Ltd. v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2002 PTD 679), Muhammad Asif Nawaz v. Additional Sessions Judge/Justice of Peace Multan and 2 others (2014 CLD 45), Messrs Askari Leasing Ltd. through Chief Manager v. Presiding Officer and another (2015 CLD 196), Pakistan Mobile Communication Ltd. v. Judge District Consumer Court, Gujranwala and 3 others (PLD 2015 Lahore 204), Balochistan Glass Limited through Authorized Representative and 2 others v. Bank Alfalah Limited and 2 others (2015 CLD 52) and Mahmood Barni v. Inspecting, Additional Commissioner of Income Tax, Gujranwala and another (2005 PTD 165) require a speaking order, which is not an issue in this case. Hence those cases are not relevant.

9. Another aspect of this case is the relevance of the time frame within which the case must be decided. The stay application was heard and decided but the appeal has yet to be heard. Since the matter pertains to fiscal obligations of the taxpayer and recovery of government revenue the appeal must be decided at the earliest and the stay of the recovery of tax must commensurate with the final decision by the appellate forum. Under Section 131 of the Ordinance, the purpose of providing one hundred and eighty days stay from recovery of tax is to ensure that the appeal is decided in a timely manner thereby ensuring that revenue is paid at the earliest. It has been seen that the Appellate Tribunal in particular, tends not to decide the appeals in a timely manner and exceeds the stay period of one hundred and eighty days of the taxpayer before even attending to the appeal. Therefore, numerous petitions are filed before this Court seeking a direction to the Appellate Tribunal to decide the appeal and the stay matter in a timely manner giving the taxpayer an opportunity to avail the benefit of Section 131(5) of the Ordinance. For this reason, it is imperative to ascertain if any delay has been caused during the pendency of the appeal and to whom that delay is attributed. If the delay is attributable to an act of the taxpayer, then the Appellate Tribunal cannot be blamed for the delay and the taxpayer is not entitled to any protection from this Court in constitutional jurisdiction. However, where the delay is not attributable to the taxpayer, who has filed his appeal and is waiting for the matter to be heard, he can, if the facts permit be protected. Where the Appellate Tribunal has essentially exhausted the stay period for no fault of the taxpayer it goes against the spirit of the Ordinance. In such cases, this Court has interfered and required the appellate forum to decide the appeal within a given time. This is because the intent of the legislature is very clear. Whenever a stay is granted in an appeal under the Ordinance, there is a corresponding duty on the appellate forum to decide the appeal within the stipulated time particularly where the payment of tax has been stayed. Hence the Appellate Tribunal has to ensure that appeals are decided, so as to ensure that no prejudice is caused to the taxpayer.

10. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. petition is dismissed.

ORDER

This is a Reference filed under Section 133 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979 ("Ordinance").

2. The Appellant urged the following question of law:

(i) Whether under the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the learned Income Tax Appellate Tribunal was justified to vacated the order of the CIT on the point of jurisdiction when the CIT specifically enjoyed revisional powers by virtue of Section 5(1)(cc) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979?

3. With reference to the question urged before us, the facts are that the respondent derives income from manufacturing and sale of cotton yarn. Assessment for the year 1997-98 was finalized under Section 62 of the Ordinance by the Assistant Commissioner Income Tax, Islamabad ("ACIT") on 24.6.1998. Subsequently vide order dated 21.6.2002 issued by Commissioner of Income Tax, Special Zone, Lahore ("CIT") cancelled the order passed under Section 62 of the Ordinance by observing that the order is erroneous in law and prejudicial to the interest of revenue and directed the assessing officer to pass a fresh order after providing an opportunity to the assesse of being heard. Aggrieved by this order of 21.6.2002, the respondent filed an appeal before the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Lahore, ("ITAT") who vide order dated 13.12.2003 observed that the CIT has wrongly exercised power under Section 66-A of the Ordinance as the same is vested in the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner ("IAC"). The matter was heard before the ITAT in a reference where the order of the ACIT was upheld vide order dated 20.12.2004 by the ITAT on the ground that only the IAC had jurisdiction to invoke the provisions of Section 66-A of the Ordinance. They observed that whether CIT specifically enjoyed revisional powers by virtue of Section 5(1)(cc) of the Ordinance is a question of fact which did not give rise to any question of law.

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the Appellant and find that no question of law arises in the instant case as by virtue of Section 66-A of the Ordinance jurisdiction vested with the IAC. Whether CIT had jurisdiction under Section 5(1)(cc) of the Ordinance was a question of fact which was never established. Nothing was placed on record to show the basis of the argument. The ITAT in a reference upheld the order of ACIT on the ground that only the IAC had the jurisdiction to invoke the provisions of Section 66-A of the Ordinance. Hence no question of law is made out.

5. Under the circumstances, Reference is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Respondent No.1 Professor Sajid Mir is a candidate for the senate elections on the seats reserved for technocrats and ulema. The petitioner, a citizen of Pakistan challenges the acceptance of the nomination papers of respondent No.1 on the ground that he is not qualified and that he made false declarations in his nomination papers. In this regard, the petitioner has impugned order dated 20-2-2015 issued by the Returning Officer ("RO") and order dated 27-2-2015 issued by respondent No.3, Election Commission of Pakistan ("ECP").
The petitioner also prays for rejection of the nomination papers of respondent No.1 and for initiating proceedings against him under Sections 58(aa) and 62 of the Senate (Election) Act, 1975 ("Senate Act") for committing corrupt practice by submitting a false and incorrect declaration in his nomination papers.

2. The case of the petitioner is that respondent No.1 is not qualified to be elected as member Senate against the seat reserved for technocrats and ulema. Learned counsel stated that the petitioner raised four substantive objections against the nomination of respondent No.1, however, the RO did not consider any of the objections and instead dismissed his application on the ground that the petitioner is not competent to file objections against the nomination of respondent No.1 under section 13(1) and (2) of the Senate Act. In terms of the order of the RO, the petitioner was not a proposer, seconder, agent or candidate for the senate elections, hence he has no locus standi to raise objections against the nomination papers of respondent No.1. The petitioner then moved a petition under section 13(6) read with section 58(aa) and 62 of the Senate Act and Article 218(3) of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("the Constitution") against the order dated 20-2-2015 before the ECP. The ECP upheld the order of respondent No.2 and at the same time decided the matter on its merits, finding respondent No.1 had the qualification, experience and achievements required for contesting against the seat of technocrats and ulema.

3. Mr. Mubeen-ud-Din Qazi, learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the question whether or not respondent No.1 is qualified to become member Senate against the seat reserved for technocrats or ulema must be looked into by this Court. Learned counsel submitted that respondent No.1 is not qualified to be elected as member Senate because he has sworn a false declaration. respondent No.1 deliberately falsified information in his nomination papers and therefore should be disqualified. Learned counsel argued that respondent No.1 stated that he belongs to Pakistan Muslim League (N) whereas he belongs to an independent political party namely Markazi Jamiat Al-Hadith of which he is the President and for which election symbol of 'Spectacle' was awarded vide notification dated 26-3-2013. Learned counsel further argued that respondent No.1 stated that he is a Professor, however as per the eligibility criteria for appointment of faculty in various disciplines, issued by the Higher Education Commission ("HEC"), he does not qualify for the post of Professor and was never promoted as Professor. He stated that this tantamounts to a false declaration by respondent No.1. Learned counsel argued that respondent No.1 claims to have two masters' degrees, one in English and the other in Islamic Studies whereas under the eligibility conditions for appointment of faculty issued by the HEC, the minimum qualification for Professor is a Ph.D. Learned counsel argued that he also does not meet the criteria for technocrats or ulema because he does not possess the qualifications given in the Explanation to Article 5(1)(c) of the Houses of Parliament and Provincial Assemblies (Election) Order, 1977 which provides for technocrats and aalim. Therefore he is neither a technocrat nor an aalim, and cannot be elected from the said seat.

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for respondent No.1 at the very outset questioned the locus standi of the petitioner. He argued that the petitioner is a citizen of Pakistan who does not have any right to scrutinize the nomination of candidates under the Senate Act. He argued that the process of scrutiny of nomination papers is under Section 13 of the Senate Act, which provides for the persons who can file objections against nomination papers. Under section 13(1) of the Senate Act only the candidate, proposer, seconder and authorized agent can file objections. A citizen is not entitled to interfere at the stage of scrutiny and so any objections filed by the petitioner cannot be entertained by the RO. In this regard, he relies upon the impugned order of the RO wherein the objections were dismissed under section 13(1) and (2) of the Senate Act on the ground that he does not have locus standi. Learned counsel further argued that the petitioner is not an aggrieved person because respondent No.1 has not been elected. Acceptance of the nomination papers simply enables respondent No.1 to participate in the election. Any grievance of the petitioner would actualize if respondent No.1 was elected against the seat of technocrats and ulema and was notified as member Senate. Even in such eventuality, the petitioner is not remediless but can question the appointment of respondent No.1 in the form of filing a constitutional petition for issuance of a writ of quo warranto. Learned counsel further argued that the election process cannot be challenged save in accordance with section 31 of the Senate Act which provides that the election can only be questioned through an election petition filed after the publication of the result of the election. Therefore the mandate of the Senate Act is that the election process should not be interrupted and any challenge to the election should be after the publication of the result. He further relied upon Rule 39 of the Senate Election Rules, 1975 ("Senate Rules") which provides that an election petition can be filed by a candidate in person or by a representative, authorized by the candidate and no one else. Therefore, the petitioner does not have any right to call into question the nomination of candidates under the Senate Act.

5. Mr. Muhammad Ahsan Bhoon, Advocate for the petitioner argued that the petitioner has a right to question the impugned orders dated 20-2-2015 and 27-2-2015 on the ground that neither the RO nor the ECP considered the nomination of respondent No.1 in accordance with the conditions laid down in section 13(3) of the Senate Act. He argued that the Court can, on a petition by a citizen, look into the legality of the order of the RO or the ECP if they have failed to exercise their duty under the Constitution and the Senate Act. He explained that respondent No.1 made several false declarations in his nomination form and that the RO was obligated to look into the false declaration, conduct an inquiry and reject his nomination papers. He further argued that no legal remedy is available to the petitioner under the Senate Act, hence he can come to this Court in a constitutional petition. He argued that the petitioner has a right to ensure that qualified people are elected and become member Senate, which right has to be protected by this Court. Therefore this Court can under Article 199 of the Constitution look at the impugned orders and can look into the objections raised by the petitioner with respect to the eligibility of respondent No.1 as a technocrat or aalim for the purposes of the senate elections.

6. Mirza Nasar Ahmad, learned DAG argued that the election is an ongoing process and in terms of the dicta laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled Election Commission of Pakistan v. Javaid Hashmi and others (PLD 1989 SC 396), this Court cannot interfere in the election process due to the bar contained under Article 225 of the Constitution. The use of the word 'election' under Article 225 of the Constitution means the entire election process including the nomination process until the Notification of the result. He stated that this view has been upheld in several judgments including Muhammad Raza Hayat Hiraj and others v. The Election Commission of Pakistan and others (2015 SCMR 233).

7. Learned counsel for respondent No.6 adopts the arguments made by the learned counsel for the petitioner.

8. Heard. Record perused.

9. Section 13 of the Senate Act is reproduced hereunder:

Scrutiny.-(1) The candidates, their proposers and seconders and an agent authorized in writing in this behalf by each candidate, may attend the scrutiny of the nomination papers, and the Returning Officer shall give them reasonable opportunity for examining all nomination papers delivered to him under section 11.

(2) The Retuning Officer shall, in the presence of the persons attending the scrutiny under subsection (1), examine the nomination papers and decide any objection raised by any such person to any nomination.

(3) The Returning Officer may, either of his own motion or upon any objection, conduct such summary inquiry as he may, think fit and reject any nomination paper if he satisfied that

(a) the candidate is not qualified to be elected as a member;

(b) the proposer or the seconder is not qualified to subscribe to the nomination paper;

(c) any provision of section, 11 or section 12 has not been complied with [or submits any false or incorrect declaration or statement in any material particular] ; or

(d) the signature of the proposer or seconder is not genuine;
Provided that

(i) the rejection of a nomination paper shall not invalidate the nomination of a candidate by any other valid nomination paper;

(ii) The Returning Officer shall not reject a nomination paper on the ground; of any defect which is not of a substantial nature and may allow any such defect to be remedied forthwith; and

(iii) The Returning Officer shall not inquire into the correctness or validity of any entry in the electoral roll.

(3a) The Returning Officer may, for the purpose of scrutiny, require any agency or authority to produce any document or record.

(3b) Notwithstanding anything contained in subsection (3), where a candidate deposits any amount of loan; tax or utility charges payable by him before rejection of his nomination paper on the ground of default in payment of such loan, taxes or utility charges, such nomination paper shall not be rejected for default thereof.]

(4) The Returning Officer shall endorse on each nomination paper his decision accepting or rejecting it and shall, in the case of rejection, record a brief statement of the reasons therefor.

(5) Where the nomination of a candidate has been rejected under this section by a Returning Officer, an appeal shall lie, within two days of the scrutiny day, to the Commissioner [or a Member of the Commission Authorised by the Commissioner] ; and any order passed by the Commissioner [or such member, as the case may be,] on such appeal shall be final:)

[Provided that where a nomination paper is rejected by the Returning Officer on the ground that the candidate is a defaulter of loan or taxes or government dues or utility charges or has had the loan written off and the candidate pays such loan or, as the case may be, taxes, government dues or utility charges or the written off loan on or before the last date fixed for disposal of appeals and satisfies the Member of the Election Commission that such payment has been made, his nomination shall be treated as having been accepted on that ground] .

[(6) If the member of the Commission, referred to in subsection (5), is, on the basis of information or material coming to his knowledge from any source, satisfied that a candidate whose nomination paper has been accepted is

(a) a defaulter of loans, taxes, government dues or utility charges or has had any loan written off or is subject to any other disqualification from being elected as a member of Senate, he may, on his own motion, call upon such candidate to show cause why his nomination should not be rejected, and if he is satisfied that the candidate is defaulter as aforesaid or has had a loan written off or is subject to any disqualification, he may reject his nomination paper] .

10. The basic issue before the Court is with respect to the locus standi of the petitioner and the maintainability of the Petition. On the question of locus standi, the petitioner is a citizen of Pakistan who claims that he has a right to question the nomination of candidates contesting the senate elections. Election of the senate is held under Article 59 of the Constitution and the Senate Act provides the manner in which the election is to be carried out. Section 13 of the Senate Act provides for scrutiny of the nomination papers. A candidate, his proposer, seconder and an agent authorized in writing may attend the scrutiny of the nomination papers and the Returning Officer shall give reasonable opportunity for examining all nomination papers delivered to him under Section 11. Section 13(3) provides that the Returning Officer may, either on his own motion or upon any objection, conduct such summary inquiry as he may think fit and reject any nomination paper if he is satisfied. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon section 13(3) to urge the point that the use of the words "upon any objection" includes an objection other than those mentioned in section 13(1). The petitioner's case is that section 13(3) gives him locus standi, as he can raise objections against a nomination, under this section which enables the RO to inquire into the nomination papers of the candidate and ensure that the candidate is qualified and has not made false declaration.

11. The scheme of law for the purposes of senate elections is clearly set out in the Senate Act. A voter from a province may propose or second the name of a person qualified for election to the senate from the province. The nomination papers are signed by the proposer and seconder along with the candidate, who has given a solemn affirmation in terms of section 11(2) of the Senate Act. At the time of scrutiny, the candidate, proposer and authorized agent are present and can examine the nomination papers. The RO in the presence of all examines the nomination papers and decides upon the objections, if any, raised. Section 13(1) and (2) of the Senate Act when read together stipulates that persons examining the nomination papers can raise objections, which shall be decided by the RO, in the presence of such persons. Section 13(3) of the Senate Act empowers the RO to conduct an inquiry with respect to information contained in the nomination papers. As per the section 13(3) the RO can hold a summary inquiry or call for documents or the record if he is satisfied that the candidate is not qualified to be elected as a member; the proposer or the seconder are not qualified to subscribe to the nomination paper; any provision of section 11 or section 12 has not been complied with or if the candidate submits a false or incorrect declaration with respect to a material particular in the nomination papers or the signature of the proposer or seconder are not genuine. The use of the words "of his own motion" in section 13(3) simply means that the RO can decide on his own motion, whether an inquiry is required, irrespective of any objection that has been made. The Section authorizes the RO to determine whether he wants to inquire into the nomination papers on the basis of the conditions laid down in Section 13(3). In this case, he is not dependent on any objection(s) being raised against the nomination papers. The use of the word "objection" in section 13(3) must be read in conjunction with section 13(1) and (2). Section 13(3) refers to the objections made under subsection (2). It is with reference to the objections filed under section 13(2) that the RO can decide if he wants to conduct a summary inquiry. The RO can take this decision either on his own motion or on the basis of the objections that have been made under section 13(2). Objections under section 13(3) do not refer to objections by anyone other than the proposer, seconder agent or candidate. Therefore section 13(3) of the Senate Act does not create a right for a citizen to file objections before the RO.

12. At this point, it is necessary to examine the role of a citizen in the senate elections. Section 11 entitles a voter to propose or second the name of any person qualified for election to the senate from the Province. Voter is defined under section 2(q) of the Senate Act to be a person who is a member of the Provincial Assembly of that Province. So the member Provincial Assembly votes in the senate elections. Mr.Mubeen-ud-Din Qazi, learned counsel for the petitioner argued that since the citizen elects the Member Provincial Assembly, therefore the citizen has an interest in the name proposed for the senate elections and he has to protect his interest by objecting to the proposed name, if the candidate is not qualified. However, this argument is misconceived as the Senate Act does not envision a role for the citizen as he does not participate directly in the senate election. The fact that the Member Provincial Assembly is the voter does not give the petitioner a right to object to nominations, because he has no direct nexus with the nomination or the election process. The petitioner states that if he has no right under the Senate Act then a petition under Article 199 of the Constitution is the only remedy available to him.

13. To determine the maintainability of this petition Article 225 is relevant. The said Article reads as follows:--

No election to a House or a Provincial Assembly shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such tribunal and in such manner as may be determined by Act of (Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament).

In the case titled Election Commission of Pakistan through its Secretary v. Javaid Hashmi and others (PLD 1989 SC 396) the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that the election is a continuous process consisting of several steps taken for its completion. Mirza Nasar Ahmad, learned DAG argued that "election" under Article 225 means the entire process, commencing from the announcement of the election till the date of notification of successful candidates. He argued that Article 225 prohibits challenge to the election except by way of an election petition meaning that it mandates the completion of the election process before any challenge is made. In the Javaid Hashmi case it was held that the election process should be challenged at an appropriate stage, in appropriate proceedings before the election tribunal and it should not be challenged at any intermediate stage before any court. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan found that Article 225 creates a right to challenge the election by an election petition before an election tribunal as determined by an Act of Parliament. In the Raza Hiraj case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the interlocutory orders passed by the Election Tribunal impugned before the High Court, were not liable to be set aside in its Constitutional jurisdiction as the petitioners before the Court had remedy available to them by way of an appeal under section 67 of the Act after disposal of the election petitions. In the instant case, the petitioner has argued that if he does not have any right under the Senate Act to question the election process or the nomination papers then the instant petition is maintainable because as per the ratio of the Javaid Hashmi case, an election dispute can only be resolved by an election petition before the election tribunal. Since the petitioner cannot file an election petition before the election tribunal under section 13 of the Senate Act, the petitioner will be left without any remedy to question the qualification of respondent No.1 and respondent No.1 will contest the election even though he is not eligible. Hence remedy to invoke constitutional jurisdiction of this Court is available to the petitioner.

14. Based on the arguments made the question that needs to be considered is whether a citizen can challenge the qualification of a candidate nominated for the senate election through a constitutional petition. Article 225 of the Constitution provides that no election can be called into question except by an election petition before an election tribunal as laid down by an Act of Parliament. The right of the citizen has to be seen in the light of Article 225 of the Constitution. Section 31 of the Senate Act provides that senate election can only be called into question by an election petition under section 34. Section 34 provides that an election petition shall be presented to the Commissioner within forty-five days of the publication of the result of the election in the official Gazette. Rule 39 of the Senate Rules provides that an election petition may be presented by any candidate in person or by his authorized representative. Therefore for the purposes of the Senate Act, after the election process is completed, only a candidate can challenge the election result. A citizen cannot file an election petition under Section 34 of the Senate Act read with Rule 39 of the Senate Rules. Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the cases titled Intesar Hussain Bhatti v. Vice-Chancellor, University of Punjab, Lahore and others (PLD 2008 SC 313), Ch. Muhammad Arif Hussain v. Rao Sikandar Iqbal and 10 others (PLD 2008 SC 429), Syed Nayyar Hussain Bukhari v. District Returning Officer, NA-49, Islamabad and others (PLD 2008 SC 487) and Lt.-Gen (R) Salahudding Tirmizi v. Election Commission of Pakistan (PLD 2008 SC 735) to urge the point that the bar under Article 225 would not be attracted when a challenge was made under Article 199 of the Constitution to the competency and qualification of a person nominated as a candidate for the senate election. Learned counsel stated that in these cases the High Court in its constitutional jurisdiction could entertain the question of acceptance or rejection of nomination papers in which the disqualification of a person to contest the election was apparent on the record and could be decided without a factual inquiry. He stated that the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in the cases cited held that if a person was not qualified to contest the election, the High Court could interfere against the order of acceptance of his nomination papers. This would not be in conflict with Article 225 because the powers under Article 199 of the Constitution are on a higher pedestal than the power emanating from Article 225 of the Constitution.

15. Having gone through the judgments cited by the learned counsel for the petitioner, it is necessary to ascertain the scope of Article 225 of the Constitution when a challenge is made to the qualification or disqualification of a potential candidate for the senate election under Article 199 of the Constitution. In terms of the dicta laid down in the Javaid Hashmi case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan found that there cannot be two attacks on the election process, one through a petition under Article 199 of the Constitution while the election is still underway and the other before the tribunal when it is completed. The reason given was to avoid conflicting decision and delay in the election process. The use of the word "no election shall be called into question" was held to mean that Article 225 gave exclusive jurisdiction to the election tribunal with reference to election disputes to the exclusion of all courts including the High Court. The reason being that Article 225 was expressed in the negative form thereby prohibiting any kind of intervention in the election process. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan explained that elections should be held as per schedule, without undue delay or prolonged challenge at the intermediate stage. Since the question in the instant petition is with respect to the nomination of respondent No.1 for the purposes of contesting the senate election on the seat reserved for technocrats and ulema, the election process is still under way and it is an intermediate stage as the election result has not been announced.

16. The judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner are distinguishable firstly on the ground that they have all been rendered by three Hon'ble Judges of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan whereas the Javaid Hashmi case was delivered by four Hon'ble Judges of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan. Secondly, the judgments relied upon carve out situations when the election process can be interfered with at the stage of nomination notwithstanding the bar under Article 225 of the Constitution. In the judgment cited at PLD 2008 SC 313 (supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held the competence and qualification of a candidate can be challenged under Article 199 of the Constitution where the tribunal has failed to exercise its jurisdiction or has improperly exercised its jurisdiction and the person aggrieved is left without any remedy, at a later stage of the proceedings. In this case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan permits interference at the stage of nomination with respect to the competence and qualification of a candidate, if the tribunal has failed to exercise jurisdiction or it has improperly exercised jurisdiction.

17. In the case cited at PLD 2008 SC 429 (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that a petition under Article 199 of the Constitution was maintainable on the question of rejection or acceptance of nomination papers if disqualification of a person is apparent and can be decided without a factual inquiry. The Court held that Article 199 is not controlled by Article 225 of the Constitution in all matters, rather the High Court can in suitable cases correct a legal error, defect or disability caused by the tribunal. A limited scope for interference was permitted in election matters, at an intermediate stage where the disqualification was apparent, floating on the record so to speak. The Hon'ble apex court further held that each case would have to be seen on its merits and there was no hard and fast rule on this issue. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan permitted interference under Article 199 where the disqualification was apparent and did not require an inquiry and where the disqualification was ignored by the tribunal.

18. In the case cited at PLD 2008 SC 487 (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan permitted interference at the intermediate stage where a gross irregularity or illegality was committed during the election process. In the case cited at PLD 2008 SC 735 (supra), it is held that interference could be made by the High Court when the order was passed without lawful authority or was coram non judice or mala fide.

19. On the question of interference under Article 199 of the Constitution, the Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi's case which has been decided by five Hon'ble Judges of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan also carves out an exception to the Javaid Hashmi case by permitting interference under two conditions; (i) where the order is patently illegal and without jurisdiction and (ii) where there is no legal remedy available to the aggrieved party. In the instant case, the order of the RO dismissed the objections of the petitioner on the ground that the petitioner was not competent to file objections under section 13 of the Senate Act. The petitioner's grievance is that his objections were not duly considered by the RO. However given that the Petitioner could not file objection under section 13 of the Senate Act, there is no patent illegality in this order. The petitioner then moved a petition under section 13(6) read with sections 58(aa) and 62 of the Senate Act and Article 218(3) of the Constitution against the order of the RO issued on 20-2-2015 before the ECP. The ECP upheld the order of the RO reiterating that the petitioner was not competent to file any objections under section 13 of the Senate Act and further decided the case on its merits finding respondent No.1 to possess the qualification and experience necessary for the seat of technocrat and that the petitioner had not brought any such information on the record warranting rejection of the nomination papers under section 13(6) of the Senate Act. The petitioner's grievance against this order is that it did not give due consideration to the objections raised by the petitioner. The arguments urged on behalf of the petitioner tantamounts to a disagreement with the orders of the ECP, where the petitioner thinks respondent No.1 should have been disqualified but the ECP held otherwise. The ECP as per its wisdom and understanding found respondent No.1 competent to contest the senate election. The fact that the petitioner disagrees with this order does not qualify as a patent illegality or an order lacking in jurisdiction. More importantly on the basis of Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi case and even the judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner, an important element which determines whether interference is necessitated under Article 199 of the Constitution is to see if the aggrieved person has no remedy available to him. In this case, the petitioner has remedy available to him when the election result is announced and if respondent No.1 is declared a successful candidate. The grievance of the petitioner can be looked into once the election process has concluded and if respondent No.1 is declared a successful candidate. Going back to the Javaid Hashmi dicta, if a challenge is permitted at this intermediate stage under Article 199 by a citizen, it would mean that any person can challenge the acceptance or rejection of nomination papers, causing interference and delay in the election process. Since the Senate Act does not recognize the petitioner as a necessary party to the scrutiny process, the right of the petitioner to challenge the election of respondent No.1 will accrue if and when respondent No.4 is notified as a member of Senate. A citizen can always challenge the holding of public office by a member Senate through a constitutional petition for issuance of writ of quo warranto because the citizen's rights accrue when the candidate becomes a member of senate and holds public office. In the case titled Hafiz Hamdullah v. Saifullah Khan and others (PLD 2007 SC 52) the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that a writ of quo warranto could be invoked in public interest by any person where the question of a returned candidates right to hold office was called into question and not the validity of the el ction process itself.

20. To conclude the legal position on the basis of the Javaid Hashmi case read with Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi case, Article 225 of the Constitution prohibits challenge to the election of a house or a provincial assembly except by way of an election petition before the election tribunal. This means that the senate election cannot be challenged at an intermediate stage except where there is no legal remedy available to an aggrieved party and where the orders of the RO or ECP are patently illegal and without jurisdiction, the effect of which would be to disentitle a candidate to participate in the elections. In such cases, a candidate can come to this Court in constitutional jurisdiction challenging the order of the RO or ECP, for infringing upon his right to contest elections. The petitioner is not an aggrieved person at this stage of the election process because the fate of respondent No.1's participation in the election is yet to be determined. In the event that he wins the election, the rights of petitioner to challenge the holding of office by respondent No.1 as member Senate will accrue and the petitioner may question the same. Since the petitioner does not have a right under the Senate Act to participate in the election process and he has no direct nexus with the senate election, he cannot question the qualifications of a candidate at the scrutiny stage in constitutional jurisdiction. In the Javaid Hashmi case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the exercise of power under Article 199 cannot be placed on any higher footing than that emanating from Article 225 of the Constitution; and that while the power under Article 199 exercisable by the High Court is "subject to the Constitution" there is no such limitation in Article 225. This Article by its language creates an independent jurisdiction for the decision of election disputes under the law and its contents, therefore, should be given the fullest meaning irrespective of anything contained in any other Article. More particularly it is an essential part of parliamentary jurisdiction which under the law entrusts election disputes for decision to the Election Tribunal and in appeal to the Supreme Court whose decision is final both on questions of law and fact.

21. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also relied upon the cases titled Dr. Aon Muhammad Khan v. Lt. Gen. (Retd.) Saeed Qadir and others (PLD 1987 SC 490), Sh. Ihsanul Haq Piracha v. Mr. Wasim Sajjad and others (PLD 1986 SC 200), Dr. Karim Ahmed Khawaja v. Returning Officer for Senate Elections, 2006 and another (2006 CLC 624), Sh. Riaz-ul-Haq and another v. Federation of Pakistan through Ministry of Law and others (PLD 2013 SC 501) and Malik Umar Aslam v. Mrs. Sumaira Malik and others (2014 SCMR 45) to urge the point that the instant petition is maintainable and that the petitioner has locus standi. NATIONAL ELECTRIC POWER REGULATORY AUTHORITY---Appellant

versus

FAISALABAD ELECTRIC SUPPLY COMPANY LIMITED---Respondent

I.C.A. No.67 of 2015, decided on 28th May, 2015.

(a) Law Reforms Ordinance (XII of 1972)---

----S. 3---Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act (XL of 1997) S.12A---National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998, R.16(6)---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 199---Constitutional petition---Intra-court appeal---Maintainability---Appellant, National Electric Power Regulatory Authority ("Authority") impugned order passed in constitutional petition whereby, inter alia, the Authority's order on a motion for leave to review was set aside---Contention of respondent was that since remedy of appeal under S.12A of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 was available to the Authority, therefore intra-court appeal was not maintainable---Held, that the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 read with the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998 could not contemplate a remedial forum for the Authority, where it could challenge its own orders as the Authority itself was the Appellate and Reviewing Authority; therefore, S.12A of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 had no applicability to the appellant Authority---Provision of one appeal, review or revision against original order, under S.3 of the Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 must be available to the parties to the dispute in order to question maintainability of the intra-court appeal and no such remedy was available to the appellant Authority in the present case---Appellant Authority, therefore, could not be deprived for its right of intra-court appeal---Intra-court appeal was therefore, maintainable.

(b) Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act (XL of 1997)---

----Ss. 7, 12 & Preamble---Constitution of Pakistan Art.10A, 9, 25, 2A & 154---Electricity tariff, determination of---Functions of the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority ("Authority")---Power to determine or modify tariffs---Adjudication of the Authority on a motion for leave to review---Full strength of the Authority mandatory for discharging essential and core functions/duties---Constitutional context of federalism and provincial autonomy and the consequent fundamental rights of the people (consumers) of various Provinces in determination of Electricity Tariff under the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997---Scope---Preamble of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 provided for regulation of generation, transmission and distribution of electric power and matters connected thereto and the Authority enjoyed the mandate under the law to determine tariff for all the generation, transmission and distribution companies in the country and it is for such reason that the constitution of the Authority had representation from the four Provinces by having four members, one from each province---"Electricity" fell within Part-II of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution which was to be overseen by the Council of Common Interests under Art.154 of the Constitution and the purpose of the Council was to support and strengthen federalism and democracy as well as to ensure that the interests of all the Provinces were weighed and considered equitably---Electricity being a basic utility, every Province (and the consumers therein) had the right to have equal representation in the Authority and in the consequent decision making of the Authority regarding determination of tariff and such right flowed from the right to fair determination under Art.10A of the Constitution and as it dealt with electricity, which was a basic utility, it also bordered on the right to life under Art.9 of the Constitution---Determination of Tariff of electricity was not an insulated unitary act, but a result of deliberative participatory process involving all the stakeholders and the Authority entrusted with said task under the Act, was therefore, not a mere unstructured amalgam of people, but enjoyed a unique character of Provincial representation and in a way, microcosmically represented the Federation by allowing representation of all the four Provinces on the Authority---Presence of every Member was important, as each of them represented a Province and if the Authority was short of the total statutory strength, it was in fact dysfunctional, as far as, performance of its core and essential functions were concerned---Such essential functions were enumerated under S.12 of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 and the Authority was not allowed to delegate such powers amongst the Chairman or the Members---Any proceedings for the determination of tariff without a Member would deprive the whole Province and its people from participating and deliberating in the determination of electric power for the said Province, which would be discriminatory under Art.25 of the Constitution and violate the right to fair determination under the Objectives Resolution---Establishment of the Authority, with proportional representation of the four Provinces, had a constitutional significance and its full strength could not be diluted or altered when performing its essential functions.

(c) Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act (XL of 1997)---

----Ss. 12, 7, 3 & 5---National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998, R.16(6)---Law Reforms Ordinance (XII of 1972), S. 3---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 199---Intra-court appeal---Electricity tariff, determination of---Functions of the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority ("Authority")---Power to determine or modify tariffs---Adjudication of the Authority on a motion for leave to review---Full strength of the Authority mandatory for discharging essential and core functions/duties---Interpretation of

Ss.5, 3(6) & 12 of the Regulation of Generation. Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997---Scope---Appellant, National Electric Power Regulatory Authority ("Authority") impugned order passed in constitutional petition whereby, inter alia, order of the Authority in leave to review motion was set aside and the term "full strength of the authority" under R.16(6) of the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998 was held to mean all five Members of the Authority (NEPRA), including the Chairman---Held, that the term "full strength" under R.16(6) of the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998 was not the available strength but the statutory strength as provided under S. 3 of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 that was, five Members including a Chairman because under the said Rule, the Authority discharged one of its essential functions---Rule 16(6) of the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998 simply reiterated said principle that the Authority had to act with full strength in matters which fell within the core and essential functions of the Authority and where delegation was not permissible and it was not only at the time of hearing a motion for leave for review that the Authority must have full strength, but the full strength of the Authority must be there when the tariff was to be determined by the Authority or while performing the other functions issued under S.12 of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997---Section 5 of Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 dealt with administrative character of the Authority and its secretarial provision, regulating the procedures for holding a meeting and such meetings and the decisions taken thereunder had no co-relation with one of the core and essential quasi-judicial powers and functions of the Authority; which was the determination of tariff or deciding the motion for leave to review---High Court observed that the contention that if the quorum was complete the Authority could call a meeting and determine tariff, was misconceived as it incorrectly mixed two different functions of the Authority and the said S.5 dealt with administrative meetings and was a secretarial provision with no nexus with the determination of tariff which was a quasi-judicial function of the Authority---Section 3(6) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 applied once the Authority had been duly constituted in terms of the said S.3 of the Act, and its composition was complete and reference to the terms "vacancy" and "defect" in the said section pertained to absence of the member or a procedural defect or irregularity in the membership and both such disqualifications assumed that the Authority had been fully constituted---Section 3(6) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 therefore, addressed a temporary problem and protected the acts or proceedings of the Authority to allow smooth operability of the Authority in a situation where a duly appointed member refused to attend the proceedings of the Authority for tariff determination or some irregularity in the appointment of any member who was part of the proceedings---Purpose of S.3(6) of Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 was to ensure that such hiccups did not derail the Authority or its decisions and in the case of determination of tariff, while full strength was mandatory, there could be a situation where the Member was genuinely not able to attend the meeting or his appointment suffered from any irregularity making it difficult for him to attend, and in such a situation, which should be duly recorded in the minutes of the proceedings, the Authority could proceed and determine the tariff or decide the motion for leave for review---Such exceptions were few and far between but in the present case, S.3(6) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 had no relevance as the Authority was not properly and lawfully constituted to begin with, as the Chairman and one other Member had not been appointed---Section 3(6) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 did not empower the Authority to proceed without proper constitution in terms of S.3 of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 and any such interpretation can lead to absurd results, as the Chairman or a few Members, under the garb of S.3(6) of the Act could proceed on their own and continue to determine tariff for the longest time---Federal Government, in such an eventuality, would have no incentive or obligation to appoint Members under the Act or complete the constitution of the Authority and any such interpretation was also violative of the fundamental rights and the constitutional vision---Authority while determining the electricity tariff including on a motion for leave to review, must have full strength, i.e. five members including the Chairman, fully representing four Provinces subject to the exception as explained by the High Court---Appeal was dismissed, in circumstances.

Mansoor Usman Awan for Appellant.
Sh. Muhammad Ali for Respondent.
Date of hearing: 9th February, 2015.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK J.---The appellant is aggrieved of judgment dated 3-12-2014 passed by the learned judge in chambers, wherein the term full strength of the Authority in Rule 16(6) of National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998 ("Tariff Rules") has been interpreted to mean all the five Members of the Authority (or NEPRA) including the Chairman as per section 3 of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 ("Act").

2. Brief facts are that against the tariff determined by the Authority (Appellant) on 6-2-2014, a motion for leave to review was filed by the respondent Company before the Authority under Rule 16(6) of the Tariff Rules, which was decided by the Authority on 16-6-2014. At the time, the Authority consisted of only three Members, as the office of the Chairman and one Member was vacant, hence the motion for leave to review was decided by three Members of the Authority.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant argued that the three available and appointed Members represented the full strength of the Authority, at the time. He further argued that all acts and proceedings of the Authority, irrespective of any vacancy or defect in its constitution are valid and protected under section 3(6) of the Act. He argued that Rule 16(6) of the Tariff Rules is subordinate to section 3(6) of the Act and cannot be given an overriding effect.

4. Learned counsel for the respondent in the first instance raised a preliminary objection with regard to the maintainability of the ICA. He argued that under section 3 of the Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 ("Ordinance"), if the petition under Article 199 arises out of any proceedings in which the law applicable provides for at least one appeal, review or revision to any Court, Tribunal or authority against the original order, appeal (ICA) before this Court is not maintainable. He pointed out that the remedy of appeal is available to the appellant under section 12A of the Act. On merits, learned counsel argued that full strength of the Authority under Rule 16(6) is the mandate of the law and cannot be dispensed with. He further submitted that full strength does not mean the available full strength but the statutory strength of five members. He submits that section 3(6) of the Act does not apply to the instant case, as 'vacancy' and 'defect' under the said Section assume that the constitution of the Authority is otherwise complete.

5. Responding to the preliminary objection, learned counsel for the appellant argued that the remedy of appeal, review or revision should have been available under the Act to the appellant. He went on to argue that section 12A of the Act does not provide for any remedy to the appellant, hence, the appellant cannot be deprived of its right to approach this Court in an ICA.

6. We have heard the parties and have gone through the record.
Preliminary Objection

7. The appellant decided the motion for leave to review vide order dated 16-6-2014, which was impugned before the learned judge in chambers, who set aside the said order, holding that Rule 16(6) of the Tariff Rules required full strength of the Authority to hear the motion for leave to review. The Authority has impugned the judgment of the learned single judge before us and is not aggrieved of the order issued in the motion for leave to review as the said order was actually the order passed by the Authority itself. The Act read with Tariff Rules cannot possibly contemplate a remedial forum for the Authority where it would challenge its own orders as the Authority itself is the appellate and reviewing authority under the Act and the Tariff Rules. Therefore, section 12A has no applicability to the case of the appellant. The provision of one appeal, review or revision against the original order, under section 3 of the Ordinance must be available to the parties to the dispute in order to question the maintainability of the ICA. No such remedy is available to the appellant under the Act and therefore the appellant cannot be deprived of its right of appeal (ICA) before us. Any such interpretation would also be against the right to access to justice. Hence, the preliminary objection, being without any substance is overruled.
Full strength of the Authority

8. The legal question, arising from the impugned judgment is the interpretation of the term full strength of the Authority as provided under Rule 16(6) of the Tariff Rules. However, deeper examination of the case reveals that the question that requires our consideration is much broader, that is, what is the strength or composition of the Authority required for the purposes of tariff determination or alternatively, whether full strength of the Authority is required for the determination of tariff and motion for leave to review. We have examined these questions under the structure of the Act and the Tariff Rules and in the larger constitutional context of federalism and provincial autonomy and the consequent fundamental rights of the people (consumers) of various Provinces.

9. The term full strength of the Authority appears for the first time under Rule 16(6) of the Tariff Rules in the following manner:

Rule 16(6): Within ten days of service of a final order, determination or decision of the Authority, a party may .file a motion for leave for review by the full strength of the Authority of such final order, determination or decision, as the case may be.
The Authority is established under Section 3 of the Act consisting of a Chairman and four Members, one from each Province. Section 7 of the Act provides for the powers and functions of the Authority and one of the powers and functions of the Authority is to determine the tariff under section 7(3)(a) of the Act. All the powers and functions of the Authority, enumerated under section 7, can be delegated to the Chairman or any Member of the Authority except the following under section 12 of the Act:

(a) The power to grant, reject, amend, vary or revoke licenses or any condition thereof

(b) The power to determine or modify tariff

(c) The power to approve, disapprove or modify an investment program or a power acquisition program;

(d) the power to make or repeal rules and regulations made under the Act; and

(e) the power to make orders on an application for review of its orders.

In the instant case, the power to determine tariff cannot be delegated by the Authority. Hence, the Authority established under Section 3 of the Act i.e., five Members including a Chairman and no one else, can determine tariff and decide upon a motion for leave to review of the tariff. In this regard, Rule 9(5) of the Tariff Rules provides that all the final decisions and determinations of tariff are to be made by the Authority itself on the basis of the recorded proceedings.

10. The preamble of the Act provides for regulation of generation, transmission and distribution of electric power and matters connected thereto. The Authority enjoys the mandate under the law to determine tariff for all the generation, transmission and distribution companies in the country and it is for this reason that the constitution of the Authority has representation from the four Provinces by having four members, one from each province. "Electricity" falls within Part-II of the Federal Legislative List of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") which is to be overseen by the Council of Common Interests under Article 154 of the Constitution. The purpose of the Council is to support and strengthen federalism and democracy. It is to ensure that the interests of all the Provinces are weighed and considered equitably. Electricity being a basic utility, every Province (and the consumers therein) has the right to have equal representation in the Authority and in the consequent decision making of the Authority regarding determination of tariff. This right flows from the right to fair determination under Article 10A of the Constitution and as it deals with electricity which is a basic utility it also borders on the right to life under Article 9 of the Constitution.

11. Determination of Tariff of electricity is not an insulated unitary act, but a result of deliberative participatory process involving all the stakeholders. The Authority entrusted with this task under the Act, is therefore, not a mere unstructured amalgam of people, but enjoys a unique character of provincial representation and in a way microcosmically represents the Federation by allowing representation of all the four Provinces on the Authority. The presence of every Member is important, as each of them represents a Province. If the Authority is short of the total statutory strength, it is in fact dysfunctional, as far as, performance of its core essential functions are concerned. These essential functions are enumerated under section 12 of the Act and the Authority is not allowed to delegate these powers amongst the Chairman or the Members. Any proceedings for the determination of tariff without a Member will deprive the whole Province and its people from participating and deliberating in the determination of electric power for the Province. This would be discriminatory under Article 25 and violative of the right to fair determination under the Objectives Resolution and upholds the constitutional ethos and values of cooperative federalism and participatory democracy. Therefore, the establishment of the Authority, with proportional representation of the four Provinces, has a constitutional significance and its full strength cannot be diluted or altered when performing its essential functions.

12. The term full strength under Rule 16(6) of the Tariff Rules is not the available strength but the statutory strength as provided under section 3 of the Act i.e., five Members including a Chairman because under the said Rule, the Authority discharges one of its essential functions. Rule 16(6) simply reiterates this principle that the Authority has to act with full strength in matters which fall within the core essential functions of the Authority and where delegation is not permissible. It is important to highlight that it is not only at the time of hearing a motion for leave for review that the Authority must have full strength, but the full strength of the Authority must be there when the tariff is to be determined by the Authority or while performing the other functions issued under Section 12 of the Act.

13. The Authority has other administrative powers and functions listed under section 7 of the Act. These administrative functions and its decisions are taken in the meetings of the Authority. Section 5 deals with this administrative character of the Authority and its secretarial provision, regulating the procedures for holding a meeting. These meetings and the decisions taken thereunder have no co- relation with the core and essential quasi-judicial powers and functions of the Authority e.g., the determination of tariff or deciding the motion for leave to review. Hence, the argument that if the quorum is complete the Authority can call a meeting and determine tariff, is hopelessly misconceived as it incorrectly mixes two different functions of the Authority. Section 5 deals with administrative meetings and is a secretarial provision with no nexus with the determination of tariff which is a quasi-judicial function of the Authority.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied on section 3(6) of the Act to argue that decisions of the Authority cannot be declared to be void if only three Members have made the determination of tariff or have decided the motion for leave to review: Section 3(6) provides:

No act or proceeding of the Authority shall be invalid by reason only of the existence of a vacancy in, or defect in, the constitution of the Authority.

This is an operational provision which applies once the Authority has been duly constituted in terms of Section 3 and its composition is complete. The reference to the terms "vacancy" and "defect" pertain to absence of the member or a procedural defect or irregularity in the membership. Both these disqualifications assume that the Authority has been fully constituted. Section 3(6) addresses a temporary problem and, therefore, protects the acts or proceedings of the Authority to allow smooth operability of the Authority. There could be a situation where a duly appointed member refused to attend the proceedings of the Authority for tariff determination or some irregularity in the appointment of any member who is part of these proceedings. The purpose of section 3(6) is to ensure that such hiccups do not derail the Authority or its decisions. In the case of determination of tariff, while full strength is mandatory, there could be a situation where the Member is genuinely not able to attend the meeting or his appointment suffers from any irregularity making it difficult for him to attend, in such a situation, which should be duly recorded in the minutes of the proceedings, the Authority can proceed and determine the tariff or decide the motion for leave for review. This exception is few and far between but in the present case, section 3(6) has no relevance as the Authority was not properly and lawfully constituted to begin with, as the Chairman and one other Member had not been appointed. Section 3(6) does not empower the Authority to proceed without proper constitution in terms of section 3 of the Act. Any such interpretation can lead to absurd results, as the Chairman or a few Members, under the garb of section 3(6) can proceed on their own and continue to determine tariff for the longest time. In such an eventuality, the Federal Government will have no incentive or obligation to appoint Members under the Act or complete the constitution of the Authority. Any such interpretation is also violative of the fundamental rights and the Constitutional vision as discussed above.

15. For the above reasons, we uphold the judgment of the learned single judge and set aside the decision of the Authority dated 16-6-2014 passed on a motion for leave to review. We also declare that the Authority while determining the tariff, including the motion for leave to review, must have full strength i.e., five members including the Chairman, fully representing the four Provinces, subject to exceptions discussed above. As a consequence, the case is remanded to the Authority to hear the motion for leave to review of the respondent Company afresh, by the statutory full strength of the authority. This appeal is therefore, dismissed in the above terms.

ORDER

This appeal has been filed against order dated 28-6-2006 passed in C.O. No.58 of 2002.

2. The facts of the case are that respondent No.1 moved a petition under section 152 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984 ("Ordinance") for rectification of the register of members, before the learned Company Judge of this Court. The case of respondent No.1 was that the register of members had been tampered with and the name of respondent No.1 was fraudulently omitted from the register of members at the behest of the appellants. The impugned order found that respondent No.1 never transferred any shares in favour of the appellants, hence the rectification in the register of members was fraudulently made to reflect such a transfer. The appellants urged that the transfer on the basis of a valid contract was made in their favour by respondent No.1, for valuable consideration which was duly paid and hence the rectification in the register of members was made to reflect the valid sale. The learned Single Judge found that in fact no valid transfer had taken place in terms of section 76 of the Ordinance as the original shares were in the custody of Habib Bank Limited. Admittedly, the shares were pledged with the Bank and the transfer of shares in favour of the appellants was never made in terms of section 76 of the Ordinance.

3. Learned counsel for the appellants urged that the transfer was made on the basis of a valid agreement dated 27-6-1993. Due consideration was paid by pay order and two cheques and permission was duly taken from the Habib Bank Limited to effect the sale. Learned counsel further argued that in this regard a certificate was issued by Habilb Bank Limited stating therein that while the shares were in their custody, they were transferred in favour of appellants Nos.2 and 3. Learned counsel has relied upon the certificate to state that on the basis of agreement dated 21-4-1993 as well as the certificate, a valid transfer has been affected and the said sale was duly reflected in the register of members in accordance with law. Learned counsel for the appellants argued that the transfer of shares in the name of the appellants was reflected in Form A from 1995 and it was at the filing of the petition under section 152 of the Ordinance in 2002 that the issue was raised by respondent No.l. Learned counsel argued that from 1995 till 2002, the respondents never agitated against the transfer. Learned counsel argued that the impugned order requires the appellants to enforce their right before the appropriate forum whereas in fact the right of the appellants was duly endorsed in the register of members and it was for the respondents to prove their claim against the appellants with respect to the transfer of shares.

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the appellants at length and find that the alleged transfer of shares in favour of the appellants did not meet the requirements of section 76 of the Ordinance. Section 76 of the Ordinance clearly provides that the company shall not register a transfer of shares or debentures unless proper instrument of transfer duly stamped and executed by the transferor and the transferee has been delivered to the company along with the scrip. Admittedly, in this case, the original instrument of transfer was in the custody of Habib Bank Limited where they had been pledged. Therefore the mandatory requirement of section 76 of the Ordinance was never complied with and any rectification in the register of members to show the transfer in favour of the appellants was not in accordance with the law.

5. Under the circumstances, we find that the learned Single Judge while relying upon section 76 of the Ordinance has rightly concluded that the register of members could not have been changed on the basis of a disputed agreement dated 21-4-1993 and that the appellants would have to prove their claim before the appropriate forum before they could seek rectification under section 152 of the Ordinance.

6. In view of the aforesaid, this appeal is dismissed.

Mr. Faiz Jalbani, Advocate for Petitioner.
Ch. Mehmood-ur-Rehman, Advocate for Respondent No. 2.
Date of hearing: 20.4.2015.

ORDER

Through this petition, order dated 6.6.2012 passed by Respondent No. 1 Judge Banking Court No. II, Lahore has been challenged by the petitioner.

2. The case of the petitioner is that a suit was filed by Respondent No. 2, Trust Leasing and Investment Bank Limited, against the petitioner and two others. An application for leave to appear and defend was filed by the petitioner which was dismissed on 29.7.2008 by Respondent No. 1, Judge Banking Court No. II, Lahore for non-prosecution as well as for being barred by time. The suit was ultimately decreed on 29.7.2008. Respondent No. 1 proceeded to execute the judgment and decree dated 29.7.2008. On 14.6.2010 an application under Order I Rule 10, CPC was filed by Respondent No. 3, Allah Ditta for becoming party in the execution proceedings. In the said application, Respondent No. 3 claimed that he had entered into an agreement with the petitioner for the sale of 02 marlas property subject of the auction proceedings before the Court. He prayed for stay of the proceedings. Respondent No. 3 claimed that an agreement to sell was entered into between him and the petitioner regarding the property measuring 02 marlas comprised in Khewat No. 3/4, Khatoni No. 7, Khasra No. 11/6/2 measuring 01-Kanal and 02-Marlas, out of which share measuring 02 marlas situated at Jassokey Gurditta, Tehsil Depalpur, District Okara. Respondent No. 1 vide the impugned order dated 6.6.2012 decided the application of Respondent No. 3 by validating the transaction between the petitioner and Respondent No. 3. Learned counsel for the petitioner argued that Respondent No. 1 had no jurisdiction to validate the transaction between the petitioner and Respondent No. 3, Allah Ditta regarding the property exclusively owned by the petitioner. Learned counsel further argued that mere assertion of a right on the basis of an agreement to sell does not create substantive rights in the property.

3. Having heard the arguments of the learned counsel for the parties and after going through the record, it is seen that impugned order dated 6.6.2012 passed by Respondent No. 1 is contrary to the law. Respondent No. 1 does not have jurisdiction under the Financial Institutions (Recovery of Finances) Ordinance, 2001 to decide upon title issues between parties furthermore irrespective of any agreement to sell, Respondent No. 1 was obligated to auction the property which was mortgaged by the judgment debtors to satisfy the decree dated 29.7.2008. Therefore the impugned order dated 6.6.2012 passed by Respondent No. 1 is set aside. The application under Order I Rule 10, CPC shall be deemed pending before Respondent No. 1, Judge Banking Court No. II, Lahore who shall pass a fresh order on the application by Respondent No. 3, in accordance with law, after hearing all the necessary parties within a period of three months from the receipt of certified copy of this order.

4. Disposed of accordingly.

(R.A.) Petition disposed of.

ORDER

C.M. Nos. 3/2010 & 346/2012

This order shall decide Civil Misc. Nos. 3/2010 and 346/2012.

2. The facts in brief are that Niaz Muhammad predecessor-in-interest of applicants in C.M. No. 3/2010 (applicants) was allotted some land by the GHQ. He expired on 21.12.1991. Applicants executed a general power-of-attorney in favour of one Muhammad Sarwar son of Ali Muhammad (attorney) on 26.12.1991. On the same date, they also entered into an agreement with their attorney with the stipulation that the attorney will get the property transferred in the name of the applicants through his own means and will give them a certain share. Thereafter, on 04.01.1992, the attorney entered into an agreement to sell of 7/8th share of the property with his wife Mst. Sheedan for a sum of Rs. 120,000/- out of which he received Rs. 115,000/- as earnest money. Subsequent to this power-of-attorney was cancelled whereafter, applicants successively executed power-of-attorneys in favour of the attorney on 24.8.1992, 26.03.1994 and 7.8.1996.

3. On the strength of the agreement to sell, a suit for possession through specific performance was filed by Mst. Sheedan, which was decreed on 8.3.1994 on the conceding statement of the attorney. Thereafter, while cancelling previous power-of-attorneys through registered cancellation deeds, applicants executed a fresh power-of-attorney in favour of Muhammad Hanif.

4. On 24.4.2000, through the newly appointed attorney, an application under Section 12(2), C.P.C. was filed by the applicants before Civil Judge, Kasur against the judgment and decree passed in favour of Mst. Sheedan. The said application was accepted on 30.7.2004 and the judgment and decree was set aside. Feeling aggrieved, Mst. Sheedan filed a revision petition before Additional District Judge, Kasur which was accepted on 5.11.2004 and the order passed by the Civil Judge was set aside. Feeling aggrieved, applicants preferred Writ Petition No. 20203/2004 before this Court, which was dismissed on 27.6.2007 because of non-appearance of the applicants (impugned order). Feeling aggrieved, the applicants simultaneously filed CPLA No. 1395-L/2007 as well as Review Application No. 59/2007. Vide order dated 30.4.2008, CPLA was withdrawn by the applicants. Thereafter, when the matter was highlighted before this Court in the review application that the applicants simultaneously availed two remedies, on 8.6.2009, applicants withdrew their review application. Against the afore-noted withdrawal, applicants preferred CPLA No. 1416-L/2009, which was also withdrawn on 02.03.2010 on the ground that the applicants will seek their relief by way of filing an application under Section 12(2), C.P.C. before this Court. Subsequent thereto, on 15.11.2010 Civil Misc. No. 3/2010 (present application) was filed by the applicants on 25.10.2010. During the pendency of the said application, Civil Misc. No. 346/2012 was filed by the respondents for the rejection of the application filed under Section 12(2), C.P.C.

5. Learned counsel for the respondents, at the very outset, has raised the following preliminary objections:--

(a) that the application under Section 12(2), C.P.C. is barred by limitation; and

(b) that in view of the fact that applicants themselves withdrew CPLA Nos. 1395-L/2007 & 1416-L/2009 and Review Application No. 59/2007, therefore, they are debarred from filing the present application.

6. Replying to the above, learned counsel for the applicants submits that the applicants were never intimated that they are required to appear before this Court; the counsel who represented them on the fateful day, i.e. 27.6.2007 when the writ petition was dismissed, was not the counsel for the applicants. Learned counsel has also endeavoured to argue the application on merit, however, he has been asked to first satisfy this Court qua maintainability of this application, for which he relied on the above submissions.

7. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the available record.

8. For better appreciation of the controversy, it shall be imperative to reproduce the impugned order:---

"The perusal of the order sheet shows that repeated orders have been passed by the Court (16.3.2005, 13.12.2006, 7.5.2007 and 6.6.2007) for the personal appearance of the petitioners, who have failed to enter appearance. On the last date of hearing, i.e. 6.6.2007, a specific date was fixed for this purpose, i.e. today. Even today, none of the petitioners is present in person and no justification is being brought forth for their non-presence. The non-compliance of Court's orders without any lawful justification shows deliberate avoidance to comply with the Court's orders. It is a petition under Article 199 of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973, wherein the conduct of the party assumes great relevance and importance. The conduct of the petitioners disentitles them to seek this discretionary and equitable remedy.

The petition is dismissed accordingly".

From the afore-noted order, it is clear that on the previous four dates of hearing, specific orders were passed by this Court for appearance of the applicants in person however, none appeared. The learned Single Judge granted sufficient opportunities to the applicants to comply with the Court's order however, due to non-appearance of the applicants, he was left with no option but to proceed against them and to dismiss the writ petition.

9. From the perusal of the order sheet, it has surfaced that Syed Muhammad Kaleem Ahmad Khurshid, Advocate has been representing the applicants. He on 16.03.2005 was instructed to produce the applicants in person whereupon he undertook to do the needful. Subsequent thereto, on 13.12.2006 and 7.5.2007, he appeared himself however the applicants never appeared before the Court. On the fateful day, one Mr. Fazal Elahi, Advocate appeared on behalf of the applicants; he neither got his statement recorded nor did he give any explanation about non-appearance/non-compliance of the orders passed by this Court. As the learned counsel, who appeared on behalf of the applicants neither deposed anything against the applicants nor did he take any action which could adversely affect the rights of the applicants enabling them to approach this Court invoking Section 12(2), C.P.C. Syed Muhammad Kaleem Ahmad Khurshid, Advocate learned original counsel for the applicants was successively intimated by the learned Single Judge starting from 16.3.2005 to ensure presence of the applicants, for which he never offered any explanation. It is not the case of the applicants that they never retained Syed Muhammad Kaleem Ahmad Khurshid, Advocate as their counsel who failed to intimate the applicants to appear before this Court.

10. In order to examine the scope of Section 12(2), C.P.C. it will be convenient to reproduce the said provision:--

"12. Bar to further suit.-- (1) ----------

(2) Where a person challenges the validity of a judgment, decree or order on the plea of fraud, misrepresentation or want of jurisdiction, he shall seek his remedy by making an application to the Court which passed the final judgment, decree or order and not by a separate suit."

From the perusal of the afore-noted provision, it is manifest that the scope of this section is limited and narrow. A judgment, decree or order under this provision can only be challenged, in case it has been passed due to fraud, misrepresentation or want of jurisdiction. From the impugned order, it is clear that the same was neither procured through fraud nor through misrepresentation. It is also not the case of the applicants that the learned Single Judge had no jurisdiction to pass an order dismissing the writ petition on the ground of non-appearance of the applicants.

11. We tend to agree with the submission made by the learned counsel for the respondents that the application under Section 12(2), C.P.C. is also barred by time. It is not denied by the applicants that the impugned order was passed on 27.6.2007 against which, applicants have been approaching different forums for the redress of their grievance and ultimately after failing before all forums, on 15.11.2010 preferred the present application. The limitation to file an application under Section 12(2), C.P.C. is governed by Article 181, Limitation Act, 1908 C.P.C. which provides for a period of 3 years for assailing an order from the date of the passing of the judgment, decree or order. The applicants did not file any application under Section 5 or 14 of the Limitation Act for seeking condonation of delay.

12. The resume of the above discussion is that impugned order neither fall within the purview of Section 12(2), C.P.C. nor has been assailed within time therefore C.M. Nos. 346/2012 is accepted, as a sequel to which C.M. No. 3/2010 is dismissed on merits as well as barred by limitation.

Civil Miscellaneous Application dismissed.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule `A', appended with this judgment, as all these petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. The petitioners all seek the benefit of section 113(2)(c) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance").

3. In this regard, the petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.9548/15 and 15377/14 have impugned show-cause notices dated 26-1-2015 issued by the Commissioner Inland Revenue, Lahore and 12-5-2014 issued by the Additional Commissioner Inland Revenue, Lahore respectively. The petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.24807/13, 3008/14 and 825/14 have impugned orders-in-original dated 30-6-2013, 31-12-2013 11-12-2013 respectively issued by the Additional Commissioner Inland Revenue. The petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.824 and 1355 of 2014 being aggrieved of the orders-in-original dated 13-11-2013 and 26-11-2013 issued by the Additional Commissioner Inland Revenue respectively have filed appeals before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals) and have come to this Court against the orders-in-original.

4. The case of the petitioners is that they are entitled to the benefit of Section 113(2)(c) of the Ordinance as they have been paying minimum tax under Section 113 of the Ordinance on account of declared losses. However, when they sought the benefit of section 113(2)(c) under the Ordinance it was denied to them. Mr. Shahid Pervez Jami and Mr. Mudassar Shujauddin, Advocates for the petitioners (In W.Ps. Nos.824, 825, 1355 and 3008 of 2014) submitted that the petitioners have been denied this benefit on account of the judgment in the case titled Commissioner Inland Revenue, Zone-II, Karachi v. Messrs Kassim Textile Mills (Pvt.) Limited, Karachi 2013 PTD 1420. Mr. Khurram Shahbaz Butt, Advocate for the Petitioners (In W.P. No. 24807/2013 and W.P. No.9548/2015) submitted that the impugned orders are without jurisdiction having been passed after the expiration of the period of limitation under Section 122(4) of the Ordinance. Learned counsel submitted that the issue is of one interpretation of Section 113(2)(c) of tilt Ordinance and whether the Respondents can refuse adjustment of minimum tax paid for the preceding tax years (in which loss was declared). They all argued that since it is a decided issue in the Kassim Textile Mills Case, the remedy under the Ordinance is not adequate or efficacious.

5. At the very outset, learned counsel for the respondents raised an objection on the maintainability of the instant petitions on the ground that statutory remedy was available to all the petitioners. He stated that some of the petitioners are aggrieved by orders-in-original issued by the Additional Commissioner Inland Revenue against which appeals are pending before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals) whereas other petitioners have come against the orders-in-original and against show-cause notices. In this regard, following information has been placed before the Court:--

W.P. No.	Sec. 122(9)	Sec.122(5A)	Appeal filed
824/14	18-9-2013	13-11-2013	Pending
9548/15	26-1-2015	Nil	Nil
24807/13	22-6-2013	30-6-2013	Nil
3008/14	20-12-2013	31-12-2013	Nil
825/14	31-10-2013	11-12-2013	Nil
1355/14	29-10-2013	26-11-2013	Pending
15377/14	12-5-2014	Nil	Nil

Learned counsel for the respondents argued that the Ordinance provides remedy to all the petitioners in the form of two appeals and a reference. Therefore this Court should not interfere at this stage and allow the petitioners to bypass the statutory remedy. In this regard, reliance has been placed on the case titled Mughal-e-Azam Banquet Complex through Managing Partner v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary and 4 others (2011 PTD 2260) wherein it was held that laying challenge to a show-cause notice was, no different than filing a petition on the basis of an apprehension or a speculation. Such a petition was premature and not ripe for adjudication. Learned counsel further argued that notwithstanding the Kassim Textile Mills Case, each case will be seen on its own facts and merits by the competent forum and it will be ascertained whether the Kassim Textile Mills Case is relevant to their case. Therefore he argued that the petitions are not maintainable.

6. Heard and record perused.

7. The common facts in all these cases are that the petitioners were issued notice under Section 122(9) of the Ordinance seeking amendment of the assessment under Section 122(5A) of the Ordinance read with Section 122(1) of the Ordinance. Two petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.9548/2015 and 15377/2014 have impugned the show-cause notices before this Court. Three petitioners in W.P. Nos.24807/2013, 3008/2014 and 825/2014 have impugned the orders-in-original passed under section 122(5A) of the Ordinance before this Court. Two petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.824/2014 and 1355/2014 have filed the appeals before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals) which are pending. The basic arguments of the learned counsel for the petitioners is that the remedy of appeal is illusionary on account of the fact that the matter in issue has been decided by the Hon'ble Sindh High Court in Kassim Textile Mills Case and that the respondents will decide the issue on the basis of the said judgment. Learned counsel for the petitioners stated that the remedy available under the statute is no longer efficacious or adequate for the petitioners, hence the, petitions are maintainable. The petitioners seek interpretation of Section 113(2)(c) of the Ordinance to the facts of their cases. They disagree with the decision given in the Kassim Textile Mills Case and believe that their cases will suffer the same fate, hence they argue that the statutory remedy is neither adequate nor efficacious and the matter is a fait accompli.

8. The Ordinance is a comprehensive code which specifically provides for the remedy of an appeal before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals) under Section 127 of the Ordinance. Against the orders of the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals), remedy under Section 131 of the Ordinance is provided being an appeal before the Appellate Tribunal. Against the said order, remedy is in the form of a Reference under Section 133 provided for under the Ordinance, which is remedy before this Court, in which questions of law can be decided. The Ordinance therefore provides the petitioners two appeals and a reference before this Court. The question that arises is whether the remedy is illusionary as the question of law stands decided in Kassim Textile Mills Case. In the case titled Collector of Customs, Customs House, Lahore and 3 others v. Messrs S.M. Ahmad and Company (Pvt.) Limited, Islamabad (1999 SCMR 138), the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that constitutional petition was maintainable in the presence of alternate remedy, if that remedy was illusionary in nature. The alternate remedy under the Customs Act, 1969 was considered illusionary in this case because the CBR declared the classification for imported wood. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that since the CBR had rendered its decision and classified imported wood, it would be difficult to take a contrary view regarding the classification of imported wood. Therefore within the statutory hierarchy when the matter stood decided, the statutory remedy was considered illusionary as the customs department was bound by the opinion of the CBR.

9. So far as the petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.9548/15 and 15377/14, their petitions have been filed on the basis of an apprehension. They have come against a show-cause notice without filing any reply. In these cases there is no adverse order against the petitioners and the question of whether Kassim Textile Mills Case is relevant has not ripened. No substantive right of the stated petitioners has been infringed and at this stage it is a preemptive argument to urge that their cases will be decided as per the Kassim Textile Mills Case.

10. As to the other petitioners, they essentially seek the interpretation of Section 113(2)(c) of the Ordinance to the effect that they having declared loss are entitled to the benefit of Section 113(2)(c) of the Ordinance. The Hon'ble Sindh High Court in Kassim Textile Mills Case in I.T.R. No.132/2011 decided the question of law 'whether in-the facts and circumstances of the case, the learned Tribunal has 'correctly concluded that the benefit under Section 113(2) (c) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 is available to the respondent taxpayer'. In this case, the petitioner had gone through the statutory remedies available under the Ordinance bringing their cases ultimately to the High Court in a Reference for interpretation of a question of law. In the case titled Commissioner of Income Tax, Companies-II and another v. Hamdard Dawakhana (Waar), Karachi (PLD 1992 SC 847), the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that where a statute provides for alternate and efficacious remedy all the way up to the High Court, the process cannot be bypassed without valid and reasonable cause. In this case, the petitioners claim that the respondents will treat their cases in terms of the dicta laid down in the Kassim Textile Mills Case, hence denying them due process. What needs to be seen is whether the request of the petitioners is reasonable that the Court interpret the question of law raised by the petitioners at this stage when the petitioners have not availed the remedy of an appeal and have the right to file a reference under the Ordinance.

10A. In the Kassim Textile Mills Case relied upon by the petitioners the judgment was delivered in a Reference (I.T.R.A. No.132/2011) by the Hon'ble Sindh High Court meaning that the petitioners went through the statutory remedy and ultimately their case was decided in a reference. The present petitioners seek the same relief through these constitutional petitions without availing the alternate remedy. A reference before the High Court under Section 133 of the Ordinance can be filed in each case where a question of law arises out of the order of the Appellate Tribunal. Unless the dispute does not go through the stages of appeal the case of the petitioners will not ripen for interpretation on a question of law. At this stage, it is mere speculation that the question of law is the same as it was in the Kassim Textile Mills Case. The petitioners' case is based on a fear arising from what they anticipate will happen in their case based on the Kassim Textile Mills Case. They claim a reasonable certainty of a presumed threat on the basis of which they seek interference from this Court. However, even if their apprehensions culminate into an adverse order by the competent authority, the remedy of appeal and reference is available to the petitioner and the question of law can only arise from the order of the Appellate Tribunal. This court cannot preempt the question of law and decide upon it at this stage. The petitioners will have to go through the stages available under the act for their case to ripen for the purposes of interpretation of a question of law.

11. The question of whether alternate remedy is adequate was seen in the case titled Anjuman-e-Ahmadiya, Sargodha v. (1) The Deputy Commissioner, Sargodha and (2) The Government of West Pakistan, through the Secretary Colonies, Board of Revenue, West Pakistan, Lahore (PLD 1966 SC 639) wherein the court stated that to disentitle a person from extraordinary remedy the alternate remedy must be a remedy in law. One which is not less convenient, beneficial and effective and if what is sought to be enforced by such extraordinary remedy is a legal right to the performance of a legal duty of a public nature. The Court held that there are two exceptions to the rule one, that the Court will not interfere to enforce the law of the land through its extraordinary remedy of an order of mandamus in cases where remedy is available under the law, and two when in accordance with the general rule where a statute creates an obligation and enforces its performance in a specified manner, the remedy by mandamus will not be available. In the said case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the adequacy of the remedy, must further be judged, with reference to a comparison of the speed, expense or convenience of obtaining that relief through the alternate remedy, with the speed, expense or convenience of obtaining it under Article 98. The Court has to make a comparison of the speed, expense or convenience of giving that relief under Article 98, with the speed, expense or convenience of obtaining it from the other authority. In this case, the remedy available under the Act is adequate and efficacious for the petitioners. The question in these petitions of adequacy cannot be judged in the light of speed, expense or convenience of obtaining the relief but must be judged in the light of the provisions of the Act itself. The Act is a taxing statute, creating fiscal rights and obligations. Specific and specialized remedy is provided for under the Act which caters to the possible disputes which can arise. Furthermore given that it is a taxing statute, the words of the Act must be given effect to, such that nothing is to be read into it and nothing is to be implied. The Act provides for a specific manner in which a tax liability is to be adjudicated upon, the same should be followed as there is no equity in tax and no presumption as to tax.

12. The petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.824 and 1355 of 2014 whose appeals are pending apprehend that the decisions will be based on the Kassim Textile Mills Case, hence denying them true interpretation of law, which would grant diem the benefit of Section 113(2)(c) of the Ordinance. These cases are premature and preemptive as a question of law has yet to be framed in their cases based on the facts of their case. Having gone through the rigours of two appeals, their case will ripen and it will have to be seen whether a question of law arises out of the order of the Appellate Tribunal. This is the intent of the law and the procedural form which must be followed. Given that the Ordinance specifically gives jurisdiction to this Court under section 133 to interpret a question of law, the petitioners cannot bypass the entire process and pray for an interpretation on a question of law at an earlier stage in a constitutional petition. Each case of the petitioner will be decided on its own facts and each petitioner has the opportunity to urge its case before the Commissioner Inland Revenue, then if required before the Tribunal and then ultimately if required before this Court in a reference. At this stage, neither party can urge what the question of law is or be that will arise once the Appellate Tribunal has decided the case. If the question of law is decided at this stage, the entire process given under the Ordinance becomes redundant and gives the petitioners the ability to avoid due process as provided under the Ordinance where a specific mechanism allows a case to become ripe before it can be seen whether a question of law is made out. Essentially exhaustion of the specialized remedies under the Ordinance is necessary before seeking interference from this Court.

13. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out.

I.C.A. No.1068 of 2014, decided on 29th May, 2015.

(a) Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act (XL of 1997).--

----Ss. 7(3), 12(b) & 31(4) & (5)---National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998, R.- 17(3)---Law Reforms Ordinance (XII of 1972), S. 3---Intra-court appeal---Determination of electricity tariff---Exclusive function/domain of NEPRA---Scope---Contention of Federal Government was that although tariff of electricity was determined by NEPRA, but it was finalized by the Federal Government under the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997---Validity-- Under S.7(3) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997, NEPRA had the power to determine tariff, rates, charges and other terms and conditions for supply of electric power services by the generation, transmission and distribution companies and recommend the same to the Federal Government for notification---Determination or modification of tariff was one of the core functions of NEPRA, and it could not delegate such power---Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997, and the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998, did not contemplate any role of the Federal Government in the determination process---Actual determination of tariff laid exclusively with NEPRA, meaning that if any party including the Federal Government desired any change or modification in the tariff, which could include reasons related to the prudency of costs, it would have to file a petition before NEPRA Tariff could only be determined and modified by NEPRA---Once the tariff was determined (by NEPRA) it had to be notified by the Government---Section 31(4) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 being a specific section regarding tariff, casted an obligation on the Federal Government to notify the tariff upon intimation by NEPRA---Any interpretation to the effect that NEPRA (only) recommended the tariff determined by it to the Federal Government for re-examination and review, was not only opposed to the provisions off' the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997, it also debilitated and enfeebled the role and purpose of NERPA, which was an autonomous and independent regulator under the said Act---Intra-Court appeal was allowed accordingly.

(c) Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act (XL of 1997)---

----S. 31(5)---National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998, R.17(3)---Constitution of Pakistan, Arts. 9 & 24(1)---Law Reforms Ordinance (XII of 1972), S.3 ---Intra-court appeal---Electricity tariff---Equalization surcharge---Debt Servicing Surcharge---Universal Obligation Fund Surcharge-- Neelum Jhelum Surcharge---Surcharges levied on electricity tariff by the Federal Government---Legality and Constitutionality-Involuntary extraction of money from consumers---Contention of Federal Government was that the necessity to impose the surcharges in question was that they represented the cost of the system i.e., the cost of transmission, generation and distribution of electric power consumed, and included capital and development costs for future projects to produce electricity; that the Federal Government was not raising any revenue by levying surcharges but was in fact simply recovering the cost of electricity to ensure economic and efficient generation, transmission and distribution of electricity; that surcharges (costs), over and above the tariff determined by NEPRA were constitutionally permissible and could be imposed by the Federal Government--Validity---Surcharge was an additional or extra charge on the original charge---Surcharge was supposed to be an add on or additional charge built on an existing charge---Federal Government had argued that all four surcharges (i.e. Equalization surcharge, Debt Servicing Surcharge, Universal Obligation Fund Surcharge and Neelum Jhelum Surcharge) were actually costs of the system, which were not included in the tariff determined by NEPRA---In order for such costs to qualify as a surcharge, there must first exist the original cost to which these surcharges owed their existence to---Impugned surcharges did not rest on an existing charge---NEPRA has opined that the surcharges in question did not rest on any original cost which is or was under consideration by NEPRA---NEPRA had categorically stated that it had not allowed these costs to be included in the tariff as they did not satisfy the prudency test nor were they directly related to the costs incurred for producing, transmitting or distributing electricity--- Surcharges in question represented costs which were otherwise not included or even considered in the tariff determined by NEPRA, therefore, the impugned surcharges levied by the Federal Government, even though packaged as costs of the system did not figure in the tariff determined by NEPRA---Surcharges in question were, therefore, at best an involuntary extraction of money from the consumers of electricity, labelled as costs of the system or the distribution companies by the Federal. Government---Federal Government levied surcharges in question at its own discretion with no accountability and disclosure of the amounts collected---No prescribed process was laid down under which money collected from consumers was allocated to the power producers---Mode and manner in which the money collected under the impugned surcharges was routed through different accounts maintained by different Government institutions, was not only unconstitutional but also exhibited poor financial governance and discipline, which amounted to playing a fraud on the people---Such extraction of money in the garb of surcharges from the ordinary consumer of electricity was, therefore, violative of the fundamental right to life and property of the consumers---Impugned surcharges, also had no element of quid pro quo, therefore, they could not be labelled as fees---High Court declared the impugned surcharges namely; Equalization surcharge, Debt Servicing Surcharge, Universal Obligation Fund Surcharge and Neelum Jhelum Surcharge levied from time to time through impugned notifications, as unconstitutional and hence set aside the same---High Court directed the Federal Government to refund the amount of surcharges illegally extracted from the consumers---Intra-court appeal was allowed accordingly.

(d) Taxation---

----"Tax and fee"---Distinction---Tax was a common burden for raising revenue compulsorily from the public---Tax was a compulsory extraction of money by the government for a public purpose without reference to any special benefit on the payer of the tax and the amounts collected under a tax became part of the general revenue of the government---Fee on the other hand was levied for rendering some specific service and the amount collected went towards that particular purpose---In the case of a "fee" there must be an element of quid pro quo---"Tax" and "fee" were compulsory extraction of money but the difference between the two laid in the fact that the tax was not co-related to any particular service rendered but intended to meet the expenses of the government and a "fee" was meant to compensate the government for expenses incurred in rendering services to the persons from whom the fee was collected.

(e) Constitution of Pakistan---

----Art. 77 & Fourth Schedule, Parts I & II---Federal Legislative List-- Taxation---Non-tax entries on the Federal Legislative List---Question as to whether the non-tax entries or subject specific generic entries on the Federal Legislative List included the power to taxation---Federal Legislature had the power to make laws in respect of any matter in the Federal Legislative List---Taxation had been specifically dealt with under entries 43 to 53 of Part-I of the Federal Legislative List---Part-II of the Federal Legislative List did not provide for any specific taxation---Purpose of providing specific entries for taxation (entries 43 to 53 of Part-I of the Federal Legislative List) showed that the constitutional intent was to consider "taxation" as a separate subject---Taxation, therefore, could not be read into other generic subject entries in the Federal Legislative List as it enjoyed the status of a separate and distinct subject---Such special space carved out for taxation under the Constitution also found support from Art. 77 of the Constitution which mandated that tax could only be levied under the authority of an Act of Parliament---Such authority to impose taxation had to be specifically and clearly mentioned in the Constitution---In the presence of the specific and clear entries regarding taxation under entries 43 to 53 of Part-I of the Federal Legislative List, it could not be said that the generic entries also included the power of taxation-Taxation was a specific subject and unless specifically and clearly listed in the Federal Legislative List, the power of taxation, could not be read into the general subject entries.

(f) Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric, Power Act (XL of 1997)---

----S. 31 (5)---Law Reforms Ordinance (XII of 1972), S. 3---Intra-court appeal --- Excessive delegation of power by the Legislature to the Executive---Electricity tariff---Surcharge---Power of the Executive (i.e. Federal Government) to levy surcharge on electricity tariff---Legality and Constitutionality---Section 31(5) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997, provided that "distribution company shall pay to the Federal Government such surcharge as the Federal Government, from time to time, notify in respect of each unit of electric power sold to the consumers..."---Said section did not specify the design and nature of surcharge to be imposed on the sale of the electric power; it also failed to provide legislative parameters or guidelines or legislative policy for determining the amount and nature of surcharge or the number of surcharges to be levied---Legislature has left it to the discretion of the Executive to decide what it wanted to recover and how---Power vested in the hands of the Executive (under S.31(5) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997) was unguided and uncontrolled ---Section 31(5) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997, delegated an essential legislative function to the Executive which was not permissible under the Constitution---Foundations of excessive delegation owed its genesis to the doctrine of separation of powers, which was a fundamental principle of constitutional construct-Section 31(5) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997, simply opened an unguided window and empowered the Executive to assume legislative responsibility, which offended separation of powers and fell within excessive delegation---Such unguided and unstructured delegation empowered the Executive with a power which was ex-facie discriminatory and hence not permissible under the Constitution-High Court declared S.31(5) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997, and the impugned surcharges namely; Equalization Surcharge, Debt Servicing Surcharge, Universal Obligation Fund Surcharge and Neelum Jhelum Surcharge levied from time to time through impugned notifications, as unconstitutional and hence set-aside the same, and that the Federal Government by charging unconstitutional and illegal surcharges from the consumers of electricity had been unjustly enriched---High Court directed that the Federal Government should refund the amount of surcharges illegally extracted from the consumers; that NEPRA should work out the total amount of surcharges collected from the end consumers to date and evolve a plan for the repayment of the said amount through adjustment in tariff for the benefit of the end consumer---Intra-court appeal was allowed accordingly.

(g) Taxation.--

--Imposition, administration and implementation of taxes---Legislature and Executive, powers of---Delegation of power of taxation by the Legislature to the Executive---Scope---Legislature was omnipotent in the exercise of the taxing prerogative---Whereas the right to impose taxes and to determine the circumstances under which they would be done was the privilege of the legislative power, administration of the tax law was the responsibility of the executive power---Certain limitations on the taxing power of the Legislature were self-evident-Since the power to raise taxes was a prerogative of the public authority, a Government had only the right to impose a levy in so far as it was competent to do so---Under such principle, all that was necessary was that the rights of the tax administration and the corresponding obligations of the taxpayers be specified in the law---Implementation of the tax was generally regulated by the executive power---Power to fix the rate of tax was a legislative power but if the Legislature laid down the legislative policy and provided the necessary guidelines, that power could be delegated to the Executive---Merely on the ground that the legislature had entrusted the power to alter, modify, vary the tax, a provision could not be held to be impermissible delegation provided the legislation had given its policy and the relevant Act provided sufficient guidelines.

(h) Legislature---

----Delegation of power by the Legislature---Scope---Legislature could not repose any power, essentially legislative, in another body or organ; it could not efface itself and set up a parallel legislative authority; it must exercise its judgment on vital matters of policy and enact the general principles which should be embodied in the legislation---Legislature could, however, confer upon any person or body, fit to exercise it, the power to work out details and particulars for carrying out its policy and in order to give effect to the legislation in a particular direction---Legislature could not delegate its power to make a law but it could make a law to delegate powers to determine some facts or state of things upon which the law made or intended to make its own action dependant---Where the law was flexible, having laid down broad principles of its policy, the Legislature could leave the details to be supplied by the administrator to adjust to the rapid changing circumstances.

JUDGMENT

MRS. AYESHA A. MALIK J.--Appellants and petitioners ("appellants") have challenged the constitutionality, and vires of section 31(5) of the Regulation of Generation, Transmission and Distribution of Electric Power Act, 1997 ("the Act") and the Surcharges levied thereunder. Therefore, this consolidated judgment decides the instant ICA along with connected ICAs (detailed in Schedule 'A') which call into question the judgment of the learned Single Judge dated 26-9-2014, wherein Equalization Surcharge imposed under section 31(5) of the Act was upheld and writ petitions (detailed in Schedule '13') filed after the impugned judgment, challenging all the Surcharges imposed 'under the Act. All these cases raise common questions of law and facts.

2. Appellants before this Court are consumers of electricity who have challenged the vires of section 31(5) of the Act and the following Surcharges levied from time to time since 2008 including:--
(a) Equalization Surcharge ("EQ Surcharge") (subsequently withdrawn vide Notification dated 11-10-2013;
(b) Debt Servicing Surcharge ("D&Surcharge"),
(c) Universal Obligation Fund Surcharge ("UOF Surcharge"); and
(d) Neelum Jhelum Surcharge ("NJ Surcharge")
(b) and d levied through Notifications dated 3-10-2014 and 1-11-2014, collectively referred to as the "Surcharges").

3. The impugned judgment has upheld the levy of EQ Surcharge for being a part of the tariff and that the Federal Government enjoys exclusive power to levy a surcharge under Section 31(5) of the Act. While relying on Messrs Gadoon Textile Mills and 814 others v. WAPDA and others (1997 SCMR 641) ("Gadoon Case"), the impugned judgment declared the EQ Surcharge to be a part of the tariff being cost of electricity. It also finds that the determination of the cost of electricity cannot be "intermingled" with the tariff determined by National Electric Power Regulatory Authority ("NEPRA"). With respect to the vires of section 31(5) of the Act, the impugned judgment holds that the Section neither offends the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") nor any provisions of the Act.

4. The appellants argued that this is a contradiction in terms as the competent authority under the Act to determine tariff is NEPRA and section 31(5) of the Act allows the Federal Government to levy a surcharge independent of any tariff determination made by NEPRA. The basic issue as argued by the learned counsel for the appellants is the competence of the Federal Government: to levy surcharge without any determination from NEPRA given that NEPRA enjoys exclusive power to determine the tariff. It is their case that the Surcharges are unconstitutional as they are compulsory extraction of money from the consumers. The levy of the surcharge has been delegated to the executive without any guidelines, which renders it illegal and contrary to the constitutional mandate.

5. The appellants have argued that determination of tariff is the exclusive function of NEPRA under the Act and once the tariff is determined by NEPRA as per the Act and the National Electric Power Regulatory Authority (Tariff Standards and Procedure) Rules, 1998 ("Tariff Rules"), the imposition of surcharge over and above the tariff, so determined, defeats the independence and autonomy of NEPRA. It also impairs the right to life, property and fair determination of tariff thereby offending Articles 9, WA, 23 and 24 of the Constitution besides the principles of economic and social justice. It is their case that NEPRA is the regulatory authority which was established to regulate the power sector and for the specialized function of tariff determination. 1 Section 31(5) of the Act allows the Federal Government to bypass the entire process of tariff determination and impose costs which have not been placed before NEPRA and do not conform to the standards and guidelines issued by NEPRA for tariff determination. The appellants argued that the entire purpose and function of NEPRA is defeated when the. Federal Government levies a surcharge and deems it as a cost without any scrutiny from the regulator or under the tariff determination process. This according to them amounts to regulatory capture. They submitted that the imposition of. Surcharges, considered to be cost incurred by the distribution companies, is in effect compulsory extraction of money, which is not permissible under the Constitution. It was also argued that section 31(5) of the Act amounts to excessive delegation of power to the executive resulting in unguided exercise of power which is also unconstitutional. The appellants argued that the Surcharges have been levied to collect revenue from the consumers to meet costs generated due to inefficiency and financial defaults of the Government, theft and line losses in the power sector and related issues. Instead of addressing the faults and gaps in the system, the Federal Government is bridging the deficit by recovering it under the garb of costs of the system from the consumers. It is their case that the Federal Government has failed in its obligation to provide electricity and has placed an unfair burden on the consumers. This amounts to extortion of money from the public which is illegal and violative of the fundamental rights of the consumers of electricity.

6. Learned Counsel for the Federal Government argued that section 31(5) of the Act has been introduced to harmonize the electricity tariff across the country between different distribution companies. The necessity to impose the Surcharges is that they represent the cost of the system i.e., the cost of transmission generation and distribution of electric power consumed and includes capital and development costs for future projects to produce electricity. Learned counsel argued that the Surcharges are aimed at ensuring affordable supply of electricity and stability in the power sector. It is contended that Federal Government is not bound to issue the tariff as determined by NEPRA as it has a constitutional duty to ensure social justice and of providing the basic utility of electricity at an affordable price. Relying on Gadoon's Case they argued that Surcharges (costs), over and above the tariff are constitutionally permissible and can be imposed by the Federal Government. It is their case that the Federal Government is not raising any revenue by levying Surcharges but in fact simply recovering the cost of electricity to ensure economic and efficient generation, transmission and distribution of electricity.

7. Learned Counsel for NEPRA argued that NEPRA did not recommend the levy of any surcharge challenged before this Court. He contented that Surcharges were levied by the Federal Government without any determination from NEPRA. The only surcharge, NEPRA has determined is late payment surcharge, which is a payment to be made by the consumers over and above the tariff, in case of late payment of the electricity bill.

8. Report and parawise comments have also been filed by the National Transmission and Dispatch Company ("NTDC") and Central Power Purchasing Agency ("CPPA") which state that NEPRA determines tariff rates and charges for its licensees and there is no provision under the Act where NEPRA can determine a cost related to the overall system as they only consider cost in terms of their own regulated standards and procedures. The comments further state that the Government has to ensure sustainability of the power sector and has, therefore, levied Surcharges covering costs which are incurred by the system but are not regulated by NEPRA. The role of NTDC and CPPA is to make payments to the producers of electricity. The amounts received by NTDC/CPPA are subject to audit by the Auditor General of Pakistan. Nothing has been concealed and amounts collected are duly notified by the Government. It has also stated that NTDC/CPPA do not maintain any escrow account but on the other hand have opened specific accounts in its name for payments to be made to the generation companies.

9. Pakistan Electric Power Company ("PEPCO"), in its written comments, supports the stance of the Federal Government. Learned Deputy Attorneys General explained that the, Federal Government has the executive authority to levy the surcharge as it has executive authority over all matters contained in the Federal Legislative List ("FLL") and Electricity falls in Part II, Item 4 of the FLL. The Chief Executive Officer of PEPCO also appeared before the Court to explain the role of PEPCO with reference to the Surcharges. He submitted that PEPCO essentially allocates all the amounts recovered as Surcharges amongst the generation companies.

10. M/s. Khaleeq-uz-Zaman, Waqqas Ahmad Mir, and Wasee-ul -Hasnain Naqvee, Advocates were appointed as amici curiae who submitted that tariff determination is the exclusive function of NEPRA in exercise of the powers conferred under section 7(3)(a) of the Act, read with the Tariff Rules. NEPRA determines tariff after following an elaborate procedure in which costs are claimed by the relevant licensees and are determined by NEPRA on the basis of prudency. Tariff is an all inclusive determination which is issued by NEPRA after careful consideration of numerous factors and all costs prudently incurred by licensees to meet the demonstrated needs of their customers. In this entire process the Federal Government can at best require NEPRA to reconsider the tariff but it cannot impose extraneous costs on the tariff. They submitted that the Surcharges, unless determined by NEPRA as a part of tariff, amounts to unlawful extraction of money from the consumer as it has no nexus with the tariff or electricity consumed and therefore places an unfair burden on the consumer. In their opinion the Surcharges are unconstitutional because the Constitution does not allow the Federal Government to arbitrarily impose surcharges and recover its own costs from the consumer. They argued that the Surcharges do not constitute tax because the money collected instead of being deposited into the Federal Consolidated Fund is being routed to different accounts maintained by various institutions to meet the financial requirements of the Federal Government, hence this extraction of money does not pass for a tax and is, therefore, an impermissible levy which cannot be allowed to stand.

Overview of the Power Sector

11. Prior to 1997 electricity was produced, transmitted and distributed to end consumers by the Water and Power Development Authority ("WAPDA") under WAPDA Act, 1958 and Electricity Act, 1910. Thereafter, the entire power sector went through a major restructuring which resulted in the creation of generation companies, a transmission company and nine distribution companies. Generation companies ("GENCOs") include hydropower projects owned by WAPDA, thermal power projects, nuclear power projects, Independent Power Producers ("IPPs") and industrial units with surplus power generation. NTDC is the transmission company. The nine distribution companies are Faisalabad Electric Supply Company ("FESCO"), Gujranwala Electric Supply Company ("GEPCO"), Hyderabad Electric Supply Company ("HESCO"), Islamabad Electric Supply Company ("IESCO"), Lahore Electric Supply Company ("LESCO"), Multan Electric Supply Company ("MEPCO"), Rawalpindi Electric Supply Company ("RESCO"), Quetta Electric Supply Company ("QESCO") and Sukkar Electric Supply Company ("SESCO"), (collectively referred to as "DISCOs").

12. NEPRA is established under Section 3 of the Act and is referred to as the Authority under the Act. It comprises of five members including a Chairman and four members, one from each Province, all appointed by the Federal Government. NEPRA was established to regulate the generation, transmission and distribution of electric power and matters related thereto. The main functions attributed to NEPRA are the issuance of licenses for generation, transmission and distribution of electric power; the establishment and enforcement of standards to ensure quality and safety in the service of electric power to consumers; and to determine tariff for generation, transmission and distribution of electric power. Essentially NEPRA regulates the power sector to ensure coordinated, reliable and adequate supply of electric power. In doing so, NEPRA is mandated to protect the interest of the consumers and the investors. In terms of Section 7(6) of the Act, in performing its functions NEPRA, as far as practicable, must protect the interest of consumers and the companies providing electric power services in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the guidelines provided by the Federal Government. Section 7 of the Act provides that NEPR A shall determine tariff, rates, charges and other terms and conditions for supply of electric power services and recommend the tariff to the Federal Government for notification.

13. The Electricity Cycle entails electricity being produced by the GENCOs, transmitted across the country through NTDC and distributed to the end consumers by the DISCOs. The consumer pays the cost of electricity to the DISCOs, which then pay the cost of generating and transmitting electricity to NTDC. NTDC is the exclusive company engaged in the business of transmission of electric power through the 500 KV, 220 KV and 132 KV transmission lines. The entire process of making payments to generation companies on behalf of DISCOs for supply of electricity through the network is routed through NTDC, which in turn, has set up CPPA to make payments against the invoices raised by the GENCOs.

14. The Government issues its power policies from time to time to set out its vision and guidelines for the power sector. The National Power Policy, 1998 set out the role of NEPRA as an autonomous regulatory authority to promote the establishment of a competitive and efficient power sector while safeguarding the interests of electricity consumers and power sector investments. The Policy states that NEPRA is to determine the tariff and also set guidelines for tariff determination. In terms thereof tariff has two main components; capacity and energy. Tariff also includes prudent costs related to generation, transmission and distribution of electric power as determined by NEPRA. Under the Policy for Power Generation Projects, 2002, NEPRA was again seen as a friendly regulator to protect the interests of consumers and companies providing electric power in line with the guidelines provided by the Federal Government. In terms of the National Power Policy, 2013 issued by the Government of Pakistan, NEPRA was to be strengthened to create a world class regulatory authority with sophisticated and efficient capacity to establish tariffs and set the foundation for a competitive bidding process. The Policy recognizes that tariff rationalization will minimize or eliminate subsidy within the industrial, commercial and bulk consumers. One of the short term objectives set out in this Policy is to harmonize the electricity capacity by rationalizing the tariff. The cost of power generation is to be reduced and efficiency of power generation, transmission and distribution to be increased. The Government of Pakistan also issued the National Power Tariff and Subsidy Policy Guidelines, 2014 with respect to electricity prices and cost allocation so that policy makers, planners, companies, regulators and customers have a concrete picture of the steps required to achieve a sustainable power sector for the country. The policies show that NEPRA is an independent and autonomous regulator of the power sector and enjoys the exclusive responsibility of determining tariff.

Scope and Meaning of Tariff

15. Tariff is defined under. Rule 2(m) of the Tariff Rules to mean: the rates, charges, terms and conditions for generation of electric power, transmission, inter-connection, distribution services and sales of electric power to consumer by a licensee.

Section 7 of the Act provides for the powers and functions of the Authority and vests exclusive responsibility with NEPRA to determine tariff. The Section is reproduced hereunder for ready reference:--

(1) The Authority shall be exclusively responsible for regulating the provision of electric power services.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, only the Authority, subject to the provisions in subsection (4), shall -

(a) grant licences for generation, transmission and distribution of electric power;

(b) prescribe procedures and standards for investment programmes by generation, transmission and distribution companies;

(c) prescribe and enforce performance standards for generation, transmission and distribution companies;

(d) establish a uniform system of accounts by generation, transmission and distribution companies;

(e) prescribe fees including fees for grant of licences and renewal thereof;

(f) prescribe fines for contravention of the provisions of this Act;

(g) review its orders, decision or determinations;

(h) settle disputes between the licensees;

(i) issue guidelines and standards operating procedures; and

(j) perform any other function which is incidental or consequential to any of the aforesaid functions.

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (2) and without prejudice to the generality of the power conferred by subsection (1) the Authority shall

(a) determine tariff, rates, charges and other, terms and conditions for supply of electric power services by the generation, transmission and distribution companies and recommend to the Federal Government for notification;

(b) review organizational affairs of generation, transmission and distribution companies to avoid any adverse effect on the operation of electric power services and for continuous and efficient supply of such services;

(c) encourage uniform industry standards and code of conduct for generation, transmission and distribution companies;

(d) tender advice to public sector projects;
(e) submit reports to the Federal Government in respect of activities of generation, transmission and distribution companies; and
(f) perform any other function which is incidental or consequential to any of the aforesaid functions.
(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, the Government of a Province may construct power houses and grid stations and lay transmission lines for use within the Province and determine the tariff for distribution of electricity within the Province.
(5) Before approving the tariff for the supply of electric power by generation companies using hydro-electric plants, the Authority shall consider the, recommendations of the Government of the Province in which such generation facility is located.
(6) In performing its functions under this Act, the Authority shall, as far as practicable, protect the interests of consumers and companies providing electric power services in accordance with guidelines, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, laid down by the Federal Government." [Emphasis added]
In terms of section 7(1) of the Act, NEPRA is exclusively responsible for providing electric power services, which means the generation, transmission or distribution of electric power and all other services incidental thereto [section 2(x)] section 7(3)(a) requires NEPRA to determine tariff, rates, charges and other terms and conditions for the supply of electric power services by the generation, transmission and distribution companies and recommend the same to the Federal Government. Section 31 of the Act pr. vides that NEPRA shall determine and prescribe the procedures and 'standards for determination, modification or revising rates, charges and terms and conditions for generation of electric power, transmission, inter-connection, distribution services and power services to consumers. The required standards and procedures are set out in the Tariff Rules. In terms thereof any licensee, consumer, or person interested in tariff can file a petition with NEPRA for its determination. The Tariff Rules sets out the procedure to be followed for tariff determination and Part III of the Tariff Rules provide the Standards and Guidelines which are applied when tariff is determined. In terms of Rule 17, NEPRA can issue standards and guidelines from time to time, and can modify, amend or revoke the same. Rule 17(3) sets out the applicable standards currently followed by NEPRA. Since NEPRA determines the tariff for generation, transmission and distribution companies, the petitions are filed by each licensee, separately. The generation tariff is determined for the term of the Power Purchase Agreement executed with the Federal Government, which is reflective of the life of the power project. The tariff is determined at the inception of the project and thereafter monthly adjustments are made by NEPRA to cater for the fuel cost as contemplated under section 31(4) of the Act. Transmission and distribution tariff is determined on an annual basis and is also subject to monthly adjustments under section 31(4) of the Act.

16. NEPRA hears the petitions in terms of the Act and the Tariff Rules and issues its rulings. Under Rule 16(2), a petition is to be decided within four months of the date of its admission. In the event that the tariff requires recalculation a party may move NEPRA for its recalculation and adjustment. NEPRA can also be petitioned for review of the tariff by a party or by the Federal Government. Once the tariff is finalized it has to be notified by the Federal Government in the official gazette and becomes effective on the issuance of the notification. However, the monthly adjustments are notified by NEPRA.

17. Under Rule 17(3)(i) of the Tariff Rules, the tariff should allow the recovery of all costs prudently incurred.

17. Standards and guidelines:

(3) Tariffs shall be determined, modified or revised on the basis of and in accordance with the following standards, namely:-

(i) tariffs should allow licensees the recovery of any and all costs prudently incurred to meet the demonstrated needs of their customers, provided that, assessments of licensees, prudence may not be required where tariffs are set on other than cost - of - service basis, such as formula-based tariffs that are designed to be- in place for more than one years;" [emphasis added]

The term cost is not defined anywhere in the Act or the Tariff Rules, however, NEPRA has developed a prudency test against which the costs are considered. The Federal Government has justified the Surcharges for being a cost of the system which means the actual cost incurred in the generation, transmission and distribution of electricity and includes future costs for development and costs related to the growth of the system. They have also explained that all costs are directly related to the tariff determined by NEPRA but they were never placed before NEPRA for determination. It is the case of the Federal Government that they are fully competent to levy surcharge on the tariff because they finalize the tariffs. According to them, while NEPRA determines the tariff, its finalization is dependent upon the approval and consequent notification issued by the Federal Government. They argued that the Federal Government has to take into consideration many social and economic conditions related to the power sector and the different classes of consumers. The Government also takes into consideration factors which NEPRA cannot look into as per its standards and guidelines and also has to consider the over-all sector, its stability and growth. In this way the Federal Government can recover the cost of the system in the form of a surcharge on the tariff.

The Nature of the Surcharges

18. Before examining the legality and constitutionality of the Surcharges, it is necessary to first understand the nature of the levy. According to the Federal Government, the justification of the Surcharges is as follows:

UOF Surcharge

The surcharge was levied to maintain a uniform tariff which is based on socio economic objective and related budgetary targets, approved by the Council of Common Interest ("CCI") and Economic Coordination Committee of Cabinet ("ECC"). The amounts collected under this head are deposited into an account titled Universal Obligation Fund maintained with CPPA. The distribution company sends its demand to the CPPA against its invoice. The demand is forwarded to PEPCO which then allocates amounts amongst the DISCOs. CPPA then releases the funds to the GENCOs as per PEPCO's allocation.

DS Surcharge

This surcharge is levied to service the mark up due to the IPPs. The Federal Government has explained that due to law and order situation, administrative and regulatory reasons and lack of consumer discipline, there has been a deficiency in the recovery of dues for supply of electric power. This caused a financial crunch and delayed payments to the IPPs. In order to resolve the matter and meet the financial requirements, the power producers were constrained to obtain funding from commercial banks to prevent the encashment of the sovereign guarantees. The DS Surcharge has been imposed to meet the mark up and late payment component of these loans. The amounts collected under this head are deposited into an account maintained with the CPPA and paid to the Federal Government for amounts paid to the IPPs.

NJ Surcharge

The Government of Pakistan is in the process of building the Neelum Jhelum Hydropower Project with an installed capacity of 969 MW in Azad Jammu and Kashmir by WAPDA through the Neelum Jhelum Hydro Company which is wholly owned by WAPDA. The surcharge collected under this head is deposited in a Fund called `Neelum Jhelum Development Fund" for use in the Neelum Jhelum Hydro Power Project.

EQ Surcharge

This surcharge is essentially an inter DISCO subsidy. Since the Government seeks to maintain a uniform tariff, the EQ Surcharge balances the cost profile of different DISCOs. The amounts collected under this head were deposited in an escrow account maintained by the CPPA for exclusive use for discharging the liabilities of the DISCOs.

19. In terms of the explanation provided by the Federal Government the Surcharges are a recovery of different costs of the power sector. It is their case that the imposition and- collection of the Surcharges directly relate to the cost of electricity and is being imposed as an additional charge on the original cost of electricity. During the course of arguments, Mr. Munawar us Salam, Advocate explained that the Surcharges are aimed at ensuring economic efficiency in the supply of electricity and stability of the power sector. Learned counsel stated that the Surcharges are in line with the policy guidelines set by the CCI and the ECC.

OPINION OF THE COURT

20. In order to examine the constitutionality of Section 31(5) of the Act and the legality of the impugned Surcharges, it is useful to first understand the role of NEPRA and the nature of the Surcharges.

Tariff Determination - sole prerogative of NEPRA

21. Under section 7 of the Act, NEPRA is exclusively responsible for regulating "electric power services" i.e., the generation, transmission or distribution of electric power and all other services incidental thereto [section 2(x)]. Under section 7(3)

NEPRA shall determine tariff, rates, charges and other terms and conditions for supply of electric power services by the generation, transmission and distribution companies and recommend to the Federal Government for notification. Determination is one of the core functions of NEPRA, as is evident from Section 12(b), which shows that NEPRA cannot delegate the power to determine or modify tariff. Section 31 (1) provides that NEPRA shall determine and prescribe procedures and standards for determination of tariff. The purpose of tariff determination is to eliminate exploitation and minimize economic distortions [section 31(2)(f)]. Notification of NEPRA's approved tariff for supply of electric power services by generation, transmission and distribution companies shall be made in the official gazette by the Federal Government upon intimation by NEPRA.

22. Collective reading of the above provisions of the Act reveals that the tariff can only be determined and modified by NEPRA. Once the tariff is determined it has to be notified by the Government. Section 31(4) being a specific section regarding Tariff, casts an obligation on the- Federal Government to notify the tariff upon intimation by NEPRA. The word "recommendation" in section 7(3) of the Act has to be read with section 31(4) and is in the nature of an intimation or request to the Federal Government to notify the tariff. The recommendation to the Federal Government under section 7(3) is only to notify the tariff. It is not that the tariff determined by NEPRA is being recommended to the Federal Government for re-examination and review. Any such interpretation is not only opposed to the provisions of the Act it debilitates and enfeebles the role and purpose of NERPA, which is an autonomous and independent regulator under the Act.

23. Further, the proviso to Section 31(4) of the Act states that the Federal Government can require NEPRA to re-consider its tariff determination and NEPRA shall provide its reconsidered determination within fifteen days. Therefore, the Federal Government at best can request NEPRA to reconsider the tariff determined and no more. The actual determination of tariff lies exclusively with NEPRA. This means that if any party including the Federal Government desires any change or modification in the tariff, which can include reasons related to the prudency of costs, it will have to file a petition before NEPRA. The Act and the Tariff Rules do not contemplate any role of the Federal Government in this determination process. This is also in line with the Power Policies issued by the Government from time to time, where NEPRA is seen as a front line regulator, as well as, a specialized forum where tariff is determined. The contention that the tariff is finalized by the Federal Government under the Act is totally misconceived and not supported by any provisions of the Act.

24. The specific role of NEPRA to determine tariff has a constitutional underpinning. Electricity is a basic utility and has a direct link with the livelihood and quality of life of the people. Tariff determination of this basic utility, therefore, assumes constitutional importance and touches upon the fundamental rights of the people. The legislative wisdom behind establishing an exclusive authority (NEPRA) for determination of tariff structured on provincial representation meets the constitutional value of cooperative federalism. This thought is also echoed elsewhere in the Constitution, where common interests of the Federation are safeguarded by setting up a Council for Common Interests [Articles 153 and 154] which is headed by the Prime Minister and consists of the Chief Ministers of the Provinces and three members from the Federal Government. Similarly, NEPRA has a Chairman and four Members, each Member representing the four Provinces. Constitution mandates that institutions that are regulated by CCI and owe their genesis to Part-II of the FLL, must have a federative character, watching the common interests of all the Provinces and by functioning in an inclusive and collaborative manner. NEPRA is one such institution, which microcosmically reflects this constitutional ethos.

Meaning and validity of the Surcharges

25. The word "Surcharge" is an additional sum added to the usual cost and signifies an addition to an already existing charge.' The levy of 1 a surcharge has come up before the superior courts in several cases. In Gadoon's Case, WAPDA levied a surcharge on the tariff at the rate of 2.5% on the supply charge in the electricity bill. An additional surcharge of 10% for late payment of bill was also levied. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that mere nomenclature is not the decisive factor in determining the nature and meaning 'of the levy and the Court must consider the attending factors and circumstances of the case, the reality involved in it, the conduct of the parties, the manner and object of the levy and then decide what in effect the levy is.. The Court held that the word surcharge has to be construed in the context in which it is used.

26. In terms of the pronouncement of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan to appreciate the nature of the surcharge, it is necessary to understand the original charge, as the surcharge is an additional or extra charge on the original charge. In Gadoon's Case, the impugned surcharge was upheld because the surcharge was found, to be a part of the tariff. WAPDA wanted to increase the tariff so it imposed the surcharges. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan 'found -that since WAPDA was competent to determine the tariff for the' supply of electricity, WAPDA could, therefore, also enhance the tariff by imposing a surcharge. The Court held that the surcharge levied wag a part of the tariff and therefore its nomenclature was of little significance. The Court found that since the original charge was the tariff determined by WAPDA, it was well within the power of WAPDA to increase the tariff through a surcharge.

27. In Sohail Jute Mills Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Finance and others (PLD 1991 SC 329), the levy of iqra surcharge by the Federal Government on imported goods was challenged. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan found that since the iqra surcharge was an additional customs duty imposed on the existing customs duty, it was legal. Therefore, a surcharge, is a levy which is over and above an existing charge and not an independent levy.

28. In The Treasurer of Charitable Endowments for Pakistan v. Central Board of Revenue and 2 others (1986 MLD 1731) the levy of flood relief surcharge was challenged. A Division Bench of the Sindh High Court found that the flood relief surcharge was an additional excise duty leviable on the production of sugar. The court held that surcharge means something additional or in excess of. Since the original charge was the excise duty levied by the Central Board of Revenue, the flood relief surcharge was in fact an additional excise duty on the existing excise duty. Hence the flood relief surcharge was upheld.

29. In Sheikh Nadeem Younas, Chief Executive, Noble Textile Mills, Pattoki, District Kasur v. WAPDA through Chairman WAPDA, WAPDA House, Lahore and 4 others (1996 CLC 1090), a Division Bench of this Court held that WAPDA fixed the tariff and thereafter imposed a surcharge at the rate of 2.5% of the tariff which was then increased up to 10.4% vide different notifications. An additional surcharge was levied which was further increased by subsequent notifications. The argument advanced in this case was that surcharge and additional charge was a tax and not a part of the tariff, hence could not have been imposed by WAPDA. It was argued that the surcharge is a tax which can only be levied through an act of Parliament. The court held that the surcharge was appendage to the tariff of the electricity consumed and therefore WAPDA could increase the tariff by way of a surcharge and an additional surcharge.

30. In the instant cases, the respondents have argued that all four Surcharges are actually costs of the system, which are not included in the tariff determined by NEPRA. In order for the costs to qualify as a surcharge according to the jurisprudence discussed above, there must first exist the original cost to which these Surcharges owe their existence to.

31. The DS Surcharge, services the mark up and late payment surcharge for the benefit of the Government of Pakistan. When payments by CPPA are delayed to the IPPs, the IPPs charge mark-up pursuant to their Power Purchase Agreements. This mark up is paid by the Government through the levy of the DS Surcharge, which is collected from the consumer by the distribution companies and deposited with the NTDC and finally paid to the IPPs by being routed through the CPPA.1 This stands established by the statement of the Government that it has made payments of approximately Rs.146 billion as mark up to the IPPs. Admittedly this cost is not included in the tariff nor considered by NEPRA as a prudent cost.

32. Universal Obligation Fund Surcharge and the Equalisation Surcharge according to the Federal Government is to impose a tariff that is uniform on all consumers in all regions. Therefore, for a particular type of consumer(s), in order to ensure uniformity in the tariff, the Federal Government allows a subsidy by committing to make payment of the unpaid amount under the determined tariff. The Federal Government notifies NEPRA's approved-tariff but instructs for a certain category of consumers to be charged less than that determined by NEPRA. Consequently only a portion of the tariff determined by NEPRA is paid by, the consumer, and the difference (in the amount paid by the consumers and the tariff determined by NEPRA) is paid by the Federal Government as a subsidy. The UOF Surcharge recovers for the Federal Government all amounts paid by it in the form of a subsidy. The respondents have justified these Surcharges on the ground that even after its levy the Federal Government does not exceed the approved tariff determined by NEPRA, hence nothing extra is being charged from the consumer. In effect, the amount of subsidy, intended to politically project a people friendly image of the government, is immediately recovered, through financial gimmickry in the shape of Universal Obligation Fund Surcharge and the Equalisation Surcharge which has no legs or legal justification to stand on.

33. As to the NJ Surcharge it has been imposed to meet the capital cost for the construction of the Neelum Jhelum Hydro Power Project. The surcharge collected from the consumers is paid to a company engaged in the construction and development of the project. It has no direct relation or nexus with the unit of electricity consumed. It is money collected for the purposes of construction and development of the Neelum Jhelum Dam which has yet to be completed. Again there is no original cost (regarding tariff) on the basis of which this cost has been added on as a surcharge.

34. It has been repeatedly stated before us that the Surcharges represent the cost of electricity which are not included in the costs allowed by NEPRA. As explained by Mr. Khalique-uz-Zaman and Mr.Wasee ul Hassnain Naqvi, Advocates/Amici Curiae, NEPRA disallows all costs which are unjustified and a burden on the consumers. In their opinion the Surcharges do not rest on any original cost which is or was under consideration by NEPRA. This statement is not denied by the Federal Government who admit and accept that the Surcharges represent costs which are otherwise not included or even considered in the tariff determined by NEPRA. Therefore, the impugned Surcharges levied by the Federal Government, even though packaged as costs of the system do not figure in the tariff determined by NEPRA. Surcharge is supposed to be an add on or additional charge built on an existing charge. The impugned Surcharges do not rest on an existing charge. The constitutionality and legality of these Surcharges will be examined hereunder in this background.

35. The fundamental question before us is the constitutional vires of Section 31(5) of the Act and the constitutionality and legality of the surcharges imposed thereunder. Section 31(5) is reproduced hereunder for convenience:.

31. Tariff (1).-- As soon as maybe, but not later than six months from the commencement of this Act, the Authority shall determine and prescribe procedures and standards for determination, modification or revision of rates, charges and terms and conditions for generation of electric power, transmission, inter-connection, distribution services and power sales to consumers by licensees and until such procedures and standards are prescribed, the Authority shall determine, modify or revise such rates, charges and terms and conditions in accordance with the directions issued by the Federal Government.

(2) The Authority while determining the standards referred to in subsection (1) shall
(a) protect consumers against monopolistic and oligopolistic prices;
(b) keep in view the research, development , and capital investment programme costs of licensees;
(c) encourage efficiency in licensees operations and quality of service;
(d) encourage economic efficiency in the electric power industry;
(e) keep in view the economic and social-policy objectives of the Federal Government; and
(f) determine tariffs so as to eliminate exploitation and minimize economic distortions.
(3) The procedures established under sub-section (1) shall include
(a) time frame for decisions by the Authority on tariff applications;
(b) opportunity for customers and other interested parties to participate meaningfully in the tariff approval process; and
(c) protect-ion for refund, if any, to customers while tariff decisions are pending.
(4) Notification of the Authority's approved tariff, rates, charges, and other terms and conditions for the supply of electric power services by generation, transmission and distribution companies shall be made, in the official Gazette, by the Federal Government upon intimation by the Authority:
Provided that the Federal Government may, as soon as may be, but not later than fifteen days of receipt of the Authority's intimation, require the Authority to reconsider its determination of such tariff, rates, charges and other terms and conditions. Whereupon the Authority shall, within fifteen days, determine these anew after re-consideration and intimate the same to the Federal Government;
Provided further that the Authority may, on a monthly basis and not later than a period of seven days, make adjustments in the approved tariff on account of, any variations in the fuel charges and, policy guidelines as the Federal Government may issue and, notify the tariff so adjusted in the official Gazette.
(5) Each distribution company shall pay to the Federal Government such surcharge as the Federal Government, from time to time, notify in respect of each unit of electric power sold to the consumers and any amount paid under this subsection shall be considered as a cost incurred by the distribution company to be included in the tariff determined by the Authority.
The Federal Government has taken pains to argue that Section 31(5) of the Act actually levies costs of the system which are packaged and labelled as Equalization Surcharge, Debt Servicing Surcharge, Universal Obligation Fund Surcharge and Neelum Jhelum Surcharge. NEPRA has categorically stated that it has not allowed these costs to be included in the tariff as they do not satisfy the prudency test nor are they directly I related to the costs incurred for producing, transmitting or distributing electricity. Surcharges are, therefore, at best an involuntary extraction of money from the consumers of electricity, labelled as costs of the system or the distribution companies by the Federal Government. The question before us is to first determine the nature of this involuntary extraction of money from the public and then judge its constitutionality and legality.

36. Under the Constitution, the only recognized mode of involuntary extraction of money from the people is through "Taxation" and another close variant is the levy of "Fee" where, the government charges for rendering a service in return. In. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary M/o Petroleum and Natural Resources and another v. Durrani Ceramics and others (2014 SCMR 1630) it has been held that "where the levy is extracted for public purpose, the imposition will be treated as a tax. Tax is a common burden for raising revenue compulsorily from the public." Tax is a compulsory extraction of money by the government for a public purpose without reference to any special benefit on the payer of the tax and the amounts collected under a tax become part of the general revenue of the government. A fee on the other hand is levied for rendering some specific service and the amount collected goes towards that particular purpose. In the case of a fee there must be an element of quid pro quo. In Collector of Customs and others v. Sheikh Spinning Mills (1999 SCMR 1402) it has been held that tax and fee are. compulsory extraction of money but the difference between the two lies in the fact that the tax is not co-related to any particular service rendered but intended to meet the expenses of the government and a fee is meant to compensate the government for expenses incurred in rendering services to the persons from whom the fee is collected.

37. Articles 77 and 142 read with the relevant entries in Part-I of the Federal Legislative List ("FLL") of the Constitution provide the legislative competence of the Federal Legislature in matters of taxation. Entries 43 to 53 of Part-I of the FLL deal with Taxation i.e., taxes on income, corporations, sales, capital value, mineral oil, natural gas and minerals used in generation of energy, on production capacity of any plant and terminal taxes on goods and passengers. Competence of the Federal Legislature to impose fee is provided under entry 54 of Part-I and entry 15 of Part-II of the FLL, which provides for the levy of "fees in respect of any matters in this Part." There is no other mechanism under the Constitution to charge money from the public. In the present context, the Surcharges, in pith and substance, are involuntary extraction of money and it matters less what name they carry.

38. Another aspect of this levy is the manner in which the amounts recovered are being spent. Interestingly, the amounts recovered are parked in different escrow/special accounts and then forwarded to CPPA for onward distribution amongst the GENCOs and to the Neelum Jhelum Company. This means that the recovered amounts are not placed in the Federal Consolidated Fund as prescribed by the Constitution as per Article 78 of the Constitution.

39. What is of concern here is the fact that the Federal Government levies Surcharges at its own discretion with no accountability and disclosure of the amounts collected. All Surcharges go into different accounts and from these accounts the money is routed to CPPA, which releases the payment to PEPCO for payments to the GENCOs. PEPCO having no mandate to do so under its Memorandum of Association releases the funds totally at its discretion. There is no prescribed process under which money collected from consumers is allocated to the power producers. PEPCO as a private limited company whose object as per its Memorandum of Association is to act as a managing agent of WAPDA for the purposes of restructuring WAPDA is managing the revenue collected by the Federal Government under the impugned Surcharges. This self-prescribed role of PEPCO does not find any sanctity in the law or under the Constitution. The mode and manner in which the money collected under the impugned Surcharges is routed through different accounts maintained by different institutions, is not only unconstitutional but also exhibits poor financial governance and discipline, which amounts to playing a fraud on the people. This extraction of money in the garb of Surcharges from the ordinary consumer of electricity is, therefore, violative of the fundamental right to life and property of the consumers.

40. The impugned Surcharges, have no element of quid pro quo, therefore, they cannot be labelled as Fees. With respect to the NJ Surcharge, it could be argued, that there is an element of quid pro quo. However, even if this was the argument, the said Surcharge could not be levied by way of a Money Bill. It is an admitted position that section 31(5) was introduced through Finance Act, 2008 and, therefore, passes for a money bill. Reliance is placed on E.P.C.T. (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Federation of Pakistan, etc [2011 PTD 2643]. Even otherwise, the NJ Surcharge seeks to recover amounts for contribution in the capital costs for the construction of the Neelum Jehlum Dam. Since there is no immediate service being provided as the dam has yet to be constructed even the quid pro quo element of this surcharge is questionable. Hence NJ Surcharge cannot be construed as a Fee.

41. Without further deliberating on the question, whether the present surcharge is truly a tax or some hybrid extraction of money which has no constitutional permissibility or recognition, we proceed further assuming that the surcharge is a tax. This requires us to answer two questions: (a) Whether the Federal legislature is competent to impose the impugned Surcharges through section 31(5) of the Act? and (b) Whether section 31(5) of the Act suffers from excessive delegation, whereby the legislature has surrendered its essential legislative function and policy to the Executive ?

42. In response to the first question the Federal Government has argued that the Surcharges are costs and are imposed under the head `Electricity' (entry 4 of Part-II of the FLL). We have already discussed above that the Constitution does not recognize any involuntary extraction of money other than tax. So what needs to be examined is whetherin-tax entries or subject specific generic entries of the FLL include the power of taxation.

43. Closer review of the FLL shows that the Federal Legislature has the power to make laws in respect of any matter in the FLL. Taxation has been specifically dealt with under entries 43 to 53 of Part-I of the FLL and deals with the following taxes:

43. Duties of customs, including export duties.

44. Duties of excise, including duties on salt, but not including duties on alcoholic, liquors, opium and other narcotics.

45. Deleted

46. Deleted

47. Taxes on income other than agricultural income.

48. Taxes on corporations.

49. Taxes on the sales and purchases of goods imported, exported, produced, manufactured or consumed [except sales tax on services.]]

50. Taxes on the capital value of the assets, not including taxes on immovable property.

51. Taxes on mineral oil, natural gas and minerals for use in generation of nuclear energy.

52. Taxes and duties on the production capacity of any plant, machinery, undertaking, establishment or installation in lieu of the taxes and duties specified in entries 44, 47, 48 and 49 or in lieu of any one or more of them.

53. Terminal taxes on goods, or passengers carried by railway, sea or air; taxes on their fares and freights.

Part-II does not provide for any specific taxation. The purpose of providing specific entries for taxation shows that the constitutional intent is to consider "taxation" as a separate subject and takes it to be at par with other subjects. Taxation, therethre, cannot be read into other generic subject entries as it enjoys the status of a separate and distinct subject. This special space carved out for taxation under the Constitution also finds support from Article 77 of the Constitution which mandates that tax can only be levied under the authority of an Act of Parliament. This authority to impose taxation has to be specifically and clearly mentioned in the Constitution. In the presence of the specific and clear entries regarding taxation under items Nos.43 to 53 of the FLL, it cannot be said that the generic entries also include the power of taxation. This view finds support from State of W.B. and another v. Kesoram Industries Ltd. and others [(2004 (10) SCC 201], where a five member bench of the Indian Supreme Court held that "[taxation is not intended to be comprised in the main subject in which it might on an extended construction be regarded as included, but is treated as a distinct matter for purposes of legislative competence2." In Southern Petrochemical Industries Co. Ltd. v. Electricity Inspector and E.T.1.0 and others [2007(5) SCC 447] Indian Supreme Court emphasised that "[A] clear distinction is provided for in the scheme of the lists of the Seventh Schedule between the general subjects of legislation and heads of taxation. They are separately enumerated. Taxation is treated as a distinct matter for purposes of legislative competence vis a vis the general entries...The power to impose tax ordinarily would not be deduced from a general entry as an ancillary power3."

44. Entries Nos. 54 and 15 of Part-I and Part-II of the FLL, show that FLL specifically provides for Fees in respect of any matters in these parts. There is no such provision for taxation besides it also shows that even fee cannot be imposed under the general entries. Therefore, we are of the view that taxation is a specific subject and unless specifically and clearly listed in the FLL, the power of taxation, cannot be read into the general subject entries. Therefore, Federal legislature does not enjoy the legislative competence to impose "taxation" (under section 31(5) of the Act) under the generic entry of Electricity in Part-II of the FLL.

45. Can these Surcharges pass for sales tax under entry 49 of Part-I of the FLL? We do not require to answer this question if section 31(5) of the Act falls on the score of excessive delegation. Section 31(5) of the Act does not provide legislative parameters or guidelines or legislative policy for determining the amount and nature of surcharge or the number of surcharges to be levied. The legislature has left it to the discretion of the executive to decide what it wants to recover and how. The power vested in the hands of the executive is unguided and uncontrolled. The unlimited and unchecked power in the hands of the Executive is visible if we look at the Notifications issued under section 31(5) of the Act. Some of the Notifications, for ready reference are reproduced hereunder:--

46. Section 31(5) in fact delegates an essential legislative function to the executive which is not permissible under the Constitution. The foundations of excessive delegation owes its genesis to the doctrine of separation of powers, which is a fundamental principle of our constitutional construct. "The first foundation of the modern perspective of the separation of powers is that there is a recognized distinction between the different branches such that each branch of Government has a function that serves as its central and primary function. The primary function of the legislative branch is to legislate (to create statutes, in their functional meaning); legislate (to create statutes in their primary function of the executive branch is to execute the laws; the primary function of the judiciary branch is to judge (in other words, to resolve disputes by determining the facts, interpreting the law, filling in gaps, and/or developing the common law). This approach recognizes that the separation of powers is not pure and that, in addition to its primary function, each branch of government performs some functions that belong to the other branches, so long as they are intimately related to the branch's primary function. " "The legislature is omnipotent in the exercise of the taxing prerogative. Whereas the right to impose taxes and to determine the circumstances under which they will be done is the privilege of the legislative power, administration of the tax law is the responsibility of the executive power. Certain limitations on the taxing power of the Legislature are self-evident. Since the power to raise taxes is a prerogative of the public authority, a government has only the right to impose a levy in so far as it is competent to do so. Under this principle, all that is necessary is that the rights of the tax administration and the corresponding obligations of the taxpayers be specified in the law; that is in the text adopted by the peoples' representatives. The implementation of the tax is generally regulated by the executive power... It is true that the power to fix the rate of tax is a legislative power but if the Legislature lays down the legislative policy and provides the necessary guidelines, that power can be delegated to the executive... merely on the ground the legislature has entrusted the power to alter, modify, vary the tax, the provision cannot be held to be impermissible delegation provided the legislation has given its policy and the Act provides sufficient guidelines. The Legislature cannot repose any power, essentially legislative, in another body or organ; it cannot efface itself and set up a parallel Legislative authority; it must exercise its judgment on vital matters of policy and enact the general principles which should be embodied in the legislation. But it can confer upon any person or body, fit to exercise it, the power to work out details and particulars for carrying out its policy and in order to give effect to the legislation in a particular direction.... The Legislature cannot delegate its power to make a law but it can make a law to delegate powers to determine some facts of state of things upon which the law makes or intends to make its own action depends. The law being flexible, having laid down broad principles of its policy, the Legislature then can leave the details to be supplied by the administrator to adjust to the rapid changing Circumstances.5" It has been held in the case titled Municipal Corporation of Delhi v. Birla Cotton Spg. & Wvg. Mills (AIR 1968 SC 1232) that the principle is well settled that essential legislative function consists of determination of the legislative policy and its formulation as a binding rule of conduct and cannot be delegated by the Legislature. Nor is there any unlimited right of delegation inherent in the legislative power itself. This is not warranted by the provisions of the Constitution. The Legislature must retain in its own hands the essential legislative functions and what can be delegated is the task of subordinate legislation necessary far implementing the purposes and objects of the Act.

47. In the present case, section 31(5) of the Act provides that "distribution company shall pay to the Federal Government such surcharge as the Federal Government, from time to time, notify in respect Of each unit of electric power sold to the consumers..." This does not specify the design and nature of surcharge to be imposed on the Sale of the electric power. It also fails to specify the number of surcharge permissible under the law. It simply opens an unguided window and empowers the executive to assume legislative responsibility, 'Which offends separation of powers and falls within excessive delegation. Such unguided and unstructured delegation empowers the executive with power which is ex-facie discriminatory and hence not permissible under the Constitution. Reliance, with advantage is placed on Khawaja Ahmad Hassan v. Government of Punjab and others (2005 SCMR 186), where the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that:

(1) The essential legislative function consists of the determination of die legislative policy and its formulation as a binding rule of conduct and this cannot be delegated by the Legislature.
(2) The Legislature must retain in its own hands the essential legislative functions and what can be delegated is the task of subordinate legislation-necessary for implementing the purpose; and objects of the Acts.
(3) Where the legislative policy is enunciated with sufficient clearness or a standard is laid down, the Courts should not interfere.
(4) What guidance should be given and to what extent and whether guidance has been given in a particular case at all depends on a consideration of the provisions of a particular Act with which the Court has to deal, including its Preamble.
(5) The name of the body to which delegation is made is also a guidance in the matter of delegation.
(6) What form the guidance should take, will depend upon the circumstances of each statute under consideration, and cannot be stated in general terms. In some cases guidance in broad general terms may be enough in other cases more detailed guidance may be necessary.
In Engineer lqbal Zafar Jhagra and another v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2013 SCMR 1337) (Jhagra Case), it was held that the levy of tax is only permissible under the authority of an act of Parliament. This power of levying the tax cannot be delegated to the executive authority. The basic argument was that the power to impose tax by Parliament cannot be delegated to the executive where the delegatee of such power can decide at what rate the tax is to be imposed and the duration for which the tax is to be imposed. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Jhagra Case held that the authority to levy tax cannot be delegated to the executive. Section 31(5) of the Act, therefore, suffers from excessive delegation and is therefore violative of Article 25 of the Constitution.

48. For the above reasons, Section 31(5) of the Act and the Surcharges namely; EQ Surcharge, DS Surcharge, UOF Surcharge and NJ Surcharge levied from time to time since 2008 through impugned Notifications are, therefore, declared as unconstitutional and hence set aside. For the same reasons, impugned Judgment of the learned single judge dated 26-9-2014 is also set aside.

49. The Federal Government by charging unconstitutional and illegal Surcharges from the consumers of electricity has been unjustly enriched. Therefore, the Federal Government is directed to refund the amount of Surcharges illegally extracted from the consumers. Reliance is place on the case titled Messrs Pfizer Laboratories Limited v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 1998 SC 64). NEPRA is directed to work out the total amount of surcharges collected from the end consumers to date and evolve a plan for the repayment of the said amount through adjustment in tariff for the benefit of the end consumer within three months from the receipt of this judgment.

50. For the above reasons, the instant appeal and the connected matters are, therefore, allowed, with no orders as to costs.

MWA/F-23/L Appeal allowed.

Nadeem Mahmood Mian for Respondents Nos. 2 and 4 along with Jamil Nasir Khan, Additional Director Customs Intelligence.
Date of hearing: 13th September, 2013.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this single judgment, I intend to dispose of Writ Petitions Nos. 21279/2013 and 21281/2013 as common question of law and facts are involved in both these petitions.

2. The basic grievance of the petitioners is that their consignment of Blender and Single Juicer in W.P. No.21281/2013 and consignment Jug, Mill and small Cups in W.P. No.21279/2013 have been seized by the respondents Nos. 2 and 4 in contravention to the law.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners argued that consignments were imported on 23-8-2013, assessment was made by the competent authority, duties were paid by the petitioners and the consignment were cleared. Thereafter the containers of the petitioners were seized by the respondents Nos. 2 and 4 on 28-8-2013. Learned counsel argued that the interception and seizure of the consignments which have been examined, assessed and cleared by the appropriate Custom Officers after payment of duty and taxes is illegal. Learned counsel argued that the respondents

Nos. 2 and 4 have issued notice to the petitioners under section 171 of the Customs Act, 1969 (1969 Act) wherein it has been alleged that the petitioners have imported consignments in CBU condition yet they had them valued in terms of the SKD valuation. It has further been alleged that the petitioners have made mis-declaration which is a violation of sections 32(1) and 178 of the 1969 Act.

4. Learned counsel on behalf of the respondent No.2 and respondent No.4 who appeared in person, explained that upon receipt of information that the petitioners have made a mis-declaration and have fraudulently deprived the exchequer of duty and taxes leviable on the imports, the consignments were seized. Notices under Section 171 of the 1969 Act were served on to the petitioners. Thereafter notice under Section 26 of the 1969 Act have also been issued to the petitioners for providing information which is required for the purposes of investigation. Learned counsel argued that the petitioners are not participating in the inquiry and have not provided the information requested by the respondents, hence the respondents are unable to further inquire in the matter. Learned counsel also explained that both the petitioners before this Court are real brothers and that they have deliberately mis-declared the manner in which the consignments have been imported so as to avoid the proper levy of custom duty. Presently the respondents are of the opinion that a short payment of Rs.7,36,802 each, has been made by the petitioners.

5. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The main issue in the instant Writ Petitions is with respect to the seizure of the consignments imported by the petitioners. Admittedly, an investigation is pending before the Senior Intelligence Officers for which notices under Section 26 of the 1969 Act have been issued, therefore, the petitioners are not entitled to the prayer of declaration with respect to the assessment and valuation of the consignments. The third prayer in the instant Writ Petitions is with respect to the seizure of the consignments for which an application being C.M. No.2/2013 was moved for release of the consignments. The basic contention of learned counsel for the petitioners is that there is no reason or justification for the seizure of the goods and that the petitioners are willing to furnish security in the amount of Rs.7,36,802 each for the release of the consignments. Learned counsel for respondents Nos.2 and 4 was asked to explain the necessity to retain the consignments seized by the sated respondents. Learned counsel responded by explaining that since the matter was still under investigation the consignments were required till the completion of the investigation and. adjudication process. In this case the main question is of mis-declaration and short payment of customs duty and taxes. The consignments were opened in the presence of the clearing agents of the petitioners. The respondents were able to check the consignments and have obtained all necessary information about the consignments for the purposes of establishing their case on the conditions in which consignments were imported. I am of the opinion that there is no justification for the respondents to keep the seized consignments and that the consignments should be released to the petitioners upon payment of post-dated cheques equal to Rs.7,36,802 each along with surety bonds to the satisfaction of the respondent No.3. The respondents Nos.2 and 4 may continue with their investigation strictly in accordance with law and the petitioners are directed to participate in the present investigation and provide the respondents Nos.2 and 4 with the necessary documents called for vide notice under Section 26 of the 1969 Act.

7. In the light of the aforesaid, the petitioners are disposed of.

Date of hearing: 23rd April, 2015.

JUDGMENT

This Intra-Court Appeal is directed against the order dated 16-4-2014 passed by a learned Single Judge in Chambers in W.P.No.10212 of 2014.

2. Through that order on the consensus arrived at between the parties, the matter has been referred to the respondents for appropriate orders.

3. At the very outset, learned counsel appearing on behalf of appellant has been confronted with the situation that the impugned order is a consent order and was passed in presence of parties that too without objection, therefore, this Intra-Court Appeal is not competent.

4. Replying to the above, learned counsel for the appellant submits that the impugned order is against law and facts.

5. Be that as it may, in view of the fact that the impugned order was passed in presence of the parties and that too without objection, therefore, this appeal is not maintainable.

6. The above proposition has been dealt with and decided by this Court in judgment reported as Abdul Wahab and others v. Habib Ali and others (PLD 1969 Lah. 365) operative part of which is reproduced for convenience:--

"Apart from the technical bar in respect of appeal against decision based on consent, the party challenging such a decision cannot be allowed to argue that the Court passing the order did not follow the correct procedure in deciding the matter. The principle of estoppel by conduct applies with full force to such a situation. If a party, by its conduct, obliges the Court to adopt a course which is contrary to its practice, that party will be debarred from raising the objection as to the procedure, on the very salutary principle that after having led the Court to do a certain thing for the benefit of the parties, none of them can be allowed to challenge the same."

7. While discussing the import of judgment of the honourable Supreme Court of Pakistan reported as Sh. Maqbool Elahi and others v. Khan Abdul Rehman (PLD 1958 SC (Pak) 96), this Court has further held that:--
"The principle enunciated in this ruling supports our view that once a mode (procedure) is adopted by the High Court on the request of the parties, the decision given in pursuance of that mode should be given effect to. A necessary corollary of this rule will be that the, same parties are estopped from subsequently challenging that mode of decision in an appeal. Therefore in this view of the matter as well, there is no force in this appeal and merits to be dismissed in limine."

8. In view of the afore-noted, this Intra-Court Appeal is dismissed.

MH/C-15/L Intra Court Appeal dismissed.

Date of hearing: 9.7.2015.

JUDGMENT

Mrs. Ayesha A. Malik, J.--The Appellants are aggrieved by the impugned judgment dated 10.2.2015 in WP No. 5406/2011 as the learned Single Judge has granted fifty percent increase in Judicial Allowance and fifty percent increase in Adhoc Allowance with effect from 1.7.2010 to the employees of the Lahore High Court.

2. The case of the Appellants is that the Respondent is an, employee of the Lahore High Court Establishment who sought a direction to the Provincial Government to act upon Letter No. F.3(1)/2009-A-II dated 26.1.2011 issued by the Government of Pakistan, Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs Division, Islamabad wherein the Prime Minister approved a fifty percent increase in Judicial Allowance and a fifty percent increase at the uniform rate of the basic pay, known as Adhoc Allowance to the staff of all superior judiciary with effect from 1.7.2010. The learned Additional Advocate General, ("AAG") Mr. Shan Gull argued that the Prime Minister does not have any executive or legislative authority to direct the Province to make any such payment out of the Provincial Consolidated Fund. He argued that the Prime Minister cannot require the Provincial Government to make any kind of payment from the Provincial Consolidated Fund. He further argued that any payment with respect to Judicial Allowance or Adhoc Allowance must be first approved by the Governor of the Province in terms of Rule 17 of Chapter 10, Part "C" of the High Court Rules and Orders (Volume-V), ("High Court Rules"). Further argued that the Respondent has no legal right on the basis of the Prime Minister's directive to agitate a claim for fifty percent increase in the Judicial Allowance with effect from 1.7.2010. He explained that the Administrative Committee ("AC") of the Lahore High Court took, a decision on 13.5.2013 whereby it approved the payment of fifty percent increase in Judicial Allowance and Adhoc Allowance to its employees with effect from 1.7.2010. He stated that the decision of the AC is premised on the directive issued by the Prime Minister dated 26.1.2011. Hence it cannot be followed. He further argued that Judicial Allowance has been granted with retrospective effect which is patently illegal as a liability has been imposed on the Provincial Government retrospectively. He argued that the Appellants are aggrieved by the interpretation given to Rule 17 of the High Court Rules in the impugned judgment as the same is contrary to the mandate of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"). With respect to Adhoc Allowance the learned AAG argued that the same cannot be granted to the employees of the Lahore High Court because in terms of Notification dated 15.7.2010, issued by the Finance Department of the Provincial Government, Adhoc Allowance granted in the year 2010 was not admissible to persons who were already getting allowance equal to one month's basic pay. He stated that on the basis of the said Notification, many employees of the Provincial Government including members of the Armed Forces, National Highway and Motorway Police were denied Adhoc Allowance for the year 2010. For this reason since the employees of the High Court also fall in the category of persons who have received an allowance equal to one month's basic pay as provided in the Notification dated 15.7.2010 they are not entitled to this allowance. He clarified that with respect to Adhoc Allowance the dispute pertains to the year 2010 only as Adhoc Allowance for all other years has been paid.

3. Mr. Ahmad Raza Sarwar, Special Secretary, Finance Department appeared before us to explain the rationale of the case of the Appellants and to assist the Court with reference to the manner in which the process for granting the allowances with respect to the employees of the High Court is carried out. He explained that the payment for the employees of the judiciary comes from the Provincial Consolidated Fund which is a single and unified fund from which expenses are met by the Provincial Government. It is his understanding that in terms of the Constitution and Punjab Government Rules of Business, 2011 and the High Court Rules, if the AC and the Chief Justice recommend an allowance for its employees then that recommendation must be approved by the Governor of the Province. He stated that the Governor can modify the recommendation and send the matter back to the AC and the Chief Justice for reconsideration. He further stated that as per practice the AC has been submitting its recommendation to the Governor since 2003 which has been processed under the law and approved by the Governor. In this regard, he has placed before us the record containing approvals sought and granted for judicial allowance from the year 2003. He stated that if any allowance is recommended by the AC without the approval of the Governor, then as per his understanding the Provincial Government is under no obligation to make the funds available. The Government of Punjab sanctioned fifty percent increase of the existing basic pay known as Adhoc Allowance in the year 2010 to its employees with effect from 1.7.2010 subject to the condition that those employees who were already in receipt of any special allowance equal to one month's basic pay would not be allowed Adhoc Allowance. He stated that the employees of the High Court have been denied the grant of Adhoc Allowance as they were in receipt of different allowances equal to one month's pay hence they do not qualify for the Adhoc Allowance. He stated that the Government of Punjab is paying Judicial Allowance from 1.7.2014 which was duly approved by the Governor. As to the Adhoc Allowance, since there is a bar on the payment of Adhoc Allowance pursuant to Notification dated 15.7.2010, they are not willing to pay the same. He clarified that the issue of Adhoc Allowance is only with respect to the year 2010 as the Adhoc Allowances for the subsequent years have been paid to the employees of Lahore High Court.

4. Mian Bilal Bashir, learned counsel for the Respondent in support of the impugned judgment argued that fifty percent increase in Judicial Allowance and fifty percent increase in Adhoc Allowance have been given to all the employees of the other High Courts of the country and the august Supreme Court of Pakistan except for the employees of the Lahore High Court. He stated that Adhoc Allowance is granted every year to the employees of the Lahore High Court and could not be refused for the year 2010. He stated that there is no basis to deny the employees the Adhoc Allowance on the strength of the Notification dated 15.7.2010 as they are not at par with the civil servants mentioned in Notification dated 15.7.2010. He stated that the employees of the Lahore High Court fall directly under the control of the Hon'ble Chief Justice. He stated that the Hon'ble Chief Justice and the AC approved fifty percent increase in Judicial Allowance and in Adhoc Allowance with effect from 1.7.2010 for its employees on 15.5.2013. He stated that the Appellants are obligated to comply with the decision of the AC and the Hon'ble Chief Justice in terms of Rule 17 of the High Court Rules.

5. Mr. Muhammad Azhar Siddique, learned counsel for Applicant in C.M. Nos. 5061 and 5062 of 2015 and for the Petitioner in Criminal Original No. 1719-W/2015 while supporting the impugned judgment argued that the Appellants have never challenged the directive of the Prime Minister dated 26.1.2011. They have also not challenged the decision of the AC dated 15.5.2013. Therefore they are obligated to comply with the same. Learned counsel further stated that the matter for grant of Judicial Allowance and Adhoc Allowance falls exclusively within the domain of the Hon'ble Chief Justice and the AC in terms of Rule 17 of the High Court Rules and as such no approval is required from the Governor.

6. Heard and record perused.

7. The facts of the case are that on 26.1.2011, the Prime Minister through a directive approved a fifty percent increase at the uniform rate of basic pay, referred to as Adhoc Allowance and fifty percent increase in Judicial Allowance to the staff of the superior judiciary across the country with effect from 1.7.2010. No positive action was taken by the Appellants on the basis of the directive hence on 15.5.2013 the AC in its meeting approved a fifty percent increase in the Judicial Allowance and in the Adhoc Allowance with effect from 1.7.2010. The said allowances were not granted by the Provincial Government, hence the Respondent filed WP No. 5406/2011 before this Court seeking implementation of the Prime Minister's directive dated 26.1.2011. The impugned judgment while relying on Articles 121, 122, 175 and 208 of the Constitution essentially held that judicial independence means and includes financial independence which means that the High Court has total budgetary and financial control and it can draw its own administrative expenses including remuneration of its officers and servants. The judgment farther holds that administrative expenses do not require the approval of the Governor or the assent of the Provincial Assembly in terms of Article 121 of the Constitution. The impugned judgment concludes that the expenses proposed by the High Court cannot be turned down, revised or altered by the executive or by the legislature and that there is no provision under the Constitution that allows the Provincial Executive to delay or reconsider, negate, alter, reduce the administrative expenses of the High Court which is a charged expenditure under Article 121 of the Constitution.

8. The basic issue raised by the Appellants is that in terms of Rule 17 of the High Court Rules approval of the Governor is necessary before any allowance, Judicial or Adhoc, can be increased. The said Rule is reproduced hereunder for convenience:--

> Members of the High Court Establishment shall be entitled to pay (including special pay) and allowances as fixed by the Chief Justice, from time to time with the approval of the Governor to these rules.

The learned AAG while relying on the stated Rule argued that no other rule in the High Court Rules requires the approval of the Governor except Rule 17. Since Rule 17 specifically makes mention of the approval of the Governor it means that an approval was thought to be necessary for the purposes of pay and allowances.

9. We have considered the arguments made before us however, we find that the emphasis on the approval of the Governor is totally misplaced. The High Court Rules provide for the appointment and conditions of service for the Establishment of the Lahore High Court. These Rules have admittedly been approved by the Governor and essentially lay down the terms and conditions of service of the employees of the High Court. The case of the Appellants is that the approval under Rule 17 is mandatory for the gram of increase in Judicial Allowance and Adhoc Allowance because when compared with the other rules, Rule 17 is the only Rule which requires approval from the Governor. We have gone through the High Court Rules and find that Rule 4 provides for the establishment of as many posts as may be fixed from time to time by the Chief Justice. As per the High Court Rules, all appointments are made by the Chief Justice and increments are granted under Rule 18 by the Chief Justice. In all these cases, the approval of the Governor is not required. Rule 17 however, provides that members of the High Court Establishment shall be entitled to pay, special pay and allowances as fixed by the Chief Justice, from time to time, with the approval of the Governor to these rules. We find that reference to 'approval of the Governor' is specifically in relation to the approval sought for making the High Court Rules and not for approval each time pay or allowance has to be increased. Not only does this understanding fit in well when reading the High Court Rules in its entirety but it is also in consonance with the principles of independence of the judiciary as held by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled Government of Balochistan through Additional Chief Secretary v. Azizullah Memon and 16 others (PLD 1993 SC 341), Government of Sindh through Chief Secretary to Government of Sindh, Karachi and others v. Sharaf Faridi and others (PLD 1994 SC 105) and Abdul Rasheed and others v. Province of Sindh and others (2011 PLC (CS) 926). The Chief Justice as the competent authority creates the posts, makes the appointments, fixes the seniority and grants promotion. He is also competent authority to determine pay and allowances of the members of the Establishment of Lahore High Court. The argument that only for the purposes of pay and allowances the approval of the Governor is required but for all other matters relating to terms and conditions of service the Chief Justice is the competent authority does not find favour with the spirit of the High Court Rules. To our mind when reading the High Court Rules, it is evident that fixation of posts, appointment to the posts, grant of increment, seniority and promotion are all subject to the decision of the Chief Justice without any approval from the Governor. On the basis of the same understanding, the terms and conditions of service, the pay and any increase thereof along with grant of any allowance will also be decided by the Chief Justice without any approval of the Governor. It is only the rules themselves when promulgated that need approval of the Governor in terms of Article 208 of the Constitution. It is the Constitution when mandates that the Governor approve the rules related to the terms and conditions of service. Once the rules are approved, the Governor has no role and cannot interfere in the pay and allowances fixed by the Chief Justice. Therefore the finding in the impugned judgment that the approval of the Governor under Rule 17 is a one off act is in accordance with the mandate of the Constitution and the spirit of the High Court Rules. In this regard, it is held in the case titled Government of the Punjab through Secretary, Finance Department, Lahore v. Mubarik Ali Khan and 8 others (PLD 1993 SC 375) that i*n the context of the Constitutional provisions reproduced above, it is clear that in the matter of the officers and servants employed in the establishment of the Supreme Court of Pakistan and the High Courts the legislature had not been given any role to determine the terms and conditions of the employees which of course would include their remuneration also. Such an exclusionary role was attributed to the requirement of maintaining the independence of judiciary. It was further held in this case that it is admitted that under Rule 17 no separate dispensation with the approval of the Governor has taken place in respect of pay and allowances. For this reason the residuary Rule 22 gets attracted*.

10. The next issue is with respect to the implementation of the decision dated 15.5.2013 of the Chief Justice and the AC wherein the increase in Judicial Allowance and Adhoc Allowance was allowed. A lot of emphasis was placed on the fact that the decision of the AC was based on the Prime Minister's directive dated 26.1.2011 which directive is not binding on the Provincial Government. Although the Appellants have argued that they are not bound by the said directive, we are of the opinion that this argument is not relevant to the controversy at hand because the Chief Justice and the AC took a decision on 15.5.2013 that it will give all its employees fifty percent increase in Judicial Allowance and Adhoc Allowance with effect from 1.7.2010. Given that a decision was taken by the AC and the Chief Justice, the Appellants were obligated to follow the same and ensure its compliance irrespective of the fact that the decision may have been based on the Prime Minister's directive dated 26.1.2011. The only answer to the question as to why the decision of the AC was not followed is that Rule 17 of the High Court Rules requires the approval of the Governor. Therefore there is no merit in this argument as the Appellants are bound to comply with the decision of the Chief Justice through the AC. The issue that the decision of the AC required Judicial Allowance and Adhoc Allowance to be paid with effect from 1.7.2010, being retrospective in nature is also misconceived as the Appellants are bound to comply with the orders of the Chief Justice and the AC. The Constitution protects the independence of the judiciary from the executive and the legislature which includes financial independence from the other two pillars of the state. The doctrine of separation of power means that each pillar of the State shall take care of itself. Hence the Constitution specifically provides under Article 120 that an Annual Budget Statement be submitted in respect of every financial year before the Provincial Assembly. The Annual Budget Statement and its explanatory memorandums include the expenses related to the Lahore High Court. Article 121 of the Constitution protects the administrative expenses and remunerations payable to the officers and servants of the High Court by declaring it to be an expenditure charged upon the Provincial Consolidate Fund, Article 122 of the Constitution provides that charged expenditures as detailed in the Annual Budget Statement may be discussed in the Assembly but shall not be submitted to the vote. Therefore the Constitution specifically provides that no interference shall be made with respect to the administrative expenses and remuneration payable to the employees of the High Court. The strength and effectiveness of an independent judicial system means that it has absolute control over its employees and in this context that it decides on all matters related to the terms and conditions of their service. As an independent branch it is presumed that the judiciary will regulate and monitor its finances in the most prudent manner possible and take reasonable decisions. Such decisions cannot be made subject to the approval of the Governor and any matter related to pay and allowances cannot be turned down, modified or sent back by the Governor to the AC and the Chief Justice for reconsideration. In the instant case the Minutes of the Meeting of the AC dated 15.5.2013 show that the decision to grant Judicial Allowance and Adhoc Allowance with effect from 1.7.2010 was subjected to a process of deliberation by the AC and the Chief Justice, who in their wisdom concluded that the allowances should be granted with effect from 1.7.2010. The Appellants before us accept that the Judicial Allowance should be given to the employees of the High Court and they have stated that they are paying it with effect from 1.7.2014. Therefore with respect to Judicial Allowance they essentially dispute the effective date of 1.7.2010 and the amount due from 1.7.2010 to 30.6.2014. As to Adhoc Allowance they have expressed their inability to accept the decision of the AC and the Chief Justice on the strength of Notification dated 15.7.2010. However we are of the opinion that the Appellants are obligated to comply with the decision of the Chief Justice and the AC dated 15.5.2013. Since this obligation is the mandate of the Constitution the question of retrospectivity and reliance on Notification dated 15.7.2010 does not arise. Furthermore reference to past practice when the increase in Judicial Allowance was sent to the Governor will also not change the mandate of the Constitution. In this regard, we find that the impugned judgment has aptly dealt with the matter by finding that The budgetary process of the High Court must be a collaborative exercise, where comments, suggestions and inputs are solicited from the provincial government, financial experts and other relevant institutions, in order to examine, appreciate and gauge the fiscal and economic conditions and realities of the Province before finalizing the charged expenditure. This is in line with the democratic spirit of co-operation, coordination, responsibility and accountability. Working relationship between different organs of the State is a path that enriches and strengthens democracy.

11. With respect to the Adhoc Allowance, the issue raised by the Appellants is on the basis of Notification dated 15.7.2010 where certain departments of the Provincial Governments have been denied Adhoc Allowance. They argue that the same will be made applicable to the employees of the Lahore High Court. The basic concern as explained by Mr. Ahmad Raza Sarwar, Special Secretary, Finance Department and the learned AAG is that if the employees of the High Court are granted the Adhoc Allowance for the year 2010, it will prompt claims from other Departments who have been specifically ousted on the basis of the Notification dated 15.7.2010, to agitate their right to Adhoc Allowance for the year 2010. However we find that there is no justification in denying Adhoc Allowance for the year 2010 on the basis of Notification dated 15.7.2010. The employees of the Lahore High Court do not fall under the control and management of the Appellants/Provincial Government hence the question of discrimination would not arise. As per Rule 22 of the High Court Rules they have only adopted to be governed by the provisions of the Civil Service Rules (Punjab) in matters of salaries, allowance, leave or pension. However, since they are not civil servants the said Notification cannot be made binding on them and the question of discrimination, in our opinion will not arise as they do not fall under the control of the Provincial Government.

12. In view of the aforesaid, impugned judgment dated 10.2.2015 passed by the learned Single Judge is upheld and this appeal is dismissed.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in Writ Petitions Nos.6363, 6903, 8211 and 12324 of 2015, as all the petitions raise common questions of law and facts.

2. The Petitioners in W.Ps. Nos.8211 and 6903 of 2015 have impugned notices dated 22.1.2015, 20.3.2015 and 9.3.2015 issued under Section 40B along with Section 38 of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 ("The Act"). Their basic grievance is that while exercising powers under Section 40B of the Act powers under Section 38 of the Act cannot be invoked.

3. The instant petition is filed by the Petitioner Firdous Cloth Mills (Pvt.) Limited against a similar notice dated 5.3.2015 issued under Section 40B read with Section 38 of the Act. However, in the case of Firdous Cloth Mills subsequent to the notice dated 5.3.2015, FIR No.8/2015 was registered on 22.4.2015. Thereafter Firdous Cloth Mills along with its five directors and company secretary filed W.P. No.12324/2015 praying for quashment of FIR No.8/2015.

4. The Petitioners are aggrieved by the notice issued by Respondent No.3 invoking Section 40B of the Act to monitor production and sale of taxable goods along with the stock position and through the same notice he has authorized the named officers to exercise all powers under Section 38 of the Act. The grievance of the Petitioners is that the Respondent No.3 cannot invoke Section 38 of the Act along with Section 40B of the Act. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that Section 40B of the Act authorizes the Commissioner to post an officer of Inland Revenue at the premises of a taxpayer to monitor production, sale and the stock position of taxable goods provided that he has material evidence that the taxpayer is involved in evasion of sales tax or tax fraud. Learned counsel for the Petitioners stated that under the garb of Section 40B of the Act, the Respondents cannot invoke Section 38 of the Act which is a separate and independent provision for which an investigation or inquiry on allegations of tax fraud is necessary. In this case, he argued that no investigation or inquiry is pending against the Petitioner and no notice with reference to the business records and documents maintained at the factory premises has been issued by the Respondents under Section 38 of the Act. Learned counsel argued that in order to invoke Section 38 of the Act, a notice stating reasons should have been issued by the Respondents and thereafter, if required, a search warrant under Section 40 of the Act, on the basis of which they could enter the premises and confiscate documents or the business record of the Petitioners. In this regard he has placed reliance on the cases titled Messrs Food Consults (Pvt.) Ltd., Lahore and others v. Collector (Central Excise and Sales Tax), Lahore and 2 others (2004 PTD 1731) and Collector of Sales Tax and others v. Messrs Food Consults (Pvt.) Ltd. and another (2007 PTD 2356).

5. In W.P. No.12324/2015, the case of the Petitioners is that since the record was seized unlawfully under Section 38 of the Act, therefore, the FIR in pursuance thereof is also illegal and should be quashed. The Petitioners also pray that all record and accounts that have been seized should not be used against the Petitioners. Writ Petition No.16359/2015 has been filed by the same Petitioners, Firdous Cloth Mills (Pvt.) Ltd. through its Company Secretary and its directors who pray that a civil suit for declaration and permanent injunction against FIR No.8/2015 be decided first and in the meanwhile they should not be arrested pursuant to FIR No.8/2015. The merits of that case have been dealt with separately.

6. Learned counsel argued that FIR No.8/2015 has been lodged against the Petitioners in W.P. No.12324/2015 on the basis of information collected through the illegal act of seizure under Section 38 of the Act. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that search and seizure by the Respondents is in absolute violation of Section 38 of the Act and the FIR on the basis thereof, is also illegal. Learned counsel argued that the FIR has been lodged without determining the tax liability of Petitioner No.1 in accordance with Section 11 of the Act. He has placed reliance on the case titled Taj International (Pvt.) Ltd. and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2014 PTD 1807). Also placed reliance on the cases cited as 2004 PTD 1731 (supra) and Chairman, Central Board of Revenue and others v. Messrs Haq Cotton Mills (Pvt.) Ltd., Burewala (2007 PTD 1351) to urge the point that Section 38 of the Act is dependent upon the issuance of a warrant under Section 40 of the Act in order to carry out any search under Section 38 of the Act. Therefore, the Respondents were obligated to obtain a warrant from a Magistrate as stipulated in Section 40 of the Act. Learned counsel further argued that the Respondents are committing contempt of the orders of this Court because the impugned notice was suspended on 10.3.2015, such that the Respondents were restrained from entering the premises of the Petitioner. Thereafter by order dated 1.4.2015 the Respondents were allowed to continue with the monitoring process under Section 40B of the Act but they could not invoke the provisions of Section 38 of the Act. Notwithstanding the same, the Respondents exercised their powers under Section 38 confiscated the business record and documents of the Petitioners and proceeded with the registration of FIR. Therefore, they are in violation of the orders of this Court 1.4.2015 for which Crl. Org. No.1114-W/2015 is also pending.

7. Learned counsel for the Respondents at the very outset raised the objection that notices under Section 40B of the Act have been issued by the Commissioner Inland Revenue and they are appealable orders under Section 46 of the Act. In this regard, he stated that the Petitioner in the instant petition has filed its appeal which is pending. Learned counsel further stated given that a statutory remedy is available, the petitions are not maintainable. In response to this preliminary objection, learned counsel for the Petitioners admitted that an appeal is pending, however, he stated that the instant petitions are confined to the legal question as to whether the Respondents while invoking Section 40B can authorize the same officers to exercise all powers under Section 38 of the Act. He stated that he does not question the grounds raised in the notice for invoking Section 40B of the Act.

8. On merits, learned counsel for the Respondents stated that with respect to W.Ps. Nos. 6363, 6903 and 8211 of 2015 only a notice has been issued and as to the Petitioner Firdous Textile Mills, no search and seizure of the premises or record was carried out. The Respondents were given access to the premises under Section 40B and the officers appointed for the purposes of this provision were authorized to exercise powers under Section 38 of the Act. The officers asked for documents and record which were necessary in the investigation regarding evasion of sales tax and tax fraud. The stated Petitioner provided all documents with its consent. He argued that the Respondents did not raid the premises of the Petitioner nor did they seize any record. Learned counsel further argued that the FIR was registered on the ground that a case of tax fraud is made out against the Petitioner and if the Petitioner is of the opinion that no case is made out, it is required as per the law to participate in the proceedings and raise all objections in those proceedings. He further argued that the Petitioner is not entitled to the prayer for quashment of FIR in view of the pronouncement of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the cases titled Dr. Ghulam Mustafa v. The State and others (2008 SCMR 76) and Rana Shahid Ahmad Khan v. Tanveer Ahmad and others (2011 SCMR 1937). Learned counsel also stated that the Petitioners in W.P. No.12324/2015 filed another petition wherein they have sought the same relief and without disclosing W.P. No.12324/2015 they obtained order dated 29.5.2015 in W.P. No.16359/2015 preventing their arrest from another Court. Therefore, the learned counsel stressed that the conduct of the Petitioners in W.P. No. 12324/2015 does not entitle them to equitable relief from this Court.

9. Arguments heard and record perused.

10. The basic issue pertains to the issuance of a notice under Section 40B of the Act along with all powers under Section 38 of the Act. Section 40B of the Act provides for the posting of Officers of Inland Revenue within the premises of a registered person to monitor production or sale of taxable goods and the stock position. The Commissioner Inland Revenue issued the notices under Section 40B of the Act as he had reason to believe that the Petitioners are involved in evasion of sales tax or tax fraud. It has been held in the case titled Kamalia Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Federation of Pakistan etc. (2015 PTD 221) by a Division Bench of this Court that the provisions of Section 40B do not prejudice the rights of a registered person as the section is invoked for the purposes of watching and observing the production or sale of taxable goods and the stock position. Hence there is no adverse order against the registered person and the Respondents can monitor purchase, sale and stock positions if they have material evidence of tax fraud or evasion of sales tax. Relevant part is reproduced for convenience:--

"Section 40B of the Act of 1990 is divided into two parts. The first part empowers the Chief Commissioner or the Board to post officers for the purposes of monitoring production, sale of taxable goods and the stock position. The proviso states that the Commissioner can also pass an order for posting of Inland Revenue Officers only if there is material evidence before him and he has reason to believe that the registered person is involved in evasion of sales tax or tax fraud. In such a situation the Commissioner has to record his reasons in writing, before passing such an order. The argument made before this Court essentially was that the fundamental rights of the Petitioners to do their business have been violated. I have considered the meaning and the scope of the power to "monitor" under Section 40B of the Act of 1990. The word 'monitor' has not been defined anywhere in the stated Acts. In the Concise Oxford English Dictionary, eleventh edition, the word 'monitor' means observe and check over a period of time. The Respondents understand monitoring to mean that the team posted at the manufacturing premises physically watches the production, sales and stock positions and collects the data maintained by the Petitioners. They are observing and recording the data as maintained by the Petitioners. The Respondents are collecting data made by the Petitioners related to production, sale and stock positions. They watch over the process and collect the relevant information as maintained and documented by the Petitioners on a daily basis. This enables the Respondents to collect data for a given period of time and consequently ascertain whether due tax is being paid. The Respondents state that the Petitioners do not reflect the correct position in their returns and the Respondents cannot determine the factual position for the purposes of levy of tax. Furthermore the Petitioners collect the sales tax from the end consumer and deposit it with the national exchequer. Hence the Respondents need to ascertain whether the collected tax has been duly deposited. Therefore I am of the view that the power to monitor is to watch and observe and to take the information maintained by the taxpayer with respect to its daily production, sales and stock position. A distinction was made on the basis of the powers under Section 40B invoked by the Board and that invoked by the Commissioner Inland Revenue. In that case, an order was issued by the Board wherein in terms of the Section itself, no specific allegation of evasion of sales tax or tax fraud is required. However, under the same Section, the Commissioner Inland Revenue issues an order which invokes Section 40B on the basis of material evidence before him with reference to the allegation of evasion of sales tax or tax fraud, therefore the objective of Section 40B remains the same. Where the order is issued by the Commissioner, the objective of the Respondent Department is to watch and observe with reference to the allegations of evasion of sales tax or tax fraud. The provision of 'monitoring' under Section 40B of the Act essentially means that the Respondents need to monitor production or sale of taxable goods and the stock position in order to ascertain whether the information provided in the returns filed is reflective of the actual record maintained by the taxpayer. With reference to an order by the Commissioner, it means that the taxpayer is put to notice that the Respondents believe that the taxpayer is involved in evasion of sales tax or tax fraud, hence on the basis of material evidence, the Commissioner invokes the provisions of Section 40B of the Act."

11. The question that arises is that when Section 40B is invoked, can the Commissioner authorize the same officers to exercise powers under Section 38 of the Act. Sections 38 and 40B of the Act are reproduced below for ease of reference:--

38. Authorized officers to have access to premises, stocks, accounts and records. (1) Any officer authorized in this behalf by the Board [or the Commissioner], shall have free access to business or manufacturing premises, registered office or any other place where any stocks, business records or documents required under this Act are kept or maintained belonging to any registered person or a person liable for registration or whose business activities are covered under this Act or who may be required for any inquiry or investigation in any tax fraud committed by him or his agent or any other person; and such officer may, at any time, inspect the goods, stocks, records, data, documents, correspondence, accounts and statements, utility bills, bank statements, information regarding nature and sources of funds or assets with which his business is financed, and any other records or documents, including those which are required under any of the Federal, Provincial or local laws maintained in any form or mode and may take into his custody such records, statements, diskettes, documents or any part thereof, in original or copies thereof in such form as the authorized officer may deem fit against a signed receipt.

(2) The registered person, his agent or any other person specified in subsection (1) shall be bound to answer any question or furnish such information or explanation as may be asked by the authorised officer.

(3) The department of direct and indirect taxes or any other Government department, local bodies, autonomous bodies, corporations or such other institutions shall supply requisite information and render necessary assistance to the authorised officer in the course of inquiry or investigation under this section.

40B. Posting of [Inland Revenue] Officer. Subject to such conditions and restrictions, as deemed fit to impose, the [Board], [or Chief Commissioner] may post Officer of [Inland Revenue] to the premises of registered person or class of such persons to monitor production, sales of taxable goods and stock position.

Provided that if a [Commissioner] on the basis of material evidence, has reason to believe that a registered person is involved in evasion of sales tax or tax fraud, he may, by recording the reason in writing, post an Officer of [Inland Revenue] to the premises of such registered person to monitor production or sale of taxable goods and the stock position.

12. Section 38 authorizes an officer to have free access to premises, stocks, accounts and records of the taxpayer. In terms of the pronouncement of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled Collector of Sales Tax and Central Excise (Enforcement) and another v. Messrs Mega Tech (Pvt.) Ltd. (2005 PTD 1933) the provisions of Section 38 of the Act expect that the registered person will keep the relevant record in an open and transparent manner at their declared premises and the use of the word 'free access' means that the authorized officers have free access to the business premises of a registered person at any time and the registered person shall be bound to answer questions or explanation required. The objective of Section 38 of the Act is to inspect the business or manufacturing premises and to be able to inspect the business record of the registered person. The Petitioners have relied upon the case cited at 2004 PTD 1731(supra) to urge the point that a warrant under Section 40 of the Act was necessary before entering and seizing the record under Section 38 of the Act. However, in that case the question of issuance of a warrant arose because the respondents raided the premises. Hence the question before the court was whether the respondents could have raided the premises of the taxpayer and seize its business record and documents without obtaining a warrant under Section 40 of the Act. In the instant case, the Respondents did not raid the premises of the Petitioner but entered the premises by invoking Section 40B of the Act and the record was handed over voluntarily. Therefore, reliance on the case cited at 2004 PTD 1731(supra) is misplaced and not applicable to this case.

13. To settle the controversy, the relevant question which needs to be decided is whether the Respondents can enter the premises of a taxpayer under Section 40B of the Act and at the same time exercise its power under Section 38 of the Act. The argument raised by the Respondents is that both the provisions of Section 40B and Section 38 of the Act are independent provisions having separate and independent procedures which must be followed. Section 40B of the Act is invoked by the Commissioner Inland Revenue on the basis of material evidence that a case of evasion of sales tax or tax fraud is made out. A notice under Section 40B of the Act must stipulate the material evidence on the basis of which the Commissioner Inland Revenue feels the need to monitor the production, sale of taxable goods and the stock position of the registered person. On the other hand, Section 38 of the Act gives an authorized officer free access to the business or the manufacturing premises or the registered office or any other place of a taxpayer where the stocks, business records, documents are maintained and kept. Section 38 allows the authorized officer free access to the premises and the business records and documents where an inquiry or investigation in tax fraud is underway. The authorized officer can inspect the goods, stocks, records, data, documents, correspondence, accounts and statements, utility bills, bank statements, information regarding nature and source of funds or assets with which the business is financed and any other record or document which are required for the purposes of the investigation. The authorized officer can also take into custody such records, statements, diskettes, documents or any part thereof in original or copies thereof in such form as the authorized officer may deem fit against a signed receipt. Furthermore under Section 38 of the Act, the taxpayer is bound to answer any question or furnish such information or explanation as may be required by the authorized officer. The principles of due process mandate that the registered person is put to notice under Section 38 of the visit and inspection. Section 38 allows the visit and inspection so that the authorized officer can satisfy himself that the registered person is in compliance with the Act when manufacturing the record. It also allows a visit and inspection where there is an inquiry or investigation in tax fraud against the registered person or any other person connected in the investigation of tax fraud.

14. From the aforementioned it is evident that the objective of both the sections is to give the authorized officer access to the premises as well as the record and documents of the registered person. While Section 38 of the Act contemplates a visit to the premises, Section 40B allows the authorized officers to stay at the premises for a given period of time to monitor the purchase, sale and stock position of the registered person. The primary requirement of both sections is a notice to the taxpayer. In this case, a notice was issued stating the material evidence on the basis of which monitoring is necessary to investigate into allegations of tax fraud and evasion of tax. The Petitioners have argued that separate notices should have been issued under Section 38 of the Act for the purposes of entry in the premises of the Petitioners and for the purposes of seizure of the record a warrant under Section 40 was necessary. Having gone through these provisions of the Act it is clear that both Sections 38 and 40B of the Act are independent provisions which can be used independent of each other however they can also be used simultaneously. There is no restriction on the authorized officers who enters the premises of a registered person for the purposes of monitoring to also exercise powers under Section 38 of the Act as both Sections are in aid of an investigation into allegations of tax fraud and sales tax evasion. In both the cases, the Commissioner Inland Revenue has jurisdiction. He can invoke Section 40B of the Act on the basis of material evidence and he can authorize the same officers under Section 38 on the basis of the same material evidence to inspect the premises or record of the registered person with reference to the allegations of evasion of sales tax or tax fraud. Both the Sections require that the Respondents have reasonable cause to believe that a visit to the premises of the registered person where the record and the stocks are maintained will facilitate the investigation. Both Sections 38 and 40B of the Act give the Respondents free access to the premises of the registered person, subject to notice and material evidence pertaining to the allegations of evasion of sales tax or tax fraud. Therefore when an authorized officer enters under Section 40B of the Act, a warrant is not required under Section 40 of the Act. The need for a warrant arises when any officer of Inland Revenue has reason to believe that any document or record of a registered person may be useful or relevant to the investigation, and that document or record is not at the business or manufacturing premises of the registered person but at some other place, then he may, after obtaining a warrant from the magistrate, enter that place and cause a search to be made at any time. Reliance is placed on the case cited at 2005 PTD 1933 (supra). A warrant may also be necessary where the record is not produced voluntarily by the registered person but in the instant case, a warrant was not required as the authorized officers entered the business/ manufacturing place of the Petitioner, Firdous Textile Mills (Pvt.) Limited from whom the documents were handed over as per request, without any resistance.

15. The record shows that the Petitioners in these cases are under investigation with reference to allegations of tax fraud and evasion of tax. The purpose of both the Sections is to enable the Respondents to carry out the investigation and inquiry and obtain necessary information. The Act contemplates an inquiry/investigation process in which 'monitoring' and 'free access' is necessary. To say that while invoking Section 40B of the Act, the Respondents cannot use their power under Section 38 of the Act would therefore go against the mandate of the law. Both sections facilitate the inquiry process and since the Petitioners have been put to notice under Section 40B read with Section 38 of the Act no illegality is made out.

16. The other question argued by the learned counsel in W.P. No.12324/2015 is that a liability had to be determined in the first instance before lodging the FIR in this case. The Petitioners have relied upon 2014 PTD 1807 (supra) to urge the point that an assessment under Section 11 of the Act must be done first before initiation of criminal proceedings by registration of FIR No.8/2015. The operation of the judgment relied upon has been suspended by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan through its order dated 10.12.2014 passed in Civil Petitions Nos.1798 to 2024, 1721-1724 L, 1762-1770 L, 1773-1779 L, 1785-1787 L, 204-208 K and 212 K of 2014 (S.C Order) and the matter is still pending before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan, therefore, reliance on the said judgment is not applicable to the controversy at hand. It has been held in the case cited at 2008 SCMR 76 (supra) that this Court had no jurisdiction to quash an FIR as the same amounts to taking the role of the investigating agency while exercising constitutional jurisdiction. Quashing an FIR can only be done in exceptional circumstances, which do not exist in this case because the Petitioners have challenged the FIR on the ground that the record was illegally seized under Section 38 which could not be invoked when monitoring under Section 40B of the Act. Even otherwise, given the conduct of the Petitioners before this Court with reference to W.P. No.16359/2015, which has been dealt with by a separate order, the Petitioners in W.P. No.12324/2015 have approached this Court with unclean hands and are not entitled to any equitable relief from this Court. Reliance is placed on the cases titled West Pakistan Tanks Terminal (Pvt.) Ltd. v. Collector (Appraisement) (2007 SCMR 1318) and Muhammad Asif and another v. Director Public Instruction, Punjab and another (2005 PLC (C.S) 1434).

17. Under the circumstances, all W.Ps. Nos. 6363, 6903, 8211 and 12324 of 2015 are dismissed.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 21.02.2015 issued by Respondent No.2 on the ground that the stated Respondent lacks jurisdiction to probe into the private complaint of Respondent No.5.

2. The basic case is that the Petitioner is a Cooperative Housing Society registered under Section 10 of the Cooperative Societies Act, 1925 ("Act"). Respondent No.5 filed several complaints against the Petitioner before various different forums including a complaint under Section 44-A of the Act. These applications have been decided by the competent forums/officers and yet repeatedly Respondent No.5 moved applications time and again to harass the Petitioner. In this way, Respondent No.5 filed an application before Respondent No.3 levelling allegations of fraud and corruption against the Petitioner Society and its management. On the basis of the said application, Respondent No.2 issued a letter to Respondent No.3, Chairman, Chief Minister Inspection Team ("CMIT") on 21.02.2015, which reads as follows:-
"On presentation of the enclosed application of Mr. Muhammad Zubair Rafiq and other resident of T&T ECH Society, Lahore, on subject noted above, Chief Minister has been pleased to desire that in the interest of justice and fair play the matter be probed and outcome of the same may be put up for his information/orders."
It is noted on the said letter that Member General-V ("MG-V") may conduct this enquiry and submit report within two weeks. On 26.02.2015 MG-V issued a letter to the District Officer (Cooperative), Lahore calling for the complete record of the Petitioner Society including registration, layout plan, total membership, sale of land, development, commercialization, audit reports and for reply on the complaint. Subsequently, another letter was issued by MG-V on 25.08.2015 wherein it is mentioned that. Respondent No.5 has complained that he was not given an opportunity to submit his evidence nor was he heard properly during the inquiry by the District Officer (Cooperative) hence he should be heard and that he has raised further allegations with respect to the management of the Society which requires a response from the District Officer (Cooperative). The said District Officer (Cooperative) was called on to the MG-V office along with complete record pertaining to the allegations highlighted in the letter dated 03.03.2015 as well as with respect to the further allegations raised in letter dated 09.05.2015.

3. It is argued on behalf of the Petitioner that Respondent No.4 does not have the jurisdiction to conduct an inquiry on the complaint of Respondent No.5. The jurisdiction of such a complaint vests with the District Officer (Cooperative)/Respondent No.6 who has already decided upon several complaints filed by Respondent No.5 including one under Sections 44 and 44-A of the Act and has enquired into all allegations and passed its order on 03.03.2015. Under these circumstances, the power under the Act to inquire into complaint vests with District Officer (Cooperative), the CMIT cannot conduct parallel enquiries.

4. On behalf of Respondent No.5 whose learned counsel has argued his complete case on a previous date of hearing, it was urged that he has serious grievances against the Petitioner, which could not be looked into under the Act, hence he moved a complaint before the CMIT. With respect to the other applications moved before the DOC/DR, DG Anti-Corruption, Additional Secretary Cooperatives, Lahore, Secretary Cooperatives Department, Director Anti-Corruption, Lahore etc as well as to the Police department, he admitted that the same have been moved and that orders have been passed on some applications.

5. On behalf of Respondents Nos.1, 2, 3 and 4 learned Law Officer has stated that CMIT oversees the working of all the departments in terms of the Punjab Government Rules of Business, 2011 ("Rules of Business"). The CMIT is directly answerable to the Chief Minister and conducts its business under his orders. As per the second schedule of the Rules of Business, CMIT can inspect important matters affecting Government/public interest and seek appropriate action where required by the Chief Minister. Learned Law Officer stated that MG-V has merely called for the record of the Society so as to enquire into the issue and to place a comprehensive report before the Chief Minister in the public interest. He stated that it is not the intention of the stated Respondent to usurp the jurisdiction given to the Registrar Cooperative Housing Societies, Punjab under the Act.

6. Heard and record perused.

7. The Rules of Business framed under Article 139 (3) of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"), provides that the Provincial Government shall also make rules for the allocation and transaction of its business. Under Rule 17 of the Rules of Business there is a CMIT, which is directly answerable to the Chief Minister of the Province and shall conduct business under his orders. As per the Rules of Business CMIT is deemed to be a department and it has a Chairman and a Secretary of the Department. Second Schedule of the Rules of Business provides for the distribution of business among departments. In terms of the schedule the CMIT has 12 functions as listed below:--

(1) Inspect sample development projects throughout the province with the following objectives:

(a) That development projects are properly planned and are executed efficiently, expeditiously and economically with effective quality controls and to recommend appropriate action against the defaulting officials/departments.

(b) That directives/orders of the Government regarding development projects are being fully implemented.

(c) That officials of Nation Building departments and contractors are carrying out their duties, responsibilities and tasks properly and efficiently.

(2) Inspect or cause to be inspected all Government departments including Police, Autonomous/Semi-Autonomous Bodies/ Corporations, Institutions and Local Bodies to see whether or not these departments/Agencies discharge their duties/functions efficiently and expeditiously and to bring serious observations to the notice of the Government together with recommendations for improvement.

(3) Take cognizance of any important matter affecting Government/public interest and draw attention of the authorities concerned for appropriate action and place it before the Chief Minister for his consideration/order.

(4) Entertain complaints of serious/urgent nature and pass these on to the concerned quarters for expeditious disposal or carry out investigation/probe directly as may be appropriate.

(5) Undertake special assignments which may be entrusted to it under orders of the Chief Minister on any matter not specified in this Charter.

6. Any requisition made or assistance required by the Inspection Team in these regards shall be complied with promptly by all concerned.

(7) Other departments may assign specific important tasks to the Inspection Team with prior permission of the Chief Minister.

(8) The Chairman, Chief Minister's Inspection Team shall submit his reports to the Chief Minister directly. Copies may be endorsed to the concerned departments/officials except those which may be of confidential nature.

(9) The Chief Minister's Inspection Team shall maintain close liaison with Anti-Corruption Department and pass on cases which may be appropriate to be dealt with by them.

(10) Budget, accounts and audit matters.

(11) Purchase of stores and capital goods for the department.

(12) Service matters except those entrusted to Service and General Administration Department.

On a plain reading of the Rules of Business, it is evident that the CMIT is an independent department whose basic function is to inspect government departments and government officers to ensure that they are doing their duties and functions efficiently and expeditiously. Where the work is not being done or matters are delayed by a department or an officer, the CMI has the jurisdiction to inspect that department to see whether it has discharged its functions and duties expeditiously and to bring it to the notice of the Chief Minister. In this context if there are important matters related to the functioning of government departments and government officers, the CMIT is to bring it to the notice of Chief Minister for his consideration and necessary orders. In the same context where there are complaints pertaining to the discharge of duty by a department or an officer, the CMIT can entertain such a complaint and after obtaining necessary orders require the department or officer to carry out its functions efficiently and expeditiously. So the purpose of the CMIT is to ensure that government departments and government officers carry out their functions as required under the law. The Rules of Business do not permit the CMIT to assume an investigative power on a private complaint, where a forum for such investigative powers has been provided under a statute, to a specific authority. In this case, Sections 43 to 44-E of the Act gives specific powers to the Registrar Cooperative Department to conduct inquiries and inspect the books of any Cooperative Society. Furthermore, Section 44-E gives him Special Powers for adopting special measures. Section 44D of the Act provides for the Registrar's powers (1) Where the Registrar is satisfied that in the public interest or to prevent the affairs of any Society from being conducted in a manner detrimental to the interest of its members of depositors or the Society or to secure the proper management of any Society generally, it is necessary to issue directions to the Societies generally or to any Society in particular, it may issue necessary direction and the Societies or as the case may be the Society shall be bound to comply with such directions. (2) The Registrar may on a representation made to him or on his own motion modify or cancel any direction issued under subsection (1) and is not modifying or cancelling any direction impose such conditions as he may think fit subject to which the modification or cancellation shall have effect.

8. Admittedly, Respondent No. 5 moved a complaint under Section 44 of the Act and an inquiry was held under Sections 44 and 44-A of the Act vide letter dated 14.11.2014. The Petitioner Society and its management filed replies, the matter was enquired into and ultimately, an order was issued on 03.03.2015 dismissing the complaints and applications filed by Respondent No.5. Respondent No.5 then moved a complaint before CMIT on 17.02.2015. On that complaint an order was issued by Respondent No.2 that the Chief Minister is required in the interest of justice and fair play that the matter be probed into and the outcome of the same may be put up for his information/orders. On the order of Chief Minister, Respondent No.4 was directed to conduct an inquiry and submit his report. In terms of the Rules of Business, the CMIT can look into the functioning of Provincial Government departments and its officers to ensure that they are performing their duties and functions efficiently and expeditiously. The CMIT can on its own initiative look into the departments and its officers where matters of public interest are under consideration, to ensure its efficient handling and working. In fact the purpose and scope of the CMIT is to keep a watching eye on the departments and officers, who are State functionaries carrying out public service. In the event that a department or officer fails to perform its/his duty or is slow to perform, the CMIT can inquire and recommend action against it/him. However, it cannot initiate an inquiry on a private complaint which complaint can be filed and decided under a statute before a statutory authority which is a proper forum to deal such like complaints. The CMIT is not an additional or alternate forum for private complaints such as that of Respondent No.5. It is a forum strictly required to ensure good governance from Provincial Government departments and officers. It can carry out special assignments related to the working of the departments and officers on the instructions of the Chief Minister, however, it cannot conduct inquiries on the basis of private complaints where such inquiries are catered for under a statute. That is why the Rules of Business require the CMIT to maintain a close liaison with the Anti-Corruption Department so that it can ensure good governance from its departments and officers.

9. Under the circumstances, this petition is accepted and the impugned order is set aside as it is against the mandate of Rules of Business.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This Writ Petition decides upon the issues raised in W.Ps. Nos. 16398 and 31453 of 2012. The Petitioners in these petitions seek declaration that the contract awarded to National Institute Facilitation Technologies (NIFT) be declared as illegal.

2. The main grievance of the Petitioners is that the Respondent No.1 illegally entered into a contract with the Respondent No.10 for service of printing of roll number/award sheet and scanning OMR/OCR/ICR. Learned counsel argued that this contract should not have been executed and consequent to the execution of this contract large amount of money has been siphoned away by the private party.

3. At the very outset, learned counsel for the Respondent No.10 raised the objection with the maintainability of the instant petitions. He argued that there was an independent contract between each of the Boards of Intermediate and Secondary Education (BISE) and NIFT, such that there were eight contracts with eight different BISEs which cannot be interfered with by the Petitioners. Learned counsel argued that in any event the contracts have expired and as such the prayer in the instant petitions has become infructuous. Learned counsel argued that under the contract, NIFT was to complete the printing and scanning of sheets for the Intermediate Part-I and Part-II annual examination 2012 and for the 2013 examination. Since both the examinations have been conducted and the results have been declared, the contract is complete and concluded. He argued that under the circumstances the prayer of the Petitioners to have a concluded contract declared as illegal is not maintainable. Learned counsel further argued that the contracts with NIFT were to implement the automated system introduced by the Government for the purposes of the Intermediate Examination and its checking. The Petitioners do not detail the fraud or so called illegality but simply stress on the fact that lot of money is being paid to the Respondent NIFT for its services. Learned counsel argued that a new system has been put into place and the results of 2012 and 2013 examinations have been issued without any major problem. Therefore no grievance is made out. Learned counsel further argued that the Petitioners have no locus standi and as such no interest of the Petitioners have been infringed upon. In any event he argued that main W.P. No.8158/2012 was argued and it was demonstrated in that petition that the 2012 examination was conducted as per the recommendations of the Judicial Commission dated 7.12.2011 and no major issue has been raised when the result was announced. Subsequently the 2013 result was announced and again there was no major issue. Under the circumstances he argued that there is no merit in these cases because the work of NIFT has concluded and no grievance has been made out by the Petitioners.

4. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. The basic grievance of the Petitioners is against the contract awarded to the Respondent No.10, NIFT. A review of the contract shows that the same was issued for the purposes of Intermediate Examinations 2012 and 2013. Both the examinations have concluded and at present there is no contract subsisting between the Respondent No.10 and the Respondent BISEs. It is also noted that in W.P. No.31493/2013 is the Pakistan Social Justice Party, who have also not appended any document to show under what provision of law the said Federation has been formed and who the competent authority is for the purposes of authorization. Furthermore on the question of maintainability, the Petitioners have no locus standi as they are not aggrieved persons. No right or interest of the Petitioners is adversely affected in any manner and any grievance that the Petitioners may have pleaded for the purposes of public interest stands negated by the declaration of the 2012 and 2013 results. As such no issue has been brought to the notice of the Court to show that the issues with the 2011 result have been repeated at the same level in 2012 or 2013, notwithstanding the report of the Commission dated 07.12.2011 and the recommendations made thereto. No instance of any loss has been detailed or brought on record. The main grievance is that the respondent No.1 could not enter into any contract with the respondent No.10. However learned counsel for Respondent No.10 has shown that it had eight separate contracts with the Respondents Nos.2 to 9 and there was no contract with the Respondent No.1.

6. Therefore in view of the aforesaid, these petitions are dismissed.

JUDGMENT
Mrs. Ayesha A. Malik, J.--Through this Intra Court Appeal, the Appellant has impugned order dated 19.11.2015 passed in an application being C.M. No. 3 of 2015 filed by Respondents No. 5 and 6 under Section 12 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure ("CPC") whereby the said application was dismissed and order dated 17.11.2015 by virtue of which W.P.No. 35350/2015 was accepted by learned Single Judge.

2. The facts of the case are that the Appellant and Respondents No. 5 and 6 contested Local Government Election for the seat of Chairman and Vice Chairman in U.C No. 198 Shadman Lahore held on 31.10.2015. The Appellants were the winning candidates for the seat of Chairman and Vice Chairman. Respondents No. 5 and 6 moved an application for recount of the votes on 01.11.2015. They filed W.P.No. 34053/2015 before this Court seeking a direction to Respondent No. 4, Returning Officer for U.C 198 to decide their pending application. This direction was issued by this Court on 06.11.2015. However, Respondents No. 5 and 6 concealed the fact that on 06.11.2015 notice for consolidation of result had been issued and that the result was consolidated on 07.11.2015. The Returning Officer of U.C No. 198 on the direction of the Court heard the application and rejected it on the ground that notice for consolidation of result had already been issued, hence no recounting could take place. This order of the Returning Officer was challenged by Respondents No. 5 and 6 through filing of W.P.No. 35350/2015. In terms of the order dated 17.11.2015 passed by the learned Single Judge the Returning Officer was obligated to decide the application for recounting before the consolidation of result. Hence the consolidation order of 07.11.2015 was set-aside and a direction was given to the Returning Officer to decide the application for recount of vote before proceeding with the consolidation. Against this order of 07.11.2015, the Appellants moved application C.M. No. 3/2015 under Section 12(2) of the CPC primarily on the grounds that on 17.11.2015 the result was consolidated and Respondents No. 5 and 6 misrepresented the facts to the Court in W.P. No. 34053/2015 and obtained an order directing the Returning Officer to recount the votes. The application of the Appellants was heard but dismissed on the ground that no fraud or misrepresentation by Respondents No. 5 and 6 has been brought before the Court. Hence this appeal.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellants argued that Respondents No. 5 and 6 obtained a direction from the Court on 06.11.2015 for a decision on their application for recount of votes when the consolidation process was underway and finalized on 07.11.2015. Learned counsel stated that Respondents No. 5 and 6 concealed the issuance of consolidation notice from the Court which consolidation was fixed for 06.11.2015 and then postponed to 07.11.2015. Learned counsel stated that consolidation process was completed on 07.1 1.2015 at 10.00 AM in the presence of all the parties. The Respondents No. 5 and 6 then challenged the decision of the Returning Officer rejecting their recount application on 07.11.2015 and the learned single Judge notwithstanding the consolidation order, directed the R.O. to decide upon the recount application and then consolidate the result. Learned counsel argued that once the consolidation order is issued the Returning Officer cannot entertain any application for recounting of votes as per Rule 35(5) of the Punjab Local Government (Conduct of Elections) Rules, 2013 ("Rules").

4. On the other hand, learned counsel for Respondents No. 5 and 6 argued that no case of fraud or misrepresentation has been made out. He stated that Respondents No. 5 and 6 moved application for recounting of votes well before beginning of the consolidation process and the Returning Officer failed to take notice of the application filed by Respondents No. 5 and 6. Hence they approached this Court in its constitutional jurisdiction for a simple direction on their application. Learned counsel argued that a direction was issued on 06.11.2015 in W.P.No. 34053/2015 whereafter the Returning Officer on 07.11.2015 rejected the application of Respondents No. 5 and 6. Learned counsel argued that the stated Respondents challenged the said order of rejection on the ground that at that time, the consolidation order had not been issued, hence the Returning Officer was obligated to decide their application.

5. Leaned DAG also supports the contention made by learned counsel for Respondents and supports the impugned order passed by learned Single Judge.

6. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at length and gone through the available record. The order impugned dated 19.11.2015 before us has rejected the application of the Appellants filed under Section 12(2), CPC on the ground that no fraud or misrepresentation has been made out. The Appellants have also impugned the order of 17.11.2015 passed by learned Single Judge in WP No. 35350/2015 on the ground that the consolidation order could not have been set-aside simply on account of the fact that the application of Respondents No. 5 and 6 for recount of votes was pending. In this regard Rule 36(5) of the Rules provides that the Returning Officer may recount the valid ballot papers before consolidation of results if the Returning Officer is satisfied that the request or the challenge is reasonable. In terms of this Rule there is no obligation on the Returning Officer to decide every single application for recount that is placed before him. In the first instance, the Returning Officer must satisfy himself that the request for recount or the challenge is reasonable, whereafter he can order for recounting of the votes. As per Rule 36(5) of the Rules this entire exercise must be done before consolidation of results. Once the result is consolidated, the Returning Officer cannot entertain any application for recounting of votes.

7. In this case, WP No. 35350/2015 was filed on 16.11.2015 challenging the consolidation order of 07.11.2015 and an order was issued on 17.11.2015 requiring the Returning Officer to decide upon application for recount after the consolidation order had been issued on 07.11.2015. The record shows that it took Respondents No. 5 and 6 ten days to file the writ petition challenging the order of 07.11.2015. Given that the consolidation order had already been issued there was no justification to interfere as the Rules prohibit recount after consolidation of results. As we understand, the spirit of the law is that the entire election process should be concluded before the challenges to the election process begin. The pendency of an application for recount does not affect the consolidation of results and the consolidation order cannot be set aside on account of the pendency of the application. This is because Rule 36 (5) of the Rules is clear that the Returning Officer may entertain an application for recount. In this context, it was argued that if the Returning Officer does not entertain the application, then the applicant left without a remedy and will not be able to challenge the result. We have considered this argument as well and find that it is also without any merit. As per the Rules, after consolidation of the result, the election result is declared under Section 37 of the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 ("Act") read with Rule 38 of the Rules and in terms thereof the Election Commission publishes the results in the Official Gazette. Once the name of the returned candidate is published in the Official Gazette, an election petition can be filed under Sections 38 of the Act read with Rule 62 of the Rules before the Election Tribunal. Section 38 and 39 of the Act provide that an election of a returned candidate can only be called into question through an election petition before an Election Tribunal. The grounds for declaring the election of a returned candidate as void are provided in Section 42 of the Act, which reads as follows:--

"42. Ground for declaring election or returned candidate void.--

(1) The Election Tribunal shall declare the election of the returned candidate to be void if it is satisfied that--

(a) the nomination of the returned candidate was invalid; or

(b) the returned candidate was not, on the nomination day, qualified for or was disqualified from, being elected as a member; or

(c) the election of the returned candidate has been procured or induced by any corrupt or illegal practice; or

(d) corrupt or illegal practice has been committed by the returned candidate or his election agent or by any other person with the connivance of the candidate or his election agent.

(2) The election of a retuned candidate shall not be declared void if the Election Tribunal is satisfied that any corrupt or illegal practice was committed without the consent or connivance of that candidate or his election agent and that the candidate and the election agent took all reasonable precaution to prevent its commission."

Section 44 of the Act provides the ground on which the entire election can he declared void, which reads as under:--

44. Ground for declaring elections as a whole void.

The Election Tribunal shall declare the election as a whole to be void if it is satisfied that the result of the election has been materially affected by reasons of--

(a) the failure of any person to comply with the provisions of this Act or the rules; or

(b) the prevalence of extensive corrupt or illegal practice at the election.

Therefore, the spirit of the Act is that the election process should be completed whereafter the declared result can be challenged on several grounds including the ground that the provisions of the Act or the Rules were not complied with.

8. We also noted that corrupt practice, bribery, undue influence, illegal practice, tampering and conduct of officials can also be tried under Section 60 of the Act meaning thereby that allegations of abuse of power can also be raised by way of a complaint under the Act. In the case cited at Muhammad Aslam Baro v. Sardar

Muhammad Muqeen Khosa and others (2013 SCMR 1676) it was held that the High Court can issue a direction for deciding applications because a direction does not disenfranchise the petitioner and the bar under Article 225 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") would not be applicable. In the case cited at Syed Nayyar Hussain Bukhari v. District Returning Officer, NA-49 Islamabad and other (PLD 2008 SC 487) it was held that in election matters the High Court can interfere if no remedy is available to the petitioner. In the case before us remedy is available to the Appellants, however they seek interference before availing that remedy. Learned Single Judge set aside the consolidation order simply because the Returning Officer had not decided the application for recount of votes. The learned Single Judge issued a direction on 06.11.2015 to decide the application if the consolidation of result has already not taken place. When the matter came up again before him on 17.1 1.2015 he set aside the consolidation order because the recount order was not a speaking order, and the Appellants were not heard. We are of the opinion that irrespective of whether the Returning Officer's order was a speaking order or not, any decision on the application was subject to consolidated results. Once the consolidation of results was announced, the Appellants have to wait for the results to be published in the Official Gazelle. Thereafter they have remedy available to them to challenge the result or the process, as the case may be, before the Election Tribunal. All illegalities and irregularities committed by the Returning Officer, as alleged by the Respondents, can be decided after the declaration of results in an election petition. Therefore, to our minds interference in the election process only slows down or delays the declaration of results especially when the Act read with Rules enables the process as well as the results to be challenged by way of an election petition. It was also argued that the remedy of appeal is not available as the Election Tribunals have not been established. The learned DAG stated that as per practice and procedure once the results are declared the Election Tribunals will be notified. We note that the remedy of appeal is provided in the Act therefore, to require it to be available at this stage is premature since an election petition can only be filed once the result is declared in the Official Gazette.

7. Under the circumstances, the appeal is accepted and the orders dated 19.11.2015 and 17.11.2015 passed by learned Single Judge are set-aside and the order dated 07.11.2015 passed by Returning Officer U.C 198 Shadman, Lahore is maintained.

Provincial Employees' Social Security Ordinance (X of 1965)---

----Ss. 20, 23, 24, 28 & 46----Provincial Employees' Social Security (Contribution) Rules, 1966, R. 5---Provincial Employees' Social Security (Employers' Returns and Records) Regulations, 1967, Regln.3---Employees' social security fund---Amount and payment of contributions---Increase of unpaid and recovery of contributions etc. as arrears of land revenue---Safeguards to secured person's right in default of contributions by employer---Manner of providing medical care---'Local office' for deposit of contributions---Determination---Respondent-Institution, by way of letter, required petitioner to deposit contributions at its "local office" in its locality, where he carried on his projects of construction work---Question in the present case was as to whether petitioner was to make contributions in local area where he carried on his project or at local office where he was registered---Petitioner contended that he carried on construction work in various parts of the Province---Effect---Impugned letters had clarified that all establishments would pay contributions in respect of their existing and ongoing projects at Sub-Office concerned within territorial jurisdiction, where such works, projects or activities were being carried out---Said letters further provided that the concerned office and such establishment were required to get their employees registered with concerned Directorate or Sub-Office, so that their employees could be benefitted from nearby Directorate as their entitlement under the rules---Section 24 of Provincial Employees' Social Security Ordinance, 1965 provided that, in event of default in payment of contributions towards secured person by employer, the secured person was entitled to all benefits as if the default had not occurred---Secured person would be entitled to the benefits provided under Chapter V of Provincial Employees' Social Security Ordinance, 1965 and amounts, liable to be collected from employer, could be collected in terms of S.23 of Provincial Employees' Social Security Ordinance, 1965 as arrears of land revenue---Respondent-Institution, therefore, could not deny secured person the benefits that he was entitled to on pretext that contribution had not been paid---Understanding of respondent that contribution should have been made locally and that the petitioner should have registered its employees locally where he was carrying on his work was, therefore, totally misconceived---Mandate of law in question was that all contributions were centralized and paid towards the Fund, from which, all amounts were disbursed and paid out to all secured persons entitled under Provincial Employees' Social Security Ordinance, 1965---Respondent-Institution was required to set up its own verification mechanism to ensure that the employer registered all persons and paid required contribution for all secured persons---Under S.46 of Provincial Employees' Social Security Ordinance, 1965, no reason existed to deny statutory benefit to the secured persons on ground that contribution was not made locally---Respondent-Institution was required under Provincial Employees' Social Security Ordinance, 1965 to provide requisite benefits to secured persons from the Fund and not to treat a contribution as a local payment for provision of benefits---High Court, setting aside the impugned letters, held that term 'local office', used in Regln.3 of Provincial Employees' Social Security (Employers' Returns and Records) Regulations, 1967, would be read as 'local office of the Institution at which it is registered'---Constitutional petition was accepted in circumstances.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned letter dated 24.4.2014 issued by Respondent No.2.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that it is a construction company. The Petitioner regularly pays its contribution under the Punjab Employees' Social Security Ordinance, 1965 ("Ordinance") in respect of its secured employees as defined under the Ordinance. The Petitioner is registered with the Directorate of Social Security, Model Town office of Respondent No.2 where monthly contributions are regularly deposited. The grievance of the Petitioner is that the Respondents through various different letters have required the Petitioner to deposit contributions at a local level in the localities where it carries on its projects of construction works. Learned counsel for the Petitioner stated that the Petitioner carries on construction works in various parts of the Province and the Respondents have required through its letters specifically through impugned letter dated 24.4.2014 to pay contribution to the local offices of the Respondent Punjab Employees Social Security Institution ("PESSI"). Learned counsel stated that in this regard, the Petitioner has been issued letters dated 18.7.2014, 27.8.2014, 9.9.2014, 25.11.2014, 10.12.2014 and 4.8.2015 by the Respondent PESSI. Learned counsel argued that the stated letters are contrary to the Ordinance and the Provincial Employee's Social Security (Contribution) Rules, 1966 ("Rules"). Learned counsel stated that Rule 5 of the Rules specifically provides as follows:-

"The employer shall submit to the local office of the Institution at which he is registered, the copies of pay rolls or contribution schedules referred to in rule 4(1) within fifteen days of the end of each month, or such extended period, not exceeding forty-five days, as the Institution may allow on good causes being shown for the extension, and at the same time shall pay, at the said local office, the total amount of the contribution shown thereon as due."

Learned counsel stated that therefore the impugned letter is against the Rules which specifically require the employer to pay contribution in the local office where the employer is registered. Learned counsel further submitted that the Petitioner is required to pay its contribution to the Respondents which goes to a Fund created under Section 28 of the Ordinance and as such the Respondents are obligated to provide all the prescribed benefits under Sections 35 to 46 read with Sections 47 and 48 of the Ordinance from the Fund. He stated that the Respondents are obligated to maintain lists of all hospitals, dispensaries and other facilities where the benefits should be made available for holders of Social Security Registration Cards.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondent PESSI. Learned counsel for Respondent PESSI places reliance on Regulation 3 of the Provincial Employees' Social, Security (Employers' Returns and Records) Regulations, 1967 ("Regulations") which provides:-- "An employer whose establishment has been brought within the scope of the Ordinance by Government Notification under the provisions of Section 1(3) shall complete an application to be registered on the appropriate form (Form Respondent-1 attached as Appendix III) obtainable from the nearest local office of the Institution, indicating thereon the appropriate number of his employees liable to become secured persons, and shall send to the local office within 10-days of the said Notification."
Learned counsel stated that therefore the contributions have to be made to the local office in order to ensure that the Petitioner is paying contribution with respect to all its employees working in different local areas of the Province.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The basic issue before the Court is with respect to the manner in which the contribution is to be received from the Petitioner that is whether the Petitioner is to make contributions in the local area where it carries on its projects or whether it is required to make its contribution at the local office where it is registered. The scheme of the Ordinance is that PESSI shall provide benefits to employees or their dependents in the event of sickness, maternity, injury or death during employment. In terms of Section 2(5) of the Ordinance, contribution means:-
"The sum of money payable to the Institution by an employer in respect of an employee in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance."
Employee in terms of Section 2(8) means:-- "Any person employed, whether directly or through any other person for wages or otherwise to do any skilled or unskilled, supervisory, clerical, manual or other work in, or in connection with the affairs of an industry or establishment, under a contract of service or apprenticeship, whether written or oral, expressed or implied."
In terms of Section 2(25):--
"Secured person means a person in respect of whom contributions are or were payable under this Ordinance."
The Respondent PESSI collects all contributions paid under the Ordinance and deposit them into a Fund established under Section 28 of the Ordinance called Employee's Social Security Fund. The Fund is administered by the Institution for the purposes of the Ordinance. In terms of Section 35 of the Ordinance, a secured person who is certified, by a medical practitioner authorized by the Institution is entitled to sickness benefit, maternity benefit, death grant, medical care during sickness and maternity, medical care of dependents and injury benefits. In terms of Section 46 of the Ordinance, in order to provide the stated benefits, the Respondent Institution may with the approval of the Government, establish and maintain such hospitals, dispensaries and other facilities for providing the medical care in pursuance of the provisions of the Ordinance. In terms of Section 46, the Respondent Institution can enter into agreement with Government, any local authority, private body or individual with regard to the provisions of medical care to persons entitled to it under this Ordinance. The Respondent Institution can enter into an agreement for the benefit of its employees for the utilization of the hospital, dispensary or facility and the conditions under which the benefits should be provided, the extent of supervision which the Institution may exercise over the hospital, dispensary or other medical facility and the extent and manner of the imbursement to the employer. As per Section 48 of the Ordinance, all claims for benefits under the Ordinance are to be made within such times as may be prescribed and shall be based on such documents, information and evidence as to entitlement as may be provided in the regulations. Payments in respect of such benefits will also be made in such manner and at such times and places as may be provided in the regulations. The Regulations framed under Section 80 of the Ordinance provide that a secured person shall obtain a Secured Person's Registration Card in terms of Form Respondent-5, Appendix VI of the Ordinance from the local office of the Institution and thereafter a secured person can claim the benefits provided under the Ordinance for himself or for his dependents. The name and social security number of the employee shall be inserted in the Form B-2, B-2A as Appendix I and VIII together with all other particulars specified. On the basis of the given information, the secured person is entitled to claim all amounts due against the provisions of the medical facilities in terms of the agreement it has with the Respondent Institution under Section 46 of the Ordinance. Therefore on the basis of the stated provision, it is clear that an employer is required to deposit contributions for all secured persons with the Institution and on the basis of the centrally collected funds, the medical facilities must be provided to the secured persons.

6. The question that has arisen is whether the contributions under Section 20 of the Ordinance have to be made at the local office where the employee resides and are carrying on the employers works or is the contribution to be made at the local office where the employer is registered. Section 20 of the Ordinance provides that:
"Subject to the other provisions of the Chapter, the employer, shall in respect of every employee, whether employed by him directly or through any other person pay to the Institution a contribution at such times, at such rate [not more than six per cent] and subject to such conditions as may be described."
Rule 5 of the Rules provides that:
"The employer shall submit to the Local Office of the Institution at which he is registered, the copies of pay rolls or contribution schedules referred to in rule 4(1) within fifteen days of the end of each month, or such extended period, not exceeding forty-five days, as the Institution may allow on good causes being shown for the extension, and at the same time shall pay, at the said Local Office, the total amount of the contribution shown thereon as due."

The issue is caused due to Regulation 3 of the Regulations which provides that:--
"An employer whose establishment has been brought within the scope of the Ordinance by Government Notification under the provisions of Section 1(3) shall complete an application to be registered on the appropriate form (Form Respondent-1 attached as Appendix III) obtainable from the nearest local office of the Institution, indicating thereon the appropriate number of his employees liable to become secured persons, and shall send to the local office within 10-days of the said Notification."
A bare review of the above shows that Regulation 3 has omitted the words 'the nearest local office of the Institution' where the employer is registered.

7. Local office is not defined in Section 2 of the Ordinance nor is it defined in the Rules or the Regulations. The impugned letter, however, has clarified that all establishments will pay contribution in respect of their existing and on going projects at the Sub-Office concerned within the territorial jurisdiction of such works, projects or activities are being carried out. It further states that the concerned office and such establishments are required to get their employees registered with the concerned Directorate or Sub-Office so that their employees can be benefitted from the nearby Directorate as per their entitlement under the rules. Learned counsel for the Respondent PESSI stated that the reason for the impugned letter is that the Petitioner carries on works throughout the province and in the event of any sickness or injury caused during the course of its employment for the benefit of the employee, the medical facilities available as per the Ordinance be made available locally. Therefore the impugned letter requires the Petitioner to deposit its contribution for its workers in the locality in which they are carrying on the works. Learned counsel stated that in this way the local office of the Respondent PESSI will be able to collect the contribution and ensure its payment to the secured persons of that area.

8. The spirit of the Ordinance is that under Section 28, Employee's Social Security Fund is established in which all contributions are made and from that Fund medical benefits are to be provided. Furthermore the Ordinance contemplates the verification process whereby the Respondent PESSI can check the books of the employer for the purposes of inquiring into the correctness of all contributions made for all its employees who are entitled to the benefits provided under the Ordinance. In terms of Section 22(3) of the Ordinance:-
"If an employer fails or maintain records or to submit returns as required by the regulations, or otherwise fails to comply with the provisions of subsection (1) and thereby makes it difficult to ascertain the identity of persons required to be secured or the amount of contribution payable, the contribution shall be assessed on the basis of such evidence as the Institution may find satisfactory for this purpose."

Furthermore Section 24 of the Ordinance provides in the event of default in payment of contribution to a secured person by the employer, the secured person is entitled to all the benefits as if the default has not occurred. This means that a secured person is entitled to its benefits under the Ordinance irrespective of the fact that the contribution has been paid by the employer. The secured person will be entitled to the benefits provided for in Chapter V of the Ordinance and the amounts liable to be collected from the employer can be collected from the employer in terms of Section 23 of the Ordinance as arrears of land revenue. This means that the Respondent PESSI cannot deny the secured person, the benefits it is entitled to on the, pretext that contribution has not been paid. Seen in this context, the understanding of the Respondent PESSI that contribution should be made locally and that the Petitioner should register its employees locally where it is carrying on its works is totally misconceived. The Petitioner is required to register its employees at the local office of the Respondent PESSI where it is registered and is required to pay all contributions for such employees at that local office where it is registered. The mandate of the law is that all contributions are centralized and paid towards the Fund and from the Fund all amounts are disbursed and paid out to all secured persons entitled under the Ordinance. In this regard, the Respondent PESSI is required to set up its own verification mechanism to ensure that the employer registers all persons and that it has paid the required contribution for all secured persons.

9. In this case, it is also necessary to note that it is not the grievance of the Respondent PESSI that the Petitioner is not making the requisite contributions for its employees. It is their case essentially that since the Petitioner carries on construction works throughout the Province it will be beneficial for its employees to avail medical facilities locally, hence contributions should be made locally. However, given the specific provisions of Section 46 of the Ordinance, there is no reason to deny the statutory benefits to the secured persons on the ground that the contribution was not made locally. The Respondent PESSI is required under the Ordinance to provide the requisite benefits to secured persons from the Fund and not treat a contribution as a local payment for availment of benefits.

10. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed and impugned order dated 24.4.2014 passed by Respondent No.2 is set aside. For the purposes of reading Regulation 3 relied upon by Respondent PESSI, the context use of the word 'local office' in the Regulations shall be the same as given in the Ordinance and in the Rules, meaning that the `local office' shall be read as 'local office of the Institution at which it is registered'.

Session Judge Lahore immediately requisitioned the case file and sealed the same.

3. The report would further reveal that when the case file was taken in possession, it did not contain the judgment and decree; the Stenographer of the Court was busy in typing the judgment. It was also reported that on the next day i.e. 28.03.2012. the learned Additional District Judge after completion of judgment & decree has forwarded the same to the office for placing it in the relevant file, upon which, guidance was sought from this Court.

4. After perusal of the report, vide order dated 27.09.2012, writ petition was dismissed. Feeling aggrieved, applicant preferred Intra Court Appeal No. 754-2012 which was set down for hearing before the learned Division Bench of this Court. During the course of proceedings on 05.06.2012, following order was passed:

> "The learned counsel for the appellant submits, under instructions, that due to subsequent events the instant appeal has become infrucuous. The appellant, therefore, does not wish to press the appeal.
> 2. Disposed of as having become infrucluous "

5. After the aforenoted order, C.M. 01-2013 was filed in which on 18.06.2013, notices were issued to the respondents. In the meantime as no judgment and decree was available in the record of the trial Court, the record was de-sealed and proceedings commenced before the trial Court. Feeling aggrieved applicant preferred C.M. 03-2013 through which a prayer was made that proceedings pending before the trial Court may be suspended, which was allowed on 4.7.2013. Thereafter, C.M. 02-2014 was filed, through which, a prayer was made that the judgment debtors are alienating their properties in order to frustrate the decree, therefore, they may be restrained. Vide order dated 24.07.2014, respondent/judgment debtors were restrained from alienating the properties.

6. In the above back drop, on the last date of hearing, learned counsel for the applicants were confronted with the situation that once the Intra Court Appeal was withdrawn on instructions, how could the same be resurrected and thereupon, interim orders can be passed. Learned counsel at that point in time tried to justify the proceedings initiated, however, they sought an adjournment to assist this Court further. Today, Sardar Faiz Rasul Khan Jalbani Advocate, learned counsel for the applicant has entered appearance and submits that he has instructions, to withdraw the applications.

7. We are mindful of the fact that the applications were not competent yet the applicant managed to procure prohibitory orders which we were inclined to recall, however, in the peculiar circumstances as a request for withdrawal of application has been made, we asked the learned counsel for the respondents whether he has any objection to such withdrawal, his answer was in the negative.

8. In view of the afore-noted, these applications are dismissed as withdrawn.

9. As the main application has been withdrawn, therefore, Review Application No. 54-2014 has become infructuous therefore the same is also disposed of.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule "A", appended with the judgment.

2. The common facts in all these cases are that the Petitioners are farmers, who own agricultural land from which they derive agricultural income. Agricultural income is subject to the levy of agricultural income tax under the Agricultural Act, 1997 ("Act") and the rules framed there under namely, the Punjab Agricultural Income Rules, 2001 ("Rules"). By way of amendment in the Act, Section 3B was inserted through the Punjab Finance Act, 2013 ("Finance Act") notified on 29.06.2013. In terms of Section 1 of the Finance Act, it came into force on 01.07.2013. The Petitioners challenge the interpretation of Section 3B of the Act by the Respondents on the ground that they have sought to recover agricultural income tax with retrospective effect from the Petitioners. The other ground of challenge common in all these petitions is that the Respondents seek to recover agricultural income tax without following the mandatory procedure provided under the Act as well as under the Rules.

3. The case of the Petitioners is that Section 3B of the Act came into effect on the first day of July, 2013 and would apply to the assessment year which begins from the first day of July, 2014. In these cases, the Respondents have sought to recover agricultural income tax for the assessment years 2012, 2013 and in some cases for the assessment year 2014. Learned counsel argued that "assessment year" is a defined term under the Act, which means the period of twelve months beginning on the first day of July next following the income year. In terms of the definition, Section 3B of the Act should be applied to the assessment year beginning from 01.07.2014 and not to the assessment year of 2012 or 2013. Learned counsel further argued that in terms of the mandatory process under the Act the Respondents levy, assess and collect agricultural income tax for a given assessment year. However, in these cases, they have not levied or assessed agricultural income tax but instead have issued recovery notices demanding the recovery of agricultural income tax. They argued that there is no assessment order and no explanation as to the manner in which the tax has been calculated. In some cases the period over which the amount has been calculated has not been disclosed. Learned counsel argued that the recovery notices all follow the same template and simply provide that the given tax is recoverable for the years 2012, 2013 and 2014. However, no detail has been provided as to the manner in which the amount has been calculated nor any details have been given for each assessment year. Learned counsel argued that by failing to issue an assessment order the Petitioners have been deprived of their right to challenge the assessment order under Section 7 of the Act as the Respondents have resorted to direct recovery without following due process. Learned counsel argued that the due process is provided under the Rules such that the Respondents have to issue an assessment order for a particular assessing year and in the event of non-filing of the agricultural income tax return under the Act the Respondents are required to issue notices to the Petitioner to furnish the return for the assessment year before any demand can be raised.

4. Report and para wise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned Law Officer argued that the levy of agricultural income tax has been directly linked with the declaration made for agricultural income in the income tax return filed by the taxpayer. Section 3B of the Act allows the Respondents to recover agricultural income tax at the rate prescribed in the first schedule under the Act on the basis of the income declared as agricultural income in the returns filed under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance"). He further argued that on the basis of Rule 14 of the Rules when any agricultural income chargeable to tax under the Act has escaped assessment, the amount due to the Respondents become payable and no proceeding is required to be followed as the rate of tax per acre has been provided for in the first schedule and it is applied to the amount declared in the income tax returns. He further argued that so far as the issue of retrospective application is concerned, Rule 14(3) of the Rules allows the Respondents to recover all amounts due within a period of two years from which the total agricultural income was first assessable. In these cases, the Respondents are seeking to recover the amount due to the Respondents from the year 2012 onwards, which is within the two year limit. He further argued that most of the Petitioners have not filed their agricultural tax returns under the Act and have failed to pay the required tax, hence these amounts stand due and payable from the Petitioners immediately.

5. The first question before this Court is with respect to the applicability of Section 3B of the Act. The Respondents are seeking to recover agricultural income tax for the assessment years 2012, 2013 and 2014. Notices were issued under Rule 14 of the Rules, which require the Petitioners to produce proof of payment of agricultural income within 15 days and in the event of failure the Respondents shall assess the tax payable under Rule 14 of the Rules. In terms of what has been argued on behalf of the Respondents, the notices under challenge were issued pursuant to the insertion of Section 3B of the Act through the Finance Act. The amendment reads as follows:--

"Amendment in Act 1 of 1997.---In the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act 1997 (1 of 1997), after Section 3A, the following section shall be inserted:--
3B. Tax on the basis of income tax return.- Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 3, where any person has declared agricultural income for any assessment year in the return filed under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (XLIX of 2001), the person shall pay the tax on such income at the rate specified in the Second Schedule." (Emphasis supplied (sic))

The notification is dated 29.06.2013 and the Act came into force on 01.07.2013. The question that arises is whether the Respondents can recover agricultural income tax on the strength of Section 3B of the Act for the assessment years 2012, 2013 and 2014 given that it came into effect on 01.07.2013. A tax statute operates prospectively and not retrospectively unless clearly intended and it is only where the legislative intent is clearly provided to give retrospective effect to a statutory provision, then the tax can apply with retrospective effect. Reliance is placed on the cases titled "Zila Council, Sialkot through Administrator v. Abdul Ghani Proprietor Iqbal Brothers, Sialkot and others"(PLD 2004 SC 425) and "Muhammad Ilyas v. The State" (2009 SCMR 1042). In this case, there is no such intent. Hence the provisions of the Act will apply prospectively.

6. The Act defines "assessment year" in Section 2(ac) and income year in Section 2 (da) of the Act as follows:--

Assessment year "The period of twelve months beginning on the first day of July next following the income year".

Income year "The financial year next preceding the said assessment year."

On reading both definitions, it is clear that because Section 3B of the Act came into effect on 01.07.2013 it is applicable to the assessment year, which begins 01.07.2014 as it is the next assessment year following the income year which commenced on 01.07.2013. The Respondents have sought recovery for the assessment year starting 01.07.2012 and 01.07.2013. This tantamounts to retrospective application of Section 3B of the Act, which came into effect on 01.07.2013. Hence, recovery for the assessment years 2012 and 2013 cannot be made under Section 3B of the Act.

7. The next question is in relation to the process being followed by the Respondents to recover agricultural income tax under Section 3B of the Act. Notices under Rule 14 of the Rules were issued seeking the recovery of the tax amount within 15 days' time. The notices state the amount due and also the tax years for which the amount is due. The Respondents have not been able to explain the basis on which this amount was calculated and from where the figures were taken. They have relied upon Section 3B of the Act to urge the point that the data was taken from the income tax returns filed by the Petitioner. However, they have failed to show the data or even confirm that every Petitioner has filed a tax return. Even otherwise, Section 3B of the Act does not allow the Respondents to recover agricultural income tax against the prescribed procedure under the Act.

8. Section 3 of the Act is the charging section which provides that agricultural income tax shall be levied, assessed and collected for each tax year in respect of agricultural income of a tax year of an owner at the rate specified in the First Schedule of the Act. Under the Act, tax is assessed for each assessment year in respect of the total agricultural income of that year. Notwithstanding the levy and assessment of agricultural income tax under Section 3, Section 3B of the Act provides that where a person has declared agricultural income in his income tax return then such person must pay agricultural income tax on the agricultural income declared in the tax income return at the rate specified in the Second Schedule. The purpose of Section 3B of the Act is to ensure that agricultural income tax is paid, at least, on the declared agricultural income. Hence Section 3B of the Act operates irrespective of the powers provided to levy and assess tax under Section 3 of the Act. In this way Section 3B of the Act does not override the charging section but is a part of the charging section which essentially, requires an owner to pay agricultural income tax on the agricultural income he/she has declared. Section 3B of the Act therefore, clarifies the intent of the charging section to the extent of levy and assessment where agricultural income has been declared in the income tax return. The rest of the provisions of the Act provide the mechanism for assessment and collection of tax. Assessment and collection of the tax are provided under Section 4 of the Act. Computation for assessment is under Sections 4A and 4B of the Act but when Section 3B of the Act is applied, the computation for assessment under Sections 4A and 4B of the Act will not apply. In cases falling under Section 3B of the Act the Collector assesses tax on the declared agricultural income by applying the rate given in the Second Schedule of the Act. This amount must be paid irrespective of any computation under Sections 4A and 4B of the Act. The thrust of the Respondent's case is based on the language of Section 3B of the Act which provides that notwithstanding the provisions of Section 3, where any person has declared agricultural income for any assessment year in the return filed under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (XLIX of 2001), the person shall pay the tax on such income at the rate specified in the Second Schedule. As per their understanding the requirements of levy, assessment and collection have become subservient due to the non-obstante clause of Section 3B of the Act. Section 3 of the Act is the charging section of the Act which creates the charge of the tax on agricultural income at the rate specified in the First Schedule. The tax is then assessed and collected as provided under the Act. Section 3B of the Act also creates the charge of the tax on the declared agricultural income at the rate specified. Since both the sections state the incidence of the tax, the non-obstante clause of Section 3B of the Act shall be read in the context of Section 3 of the Act. Section 3B of the Act cannot override the machinery provisions of the Act which actualizes the assessment and collection of the tax. The procedure provided under the Act and the Rules for assessment and collection of tax is mandatory and shall be applicable for the recovery of tax. This means that the owners of agricultural land even under Section 3B of the Act must file an agricultural tax return and an assessment order is mandatory because the charging section of the Act stipulates when the tax is to be charged and who is to pay the tax. The manner in which the tax is to be assessed is under Section 4 of the Act, which provides that the tax shall be assessed and collected in the prescribed manner as provided under the Rules.

9. The procedure under the Rules is that every person who is liable to pay agricultural income tax must file an agricultural tax return as per Rule 5. In terms thereof an assessee shall deliver to the Collector his/her agricultural tax return, who shall issue an acknowledgment receipt as per Form B, which shall be entered in the Register of Returns for the assessment year as per Form C. Agricultural Income Tax is based on self-assessment meaning that once a return is filed under the Act the Collector will assess the tax to be paid on the basis of the information provided in the return filed. In the event that a person does not file his/her return then Rule 6 requires the Collector of the Tehsil to issue notice in writing requiring an owner of the agricultural land to file his/her return in terms of Rule 5 within 30 days. Once the return is filed, the Collector of the Tehsil shall assess the agricultural tax of the owner for the assessment year on the basis of the return filed and determine the tax payable. In this regard, the Collector can call the assessee or require production of books of accounts as per Rules 9, 10 and 11 of the Rules. Where an assessee fails to furnish the return, Rule 12 requires the Collector to pass an assessment order to the best of his judgment. Rule 14 is related to additional assessment in circumstances where agricultural income chargeable escapes assessment or if an assessment is too low or a wrong rate has been applied. In such cases the Collector will issue notice and proceed to make the additional assessment after giving the assessee an opportunity to show cause as to why additional assessment should not be made. Sub-Rule (2) of Rule 14 provides that for the purposes of additional assessment the Collector will only proceed if he has reliable information pertaining to the reasons given in Rule 14 (1) (a) or (b) of the Rules.

10. From the aforementioned, it is clear that in order to recover agricultural tax under the Act a return must be filed and an assessment order is required. The Respondents have admittedly not passed any assessment order in any of the cases before the Court. They have relied on Section 3B of the Act and seek to recover tax on the basis of information collected from the Federal Board of Revenue ("FBR") regarding declared agricultural income in the income tax return of the Petitioners. However, even in this regard they have not been able to show the information provided by the FBR nor have they been able to clarify whether every Petitioner has filed an income tax return. The Respondents have simply declared the amount of agricultural tax due over a period of one, two or three years without even showing the breakup for each year. This is contrary to the provisions of the law. In the first instance under the Act a tax return must be filed by an owner of land chargeable to tax. Secondly, there must be an assessment order for an assessment year as the owner of land has a right to challenge the assessment order under Section 7 of the Act. With the insertion of Section 3B of the Act an assessment order is required as it will disclose the basis of the calculation of the tax levied. So even if the amount is taken from the income tax return of the owner at the rate specified in the Second Schedule, an assessment order must be issued by the Collector.

11. Therefore, these petitions are allowed and the impugned recovery notices issued by the Respondents are set aside being illegal and in violation of the mandatory provisions of law.

JUDGMENT

Mrs. Ayesha A. Malik, J.--Through this ICA, the Appellant has impugned the order dated 23.11.2015 passed by the learned Single Judge in WP Nos. 34418/2015.

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Appellant and Respondents No. 5 to 10 contested Local Government Election for the seat of General Councilor/General Member in Ward No. 4, U.C No. 26 Olakh Hathar Tehsil and District Kasur held on 31.10.2015. The Respondent No. 10 moved an application for recount of votes on 2.11.2015 which application was entertained by the Returning Officer ("RO") in the presence of all the parties and an order was issued on 2.11.2015. Thereafter the result was consolidated on Form XIII on 3.11.2015. The Respondent No. 10 filed WP No. 34418/2015 praying therein that the RO to receive his application and decide the same as per law. On this writ petition, an order was issued on 23.11.2015 requiring the RO to announce the result of the U.C after hearing the application for recount and including the valid votes.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellant submitted that Respondent No. 10 filed W.P. No. 34418/2015 for an order on his application for recount which had already been allowed and was undertaken in his presence. Learned counsel submitted that Respondent No. 10 totally misled the Court by saying that his application had not been decided as the same was decided on 7.11.2015. Subsequently the result was consolidated and Form XIII was filed. Learned counsel argued that after issuance of Form XIII, the Respondent No. 10 could not have then called for a second recount of the votes after the consolidation of result.

4. Learned counsel for the Respondent No. 10 submitted that W.P. No. 34418/2015 was filed because Respondent No. 2 did not follow the procedure prescribed under Rule 36 of the Punjab Local Government (Conduct of Elections) Rules, 2013 ("Rules"). Learned counsel stated that Respondent No. 2 was bound to follow the law, hence the writ petition was filed. Further stated that the recount took place on 2.11.2015 which was not in accordance with law which the RO was obligated to follow. Learned counsel further stated that there was no misrepresentation before the Court as the R.O. could have also informed the Court about consolidation of results. He argued that in fact the result was never consolidated on 3.11.2015.

5. Learned counsel for the Respondent ECP produced the original record before us. In terms of the original record, the result was consolidated on 3.11.2015, Form XIII was filed along with Form XIV. Learned counsel for ECP stated that recount took place in presence of Respondent No. 10 which is evident from the attendance sheet of that day. In fact, Respondent No. 10 also gave a statement before the RO that the recount had taken place and that he had no grievance against the announced result.

6. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the original record. In terms of the original record, the consolidation of result took place on 3.11.2015. Prior to the consolidation of result, Respondent No. 10's application for recount was allowed and recount was undertaken by the RO on 2.11.2015. The original attendance sheet produced before us confirms the presence of Respondent No. 10. Learned counsel for Respondent No. 10 does not deny this fact. Thereafter, Respondent No. 10 filed W.P. No. 34418/2015 on 9.11.2015. The prayer in the said writ petition was simply that the RO had not entertained his application for recount which he was obligated to do so. An order was passed on 23.11.2015 in the writ petition for the recount application to be decided as per law and all valid votes to be included. In terms of the original record, Respondent No. 10 could not have prayed for a second recount before the Court on the ground that his application had not been decided. In fact his application for recount was allowed, recount was undertaken in his presence and thereafter the result was consolidated. Once the result was consolidated, any grievance that the Respondent No. 10 may have had with the announcement of the result can be challenged before the Election Tribunal in an election petition under Section 38 of the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 read with Rule 62 of the Rules. We note that the tribunals have been notified vide notification dated 4.12.2015 issued by the Addl: Director General (Legal), Election Commission of Pakistan, Islamabad.

7. Under the circumstances, the appeal is accepted and the impugned order dated 23.11.2015 passed by learned Single Judge is set aside.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this ICA, the Appellant has impugned judgment dated 6.9.2010 passed by the learned Single/ Company Judge in C.O. No.58/2009.

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Respondents moved a petition under section 284 read with section 287 of the Companies Ordinance, 1984 ("Ordinance") for merger of Respondent No.1 into Respondent No.2. The scheme of arrangement was approved and sanctioned by the learned Company Judge through his judgment dated 6.9.2010. The Appellant is aggrieved by the findings contained in paragraph 23 of the impugned judgment wherein it provides that since the authorized capital of the transferor which is transferred to and stands vested in the transferee has already been subject to payment of the prescribed fee, requiring the transferee to again seek approval of the SECP or to pay fee all over again is neither logical nor appears to be the intent of the law. It is common ground between the parties that the transferor company paid the entire statutory fee payable on its authorized capital. After merger, the authorized share capital of the transfer will, therefore, be the aggregate of the authorized capitals of the transferor and the transferee company on which the required fee has already been paid by both companies.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the process for increasing the authorized capital is provided in section 94 of the Ordinance which procedure must be followed. Where companies are merged, the surviving or transferee company must resolve to increase its authorized capital through a special resolution. If there is any increase in the authorized capital, it must be notified by the Registrar of Companies and is liable to the fee prescribed by the Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan ("SECP"). Learned counsel argued that by way of a petition under section 284 read with section 287 of the Ordinance, the authorized capital cannot be transferred or increased. It is his contention that if the authorized capital of the merged entity is to increase, it can only be done by following the procedure under section 94 of the Ordinance and as such cannot be done through an order of the court sanctioning a scheme of arrangement under section 284 read with section 287 of the Ordinance.

4. Despite notice and citation in newspaper, no one has appeared on behalf of the Respondents, hence they were proceeded against ex parte on 29.9.2015.

5. The relevant facts are that Omer Iqbal Solvent (Pvt.) Ltd. (Respondent No.1) with its authorized capital of Rs.200 million divided into 2,000,000 ordinary shares of Rs.100 each, merged into Tahir Omer Industries (Pvt.) Ltd. (Respondent No.2) by virtue of the impugned judgment dated 06.09.2010. The authorized capital of Tahir Omer Industries (Pvt.) Ltd. was Rs.200 million divided into 2,000,000 ordinary shares of Rs.100 each. As per clause vi(7) of the scheme of arrangement the authorized capital of Omer Iqbal Solvent (Pvt.) Ltd. merges into the authorized capital of Tahir Omer Industries (Pvt.) Ltd. The SECP raised an objection on the scheme of arrangement to the effect that if the authorized capital of Tahir Omer Industries (Pvt.) Ltd. is to be increased, it must be done as per sections 92 and 94 of the Ordinance. This objection was decided in the impugned judgment against the Appellant. Hence this appeal.

6. The basic question is whether the authorized capital of the company can be merged and thereby increased vide an order of the court in a petition under section 284 read with section 287 of the Ordinance? Authorized share capital essentially is a notional value which denotes the upper limit for the paid up capital of a company. It does not reflect any investment or actual money put into the company but prescribes a limit on the investment that can be made. At the time of incorporation, the company fixes its authorized capital in the Memorandum of Association and a fee is charged by the SECP on this amount for the purposes of incorporation. The first question is whether the authorized capital of the transferor company merges or gets added to the authorized capital of the transferee company? And that the authorized capital of the transferor company is reflected in the authorized capital of the transferee company? As per the Appellant the authorized capital cannot be added on or merge into the transferee company's authorized capital without following the process under section 92 read with section 94 of the Ordinance.

7. The Respondents applied for sanction of its scheme of arrangement for merger of two companies. Merger or amalgamation is the absorption of one company into another. Sanction of a scheme of arrangement by the Court under section 287 of the Ordinance means that the property of the transferor company transfers into the transferee company. "Property" as per section 287 of the Ordinance includes rights and powers of every description. Authorized capital represents the total share capital which a company is authorized to maintain. The shareholders have agreed on this upper limit to which their paid up capital can reach. At the time of incorporation a registration fee is paid on the value of the authorized capital of the company which is provided in the Memorandum of Association of the Company. To increase the authorized share capital, the company has to pass a special resolution and once approved registration fee is paid to the SECP on the revised value of the authorized share capital. Therefore the authorized share capital is the notional value which represents the ability of the shareholders to invest in the company. This value is approved by the SECP and a fee is paid on it. It is thus the right of a shareholder to subscribe to the share capital of the company. Hence it is not the notional value which is being transferred or merged but the 'right' to subscribe to the share capital of the company. This right to subscribe is covered under section 284 read with section 287 of the Ordinance which can be transferred to the transferee company. Furthermore we are of the opinion that for the purposes of section 284 of the Ordinance, an aggregate sum of the authorized capital of both companies is calculated which is reflected in the transferee company's authorized capital. As such there is no increase in the authorized share capital which is liable to a fee from the SECP. We are also of the opinion that this fee cannot be charged because it has already been paid by each company and would impose an unnecessary burden on the surviving company.

8. The next question is does the merger of authorized capital require a separate process under section 92 of the Ordinance or is it accomplished under section 287 read with section 284 of the Ordinance. Section 284 of the Ordinance gives the company power to sanction compromise or arrangement between the companies and its members or its creditors. Section 284 read with section 287 is a complete code which sanctions a merger/amalgamation, therefore, there is no reason for a separate application to be filed for this purpose. The whole process of section 284 read with section 287 of the Ordinance is to reconstitute the company without making several applications under the Ordinance for effectuating the merger. Section 284 of the Ordinance itself provides for the process to compromise in a summary way by an order of the Court, which order becomes effective when it is filed with the Registrar within 30 days. Hence section 284 read with section 287 of the Ordinance does not require a separate application to be filed for the merger of authorized share capital.

9. The arguments of learned counsel for the Appellant that in fact the merged entity has a new authorized capital and must seek approval of the same through a special resolution is baseless. This contention of the Appellant has been dealt with in great deal through the impugned judgment which finds that when a scheme is sanctioned by the Court, it would automatically result in the merger of the authorized capital of the merging company without the need of enhancement of the authorized capital for the transferee company. Further that section 287 of the Ordinance is a complete code in the form of a single window clearance system which ensures that the parties are not put to unnecessary procedure for making applications for authorized changes on account of the merger. We find no illegality with this finding of learned Company Judge.

10. Therefore, we do not find any illegality in the impugned judgment, as the Appellant has not been able to show how the issue of the authorized capital stands outside the ambit of section 284 read with 287 of the Ordinance. Under the circumstances, the instant appeal is dismissed and judgment dated 6.9.2010 passed by the learned Single Judge is maintained.

MH/J-1/L Appeal dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner has challenged the levy of federal excise duly on the Petitioner for the franchise services provided to the Petitioner under its License and Technical Assistance Agreement dated 01.04.1994 between the Petitioner and Honda Japan.

2. Briefly the facts of the case are that the Petitioner is engaged in the business of manufacture and sale of Honda automobiles. The Petitioner entered into a License and Technical Assistance Agreement ("Agreement") with Honda Motor Company Japan, a corporation registered under the laws of Japan, with its principal office in Tokyo Japan. In terms of the Agreement, the Petitioner has been granted a license to assemble, manufacture and sell automobiles using the Honda patent. The Petitioner also receives technical assistance to use the Honda patent to manufacture and sell Honda automobiles in Pakistan. The Respondents have levied federal excise duty under the Federal Excise Act, 2005 ("Act") on the franchise services received by the Petitioner under the Agreement. The Petitioner is aggrieved by this levy, hence this Petition.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Petitioner does not receive any franchise services under the Agreement, hence is not liable to tax under the Act. Learned counsel explained that "franchise" is defined under Section 2(12a) of the Act whereas "services" is defined under Section 2(23) of the Act. He argued that in terms of the definition of the two words, the Petitioner does not receive any franchise service which can be taxed under the Act. He argued that there is a contractual arrangement with Honda Japan whereby the Petitioner has been granted a license to assemble and sell Honda automobiles using the Honda patent and its

Know How. He argued that in terms of Section 3(1)(d) of the Act no services are being provided to the Petitioner by Honda Japan which are subject to the levy of Federal Excise Duty. It is the case of the Petitioner that the use of a patent under the Agreement is not a service but is use of a movable property which cannot be called a service. He argued that Honda Japan is the owner of the patent and merely shares its technical knowledge so as to protect its patent and ensure standardization of its product. Further argued that the Agreement is not an agreement for services but in fact is an agreement for permission to use the patent of Honda Japan which is not a taxable service. Hence, the levy of federal excise duty on the so called services provided by Honda Japan to the Petitioner is ultra vires to the Constitution, the Excise Rules and General Order No.4. Reliance has been placed on Dr. MB Ankalsaria v. Commissioner of Wealth Tax, Karachi (1992 SCMR 1755), Diamond Food Industries Limited v Joseph Wolf GmbH & Co. and another (2004 CLD 343) and Amin Textile and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2002 CLC 1714).

4. On behalf of the Respondents it was argued that under the Agreement, the Petitioner is provided franchise services which are subject to federal excise duty under Section 3 of the Act. It is their case that the relationship between Honda Japan and the Petitioner is such that the Petitioner is allowed to use the patents, design and other proprietary rights of Honda Japan to manufacture and sell Honda automobiles in Pakistan. Under the Agreement, Honda Japan provides the Petitioner all its secret technical information, its Know How, data, formulae including designs, drawings, standards, specifications, technical record, manuals, material lists and direction maps. The grant of this technical assistance is a service for the purposes of the Act and without this service the Petitioner cannot manufacture Honda automobiles in Pakistan. Further argued that furnishing of all technical assistance and Know How is a service which is subject to the tax. He argued that it is not movable property of the business of the Petitioner as Honda Japan's provision of technical Know How and assistance to the Petitioner is a service which enables the Petitioner to manufacture, assemble and sell vehicles.

5. Heard and record perused.

6. The Petitioner has challenged the levy of federal excise duty on the franchise services provided under the Agreement on the ground that it does not receive franchise services from Honda Japan. Section 3(1)(d) of the Act levies federal excise duty on services provided in Pakistan, including services which originate outside of Pakistan but provided in Pakistan. Franchise services are provided in Table II of the First Schedule of the Act as item No.11. Franchise is defined in Section 2(12a) of the Act as follows:--

"Franchise" means an authority given by a franchiser under which the franchisee is contractually or otherwise granted any right to produce, manufacture, sell or trade in or do any other business activity in respect of goods or to provide service or to undertake any process identified with franchiser against a fee or consideration including royalty or technical fee, whether or not a trade mark, service mark, trade name, logo, brand name or any such representation or symbol, as the case may be, is involved."

Services have been defined in Section 2 (23) of the Act as follows:--

"Services" means services, facilities and utilities leviable to excise duty under this Act or as specified in the First Schedule read with Chapter 98 of the Pakistan Customs Tariff, including the services, facilities and utilities originating from Pakistan or its tariff area or terminating in Pakistan or its tariff area."

The Respondents FBR then issued General Order No.4/2006 which provided the manlier in which assessable value of the franchise services could be determined for levy of excise duty on the franchise fee or technical fee or on royalty. In terms of the definition given the word "franchise services" means the services facilities and utilities provided in the First Schedule. Franchise is the right to produce, manufacture, sell or deal in any product or business or service for a fee or consideration including a technical fee or royalty. Therefore, a franchise agreement will grant the franchisee the right to operate its business in the name and style of the franchisor's business. So in essence it is a way to do business. A franchise agreement allows the franchisee the right to use the mark or patent of a franchisor for a royalty or fee. The franchisee must ensure that the goods or services maintain the uniformity and standard of the franchisor's goods or services. The franchisor provides the technical assistance and the Know How to protect its mark or patent so as to ensure uniformity in quality. Therefore, a franchisor shares its business model with all relevant details so that the franchisee can use the patent, logo or mark of the franchisor and maintain the standard, style, quality and look of the product or services provided, as if it is given by the franchisor itself. The franchisor must grant the franchisee the right to use its patent or mark or logo, that is its intellectual property, to the extent necessary to operate the franchisee business. In addition to this the franchisor also provides the assistance and Know How in support of the business and helps to solve problems along the way. Therefore, franchising is a business relationship between the parties where the franchisor services and facilitates the business of the franchisee within defined parameters.

7. The Agreement between the Petitioner and Honda Japan is a license technical assistance agreement. The Petitioner under this agreement is granted a license by the franchisor to assemble, manufacture and sell automobiles in terms of the specific models and types listed in Exhibit I of the Agreement by using the patent and design of Honda Japan, the licensor. In terms of Article 1 of the Agreement, the licensor will provide the Petitioner/licensee all secret and technical information, data, formulae, designs, drawing, standards, specifications, technical records, material lists, processing etc., which are necessary for the manufacture, testing, inspection, sale, maintenance, repair and service of the automobiles. The Know How is also necessary for the construction and operation of the plant which will manufacture the automobiles. This technical assistance and Know How provided by Honda Japan is for the purposes of setting up a plant and its manufacturing facilities as and when desired by the Petitioner/licensee. In terms of Article 3 the Petitioner also receives technical guidance and technical training from the licensor as and when required. As per Article 12 of the Agreement, in consideration for the technical assistance and Know How and use of the patent, the Petitioner pays a license fee and a royalty to the Honda Japan. The Petitioner is therefore, provided the business model of Honda Japan to manufacture Honda automobiles. For this service the Petitioner pays a fee to Honda Japan. The nature of the relationship between the Petitioner and Honda Japan is governed by the Agreement. The Petitioner runs its own business in accordance with, Honda Japan's model. The Petitioner essentially purchases a business package from Honda Japan which entails the provisions of services aimed at guaranteeing a uniform operation and style of the product. In this package Honda Japan services the business of the Petitioner by providing it the use of its intellectual property rights, technical assistance and Know How for manufacturing and sale of Honda automobiles. For the services rendered the Petitioner pays a fee and also pays royalty. The Petitioner is given the specifications of the automobiles which have to be manufactured in Pakistan under the Agreement along with Know How and technical assistance, guidance and training as and when it is required. These are all in the form of services provided by Honda Japan to the Petitioner for the consideration stipulated in Article 12 of the Agreement. The fact that the technical assistance and Know How is the proprietary right of Honda Japan does not mean or suggest that it is not a service provided by Honda Japan. Also the fact that the Petitioner manufactures the automobiles does not take the ambit of the Agreement out of franchise services as the Petitioner manufactures and sell automobiles in Pakistan and also provides after sale services to its customers. The franchise services provided by Honda Japan are for manufacture, sale and all related services provided by the Petitioner. These all fall within the ambit of franchise and services under the Act. As per the Agreement Honda Japan is the owner of all technical assistance and Know How provided by it and the Petitioner merely enjoys its permission to use the same for a price agreed between the parties. The Agreement in fact provides a way of doing business to the Petitioner, which tantamount to a service provided by Honda Japan. Therefore, since this is a service provided by Honda Japan to the Petitioner which originates outside Pakistan but is rendered in Pakistan, it is liable to pay federal excise duty under Section 3 of the Act.

8. Under the circumstances no case for interference by this Court is made out. Petition dismissed.

Date of hearing: 26th February, 2014.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--Through this petition, the Petitioner seeks a direction to the Respondent NADRA for issuance of her computerized National Identity Card (CNIC).

2. The case of the Petitioner is that she is a citizen of Pakistan by birth. She was adopted by Shamim Akhtar who has obtained a guardianship certificate on 23.5.2005 from the court of Mrs. Lubna Ali, Guardian Judge-I, Lahore vide Guardian Case No.39/GC of 2005. After obtaining the guardianship certificate, the guardian applied for B-Form which was issued by the Respondents on 6.6.2006. Thereafter the Petitioner applied for a passport which was also issued to the Petitioner on 12.2.2011 in which the father's name is shown as Guardian Shamim Akhtar. The Petitioner applied for her CNIC where she clearly stipulated that her guardian's name is Shamim Akhtar. However the Respondents have denied the Petitioner the issuance of her CNIC essentially on the ground that she did not have the required information under the parentage column as she was an adopted child.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the B-Form has been issued which clearly provides in the column of father's name that the Petitioner is 'Lay Palik'. In the column of the mother's name it provides the name of the guardian Shamim Akhtar. Similarly he argued that on the passport it provides that she has a guardian by the name of Shamim Akhtar. He further argued that no information has been withheld from the Respondents yet despite the same the Petitioner has not been issued her CNIC. He argued that the basis for issuance of the CNIC is the B-Form and that the Respondents have denied the Petitioner her fundamental right as the citizen of Pakistan. Learned counsel further argued that on 22.3.2006 A/Director General of the Respondents issued a letter to the Headquarters NADRA (SRC Dte), Islamabad requiring a policy to be formulated with respect to adopted children under guardianship. However he argued that despite the same no such policy has been made rendering the Petitioner without any remedy against the Respondents.

4. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondents. Learned Law Officer on behalf of the Respondents argued that the Petitioner has been granted guardianship certificate on 18.5.2005 from the court of Mrs. Lubna Ali, Guardian Judge-I, Lahore. The Petitioner is still a minor and under the Majority Act, 1875 until she attains the age of 21 years she cannot file the instant petition. He further argued that the B-Form shows that the father's name is 'Lay Palik' whereas the mother's name is shown as Shamim Akhtar. He argued that Shamim Akhtar is the name of the guardian and not the name of the mother of the Petitioner. Further argued that even on the Secondary School Certificate her parentage is mentioned as Shamim Akhtar whereas Shamim Akhtar is the guardian of the Petitioner. He argued that the record of the Petitioner is contradictory, hence she has been denied the issuance of the CNIC. He argued that the record does not clearly stipulate that the Petitioner is an adopted child because in the B-Form in column of mother it says Shamim Akhtar and in the passport under the father's name it says Guardian Shamim Akhtar. He argued that the petitioner should rectify her status as 'adopted child' on her Secondary School Certificate, on the B-Form as well as on the passport after which the Respondents will consider her cases for the purposes of issuance of the CNIC.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

6. The preliminary objection raised by the learned Law Officer for Respondent NADRA is with respect to the maintainability of the instant writ petition on the ground that the Petitioner had not attained majority, hence she is not entitled to file the instant writ petition. The record shows that the Petitioner's date of birth is 22.7.1995 making her 18 years 6 months and 7 days. The Petitioner is pursuing the instant writ petition for her fundamental right to be issued a CNIC as a citizen of Pakistan. This petition is maintainable and there is no substance in the objection raised by the learned Law Officer.

7. The basic reason for denying the Petitioner her CNIC is that she is an adopted child. A guardianship certificate has been issued by the court of competent jurisdiction on 23.5.2005. This is not denied by the Respondents. The objection of the Respondents is that she does not have a mother or father and that she is adopted by Shamim Akhtar, hence she cannot show the name of Shamim Akhtar as her mother or her father. Specifically the Respondents have objected to the fact that on her Secondary School Certificate it says "son/daughter of Shamim Akhtar". On her Intermediate Part-1 and Part-II Annual Examination it says "Father's name-Shamim Akhtar" and on the passport it says "Father's name-guardianship Shamim Akhtar". The Respondents case is that the record of the Petitioner is contradictory and it is unclear from the record as to whether Shamim Akhtar is the mother or the father or the guardian. The Respondents have also raised the objection that the Petitioner should change her documentation to show her status as an 'adopted child' under the guardianship of Shamim Akhtar. I have heard the learned Law Officer at length and find that the arguments raised by the Respondents are without any merit or legal justification. The Petitioner applied for her CNIC. A review of the form filed by the Petitioner shows that it clearly mentions the name of her guardian as Shamim Akhtar. Column No.11 of the CNIC Form specifically asks for 'Guardian Name' which the Petitioner has provided. Serial No.9 asks for relationship with family head and the Petitioner has written adopted child against that question. Therefore there is no contradiction in the record of the Petitioner with respect to the fact that she is under the guardianship of Shamim Akhtar by virtue of Guardianship Certificate dated 23.5.2005.

8. National Database and Registration Authority Ordinance, 2000 (NADRA Ordinance 2000) preamble stipulates that it is an Ordinance to provide for the establishment of the National Database and Registration Authority so as to facilitate the registration of all persons and the establishment and maintenance of multipurpose database, data warehouses, networking, interfacing of databases and related facilities. Section 9 of the NADRA Ordinance 2000 provides that every citizen in or out of Pakistan who has attained the age of eighteen years shall get himself and a parent or guardian of every citizen who has not attained that age shall, not later than one month after the birth of such citizen, get such citizen registered in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance. The primary purpose of this Ordinance and the authority thereunder is to register persons or classes thereof including citizens. It has already been held by this Court in the case titled 'Muhammad Salah-ud-Din v. NADRA' (PLD 2012 Lahore 378) that a national database is to be maintained by the respondent. This database record maintains all the required data regarding a citizen, thus establishing a database or information base known as the citizen database. Every citizen is required to be registered with the respondent and to effectuate the registration every citizen is issued a national identity card. The national identity card is a legal document for identification of a citizen. Its issuance means that the information contained therein is valid and correct. Every citizen who has attained the age of eighteen years is entitled to get himself registered with the Respondent No.3. Section 9 of the NADRA Ordinance 2000 specifically addresses every citizen who has attained eighteen years to get himself registered and every parent or guardian of every citizen to register the birth of such citizen. The application form of the Respondents which seeks the details of the applicant for the CNIC contemplates the category of 'Guardian' and also inquires the relationship with the family head to be explained. The Petitioner is under the guardianship of Shamim Akhtar as issued by the Guardian Court on 23.5.2005. She is entitled to registration with the Respondents and for issuance of her CNIC. Under the circumstances there is no justification to deny the Petitioner issuance of her CNIC.

9. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is allowed. The Respondents are directed to issue the CNIC to the Petitioner forthwith.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned the sealing of distillery plant by the Respondent No.2 for being illegal and contrary to law.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that the Petitioner runs a distillery plant, which is environment friendly and does not cause any adverse environmental effect nor any pollution. The Petitioner received a notice on 21.10.2008 requiring the Petitioner to appear before the Director (North/P&C), EPA Punjab with respect to a complaint issued that its distillery plant was generating water waste, which is exceeding the NEQS limits. The Petitioner filed a reply to the notice wherein it explained the steps that had been taken to remain within the NEQS limits. On 12.02.2009 an Environmental Protection Order (EPO) was issued under section 16 of PEPA, 1997. It was found that the liquid effluents released by the distillery plant exceed the NEQS limits. Against this order, the Petitioner filed an appeal before the Environmental Protection Tribunal, Lahore which appeal is still pending. Thereafter, a complaint was filed under section 21(3)(a) of PEPA, 1997 (Act of 1997) by Director General, Environmental Protection Agency, Lahore on the ground that the locals of the area of the distillery plant have raised a protest against the toxic effluents being discharged into the water and damaging public property, adversely affecting the crops, the land and the health of the people. The complaint is also pending before Environmental Tribunal, Lahore. In the meanwhile, on 15.02.2014 a notice was issued to the Petitioner essentially on the same grounds as contained in the EPO dated 12.02.2009 and the complaint under section 21(3)(a) of the Act of 1997, directing the Petitioner to appear before the Respondent No.4. On the said date, the Petitioner appeared and filed his reply on 17.02.2014. The Petitioner explained that the matter is sub-judice before the Environmental Tribunal and that the matter is governed by a special law, therefore, the Respondents did not have jurisdiction under the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 (Act of 2013). After issuing the said notice and without passing any order, the Respondent No.2 sealed the distillery plant of the Petitioner on 24.02.2014. The grievance of the Petitioner is that the act of sealing is illegal as the Respondents do not have jurisdiction under the Punjab Local Government Ordinance, 2001 (Ordinance of 2001) or the Act of 2013. Learned counsel argued that the Act of 1997 is a special law specifically made for the protection and improvement of the environment and for the prevention and control of pollution. Therefore, he argued that since there is a special law the Respondents cannot exercise general powers under the Act of 2013. Learned counsel further argued that the Respondents did not follow any procedure, did not give the Petitioner an opportunity to rectify the defect, did not impose any penalty, did not give the Petitioner any hearing and yet directly went and sealed the distillery plant. Learned counsel further argued that no written order has been passed, hence the act of sealing by the Respondent No.2 is illegal. Further argued that no adequate, efficacious and alternate remedy is available to the Petitioner, hence this writ petition has been filed.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents. Learned Law Officer argued that on 13.02.2014 an application was submitted before the Respondent No.3 stating therein that the distillery plant of the Petitioner was emitting liquid effluents into the water as a result of which the people of the locality were suffering from various health issues. She argued that the matter became so serious and that the complainant being farmers and other people of locality threatened to protest on the streets against the pollution being caused by the Petitioner if no action was taken against them by the competent authority. The matter was brought to the notice of the Respondent No.2, who convened a meeting of the stakeholders on 15.02.2014. The meeting was attended by the DSP Headquarter on behalf of the DPO, XEN Drainage, District Officer (Environment), the representative of the Kissan Board and Kissan Itehad (the complainants) and a large number of the inhabitants of the area including the management of the Petitioner. The Petitioner was informed that the effluents of the units had hazardous effect on the people of the locality. Mr. Rizwan Niaz, Adman Manager of the Petitioner was directed to stop the discharge of effluent of the distillery. On 17.02.2014 the management of the Petitioner produced an agreement with the Drainage Department and others that they would stop the discharge of the polluted water into the drains and assured that the polluted water of the distillery would be thrown into the drain only when it was treated as per the standards of the Environment Department. Notwithstanding this agreement, the Petitioner continued to drain out the polluted water without any regard to the hazard it was causing. Again a meeting was held on 24.02.2014 when the management of the Petitioner was present and it was decided that the plant should be visited to ascertain the real situation. The representatives of the complainants along with others visited the distillery plant of the Petitioner where it was found that the polluted water of the distillery was still being thrown in the drain without proper care. Learned Law Officer argued that several warnings were given to the Petitioner yet it continued to drain out the polluted water. Therefore, the Respondent No.2 was compelled to take necessary action by sealing the distillery plant of the Petitioner. Learned Law Officer further argued that the Petitioner was well aware that some action will be taken, as it was given fair warning and notice of the same. She argued that they gave an undertaking to correct the situation, however they failed to rectify the issue. Further argued that the DCO under section 138 of the Act of 2013 can seal the premises where it is considered that there is a serious threat to public safety or welfare or danger to life and liberty. She argued that the Petitioner has a remedy available against the sealing order under Section 143 of the Act of 2013, which is the appropriate remedy for the Petitioner to avail.

4. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and reviewed the record available on the file.

5. The act of sealing the distillery plant was done after giving notice to the Petitioner and after giving it an opportunity to rectify the issue. The original record produced before the Court shows that the Petitioner participated in the meetings and undertook that it will not throw the polluted water into the drainage and shall ensure its safe disposal. Therefore the record shows that the Petitioner had fair warning of the situation at hand. As to the act of sealing the distillery plant by the Respondent No.3, the power to seal is under Section 138 of the Act of 2013 which is to be exercised in cases of threat to public health, safety or welfare of the public. This power is an independent power and the pendency of the appeal or complaint against the Petitioner cannot prevent the Respondents from taking notice of a serious threat to public health and safety. Furthermore, it is noted that remedy of appeal is available under Section 143 of the Act of 2013.

6. Therefore, under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petition Dismissed.

SL/C-9/L Petition dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule "A", appended with the judgment.

2. All the Petitioners are land owners in Tehsil Kamalia, District Toba Tek Singh. They have been issued assessment orders by Assistant Commissioner, Kamlia ("AC") who is the Collector of the Tehsil in terms of the Punjab Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1997 ("Act"). The assessment orders pertain to the years 2012-13, 2013-14 and 2014-15. The case of the Petitioners is that they have paid agricultural income tax as per Section 3(1) of the Act-read with the First Schedule, hence they are not liable to pay agriculture income tax on second time as demanded by the AC. The other contention of the petitioners is that a relief package in terms of letters dated 22.9.2015 issued by the Director General, Directorate General Agriculture (Ext. & AR), Punjab and 5.8.2016 issued by the Additional Secretary (Admn), Government of Punjab, Agriculture Department, Lahore was given to the farmers for losses occurred in the previous years which has not been considered by the AC while passing assessment orders. Moreover the orders passed by the AC have failed to take into consideration the process provided under the Act for the purposes of assessment of agricultural income tax. It is their case that without issuance of notices and hearing the parties, the impugned orders have been passed for different assessment years. More importantly the orders are not speaking orders and have failed to follow the procedure laid down under the Act and the Punjab Agricultural Income Rules, 2001 ("Rules"). In this regard, they have relied upon the two judgments of this Court dated 26.10.2015 passed in W.P. No.15628/2015 and 3.2.2016 passed in W.P. No.87/2016 to urge that this matter has been repeatedly decided by this Court. However the Collector of Tehsil has issued the assessment orders in absolute disregard of this Court's judgments as well as in violation of the Act and the Rules.

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the assessment orders raise a demand for agriculture income tax without making any assessment as required under Sections 3 and 4 of the Act. Learned counsel further argued that the orders failed to show on which date they have decided what formula has been applied and how the amounts have been calculated. They argued that the figures on the assessment order appear to be random figures as no basis have been given as to from where these amounts have been taken and how they have been calculated. They have also pointed out item No.7 of the order to show that income tax has already been paid and this has not been taken into consideration. It has been argued that the Act as well as the Rules provide a limitation for assessment to be made whereas the assessment orders pertaining to the year 2012-13 are time barred order as no assessment can be made after the expiry of two years from the end of the assessment year in which agriculture income was first assessable. Learned counsel argued that without following the process and without making a proper assessment, the so called assessment orders are in absolute violation of the law prescribed for the levy, assessment and collection of agricultural income tax.

4. Report and para wise comments have been filed in W.P. No.4406/2016 which have been relied upon for all the petitions. Learned Law Officer at the very outset, explained that this is the first year in which an effort has been made by the Respondents to levy, assess and collect agriculture income tax from the land owners as provided under the Act and the Rules. Learned Law Officer further stated that the orders passed by the AC provide the heads under which the amounts have been calculated and prior to the issuance of the assessment orders, notices were issued to the Petitioners. However, the Petitioners did not respond to any of the notices. He further argued that a comprehensive effort has been made to levy the tax as per the law.

5. Assistant Commissioner/Collector Tehsil Kamalia is also present in Court along with the original record pertaining to the cases of the Petitioners. He stated that he issued the notices to the Petitioners in December 2015 and thereafter passed the assessment orders on 12.1.2016. When questioned that there are three different assessment orders for three different assessment years, he clarified that all assessment orders for the different assessment years were issued on 12.1.2016. With respect to the process followed by him, he stated that notices under Rule 6 of the Rules were issued to the Petitioners for filing of returns. Since they did not comply with the said notices, the assessment orders were passed in January 2016. With regard to the calculations made and the figures provided in the impugned orders, the AC while relying upon the original files stated that he has looked at the girdawiries for calculation of tax on cultivated land and that his calculations are evident from the case files as he has taken the information from the relevant documents of the Petitioners. He further explained that guidelines have been issued on the procedure for assessment and collection of agricultural income tax which has been followed by him.

6. Heard and record perused.

7. All the cases pertain to Tehsil Kamalia, District Toba Tek Singh and have been assessed by the AC who is present in Court. At the very outset, the Respondents were confronted with two judgments of this Court which provide detail procedure to be followed under the Act and the Rules which have not been followed. The Respondents have no response to this query. It appears that the entire exercise of passing assessment orders was carried out without implementing the judgments of this Court.

8. The first issue before the Court is with respect to the question of limitation. Admittedly, all the assessment orders were passed on 12.1.2016. The assessment orders pertain to the assessment years 1.7.2012 to 30.6.2013, 1.7.2013 to 30.6.2014 and 1.7.2014 to 30.6.2015. The Act defines "assessment year" in Section 2(ac) and income year in Section 2 (da) of the Act as follows:--

Assessment year "The period of twelve months beginning on the first day of July next following the income year".

Income year "The financial year next preceding the said assessment year."

According to Section 2(j) of the Act "tax year" means the agricultural year as defined in the Punjab Land Revenue Act, 1967. "Agricultural year" means the year commencing on the first day of July or on such other date as the Board of Revenue, with the approval of Provincial Government, may by notification appoint for any specified area. Thereafter the assessment year starts from first of July and ends twelve months thereafter. Rule 13 of the Rules provides that no assessment shall be made after the expiry of two years from the end of the assessment year in which total agricultural income was first assessable. The first assessment order is for the assessment year 2012-13, meaning from 1.7.2012 to 31.6.2013. Given that the order was passed on 12.1.2016, the assessment order for the 2012-13 is clearly a time barred order as more than two years have passed from the date of the impugned order issued on 12.1.2016. Hence no assessment or recovery can be made for this assessment year by the Respondents.

9. The next question that arises is with respect to the assessment years 2013-14 and 2014-15. Admittedly, the assessment orders were all passed on the same date being 12.1.2016, meaning that assessment for the year 2013-2014 and the assessment for the year 2014-15 were made in January 2016. The only justification offered for this wrong practice is that an effort has been made to streamline the process and start assessing agricultural income tax as required under the Act and the Rules so as to recover revenue due to the Petitioners. In this regard, the law clearly requires that at the end of the assessment year, an assessment order shall be passed and thereafter the tax shall be collected. The assessment year starts in July and ends twelve months thereafter. Instructions to this effect are also provided in the form of guidelines issued by the Respondents, however, it was clearly not followed by the AC. The mandate of the law must be strictly followed. The Respondents are directed to ensure that they follow the requirements of the law and pass assessment orders for each assessing year at the prescribed time as required under the Act and the Rules, so that at the end of the every assessing year the tax pertaining to that particular tax year can be collected. Furthermore in future the practice of passing assessment orders for several different assessment years in one go should be avoided by the Respondents.

10. The other challenge to the assessment orders is that these are not speaking orders and that the prescribed process was not followed. Section 3(i) of the Act provides that agricultural income tax shall be levied, assessed and collected in respect of agricultural income of the owner, at the rate specified in the First Schedule to the Act. The explanation provides that the tax calculated under the First Schedule is based on the cultivated land for a tax year. Subsection (3) of Section 3 provides that agricultural income tax shall be levied, assessed and collected for each assessment year on the total agricultural income at the rate specified in the Second Schedule and subsection (4) provides that out of the two taxes assessed under subsections (1) and (3) to Section 3 of the Act, the assessee shall be liable to pay the tax, whichever of the two shall be greater. This means that the AC was required to make an assessment of tax year under Section 3(1) and (3) of the Act. He has to determine which tax is higher, meaning thereby the Petitioners have to pay tax on cultivated land or on agricultural income and he could only then raise the demand for agricultural income tax. The impugned orders have not carried out this exercise and are not issued in accordance with Section 3 of the Act as there is no assessment under Section 3(1) or (3). It also appears that in some cases demand for tax on cultivated land and agricultural income has been raised.

11. The AC has totally misunderstood the function of assessment of agricultural income tax and the order to be passed thereunder. For the purposes of assessment and collection of tax Sections 4, 4-A, 4-B, 4-C and 4-D of the Act provides the mechanism to be followed on the basis of which an assessment has to be made by the Collector of the Tehsil. While adopting the procedure, a speaking order must be passed by the Collector of the Tehsil to show how he calculated and assessed the tax from the owner of the property. The order must detail everything and reliance on the record is misconceived. The assessment order is an appealable order, hence it must provide the details on the basis of which an appeal can be filed. For taxing purposes, the Respondents cannot rely on the record to explain and justify an assessment order. The orders impugned before the Court are not speaking orders and do not give any detail on the basis of which the figures have been calculated and ultimately tax has been assessed. The concept of assessing tax requires an application of mind by the adjudicating officer. The Collector of the Tehsil must document the basis of his calculations, the documents relied upon and show his calculations. Assessment to tax is made on an annual basis and must take into consideration the returns filed by the owner of the land as required under Section 4 of the Act read with Rule 5 of the Rules. Every owner of land is required under the Act to file a return in terms of Form-A on or before 30th day of December following income year. The Collector of the Tehsil can extend the date for filing of returns to facilitate the taxpayer but no extension of time can be given beyond 30 days. Where no return is filed notice must be issued to the owner by the Collector of the Tehsil requiring the return to be filed. If no return is filed he can pass an assessment order based on his best judgment in terms of Rule 12 of the Rules. Depending on the best judgment assessment order must be a speaking order wherein the Collector of the Tehsil must show the basis of his calculation for the purposes of assessing the total agricultural income of the assessee and explaining how he has determined the amount of tax that is payable.

12. In these petitions, the AC stated that the impugned orders are based on his best judgment under Rule 12 of the Rules as no returns were filed by any of the Petitioners. He further states that he issued notices in December; 2015 and passed the assessment orders in January, 2016. Learned counsel for the Petitioners admitted that the Petitioners have not filed their tax return as required under the Act. In this regard, it has already been held that filing of agricultural tax returns is mandatory and the assessing officer that is the Collector of the Tehsil must consider the returns filed by the owners of the land before passing the assessment orders.

13. With respect to W.Ps. Nos.6376, 6377, 6378, 6379 and 6677 of 2016, it is stated that these Petitions raise the common question of law as stated in the preceding paragraphs, however, these Petitions pertain to Tehsil Sargodha, District Sargodha, hence are decided in the same terms thereof.

14. In W.Ps. Nos. 7602, 8239 and 8392 of 2016 challan forms have been issued to the Petitioners along with notices requiring the amounts to be paid within seven days. In these cases, the Petitioners have not filed any return and there is no assessment orders. Every owner of land is required under the Act to file returns in terms of Form-A on or before 30th day of December following income year. He is liable to pay tax with respect to agricultural income in one income year. He may by means of a challan make payment and also furnish his return so that the liability can be assessed. Rule 4 of the Rules when read with Section 3 of the Act clearly provides that the tax that is required to be paid by the taxpayer is either based on the assessment made under Section 3(1) or based on the assessment made under Section 3(3) whichever is higher on a taxpayer who has declared the agricultural income in the income tax returns filed under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 at the rate specified in the Second Schedule as per the challan issued. However, notwithstanding the same the returns will still have to be filed and an assessment order will still have to be made on the basis of which it can be determined whether any balance tax is due from the owner of the land. It is noted that as per the earlier judgments of this Court dated 26.10.2015 and 3.2.2016, it has already been stated that filing of returns and issuance of assessment orders is mandatory even under Section 3(b) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 and amounts can only be recovered from the owners of the land after an assessment order has been issued. The Respondents have developed a wrong practice of seeking recovery of agricultural income based on the issuance of challan without issuance of an assessment order.

15. In view of the aforesaid, these petitions are allowed. The impugned assessment orders passed by the AC are set aside and the cases are remitted to the AC concerned for passing fresh orders after following the required process of law.

2016 P T D 2058
[Lahore High Court]
Before Ayesha A. Malik, J
SUPREME TUBE INDUSTRIES (PVT.) LIMITED
Versus
FEDERATION OF PAKISTAN and others
Writ Petition No. 3479 of 2013, heard on 16th March, 2016.

(a) Sales Tax Act (VII of 1990)----

----Ss.2(14) & 2(20)----'Input tax'/'output tax'----Meaning and scope---Input tax, as defined in S. 2 (14) of Sales Tax, 1990, is a tax levied under the Act on the supply of goods to the persons, which means that input tax is paid by the registered person on purchase of goods in the course of or in furtherance of his business---Sales tax being a value added tax, the input tax is the value added to the price of the goods purchased by the registered person---Output tax, on the other hand, as defined in S. 2 (20) of Act, is the tax levied under the Act on supply of goods, made by the person, thus, the tax is levied on the sale of goods made by the registered person during the course of or in furtherance of his business, and the same is the value added to the price of the goods sold by the registered person---Taxable supplies are, therefore, subject to sales tax when the same are bought and sold in the course of business, through different transactions, executed by the registered person---Levy of tax is an ongoing process in a series of transactions where every registered person in the supply chain pays sales tax---Difference between the sales tax paid at the time of purchase (input tax) and the tax paid at the time of sale (output tax) is the amount chargeable to sales tax under Sales Tax Act, 1990.

(b) Sales Tax Act (VII of 1990)----

----Ss. 3, 7, 8, 8B & 73----Scope of tax---Determination of tax liability---Tax credited not allowed---Adjustable input tax---Certain transactions not admissible---Scope---Section 3 of the Act levies sales tax and S.7 subject to Ss. 8 & 8 B of the Act determines the tax liability---Section 7(1) of the Act makes the registered person entitled to deduct input tax from output tax for the purpose of determining its tax liability---Section 7(2) of the Act mandates the requirement, on the basis of which the entitlement of the registered person to claim adjustment would be made---Section 73 of the Act imposes a further condition requiring the registered person to make all payments through proper banking channel in order to claim input tax adjustment---Section 8 of the Act relates to tax credit and sets out when the registered person will not be entitled to claim adjustment of input tax---Section 8 B of the Act restricts the adjustments of input tax in a tax period to 90%.

(c) Sales Tax Act (VII of 1990)----

----Ss.7 & 8 B----Determination of tax liability---Adjustable input tax---Basic right to seek input tax adjustment is provided for in S. 7 of the Act, which determines the tax liability of the registered person---Entitlement of the registered person for adjustment of input tax is based on documented record or invoices pertaining to the purchases and sales made during a tax period; hence, the adjustment claimed and its admissibility has to be assessed by the authorities to establish the tax liability---Section 8 B of the Act does not grant the right to claim adjustment, as the same only quantifies the extent of the adjustment which would be allowed in a tax period.

(d) Sales Tax Act (VII of 1990)----

----S. 8 B----Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 23---Adjustable input tax---Constitutionality---'Unreasonable restriction', principle of---Applicability---Fundamental right as to provision of property---Petitioners challenged the show cause notice, which provided that the petitioner had claimed excessive input tax adjustments for amounts which were not admissible as per S. 7 read with Ss. 8 & 8 B of Sales Tax Act, 1990---Petitioners also challenged the vires of S. 8 B of the Act on ground that the provisions of the section, being confiscatory, were ultra vires the provisions of Art. 23 of the Constitution, as the department granted input tax adjustment up to 90% of the output tax for every tax period and retained 10% of the adjustable amount to be carried forward each month, and consequently, at the end of each year, any amount pending on account of that 10% was refunded to the petitioners on their application---Petitioners contended that retention of the 10% adjustable amount each accumulated into large amounts of money at the end of each tax years, and thus, the petitioners were deprived of their money throughout each tax year, which they would otherwise invest into their business to prevent financial constraints, and that retention of 10% adjustable amount fell within the ambit of unreasonable restriction on their right to input tax adjustment as guaranteed under Art. 23 of the Constitution---Validity---Fact that S. 8B of SalesTax Act, 1990 allowed the department to retain 10% of the adjustable amount meant that the department was confiscating the property of the petitioners resulting in unjust enrichment---Petitioners, in the present case, however, had not shown that what amounts they were entitled to, which had been retained by the department for each month, nor had any of them, except one petitioner, quantified their proprietary right, that was being confiscated---Petitioners, without demonstrating the actual confiscation and deprivation, had challenged the vires of S. 8 B of the Act---Legislature, in its wisdom, had legislated S. 8 B of Act for the efficacious fulfillment of the objects and purposes of Sales Tax Act, 1990---In determining reasonableness of the restriction imposed under the law, the Court must bear in mind the competing interest so as to serve the public purpose---Basic purpose of S. 8B of the Act was to recover tax and to encourage the taxpayers to document its transactions, so that a tax activity could be charged with the required tax---Section 8 B of the Act, therefore, had a rational nexus with the purpose of Sales Tax Act, 1990 and with the scheme thereof, which required adjustment of input tax to determine the tax liability and a refund of excessive amounts to the registered persons---Petitioner had failed to establish infringement of any fundamental right; therefore, question of proportionality did not arise---Restriction imposed in terms S. 8 B of the Act was reasonable, and as such, the same did not deprive the registered persons of any property or amounts due to them---Clear violation of a fundamental right must be evident when a law was challenged---Cases in hand had been built on conjectures and presumptions, as no particulars or financial implications had been provided---Petitioners were obliged to show as to how their proprietary right was being infringed and what amounts they were entitled to for the purposes of input tax adjustment; without the same, strong presumption of constitutionality, legality and reasonableness was attached to S. 8 B of the Act---Petitioner should have filed their respective replies to the impugned show cause notices to show that they had not claimed any excessive adjustment---Constitutional petition could not be filed against a show cause notice, since only a notice had been served, for which a reply must be submitted---Case of one of the petitioners, who showed that some amounts due to him from the audited accounts, being a case of personal hardship, did not justify a challenge to the constitutionality of S.8B of the Act---Constitutional petition was dismissed in circumstances.

AYESHA A. MALIK J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedules "A" and "B", appended with the judgment, as all Petitions challenge the vires of Section 8B of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 ("Act") and raise common questions of law and facts.

2. Petitions mentioned in Schedule "A", challenge the vires of Section 8B of the Act on the ground that it is in violation of Article 23 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") being confiscatory in nature as it restricts adjustment of input tax to 90% of the output tax and the remaining 10% of the adjustable amount is illegally retained by the Respondents and carried forward into the next tax period. Petitions detailed in Schedule "B" in addition to the challenge to the vires of Section 8B of the Act, have impugned show cause notices calling for an explanation from the Petitioners with respect to adjustment of input tax in excess of the 90% of the output tax.

3. The Petitioners before the Court are involved in various sectors of business such as the chemical industry, plastic industry, polypropylene industry and the textile industry. Some are involved in the manufacturing business of steel pipes and of foot wear. It is the case of all the Petitioners that Section 8B of the Act, promulgated through the Finance Act, 2007, is illegal and unconstitutional as the Respondents grant input tax adjustment up to 90% of the output tax for every tax period and retain 10% of the adjustable amount, which amount should be refunded to the Petitioners. This 10% of the adjustable amount is carried forward in each tax period that is every month and ultimately at the end of the year, any amount pending is refunded to the Petitioners on an application seeking refund. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the provisions of Section 8B of the Act are confiscatory in nature as the FBR retains the 10% adjustable amount which they are not entitled to. This amount belongs to the Petitioners and is the property of the Petitioners. Since the Petitioners are deprived of their property it causes great financial hardship to the Petitioners as the money can be invested in the business and will prevent financial pressure on the business. Learned counsel explained that on account of the 10% adjustable amount retained by the Respondents a certain portion of input tax adjustment is carried forward each month and consequently large amounts are retained by the Respondents over the year which is then refunded to the Petitioners at the end of the tax year. They argued that this amounts to unjust enrichment and is an unreasonable restriction imposed on the registered person. They also argued that it is confiscatory in nature and violative of Article 23 of the Constitution as they are deprived of their property. Learned counsel explained that under the previous regime, the Petitioners were given 100% tax adjustment for each tax period and certain businesses were excluded from the ambit of Section 8B under SRO No.644(1)/2007 dated 27.6.2007. Learned counsel argued that several efforts have been made to resolve this issue by the Respondents, however, no positive response was given to the Petitioners, hence the instant Petitions have been filed.

4. This Court vide order dated 5.11.2015 issued notice to the learned Attorney General for Pakistan under Order XXVII-A of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 and also directed to file report and parawise comments on behalf of the Respondent Federation. Whereupon the Respondent Federation has filed report and parawise comments. Parawise comments have also been filed on behalf of the Respondent FBR. Today Raza Ashfaq Sheikh, Secretary (IR) Operations, FBR and Zulqarnain Tirmazi, Commissioner Zone-I, LTU, Lahore have appeared before the Court on behalf of the Respondents to assist the Court.

5. The Federal Government in its report and parawise comments and in response to the notice under Order XXVII-A of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 has stated that they will rely upon the reply filed by the Respondent FBR for the purposes of defending the law and explaining the intent of Section 8B of the Act. Raza Ashfaq Sheikh, Secretary (IR) Operations, FBR and Zulqarnain Tirmazi, Commissioner Zone-I, LTU, Lahore present before this Court have filed their written reply in which they have explained the intent and working of the law.

6. In terms of what has been argued on behalf of the Respondents the purpose of Section 8B of the Act is to collect the tax due and encourage correct declaration of taxable supplies by registered persons. This in turn discourages misdeclaration which has become a serious problem for the FBR and hampers the collection of tax. By retaining 10% of the adjustable amount for each tax period, the registered person is compelled to file proper documents to get its refund. It is their case that lack of proper documents in the business of the registered persons allows a registered person to claim 100% refund of amounts it is not entitled to. The Respondents have to wait until an audit is conducted or inquiry is made before it can recover excessive amounts claimed by the registered person under the garb of input tax adjustment. It is their case that Section 8B of the Act ensures that the liability to pay sales tax is satisfied and the registered person is encouraged to document its sales and purchases. It is the FBR's experience that when a registered person claims a refund in each tax period it is based on misdeclarations and the State is deprived of the tax it is entitled to collect under the Act. Section 8B of the Act has assured that this practice be abandoned. The data from 2007 onwards shows that frivolous refund claims have reduced substantially. They also argued that no loss is caused to any of the Petitioners and there is no case before the Court where the adjustable 10% is retained throughout the year such that it could be labeled as causing financial loss to the Petitioners. To the contrary the practice of misdeclaration is being checked and controlled and sales tax is recovered. Learned counsel have also argued that in case there is individual hardship, it cannot become a ground to challenge the vires of the law or urge deprivation. It is their case that the question of refund under Section 8B of the Act is a concession granted to the registered person which cannot be claimed as of right. The legislature in its wisdom required that the law ensure that tax was duly paid and by virtue of a refund application the registered person should not avoid payment of tax due. In any event, if at all any amounts are carried forward in a month it will be refunded to the registered person in the next tax period. It has also been argued that there is a presumption in favour of the law of its constitutionality and the scheme of law is not confiscatory. Both the officers have categorically stated that there is no case where 10% of the adjustable amount is carried forward each month, ultimately resulting in a major refund at the end of the year.

7. The basic issue raised in the Petitions is the vires of Section 8B of the Act, which reads as follows:

"8B Adjustable input tax.---(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in relation to a tax period, a registered person shall not be allowed to adjust input tax in excess of ninety per cent of the output tax for that tax period:

[Provided that the restriction on the adjustment of input tax in excess of ninety per cent of the output tax, shall not apply in case of fixed assets or capital goods:]

Provided further that that the Board may, by notification in the official Gazette, exclude any person or class of persons from the purview of subsection (1).

(2) A registered person, subject to subsection (1), may be allowed adjustment [or refund] of input tax not allowed under sub-section (1) subject to the following conditions, namely:-

(i) In the case of registered persons, whose accounts are subject to audit under the Companies Ordinance, 1984, upon furnishing a statement along with annual audited accounts, duly certified by the auditors, showing value additions less than the limit prescribed under sub section (1) above; or

(ii) In case of other registered persons, subject to the conditions and restrictions as may be specified by the Board by notification in the official Gazette.

(3) The adjustment or refund of input tax mentioned in sub-section (2), if any, shall be made on yearly basis in the second month following the end of the financial year of the registered person.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in subsections (1) and (2), the Board may, by notification in the official Gazette, prescribe any other limit of input tax adjustment for any person or class of persons.

(5) Any auditor found guilty of misconduct in furnishing the certificate mentioned in subsection (2) shall be referred to the Council for disciplinary action under section 20D of Chartered Accountants, Ordinance, 1961(X of 1961)].

In order to appreciate the case of the Petitioners it is necessary to understand the meaning of input tax and output tax in the context of Section 8B of the Act. Input tax as defined in Section 2(14) of the Act is tax levied under the Act on the supply of goods to the person, meaning that it is sales tax paid by the registered person on the purchase of goods in the course of or in furtherance of its business. Since sales tax is a value added tax, input tax is the value added to the price of the goods purchased by the registered person. Output tax as defined in Section 2(20) of the Act is the tax levied under the Act on a supply of goods, made by the person so it is the tax levied on the sale of goods made by the registered person during the course of or in furtherance of its business. It is the value added to the price of the goods sold by the registered person. In this way taxable supplies are subject to sales tax when they are bought and sold in the course of business, through different transactions, executed by registered persons. It is an ongoing process in a series of transactions where every registered person in the supply chain pays sales tax. The difference between the sales tax paid at the time of purchase (input tax) and the tax paid at the time of sale (output tax) is the amount chargeable to sales tax under the Act. While Section 3 levies sales tax, Section 7 of the Act, subject to Sections 8 and 8B, determines the tax liability. In terms of Section 7(1) the registered person is entitled to deduct input tax from output tax for the purpose of determining its tax liability. Section 7(2) of the Act mandates the requirements on the basis of which the entitlement of the registered person to claim adjustment shall be made. Section 73 of the Act imposes a further condition requiring the registered person to make all payments through proper banking channel in order to claim input tax adjustment. In this way the registered person files its tax returns and claims refund under Section 7 of the Act. The application is processed and the refund claim is decided upon by the competent person. Section 8 relates to tax credit and sets out when the registered person shall not be entitled to claim adjustment of input tax and Section 8B restricts the adjustment of input tax in a tax period to 90%.

8. The Petitioners case is that once they have satisfied the requirements of Section 7 read with Section 8 of the Act and established their entitlement for input tax adjustment they have a proprietary right under Article 23 of the Constitution to receive the refund amount. The fact that Section 8B of the Act allows the Respondents to retain 10% of the adjustable amount means that the Respondents are confiscating the property of the Petitioners resulting in unjust enrichment. In support of this argument interestingly the Petitioner in WP No.3479/2013 is the only Petitioner who has relied upon its audited accounts to show that some amounts are due to it from the Respondents in the form of a refund under Section 8B of the Act. No other Petitioner has shown what amounts it is entitled to, which are retained by the Respondents each month, nor has any Petitioner quantified the proprietary right that is being confiscated. Without demonstrating the actual confiscation and deprivation of property the Petitioners have challenged the vires of the law on the ground that their right to property under Article 23 is denied by Section 8B of the Act. Furthermore, the Petitions mentioned in Schedule "B? have challenged show cause notices wherein it is alleged that they have claimed excessive input tax adjustment for amounts they were not entitled to and which amounts were not admissible as per Section 7 read with Sections 8 and 8B of the Act. Even these Petitioners have not shown through any document how the law is confiscatory and which amounts they are entitled to which are carried forward under the 10% adjustable amount which is retained by the Respondents. With reference to these Petitioners since it is just a show cause notice, the Petitioners should have filed their respective replies to show that they have not claimed excessive adjustment. In this regard it is settled law that a constitutional petition cannot be filed against a show cause notice since only a notice has been served for which a reply must be submitted. Even otherwise it has been held in the case titled All Pakistan Newspapers Society and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2012 Sindh 129) that a heavy burden is cast on a person challenging the validity or vires of any law. A clear violation of a fundamental right must be evident when challenging the law. This burden has not been discharged by the Petitioners before the Court as they have not shown what amounts have been confiscated or what amounts they were entitled to under Section 7 which has been retained consequent to the 10% restriction under Section 8B of the Act. It appears that the all the cases are built on conjectures and presumptions as no particulars or financial implications have been provided. The Petitioners were obligated to show how their proprietary right is being infringed and what amounts they are entitled to for the purposes of input tax adjustment. Without the same, a strong presumption of constitutionality, legality and reasonableness is attached to Section 8B of the Act. An onerous burden is cast on the Petitioners, who have to show that their fundamental right has actually been infringed. Reliance is placed on the case titled Mst. Ummatull ah through Attorney v. Province of Sindh through Secretary Ministry of Housing and Town Planning, Karachi and 6 others (PLD 2010 Karachi 236).

9. The other argument of the Petitioners is that retaining the 10% adjustable amount is an unreasonable restriction on the right to input tax adjustment. Even though I have already held that the Petitioners have failed to make out their case that the Respondents have retained 10% of the adjustable amount the argument of reasonable restriction must be seen. The basic right to seek input tax adjustment is provided for in Section 7 of the Act which determines the tax liability of the registered person. The entitlement of the registered person for adjustment of input tax is based on documented record or invoices pertaining to the purchases and sales made during a tax period. Hence the adjustment claimed and its admissibility have to be assessed by the authorities to establish the tax liability. Section 8B of the Act does not grant the right to claim adjustment. It only quantifies the extent of the adjustment which will be allowed in a tax period. Hence the Petitioners argued that it places an unreasonable restriction on their proprietary right guaranteed under Article 23 of the Constitution. Reliance has been placed on the cases titled D.G. Khan Cement Company Ltd. through Chief Financial Officer v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of Law and 3 others (PLD 2013 Lahore 693) and Muhammad Nasir Mahmood and another v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Ministry of Law, Justice and Human Rights Division, Islamabad (PLD 2009 SC 107). The question which needs to be answered is whether the restriction of 90% is an unreasonable restriction on the right to the adjustable amount.

10. The right to claim adjustment under Section 7 has been made subject to Section 8B of the Act. This means that any entitlement under section 7 will be refunded up to 90% and 10% of the adjustable amount will be carried forward into the next month. The Petitioners have relied upon PLD 2013 Lahore 693 (supra) which has deliberated on the term reasonable restriction and finds that the law on reasonable restriction must uphold the constitutional theme of democracy, freedom, equality, tolerance, social justice and advance the principles of policy. It finds that where the vires of law are challenged the Court must examine the right and the restriction imposed and thereafter determine if the restriction is necessary and proportionate, has a proper purpose and a rational connection to the underlying act. In the case cited at PLD 2009 SC 107 (supra) it was held that a reasonable restriction cannot arbitrarily or excessively invade the fundamental right. That the law cannot be arbitrary, excessive or beyond what is required in the public interest. In this regard Raza Ashfaq Sheikh, Secretary (IR) Operations, FBR and Zulqarnain Tirmazi, Commissioner Zone-I, LTU, Lahore have categorically stated that the biggest problem in the way of recovering sales tax is the lack of documentation. They explained that the sales tax regime is based on self assessment hence without proper documentation and whilst relying on fake invoices and seeking adjustment on inadmissible amounts registered persons are able to claim excessive amounts which hampers the recovery of tax. Section 8B of the Act was legislated to ensure refund of admissible claims of input tax. The refund is given up to 90% allowing the registered person to claim refund of 10% in the next tax period so that the registered person is discouraged from claiming excessive adjustment. In order to recover input tax adjustment amounts the registered person claims amount which are due to it which means that the 10% restriction discourages wrong claims. They also stated that in most cases the adjustable amount is fully paid within two successive tax periods meaning that if there is a 10% adjustment it is fully recovered in the next tax period. Hence the wisdom of the legislature was to ensure recovery of the sales tax, such that the restriction is in furtherance of the objective of the Act that is to recover sales tax. I have already held that the Petitioners have failed to establish that any fundamental right has been infringed therefore the question of proportionality does not arise. It is the case of the Respondents that the 90% restriction was required to ensure that the tax is collected and the registered person documents its transactions so as to reduce misdeclarations and fake invoicing. In terms of what has been stated, it was a policy decision of the Legislature to impose a restriction to ensure that the tax is recovered. This restriction is reasonable and as such does not deprive the registered person of any property or amounts due to it. It has been held in the case titled Federation of Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Finance and others v. Haji Muhammad Sadiq and others (2007 CLD 1 = 2007 PTD 67) by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan that the only consideration for a Court, when a statute is challenged, is whether the legislation under challenge is permissible under the Constitution. Reasonableness or otherwise is a matter of legislative policy and it is not for the Courts to adjudicate on the policy. It has also been held in this case that when a Court interprets fiscal statutes and laws relating to economic activities, the judicial approach should be to give the legislatures maximum flexibility to fulfill its purpose. In these cases although the Petitioners have challenged the vires of Section 8B of the Act on the ground that it deprives them of their fundamental right to property under Article 23 of the Constitution, they have failed to show what property they have been deprived of by way of Section 8B of the Act. They have also not been able to convince this Court that the objective of recovering and collecting tax through Section 8B imposes an unreasonable restriction on any proprietary rights of the Petitioners. The legislature in its wisdom legislated Section 86 of the Act for the efficacious fulfilment of the objects and purposes of the Act. In determining reasonableness of the restriction imposed under the law the Court must bear in mind the competing interests so as to serve the public purpose. The basic purpose is to recover the tax and to encourage the tax payer to document its transactions so that the taxable activity can be charged the required tax. Section 8B of the Act therefore has a rational nexus with the purpose of Act and with the scheme of the Act which requires adjustment of input tax to determine the tax liability and a refund of excessive amounts to the registered person. In terms of the mechanism provided under Section 7 of the Act, the Petitioners have not been able to show that when practically applying Section 8B of the Act, they have claimed amounts pending with the Respondents which they are entitled to. So far as the Petitioner in W.P. No.3479/2013 it has shown some amounts due to it from the audited accounts. However, if any amounts are due to it, then this amounts to a case of personal hardship and does not justify a challenge to the constitutionality of Section 8B of the Act.

11. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. All the Petitions are dismissed.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---The Petitioner seeks a clarification with respect to the charging of advance tax under Section 235 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance") on the electricity bill.

2. Learned counsel for the Petitioner submits that Respondent FBR issued a clarification on 08.06.2013 in terms of which income tax under Section 235 of the Ordinance was to be charged and collected on the electricity bill which includes the amount of sales tax paid on the said bill. Learned counsel states that this clarification issued by the FBR is contrary to Section 235 of the Ordinance and the respondents have served a notice to the Petitioner dated 08.05.2014 seeking an explanation with respect to the collection of advance tax under Section 235 of the Ordinance. Learned counsel argued that advance income tax cannot be charged on the sales tax that has been paid. Reliance has been placed upon the case titled Deputy Collector of Customs, Railway Station, Lahore v. Messrs Abdul Ghaffar Abdul Rehman and others (2005 PTD 194). He further stated that Section 235 of the Ordinance itself is clear that tax must be collected on the electricity consumed and not on the total electricity bill, which include sales tax, income tax and in some cases further tax and extra tax.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Respondents. It was argued on behalf of the Respondents that on the basis of a clarification issued by the FBR dated 08.06.2013 advance tax under Section 235 of the Ordinance has to be collected on the gross amount of the electricity bill, which will include sales tax. It has also been argued that since a show cause notice has been impugned, the instant petition is not maintainable. The case of the Respondents is that the Petitioner is the withholding agent of the Respondents, who is required to collect tax in terms of the clarification dated 08.06.2013 issued by the FBR.

4. The basic issue is with respect to the collection of advance tax under Section 235 of the Ordinance. Section 235 of the Ordinance provides that advance tax should be collected at the rate specified in Part IV of the First Schedule on the amount of electricity bill of a commercial or industrial consumer. The question before the Court is what amount should be considered in the electricity bill for the purposes of advance tax. The Respondents have required the Petitioner to include all amounts in the electricity bill including the amount paid as sales tax, income tax and in some cases further tax and extra tax. Subsection (2) of Section 235 of the Ordinance provides that a person preparing electricity consumption bill shall charge advance tax under subsection (1) in the manner electricity consumption charges are charged. This means that advance tax is to be charged on the electricity consumed and not on the total billed amount. Therefore, a bare reading of Section 235 makes it clear that advance tax shall be paid on the electricity consumed and not on the total billed amounts which will include sales tax, income tax and in some cases further tax and extra tax. Furthermore, advance income tax cannot be levied on sales tax as has been held in 1994 PTD 848 and 2005 PTD 194 as well as PTR No.137/2006.

5. In view of the aforesaid, this petition is accepted and the impugned clarification dated 8.6.2013 issued by FBR is set aside.

ORDER

C.M. No. 2 of 2016
The prayer made in this application for early hearing of the titled petition is allowed with a direction to the office to list out the titled petition for today. CM stands disposed of.
Main Case.

2. Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned orders dated 23.04.2014 and 19.01.2016 passed by Respondents No. 1 and 2.

3. The appeal of the Petitioner was dismissed by the Labour Appellate Tribunal on the ground of being time barred. In terms of the order of the Labour Court, the Petitioner was suspended from service on 19.07.2008. He filed grievance petition on 05.03.2009, which was dismissed by the Labour Court on 05.03.2009 and again dismissed by the Labour Appellate Tribunal on 19.01.2016. Learned counsel for the Petitioner states that the Petitioner was unwell and remained bed ridden due to back ache problems, therefore, he could not file his grievance petition within time. Learned counsel states that any delay on the part of the Petitioner could have been condoned and his grievance petition against a suspension order could not have been dismissed.

4. Heard and record perused.

5. The delay is apparent from the record and is admitted by the learned counsel for the Petitioner. The justification provided by the Petitioner is not supported by any document or medical certificate, which explains the delay of more than one year. As such there is no reason to interfere in the impugned orders, which have dismissed the case of the Petitioner being, barred by time. As far as the argument of learned counsel for the Petitioner that it could not have been dismissed on account of the fact that it was an interim order as the Petitioner has been suspended and not terminated from service. The said argument has no basis as the Petitioner filed the grievance petition against the suspension order and his grievance petition was dismissed by the Labour Court for being barred by time. Therefore, under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out.

JUDGMENT
AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this judgment, we have decided upon the matters raised in ICA Nos.1692 and 1689 of 2015 as both the ICAs arise out of a consolidated order of the learned Single Judge dated 26.11.2015 passed in WP Nos.36004 and 36384 of 2015.

2. The facts of the case are that the Appellants and Respondents Nos.5 to 6 contested Local Government Election for the seats of Chairman and Vice Chairman in U.C. No.8 Kolo Tarar, District Hafizabad held on 19.11.2015. As per the unofficial result, the Appellants were announced as successful candidates. Thereafter, Respondent No.5 moved an application for recount of votes on 19.11.2015. On this application, the District Returning Officer ("DRO") issued an order dated 20.11.2015 while allowing the application and required immediate action from the Returning Officer ("RO") of U.C. No.8. This order of 20.11.2015 was challenged by the Appellants in W.P. No.36004/2015 filed on 21.11.2015. The main grievance of the Appellants in the writ petition was that the DRO has no jurisdiction to order recount of votes and as such he could not have allowed the application moved by Respondent No.5 nor ordered for recount of votes. In the meanwhile, Form XIII was filed on 20.11.2015 with a note attached to it stating therein that Form XIII is subject to the recount of ballot papers made at the request of' the contesting candidate Mian Muhammad Afzal Hussain Tarar. The DRO on 22.11.2015 recalled his order of 20.11.2015 allowing the application for recount and placed the same before the RO to decide it as per law. The RO decided the application on the same date i.e. 22.11.2015 whereby he allowed the recount and deputed Muhammad Arshad, Superintendent, Zila Council Secretariat, Hafizabad/Assistant Returning Officer UCs 1-8, District Hafizabad to conduct the recount. The Appellants then moved an application under Order VI, Rule 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 ("C.P.C.") for amendment in their petition enabling them to challenge the order of 22.11.2015 passed by the RO of U.C. No.8. The amendment in the petition was allowed and subsequently, on 26.11.2015 writ petition of the Appellants was dismissed and writ petition of Respondents Nos.5 and 6 were allowed. Hence, ICA Nos.1692 and 1689 of 2015.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellants argued that W.P. No.36384/2015 was filed on 25.11.2015 by Respondents Nos.5 and 6 challenging Form XIII issued on 20.11.2015 on the ground that the RO could not consolidate the result subject to any decision on their application. It was their case that the recount had to be decided first before consolidation of result could be carried out. Learned counsel argued that the impugned order has allowed this writ petition set aside the consolidation order of 20.11.2015 and directed the RO to proceed with the recount of the valid ballot papers. Learned counsel argued that in terms of the order dated 26.11.2015, the RO in a hurried manner recounted the votes and filed a fresh Form XIII on 28.11.2015. Learned counsel argued that essentially the DRO could not have allowed the application for recount filed by Respondent No.5 and that is why on realization of this fact, the DRO himself withdrew his order of 20.11.2015 and placed the application before the RO. Therefore, for all intents and purposes, the application for recount was moved before the RO on 22.11.2015 after the consolidation of result on 20.11.2015. Learned counsel argued that the result has admittedly been consolidated and the note attached to the consolidation is of no consequence, when the order allowing the recount application was withdrawn by the DRO. Learned counsel argued that filing of W.P. No.36384/2015 by Respondents No.5 itself testifies to the fact that the consolidation of result was made on 20.11.2015 by filing Form XIII, hence he argued that the recount application could not have been subsequently decided by the RO on 22.11.2015.

4. Learned counsel for Respondents Nos.5 to 6 first raised an objection on the maintainability of both the ICAs. His basic contention is that Rule 78(b) of the Punjab Local Government (Conduct of Elections) Rules, 2013 ("Rules") provides statutory remedy of review before the Election Commission. Therefore, in view of the fact that the remedy of review is provided, both the ICAs are not maintainable in terms of the proviso to Section 3(3) of the Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 ("Ordinance"). In support of his arguments, learned counsel has placed reliance on the cases titled "Multiline Associate v. Ardeshir Cowasjee and others" (1995 SCMR 362), "Vice Chancellor/Chairman Admission Board University of Health Science, Lahore v. Breeha Zainab and another" (2011 MLD 1652) and "Muhammad Riaz v. Province of Punjab and others" (2014 CLC 817). Learned counsel argued that the Appellants have a remedy available to them under Rule 78 (b) of the Rules for review of the order passed by the RO under the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 ("Act") including the rejection of ballot papers. Learned counsel argued that since the remedy of review is available to the Appellants and in fact they have availed the remedy of review, therefore, both the ICAs are not maintainable.

5. On merits the learned counsel for Respondents Nos.5 and 6 argued that the RO was obligated in terms of Rule 36 of the Rules to decide upon the application for recount pending before him. Learned counsel argued that admittedly this application was received by the RO on 19.11.2015, hence the result could not have been consolidated without a decision on the application of Respondent No.5. In this regard, the RO hastily consolidated the result as he was under the tremendous pressure exerted by the Appellants. Further argued that the impugned order itself records the statement of the RO in paragraph No.14 wherein he admits that he did not follow the proper process for consolidation of the result and that he did not follow the procedure given in Rule 36 of the Rules for the purposes of consolidation of result. Learned counsel argued that the RO has admitted that he received the application on 19.11.2015 meaning thereby that he was obligated to decide the same and without a decision on the application, the result could not have been consolidated. Reliance is placed upon the cases titled "Syed Nayyar Hussain Bukhari v. District Returning Officer, NA-49, Islamabad and others" (PLD 2008 SC 487) and "Mst. Karim Bibi and others v. Hussain Bakhsh and another" (PLD 1984 SC 344).

6. The learned counsel for the Election Commission produced the original record before us. He stated that Form XIII was filed on 20.11.2015 and therefore the result was duly consolidated under Rule 36 of the Rules. Subsequently pursuant to a recount by the RO another Form XIII was filed on 28.11.2015.

7. The first question to address is that of maintainability. It is the case of the Respondents that both the ICAs are not maintainable as the remedy of review is available under Rule 78 of the Rules, which provides as follows:--

"78. Powers of Election Commission.- Save as otherwise provided, the Commission may:

(a) stop the polls at any stage of election if it is convinced that it shall not be able to ensure the conduct of the election justly, fairly and in accordance with law due to large scale malpractices, including coercion, intimidation and pressures, prevailing at the election.

(b) review an order passed by an officer under the Act or the rules, including rejection of a ballot paper; and

(c) issue such instructions and exercise such powers, and make such consequential orders, as may in its opinion, be necessary for ensuring that an election is conducted honestly, justly and fairly and in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the rules."

The relevant words used in Rule 78 of the Rules "save as otherwise provided" have been interpreted by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in a case titled "Batha Ram v. Lala Mehar Bheel and another (1995 SCMR 684). In the said judgment, the word "save as otherwise provided" were considered in the context of Section 103 of the Representation of the People Act, 1976 ("ROPA"). It is noted that Rule 78 of the Rules is para materia of Section 103 of the ROPA. In this regard, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that "the words "Save as otherwise provided" used in Section 103 of the Act will show that if something otherwise is provided in the Act, then this section will not apply. Furthermore, the reading of Clauses (a) to (c) of this section will show that this section deals with the power of the Commission at the time of election". This means that the power of review given in Rule 78 of the Rules is not statutory remedy available to the Appellants as contemplated in the proviso to Section 3(3) of the Ordinance. It is a special power for a specific purpose. The powers and functions of the Election Commission of Pakistan as provided in Rule 78 of the Rules essentially are administrative in nature for the purposes of conducting election. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan held in a case titled "Dr. Raja Aamer Zaman v. Omar Ayub Khan and another" (2015 SCMR 1303) that the provisions of Section 103 of the ROPA enable the Election Commission to carry out its administrative and policing functions for the purposes of conducting elections honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law. These administrative powers are not judicial in nature and are exercisable without any deep probe of facts. The issue may be ascertainable on the face of the record or after a summary inquiry, if deemed necessary by the Commission. Therefore, Rule 78 of the Rules is an administrative power resulting in an executive order and not a judicial order.

8. Furthermore, the Election Commission of Pakistan derives its power to carry out local government elections under Article 140-A of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"), which provides as follows:-

"140A. (1) Each Province shall, by law, establish a local government system and devolve political, administrative and financial responsibility and authority to the elected representatives of the local government.

(2) Elections to the local governments shall be held by the Election Commission of Pakistan. (Emphasis added)."
Article 218 (3) of the Constitution is also relevant which provides as under:-

218. Election Commission

"(3) It shall be the duty of the Election Commission to organize and conduct the election and to make such arrangements as are necessary to ensure that the election is conducted honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law, and that corrupt practices are guarded against."

Therefore, Rule 78 of the Rules when read with Articles 140-A and 218(3) of the Constitution suggests that the power to review under Rule 78(b) of the Rules is essentially and executive function related to the functions of the Election Commission to organize and conduct local government elections so as to ensure they are carried out honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law. Based on the aforesaid, it is our opinion that both the ICAs are maintainable.

9. On the merit, the basic grievance of the Appellants is that the impugned order of 26.11.2015 set aside the consolidation order of 20.11.2015 and allowed recount of votes. Admittedly, the election in this case was held on 19.11.2015, consolidation took place on 20.11.2015 and application for recount of votes was filed by Respondent No.5 before the RO on 19.11.2015, which was allowed by the DRO on 20.11.2015. Thereafter, on 22.11.2015 the DRO withdrew his order of 20.11.2015 and placed the application for recount of votes before the RO, who on the said date allowed the recount application after the order of consolidation dated 20.11.2015. By way of the impugned order dated 26.11.2015, the learned Single Judge set aside the consolidation of result directing the RO to recount the valid ballot papers and thereafter, to consolidate the results in accordance with law.

10. Essentially the reason for interference which prevailed with the learned Judge was procedural impropriety. The learned Single Judge relied upon the statement of the RO, who admitted that he did not follow the prescribed procedure under Rule 36 of the Rules. We are of the opinion that any decision on the application for recount was subject to consolidation of results. Once the result is consolidated, the Respondents Nos.5 and 6 have to wait for the declaration of the result in the Official Gazette under Rule 46 of the Rules. Thereafter they have remedy available to them to challenge the result or the process, as the case may be, before the Election

Tribunal in an election petition under Section 38 of the Act read with Rule 62 of the Rules. We note that the remedy of appeal is provided in the Act for which the Election Tribunals have been constituted by the Election Commission of Pakistan vide notification dated 04.12.2015. Furthermore the failure of the RO to comply with the process given under the Rules should be challenged before the Election Tribunal in terms of Section 44(a) of the Act. The Section reads as follows:---

44. Ground for declaring elections as a whole void:---

The Election Tribunal shall declare the election as a whole to be void if it is satisfied that the result of the election has been materially affected by reasons of:

(a) the failure of any person to comply with the provisions of this Act or the rules; or

(b) the prevalence of extensive corrupt or illegal practice at the election.

Consequently any procedural impropriety can be challenged before the Election Tribunal in terms of Section 44 of the Act.

11. The learned counsel for Respondents Nos.5 and 6 has relied upon PLD 2008 SC 487 (supra) to argue the point that the remedy of filing a constitution petition is available to the Respondents to challenge the consolidation of result which was not done in accordance with the present Rules. In that case, the orders of the Election Commission and the RO were challenged before the Islamabad High Court with a request for recount of ballot papers in the general election. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the power of judicial review of the High Court is certainly not available as an alternate remedy in the election matter but if the aggrieved person has no other remedy, the bar of jurisdiction contained in Article 225 of the Constitution, may not affect the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain a petition involving question of law or interpretation of law in respect of an election dispute. It was further held that it is difficult to agree with the proposition that in all election matters at all stages, the jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 199 of the Constitution or that of Election Commission of Pakistan, a Constitutional forum is completely ousted by virtue of Article 225 of the Constitution. We therefore, hold that Election Commission of Pakistan can conveniently take notice of an irregularity/ illegality committed during the process of election in an appropriate case in exercise of its powers under Section 103 read with Section 103-AA of the Representation of the People Act, 1976. Similarly the High Court in a suitable case can interfere in the order passed by the election authorities during the election process in its constitutional jurisdiction under Article 199 of the Constitution. Therefore, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that where the election process had come to an end appropriate remedy was before the Election Tribunal or before the Election Commission under Section 103-AA of the ROPA. In the present case, the election process came to an end with the consolidation of result by filing Form XIII. Any challenge thereafter to the process could only be made before the Election Tribunal in terms of Section 44 of the Act. Hence this case does not support the contentions of Respondents Nos.5 and 6.

12. We have also gone through the complaint pending before the Election Commission filed by the Appellants. The said complaint relates to the conduct of the RO and tampering of the election result and does not specifically challenge the orders impugned in the writ petitions. Even otherwise, the order impugned before us is a consolidated order in two petitions, one filed by the Appellants (WP No.36004/2015) and the other by Respondents Nos.5 and 6 (WP No.36384/2015). Therefore, its pendency will not bar the Appellants from challenging the impugned order of 26.11.2015.

13. Under the circumstances, both the ICAs are accepted and the impugned order dated 26.11.2015 passed by learned Single Judge is set aside.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J. -Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned the proceedings initiated by the Respondents No,. 1 and 2 on an application moved by the Respondent No, 5.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that it is a private limited company. The Respondent No, 5 was an employee of the Petitioner and was terminated after following due process. The Respondent No, 5 has challenged the order of dismissal from service before the Respondents No, 1 and 2 instead of moving the proper forum., The Respondent No, 2 on receipt of the application from the Respondent No, 5 has initiated an inquiry against the Petitioner. Learned counsel argued that any grievance that the Respondent No, 5 may have with respect to his termination from service should be pleaded before the Court of competent jurisdiction and also in terms of Section 33 of the Punjab Industrial Relations Act, 2010 a worker can bring his grievance the notice of his employer. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Respondents No, 1 and 2 have no jurisdiction in the matter and cannot initiate proceedings against the Petitioner on an application of the Respondent No, 5.

3. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the Respondents No, 1 to 4. In terms of the report and parawise comments admittedly, the matter is under inquiry by the Respondents No, 1 and 2 on an application filed by the Respondent No, 5 regarding the redressal of his grievance against the Petitioner. However, they have denied the verbal order of 21.6.2014 in which as per the contention of the Petitioner, they threatened the Petitioner to reinstate the Respondent No, 5 or else to face dire consequences.

4. Heard the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record available on the file.
5. The basic issue before this Court is whether against the termination of the Respondent No, 5 by the Petitioner, the Respondent No, 2 can initiate any action against the Petitioner. Admittedly, an application was moved by the Respondent No, 5 before the Respondents No, 1 and 2 for reinstatement in service. Admittedly, in terms of the report and parawise comments filed by the Respondents No, 1 to 4, the matter is being inquired into by the Respondents No, 1 and 2. However, the report does not provide any law on the basis of which the Respondents No, 1 and 2 have exercised jurisdiction in the matter. The learned Law Officer was also unable to point out any law on the basis of which the Respondents No, 1 and 2 have exercised jurisdiction in the matter. The Respondent No, 5 was terminated from service by the Petitioner and any grievance that he may have with respect to his termination from service should be pleaded before the competent forum. Admittedly, in terms of the report and the noting on Respondent No, 5's application, the Respondents No, 1 and 2 are inquiring into the matter even though they have no power to do so. Therefore, any inquiry that they have commenced in this matter is illegal and contrary to law.

6. In view of the above, this petition is accepted and the Respondents No, 1 and 2 are restrained from initiating any proceedings against the Petitioner on the application of the Respondent No, 5 for reinstatement.

(a) Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance (IV of 1963) ----

----Ss. 3, 4 & 11---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 199---Government of Punjab Notifications No. AEA-III-3-5/2011 (Vol-III) dated 04.12.2015 and No.AEA-III- 3-3/03 (VOL-III) dated 6.12.2006; (issued under S.11 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963)---Object, scope and interpretation of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963---Restrictions on establishment/enlargement of industrial undertakings---Exemptions---Public interest considerations---Relocation of existing sugar mills to a new location---Nexus between ban on establishment of new sugar mills and relocation of existing sugar mills---Considerations of relocation policy and scheme of the law were location-specific and not production-capacity specific---Judicial review of Government policy---Judicial estoppel---Scope---Petitioners, which were operating various sugar mills, impugned issuance of Notification No.AEA-III-3-5/2011 (Vol-III) dated 04.12.2015 ("impugned notification") whereby existing sugar mills were allowed to relocate within the Province---Contention of the petitioners, inter alia, was that under the garb of shifting/relocating of an existing sugar mill, respondents were in fact establishing new sugar mills despite the ban imposed on establishment of new sugar mills under S. 3 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 read with Notification No. AEA-III- 3-3/03 (VOL-III) dated 06.12.2006---Validity---Question to be determined was whether relocation of sugar mills fell within ambit of establishment of new sugar mills as provided under Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963, read with the ban imposed by notification dated 06.12.2006---Impugned notification reiterated the ban imposed by the earlier notification dated 06.12.2006, meaning thereby that the ban on establishment or enlargement of new sugar mills continued by way of policy of the Government and bare reading of clauses of the impugned notification revealed that relocation must be considered in context of the ban on establishment of new sugar mills as well as public interest---Impugned notification therefore, created a direct nexus between relocation of a sugar mill and establishment of a new sugar mill---Relocation of a functional sugar mill meant that the mill would close its operations in one area and relocate to another area and in the present case, relocation was without increasing the production capacity of sugar mills, so essentially relocating the sugar mill meant moving from one location to another, based on the licensed production capacity of the sugar mill---Key element for the purposes of relocation was the location to which the functional sugar mill would shift to and for the purposes of the new location, the sugar mill will establish itself in that area as a new sugar mill in the local area---Establishment and relocation of sugar mills, were correlated when seen in the context of the ban and public interest, as the key element for both was the location of the sugar mill and hence, relocation of a sugar mill was the establishment of a new sugar mill in the local area, and provisions of Ss.3 to 12 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 were therefore applicable to it and thus "relocation" fell within the ambit of establishment of a new sugar mill---Establishment of a new sugar mill was not to be justified simply on basis of production capacity but was also to be seen in the context of its location and factors relevant to the local area, and there could be no relocation of a functional sugar mill without due consideration of the new location---Argument that "relocation" was different from establishment of a new sugar mill was without merit, as factors considered at time of grant of permission for establishment or relocation of a sugar mill would have to be identical since both were location-specific---Objective of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 and notifications issued thereunder; was to control the location where the sugar mill was to carry out its business and to protect national interest---Impugned notification failed to set out the guidelines on the basis of which an application for relocation should be considered and did not provide for any of the conditions or factors on the basis of which a recommendation could be made---Basic objective of the policy which was to make relocation subject to the ban on establishment of new sugar mills and public interest was therefore not achieved in the impugned notification and could not be given effect to---Purpose of the various notifications issued under S.11 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 from time to time, evidenced the need to protect the national interest, that was cotton growing areas, and all such notifications had been location-specific, and intended to control the location of the sugar mill, therefore the contention that production capacity was the key factor controlling relocation was against the record and public interest---Record further revealed that the Provincial Government has in the past, held the view that relocation and establishment were synonymous and that relocation effectively meant to establish at a new location---Contention that relocation policy was necessary to protect the capital investment of the owners of sugar mills and to respond to change in market conditions was not tenable as said reasons did not justify making relocation a way to shift into cotton growing areas because the policy of imposing the ban on new sugar mills meant that national interest overrode the capital investment requirements of any sugar mill and the need to respond to market conditions---Section 3 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 mandated that individual requirements had to be weighed against national interest, general health of the people and causes of nuisance in the local area and notifications issued under S.11 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 especially notification dated 6.12.2006 meant that a sugar mill could not establish in a cotton growing area, therefore while the long standing policy of the ban prevented setting up mills in cotton growing areas, the relocation policy created a way to defy the ban and thus impugned notification did not benefit the public interest nor did it protect the national interest but on the contrary facilitated sugar mills to bypass the requirements of S.3 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963---Provincial Government had also taken a contradictory stance on the matter in the present case, than the one taken by it before the Supreme Court, to which the doctrine of judicial estoppel was applicable and as such the position taken before the Supreme Court, wherein the Provincial Government supported the ban on establishing of new sugar mills---High Court observed that the decision making process in the present case, leading to the issuance of the impugned notification, was not initiated in the national or public interest and the process was initiated to protect certain business interests at the expense of public interest---High Court directed that the respondent sugar mills be restrained from carrying out the business in the relocated premises, and that show-cause notices be issued to the same for establishment of new sugar mills without seeking permission from the competent authority under the law---High Court further struck down the Provincial government's policy to the extent of the "relocation"---Constitutional petitions were allowed, accordingly.

Petitioners impugned notification issued under S.11 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963, granting permission for sugar mills to relocate---Question before the High Court was "whether the Constitutional petition was maintainable in presence of availability of alternate remedy of revision and appeal under S.7 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963"---Held, that petitioners had challenged Government policy on relocation of functional sugar mills and had also challenged intent behind issuance of such policy on the ground that same was mala fide and intended to benefit the respondent sugar mills---Under such circumstances, any remedy before a government functionary in the form of an appeal or revision would not be proper and efficacious as a government functionary could not deliberate on the vires of the impugned policy nor was it likely that such government functionary would comment on the allegations of collusion and mala fide intent---Availing of alternate remedy under the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 would therefore be an exercise in futility since a government functionary was not likely to take a decision contrary to government policy---Constitutional petition was held to be maintainable, in circumstances.

----Integrity of the judicial process---Nature of, and rationale for the principle of judicial estoppel---Estoppel by inconsistent positions taken before judicial forums---Approbate and reprobate---Application of judicial estoppel---Scope---Fundamental duty of court to protect the integrity of the judicial process and a party could not approbate and reprobate at the same time---When a party took an inconsistent position in the same case or in a prior case, the principle of judicial estoppel should be applied---Judicial estoppel was an equitable doctrine, which precluded a party from taking inconsistent positions before the court and protected the integrity of the judicial system and not of the litigant---Principle of judicial estoppel sought to ensure respect for judicial proceedings and to avoid inconsistency and abuse of process---Under the doctrine of judicial estoppel, court could stop a party from taking up contradictory stances if it was clearly inconsistent with the previous position taken by that party before another Court---Application of judicial estoppel depended upon the facts and circumstances of each case and when a party put forth a position, as a matter of fact in one case and was successful in such an assertion, then that party was estopped from asserting a different position on the same facts in a second case---Party, who was to be estopped in the second case had to be the same party in the earlier case meaning thereby the party is the same in both cases---Issue for which the party was estopped from asserting its facts must have had some nexus in both proceedings and it was imperative that such equitable principle be applied so that a judicial process functions properly and effectively---Litigants must approach the Court in a truthful manner especially if the litigant party was the government---Party could always vigorously assert its position, but could not misrepresent the facts in order to gain some advantage in the process---When a party had formally asserted a certain version of the facts in litigation, he or she could not later change those facts because the initial version no longer suits him or her---For application of the principle of judicial estoppel, the Court must ascertain that a party had asserted a contradictory position before another Court which position was accepted by that Court---Party's later position must be clearly inconsistent with its earlier position, and the courts should inquire whether the party had succeeded in persuading a court to accept its earlier position and it had to be determined whether the party seeking to assert the inconsistent position would derive an unfair advantage or impose an unfair detriment on the opposing party if not estopped---Party's change in its factual or legal position threatened to produce inconsistent decisions by the courts and therefore, the doctrine of judicial estoppel was necessary to protect the integrity of the court from the harm caused when a litigant engaged in cynical gamesmanship, achieving success on one position yet arguing a different position in another case to satisfy an exigency of the moment---Allowing a litigant to adopt contradictory positions in different courts would mean that one court was misled or perhaps defrauded.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This common judgment decides upon the issues raised in Writ Petitions Nos.37/2016, 35/2016, 61/2016, 76/2016, 78/2016 and 23145/2016, as all Petitions raise common questions of law and facts. Writ Petitions Nos.37/2016, 35/2016, 61/2016, 76/2016 and 78/2016 were argued on 20.6.2016 and WP No.23145/2016 being similar to the said Petitions was argued on 28.7.2016.

2. The Petitioners have challenged Notification No.AEA-III-3-5/ 2011(Vol-III) dated 4.12.2015 ("Impugned Notification") issued by the Government of Punjab, Industries, Commerce and Investment Department, to the extent of Clauses 6, 7, 8 and 11 which allows existing sugar mills to relocate within the Province. They are also aggrieved by Notification No.AEA-III-3-5/2011 (Vol-III) dated 4.12.2015 issued by the Government of Punjab, Industries, Commerce and Investment Department, to the extent of clause 2(b) ("Second Impugned Notification") which forms a committee to assess the impact of the transportation of sugarcane from the bordering districts of the Punjab to other provinces to determine loss of sugar cess.

3. The Petitioners are public companies, operating sugar mills in the south of Punjab. Writ Petitions Nos.37/2016 and 23145/2016 have been filed by JDW Sugar Mills Limited which is operating a sugar mill in Tehsil Sadiq Abad, District Rahim Yar Khan. Writ Petition No.35/2016 has been filed by RYK Mills Limited which is operating a sugar mill in Rukanabad (Janpur), Tehsil Liaqatabad, Rahim Yar Khan. Writ Petition No.61/2016 has been filed by Indus Sugar Mills Limited which is operating a sugar mill in District Rajanpur. Writ Petition No.76/2016 has been filed by Ashraf Sugar Mills Limited which is operating a sugar mill in Ashrafabad, District Bahawalpur. Writ Petition No.78/2016 has also been filed by Mian Mahmood Ahmad who is in the cotton ginning business in District Rahim Yar Khan and is aggrieved by the Impugned Notification as the relocation policy has failed to take into consideration the national interest and in particular the plight of the cotton industry.

4. The main contesting Respondent in these Petitions is the Government of Punjab, the Agriculture Department, the Industries, Commerce and Investment Department, the Food Department, the Environment Protection Department as well as the Law and Parliamentary Affairs Department have been impleaded through their competent authorities. The District Coordination Officers of Muzaffargarh, Rahim Yar Khan, Bahawalpur, Rajanpur have also been impleaded. The Federal Government through the Ministry of Textile Industry and the Ministry of National Food Security and Research, Islamabad have also been impleaded to explain the Federal Government's policy and the national interest. Report and parawise comments have been filed by all the stated Respondents. The Learned Law Officer on behalf of the Provincial Government stated that the report and parawise comments of the Government of Punjab can be read in all the petitions as the position of the Government is the same in all petitions including W.P. No.23145/2016. Same is the position of the learned DAG appearing for the Federal Government.

5. The contesting Respondents also include sugar mills and their owners who are in the process of shifting their mills to a new location. The specific allegation against Respondent Ittefaq Sugar Mills Limited is that it is establishing a new sugar mill in Channi Got, District Bahawalpur. Respondent Haseeb Waqas Sugar Mills Limited is establishing a new sugar mill in Mauza Jagmal, Tehsil Jatoi, District Muzaffargarh. Respondent Abdullah (Yousaf) Sugar Mills Limited is establishing a new sugar mill in Tehsil Jampur, District Rajanpur. Respondent Abdullah Sugar Mills Limited is establishing a new sugar mill in District Rahim Yar Khan and the Respondent Chaudhry Sugar Mills Limited is establishing a new sugar mill in District Rahim Yar Khan. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the stated Respondents.

6. The basic grievance of the Petitioners is that the Respondents under the garb of shifting/relocation of a functional sugar mill are in fact establishing a new sugar mill despite the ban imposed under the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 ("Ordinance") read with Notification No.AEA-III-3-3/03 (VOL-III) dated 6.12.2006. One of the main arguments raised by the Petitioners is that Respondent sugar mills are owned by the Chief Minister, Punjab and the Prime Minister of Pakistan along with close family relatives. Hence the Impugned Notification has been issued to benefit their business interest. Further that the Impugned Notification has been issued simply to facilitate and legalize the establishment of new sugar mills owned by the families of the Chief Minister, Punjab as well as the Prime Minister given the ban on establishing sugar mills in the Province. In this regard, it is specifically alleged that Ittefaq Sugar Mills Limited and Chaudhary Sugar Mills Limited are owned by Mian Muhammad Nawaz Sharif, Hassan Nawaz Sharif, Hussain Nawaz Sharif, Mrs. Marriyam Nawaz, Mrs. Kalsoom Nawaz and Hamza Shahbaz along with other family members. Haseeb Waqas Sugar Mills Limited is owned by Haseeb Ilyas, Zakia Ilyas, Mrs. Shahzadi Ilyas and other family members. Abdullah Sugar Mills Limited is owned by Mian Mohammad Ejaz Miraj, Yasmin Riaz and other family members. It is noted that the ownership alleged by the Petitioners and the documents relied upon have not been denied by the Respondent sugar mills.

7. Mr. Aitzaz Ahsan, Syed Ali Zafar, Mr. Shehzad A. Elahi, Mr. Jawad Hassan and Mr. Imtiaz Rashid Siddiqui, Advocates on behalf of the Petitioners argued that Section 3 of the Ordinance prohibits the establishment or the enlargement of any industrial undertaking unless specifically permitted in writing by the Provincial Government. It is their case that the Ordinance provides for the organized and planned growth of industry in the Punjab thereby regulating the establishment of an industry as well as its location. In terms of the proviso to Section 3 of the Ordinance, a person may establish an industrial undertaking with the prior permission, in writing, by the Government of Punjab who has to satisfy itself that the establishment of the industrial undertaking will not prejudice the national interest. Section 11 of the Ordinance allows the Government to exempt any industry from the provisions of Section 3 of the Ordinance. It is their case that pursuant to Section 11, Notification dated 6.12.2006 imposed a ban on the establishment or enlargement of sugar mills throughout the Province and that the Impugned Notification violates the mandate of Section 3 of the Ordinance as well as the ban imposed on 6.12.2006 as it was issued to benefit the Respondent sugar mills.

8. Counsel for the Petitioners further argued that the Respondent sugar mills are in the process of establishing new sugar mills and in some cases have already established their sugar mills under the garb of shifting/relocation. They argued that none of the Respondent sugar mills have been given permission to establish or even relocate their sugar mill and Respondents Nos.1 to 6 have acted partially, in collusion with the Respondent sugar mills to give legal cover to their illegal acts. During the course of arguments it was admitted by the counsel for Ittefaq Sugar Mills Limited, Haseeb Waqas Sugar Mills Limited and Abdullah Sugar Mills Limited that the said mills have relocated and are functional at the new locations. So far as Respondent Chaudhary Mills Limited is concerned, they are still in the process of constructing the mill at the new location. All the Respondent sugar mills accept that they do not have permission for relocating under the Impugned Notification or under the Ordinance.

9. The case of the Petitioner in W.P. No.78/2016 is that the districts of Rahim Yar Khan, Muzaffargarh, Bahawalpur and Rajanpur are primarily cotton producing areas of Punjab. Cotton products are the main exports of Pakistan, contributing over 60% of the export value of the country. Therefore, cotton and the textile industry is a major contributor to the national economy, hence this industry is of national interest. The Petitioner's grievance is that without considering the national interest and in particular the plight of the cotton industry, the Government of Punjab has introduced the relocation policy which is not permitted under the law. Mr. Jawad Hassan, Advocate for the Petitioner argued that additional sugarcane cultivation in these areas will reduce cotton production in the area and will have an adverse effect on the soil and environment thereby causing heavy loss to cotton growers. Consequently national interest will suffer because the growth of cotton will be reduced. It is also his case that the Respondent sugar mills have violated the mandatory provisions of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 ("Act") as the Respondent sugar mills have established themselves without fulfilling the requirements under the Act. Learned counsel further argued that relocation of sugar mills is nothing more than relaxation or exemption from the complete ban on establishing sugar mills within the Province. Submitted that the consistent stance of the Government of Punjab and the Federal Government over the years remained to prohibit establishment of new sugar mills especially in the areas of Bahawalpur, Muzaffargrh, Rajanpur and Rahim Yar Khan so as to protect the cotton crop. Therefore the Impugned Notification was issued simply to facilitate the business interest of the Respondent sugar mills owned by the family members of the Chief Minister of the Punjab and the Prime Minister of the country. Further submitted that the Government of Punjab issued the Impugned Notification to validate the concept of relocation and to validate the illegal act of establishing new sugar mills in the Province.

10. In terms of the order of this Court dated 07.03.2016 reports have been submitted by the local commission comprising of the Cane Commissioner, District Coordination Officers and Syed Waqar Hussain Naqvi, Advocate. The reports testify to the fact that Ittefaq Sugar Mills Limited, Haseeb Waqas Sugar Mills Limited and Abdullah Sugar Mills Limited have shifted and were functional in the crushing season from December 2015 to March 2016. During the course of arguments, counsel for the said sugar mills also admitted to the fact that the mills had shifted and were functional during the crushing season from December 2015 to March 2016. So far as Chaudhary Sugar Mills is concerned, construction work started in January 2016 and is still under way.

11. The basic case of the Respondent sugar mills is that they are not establishing new sugar mills nor are they enlarging the sugar production capacity of their existing sugar mills. They are simply relocating their sugar mills from one area to another which is not prohibited under the Ordinance or Notification dated 6.12.2006. It is their case that they have not violated the ban imposed under the Notification of 6.12.2006. It is also their case that since there is no prohibition on relocation, hence they have not committed any illegality and there was no obligation to obtain permission for relocation. Learned counsel for Chaudhry Sugar Mills argued that since the Impugned Notification came in December, 2015 and was suspended by this Court on 4.1.2016, hence the question of taking any permission under the Impugned Notification did not arise.

12. The case of the Government of Punjab set out by the learned Law Officer is that a policy for relocation of existing sugar mills was introduced through the Impugned Notification in order to regulate and facilitate the process of relocating a functional sugar mill. He argued that since relocation does not increase the production capacity of sugar mills hence it does not fall within the domain of Section 3 of the Ordinance read with Notification dated 6.12.2006. He further argued that the relocation policy was introduced after a full deliberative process in which it was concluded that relocation should be permitted in order to save the sugar industry. In this regard, Government of Punjab has relied upon minutes of meeting as well as the reports considered during the deliberation process.

13. A report has been filed on behalf of Respondent No.8, Ministry of Textile Industry, Government of Pakistan, Islamabad. Learned DAG stated that as per report of the stated Respondent the matter falls within the domain of the Government of Punjab. It has been further stated in the report that Pakistan Central Cotton Committee, Multan is working under the administrative control of the Ministry. The said Ministry is responsible to protect the growth and production of cotton in the country. It is further stated that with the installation of new sugar mills in cotton growing areas of Punjab the cultivation of cotton will be adversely affected and curtailed which will cause a decline in cotton production, causing loss to the economy of Pakistan. It is also argued that the stated Ministry is against the installation of sugar mills in the cotton growing areas being against the national interest.

Preliminary Objections

14. Preliminary Objections were raised on the maintainability of the Writ Petitions on the ground that alternate remedy is available to the Petitioners in the form of appeal and revision under Section 7 of the Ordinance. The Petitioners have challenged the government policy on relocation of functional sugar mills and have also challenged the intent behind the issuance of the policy on the ground that it is mala fide and intended to benefit the Respondent sugar mills. Under the circumstances, any remedy before a government functionary in the form of an appeal or revision would not be proper and efficacious as a government functionary cannot deliberate on the vires of the policy nor is it likely that he will comment on the allegations of collusion and mala fide intent given that the Respondent sugar mills are owned by the families of the Chief Minister, Punjab and the Prime Minister. This issue was also considered by the august Supreme Court in Civil Appeals Nos.1242 to 1245 of 2013 vide judgment dated 25.7.2016 where Notification dated 6.12.2006 was challenged. The august Supreme Court held that availing the alternate remedy under the Ordinance would be an exercise in futility since a government functionary is not likely to take a decision contrary to government policy. Hence there is no merit in this objection.

15. Preliminary objections were also raised on the locus standi of the Petitioners that they are not aggrieved parties and that they could not challenge a government policy. The basic contention is that the Petitioners are competitors of the Respondent sugar mills and are operating their own mills in the Southern Region of Punjab where the Respondent sugar mills have relocated. The argument is that these Petitions have been filed simply to oust the competitors and maintain a monopoly in the region. It has been argued that no fundamental or legal right of the Petitioners have been violated, hence they are not aggrieved and cannot invoke the constitutional jurisdiction of this Court.

16. The Petitioners have challenged the Impugned Notification on the ground that the Impugned Notification is arbitrary, discriminatory, tainted with partiality and mala fide. The main grounds are that it has been issued without consideration of national interest and violates the ban of 6.12.2006, that it is a personal relaxation or exemption granted to the Respondent sugar mills who are close relatives of the Chief Executive of the Province and the country. The record shows that the Government has defended the ban on establishment of sugar mills and has consistently maintained the position that the relocation of a functional sugar mill from one district to another tantamounts to establishing a new sugar mill. On this understanding, the Government has time and again rejected applications for relocation by sugar mills. However it changed its long standing position in December 2015 by introducing the relocation policy notwithstanding the ban on the establishment of sugar mills. Furthermore the Respondent sugar mills admittedly did not apply for permission to relocate yet they have relocated their sugar mills despite the ban imposed through Notification dated 6.12.2006. Since the Respondent sugar mills have relocated to the south of Punjab, where the Petitioners have functional sugar mills, the relocation policy and the acts of the Respondent sugar mills give cause to the Petitioners to file the instant Petitions. Furthermore since the policy is stated to be against public interest and national interest, this Court can look into the reasonableness of the policy and review the manner in which the executive exercised its powers to ensure that the rights of the citizens are protected. Reliance is placed on the case titled Engineer Iqbal Zafar Jhagra and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (PLD 2013 SC 224). The Court can also exercise its power of judicial review to ensure that the decision making process was reasonable and not arbitrary or tainted with mala fide. Reliance is placed on the case titled Dr. Akhtar Hassan Khan and others v. Federation of Pakistan and others (2012 SCMR 455). Therefore as such there is no merit in the preliminary objections.

Law and Policy governing the establishment of sugar mills

17. The basic law governing the establishment or enlargement of sugar mills is the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963. Section 3 of the Ordinance provides as under:-

No person shall establish or cause to be established any industrial undertaking or enlarge or cause to be enlarged any existing industrial undertaking except with the previous permission in writing of Government.

Provided that the application of any person for the grant of such permission shall not be rejected

(a) Without giving such person an opportunity of showing cause against it; or

(b) Unless the Government is satisfied, on the basis of information available to it and after making such inquiry as it may deem fit, that the grant of permission to such person will be prejudicial to the national interest, or injurious to the health of or a source of nuisance for, the residents of the local area in which the industrial undertaking is proposed to be set up or, as the case may be, the industrial undertaking which is proposed to be enlarged is situated.

In terms of this Section, an industrial undertaking can only be established with the specific permission of the Government and permission can be refused if national interest is prejudiced or if it adversely affects public health or is source of nuisance for the locality. Section 11 of the Ordinance empowers the Government to grant exemption from the requirements of the Ordinance, in specific from the requirements of Section 3 in the following terms:-

Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt any industrial undertaking or class of industrial undertakings from all or any of the provisions of this Ordinance or the rules.

18. The Government of Punjab has from time to time issued several notifications under Section 11 of the Ordinance regulating the establishment of sugar mills. The first Notification was issued on 2.10.1986 in which all industries and areas in the Province of Punjab were exempted from the application of Section 3 of the Ordinance except those specified in the Notification. As a consequence border areas, areas prone to flooding, urban areas and other specified locations mentioned in the Notification were not exempted from the provisions of Section 3 of the Ordinance. The area-wise restriction in the Notification of 2.10.1986 was referred to as the location policy for the purposes of organizing and planning the growth of sugar mills in the Punjab. In terms of this Notification a sugar mill was not exempted from Section 3 of the Ordinance, hence for the establishment of sugar mills permission was required from the Government.

19. On 3.11.1988 a new Notification was issued which amended the earlier notification of 2.10.1986. In terms of this Notification, no sugar mill was allowed to be set up in the area of Multan, Bahawalpur, DG Khan and Okara. On 17.9.2002 the location policy continued such that no new sugar mill could be set up or enlarged in the districts of Multan, Sahiwal, Vehari, Khanewal, Pakpattan, Lodhran, Bahawalpur, Rahim Yar Khan, Bahawanagar, DG Khan, Rajanpur, Layyah, Muzaffargarh and Okara. On 4.9.2003 the location policy was again amended such that no new sugar mill could be set up and no existing sugar mill could be enlarged anywhere in the Province. Therefore by way of the 2003 Notification, an absolute ban was imposed prohibiting the establishment or enlargement of sugar mills throughout the Province. On 1.4.2004 yet another Notification was issued which changed the absolute ban to an area-wise ban. The districts of Multan, Sahiwal, Vehari, Khanewal, Pakpattan, Lodhran, Bahawalpur, Rahim Yar Khan, Bahawalnagar, DG Khan, Rajanpur, Layyah, Muzaffargarh, Okara and Toba Tek Singh were areas within which no new sugar mill could be established or enlarged without the permission of the Government.

20. On 2.10.2004 by way of another amendment in the location policy it was stated that no new sugar mill could be set up in the Province and existing sugar mills could not be enlarged in the Districts of Sahiwal, Pakpattan and Toba Tek Singh. By way of Notification dated 15.7.2005, the ban was lifted but soon thereafter through letter dated 23.11.2005 the ban was again imposed on the establishment and enlargement of sugar mill throughout the province of Punjab. Thereafter Notification No.AEA-III-3-5/2003(Vol-III) dated 6.12.2006 was issued whereby a complete ban was once again imposed such that no new sugar mill could be set up and no existing sugar mill could be enlarged within the province of Punjab. This Notification continues even today and states the location policy of the Government of Punjab with respect to sugar mills.

21. On 8.4.2011 the ban imposed vide Notification dated 6.12.2006 was reconsidered by a committee constituted by the Chief Minister. The committee deliberated on the issues and decided that the ban should continue because the establishment of sugar mills in the cotton growing belt of Punjab was not in the national interest in view of the risk of increased production in sugarcane which would harm the cultivation of cotton as sugarcane is a water intensive crop which would have an adverse effect on the water resources necessary for cotton production.

Case Law

22. The various notifications issued by the Government of Punjab under Section 11 of the Ordinance have been challenged before this Court several times. In the judgment cited as Muhammad Aslam v. Government of the Punjab through Secretary Industries Department and another (PLD 2013 Lahore 528) and Madina Sugar Mills v. Secretary, Ministry of Industries and others (PLD 2001 Lahore 506) the location policy of the Government was upheld. The judgment in Muhammad Aslam and others was challenged before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan which ultimately resulted in judgment dated 25.7.2016 passed in Civil Appeals Nos.1242 to 1245 of 2013. Leave was granted to consider the scope of the provisions of Sections 3 and 11 of the Ordinance, that is whether the Government has the power to impose a ban upon the establishment/enlargement of the sugar industry specifically under Notification dated 6.12.2006 and whether the Government had valid reasons for issuing the Notification of 6.12.2006. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the above judgment held that:--

The decision to impose the ban was not to benefit or punish anyone but to ensure the organized and planned growth of the industry, which may include the factors noted in paragraph 16 above, even though by imposing a ban, the existing sugar mills may have obtained an advantage of reduced competition. The decision to impose the ban was taken after long deliberations and on the advice of experts and we have not been shown any mala fide or ulterior motive of the Government in taking this decision.

The august Supreme Court of Pakistan further held that:

The Act starts with the position of not permitting the setting up of any industry except by the prior written permission of the Government and then proceeds to state that the applications seeking such permission shall not be rejected except for the reasons mentioned in the proviso to Section 3. Regretfully the rules which were envisaged in the Act and were to be made by the Government have not materialized despite the Act being in the field for over 53 years. Consequently, anyone can submit an application wanting to set up any industry and each such application is to be dealt with on a case to case basis. This, to say the least, is a most unsatisfactory state of affairs. In this terrain unregulated by rules the Government may reject the applications received by it either under clause (a) or clause (b) of the Act. Under clause (a) the Government has to provide an opportunity to show cause against it. However, under clause (b) the Government may reject an application if it is satisfied, on the basis of information available to it and after making such inquiry as it may deem fit. As noted above the Government had inquired into the matter and there was considerable information available with for it to conclude that permitting the establishment of new sugar mills or permitting the expansion of existing ones was prejudicial to the national interest. The Government therefore took the decision to prohibit both new sugar mills and the expansion of existing ones and issued the impugned notification. The decision of the Government was/is in the public and national interest. Such decision was also not motivated by malice, mala fide nor taken for any ulterior reason. Therefore, it is unexceptionable. In respect of such a decision a writ under Article 199 of the Constitution does not lie.

In this way, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the notification of 6.12.2006 was a valid and justified notification which falls within the ambit of the executive authority of the Government. Furthermore the ban of 6.12.2006 was declared legal and in the national interest.

Shifting/Relocation

23. In this way, the case of the Petitioners is that since a ban has been imposed by the Government on the establishment and enlargement of sugar mills vide Notification dated 6.12.2006, there is no legal justification for issuing a policy for relocating existing sugar mills. It is their case that the relocation policy violates the ban imposed on establishment of new sugar mills, which ban has been upheld by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan for being in the national interest. The Respondents have argued that the relocation policy does not violate the ban on the establishment of new sugar mills as relocation of a functional sugar mill is different from the establishment of a new sugar mill. It is their case that notwithstanding the ban relocation is permissible. On the basis of what was argued the first question before this court is whether relocation of sugar mills falls within the ambit of establishment of new sugar mills as provided under the Ordinance and regulated under the Notification of 6.12.2006 or whether relocation is separate and distinct from establishment of a sugar mill such that it is not governed by the Ordinance or the ban. For the sake of convenience the relevant portion of the Impugned Notification reads as follows:

No.AEA-III 3-5/2011 (Vol-VIII).- In exercise of powers conferred under Section 11 of the Punjab Industries (Control on Establishment and Enlargement) Ordinance, 1963 (IV of 1963) and subject to the following exceptions and conditions, Governor of the Punjab is pleased to exempt all industries throughout Province of the Punjab from the provisions of Section 3 of the Ordinance.

5. No new sugar mill shall be set up in the Province, and the capacity of an existing sugar mill shall not be enlarged.

24. Clause 5 of the Impugned Notification reiterates the ban imposed vide Notification dated 6.12.2006 meaning that by virtue of the Impugned Notification the ban on the establishment or enlargement of new sugar mills continues by way of policy of the Government. Clause 6 allows the Government to recommend relocation of a functional sugar mill subject to the ban imposed in Clause 5 and subject to the conditions provided in Clause 8, if it is in public interest. A bare reading of Clauses 5 and 6 shows that relocation must be considered in the context of the ban on establishment of new sugar mills and in the context of public interest. In this way the Impugned Notification creates a direct nexus between relocation of a sugar mill and establishment of a new sugar mill. When seen in its historical perspective, the Government has pursuant to Section 11 of the Ordinance issued various notifications from time to time, regulating the location of sugar mills such that there were restrictions on the establishment of new sugar mills in certain areas. The area-wise restriction remains the location policy of the Government which regulates the establishment and growth of new sugar mills within the Province. This is evident from the fact that various notifications issued up to 2006 restricted the establishment of sugar mills in particular areas such as Multan, Bahawalpur, DG Khan, Rahim Yar Khan and Muzaffargarh amongst others. Ultimately the Notification of 6.12.2006 set out a complete ban on the establishment of new sugar mills and on the enlargement of the capacity of an existing sugar mill throughout the Province. The long standing rationale given for the location policy and for the ban is to protect the national interest that is the cotton crop, cotton growing areas and the textile industry. In essence the location policy of the Government has continuously protected cotton growing areas by restricting the establishment of new sugar mills in those areas.

25. The Notification dated 6.12.2006 was challenged before this Court and the matter regarding the legality of the ban has been put to rest by the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan dated 25.7.2016 in Civil Appeals Nos.1242 to 1245 of 2013 which upheld the ban on the ground that that the Government can impose such a ban if it has duly considered the national interest as well as other relevant factors. The august Supreme Court considered the national interest as well as the factors on the basis of which the ban was imposed and upheld the decision of the Government on the ground that considerable deliberations were made, advice of experts and relevant departments were considered before issuance of Notification dated 6.12.2006. The august Supreme Court considered the Pakistan Economic Survey 2015-16, heard the stance of the Province as well as the Federation and held that not only is the ban justified but its continuance is imperative to protect the national interest. In this way the policy of the Government to protect the cotton crop and cotton growing areas has been upheld by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan which recognizes that the location of a sugar mill is relevant in order to protect national interest.

26. Relocation of a functional sugar mill means that the mill will close its operations in one area and relocate to another area. In the instant cases, the relocation is without increasing the production capacity of sugar mills, so essentially relocating the sugar mill means moving from one location to another, based on the licensed production capacity of the sugar mill. The key element for the purposes of relocation is the location to which the functional sugar mill will shift. For the purposes of the new location the sugar mill will establish itself in that area and it is a new sugar mill in the local area which does not increase the overall production capacity of sugar. In the way establishment and relocation of sugar mills are correlated when seen in the context of the ban and public interest as the key element for both is the location of the sugar mill. Hence relocation of a sugar mill is the establishment of a new sugar mill in the local area to which the provisions of Sections 3 to 12 of the Ordinance are applicable and for the purposes of the Ordinance relocation falls within the ambit of establishment of a new sugar mill and will have to be planned and organized as per the requirements of Section 3 of the Ordinance.

27. The Ordinance aims to organize and plan the growth of industry within the Province placing special emphasis on the local area within which the industrial undertaking carries out its business. Organizing and planning the growth of industry itself suggests that the location and factors related to the local area are relevant when considering an application under Section 3 of the Ordinance for grant of permission to set up an industrial undertaking. In terms of Section 3 of the Ordinance read with the Notifications issued under Section 11 of the Ordinance, when determining whether a new sugar mill can be established, the Government of Punjab has emphasized on the location of the sugar mill which means that the local environment, its geographical features and its non-geographical conditions are relevant. The Ordinance also mandates that location be considered in the context of national interest, public health and public nuisance such that it does not cause prejudice to the national interest or the public at large. To argue that relocation is different from establishment of a sugar mill is without merit as the factors considered at the time of grant of permission for establishment or relocation of a sugar mill will be identical since both are location specific and because the objective of the Ordinance and notifications issued under Section 11 is to control the location where the sugar mill is to carry out its business and to protect the national interest.

28. The august Supreme Court in its judgment dated 25.7.2016 listed the factors on the basis of which the ban of 6.12.2006 was imposed and the factors which support the continuance of the ban today. In terms of the judgment of the august Supreme Court, the relevant factors are as follows:

a) Punjab has an arid climate whereas sugarcane is best grown in tropical zones:
b) Sugarcane consumes far more water than other crops;
c) The water required for growing sugarcane in non-perennial irrigation canal areas is made up by tapping into groundwater/aquifers inducing water scarcity by depleting aquifers;
d) Sugarcane stubble remains rooted in the soil after it has been cut therefore the second (wheat) crop cannot be grown on such land whereas it can be grown on the land from which cotton is harvested;
e) Sugarcane adversely affects food security;
f) Sugarcane substitutes cotton and wheat;
g) Existing sugar mills have underutilized capacity;
h) Textile industry is being starved of locally available cotton;
i) Cotton bales are imported by using scarce foreign exchange;
j) Textiles are a major foreign exchange earner; and
k) International price of sugar is cheaper than the local price therefore sugar does not have export potential.
The aforementioned factors confirm that the establishment of a new sugar mill is not justified simply on the basis of production capacity, but is also seen in the context of its location and the factors relevant to the local area. The same would be applicable to the relocation of a functional sugar mill because the location policy protects the national interest and there can be no relocation of a functional sugar mill without due consideration of the location it is desirous of shifting to. This understanding is in consonance with the planned policy of the Government to control the location of sugar mills. The judgment cited at PLD 2001 Lahore 506 (supra) considered the establishment of sugar mills and location policy as issued under Section 11 of the Ordinance from time to time and held that the location policy was made with the object of ensuring that additional sugar manufacturing capacity could be set up in the Punjab without displacement of the cotton crop as the same was considered to be of special significance having special interest. It further held that the location policy set out and represented a legitimate exercise of the executive authority of the Government and was consistent with its objectives to ensure organized and planned growth of industries in the Province. The Court further held that the location policy was well considered even though occasionally it was tampered with for extraneous reasons and not for national interest. The establishment of sugar mills and the location policy including the ban of 6.12.2006 when considered by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Civil Appeals Nos.1242 to 1245 of 2013 was upheld given that the factors regulating the location policy justified the ban on establishing sugar mills in order to protect cotton growing areas. The factors considered by the august Supreme Court and relied upon by the Government will also be relevant while considering an application seeking permission to relocate.

29. While the Impugned Notification requires relocation to be considered in the context of the ban imposed on establishing sugar mills as well as in the context of public interest it fails to set out the guidelines on the basis of which an application for relocation should be considered. It does not provide for any of the conditions or factors on the basis of which a recommendation can be made. The conditions and criteria given in Clause 8 of the Impugned Notification leave the decision of relocation totally to the discretion of the Committee considering the matter. Clause 8(a) requires all outstanding dues to be paid and 8(b) requires continuous operation for five years. Both conditions are procedural in nature and do not control the substantive decision regarding the relocation. Clause 8 (c)(i) calls for details and justifications from the applicant, for the purposes of relocation. Since no guideline has been provided for this fundamental clause in the policy, the entire decision making process is left open ended with no specific guideline on the basis of which a decision can be made. Hence the basic objective of the policy that is to make relocation subject to the ban on establishment and in public interest is not achieved and cannot be given effect to. In its defense the learned Law Officer explained that there is a dire need to allow sugar mills to relocate on account of the change in cropping patterns and improved environmental conditions and since relocation does not enhance the overall sugar production capacity there is no violation of the ban or national interest. He argued that the policy aims to allow relocation to protect the sugar industry. The stated intent of the Government is a cause of serious concern because the Government has consistently maintained its policy to protect the cotton growing areas of Punjab yet on the basis of the Impugned Notification a sugar mill can move into a cotton growing area under the garb of relocation, which will not only violates the ban but also prejudices the stated national interest. The Government is well versed with all the factors relevant to the location of a sugar mill because it has historically and even before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan while defending the ban on the establishment of sugar mills, emphasized on the fact that the location of a sugar mill is important and must be controlled in order to ensure that the national interest in the cotton crop is protected. The purpose of the various notifications issued under Section 11 of the Ordinance from time to time evidence the need to protect the national interest that is cotton growing areas. All the notifications have been location specific intended to control the location of the sugar mill, hence to urge production capacity as the key factor controlling relocation is against the record and public interest. In fact the record shows that the Government held the view that relocation and establishment are synonymous and since relocation effectively means to establish at a new location, it was not permissible. This is evident from letter dated 29.1.2015 issued by the Deputy Director (Opinion), Government of Punjab, Law and Parliamentary Affairs Department addressed to the Secretary, Government of Punjab, Industries, Commerce and Investment Department, wherein the Government of Punjab was of the opinion that relocation of a sugar mill from Sargodha to Muzaffargarh means the establishment of a new sugar mill in Muzaffargarh and relocation would have to be considered against the touchstone of national interest, public health and in the context of public nuisance. To now minimize the emphasis on location and focus on the production capacity in order to justify the Impugned Notification compels the Court to take a harder look at the relocation policy to ascertain whether it was issued for the benefit of the public and whether there is a rational justification for the policy.

30. It is settled law that the Government is entitled to make policies for good governance and the courts in general do not interfere in policy matters. However, there are exceptions to this rule giving this Court the power to review a policy decision to ensure that it is not arbitrary or capricious, and that it does not violate any fundamental right or provision of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution"). Reliance is placed on the case titled Messrs Al-Raham Travels and Tours (Pvt.) Ltd. and others v. Ministry of Religious Affairs, Hajj, Zakat and Ushr through Secretary and others (2011 SCMR 1621). The august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held that as regards the contention of the learned counsel that the High Court cannot interfere with the policy matters in its jurisdiction, we have some reservations, as if the policy is in conflict with any provision of law or is violative of the fundamental rights of a citizen, the same can be called in question before the High Court in its writ jurisdiction. Furthermore there are three grounds on which a policy can be reviewed by this Court under Article 199 of the Constitution. First if the policy is illegal and contrary to the law; secondly if the policy is irrational and unreasonable and thirdly if there has been procedural impropriety. The judicial review of a policy is intended to prevent arbitrariness or favourtism and is exercised in the larger public interest. Reliance is placed on the case titled Asaf Fasihuddin Khan Vardag v. Government of Pakistan and others (2014 SCMR 676). The august Supreme Court of Pakistan has also held that Article 199 of the Constitution can be invoked if the policy is a product of mala fide as held in the case titled Dossani Travels Pvt. Ltd. and 4 others v. Messrs Travels Shop (Pvt.) Ltd. and others (2013 SCMR 1749).

31. The question that arises is whether the Impugned Notification could introduce the concept of relocation when it has continued with the ban imposed on the establishment of sugar mills through Notification dated 6.12.2006. The rationale for the Impugned Notification is evidenced through the Summaries prepared for the Chief Minister by the Secretary Industries as well as Secretary (I&C), dated 8.6.2015 and 2.12.2015 (the Summaries) which discusses the factors relevant to relocation and considers the need for allowing relocation. In this regard, great reliance has been placed on both the Summaries which have been filed with the reply of the Government of Punjab. A Cabinet Committee was formed by the Chief Minister on 22.6.2015 to deliberate and formulate a policy on relocation given that the earlier location policies did not cover the aspect of relocation. The Committee comprised of:--

(i) Minister Industries
(ii) Minister for Law
(iii) Minister for Agriculture
(iv) Minister for Food
(v) Secretary Industries
(vi) Secretary Law
(vii) Secretary Agriculture

(viii) Secretary Food
(ix) Any other member to be co-opted by the committee.
The Cabinet Committee concluded that a relocation policy should be introduced since relocation does not increase the crushing capacity of the overall sugar industry. It opined that notwithstanding the existing ban on the installation of new sugar mills, relocation was inevitable as per market dynamics. It observed that Districts like Rahim Yar Khan, Muzaffargarh, Rajanpur have improved environmental factors which can sustain a change in cropping patterns. The Cabinet Committee considered the cultivation of sugarcane in Rahim Yar Khan, Muzaffargarh, Rajanpur, Bhakkar and concluded that changes in the water table, better crop variety and other environmental factors justified a relocation policy. It also observed that it would be in the public interest to allow relocation. Hence the Cabinet Committee concluded that relocation of sugar mills was necessary and a policy in support thereof was recommended. Consequently, the Impugned Notification set out the relocation policy while continuing the ban that no new sugar mill can be set up in the Province.

32. The significance of the ban is that no new sugar mill can be established nor can the licensed capacity of a sugar mill be enlarged. Consequently if a sugar mill wants to relocate to a new location that is if a sugar mill wants to establish itself at a new location, it would fall under the ban. The Government has argued that relocation does not fall under the ban because the ban is for the establishment of new sugar mills only and not for functional mills since relocation does not change the overall production capacity of sugar mills the ban will not affect functional mills. This argument is flawed as the relocation of a sugar mill means the establishment of a new sugar mill in the local area which is regulated by the Ordinance. Furthermore since the ban is on the establishment of a new sugar mills and on increasing or enlarging the capacity of sugar mills, to argue that relocation is permissible since it does not change the production capacity of sugar, fails to address the matter in its totality as it does not address the establishment or location aspect of the matter. The Government has stressed on the fact that the relocation policy is necessary to protect the capital investment of the owners of sugar mills and to respond to change in market conditions. This is evident from the Summaries relied upon. However, these reasons do not justify making relocation a way to shift into cotton growing areas because the policy of imposing the ban means that national interest overrides the capital investment requirements of any sugar mill and the need to respond to market conditions. Section 3 of the Ordinance mandates that individual requirements have to be weighed against national interest, general health of the people and causes of nuisance in the local area. The Notifications issued under Section 11 especially Notification dated 6.12.2006 means that a sugar mill cannot establish in a cotton growing area. So while the long standing policy of the ban prevents setting up mills in cotton growing areas, the relocation policy creates a way to defy the ban. In this way, the Impugned Notification does not benefit the public interest nor does it protect the national interest but to the contrary facilitates sugar mills to bypass the requirements of Section 3 of the Ordinance and totally ignore national interest. Further there appears to be no rational connection between the ban on establishing sugar mills and the relocation policy. Looking at in another way Section 3 of the Ordinance requires a sugar mill to seek permission for establishing itself and the permission must be considered against the touchstone of national interest, public health and public nuisance for the local area. The law itself emphasizes on the local area meaning the location of the sugar mill. The objective of the Ordinance read with the Notifications under Section 11 has been to protect the cotton growing areas. The relocation policy steers away from the objective of the Ordinance and the ban and allows sugar mills to relocate within the Province with no control over the location. This means that the Respondent sugar mills can set up in cotton growing areas even though the stated national interest is to the contrary. Under the circumstances the only plausible explanation for introducing the relocation policy is to purportedly relax the effect of the 2006 ban so as to facilitate the relocation of the Respondent sugar mills.

33. Interestingly the Government of Punjab defended the ban on the establishment of sugar mills before the august Supreme Court in Civil Appeals Nos.1242 to 1245 of 2013 on the ground that new sugar mills should not be set up in cotton growing areas as it would encourage farmers to grow sugarcane in areas which would adversely affect the growth of cotton crop in those areas. Para 4 of the judgment of the august Supreme Court sets out the arguments of the Government of Punjab as follows:--

He referred to a number of documents to show that sugarcane crop consumed considerably more water than cotton or wheat and that the installed capacity of the existing sugar mills was under utilized, therefore, if additional sugar mills were set up or the existing ones expanded it would encourage farmers to grow sugarcane in their vicinity which would be bought by the sugar mills and the growing of cotton or other crops would be discouraged. By referring to the documents on record, he stated that the cotton industry adds considerable value to the harvested cotton and a sizeable portion of the textiles manufactured from it are exported, earning considerable foreign exchange for the country, but the same benefits do not accrue by growing sugarcane and manufacturing sugar. Documents were also referred to show that there was, and is, a considerable shortage of cotton in the country which is adversely impacting the textile industry which has on the one hand reduced foreign exchange earnings and on the other resulted in valuable foreign exchange being spent on the import of raw cotton for consumption by the textile industry. Reference was also made to reports to show that sugarcane as compared to other crops attracts more bacteria and insects which have an adverse impact on other crops. Under such circumstances, the Government had decided to stop the erection of new sugar mills as well as the expansion of existing ones and this decision of the Government, incorporated in the impugned Notification, was in the national interest which was also one of the stated factors to be taken into account when considering an application under Section 3 of the Act. Therefore, since every application for the setting up of a new sugar mill or the expansion of an existing one, would be contrary to the national interest, good governance and transparency mandated the issuance of the impugned Notification which had removed all discretion and prevented either favouritism or victimization.

He further defended the ban on the ground that there was no mala fide or ulterior motive while imposing the ban and that the same was done in the national interest since sugarcane is a water intensive crop yet ground water sources have depleted and sugarcane areas will only worsen the situation. Further that sugarcane crop nourishes pests and bacteria which is detrimental to cotton crop. The august Supreme Court also heard the Cane Commissioner, Punjab who also opposed the lifting of the ban and the establishment of new sugar mills for the same reasons as given by the AAG. The Secretary of Agriculture also endorsed the views of the Government on the ground that lifting the ban would adversely affect the production of cotton. Hence the august Supreme Court concluded that not only the ban was justified but also its continuance was necessary. The learned AAG also referred to the comments filed in the writ petition in which Civil Appeals Nos.1242 to 1245 of 2013 arose. The following reasons have been recorded in the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan:--

(a) At present, 46 sugar mills exist in the province and there is a deficit of about 35% between requirement and production of sugarcane crop. All the existing sugar mills are working below the installed capacity. The Punjab Province is already over crowded with regard to sugar mills, therefore, sanction for establishment of new sugar mills would not be feasible and lead to over investment.

b) Cotton is the backbone of our economy. It ensures economic security as its value added products contribute 60% to foreign exchange earnings.

c) Sugarcane crop poses threat to cotton growing areas as it has very strong substitution effect for cotton. Proliferation of Sugar Mills in the Province would adversely affect production of cotton. Government of the Punjab constituted and notified a Location Policy committee headed by the Chief Secretary, Punjab to deliberate upon the policy of Government regarding establishment of new sugar mills to maintain a balance between production of sugar and protection of cotton growing areas of the Province in the public interest. On recommendation of committee, ban was imposed on establishment of new sugar mills and enhancement of capacity of existing sugar mills throughout the province vide Industries Department's Notification dated 6.12.2006.

34. Clearly the Government of Punjab has taken an inconsistent and contradictory position before both the Courts. In the august Supreme Court while defending the ban on the establishment of sugar mills the Government of Punjab took the position that setting up new sugar mills in areas such as Rahim Yar Khan Multan, Rajanpur, Bhakkar is detrimental to the cotton crop and that cultivation of sugarcane crop poses a threat to cotton growing areas. It was also stated before the august Supreme Court that sugarcane is a water intensive crop and since ground water sources have depleted, increase in the sugarcane crop will worsen the situation. The position of the Government before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan was that the establishment of new sugar mills was not in the national interest. However, before this Court, the Government of Punjab, while relying on the recommendations of the Cabinet Committee has argued that while historically the growth of sugarcane in some areas posed a threat to cotton and wheat, today the climate and the environment conditions have changed and as such the cultivation of sugarcane in areas like Rahim Yar Khan Multan, Rajanpur, Bhakkar would not be detrimental to cotton crop. They have also stated that the establishment of sugar mills in the aforementioned areas would not compromise or prejudice national interest. In fact they have urged that the cropping pattern should change as per market dynamics. When confronted with the contradictory position of the Government, the learned AAG appearing before this Court defended the position by relying on the fictional notion that relocation does not amount to establishment of a new sugar mill because it does not increase the total production capacity of sugar mill. In this regard, it is noted that the overall production capacity of sugar is not the driving force behind relocation or the location policy. The Respondent sugar mills have relocated to promote their commercial interest and business prospects. The new location is considered more suitable to business due to its environmental and geographical factors. The Respondent sugar mills want to relocate for better business prospects. Hence the relocation is motivated by personal interest and ignores the national interest in totality.

35. It is the fundamental duty of a Court to protect the integrity of the judicial process. A party cannot approbate and reprobate at the same time. When a party takes an inconsistent position in the same case or in a prior case, the principle of judicial estoppel should be applied. Judicial estoppel is an equitable doctrine which precludes a party from taking inconsistent positions before the Court. It protects the integrity of the judicial system and not of the litigant. It seeks to ensure respect for judicial proceedings and avoid inconsistency and abuse of process. Under the doctrine of judicial estoppal a court can stop a party from taking up contradictory stances because it is clearly inconsistent with the previous position taken by that party before another Court. The application of judicial estoppel depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. When a party puts forth a position, as a matter of fact in one case and is successful in that assertion, that party is estopped from asserting a different position on the same facts in the second case. Obviously the party who is to be estopped in the second case is the same party in the earlier case meaning that the party is the same in both cases. Furthermore the issue for which the party is estopped from asserting its facts must have some nexus in both proceedings. It is imperative that this equitable principle be applied so that a judicial process functions properly and effectively. Litigants must approach the Court in a truthful manner especially if the litigant party is the Government. A party can always vigorously assert its position, but cannot misrepresent the facts in order to gain some advantage in the process. When a party has formally asserted a certain version of the facts in litigation, he or she cannot later change those facts because the initial version no longer suits him or her. Reliance is placed on the case titled Arkison v. Ethan Allen (160 Wn.2d 535 (Wash. 2007). The doctrine of judicial estoppel, in its most generic form, prevents a party from asserting a position in one legal proceeding, that directly contradicts a position taken by that same party in an earlier proceeding. To apply the principle of judicial estoppel, the Court must ascertain that a party has asserted a contradictory position before another Court which position was accepted by that Court. The case titled New Hampshire v. Maine (532 U.S. 742 (2001) held that there are three conditions necessary to apply the principle of judicial estoppel. First, a party's later position must be clearly inconsistent with its earlier position. Second, courts should inquire whether the party has succeeded in persuading a court to accept its earlier position. And the third consideration is whether the party seeking to assert the inconsistent position would derive an unfair advantage or impose an unfair detriment on the opposing party if not estopped. Furthermore the literature on judicial estoppel clarifies that a party's change in its factual or legal position threatens to produce inconsistent decisions by the Courts. It reasons that judicial estoppel is necessary to protect the integrity of the court from the harm caused when a litigant engages in cynical gamesmanship, achieving success on one position yet arguing a different position in another case to satisfy an exigency of the moment. If a litigant is allowed to adopt contradictory positions in different courts it means that one court was misled or perhaps defrauded.1

36. This principle is recognized in our jurisdiction in cases where the court finds that inconsistent legal pleas in juxtaposition to each other, in two proceedings, pertaining to same subject matter taken by the same counsel is not desirable. Reliance is on the case titled Habiba Kassam and others v. Habib Bank Ltd. (1989 CLC 1433). A litigant cannot be permitted to assume inconsistent positions in Court, to play fast and loose, to blow hot and cold, to approbate and reprobate, to the detriment of his opponent; and this doctrine applies not only to the successive stages of the same suit, but also in different suits. Reliance is placed on the cases titled Sheikh Gulzar Ali & Co. Ltd. and others v. Special Judge, Special Court of Banking and another (1991 SCMR 590), Noor Muhammad, Lambardar v. Member (Revenue), Board of Revenue, Punjab, Lahore and others (2003 SCMR 708), Overseas Pakistanis Foundation and others v. Sqn. Ldr. (Retd.) Syed Mukhtar Ali Shah and another (2007 SCMR 569) and on the case titled Amrital N. Shah v. Alla Annapurnamma (Andhra Pradesh) (1959 AIR (A.P) 9:1958(2) An.WR 447:1958 ALT 584:1958 ILR (Andhra Pradesh) 509).

37. In the instant case, the position of the Government of Punjab is clearly inconsistent with its earlier position before the august Supreme Court where the ban of 6.12.2006 was challenged. The Government defended the imposition of the ban on the ground that if new mills are established in cotton growing areas, it will have a negative impact on the cotton crop and the water tables. It defended the continuance of the ban even today on the ground that cotton is the backbone of the economy and that the sugarcane crop poses a threat to the cotton crop in Multan, Bahawalpur, DG Khan, Rahim Yar Khan and Muzaffargarh. Yet before this Court they have stated that the environment has changed since 2006 and now the cotton crop and water tables are not threatened if sugar mills are established in Multan, Bahawalpur, DG Khan, Rahim Yar Khan and Muzaffargarh. They have also stated that relocation will not harm the cotton crop yet have argued before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan that the establishment of a sugar mill will harm the cotton crop, cotton cultivation and the textile industry. The plea of the Government of Punjab was relied upon and accepted by the august Supreme Court in its judgment dated 25.7.2016. Therefore it cannot now adopt a contradictory position before this Court. The matter in issue is related as it deals with the establishment of sugar mills and the location policy that was argued by the Government. Therefore there is a strong nexus in both the cases. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan considered the location policy wherein a ban was imposed and upheld the ban to protect national interest. In this case, the Government has justified the relocation policy even though there is a complete ban on the establishment of sugar mills. Hence, the Government of Punjab is barred from asserting that relocation of a sugar mill will not prejudice the national interest or that a policy facilitating relocation is necessary to promote the sugar industry since it has asserted its long standing policy of banning the establishment of sugar mills in the Province. The position taken before the august Supreme Court will be deemed as the correct factual and legal position of the Government of Punjab and will also be relied upon by this Court.

38. In view of the aforesaid, no sugar mill can establish in cotton growing areas as not only does it defy the ban but it also prejudices the national interest. The Impugned Notification creates a mechanism to avoid the ban by allowing sugar mills to relocate within the Province and in this case to relocate in cotton growing areas. The relocation policy undermines the basic intent for imposing a restriction on the establishment and enlargement of sugar mills in the Province. If new sugar mills cannot be established within the Province pursuant to the ban of 2006, a functional sugar mill cannot establish itself in a new area on the pretext of relocation on the justification that it is permissible since the overall sugar production is not enhanced. The cotton growing areas are protected for the collective benefit of nation. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan had declared the ban to be legal and in national interest. This being the current position, the relocation policy fails to consider all important aspects of the problem and leaves the national interest hostage to the discretion of the relevant committee. A sugar mill is given a licensed capacity to operate and the need to relocate is not based on the need to enhance its licensed capacity. The Respondent sugar mills as well as the Government of Punjab have justified the need to relocate on geographical conditions, climate conditions and on the basis of the overall environment in the areas of Rahim Yar Khan, Muzaffargarh, Bahawalpur and Rajanpur. Therefore clearly its intended to allow sugar mills to function in cotton growing areas. In this case, it has validated the Respondent sugar mills establishment in cotton growing areas.

39. This brings us to another important aspect of the case. Public officers are trustees of public funds and public property and are expected to take decisions based on public interest. Reliance is placed on the case titled Pir Imran Sajid and others v. Managing Director/General Manager (Manager Finance) Telephone Industries of Pakistan and others (2015 SCMR 1257). A Government notification or policy is not immune from challenge if it is demonstrated that the notification was issued for reasons against public or national interest. While exercising constitutional jurisdiction, this Court can look into the reasons for issuance of a policy where there are serious allegations of flouting transparency and good governance. There is no cavil to the fact that the Government can exercise its executive authority and formulate policies necessary for governance and that Courts generally do not interfere in policy matters. However, where there are elements of abuse of power, arbitrariness and violation of the process, this Court can look into the legality of the policy. The issue before this Court is whether the relocation policy was issued for national interest or for personal interest. The main allegation against the Impugned Notification is that it was introduced to benefit the business interest of the families of the Chief Minister of Punjab and the Prime Minister of the country. A transparent and reasonable decision must be free from abuse of public office and from personal advantage. Where there is conflict of interest between private interest and public duty it must be clearly identified, appropriately managed and effectively resolved. This ensures public confidence in public institutions. A conflict of interest will arise where an official decision will impact a personal interest, financially or otherwise such that a public official is seen to have gained from that decision or is perceived to have gained from that decision. Where there is a conflict between a public official's interest as a private citizen and his duty as a public official, there is potential for a conflict of interest to arise. The jurisprudence on conflict of interest aims to ensure that private interest will not prosper from decisions taken in public office, while carrying out official duties and responsibilities. The mandate of any elected government is based on trust and public confidence. Both elements find its tools in transparency, good governance and fairness in the decision making process. Any conflict of interest, in fact or perceived will destroy public trust and malign the decisions making process.

40. In this case, the relocation policy has not benefitted or protected the national interest but is aimed to facilitate certain sugar mills, which happen to be owned by the families of the Chief Minister, Punjab and the Prime Minister of Pakistan. The deliberations on the relocation policy began in June, 2015 when a Cabinet Committee was formed to consider a policy on relocation of sugar mills in the Punjab. However prior to this, the process of relocation was under way by Ittefaq Sugar Mills Limited, Haseeb Waqs Sugar Mills Limited and Abdullah Sugar Mills Limited. Prior to June, 2015 the consistent position of the Government was that relocation and establishment of a mill are synonymous. The record shows that they considered it one and the same and rejected relocation to protect national interest. While maintaining the ban the Government carved out a relocation policy enabling the Respondent sugar mills to relocate on the pretext that relocation will not enhance the production capacity of sugar mills, hence it does not violate the ban. The timing of the policy conveniently matches the timing of the relocation of the Respondent sugar mills. Furthermore admittedly none of the sugar mills have permission to relocate or establish themselves at another location yet no action has been taken against any Respondent sugar mills. In its defense the Government claims that show cause notices were issued to the Respondent sugar mills on account of establishing a new sugar mill without the prior permission of the competent authority. However, the said notices do not establish the vigilance of the Government but instead highlights the contradictory stance as they question the relocation on the ground that there is a ban on establishing new sugar mills. The Government took a contradictory stand before this Court to protect and rationalize its policy, however, there has been no rational justification for the relocation policy.

41. The decision making process in this case was not initiated in national interest or public interest. The process was initiated to protect certain business interests at the expense of national interest and public interest. The fact that the Government of Punjab supports the ban imposed on establishing new sugar mills means that it has deliberated on the factors relevant to the establishment of new sugar mills within the Province and has accepted that cotton growing areas are to be protected and no sugar mill can be set up in those areas. It is important to note that the ban exists within the Province since 2006 to date and the Government has reiterated the necessity of ban before the august Supreme Court. The relocation of any sugar mill from one area to another is the establishment of the sugar mill in a new location which cannot be rationalized if there is a ban on the establishment of sugar mills. The districts of Rahim Yar Khan, Muzaffargarh, Bahawalpur and Rajanpur are cotton producing areas which have been protected for a considerable period of time through the location policy under the Ordinance. The Government in order to protect the interests of cotton growers as well as cotton crop has from time to time issued notifications to control the growth of sugar mills in cotton growing areas. With the ban in place, the decision of the Government is clearly to protect the cotton industry and cotton growers and all factors, environment, geographical and non-geographical relevant to the cotton industry and cotton crop become relevant when allowing the establishment of an industry in those areas. The shifting of the Respondent sugar mills specifically into cotton growing areas evidences their intent to defy the ban and the efforts of the Government to justify their relocation.

42. The matter does not end here. The Government not only designed a policy to cater to a few sugar mills but it also failed to take action against the Respondent sugar mills for establishing new sugar mills without any permission whatsoever required under the law. The Respondent sugar mills have failed to comply with the requirements of the environmental laws of the Province and have admittedly not taken the required permissions. In terms of Section 12 of the Act, no proponent of a project shall commence construction or operation unless he has filed with the Government Agency designed by Federal Environmental Protection Agency or Provincial Government Protection Agencies, as the case may be, or, where the project is likely to cause an adverse environmental effects an environmental impact assessment, and has obtained from the Government Agency approval in respect thereof. Admittedly the requirements of Section 3 of the Ordinance with respect to health and nuisance have not been looked into and the requirements of Section 12 of the Act have not been fulfilled. Yet three of the Respondent sugar mills are functional at the new location and one is in the construction phase without fulfilling the requirements of the Act or the Ordinance. The very commencement of the construction of the mills without filing an Initial Environmental Examination with the competent department and without approval on the Environmental Impact Assessment is illegal and in absolute contravention of the Act. This fortifies the view that the policy was issued for the benefit of the Respondent sugar mills and not for the public or national interest. Reliance is placed on the case titled Sheri-CBE and others v. Lahore Development Authority and others (2006 SCMR 1202). The Respondent sugar mills are therefore establishing sugar mills under the garb of shifting/relocation in clear violation of the Ordinance as well as the Act.

43. The facilitation of the Government has given the Respondent sugar mills the ability to circumvent the ban and establish sugar mills in areas where sugar mills prejudice and adversely affect the cotton crop. The relocation policy is therefore a tool established to grant personalized exemptions to the Respondent sugar mills to establish their sugar mills despite the ban. If at all any permission was to be granted, it had to be done prior to the construction of the sugar mills in the new location and any effort now to grant NOCs under the said policy for relocating would be a mockery of public trust, transparency and good governance. Therefore, the Respondent sugar mills are restrained from carrying out the business of sugar mills in their relocated premises.

44. The Petitioners have also challenged Notification No.AEA-III-3-5/2011 (Vol-III) dated 4.12.2015 issued by the Government of Punjab, Industries, Commerce and Investment Department to the extent of clause 2(b) of the Second Impugned Notification. However the stated clause merely forms a committee to assess the impact of the transportation of sugarcane from the bordering districts of the Punjab to other provinces to determine loss of sugar cess. Hence at this stage there is no action of the Government which infringes upon any rights of the Petitioners. Therefore, the objection of the counsels for the Petitioners against the establishment of the committee is premature and not sustainable at this stage.

45. In view of the aforesaid, all these writ petitions are allowed to the extent of the relocation policy issued by the Government of Punjab which is not permitted under the law and is therefore struck down. However these petitions are dismissed to the extent of clause 2(b) of the Second Impugned Notification which merely forms a committee to assess the impact of the transportation of sugarcane from the bordering districts of the Punjab to other provinces to determine loss of sugar cess being premature and not sustainable at this stage. The Government should take necessary legal action against the Respondent sugar mills pursuant to the show cause notices issued to the Respondent sugar mills on account of their establishing new sugar mills without seeking the prior permission from the competent authority required under the law.

Workmen's Compensation Act (VIII of 1923)---

----S. 19---Mines Act (IV of 1923), S.3(f)---Reference to Workmen's Compensation Commissioner---"Mine"---Definition---Employee filed disability claim before Workmen's Compensation Commissioner for Mines on having fallen from 20 feet height and hurt---Commissioner awarded compensation to workman---Validity---Employer alleged that Commissioner had no jurisdiction to adjudicate upon matter as employer ran a gypsum quarry which was not a "mine" and employee did not fall under the definition of 'workman' as defined in Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923---Held, that quarry was an "open pit mine" which fell under definition of "mine" under the Mines Act, 1923---Employee was a "workman" under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 and Workmen's Compensation Commissioner for Mines had jurisdiction in the matter---Constitutional petition of employer was dismissed accordingly.
Ras Tariq Chaudhary for Petitioner.
Ch. Sultan Mehmood, AAG.
Zafar Abbas Khan, Advocate for Respondent No.2.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 16.7.2009 issued by Respondent No.1.

2. The facts of the case are that Respondent No.2 filed a disability claim before Respondent No.1 on account of an injury sustained on 14.11.2007 after falling from twenty feet. Respondent No.1 awarded Respondent No.2 compensation vide order 16.7.2009 which is impugned before the Court.
3. The grievance of the Petitioner is that Respondent No.2 was working at a gypsum quarry when he got hurt and since the quarry does not fall under the definition of "mine" as defined in Section 19 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 ("Act"), he is not entitled to any compensation. It was argued that the Act only applies to persons specified in paras (i) to (xxviii) of the Second Schedule of the Act and since persons who work in a gypsum quarry are excluded, hence the Act will not apply. Learned counsel further argued that Respondent No.2 is not a workman within the meaning of Section 2(1)(n) of the Act as there is a difference between working in a mine and working in a gypsum quarry. Hence he argued that the Respondent No.1

had no jurisdiction to entertain the application of Respondent No.2 and to adjudicate upon it.

4. Learned counsel for Respondent No.2 submitted that the arguments urged before this Court today were never urged before Respondent No.1, no objection of his kind was raised, the Petitioner cannot set out a new case at this stage. Learned counsel further argued that remedy of appeal was available to the Petitioner under Section 30 of the Act which remedy was never availed by the Petitioner. Given that adequate and efficacious remedy was available, the instant Petition is not maintainable. Learned counsel further argued that Respondent No.2 was injured badly during work and has been awarded compensation, therefore, there is no grievance to be made out at this late stage when more than seven years have been gone by. He has placed reliance on the case titled Anwar Munir v. Mohd. Iqbal and others (PLD 1975 Lahore 367).

5. In response, learned counsel for the Petitioner submitted that to hold that remedy of appeal was available to the Petitioner at this stage would create a great injustice to the Petitioner as his case has been pending before this Court since 2009 and the matter should be decided on its merits. Therefore, after considering the matter, in order to ensure that injustice is not caused to the Petitioner, at this stage, the remedy of appeal which was available to the Petitioner is no longer efficacious. Hence the petition will be decided on its merits.

6. The objection of the Petitioner is that Respondent No.1 did not have jurisdiction in the matter as the Petitioner runs a gypsum quarry which is not a mine, hence Respondent No.2 is not a workman under the Act. Workman as defined under Section 2(1)(n) of the Act means any person (other than a person whose employment is of a casual nature and who is employed otherwise than for the purpose of the employer's trade or business. Schedule II of the Act provides for the list of persons who are included in the definition of workman. In terms of Schedule II (v) of the Act any person employed, in any mine as defined in clause (f) of section 3 of the Mines Act, 1923 (IV of 1923) in any mining operation, or in any kind of work, incidental to or connected with any mining operation or with the mineral obtained, or in any kind of work whatsoever below ground. The Mines Act, 1923 defines 'mine' as any excavation where any operation for the purpose of searching for or obtaining minerals has been or is being carried on, and includes all works, machinery, tramways and sidings, whether above or below ground, in or adjacent to or belonging to a mine. As per the arguments of the Petitioner, he was excavating gypsum from quarry No.ML.KHB-Gypsum(29) at Golewali, District Khushab. The learned counsel was not able to explain how excavation in a gypsum quarry did not fall under the definition, of a mine. A quarry is an open pit mine which falls under the definition of a mine under the Mines Act, 1923. Therefore, there is no merit in this argument. Hence Respondent No.2 is a workman under the Act and Respondent No.1 had jurisdiction in the matter of the Petitioner. No illegality has been made out in the impugned order dated 16.7.2009 issued by Respondent No.1.

7. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.WA/N-35/L Petition dismissed.

(a) Liquefied Petroleum Gas (Production and Distribution) Rules, 2001 ---

----R. 18---Liquefied Petroleum Gas (Production and Distribution) Policy, 2013, Cl. 3.4---Tender notices for upliftment/sale of Liquefied Petroleum Gas ("LPG")---"Signature Bonus" charged by Oil and Gas Development Company Limited ("OGDCL") for awarding contract for lifting LPG from different gas fields---Nature and legality of 'Signature Bonus'---Whether Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA") could intervene to ensure that Signature Bonus was not charged---Whether Saudi Aramco Contract Price ("Aramco Price") was relevant for the purposes of fixing base stock price of LPG---The price of LPG was deregulated and determined by market forces in terms of Liquefied Petroleum Gas (Production and Distribution) Policy, 2013---Neither the Government nor OGRA was required to fix the price of LPG---'Aramco Price' was no longer relevant for the purposes of fixing base stock price of LPG---'Signature Bonus' was not pegged or related to the price of LPG; it was a term and condition of the tender and did not increase the price of LPG---Licensees'/petitioners' participation in the tender process was based on their own free will, thus, payment of 'Signature Bonus' was neither compulsory nor mandatory for the licensees/petitioners---Object of calling for bids on 'Signature Bonus' was to provide equal opportunity to all prospective bidders and to receive the highest bid---Charging of 'Signature Bonus' by OGDCL did not tantamount to unjust enrichment or abuse of dominant position in the market---Charging of 'Signature Bonus' was neither illegal nor did it infringe any fundamental right of the licensees/petitioners---Constitutional petition was dismissed accordingly.

Petitioners were in the business of marketing Liquefied Petroleum Gas ("LPG") pursuant to licenses issued by the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA"). Petitioners purchased LPG from LPG Producers, and sold it to consumers. Petitioners impugned Tender Notices for upliftment/sale of LPG from different gas fields on the basis that Oil and Gas Development Company Limited ("OGDCL") was charging a "Signature Bonus" payable by the successful company prior to signing of the sale/purchase agreement. Petitioners contended that Signature Bonus raised the price of LPG such that it exceeded the Saudi Aramco Contract Price ("Aramco Price") which was not permissible as per the Liquefied Petroleum Gas (Production and Distribution) Policy, 2013, and that OGRA was not intervening for regulating the LPG price and ensuring that a premium over and above the price was not charged.

In terms of the clause 3.4 of the Liquefied Petroleum Gas (Production and Distribution) Policy, 2013, the price of LPG was determined by market forces. Said policy clarified that LPG price was deregulated and that neither the Government nor OGRA was required to fix the price of LPG.

'Aramco' Price was not relevant for the purposes of fixing base stock price of LPG because the price was fixed by market forces.
'Signature Bonus' was clearly a term of the tender. It was the price that the LPG licensees were required to pay for award of the contract and essentially qualified as a commercial deal between the parties. In order to participate in the bidding process for the uplifting of gas, the licensees had to tender their bid on the basis of 'Signature Bonus' and the highest bidder was to be awarded the contract accordingly. 'Signature Bonus' was a part of the terms and conditions of the tender process and the licensees' participation was based on their own free will, thus, it was neither compulsory nor mandatory for the licensees to pay the same. 'Signature Bonus', therefore, was not a component of the price but was the methodology adopted by OGDCL for the purposes of selection of the highest bidder and it was a one-time amount that had to be paid.
Tata Cellular v. Union of India 1994 (6) SCC 651 ref.
Prime object of calling for bids on 'Signature Bonus' was to provide equal opportunity to all prospective bidders and to receive the highest bid. The settlement of the terms and conditions was the discretion of the LPG producers in awarding the contract for uplifting of gas from different gas fields. The fact that OGDCL charged 'Signature Bonus' did not tantamount to unjust enrichment or abuse of its dominant position in the market. It is a commercial deal between the parties and there was no restriction on OGDCL in putting forward terms and conditions that in its opinion represented the best commercial deal.
Licensees did not have any fundamental right or vested right to insist that the Government must offer a particular tender on more favourable terms and conditions or that it should adopt a particular method for selection and not follow the given method. Licensees must either accept or reject the terms offered but could not require it to be changed through the present constitutional petitions. Charging of Signature Bonus was therefore neither illegal nor did it infringe any fundamental right of the licensees. Constitutional petition was dismissed accordingly.

(b) Tender ---

----Acceptance of tender and award of contract---Scope---Terms and conditions of tender set by the Government---Judicial scrutiny---Scope---High Court did not sit as a court of appeal in relation to the terms and conditions of tender but merely reviewed the manner in which the decision was made---Terms of the invitation to tender could not be open to judicial scrutiny because the invitation to tender was in the realm of a contract---Normally, decision to accept the tender or award the contract was reached through a process of negotiation and deliberations through several tiers---More often than not, such decisions were made qualitatively by experts and the government was free to settle the terms of the contract with the parties---In such cases, if the terms and conditions of the contract were not suited to a party, they need not participate in the tender process or accept the contract---State could fix its own terms of invitation to tender and those terms were generally not open to judicial scrutiny---Court could examine the decision making process and interfere if it was found tainted with mala fides or was arbitrary.

Tata Cellular v. Union of India 1994 (6) SCC 651 ref.

(c) Tender---

----Preconditions or qualifications---Permissibility---For tenders certain preconditions or qualifications could be laid down to ensure that the contractor had the capacity and the resources to successfully execute the works---Fair and transparent process was necessary to ensure that the contract was awarded to a credible party.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK J.---This judgment decides upon the common issues raised in the instant Petition as well as Writ Petitions Nos.31817/2013, 6569/2014, 1461/2016, 9214/2011, 9693/2011 and 262/2016.

2. The Petitioners are all in the business of marketing Liquefied Petroleum Gas ("LPG") pursuant to licenses issued by Respondent Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority ("OGRA"). The Petitioners purchase LPG from LPG Producers, such as Respondent No.5, Oil and Gas Development Company Limited ("OGDCL") and sell it to consumers. The Respondent No.5 is a public listed company whose majority shares are owned and controlled by the Government of Pakistan and is one of the largest producers of LPG in Pakistan. A dispute has arisen between the parties on account of the charging of Signature Bonus by the Respondents for the purposes of allocating contracts for lifting LPG from different gas fields. They are aggrieved by the role of OGRA and the charging of the Signature Bonus by OGDCL which has increased the price of LPG for the Petitioners.

3. The Petitioners in the instant Petition and W.P. No.1461/2016 have sought a declaration that the LPG price cannot go over and above the Saudi Aramco Contract Price ("Aramco Price"). The five Petitioners in W.P. No.31817/2013 have impugned Tender Notices for upliftment/sale of LPG from Makori Field, Tehsil Wanda Daud Shah, District Karak, KPK (OGDCL Share) and from Sinjhoro field, District Sanghar (Sindh) as the Tender is based on Signature Bonus. All the five Petitioners have their registered offices in Punjab and seek relief against OGDCL and OGRA. In the same way, the Petitioner in W.P. No.6569/2014, has impugned Tender Notice dated 21.2.2014 for upliftment/sale of LPG from TAL Block, District Karak as it is based on Signature Bonus. It also has its registered office in Punjab and has sought relief against OGDCL and OGRA. In W.P. No.262/2016, the Petitioner has impugned decision dated 6.12.2006 passed by the Economic Coordination Committee ("ECC") of the Cabinet of Federal Government. The said Petitioner is a private company limited by shares which holds a LPG marketing license from OGRA to sell/ uplift extracted gas from different locations where gas fields exist. It is also noted that Petitioners No.4 and 5, Pioneer Gas (Private) Limited and Tez Gas (Private) Limited in W.P. No.31817/ 2013 are also Petitioners Nos.1 and 2 in the instant Petition. The Petitioner, Sehwan Gas (Private) Limited in W.P. No.6569/2014 is also Petitioner No.3 in W.P. No.33661/2015. Essentially the named Petitioners seek the same relief through different Petitions.

4. The basic issue between the parties is the demand for Signature Bonus made by Respondent No.3 for the purposes of award of contract for lifting LPG from different gas fields. In terms of the impugned tender notices, OGDCL will allocate LPG lifting contracts on the basis of non-refundable Signature Bonus payable by the successful company prior to signing of the Sale/Purchase Agreement. The contract offered is for a period of five years and the marketing company offering the highest Signature Bonus will be declared the successful bidder. The remaining bidders in descending order of the offer made for Signature Bonus will be given the option to match the price of the highest bidder so that quantity of LPG produced by OGDCL is lifted by the buyer. In this regard, the Petitioners are aggrieved by the act of OGRA for not regulating the LPG price and ensuring that a premium over and above the price is not charged.

5. The counsel for the Petitioners argued that the payment of Signature Bonus is against the regulatory framework provided under Sections 7 and 21 of the Oil and Gas Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 ("OGRA Ordinance"), LPG (Production and Distribution) Rules, 2001 ("2001 Rules") and the various policies introduced from time to time being LPG (Production and Distribution) Policy, 2006 ("2006 Policy"), LPG (Production and Distribution) Policy, 2011 ("2011 Policy") and the LPG (Production and Distribution) Policy, 2013 ("2013 Policy"). It is further argued that the demand for Signature Bonus raises the price of LPG base stock which is controlled by the Aramco Price in terms of the letter issued by the ECC dated 6.12.2006. This means that the base stock price cannot exceed the Aramco Price. However, Signature Bonus raises the price such that it exceeds the Aramco Price which is not permissible as per the policies. They further argued that the ECC decision of 2006 holds the field and in terms thereof, LPG producers are free to fix the price of LPG base stock provided it does not exceed the Aramco Price. It is their case that LPG producers cannot charge a premium over and above the Aramco Price. The counsels for the Petitioners further argued that by charging Signature Bonus, the Respondent OGDCL is exploiting its position as a dominant state entity and is unjustly enriching itself at the expense of the Petitioners and the common consumers of LPG. It is their case that OGRA has distanced itself from this dispute and instead of regulating the issue and ensuring that the price of LPG does not exceed Aramco Price, they have abdicated their function in favour of the Federal Government.

6. The Petitioner, WAK Limited in W.P. No.9214/2011 seeks a declaration that it may be allowed to lift LPG from Adhi Gas Field. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the Petitioner has a vested right to lift gas from the Adhi Gas Field since it has a contractual arrangement with the Respondent OGDCL from 1990. Stated there appears to be no reason to now tender the same contractual rights on the basis of Signature Bonus. Learned counsel submitted that Signature Bonus is like a 'Pagri' payment which essentially favours companies with deep pockets and therefore is tainted with mala fide.

7. Report and parawise comments have been filed on behalf of the Federal Government, Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Resources, Islamabad. It is their case that the LPG price mechanism was deregulated since September 2010 and the Government exercises no control in the fixation of LPG price. It is their case that price is fixed by market forces and thereafter OGRA regulates and monitors the reasonableness of the price. It is also their case that the Aramco Price is no longer relevant as LPG price has been deregulated. They clarified that the ECC decision of 6.12.2006 no longer holds the field and was superseded by the subsequent decision of 1.1.2013.

8. Report and parawise comments have also been filed on behalf of Respondent OGRA. Learned counsel for OGRA argued that the 2013 Policy is the prevailing policy which superseded all previous instructions, orders and policies issued by the Government from time to time. He stated that as per the 2013 Policy, LPG pricing and allocation is de-regulated and OGRA monitors the reasonableness of the price with the objective that the price remains within a reasonable margin after accounting for primary transportation, all operating and administrative costs and taxes incurred by the LPG marketing companies and distributors. It is their case that OGRA does not have any mechanism for determining the LPG price as market forces control the price. It is further contended that the issue of Signature Bonus does not fall within their domain as it has nothing to do with the price of LPG.

9. Respondent SSGC has filed parawise comments as well. Counsel for the stated Respondent agreed that the price of LPG was deregulated and that the ECC letter of 6.12.2006 is no longer relevant. He further argued that the Petitioners have no legal or vested right which can be enforced by this Court in writ jurisdiction. He argued that the Petitioners have challenged the tender process in which no right has been created in their favour. Learned counsel submitted that the 2013 Policy was issued pursuant to the ECC's decision dated 1.1.2013. Therefore the decision of the ECC 6.12.2006 and earlier policies are no longer relevant. Learned counsel further submitted that LPG prices are no longer linked to Aramco Price and that this fact is known to all parties. Learned counsel argued that Signature Bonus is a mechanism used for selection during the tendering process and most of the Petitioners before the Court, have entered into an agreement with the stated Respondent whereby they have already paid Signature Bonus. In this regard, he has specifically referred to the Petitioners Nos.1 to 5 in W.P. No.31817/2013 and Petitioner Wak Limited in W.P. No.9214/2011 who participated in the bidding process in Sindh and offered to pay Signature Bonus and in some cases have paid the Signature Bonus. Learned counsel further argued that the Petitioners are not obligated to participate in the tender process if the terms of the tender or contract are not acceptable to them. Hence the Petitions are not maintainable.

10. By filing of parawise comments learned counsel for Respondent PARCO also supports the 2013 Policy. Learned counsel stated that the matter relates to the 2013 Policy and the ECC decision dated 1.1.2013. Learned counsel further submitted that Signature Bonus has been paid in previous tenders and as such the Petitioners have no vested or fundamental right on the basis of which they can challenge the methodology adopted by the Respondents to award contracts. Learned counsel further argued that Respondents Nos.2 to 5 in the instant Petition have adopted selection through the Signature Bonus as there are more than 100 OGRA Licensed GMCs participating in the tendering process and in this way the most credible and reliable GMCs come forward. Learned counsel further submitted that an alternate to the Signature Bonus method, a profit sharing arrangement, however, that is up to the agency seeking to tender out the contract and as such the Petitioners have no right in the matter.

11. Learned counsel for the Respondent OGDCL in support of report and parawise comments argued that the case of the OGDCL is that Federal Government does not determine, fix or notify the price of LPG. Furthermore Aramco Price is no longer relevant. The prevailing policy is the 2013 Policy based on the ECC letter of 1.1.2013. Learned counsel further argued that Signature Bonus is a way of selecting successful bidders and is a transparent and competitive process. Learned counsel further submitted that this selection mechanism is not new to the system and has been followed since 2013 in which some of the Petitioners have participated. Learned counsel clarified that Signature Bonus is not a component of the LPG price, hence the entire case of the Petitioners is built upon the misconception that Signature Bonus increases the LPG price. He explained that Signature Bonus ensures that capable and interested parties come forward and selection is not based on favouritism nor it discriminatory. The highest bidder gets the contract and there is no unjust enrichment in this process as Signature Bonus represents the commercial deal between the parties. Since there is no price on the basis of which tender process can take place, auction is based on Signature Bonus. Learned counsel further argued that the Petitioners have no legal or vested right to question the legality of Signature Bonus as no fundamental or vested right of the Petitioners has been infringed and most of the Petitioners have paid Signature Bonus in other tenders. It is their case that Signature Bonus is a one time payment made for securing the license and the Petitioners are not obligated to enter into the tendering process if they do not wish to pay the Signature Bonus. It is also pointed that for the sale of LPG from Makori Field in the tendering process, the bids were opened on 11.12.2013 and for sale of LPG from Sinjhori Field, the bid was opened on 12.12.2013. The Petitioners before this Court namely Tez Gas (Private) Limited, WAK Limited, Petroleum Gas Company (Private) Limited, Noor LPG Company (Private) Limited and Pioneer Gas (Private) Limited have all participated in the tendering process which was based on Signature Bonus. This fact has not been denied by the stated Respondents.

12. Learned counsel for the Respondent OGDCL in relation to W.P. No.9214/2011 argued that the Petitioner is seeking performance of a contractual obligation after the expiry of the contract which stance is not maintainable in the instant writ petition. Learned counsel argued that the Petitioner has not disclosed that the Petitioner is a defaulter who did not pay the relevant dues at the time and therefore its contract was terminated on 31.7.2004. Learned counsel further submitted that the Petitioner has no vested right to seek allotment of LPG from Adhi Gas Field or from any specific field.

13. I have the learned counsel for the parties on many dates and gone through the available record and the documents relied upon by the parties.

14. The core issue before the Court is the charging of Signature Bonus and whether the Respondents can require the upfront payment of Signature Bonus to award the contract for lifting of gas. The role of OGRA with respect to price fixation and Signature Bonus is also in issue in these Petitions.

15. The relevant law with respect to pricing of LPG is contained in Rule 18 of the 2001 Rules and clause 3.4 of the 2013 Policy. The 2001 Rules and the 2013 Policy set out the manner in which the LPG price has to be fixed. Rule 18 of the 2001 Rules reads as follows:-

Price of LPG base-stock and LPG:- (1) A licensee shall charge from another licensee or a consumer a reasonable price of LPG base-stock and LPG, during a specified period, which in no case shall be less than one month, and the licensee shall inform about such prices to the Authority. The licensee shall also publicise such prices in the media for information of the public.

(2) In case the prices of LPG base-stock or LPG so fixed by a licensee under sub-rule (1) are not considered to be reasonable or in the event of any cartel formation, the Authority may, in the public interest, determine a reasonable price of LPG base-stock or LPG, in accordance with the prevailing policy of the Federal Government which a licensee shall charge from another licensee or a consumer.
Clause 3.4 of the 2013 Policy reads as under:-
3.4.1 The Government will continue to follow its deregulation policy and the Price of LPG supply chain will not be determined or notified by the Government. The Government will charge a Petroleum Levy from local LPG producers as provided in the Petroleum Products (Petroleum Levy) Ordinance, 1961 as specified from time to time by MP&NR and levy of this levy be so fixed to protect investment in local LPG production as well as to encourage imports.
3.4.2 To ensure that cartels are not formed and high consumer price of LPG is not charged, MPNR and OGRA will determine the quantity of LPG to be imported to meet the gap between demand and supply. This quantity will be imported by public sector Sui companies. Besides, the private sector companies can also import LPG to meet the demand.
3.4.3 The LPG consumer price/retail prices will be determined by Market forces in accordance with Government's de-regulation policy. However, OGRA will oversee/monitor that LPG Prices remain within a reasonable margin after accounting for primary transportation, all operating and administrative costs and taxes for LPG marketing companies and distributors.
3.4.4 OGRA will intervene in case of deviation from the above basis and would also involve the local administration to ensure punitive action against the defaulting companies and distributors.
In terms thereof, the price of LPG is determined by market forces. The Government has no role to play in LPG price fixation. Furthermore OGRA as the front line regulator determines the reasonableness of the price so as to ensure that cartels are not formed or that high price of LPG is not charged from the consumer. They also do not fix or control the price of LPG. The counsel for the Petitioners argued their case essentially on the ground that Signature Bonus is a component of the LPG price and therefore has to be regulated by OGRA and cannot exceed the Aramco Price. A bare review of the 2013 Policy clarifies that LPG price is deregulated and that neither the Government nor OGRA is required to fix the price of LPG. In fact clause 3.4.1 of the 2013 Policy reveals that the 2013 Policy Guidelines on LPG Pricing is in continuation of the Government's deregulation policy which has been in force since 2011. It also clarifies the role of OGRA such that OGRA will only intervene if the LPG price becomes unreasonable. In such cases OGRA can look into the reasonableness of the price after accounting for certain given factors. The record also shows that the Aramco Price is not relevant for the purposes of fixing base stock price because price is fixed by market forces. Pursuant to the ECC decision dated 1.1.2013, the 2013 Policy was issued which requires price to be fixed by market forces and not the Aramco Price. Furthermore Clause 4(iii) of the 2013 Policy clearly provides that the 2013 Policy supersedes all previous instructions, orders and policies issued by the Government from time to time. Since this Policy was approved by the ECC on 1.1.2013, the letter of 6.12.2006 by the ECC is no longer relevant on this issue.

16. The dispute of the Petitioner is on the charging of Signature Bonus. They claim that it is a component of the LPG price, hence it cannot exceed the Aramco Price. As already stated, the Aramco Price is not relevant for the fixation of LPG price. Hence the only question which arises is whether Signature Bonus is a component of the price of LPG. The counsel for Respondent OGDCL argued that Signature Bonus is a lumpsum amount which has to be paid in order to secure a contract for the uplifting of gas. The impugned tender notices testify to this fact as Signature Bonus is clearly a term of the tender. It is the price that the Petitioners are required to pay for award of the contract and essentially qualifies as a commercial deal between the parties. In order to participate in the bidding process for the uplifting of gas produced by the Respondent OGDCL, the Petitioners had to tender their bid on the basis of Signature Bonus and the highest bidder is to be awarded the contract accordingly. Therefore Signature Bonus is not a component of the price but is the methodology adopted by the Respondent OGDCL for the purposes of selection of the highest bidder and it is a one time amount that has to be paid. As such it does not a feature of the price of LPG. Furthermore Signature Bonus admittedly has been paid by some of the Petitioners namely Tez Gas (Private) Limited in the instant Petition, WAK Limited, Petroleum Gas Company (Private) Limited, Noor LPG Co. (Private) Limited and Pioneer Gas (Private) Limited in tendering process which has yet not been challenged before this Court. The stated Respondents do not deny the payment of Signature Bonus for the contracts awarded to them.

17. Under the circumstances, not only are the Petitioners Tez Gas (Private) Limited and Pioneer Gas (Private) Limited in the instant Petition estopped from challenging the charging of Signature Bonus but the entire premise of the arguments raised by the counsel for all the Petitioners that Signature Bonus is a premium on the price and that the price cannot exceed the Aramco Price, is misconceived. Signature Bonus is not a component of the price. It is the basis for bidding of a contract for uplift of gas. Signature Bonus is the mechanism used for selecting the successful bidder in the tendering process and it is neither compulsory nor mandatory for the Petitioners to pay it. It is a part of the terms and conditions of the tender process and the Petitioners participation is based on their own free will. In the case titled Tata Cellular v. Union of India (1994 (6) SCC 651) it was held that the court does not sit as a court of appeal in relation to the terms and conditions of tender but merely reviews the manner in which the decision was made. The terms of the invitation to tender cannot be open to judicial scrutiny because the invitation to tender is in the realm of a contract. Normally speaking, the decision to accept the tender or award the contract is reached through a process of negotiation and deliberations through several tiers. More often than not, such decisions are made qualitatively by experts and the government is free to settle the terms of the contract with the parties. In such cases, if the terms and conditions of the contract are not suited to a party, they need not participate in the tender process or accept the contract. However, if they choose to participate, they are bound by the terms offered to them as the terms represent the commercial deal offered by OGDCL and other Respondents. Furthermore the terms and conditions of tender are not open to judicial scrutiny simply because some participants are aggrieved by a particular condition. OGDCL being a state instrumentality has the mandate to tender out contracts of LPG based on a methodology and rationale which encourages transparency, fairness and does not lead to discrimination or exploitation. Reliance is placed on the case titled Association of Registration Plates v. Union of India and others (2005 (1) SCC 679) wherein it has been held that certain preconditions or qualifications for tenders have to be laid down to ensure that the contractor has the capacity and the resources to successfully execute the works. Therefore a fair and transparent process is necessary to ensure that the contract is awarded to a credible party. It has been held in the case titled Messrs Airport Support Services v. The Airport Manager, Quaid-e-Azam International Airport, Karachi and others (1998 SCMR 2268) that contractual disputes between private parties and public functionaries are not open to scrutiny under the Constitutional jurisdiction. Breaches of such contracts, which do not entail inquiry into or examination of minute or controversial questions of fact, if committed by Government, semi-Government or Local Authorities or like controversies if involving dereliction of obligations, flowing from a statue, rules or instructions can adequately be addressed for relief under that jurisdiction. It has also been held in the case titled Habibullah Energy Limited and another v. WAPDA through Chairman and others (PLD 2014 SC 47) that a contract, carrying elements of public interest, concluded by functionaries of the State has to be just, fair transparent and reasonable. It must be free of any taint of mala fides and all these elements being part of the process are open to judicial review. In this case, the Petitioners do not have any fundamental right or vested right to insist that the Government must offer a particular tender on more favourable terms and conditions or that it should adopt a particular method for selection and not follow the given method. The Petitioners must either accept or reject the terms offered but cannot require it to be changed through the instant Petitions. Therefore, the charging of Signature Bonus is neither illegal nor does it infringe any fundamental right of the Petitioners.

18. This Court is of the view that the prime object of calling for bids on Signature Bonus is to provide equal opportunity to all prospective bidders and to receive the highest bid. The settlement of the terms and conditions is the discretion of the Respondents in awarding the contract for uplifting of gas from different gas fields. The fact that OGDCL charges Signature Bonus does not tantamount to unjust enrichment or abuse of its dominant position in the market. It is a commercial deal between the parties and there is no restriction on OGDCL in putting forward terms and conditions that in its opinion represents the best commercial deal. In this regard, no arbitrariness or mala fide has been proven against the Respondents. The award of a contract, whether it is by a private party or by a public body or the State, is essentially a commercial transaction. In arriving at a commercial decision considerations which are paramount are commercial considerations. The State can choose its own method to arrive at a decision. It can fix its own terms of invitation to tender and those terms are generally not open to judicial scrutiny. The court can examine the decision making process and interfere if it is found tainted with mala fides or is arbitrary. In the instant case Federal Government has directed that Aramco Price and the ECC decision of 2006 are no longer relevant for the fixation of LPG price, hence the entire argument that Signature Bonus raises the base stock price is misconceived. Signature Bonus is not pegged or related to the price of LPG. It is a term and condition of the tender and does not increase the price of LPG.

19. So far as the prayer in W.P. No.262/2016 that decision dated 6.12.2006 of the ECC has no legal force is concerned, the said decision admittedly is no longer relevant as the ECC passed a fresh decision on 1.1.2013 which supersedes its earlier decision. Therefore as such W.P. No.262/2016 has become infructuous. So far as the prayer of the Petitioner, WAK Limited in W.P. No.9214/2011 is concerned, the stated Petitioner is not entitled to seek such a declaration that it may be allowed to lift LPG from Adhi Gas Field or any other field. The Respondents are free to tender out the contract on the basis of Signature Bonus. The stated Petitioner has no vested right on the basis of which it can claim such a declaration and demand extension in the license or the right to uplift gas from any particular gas field. This is the sole discretion of the Respondents.

20. In view of the aforesaid, no case for interference is made out. All the Petitions are dismissed. MWA/T-20/L Petitions dismissed.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition, the Petitioner has challenged the proceedings undertaken by the Election Commission of Pakistan ("ECP") under Section 103A of the Representation of the People Act, 1970 ("Act").

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Petitioner moved a petition under Section 103AA of the Act calling into question the result of the bye-election held in NA 122 on 11.10.2015, on the ground that gross illegalities were uncovered in the bye-elections. In this regard, the basic grievance of the Petitioner was that a large number of people, listed as voters in NA 122 for the general elections of May 2013, were excluded from the list of voters for the bye-elections of 11.10.2015. Also that some voters were included in the electoral roll for the bye-elections whereas they did not reside within NA 122. In support of these allegations, the Petitioner supplied more than 2000 affidavits from different voters, which affidavits were relied upon for the purposes of the petition. The Petitioner also prayed for providing information pertaining to the electoral rolls and the record related thereto. The said petition was heard over four dates and eventually the ECP issued its order on 1.2.2016. In terms of the order, the petition filed under Section 103AA of the Act was rejected and it was held that remedy under Section 56 of the Act was the proper and efficacious remedy available to the Petitioner. As to the request for information, a direction was issued making available the requisite information to the Petitioner. The ECP also made an observation in the said order which essentially gives rise to the instant Petition. For ease of reference, the order of 1.2.2016 is reproduced hereunder:--

The petition under Section 103AA is rejected. The proper and efficacious remedy is already provided under Article 225 of the Constitution, for which, the Election petition of the petitioner stands already referred to the Tribunal under Section 56 of the Representation of the People Act, 1976. It was not pressed as well, having become otherwise infructuous.

2. So far as the application under Section 19A of the Constitution is concerned, the Commission declines to adhere to unlawful assertions whereby the petitioner aimed at converting a simple application under Article 19A into a matter of investigative nature and indirectly holding a trial which is the job of the Election Tribunal.

3. All the petitioners and respondent No.1 under Article 19A of the Constitution are allowed to inspect before and obtain from District Registration Officer:

a) Documents/record under Section 45 of the Representation of the People Act, 1976.

b) They are entitled to have copies of record whereby the voters were freshly included in the Electoral Roll of 2015.

c) They may obtain the copies of record from District Registration Officer of numerous persons registered on a specific address after specifying the Census Blocks and the specific persons so registered.

d) They may obtain the copies of record of inclusion, exclusion and deletions of voters in the electoral rolls of 2015 compared with electoral roll of 2013 after specifying such persons as well as incidents.

e) They may obtain the copies of supplementary list published in July, 2015 which includes the record justifying the addition/deletion/inclusion of alleged 4542 votes.

f) They are entitled to obtain the copies of record of additions, if any, made in the electoral roll after the announcement of schedule for bye-elections in NA-122.

4. The inspection and copies of the above documents/record would be available on payment of such fee as prescribed by Rules.

5. It has been observed by the Commission with serious concern that some Affidavits filed by the petitioner were absolutely false and hence the Commission reserves its authority/right to proceed against them in accordance with law after final decision by the Tribunal concerned.

3. On the basis of this observation in paragraph 5, Respondent No.2 moved a contempt petition under Section 103A of the Act seeking action against the Petitioner for committing contempt of court. The basic grievance of Respondent No.2 in his petition was that false and fabricated affidavits were filed by the Petitioner, thereby giving false evidence to the ECP with the intent to obstruct and divert the course of justice. The Respondent No.2 detailed his objections against 180 affidavits and prayed that action be taken against the Petitioner and that he be punished for submitting false and fabricated affidavits before the ECP.

4. As per the record, the contempt petition was filed on 10.3.2016. Notices were issued and the first date of hearing was 30.3.2016. On 30.3.2016, counsel for the respondent in the petition, the Petitioner in this case, raised certain preliminary issues before the ECP. The case was adjourned for 7.4.2016. On 7.4.2016 the case was not heard and it was adjourned to 8.4.2016. On 8.4.2016, it was again adjourned giving the Petitioner one last opportunity to argue his case. The case was fixed for 25.4.2016. On 25.4.2016, counsel for the Petitioner appeared before the ECP and argued his entire case. The case was then adjourned to 2.5.2016 for orders. On 2.5.2016 it was adjourned for 9.5.2016 again for orders. On 9.5.2016, the ECP was informed of the orders of this Court dated 3.5.2016 wherein the proceedings were stayed by this Court. Hence the matter was not taken up.

5. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that the ECP rejected the petition under Section 103AA of the Act on the ground that jurisdiction lies with the Election Tribunal, being the proper forum. Notwithstanding the same, the ECP observed in paragraph 5 of its order that certain affidavits filed by the Petitioner were false and that the ECP would take action against the Petitioner once a final decision was taken by the Tribunal. Learned counsel submitted that once the Respondent ECP decided, it did not have jurisdiction in the matter. It could not have made the said observations. However, even though such observation was made, it could proceed under Section 103 of the Act against the Petitioner on account of the fact that there is no order of the ECP which has been violated in terms of Section 3 of the Contempt of Court Ordinance, 2003 ("Ordinance"). Since the ECP did not adjudicate upon the merits of the case, its observation regarding the falsity of some affidavits was presumptive and after the filing of the application under Section 103A of the Act by Respondent No.2, the Respondent No.1 hastily proceeded against the Petitioner and concluded the matter on 2.5.2016, reserving the case for orders. Learned counsel further argued that Respondent No.1 has no jurisdiction in the matter and cannot proceed under Section 103A of the Act since there was no adjudication on the merits of the affidavits, hence the question of their falsity could not be presumed.

6. Reply has been filed by Respondent No.1. Learned counsel for Respondent No.1 submitted that the Respondent ECP has acted in accordance with law. In terms of the proceedings under Section 103AA of the Act on cursory examination of the record and on the basis of the information provided by NADRA, the ECP was of the opinion that some of the affidavits filed by the Petitioner contained false declarations. Hence the ECP opined in its order dated 1.2.2016 in paragraph 5 that it may look into the matter after a decision by the Election Tribunal. In the meantime, the Respondent No. 2 filed the contempt petition, hence the ECP heard the matter and reserved the case for orders. He argued that the instant writ petition is premature as no order has been passed by the ECP and it has not decided whether it will proceed under Section 103A of the Act or not. Learned counsel further submitted that where false information is given to the ECP, it can proceed under Sections 78 and 94 of the Act read with Ordinance in terms of its constitutional mandate under Article 218(3) of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973. Learned counsel argued that at this stage any interference from the Court is premature as no order has been passed by the ECP and the Petitioner has misrepresented the facts before the Court.

7. Reply has also been filed by Respondent No.2. Learned counsel for Respondent No.2 submitted that Respondent No.2 filed petition under Section 103A of the Act read with Sections 191, 192, 193, 196, 199 and 200. Also Sections 468 and 471 of the Pakistan Penal Code, 1860 and Sections 2(B), 3 and 5 of the Ordinance. The basic grievance of Respondent No.2 is that the Petitioner brought 180 false affidavits before the ECP to obstruct the process of justice and to give a bad name to the Respondent No.2. Learned counsel further argued that the matter was heard at length by the ECP and an undertaking was given by the counsel for the Petitioner before the ECP that he would withdraw the instant writ petition as he was of the opinion that it was a misconceived petition. Learned counsel submitted that the Petitioner is bound by the undertaking given by the Petitioner and as such cannot proceed in the instant petition. She further argued that the ECP is acting in accordance with law as false and fabricated affidavits were relied upon before it and the factum of their falsity was brought to the notice of the ECP by NADRA, hence it made its observation in paragraph 5 of its order dated 1.2.2016. Learned counsel argued that since the allegations relate to Respondent No.2, hence he was well within his rights to move an application seeking necessary action against the Petitioner. She has placed reliance on the case titled Syed Mehmood Akhtar Naqvi v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary Law and others (PLD 2012 SC 1089).

8. Arguments of the learned counsel for the parties have been heard and record perused.

9. The basic issue before the Court is whether the ECP can proceed under Section 103A of the Act against the Petitioner. Section 103A of the Act authorizes the power of the ECP to punish any person for committing contempt of court. The Section reads as follows:--

The Commission shall have the same power as the High Court has to punish any person for contempt of court and the Contempt of Court Act, 1976 (XLIV of 1976), shall have effect accordingly as if reference therein to a "court" and to a "judge" were a reference, respectively, to the "Commission" [and the Commissioner or, as the case may be, a] member of the Commission].

Sections 3, 4 and 6 of the Ordinance reads as follows:

3. Contempt of Court.---Whoever disobeys or disregards any order, direction or process of a Court, which he is legally bound to obey, or commits a willful breach of a valid undertaking given to a Court; or does anything which is intended to or tends to bring the authority of a Court or the administration of law into disrespect of disrepute, or to interfere with or obstruct of interrupt or prejudice the process of law or the due course of any judicial proceedings, or to lower the authority of a Court or scandalize a Judge in relation to his office, or to disturb the order of decorum of a Court, is said to commit "contempt of Court". The contempt is of three types, namely, the "civil contempt", "criminal contempt" and "judicial contempt".

4. Jurisdiction.---(1) Every superior Court shall have the power to punish a contempt committed in relation to it.
(2) Subject to subsection (3), every High Court shall have the power to punish a contempt committed in relation to any Court subordinate to it.
(3) No High Court shall proceed in cases in which an alleged contempt is punishable by a subordinate Court under the Pakistan Penal Code (Act No. XLV of 1860).
Since the Respondent No.2 has alleged committing criminal contempt against the Petitioner of the Ordinance, Section 6 becomes relevant which is reproduced hereunder:-- Criminal contempt when committed.---(1) A criminal contempt shall be deemed to have been committed if a person:--
(a) Attempts to influence a witness, or proposed witness, either by intimidation or improper inducement, not go give evidence, or not to tell the truth in any legal proceedings;
(b) Offers an improper inducement or attempts to intimidate a Judge, in order to secure a favourable verdict in any legal proceedings;
(c) Commits any other act with intent to divert the course of justice.
(2) Nothing contained in subsection (1) shall prejudice any other criminal proceedings which may be initiated against any such person as it mentioned therein.

10. Contempt of Court as per Section 103A of the Act read with Section 3 of the Ordinance is the deliberate disobedience or disregard of an order or direction of the Court. Contempt of court is when a person willfully interferes with the process of the Court in order to disrupt or challenge the authority or the dignity of the Court. Criminal contempt is made out when a person willfully interrupts or interferes in the administration of justice such that it obstructs or hampers the course of justice. The difference between the two kinds is that where contempt of Court is the disobedience of the order or direction of the Court, criminal contempt is the obstruction of the administration of justice in a Court of law. In both cases the objective is that law and order must be maintained in the Court and the course of justice should not be hampered or deviated. Hence the power of contempt is a necessary sanction to protect the administration of justice, however it is a power which must be exercised with great care and caution and only when it is absolutely necessary for the proper administration of justice.

11. In this case, there is admittedly no order which has been disobeyed or disregarded by the Petitioner. There was no proceeding which was interfered with or obstructed by the Petitioner. Contempt is said to have been committed by filing 180 false affidavits in support of the petition under Section 103AA of the Act. The basic allegation is that these 180 affidavits are false and fabricated, hence they divert the course of justice. In order to determine whether the ECP could have proceeded under Section 103A of the Act, the first question that needs to be determined is the effect of the observation it made in paragraph 5 of the order dated 1.2.2016. Given that the ECP did not adjudicate on the merits of the complaint, the ECP could not have concluded that some affidavits were false and fabricated. The said observation is presumptive, without following any process of law, supported by no reasoning. The ECP essentially left an option open to itself to proceed against the Petitioner, once the Election Tribunal decides the fate of the election petition filed by the Petitioner. Interestingly, more than 2000 affidavits were filed by the Petitioner yet the ECP observed that some of the affidavits were false and fabricated, without explaining how it has quantified or qualified that 180 affidavits are false out of the 2000 or more filed. The ECP's observations in fact prejudices the case of the Petitioner as it is still pursuing its remedy to challenge the bye-election results of NA 122 and the fate of that challenge is yet to be finally decided. Furthermore the affidavits were filed in support of the petition under Section 103AA of the Act meaning thereby that the affidavits are evidence in support of the petition and have to be seen in the context of the petition under Section 103AA of the Act. Since the ECP did not adjudicate upon the merits of the petition under Section 103AA, there was no legal justification to observe that some affidavits are false. It is important to note that the ECP passed this observation after holding that the matter will be heard, by the Tribunal, meaning that the ECP itself accepted that jurisdiction has with the Election Tribunal, hence it accepted the fact that the veracity of the affidavits would be determined by the Tribunal and not by the ECP.

12. The next question that needs to be determined is whether the ECP could proceed under Section 103A of the Act on the basis of the petition filed by Respondent No.2. The answer to this question is quite simply that it could not have proceeded in the matter. Admittedly, there is no order of the Court which has been disobeyed, no process of law which has been interfered with or disrupted by the Petitioner. The Respondent No.2 as the winning candidate has been notified and has assumed public office. Therefore, the argument that the Petitioner has committed contempt of Court for which he is liable to be punished is totally misconceived. When the learned counsel for Respondent No.2 was confronted with this reasoning, she relied upon Section 6 of the Ordinance to urge the point that criminal contempt has been committed by the Petitioner. Even this argument is misconceived as there was no case, no proceeding, no order before the ECP in which the Petitioner could have committed contempt, to divert or hamper the course of justice. The ECP declined to adjudicate upon the petition under Section 103AA of the Act on the ground that the Election Tribunal has jurisdiction. Having held that the petition and all affidavits in support thereof would not be considered by the ECP, the matter ended and there was no proceeding pending before the ECP. There was no case pending before the ECP, no proceedings held by the ECP in which the Petitioner could have committed criminal contempt. Even otherwise in criminal contempt there must be some act which has obstructed the course of justice. In this case, the Petitioner has challenged the bye-election result and has given affidavits in support of his case. The filing of the affidavits cannot be considered obstruction of justice. They have been filed by the Petitioner in his effort to claim justice in a case that he has filed. Hence the question of contempt or criminal contempt does not arise by the filing of the affidavits. The Respondent No.2 filed the petition under Section 103A of the Act on the basis of the observation in para 5 of the ECP's order of 1.2.2016 which observation does not give rise to any reason or cause of action to allege contempt against the Petitioner. In fact, the ECP itself observed that it will consider whether it wants to proceed against the Petitioner, after a final decision by the Tribunal. Hence by way of its observation the ECP would have to first ascertain whether the affidavits were false or not before it could proceed against the Petitioner for relying on false affidavits. Admittedly, there have been no such proceedings or determination by the ECP. Under the circumstances, the ECP could not have proceeded on the petition under Section 103A of the Act.

13. Learned counsel for the Respondent ECP has also argued that the instant petition is premature as the ECP has not decided upon the matter and there is no order of the ECP. However, I am of the opinion that not only was the ECP unlawful in proceeding with the contempt petition but it also acted in haste. The contempt petition was filed on 10.3.2016, the case was heard at length and reserved for order on 2.5.2016 and again on 9.5.2016. Learned counsel for the Respondent ECP has not been able to explain why the case was heard at length and thereafter reserved for orders. In terms of the reply filed by Respondent No.2, the contempt petition was argued at length and information given by NADRA was relied upon for the purposes of establishing the falsity of 180 affidavits that were filed. Therefore, it appears that the ECP was determined to proceed in the matter and it hastily reserved the case for orders even though there is no order, direction or proceedings pending before it in which any contempt could have been made out. The ECP could not have commenced proceedings on the application filed by Respondent No.2 as there is no order of the ECP that has been violated and no act of the Petitioner that has hampered the process of justice. At this stage when the fate of the Petitioner's allegations regarding wrongful exclusion and inclusion of voters in NA 122 has not been decided, the ECP cannot presume that the affidavits were false and based on that presumption proceeded in contempt proceedings against the Petitioner.

14. Under the circumstances, the instant writ petition is allowed. The act of the ECP to proceed on the petition under Section 103A the Act filed by Respondent No.2 is illegal and against the mandate the law.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition, the Petitioner challenges order dated 6.5.2016 passed on behalf of the Registrar, Lahore High Court, Lahore and Notification dated 19.8.2015 containing the names of the Civil Judges-cum-Magistrates appointed at the Lahore High Court, Lahore.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that he applied for the post of Civil Judge-cum-Magistrate. He passed the test and was called for interview on 14.7.2015. The Petitioner was not interviewed as he was informed that he had concealed registration of FIR No.78/2012, Police Station, Qaboola and his previous service record in the application form for judicial service. Thereafter he was informed through Notification dated 19.8.2015 that he along with six others have been permanently debarred from appearing in any examination for judicial service due to their involvement in criminal cases and suppression of some basic facts. The grievance of the Petitioner is that he cannot be penalized for life as there is no provision in the Punjab Judicial Service Rules, 1994 ("Rules") to debar an advocate from appearing in any examination of judicial service for the rest of his life. It is also his case that the concept of permanent disqualification was never mentioned in the advertisement issued in the month of January, 2015, hence it could not be levied on the Petitioner.

3. At the very outset, learned counsel for the Petitioner was questioned on the maintainability of the instant Petition. The basic challenge in this Petition is an order issued by the Administrative Committee headed by the Hon'ble Chief Justice of the Lahore High Court in its meeting held on 19.8.2015. In the said meeting, seven Judges of the Lahore High Court including the Hon'ble Chief Justice decided that persons who had concealed registration of cases against them or material facts in their application forms would be permanently debarred from participating in any examination for judicial service. Learned counsel for the Petitioner relied upon the case cited at Ch. Muhammad Akram v. Registrar, Islamabad High Court (PLD 2016 SC 961) to urge the point the Petition is maintainable on the basis of the latest view of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan.

4. The judgment cited at PLD 2016 SC 961 (supra) relied upon by the counsel for the Petitioner essentially looks at the process for appointments, absorptions and transfers made in the Islamabad High Court which were stated to be in violation of the Islamabad High Court Establishment (Appointment and Conditions of Service) Rules, 2011 ("2011 Rules") and in violation of Rule 26 of the Lahore High Court Rules 1981 ("1981 Rules"). In this case, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan examined the discretionary power exercised by the Chief Justice of the Islamabad High Court under Rule 16 of the 2011 Rules and Rule 26 of the 1981 Rules and held that the discretionary powers were not in accordance with the rules of the court. The import of the judgment, with respect, is not to interfere in all administrative affairs of the High Court which have duly been passed under the Rules of the court or where the Court has taken a policy decision. The emphasis of the court was on the exercise of powers under Rule 26 of the 1981 Rules and the violation thereunder. The said judgment is not applicable to the case of the Petitioner and the arguments that the constitutional petition lies against all administrative orders issued by the Lahore High Court is misconceived. Learned counsel for the Petitioner has not referred to the violation of any fundamental right or any rules. He is aggrieved by a policy decision of the Administrative Committee of this Court, hence reliance placed on PLD 2016 SC 961 (supra) is totally misconceived. It is also added that propriety demands that a decision of the Hon'ble Chief Justice or the Administrative Committee be challenged in a higher forum that is before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan because invoking Article 199 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 against Senior Coordinate Judges of this Court will affect the comity and concordance amongst the Judges and upset their administrative working. Hence the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case cited at Abrar Hassan v. Government of Pakistan and another (PLD 1976 SC 315) has held that all actions and orders taken by the High Court or has been that order by any Judge thereof in exercise of functions and powers of his office are not amenable to writ jurisdiction.

5. Therefore for the above reasons, the instant petition is not maintainable and dismissed in limine.

(b) Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Ordinance (XIII of 2002)-

----S. 23(2) & Preamble---Exclusion of monopolies---Media ownership concentration and exclusion of monopolies---Vertical and horizontal integration of media ownership---Nature of such vertical and horizontal integration---Rationale for regulation of "vertical integration" of media---Any enterprise or owner who operated publication, distribution or broadcast was a media enterprise---Media enterprise could own more than one company engaged in the media business which would include a group of companies which were engaged in different areas of the media sector---Within electronic media, a media enterprise engaged in broadcast, distribution or publication and could operate another media enterprise engaged in the same line of work being broadcast, distribution or publication which was horizontal integration---Horizontal integration could give rise to oligopoly and in extreme cases monopoly, hence such integration was regulated by capping the number of licences a media enterprise could own in the same medium being broadcast, distribution or publication---Vertical integration, on the other hand, was caused when one media enterprise integrated within the electronic media to operate some other media enterprise, so a broadcaster would integrate to operate distribution services or publication or publication would integrate to operate broadcast media---Vertical integration included cross-ownership, that was, when a common entity would operate broadcast media as well as distribution service---Vertical integration was of concern for Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority (PEMRA) because if a smaller group of owners controlled a large share of the market through broadcast and distribution it would cause concentration of ownership, which in turn meant reduction in diversity and plurality of content and the free flow of information.

(c) Interpretation of statutes---

----Purposive tool of interpretation---Subjective and objective purpose of a statute---While construing law, purposive interpretation was necessary to give the fullest possible meaning to the law which included the subjective and objective purpose of the law---Legislative intent must be seen in the context of the legal system in which the statute operated and must be sensitive to changing environment---Objective purpose of the statute would involve interests, values, objectives and functions which the law sought to protect and its interpretation must reflect the fundamental values and principles which the law-maker wished to preserve---Subjective purpose would be seen in the context of the statute and its purpose and therefore a dynamic purposive interpretation bridged the gap between law and society and could not be insensitive to the technological advancements and changing needs of the public because if the courts were to focus on subjective purpose only it would not manifest the objective of the law and would create stagnation and would be a time-centric interpretation possibly freezing the meaning of the law in one historical moment.

Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 did not leave it open to PEMRA to set out a new regulatory authority but instead required it to work within the confines of the prescribed objectives and in the present case, PEMRA abdicated from its functions as a regulator and instead transgressed into the domain of the Legislature, which is not permissible---High Court further observed that if the intent of the law was to prohibit vertical integration it would not have required PEMRA to define the circumstances, which created undue concentration of ownership and the Legislature would have prescribed the restriction in the stated section---High Court held that Rr.13(3) & 13(4) of the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Rules, 2009 and Reglns. 2.11 & 3.23 of the PEMRA (Eligibility Criteria and Bidding Procedure for Direct to Home (DTH) Distribution Service Licensing) Regulations, 2016 were enacted without lawful authority and were struck down---Constitutional petition was allowed, accordingly.

(e) Delegated legislation ---

----Framing of rules/regulations under a parent statute---Rules and regulations framed under a statute could not transgress the limits set by the statute---Rule-making body/authority could not frame rules which were in conflict with or in derogation of the substantive provisions of the statute under which said Rules were framed and in case of any inconsistency with the parent statute; the excessive rule would be considered illegal if it went beyond its delegated authority---When the Legislature conferred powers on a regulatory authority to frame rules, it was expected that such rules would advance the purpose of the Legislature and not run contrary to it.

(f) Delegation of powers ----

----Delegated authority was incidental to statutory function and could not run parallel to the statutory function---Regulators drew their authority from Legislation which created it, and limits placed on a regulator were prescribed by law.

(g) Regulatory authority--

----Exercise of powers by a regulatory authority/public regulator---Flexibility and independence of regulatory authorities---Subordinate legislation/rules enacted by a Regulator---Test to determine validity of such subordinate legislation/rules---

Whenever there was an element of flexibility, a regulator may run the risk of over stepping its boundary and going beyond the authority delegated to it and therefore it was important to examine the question as to whether the rules and regulations made under a statute were inconsistent with the statute itself and whether such rules and regulations achieved the purpose of the statute---Courts were to ensure that a regulator remained within its regulatory domain and did not attempt to step into the role of the Legislator.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition the Petitioner has challenged the vires of Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Rules, 2009 ("Rules") and Regulations 2.5, 2.11 and 3.23 of the PEMRA (Eligibility Criteria and Bidding Procedure for Direct to Home (DTH) Distribution Service Licensing) Regulations, 2016 ("DTH Regulations") notified on 20.8.2016. The Petitioner has also challenged Regulation 12(3) of the PEMRA (Radio Broadcast Stations Operations) Regulations, 2012 ("2012 Regulations").

The Dispute

2. The Petitioner is in the electronic media business and holds a Broadcast Media License issued by PEMRA. The Petitioner wants to apply for a Direct To Home license ("DTH license"), which essentially is a distribution service within the electronic media. Through the impugned Rules and DTH Regulations PEMRA has prohibited broadcast media license holders from operating distribution service licenses which includes the DTH license. It is the Petitioner's case that the prohibition imposed under Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Rules and Regulations 2.11 and 3.23 of the DTH Regulations is unreasonable, discriminatory and beyond the scope of Section 23 of the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Ordinance, 2002 ("Ordinance"). It was explained that the challenge to Rule 12(3) of the 2012 Regulations is on the same grounds as the same restriction is placed on radio broadcasters, however the DTH license is only for the electronic media.

3. The dispute relates to the award of DTH licenses which is a license to operate a distribution service. PEMRA has offered three DTH licenses by way of which a DTH license holder will be able to deliver television transmission directly via satellite into the home of the viewer. The DTH technology enables a license holder to collect a bouquet of television channels in digital and encrypted form and uplink the entire bouquet through a DTH satellite. The bouquet is received by the subscriber directly from the satellite through a top box set which decodes and decrypts the DTH signal. In this way, the DTH license holder can transmit to remote areas which are not covered by terrestrial transmission or cable networks. Each licensee will be allowed, other than the live channels, five thematic channels on which the licensee can relay content of its own choosing as regulated by PEMRA. In this way the DTH license holder can beam any programme of its choice directly into the house of the viewer on the thematic channels. The DTH licensing initiative in Pakistan commenced in the year 2003 however, PEMRA was not able to successfully launch the DTH technology due to various reasons including litigation, which is stated to be still pending before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan. It was also stated that Pakistan is lagging behind other countries so far as DTH technology is concerned as DTH technology is used world over and once functional in Pakistan will provide connectivity in remote areas especially where there is no cable or internet transmission due to lack of infrastructure to support television viewage.

4. On 1st June 2016 PEMRA issued SRO No.551(1)/2016 which sets out the eligibility criteria and bidding procedure for the DTH license. Regulation 2.11 of the stated SRO provides that the maximum shareholding of broadcast media or landing rights permission in the applicant company shall not exceed a total of 20% and that broadcast media cannot have its management or control over the applicant company. On 12th August 2016 SRO No.774(1)/2016 was issued by PEMRA amending the earlier SRO No. 551(1)/2016. Consequently Regulations 2.11 and 3.23 was amended and now the stated regulation contains a total prohibition on broadcast media from applying for the DTH license. It was argued that this amendment was introduced to mirror the restriction contained in Rule 13(4) of the Rules which was earlier overlooked in SRO of 1.6.2016.

The Arguments

5. Counsel for the Petitioner Ms. Asma Jahangir, argued that the Rules and the DTH Regulations being subordinate legislation have traveled beyond the mandate granted to PEMRA under the Ordinance. While relying on Section 23 of the Ordinance, she explained that the Ordinance does not impose any restriction whatsoever on vertical integration between media enterprises and that PEMRA has travelled beyond its delegated realm by prohibiting vertical integration. Resultantly, the Petitioner is at a disadvantage as it cannot distribute its own content and is denied the ability to expand its business. She argued that the DTH Regulations impose an unreasonable restriction on the right of the Petitioner to enter into lawful business, to apply for the DTH license and to enter into fair competition as provided for under the Ordinance. She further argued that the Rules and the DTH Regulations prohibit broadcast media license holders from obtaining a DTH license for which there is no reasonable or rational explanation and it offends the fundamental rights of the Petitioner. It is also her case that the restriction violates Article 25 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") , as the Petitioner is being discriminated against. The restriction is only on broadcast media whilst all other media enterprises can apply for the DTH license. Furthermore foreign companies have been allowed to bid for the DTH license irrespective of whether they are in broadcast media or not. However local broadcast media is prohibited from operating a DTH license which is discriminatory. She stated that there was no legitimate or lawful reason to separate broadcast media from distribution services. It is her case that no objective criteria was defined by PEMRA on the basis of which it decided that the integration of broadcast media with distribution service tantamounts to undue concentration of media ownership. In support of her arguments, she submitted a plethora of judgments including judgments from foreign jurisdiction such as India, USA and Australia.

6. Report and parawise comments have been filed by all the Respondents. Learned DAG stated that the Federal Government relies upon the parawise comments and arguments made on behalf of Respondent No.2, PEMRA. He clarified that the Federal Government only approves the regulations or amendments proposed by PEMRA and that PEMRA being the regulator is authorized to regulate the distribution of foreign and local television channels.

7. The case of PEMRA, as argued by Mr. Salman Akram Raja is that PEMRA as the front line regulator has the power to restrict broadcast media license holders from operating distribution services which includes the DTH license in order to avoid undue concentration of media ownership. This restriction has been imposed keeping in view the mandate of the Ordinance which specifically requires PEMRA to prevent concentration of market power within the electronic media. Hence PEMRA deemed it necessary to restrict broadcast media license holders from obtaining distribution licenses as the integration of the two media enterprises would lead to undue concentration of media ownership which in turn adversely affects diversity and plurality of content in the electronic media. He further argued that the mandate of Section 23 of the Ordinance is to prevent concentration of media ownership at the time of grant of license and thereby encourage diversity and plurality of content. He further argued that in terms of the delegated authority under Section 39 of the Ordinance PEMRA is to define undue concentration of media ownership and regulate media ownership accordingly. It is his case that the legislature left it to PEMRA to decide how to regulate and control concentration in media ownership. Accordingly PEMRA made the Rules in the year, 2009 and restricted broadcast media from the grant of a distribution license and vice versa because as per its understanding cross ownership in media enterprises leads to undue concentration of media ownership. He further argued that the restriction imposed in the Rules and 2012 Regulations does not violate any fundamental right of the Petitioner nor is it discriminatory in any manner whatsoever. He contended that it is common in licensing regimes to prohibit a person engaged in one activity from simultaneously engaging in another activity. It is also his case that Section 23(2) of the Ordinance necessitates both competition regulation and ownership regulation by PEMRA. He argued that the use of the word 'and' in Section 23(2) of the Ordinance wherein it is provided that the Authority shall ensure open and fair competition and that undue concentration is not created, is disjunctive creating two distinct regulatory objectives for PEMRA. As per his contentions the first objective is to ensure fair competition. Generally competition regulation is ex post as it seeks to prohibit anticompetitive behaviour after it has happened and thereby punish entities that have indulged in such behaviour after the fact. The second objective is to regulate media ownership which regulation requires control before the grant of license. Therefore ownership restrictions are ex ante and do not punish a particular action after the event. It is a restriction that is to be applied before the grant of the license, meaning that PEMRA is not to grant a license which would ultimately result in undue concentration of media ownership. As to the DTH Regulations they simply give effect to Rules 13(3) and 13(4) of the Rules which have separated ownership control between broadcast media and distribution service. He argued that this separation has been accepted by the electronic media sector since 2009 and as such does not call for interference on account of the alleged grievances of the Petitioner. So far as the 2012 Regulations are concerned, they relate to radio broadcasters and envision the same restriction as contained in the Rules impugned by the Petitioner. In support of his arguments, the learned counsel submitted a plethora of judgments including judgments from foreign jurisdiction such as India and the USA.

The Issue

8. The case before the Court questions the legality of Rules 13(3) and 13(4) of the Rules as well as Regulations 2.11 and 3.23 of the DTH Regulations which have ousted the Petitioner from operating in distribution services. Consequently the Petitioner cannot bid for or operate a DTH license, hence this Petition. The issue before us is whether PEMRA has acted within its statutory authority as mandated under Section 23 read with Section 39(2)(e) of the Ordinance while promulgating Rules 13(3) and 13(4) of the Rules or whether PEMRA has gone beyond the statutory mandate by promulgating the stated Rules which oust broadcast media from distribution services and vice versa. Since the case before us was argued with reference to the DTH license which is available for the electronic media therefore we will confine ourselves to the legality of Rules 13(3) and 13(4) of the Rules and the impugned clauses of the DTH Regulations. Since the challenge to the 2012 Regulations was not argued before us, we deem it appropriate to leave that issue for some other appropriate case where the challenge is specifically related to the radio market and radio broadcasters. After hearing both the counsels it transpires that the first question before us is the intent of the Ordinance and specifically the intent of Section 23(2) read with Section 39(2)(e) of the Ordinance wherein the authority to define the circumstances which cause undue concentration of ownership has been delegated to PEMRA. Thereafter the next question we will address in our judgment is whether Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Rules are consistent with the mandate of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance or whether PEMRA has gone beyond the prescribed mandate and exceeded its delegated authority by promulgating Rules 13(4) and (5) of the Rules and Regulations 2.11 and 3.23 of the DTH Regulations.

The Regulatory Objective

9. Under the Ordinance PEMRA is the regulatory authority for the electronic media and its objectives are clearly elucidated in the Preamble to the Ordinance stating therein that the Authority, PEMRA is to ensure a free and diverse electronic media giving an accurate and fair representation of information to the public. The importance of diversity and plurality of content within the electronic media is contained in clause (ii) of the Preamble wherein it is stated that PEMRA must enlarge the choice available to the people of Pakistan in the media for news, current affairs, religious knowledge, art, culture, science, technology, economic development, social sector, music, sports, drama and all subjects of pubic and national interest. The Preamble also requires that PEMRA ensure accountability, transparency and good governance by optimizing the free flow of information. The emphasis on choice and free flow of information is to encourage divergent viewpoints in the content so that the electronic media is representative of all segments of society, be it demographic, ethnic, gender or otherwise. At the same time the electronic media is required to present a variety of viewpoints and ideas maintaining plurality in its content. Hence the purpose of the Ordinance is to ensure diversity and plurality in content and information which is an integral part of the right to freedom of speech and expression.

10. The fundamental right to freedom of speech and expression as enshrined in Article 19 of the Constitution means the right to express one's own convictions and opinions in any form or mode through all available mediums. This fundamental right is the catalyst of a democratic process where all citizens have the right to participate in the affairs of the country and is essential for guaranteeing the rule of law. Participation becomes meaningless where the citizen is not well informed on all sides of the issues, through a variety of opinions and outlooks. Therefore the widest possible dissemination of information from diverse and opposed sources is essential for the welfare of the public and the existence of a democratic society. This right has been explained in the case titled Pakistan Broadcasters Association and others v. Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority and others (PLD 2016 SC 692) wherein it was held that:-

11. No doubt freedom of speech goes to the very heart of a natural right of a civilized society to impart and acquire information about their common interests. It helps an individual in self accomplishment, and leads to discovery of truth, it strengthens and enlarges the capacity of an individual to participate in decision making, and provides a mechanism to facilitate achieving a reasonable balance between stability and social change.

12. The concept of freedom of media is based on the premise that the widest possible dissemination of information from diverse and antagonistic sources is sine quo non to the welfare of the people. Such freedom is the foundation of a free government of a free people. Any attempt to impede, stifle or contravene such right would certainly fall foul of the freedom guaranteed under Article 19 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan.
Freedom of expression and speech requires a free media to disseminate ideas and information through diverse and antagonistic sources. Through a range of programmes involving diverse social actors the electronic media disseminates information and ideas offering a wide variety of content based on need and public interest. The information and content plays a significant role in shaping public opinion and expression, which is why the media is recognized as an essential constituent of the democratic process. The role of a free media is critical in the democratic process since it is the primary medium through which information, ideologies, ideas and related content is made available to the viewer, which content will ultimately influence public opinion and decision making. In any democratic system it is therefore imperative that the media provide the public with information and the platform through which the freedom of expression can be exercised.

11. The electronic media uses three mediums for dissemination of information being broadcast, distribution and publication. For each of the mediums to effectively provide information, education and entertainment to the public a legal framework conducive to freedom of expression, ensuring diversity and pluralism of information has been set out under the Ordinance. The purpose of the Ordinance is to create a legal framework which will guarantee diversity and plurality in content and information and ensure the free flow of information. This is the underlying objective which PEMRA must achieve while regulating the electronic media. The Ordinance requires healthy competition and open access for the grant of licenses to operate in any given medium. Resultantly the ownership of media entities which are to become licensed operators under the Ordinance becomes relevant. Ownership of entities which operate within the electronic media is a cause of concern for the regulator as ownership concentration is considered to be a threat to diversity and pluralism of information which in turn can influence public opinion. The advancement of technology within the electronic media means that the viewer is given access to information and content through various different mediums and services which may interplay and enable media entities to communicate with the viewer through multiple channels. Consequently the interplay of technology and public need gives rise to issues of convergence in ownership as media owners look to expanding their business interest horizontally in all segments of broadcast, distribution or publication and at the same time expand their business interests vertically, across different mediums so that broadcasters enter into publication and distribution and distributors into publication or broadcasting and so on. Not only is the vertical and horizontal integration economically efficient and desirable but it also means reaching a larger number of viewers by improving the quality of services and use of technological advancements. Hence the regulatory landscape is complex and demanding, requiring regulatory intervention at multiple levels.

12. Media ownership and its concentration are perceived as a direct threat to the elements of diversity and plurality of information. Concentration reduces the number of participants and creates larger economic units within the media market. Concentration also has a political dimension as it can promote certain interest groups over others and prevent the entry of new competitors in the market. It suggests that fewer people will dominate the electronic media thereby reducing variety and choice in content for the viewers. If the media is controlled by fewer individuals it adversely affects plurality since it will reduce the variety in ideas, debate and discussion. When the source of the information is reduced it will weaken the democratic processes because the circulation of ideas and opinions will become concentrated. Hence regulating media ownership becomes vital and in the public interest because it guarantees freedom of expression and speech through the dissemination of information. Undue concentration is considered as the negation of diversity and plurality which is the hallmark of freedom of expression and speech. The existence of monopolies and oligopolies in media ownership will impede the communication and circulation of ideas and opinions. Therefore the regulator is required to harmoniously balance the open access safeguards with the concentration controls to achieve an efficient media market. Regulating media ownership and anticompetitive practices essentially mean to prevent a lesser number of independent owners of media enterprise from dominating and controlling the relevant media market. Therefore in the context of both ownership regulation and competition regulation the control factor and the relevant market are significant.

13. In the case before us the issue revolves around ownership regulation that is on cross ownership of media enterprises. PEMRA has restricted vertical integration by prohibiting cross ownership such that a broadcaster cannot operate distribution services and vice versa. PEMRA is of the opinion that a common entity having control in broadcast media and distribution services in the same market will destroy the element of plurality and diversity of information. It was argued by the counsel for PEMRA that the Rules and DTH Regulations ensure that there is no concentration of ownership in the media market. He further argued that broadcasters can distribute their own content, hence their business is not adversely affected nor are they denied the right to expand their business by separating them from distribution services. By excluding broadcasters from the grant of DTH licenses, PEMRA has ensured that the broadcasters will not control the media market because if broadcast media owns distribution services it will cause undue concentration in media ownership and a few hands will end up influencing public opinion and choice. The question therefore arises as to whether PEMRA could exclude broadcasters from distribution services or whether it has to regulate the sector and prevent undue concentration of media ownership within the relevant market.

The Legal Landscape

14. For ease of reference the legal framework on the subject is reproduced hereunder:-

Section 23 of the Ordinance provides as follows:-

Exclusion of monopolies (1) No person shall be entitled to the benefit of any monopoly or exclusivity in the matter of broadcasting or the establishment and operation of broadcast media or distribution service or in the supply to or purchase from, a national broadcaster of air time, programmes or advertising material and all existing agreements and contracts to the extent of conferring a monopoly or containing an exclusivity clause are, to the extent of exclusivity, hereby declared to be inoperative and of no legal effect.

(2) In granting a licence, the Authority shall ensure that open and fair competition is facilitated in the operation of more than one media enterprise in any given unit of area or subject and that undue concentration of media ownership is not created in any city, town or area and the country as a whole:

Provided that if a licensee owns, controls or operates more than one media enterprise, he shall not indulge in any practice which may impede fair competition and provision of level playing field.

Section 39 of the Ordinance reads as follows:-

Power to make rules (1) The Authority may, with the approval of the Government, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Ordinance.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the fore going power, such rules may be provided for all or any of the following matters, namely:-

(a) to prescribe the forms for the licences for working, installing, operating, or dealing in transmission broadcast or distribution apparatus and the manner in which applications for the licences shall be granted;

(b) To prescribe the terms and conditions of the licence including fee to be charged in connection with the issuance of licences and related matters,

(c) to prescribe standards and measures for the establishment of broadcast media stations, installation of broadcasting, distribution service or teleporting equipment, transmitters, receivers, boosters, converters, distributors and common antennae;

(d) to prescribe terms and conditions for the broadcast media or distribution service operators who own, control or operate more than one media enterprise; and

(e) to define the circumstances constituting undue concentration of media ownership and abuse of powers and anti-competitive practices by media companies.

Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Rules provides that:

Media ownership concentration and exclusion of monopolies: (1) To ensure that fair competition is facilitated, media diversity and plurality are promoted in the society and undue concentration of media ownership is not created. Maximum number of licences that may be issued to a person or any of its directors or partners where such person is a company or firm, who is directly or indirectly, controlling, owning or operating more than one media enterprise, shall not exceed a total of four satellite TV, four FM Radio licences and two landing rights permissions.

(2) A licensee having direct or indirect interest in any other media enterprise shall ensure:
1. appointment of separate editorial boards and monitoring facilities for each medium under its control;
2. establishment of separate management structures for each medium under its control; and
3. maintenance of separate accounting record for each medium under its control.
(3) A licensee who owns, controls or operates directly or indirectly any other distribution service license shall not be granted a landing rights permission or broadcast media licence.
(4) A licensee who owns, controls or operates directly or indirectly broadcast media licence or landing rights permission shall not be granted a distribution service licence.
DTH Regulations 2.5, 2.11 and 3.23 state as follows:
2.5 Applicants shall have less than 50% of the shares owned or controlled by foreign nationals/companies, if any, with or without management or control vested in foreign nationals or companies. The Chief Executive Officer of the applicant company shall be resident Pakistani.
2.11 The applicants must not already be a licensee who owns, controls or operates directly or indirectly any broadcast media licence or landing rights permission, in compliance with Rule 13 of the PEMRA Rules 2009.
3.23 Affidavit of the applicant company that neither the applicant company nor any of its Directors or shareholders are directly or indirectly owning, controlling or operating broadcast media license or landing rights permission in compliance with Rule 13 of PEMRA Rules 2009.

15. The term media enterprise is defined in Section 2(1) of the Ordinance to mean an enterprise concerned with the publication of a printed newspaper or a broadcast media or distribution service. So a media enterprise is an entity concerned with broadcast or distribution or publication in the electronic media. Section 2(hc) of the Ordinance defines electronic media to include broadcast media and distribution services. Broadcast Media has been defined in Section 2(c) of the Ordinance to mean such media which originate and propagate broadcast and prerecorded signals by terrestrial means or through satellite for radio or television and includes teleporting, provision of access to broadcast signals by channel providers and such other forms of broadcast media as the Authority may, with the approval of the Federal Government, by notification in the official Gazette, specify. Distribution Service is defined in Section 2(ha) of the Ordinance which means a service which receives broadcast and prerecorded signals from different channels and distributes them to subscribers through cable, wireless or satellite options and includes Cable TV, LMDS, MMDS, DTH and such other similar technologies. Simply put broadcast media collects and transmits its own content while distribution service is a license to deliver the content of various broadcasters to the viewer. So while broadcast media can distribute its own content it cannot distribute other broadcasters content whereas distributors deliver content from a variety of broadcasters to the viewer.

16. The legal framework is such that Section 23 of the Ordinance prescribes for the control of factors which cause concentration in the media market by preventing anticompetitive practices from developing and by avoiding ownership concentration in the relevant media market. Section 23(1) of the Ordinance requires PEMRA to ensure that there is no monopolistic control or exclusivity in broadcast media or in distribution service. Section 23(2) of the Ordinance requires PEMRA to ensure open competition and to regulate ownership concentration at the time of grant of license. While the Section does not define undue concentration of ownership it requires PEMRA to ensure that undue concentration is not created within the relevant market. To achieve the objectives of Section 23 of the Ordinance, Section 39(2)(d) requires PEMRA to make rules setting out the terms and conditions where broadcast media license holders or distribution service license holders can own more than one media enterprise meaning that PEMRA is to define the terms and conditions on which media enterprises can integrate horizontally within the electronic media. In the same way Section 39(2)(e) of the Ordinance requires it to make rules to define the circumstances that constitute undue concentration of media ownership meaning that PEMRA can describe the conditions which cause undue concentration of ownership within media enterprises to control vertical integration and prevent concertation of ownership in the media market. Therefore the intent of the law is that by defining the circumstances and providing for the terms and conditions PEMRA can regulate media enterprises and prevent fewer media owners from owning a larger share of the relevant media market.

17. PEMRA issued the Rules in 2009 and provided for the procedure of grant and renewal of licenses. Rule 13, being the rule under challenge, defines fair competition to mean that maximum number of licenses should be issued after full participation of media enterprises in the procedure for grant of licenses. In order to avoid monopolistic control by media enterprises Rule 13(1) caps the number of licenses that can be granted to one media enterprise in broadcast or in distribution and Rule 13(2) provides for the terms and conditions for multiple grants to a media enterprise. Rules 13(3) and (4) define the circumstances for undue concentration in media ownership to mean the total exclusion of broadcast media from distribution services and of distribution service from broadcast media. As per this Rule a broadcast media license holder cannot operate a distribution service license and vice versa. The DTH Regulations were issued in August 2016 and prescribe the terms and conditions on which the DTH licenses will be offered for bidding. The Regulations 2.11 and 3.23 of the DTH Regulations essentially replicates the provisions of Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Rules. PEMRA defends Rules 13(3) and (4) and the DTH Regulations as being consistent with the mandate of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance.

18. In order to appreciate the true effect and meaning of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance, it is necessary to understand the relevance of media ownership and vertical integration. An enterprise or owner who operates publication, distribution or broadcast is a media enterprise. A media enterprise can own more than one company engaged in the media business and will include a group of companies which are engaged in different areas of the media sector. Within the electronic media a media enterprise engaged in broadcast, distribution or publication can operate another media enterprise engaged in the same line of work being broadcast, distribution or publication. This is integrating horizontally and allows the media enterprise to increase its production and reach a larger audience. Horizontal integration can give rise to oligopoly and in extreme cases monopoly hence integration is regulated by capping the number of licenses a media enterprise can own in the same medium being broadcast, distribution or publication. On the other hand, vertical integration is caused when one media enterprise integrates within the electronic media to operate some other media enterprise. So a broadcaster will integrate to operate distribution services or publication or publication will integrated to operate broadcast media and so on in the same market. Vertical integration includes cross ownership that is when a common entity will operate broadcast media as well as distribution service. Accordingly, vertical integration is of concern for PEMRA because if a smaller group of owners control a large share of the market through broadcast and distribution it will cause concentration of ownership, which in turn means reduction in diversity and plurality of content and the free flow of information. In this case, vertical integration refers to the ownership concentration of two important media enterprises, broadcast media and distribution services. This ownership concentration has the potential to challenge the stated objectives of the regulator, hence it must be adequately regulated.

19. The counsel for PEMRA argued at great length on the regulatory powers of PEMRA which arise out of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance. He argued that the stated Section called for a disjunctive interpretation of the word "and" in Section 23(2) of the Ordinance which requires the Authority to ensure that open and fair competition is facilitated in the operation of more than one media enterprise in any given unit of area or subject and that undue concentration of media ownership is not created in any city, town or area and the country as a whole. When reading Section 23(2) of the Ordinance, it is apparent that the word "and" is used to separate two regulatory functions attributed to PEMRA. One function is to ensure that competition amongst media enterprises is open and fair with maximum participation in a transparent process. The intent of the law is such that it guarantees free access to the market and any anticompetitive practice would call for ex post regulations with remedial or corrective interventions. However since increase in competition alone does not necessarily prevent ownership concentration, therefore Section 23(2) of the Ordinance also requires that at the time of grant of license PEMRA ensure that no undue concentration of media ownership is caused within the relevant market. The intent of the law mandated ex ante regulations where PEMRA while anticipating the dangers of vertical integration would consider ownership issues at the time of grant of license. Consequently PEMRA has separated broadcast media from distribution service because it considers that the integration in itself will create undue concentration of media ownership. The counsel argued that regulating competition and ownership involved two different regulatory regimes with different regulatory objectives. It is his case that PEMRA was authorized to ensure that there is no undue concentration of ownership in the media market, hence PEMRA as the gatekeeper of the electronic media is mandated to prohibit vertical integration which results in undue concentration of ownership.

Understanding the Legislative Intent

20. In order to determine the scope of the regulatory framework within which PEMRA is to operate we will first look at the Preamble of the statute which is the gateway to the statute and the bedrock to understanding the scope and purpose of any statute. The Preamble to the statute sets out the reasons and the objects for which the statute has been promulgated and in this case the Preamble to the Ordinance clearly defines the purpose for which PEMRA was established. The stated purpose as per the Preamble is as follows:-

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the development of electronic media in order to:

(i) improve the standards of information, education and entertainment;

(ii) enlarge the choice available to the people of Pakistan in the media for news, current affairs, religious knowledge, art, culture, science, technology, economic development, social sector concerns, music, sports, drama and other subjects of public and national interest;

(iii) facilitate the devolution of responsibility and power to the grass-roots by improving the access of the people to mass media at the local and community level; and

(iv) ensure accountability, transparency and good governance by optimizing the free flow of information.

Professor Aharon Barak in his book titled The Judge in a Democracy emphasized the importance of purposive interpretation to advance the object and intent of law. He said:

Subjective purpose is not the only purpose relevant to statutory interpretation, especially in situations where we lack information about that purpose. Even when we do have such information it does not always help us in the interpretive task. Moreover, even when we do find useful information about the subjective purpose, we must keep in mind that focusing on legislative intent alone fails to regard the statute as a living, organism in a changing environment. It is insensitive to the existence of the system in which the statute operates. It is not capable of integrating the individual statue into the framework of the whole legal system. It makes it difficult to bridge the gap between law and society. Thus, it does not allow the meaning of the statute to be developed as the legal system develops. Rather, it freezes the meaning of the statute at the historical movement of its legislation, which may no longer be relevant to the meaning of the statute in a modern democracy. If a judge relies too much on legislative intent, the statute ceases to fulfill its objective. As a result, the judge becomes merely a historian and an archaeologist and cannot fulfill his role as a judge. Instead of looking forward, the judge looks backward. The judge becomes sterile and frozen, creating stagnation instead of progress. Instead of acting in partnership with the legislative branch, the judge becomes subordinate to a historical legislature. This subservience does not accord with the role of the judge in a democracy. The objective purpose of the statute means the interests, values, objectives, policy and functions that the law should realize in a democracy... just as the supremacy of fundamental values, principles, and human rights justifies judicial review of the constitutionality of statutes, so too must that supremacy assert itself in statutory interpretation. The judge must reflect these fundamental values in the interpretation of legislation. The judge should not narrow interpretation to the exclusive search for subjective legislative intent. He must also consider the "intention" of the legal system, for the statute is always wiser than the legislature. By doing so the judge gives the statute a dynamic meaning and thus bridges the gap between law and society.

Therefore while construing the law purposive interpretation is necessary to give the fullest possible meaning of the law. This view was delivered by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled Dr. Raja Aamer Zaman v. Omar Ayub Khan and others (2015 SCMR 1303) wherein it was held that:

The Courts in Pakistan have always preferred a purposive rather than a literal interpretation of Statutory Instruments. Reliance in this behalf may be made to the judgments, reported as Hudabiya Engineering (Pvt) Limited v. Pakistan through Secretary, Ministry of Interior, Government of Pakistan and 6 others (PLD 1998 Lahore 90) and Federation of Pakistan through Ministry of Finance and others v. Messrs Noori Trading Corporation (Private) Limited and 14 others (1992 SCMR 710).

In the case titled Muhammad Nawaz Chandio v. Muhamamd Ismail Rahu and others (2016 SCMR 875) the august Supreme Court also relied upon purposive, realistic and beneficial interpretation of the law. This includes the subjective purpose and the objective purpose of the law. The legislative intent must be seen in the context of the legal system in which the statute operates and must be sensitive to the changing environment. The objective purpose of the statute will involve the interests, values, objectives and functions which the law seeks to protect and its interpretation must reflect the fundamental values and principles which the law maker wishes to preserve. The subjective purpose will be seen in the context of the statute and is purpose. Therefore a dynamic purposive interpretation bridges the gap between law and society. To interpret media laws in particular requires purposive interpretation where the legislative intent must be seen in the context of the changing environment. It cannot be insensitive to the technological advancements and changing needs of the public because if the courts were to focus on subjective purpose only it would not manifest the objective of the law and would create stagnation. It would be a time centric interpretation possibly freezing the meaning of the law in one historical moment.

21. Now looking at the Ordinance and its intent to encourage fair and open competition, Section 23(2) of the Ordinance requires PEMRA to devise an open and fair process for grant of license enabling more than one media entity to operate more than one media enterprise in the electronic media. Essentially the stated Section requires effective competition in the market through maximum participation in the process for grant of license. The declared objective of the lawmaker is to create open access where healthy competition is promoted so that a smaller number of license holders do not dominate the relevant market. It also encourages new corners in the market as the object is to reduce barriers and encourage competition. Importantly fair competition must be seen in the context of the relevant media market which can be any city, town, area or the country as a whole. Hence anti-competitive practice will be seen in the context of the relevant media market. At the same time, the lawmaker in its wisdom also requires PEMRA to regulate ownership concentration in the relevant media market. The rationale for avoiding ownership concentration as well as anticompetitive practices is that the regulatory controls used to ensure open access in the media market and to promote efficient economic practices are usually based on economic considerations. While they may introduce a variety of persons into the media market they cannot guarantee diversity and plurality of content nor can they ensure the free flow of information. This is because there are other forces operating in the media market which influence ownership convergence. Technology advancement and public needs/interest are two strong factors with competing interests which play an imperative role in the media market other than the economic factors. A harmonious balance of all three factors being economics, technology and public interest becomes vital while shaping the regulatory environment. In this way, fair competition and efficient media ownership are the stated regulatory objectives for PEMRA under the Ordinance, who is to ensure that a common owner does not end up with control of a larger share of the market.

22. To facilitate the regulatory requirement the legislature delegated its authority to determine the circumstances which make concentration undue. Section 39 of the Ordinance requires PEMRA to make rules to further the purpose of the Ordinance, meaning thereby that it is to create a responsive and regulated environment for the electronic media which will respond to the prevailing circumstances, public need and ensure that the stated purpose of the Ordinance is achieved. By requiring PEMRA to define the circumstances which make concentration undue, PEMRA can adjust the regulatory controls so as to meet the needs of the people at any given time. The lawmaker in its wisdom did not define the circumstances which make concentration undue because the relevant market will keep changing as will the environment with the interplay of technology, economics and public demand. The rapid changes in technology will cause an overlap between the mediums of broadcast; publication and distribution. It will also affect the conditions of competition and ownership as it alters the range and quality of services. Consequently the established structures ensuring diversity and plurality of content will have to keep changing and adapt to the changing circumstances. Different media enterprises fulfill different functions in a democratic society creating structures that encourage diversity and pluralism of content in the media. When advancement in technology breaks the traditional divides between media enterprises, the regulatory landscape will have to adjust to the need of the time in order to guarantee a diverse media. The Ordinance through Section 39(2)(e) facilitates PEMRA to retain control on the prevailing circumstances by adjusting its regulatory controls as necessitated by the need and demand of the time. The delegated function of rulemaking enables PEMRA to modify the regulatory controls in order to achieve the purpose and regulatory objectives prescribed under the Ordinance. It is important to note here that although the legislator has imposed upon PEMRA the duty of enlarging the choice to ensure diversity in information and plurality in content, it has identified the regulatory controls through which this can be achieved. Hence Section 23(2) of the Ordinance provides the regulatory objectives to be achieved by PEMRA and Section 39(2)(e) gives PEMRA the authority to make rules to achieve the intent of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance.

23. The Rules were framed and notified on 12.12.2009 and in terms of Section 39(2)(e) of the Ordinance, the circumstances constituting undue concentration defined by PEMRA are contained in Rules 13(3) and 13(4). The stated Rules oust broadcast media license holders from owning, controlling or operating directly or indirectly a distribution service license and vice versa meaning thereby that it totally prohibits vertical integration. The question is whether the ouster created by PEMRA under the Rules is mandated under Section 23(2) of the Ordinance or whether the ouster is in excess of the powers delegated to PEMRA. The counsel for PEMRA argued at length that Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Rules define the circumstance which is perceived by PEMRA to create undue concentration of media ownership. It is their case that there are legitimate and lawful reasons for keeping broadcasters and distributors separate which includes preventing a high degree of market power by a common entity and by conflict of interest. The counsel argued that a broadcaster is an entity that creates original content and includes TV channels and FM radio stations. A distribution service is a platform that carries content from broadcasters and distributes it through its network to the subscriber. By way of cross ownership a common entity can control a significant share of the market if it is allowed a broadcast license holder to obtain a distribution license. The learned counsel also agitated that it is common practice for regulators to separate media owners from vertically integrating by separating the mediums issued in the electronic media. It is his case that since PEMRA has to define the circumstance which amounts to undue concentration it has restricted cross ownership which results in undue concentration. Therefore it was argued that PEMRA has performed its regulatory duty as mandated under Section 23(2) of the Ordinance by restricting broadcasters from obtaining distribution licenses and vice versa.

Opinion of the Court

24. We have given great thought to the arguments made before us and have examined the Ordinance, Rules and DTH Regulations impugned before us. We are of the opinion that Section 23(2) of the Ordinance does not mandate any prohibition which would lead PEMRA to conclude that it is authorized under the stated Section to oust broadcast media from distribution services and vice versa. The scope of delegated authority has been explained by the august Supreme Court in the case titled Khawaja Ahamd Hassaan v. Government of Punjab and others (2005 SCMR 186), wherein the Court held that :

The subordinate power of framing rules granted by the statute cannot be exercised to override the expression provisions of the statute itself. It is well settled by now that a statutory rule cannot enlarge the scope of the section under which it is framed and if a rule goes beyond what the section contemplates, the rule must yield to the statute. The authority of executive to make rules and regulations in order to effectuate the intention and policy of the Legislature must be exercised within the limits of mandate given to the rule making authority and the rules framed under enactment must be consistent with the provision of the said enactment. The rules framed under a statute, if are inconsistent with the provisions of the statute and defeat the intention of Legislature expressed in the main statute, same shall be invalid.

The scope of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance is to provide PEMRA with its regulatory objectives so that it can regulate the electronic media and achieve the stated purpose of the Ordinance being diversity and plurality in content. To accomplish the stated purpose of the Ordinance maximum participation of stakeholders is required for the grant of a license. In this regard not only does Section 23(2) of the Ordinance require open access and fair competition but to ensure diversity and plurality in content it necessitates that PEMRA reach out to a maximum number of participants which will include the participation of existing media enterprises for the grant of media licenses. Therefore the stated Section does not envision any prohibition on broadcast media operating distribution services or vice versa but to the contrary it requires all media enterprises to compete in the media market with each other and with new media entities. This is in consonance with the spirit of healthy competition and efficient economy. Furthermore the intent of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance is that PEMRA ensure that ownership conglomerates are not formed given that the regulatory objective is to prevent undue concentration of media ownership in a given market. PEMRA is therefore mandated to consider the ownership configuration of a media entity at the time of grant of a license, with reference to a particular market in order to guarantee that the grant of the license will not result in undue concentration within that market. This means that PEMRA has to consider the ownership issue of a media enterprise before it grants a new license because it is by virtue of that particular grant that undue concentration may be caused in a market. Each case for grant of license has to be seen against a set of circumstances that should be defined pursuant to Section 39(2)(e) of the Ordinance, where after a determination can be made whether the grant of a license will result in undue concentration, in a particular market. Hence the emphasis of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance is on the role PEMRA should play at the time of granting a license, keeping in mind the area within which the license is to operate. Therefore we are of the opinion that the law envisioned an ongoing regulatory exercise whereby PEMRA defines the conditions which will enable it to monitor and control the circumstances which will make the formation of media consolidations impossible in any given area, city, town or the country as a whole.

25. In terms of the dicta laid down by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case cited at 2005 SCMR 186 (supra) rules and regulations formed under a statute cannot transgress the limits set by the statute. The superior courts have repeatedly held that the rule making body cannot frame rules which are in conflict with or in derogation of the substantive provisions of the statute under which the rules are framed and in case of any inconsistency with the parent statute the excessive rule will be considered illegal because it has gone beyond its delegated authority. It must be kept in mind that when the legislature confers powers on a regulatory authority to frame rules it is expected that the rules will advance the purpose of the legislature and not run contrary to it. In this case Section 23(2) of the Ordinance provides PEMRA with two regulatory objectives having separate regulatory tools yet at the same time aiming to achieve the same stated purpose of the Ordinance. The use of the word 'and' in Section 23(2) of the Ordinance separates the two distinct regulatory objectives, being fair competition and prevention of undue concentration. The regulatory objectives provide PEMRA with the scope of its regulatory duty which will enable it to achieve the stated purpose of the Ordinance at all times. A great deal of emphasis was placed by Mr. Salman Akram Raja, the counsel for PEMRA on reading the and in Section 23(2) disjunctively, which as per his understanding means that PEMRA is authorized to prohibit broadcast media from operating distribution services and vice versa as the vertical integration of these two media enterprises will result in undue concentration of media ownership. However, we find that the emphasis on a disjunctive reading is misplaced as we are of the opinion that whether the and is read conjunctively or disjunctively it will not change the intent of the law. The Ordinance requires the regulator to achieve diversity and plurality in content and the free flow of information by encouraging entities to operate media. enterprises. Under Section 23(2) of the Ordinance the regulatory objectives for PEMRA are prescribed and in doing so the legislature did not impose any prohibition with respect to vertical integration of specific media enterprises in the electronic media. PEMRA has misunderstood its regulatory functions and the objectives of the law. The function of PEMRA is to carry out the stated purpose of the Ordinance and to ensure that it implements and enforces the objectives of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance. Hence PEMRA is required to regulate vertical integration of all media enterprises so that they do not form concentrated ownership in a media market, which will give them a larger share of that market and enable them to prevent diversity and plurality in content in that market.

26. We are mindful of the fact that PEMRA is a front line regulator who has been given authority by the legislator to structure the sector such that it works in the public interest and promotes diversity and plurality of content. For this purpose some flexibility has been given to PEMRA to ensure that it can effectively regulate the sector. Whenever there is an element of flexibility, the regulator may run the risk of over stepping its boundary and going beyond the authority delegated to it. That is why the superior courts of the country need to examine the question as to whether the rules and regulations under a statute are inconsistent with the statute itself and whether the rules and regulations achieve the purpose of the statute. The courts are to ensure that the regulator remains within its regulatory domain and does not attempt to step into the role of the legislator. In 2005 SCMR 186 (supra) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:

Where a Court is required to determine whether a piece of delegated legislation is bad on the ground of arbitrary and excessive delegation, the Court must bear in mind the following well-settled principles:
(1) The essential legislative function consists of the determination of the legislative policy and its formulation as a binding rule of conduct and this cannot be delegated by the Legislature.
(2) The legislature must retain in its own hands the essential legislative functions and what can be delegated is the task of subordinate legislation necessary for implementing the purposes and objects of the Act.
(3) Where the legislative policy is enunciated with sufficient clearness or a standard is laid down, the Courts should not interfere.
(4) What guidance should be given and to what extent and whether guidance has been given in a particular case at all depends on a consideration of the provisions of a particular Act with which the Court has to deal, including its Preamble.
(5) The nature of the body to which delegation is made is also a guidance in the matter of delegation.
(6) What form the guidance should take, will depend upon the circumstances of each statute under consideration, and cannot be stated in general terms. In some cases guidance in broad general terms may be enough, in other cases more detailed guidance may be necessary.
We have examined the legal framework and the regulatory objectives and find that the legal framework under the Ordinance requires PEMRA to prevent undue concentration of ownership in a market. This is the given regulatory objective under Section 23(2) of the Ordinance. In order to achieve this objective the legislature delegated the authority to define the circumstances which could cause undue concentration in any market so that it can regulate ownership issues. By defining the circumstances PEMRA can set out a regulatory environment within which the legislators intent is effectuated. By requiring PEMRA to define the circumstances, the lawmaker delegated the authority of defining thresholds and standards on the basis of which it can police the electronic media. This function was delegated so that PEMRA could identify the factors which cause undue concentration. The legislature in its wisdom accepted that the circumstances would keep changing hence PEMRA must have the flexibility to change its controls or redefine the thresholds so that at all times it ensures that undue concentration is not caused in the relevant market. PEMRA defined the circumstances to mean a total restriction on vertical integration between broadcast media and distribution services which restriction we find to be based on the presumption that any vertical integration between broadcast media and distribution services will result in undue concentration of ownership. The Respondent PEMRA urged this point on the strength of the argument that diversity and plurality of information comes from a diverse number of media owners. The counsel for PEMRA also argued that in the Pakistani market the larger channels are all competitors and if they are allowed to distribute each other's content conflict of interest between media enterprises will arise. Hence the DTH license can be abused and exploited by the broadcast media license holders. In support of this argument it was stated that around the world media ownership rules and restrictions are included in the regulatory framework to restrict cross ownership and vertical integration. The thrust of the arguments made was that PEMRA as the regulator can impose a complete restriction not specifically prescribed in the law to achieve the purpose of the Ordinance. We are of the opinion that Section 23(2) of the Ordinance does not contemplate or mandate an ouster or restriction. The letter and spirit of the law is to increase the free flow of information by increasing participation of media enterprises. Section 23(2) of the Ordinance in furtherance of this purpose requires PEMRA to regulate ownership concentration. While creating a regulatory framework which is geared towards encouraging diversity and plurality the lawmaker did not oust any media enterprise from integrating with another media enterprise. It simply required ownership concentration to be regulated so that it does not become undue, meaning thereby that some element of concentration is permissible. In this regard we are also of the opinion that PEMRA has not carried out the legislative intent by defining or identifying the circumstances which push ownership concentration beyond a threshold to become unacceptable concentration of ownership. PEMRA has simply issued a blanket ouster in the Rules without setting any standards or thresholds on the basis of which it could measure, monitor or control concentration of media ownership. The Ordinance recognizes that a democratic electorate needs to be well informed in order to make rational and intelligent decisions. With the growth of the electronic media and the development of technology, media enterprises have mover towards cross ownership and vertical integration not only for better business prospects but also to reach a larger audience. Television stations are owned by newspapers owners because they have the expertise, the resources and the economic interest to enter in the realm of broadcast media. Even today there is no bar on newspaper owners having broadcast media licenses or distribution service licenses meaning that vertical integration between publication and broadcast or publication and distribution service is not considered to cause undue concentration of media ownership. However the restriction in Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Rules suggests that when broadcast media integrates with distribution services then any level of integration will result in undue ownership concentration. We are of the opinion this kind of justification does not reflect the legislative wisdom nor does it achieve the stated purpose of the Ordinance.

27. The delegated authority of PEMRA under Section 23(2) read with Section 39(2)(e) of the Ordinance was to strike a balance between appropriate levels of concentration by placing limits on ownership to preserve pluralism in information. A certain level of ownership concentration can be allowed if it enables media enterprises engaged in the electronic media to offer more and better services in the market. With the rapid developments in technology they are bound to be overlaps within the mediums and the services provided by media enterprises. Technology will cross over into all mediums and compel the electronic media to interact at different levels. By prohibiting vertical integration vide the impugned Rules PEMRA denies two specific media enterprises from becoming more efficient and effective in their job. It also means that both the prohibited media enterprises cannot vertically integrate to cut costs or improve efficiency, while other media enterprises can benefit from vertical integration. Consequently the effect of the impugned Rules is that by restricting two specific media enterprises from vertically integrating and allowing other media enterprises to vertically integrate undue concentration of media ownership is left unregulated because it is seen only in the context of integration between broadcast media and distribution services and not in the context of the relevant market. This understanding of the requirements of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance is totally illogical and is not in furtherance of the objectives or purpose of the law because regulating ownership concentration means regulating ownership of all media entities operating within the electronic media so that a few media owners do not end up with a larger share of the market. In our opinion the mandate of the law was to cover all media enterprises especially since the objective is to create an efficient market which will offer a wide range of programmes, news, information and entertainment having plurality in content.

28. Delegated authority is incidental to the statutory function and cannot run parallel to the legislative function. Section 23(2) of the Ordinance requires PEMRA to regulate the electronic media while maintaining diversity in content and plurality in information. Regulating the electronic media means to define the tools through which the objective of the law can be achieved. Given the fast pace at which the electronic media will grow and develop, the statutory intent is to give PEMRA the ability to regulate the changing landscape. While the realm for regulating is prescribed, PEMRA is to ensure that within the given domain, the regulatory objectives are achieved. This means that PEMRA is the implementer and enforcer of the legal mandate set out in the Ordinance. Its primary function is of regulating and not of devising a new legal landscape. As a frontline regulator PEMRA has to regulate the media market by imposing competition controls and ownership controls in the relevant market. It had to create effective safeguards to prevent vertical integration from resulting in undue concentration of media ownership. The material from international markets relied upon by PEMRA have prescribed different restrictions in their jurisdiction depending upon the characteristics of the market and the social and cultural needs of the people. Restrictions on dominance by and within the media market, restrictions on mergers and acquisitions, restriction on ownership levels. The material relied upon by the Respondents shows that the international markets have gone to great lengths to balance competing elements through laws and regulatory frameworks. Without determining the balancing requirements of the local market PEMRA has sought to rely upon the debates emerging in international markets which are dealing with concentration issues within their own systems as per their peculiar circumstances. The international literature relied upon does not conclude that vertical integration between broadcast and distribution means undue concentration of ownership. The jurisprudence and experiences from around the world reveal that restrictions, controls and safeguards are necessary and must be reviewed periodically to deal with the changes in the economic aims, technological advancement and public need. Periodical reviews and introspection is based on empirical data and evidence which identifies the concentration in media markets, its causes and possible solutions. For a market which has yet to launch the DTH technology PEMRA has assumed concentration issues based on experiences from around the world without any real time reference to its own market. Nothing was placed before us in support of its contention that if broadcasters are allowed to operate DTH license they will cause undue concentration of media ownership.

29. A vital aspect of the regulatory function was to apply the defined circumstances when granting a license for a particular market. Section 23(2) of the Ordinance specifically requires that undue concentration is not caused in any city, town, area or country, as a whole. This is because the control of media ownership is within a relevant media market which means that the relevant market, its trends and requirements have to be identified before the controls are put into place. Cross media interests have to be looked at on a case to case basis to ascertain whether ownership concentration is being caused in a relevant media market. Hence the nature of media services available in a given market and its ownership composition are necessary indicators for measuring undue concentration of media ownership. Without identifying the indicators and merely relying on the medium of business to conclude undue concentration within a relevant market in our opinion is totally flawed and against the mandate of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance. Plurality and diversity of content requires a free flow of information from as many divergent sources as possible. The diversity of owners would mean a diversity of viewpoints including integration of broadcast media license holders with distribution license holder which does not necessarily result in undue concentration of media ownership. PEMRA has repeatedly relied on the thought process developing in some parts of the world on the question of undue concentration of media ownership through cross ownership or vertical integration, however, they have not been able to show any example of any regulatory regime where broadcast media has been totally ousted from distribution services. Furthermore each media market will be controlled based on its own experiences and prevailing circumstances and the fact that there is a debate in some parts of the world does not legitimize the restriction placed by PEMRA.

30. Another important aspect of this case is the role of the regulator PEMRA. Regulators draw their authority from the legislation which creates them. The limits placed on the regulator are prescribed under the law. Section 23(2) of the Ordinance did not leave it open for PEMRA to set out a new regulatory policy but instead required PEMRA to work within the confines of the prescribed objectives. We have considered the lengthy arguments made before us by the counsel for PEMRA justifying the acts of PEMRA and the reasons for defining the circumstances to mean that broadcast media and distribution media cannot vertically integrate. We have already held that Section 23(2) of the Ordinance did not impose any prohibition or restriction upon the aggregation of interests that is on common ownership. It essentially promotes the participation of all media enterprises that is a necessary consequence of open access and fair competition. Preventing concentration from becoming undue does not suggest or mandate a restriction because it recognizes the fact that there will be some amount of concentration which if not crossed will not be considered as undue. The electronic media is a fast growing sector with regular technological advancements and a growing media market as its basic features. In these circumstances, PEMRA must have due regard for commercial viability and public interest. It must also understand the role technology plays and the need to remain responsive to new technological initiatives. Due to the continuous advancement in technology the hard lines between media enterprises have softened the divide and in fact today there are overlaps between media enterprises. An absolute restriction on vertical integration between broadcast media and distribution services will hamper technological advancement in these mediums especially since DTH technology will be launched in Pakistan for the first time and at this stage there is at best an apprehension that broadcast media may end up with a larger share of the media market. Therefore we find that PEMRA's response to controlling undue concentration has no nexus with the intent of the Ordinance. It has imposed a restriction which will not achieve the regulatory objective and in fact infringes on the rights of broadcast media and distribution service to participate and progress through vertical integration. Interestingly PEMRA has defended its actions by projecting the revenue the three DTH licenses will generate especially with foreign participation, as well as the potential jobs and opportunities it will create for the Country. In this regard, great emphasis was placed on the fact that foreign investors have shown interest in the auction for DTH license and their presence is of great significance for the media sector as well as the image of the Country. We find that these arguments are totally unrelated to the regulatory objectives given in Section 23(2) of the Ordinance and have no nexus with the stated purpose of the Ordinance. The presence of foreign investors and the quantity of revenue generation is not the primary objective for PEMRA. It has to achieve diversity and plurality through open access and fair competition allowing all stakeholders to participate in the bid for DTH license so that the viewers get diversity and plurality in content. It has to protect the public interest and meet the public demand because the public is the ultimate beneficiary of the DTH technology and all advancements in the electronic media. A consequence of auctioning the DTH license may lead to revenue generation and foreign participation but it certainly cannot be the overriding factor motivating PEMRA to launch the DTH technology. It also cannot justify the continuation of the restriction on broadcast media to operate a DTH license as PEMRA is obligated to ensure that the public interest is served through its decisions. We are of the opinion that PEMRA has failed to put into place a regulatory framework which would enable it to measure, monitor and regulate ownership concentration in the electronic media. In this case, Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Rules and Regulations 2.11 and 3.23 of the DTH Regulations do not serve the public interest by ousting broadcasting media from participating in the DTH license nor is there any reasonable nexus of the ouster with the intent of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance. In our opinion, PEMRA has abdicated from its functions as a regulator and instead transgressed into the domain of the legislature which is not permissible under the law.

31. PEMRA was not able to show the mode or manner in which it measures concentration nor could it explain the regulatory framework which balanced the advantages and disadvantages of vertical integration. To achieve its regulatory objective a detailed exercise should have been carried out identifying the standards and threshold where ownership concentration would be deemed to have become undue. Concentration can be measured through any number of factors including economic, geographic, or linguistic factors. It can be measured with a diversity index or a market share index and so on. Whatever be the method, PEMRA had to develop standards to measure concentration in the market. We find that this exercise was vital to effectuate the intent of the law because by not imposing any prohibition the Section permits vertical integration as it offers advantages which a media enterprise may want to take the benefit of. Vertical integration offers greater efficiency and enhanced coordination for the media enterprise. It reduces cost and provides the benefit of economies of scale to the business. In this way by prohibiting vertical integration between broadcast and distribution PEMRA has also denied the Petitioner of the advantages of vertical integration which in turn prejudices its right to do business. The legislature in its wisdom did not deem it necessary to deny vertical integration as it relates to the means and ways in which a lawful business can expand and grow and improve the quality of the services offered in the media market. Therefore we are of the opinion that there is no ambiguity in the requirements set out by the law and hence the boundaries within which the rule making framework was to operate. PEMRA was to frame rules to regulate the sector as per the arrangement prescribed under Section 23(2) of the Ordinance and not to impose restrictions which the law does not envision.

32. Therefore to our mind PEMRA has gone beyond the delegated authority and altered the legal structure by prohibiting broadcast media from integration with distribution services. If the intent of the law was to prohibit vertical integration it would not have required PEMRA to define the circumstances which create undue concentration of ownership. The legislature would have prescribed the restriction in the stated Section as it would have seen the wisdom in keeping broadcast media separate from distribution services. Where the rules and regulations go beyond the prescribed mandate the august Supreme Court of Pakistan has held in the case titled Zarai Taraqiati Bank Limited and others v. Said Rehman and others (2013 SCMR 642) that:

The "rules' and "regulations" framed under any Act are meant to regulate and limit the statutory authority. All statutory authorities or bodies derive their powers from statutes which create them and from the rules or regulations framed thereunder. Any order passed or action taken which is in derogation or in excess of their power can be assailed as ultra vires. Rules and regulations being forms of subordinate legislation do not have substantial difference as power to frame them is rooted in the statute. Statuary bodies are invariably authorized under the Act to make or adopt rules and regulations not inconsistent with the Act, with respect to such matters which fall within their lawful domain to carry out the purpose of the Act.

In the Suo Motu Case No.11 of 2011, in the matter of (Action taken on the news clipping regarding scandal. of billions of rupees of National Police Foundation Land) (PLD 2014 SC 389), the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:

Rulemaking body cannot frame rules in conflict with or in derogation of the substantive provisions of the law or statute, under which the rules are framed. Rules cannot go beyond the scope of the Act. No rule can be made which is inconsistent with the parent statute, whereas, no regulation can be framed which is inconsistent with the parent statute or the rules made thereunder and the provisions of these rules or regulations, as the case may be, to the extent of such inconsistency with the parent statute or rules shall be void and inoperative.

It was also held by the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in the case titled Mian Zaiuddin v. Punjab Local Government and others (1985 SCMR 365) that:
Rule framed under statute could not go beyond and overreach statute itself. To make implementation of statutory provision, consistent harmonious directly effect must be given to requirement of Rule.
In 2005 SCMR 186 (supra) the august Supreme Court of Pakistan held that:
If the rules framed under the statute are in excess of the provisions of the statute or are in contravention of or inconsistent with such provisions then those provisions must be regarded as ultra vires or the statute and cannot be given effect to.
It was further held in the aforesaid case that:
In the case of statutory rules the Court can always examine the question as to whether the same are inconsistent with the statute under which they are made.
The counsel for PEMRA argued that this Court cannot look into the wisdom of the policy decision of PEMRA with respect to permissible levels of concentration of market power as it is based on an appreciation of facts that pertain to the structure of the electronic media. However, we find that this argument of the learned Counsel is without any basis as this Court can examine whether PEMRA has exceeded its statutory mandate and formulated a policy which is against the authority delegated to it under the Ordinance.
33. In view of the aforesaid, while allowing this Petition, we find that Rules 13(3) and (4) of the Rules along with Regulations 2.11 and 3.23 of the DTH Regulations have gone beyond the authorized mandate of Section 23(2) of the Ordinance and are inconsistent with the intent of the Ordinance, hence declared to be without lawful authority of no legal effect and are hereby struck down. Needless to mention that the Rules and DTH Regulations shall be made as per the intent of the Ordinance and not in conflict with the Ordinance.

SHAHID KARIM, J.--- Shahid Karim, J
Section 23:
I have seen, in draft, the judgment to be delivered by Ayesha A. Malik, J, and agree with the conclusions drawn. I have added a note owing to the importance of the issue involved:

2. The challenge mounted by Independent Newspaper Corporation (Pvt.) Ltd. (hereinafter INC) is predicated on the cardinal principle vouched by respectable authority. It says that while construing a grant of delegated legislative power, the delegatee may not act beyond the scope of the primary legislation.

3. To begin with, in my opinion, the key words are 'In granting a license' used in subsection (2) of section 23 of PEMRA Ordinance, 2002. This presupposes that the Authority has been conferred a power to grant licenses and Rules 13(3) and (4) seem to have taken that power away at least in respect of broadcast licensees who wish to apply for distribution services. So this in my estimation is the first way in which the Rules travel beyond the primary law and, in the ultimate analysis, the most critical one to exercise a gravitational pull on the outcome that this Court conceives.

4. Section 23 is the primary source of power to regulate undue concentration of media ownership and it is tied up with the stage when the license is being granted. It reads thus:
23. Exclusion of monopolies.--(1) No person shall be entitled to the benefit of any monopoly or exclusivity in the matter of broadcasting or the establishment and operation of broadcast media or distribution service or in the supply to or purchase from, a national broadcaster of air time, programmes or advertising material and all existing agreements and contracts to the extent of conferring a monopoly or containing an exclusivity clause are, to the extent of exclusivity, hereby declared to be inoperative and of no legal effect.
(2) In granting a licence, the Authority shall ensure that open and fair competition is facilitated in the operation of more than one media enterprise in any given unit of area or subject and that undue concentration of media ownership is not created in any city, town or area and the country as a whole:
Provided that if a licensee owns, controls or operates more than one media enterprise, he shall not indulge in any practice which may impede fare competition and provision of level playing field.

5. The first duty of the Authority encapsulated in first part of section 23 (subsection 2) is to ensure that open and fair competition is facilitated in the operation of more than one 'media enterprise' in any given unit of area or subject. Media enterprise is defined to include both broadcast media and distribution services. The definition is couched in section 2 (1) of PEMRA Ordinance, 2002, to mean:
"media enterprise" means an enterprise concerned with the publication of a printed newspaper of a broadcast media or distribution service."

6. Section 23 merely gives expression to a form of anti-monopoly clause. It obliges the Authority to facilitate more media enterprises than one to operate in any given unit of area or subject. It has relation to section 18 and the categories of licenses granted under it. For instance, in granting 'license for distribution services, the law requires for more than one media enterprise' to be facilitated to operate in any given unit of area. Media enterprise, to reiterate, includes both broadcast and distribution and thus far the law permits and in fact encourages the participation of multiple media enterprises at the time of granting license.

7. The second part 'and that undue concentration of media ownership is not created in any city, town or area and the country as a whole,' is a limit on the power and duty of the Authority yet reaffirms the duty imposed by the first part by differing semantics. In my opinion, section 23 is all about undue concentration of media ownership. Thus subsection (2) has to be read as a whole and the obligation on the Authority to ensure open and fair competition to facilitate operation of more than one media enterprise is merely an attempt to rule out undue concentration of media ownership. If the Authority succeeded in ensuring open and fair competition, undue concentration of media ownership will wither away. The power to grant a license includes the power to deny it. Thus if a media enterprise is already operating in any given unit of area, a license to a new media enterprise may be refused on the ground that it will give rise to undue concentration of media ownership in that unit of area or subject. It is a fallacy to urge to read 'and' as disjunctive or conjunctive. It does not really matter as subsection (2) deals with one subject i.e. undue concentration of media ownership and the first and second parts, separated by the term 'and', are nuances of the same subject.

8. There are a myriad of situations that can be conjured up and which the Authority may confront while ensuring open and fair competition. A broadcast media or distribution service with financial muscle may seek to have complete sway over the field and thus the Authority must ensure that the smaller media enterprises are protected. This will entail a review in terms and conditions of license over time and at the time of granting a license.

9. What is meant by 'undue concentration of media ownership'? The term has not been defined and the legislature intends the meaning to be culled out by all persons tasked to construe it, from an entire reading of the Ordinance, 2002 and the Rules, 2009, cumulatively. But firstly, section 23 itself gives an insight into the concept. Undue concentration of media ownership must not be created in any city, town or area and the country as a whole. At first blush, it means that a person must not be allowed control or sway on different facets of electronic media in such a way that there is concentration of power of that person over any city, town or area, and the country as a whole. It will be seen that undue concentration of media ownership has been used in relation to geographical areas by the use of the words 'is not created in any city, town or area and the country as a whole.' What does it signify? Clearly that the Authority is obliged to ensure against undue concentration vis a vis geographical units and not in respect of vertical integration. It merely means that for any city, for example, different categories of licenses must not be issued to media enterprises which are directly or indirectly controlled or owned by the same set of directors or partners. This would lead to undue concentration of media ownership. This has been achieved in the United States by the issuance of 'chain broadcasting', regulations and licensing policies on multiple ownership of broadcast stations, amongst others. An elaboration of this concept can be gleaned from Rule 13(1) of the Pakistan Electronic Media Regulatory Authority Rules, 2009 (Rules, 2009). Rule 13(1) says:

13. Media ownership concentration and exclusion of monopolies.- (1) To ensure that fair competition is facilitated, media diversity and plurality are promoted in the society and undue concentration of media ownership is not created. Maximum number of licences that may be issued to a person or any of its directors or partners where such person is a company or firm, who is directly or indirectly, controlling, owning or operating more than one media enterprise, shall not exceed a total of four satellite TV, four FM Radio licences and two landing rights permissions.

10. The above rule is within the permissible limits of Section 23 and section 39(d) and (e) of PEMRA Ordinance, 2002 and defines the circumstances which constitute undue concentration of media ownership. At the heart of this determination is the urge to facilitate fair competition and to promote media diversity and plurality. Thus Rule 13(1) settles the maximum number of licenses that a person may be issued who operates more than one media enterprise. Rule 13(1) does not oust but limits the grant of licenses thereby ensuring against undue concentration of media ownership. It is fantastic indeed that while the Authority chose to regulate grant of licences for horizontal integration, it abdicates that power in its entirety in case of vertical integration.

11. But this does not mean at all that a licensee of broadcast media cannot apply for and be granted a license for distribution services. This would be legislating and not interpreting the law. This begs the question; what was there to stop the legislature from providing that the issuance of a license for distribution services to a licensee of broadcast media will constitute undue concentration of media ownership? The theme that permeates the law is media diversity, plurality and the need to enlarge the choice available to the people of Pakistan in the realm of media. This can legitimately be achieved by ensuring that concentration of media ownership does not occur for a particular geographical area so as to become undue. So what needs to be ensured is that the people of a city etc. and ultimately the country as a whole do not suffer on account of undue concentration of media ownership. The DTH license is still to be auctioned and it is well-neigh impossible to gauge whether issuing of a license to the INC will result in undue concentration of media ownership for a particular geographical area as also to judge beforehand that the INC (and the directors and partners controlling it) hold enough categories of different licensees in that area to be guilty of the vice of undue concentration of media ownership. This is all too presumptuous at this stage and it was certainly peremptory on the part of Authority to have completely ousted INC and others similarly placed.

12. PEMRA states that such an intention is clearly evident from a reading of section 23. We are afraid, such an intention is conspicuously missing from section 23 and this contention is indefensible.

13. What is the linchpin of the logic behind 'undue concentration of media ownership'? It is relatable to individual media enterprises and not to a whole category of electronic media. It would be anathema to the entire concept if all the media enterprises belonging to a category were debarred from applying for a license on the pretext that it would cause 'undue concentration of media ownership'. It would be utterly irrational and disproportionate and would run counter to the policy of the law. The policy of law is to weigh at the time of grant of license to a media enterprise whether by issuance of license thereby to that particular applicant, undue concentration of media ownership will not occur. Examples will easily abound where a broadcaster having a very small share in the market will not be guilty of undue concentration of Media ownership if issued a distribution license. The question is: 'why should that media enterprise be pre-judged and ousted from applying at all?'

14. The proviso to subsection (2) of section 23 lends actuality to the analysis. It puts paid to the argument of PEMRA that section 23 permits the prohibition brought out in Rules 13(3) and (4). The proviso enacts that:
Provided that if a licensee owns, controls or operates more than one media enterprise, he shall not indulge in any practice which may impede fair competition and provision of level playing field:"

15. Once again the ineluctable inference while construing the proviso is that there is no bar on a licensee to own, control or operate more than one media enterprise. PEMRA wants us to read the proviso in such a manner so as to hold that it applies to all licensees except licensees of broadcast media. This interpretation cannot be countenanced. It has been said that:
"Whatever temptations the statesmanship of policymaking might wisely suggest, construction must eschew interpolation and evisceration. The judge must not read in by way of creation."
Felix Frankfurter, Some reflections on the Reading of Statutes, 47 Colum. L. Rev. 527, 533 (1947).

16. This rule, known as the Omitted case Canon, has been elaborated upon in Reading Law. The Interpretation of Legal Texts by Antonin Scalia and Bryan A. Garner, in the following way:
"Nothing is to be added to what the text states or reasonably implies (casus omissus pro omisso habendus est). That is, matter not covered is to be treated as not covered."
The principle that a matter not covered is not covered is so obvious that it seems absurd to recite it. The judge should not presume that every statute answers every question, the answers to be discovered through interpretation. As the noted lawyer and statesman Elihu Root said of the judge: "It is not his function or within his power to enlarge or improve or change the law." Nor should the judge elaborate' unprovided-for exceptions to text; as Justice Blackmun noted while a circuit judge: "If the Congress had intended to provide additional exceptions, it would have done so in clear language."

17. As stated in the preamble, the Ordinance, 2002 is all about diversity and plurality and encourages participation of more media enterprises at the time of grant of license. This must, however, be counter balanced by guarding against undue concentration of media ownership. But the primary purpose of law is to take all measures for diversity and plurality. Undue concentration of media ownership is a limit and not the purpose and so must be construed as such. Rules 13(3) and (4) stultify the purpose of the law which emphasises and encourages participation of all eligible media enterprises at the time of grant of license.

18. Lord Bingham in his book 'The Rule of Law' said, 'Rules are forged in the furnace of everyday experience.' The Rules 13(3) and (4) on the contrary, are not at all forged in the furnace of everyday experience. PEMRA drew a distinction to exist between ex-ante ownership regulation and ex-post competition regulation. Rules 13(3) and (4) in its opinion, is an illustration of ex-ante ownership regulation. Thus, competition regulation and ownership regulation are two distinct forms of regulation. In his written brief, this was explained by Mr. Salman Akram Raja, Advocate, as follows:
"...Competition regulation is generally ex post and seeks to prohibit anti-competitive behaviour and punish entities that have indulged in such behaviour. It is accepted that competition regulation alone cannot achieve the diversity and plurality that is desirable in the media sector. Consequently, ownership restrictions are widely imposed so as to ensure diversity and remove the possibility of suppression of plurality and conflict of interest. Reference may kindly be made to the Articles placed at Sr. Nos. 3 and 4 in Paper Book-I as well as at Sr. No. 7 of Paper Book-III submitted by the Respondent PEMRA."

19. The above statement is generally true and acceptable. It is though difficult to accept the restrictions placed in Rules 13(3) and (4) to be caught by the above statement and a mere reflection of it. Ownership restriction can certainly be prescribed by PEMRA by way of 'defining the circumstances which would give rise to undue concentration of media ownership.' And this will then have to be weighed at the time of grant of license to an applicant whose application will be analysed on the touchstone of the circumstances so defined. No two applicants will have the same status and position nor will they all suffer from the same set of disabilities/grounds. Having defined the circumstances, it is inconceivable that PEMRA will consider all applicants through the same lens. The analyses will have to be ad hoc and on a case to case basis.

20. Section 23 is an embodiment of ex ante ownership regulation. But the whole argument of PEMRA runs counter to the scheme of section 23. The fulcrum of section 23 is the power of the Authority to grant a license and the right of a person to apply for it. While deciding to grant a license, the Authority will necessarily embark upon the exercise of ex ante ownership regulation. There is no denying that power to vest in the Authority and to base its decision upon empirical data to deny a license to an applicant on the ground that in so issuance of license, there shall be undue concentration of media ownership in any city, town or area. There is enough power that resides in the Authority at that stage to fulfill its goal of ex ante ownership regulation.

21. PEMRA agreed that the Ordinance, 2002 deals with two sets of potential applicants who may be 'denied a license.' The applicants we are concerned with are those that cause undue concentration of media ownership in terms of Section 23: According to PEMRA.
B) The Ordinance of 2002 deals with two sets of potential applicants who may be denied a license:
Firstly, applicants who suffer from any of the disabilities/ grounds for ineligibility specified in Section 25 of the PEMRA Ordinance, 2002. Four specific grounds of ineligibility are specified in the aforesaid Section 25. These grounds bar the grant of a license to a person suffering from any of the ineligibility specified therein, regardless of whether the grant of license to such a person would have any adverse consequences for either open and fair competition or undue concentration of media ownership.
Secondly, applicants who do not suffer from any of the disabilities specified in Section 25, but the grant of a licence to them is likely to damage competition and/or cause undue concentration of media ownership in terms of Section 23 of the Ordinance of 2002."

22. There can be no question of denial of a license if there is no application. For, a license can only be denied if a media enterprise or a person is permitted to apply. Sections 13(3) and (4) forecloses. all such applications and thus no question of denial of license arises.

23. This brings us to Section 39 from which flows the power to make rules. Section 39 reads as under:
"39. Power to make rules.- (1) The Authority may, with the approval of the Government, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Ordinance.
(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the fore-going power, such rules may be provided for all or any of the following matters, namely:-
a) to prescribe the forms for the licences for working, installing, operating, or dealing in transmission broadcast or distribution apparatus and the manner in which applications for the licence shall be granted;
b) to prescribe the terms and conditions of the licence including fee to be charged in connection with the issuance of licences and related matters;
c) to prescribe standards and measure for the establishment of broadcast media, stations, installation of broadcasting, distribution service or teleporting equipment, transmitters, receivers, boosters, converters, distributors and common antennae;
d) to prescribe terms and conditions for the broadcast media or distribution service operators who own, control or operate more than one media enterprise; and
e) to define the circumstances constituting undue concentration of media ownership and abuse of powers and anti-competitive practices by media companies.

24. The power of the Authority to make rules is to 'carry out the purposes of this Ordinance.' Thus, in the context of Section 23, the power can only be exercised to ensure that undue concentration of media ownership does not occur in issuing a license to an applicant. As a guideline, the Authority may, therefore, define those circumstances by clause (e) of subsection (2) of Section 39. This is the true construction on a combined reading of Section 23, Sections 39(1) and (2)(e). Since Section 23 obliges the Authority to ensure against undue concentration of media ownership in granting a license, the power to define circumstances cannot be used in a manner that has the effect of debarring a person from applying altogether. In my opinion, to define circumstances can only mean to lay down a set of parameters for the Authority to follow while considering an application for the grant of a license. It cannot be taken to mean, by any stretch of imagination, to empower the Authority to shut the door on a whole category of media enterprise.

Delegated Legislation:

25. The position regarding judicial review of delegated legislation (and enactment of secondary legislation hereby) is clear. The courts have the authority to review subordinate legislation if it is satisfied that in making it, the delegatee acted out with the legislative powers conferred upon it. In F. Hohman La Roche and Co v. Secretary of State for Trade and Industry [1975] AC 295, Lord Diplock elaborated the rule thus:

"In constitutional law a clear distinction can be drawn between an Act of Parliament and subordinate legislation, even though the latter is contained in an order made by statutory instrument approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament. Despite this indication that the majority of members of both Houses of the contemporary Parliament regard the order as being for the common weal, I entertain no doubt that the courts have jurisdiction to declare it to be invalid if they are satisfied that in making it the Minister who did so acted outwith the legislative powers conferred upon him by the previous Act of parliament under which the order is ultra vires by reason of its contents (patent defects) or by reason of defects in the procedure followed prior to its being made (latent defects)."

26. This point has been explained by Sir John Donaldson MR in RV Her Majesty's Treasury, Ex p Smedley [1985] 1 QB 651 (666-667) and by Lord Phillips in R (Asif Javed) v. Secretary of State for Home Department [2001] EWCA Civ 789. In a recent judgment of the United Kingdom Supreme Court, Bank Mellat v. Her Majesty's Treasury [2013] UK SC 39, Lord Sumption put the rule as follows:

"The position in relation to secondary legislation is necessarily different, because a statutory instrument is made under powers conferred by statute. These powers are accordingly subject to whatever express or implied limitations or conditions can be derived from the parent Act as a matter of construction. In R v Electricity Commissioners Ex p London Electricity Joint Committee Company (1920) Limited [1924] 1 KB 171, 208, Lord Atkin observed at a very early stage in the development of public law that he knew of "no authority which compels me to hold that a proceeding cannot be a judicial proceeding subject to prohibition, or certiorari because it is subject to confirmation or approval, even where the approval has to be that of the Houses of Parliament."It has sometimes been suggested that this applies only where the ground of objection to a statutory instrument is that it is wholly outside the power conferred by the Act. This was the view expressed by Lord Jauncey and affirmed by the Inner House in City of Endinburgh District Council v Secretary of State for Scotland 1985 SC 261. He considered that where Parliament had reserved the right to consider the merits (as opposed to the vires) of a statutory instrument, was not open to the courts to review their rationality or their procedural fairness."

27. He went on to hold that this distinction was not sustainable.

28. Let us see the practical effect of the argument that Mr. Salman Akram Raja, Advocate invites this Court to accept. Quite simply, it will make Section 23 redundant. Since the broadcast media has been debarred on the threshold, only those persons with no media ownership at all will apply. Since those persons have little or no prior media ownership, no question regarding undue concentration of media ownership is likely to arise. In the context of the instant case, Section 23 will not engaged. Can this be the intention of the legislature and the policy of law? Certainly not! By rules, therefore, a provision of the primary 'legislation cannot be rendered dormant and redundant.

29. PEMRA invokes to its aid the Consultation Paper on issue relating to Media Ownership by the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India, on February 15, 2013. At first blush, this paper is peculiar to India and the Rules which govern such matters. It is otiose to invoke the contents of this Consultation paper to support PEMRA's case. The TRAI in India does not prohibit or block the broadcast media from applying for a distribution service license. There are safeguards and controls put in place to regulate media ownership. The Consultation paper, too, does not suggest that the broadcasters be ousted completely by the Rules. It merely suggests 'controls' to be put in place for 'Vertical Integration'. We do not find it to be relevant at all. To our mind, the only relevance that the study had was to leave us wondering why such a study was not carried out by PEMRA before enacting Rules 13(3) and (4). It is certainly not PEMRA's case that the study formed the basis of its decision which culminated in Rules 13(3) and (4), for the Consultation Paper of TRAI recommends no such thing.

30. FCC v National Citizens Comm. For Broadcasting, 436 U.S. 775 (1978) was a paradigm case and PEMRA heavily relied upon it. The backdrop of the precedent was that "After a lengthy rulemaking proceeding the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) adopted regulations prospectively barring the initial licensing or the transfer of newspaper-broadcast combinations where there is common ownership of a radio or television broadcast station and a daily newspaper located in the same community." It was held by the U.S Supreme Court that:
"Diversification of ownership has not been the sole consideration though relevant to the public interest, however, the Commission's other, and sometimes conflicting, goal has been to ensure "the best practicable service to the public." Ld., at 394. To achieve this goal, the Commission has weighed factors such as the anticipated contribution of the owner to station operations, the proposed program service, and the past broadcast record of the applicant - in addition to diversification of ownership- in making initial comparative licensing decisions. See id., at 395-400. Moreover, the Commission has given considerable weight to a policy of avoiding undue disruption of existing service. As a result, newspaper owners in many instances have been able to acquire broadcast licenses for stations serving the same communities as their newspapers, and the Commission has repeatedly renewed such licenses on findings that continuation of the service offered by the common owner would serve the public interest."

31. Thus it was recognized that there was no obligation that diversification should be given controlling weight in all circumstances and in some cases controlling weight be given to the goal of achieving the best practicable service to the public. The Rules related to multiple ownership. In FCC, the Court alluded to the Commission's licensing policies which had long acted on the theory of diversification of mass media ownership service viewpoints, as well as by preventing undue concentration of economic power. More importantly, that was to be part of the process at the time of grant of license and in making. initial comparative licensing decisions. The problem was to be dealt with on an ad hoc basis and to see whether it would serve public interest or not. The overwhelming opinion was that if public interest was the controlling or overriding factor then it was best to leave the decision to be made on an ad hoc basis and not by rule-making which completely takes away the power to weigh public interest. Implicit in section 23 is the element of public interest which permeates it. Considerations at the time of grant of license and its renewal may vary considerably on the touchstone of public interest. This may be illustrated by reference to the Commission's policy statement concerning comparative hearings involving regular renewal applications (at footnote 5) and the following observations:
"Citing considerations of predictability and stability, the statement adopted the policy that, where an incumbent's program service "has been substantially attuned to meeting the needs and interests of its area," the incumbent would be granted an automatic preference over any new applicant without consideration of other factors - including diversification of ownership - that are taken into account in initial licensing decisions."
"The court agreed with the Commission, however, that "incumbent licensees should be judged primarily on their records of past performance." Id., at 44, 447 F.2d, at 1213. The court stated further that "superior performance [by an incumbent] should be a plus of major significance in renewal Page 783 proceedings." Ibid. (emphasis in original). After the instant regulations were promulgated, the Commission adopted a new policy statement in response to the Citizens Communications decisions, returning to a case-by-case approach in which all factors would be considered, but in which the central factor would still be the past performance of the incumbent."

32. Thus a distinction was drawn between the initial and renewal licensing decisions. This assumes significance in the context of vertical integration and a decision on granting distribution license. Would it not be proper to consider the application of an incumbent having a broadcast license and to refuse or grant a license primarily on its record of past performance? This will serve the public interest and the element of diversification of ownership can also be considered alongside other considerations. This will make the decision broad-based as also comport with the tenor and purpose of section 23. Particularly poignant, from our point of view, are the telling observations regarding experience and "long record of service" in public interest of the incumbents:

"In the instant proceeding, the commission specifically noted that the existing newspaper-broadcast cross-owners as a group had a "long record of service" in the public interest; many were pioneers in the broadcasting industry and had established and continued "traditions of service" from the outset. Order, at 1078. Notwithstanding the Commission's diversification policy, all were granted initial licenses upon finding that the public interest would be served thereby, and those that had been in existence for more than three years had also had their licenses renewed on the ground that the public interest would be furthered. The Commission noted, moreover, that its own study of existing co-located newspaper-television combinations showed that in terms of percentage of time devoted to several categories of local programming, these stations had displayed" an undramatic but nonetheless statistically significant superiority" over other television stations. Id., at 1078 n. 26. An across-the-board divestiture requirement would result in loss of the services of these superior licenses, and - whether divestiture caused actual losses to existing owners, or just denial of reasonably anticipated gains- the result would be that future licensees would be discouraged from investing the resources necessary to produce quality service."

"At the same time, there was no guarantee that the licensees who replaced the existing cross-owners would be able to provide the same level of service or demonstrate the same long-term commitment to broadcasting. And even if new owners were able in the long run to provide similar or better service, the Commission found that divestiture would cause serious disruption in the transition period. Thus, the Commission observed that new owners "would lack the long knowledge of the community and would have to begin raw," and-because of high interest rates - might not be able to obtain sufficient working capital to maintain the quality of local programming."

33. Thus the holding in FCC, on the contrary, bolsters the case-for declaring ultra vires the provisions of Rules 13(3) and (4).

Constitutional challenge:

34. The INC argued that the Rules 13(3) and (4) impinge upon their rights enshrined in Articles 18, 19 and 19A of the Constitution. In view of our holding that the Rules are out with the authority conferred on PEMRA by the Ordinance, 2002, we do not feel inclined to weigh and determine the constitutional aspects of the matter. This is based on the entrenched principle of judicial restraint. Brandeis, J. in Ashwander v Tennessee Valley Auth. 297 US 288, 347 (1936), laid the Rule thus:

"If a case can be decided on either of two grounds, one involving a constitutional question, the other a question of statutory construction or general law, the Court will decide only the latter."

35. Also in United States ex rel. Attorney Gen. v. Delaware and Hudson Co., 213 U.S. 366 (1909), White, J. held that:
"Where a statute is susceptible of two constructions, by one of which grave and doubtful constitutional questions arise and by the other of which such questions are avoided, our duty is to adopt the latter."

Javed Saleem for Applicants.

ORDER

This is a Reference under Section 196 of the Customs Act, 1969 (the "Act").
2. Following question of law is proposed for our opinion, which is asserted to have arisen out of judgment dated 22.11.2016 of the Customs Appellate Tribunal Bench-II, Lahore (the "Appellate Bench"):

QUESTION OF LAW

Whether the learned Tribunal acted in violation of its own orders dated 16.08.2016, whereunder, the collector of Customs, Multan was directed "to constitute a committee under the auspices of the relevant Deputy Collector and the said committee shall conduct a detailed re-examination of the impugned vehicle rims with regards to their size, condition and make/origin and a report thereof shall be submitted before this tribunal...." But the committee merely recorded its "conclusion by consensus" to the effect that "The examined consignment is comprising of totally old and used wheel rims of different sizes 12, 13, 14 and 15 without packing and without marking of the country origin". The said report of the committee could not be taken as "a detailed re-examination" in the light of the Tribunal's order dated dated 16.08.2016 but still the learned Tribunal relied, upon the said report in the impugned judgment?

3. The learned Appellate Bench has rightly observed in para-graph 11 of the impugned judgment that there is an admission on the part of the Applicants to have the smuggled goods as the learned counsel for the Applicants requested for the release of impugned rims against payment of duties and taxed along with some suitable fine but on the other hand the learned counsel for the Respondents objected to the release on the context that vehicle rims fall within the ambit of smuggled goods hence, their release would be derogatory of S.R.O. 499(I)/2009 dated 13th of June 2009. We agree with the findings of the learned Appellate Bench which in the impugned judgment in paragraph 18 has observed that the transport vehicle cannot be confiscated as a strict and necessary consequence of smuggled goods, in absence of any evidence of involvement of the owner or driver thereof in the impugned offence, consequently outright confiscation of impugned trailer in the instant case tantamount to travesty of justice. It was further observed that the order of the adjudicating authority with regards to outright confiscation of the impugned vehicular rims in terms of Section 156(1)(89) is upheld. However, the impugned vehicle/trailer carrying registration No.TLF-300 is ordered to be released unconditionally to its lawful owner.

4. We have heard that learned counsel for the Applicants and find that the question of law as argued by the Applicants does not arise in this case as the interpretation given by the Appellate Tribunal is clearly in accordance with law. Reliance in this regard is placed on the case titled Messrs Pak Suzuki Motor Company Limited, Karachi v. Collector of Customs Appraisement Collectorate, Custom House, Karachi (2015 PTD 2600) in which it was held as follows:--

"We may observe that while exercising jurisdiction in terms of section 196 of the Customs Act, 1969 the Courts are required to examine only question of law, which may arise from the order passed by Customs, Excise and Sales Tax Appellate Tribunal, whereas, the question of fact cannot be examined under its reference jurisdiction. Reference in this regard can be made to the case of Gold Trade Impex v. Appellate Tribunal of Customs, Excise and Sales Tax, Excise and Sales Tax reported in 2012 PTD 377, wherein it has been held as under:--

"18. Before giving our opinion on the common questions proposed through instant reference applications, we may observe that in terms of section 196(1) of the Customs Act, 1969 and in view of the judgments of superior Courts on the subject, only substantial questions of law, arising out of the order of the Tribunal, can be referred for opinion of this Court through reference application whereas questions of disputed facts cannot be examined by this Court under reference jurisdiction "A point of law" could not be equated with expression "question of law", whereas a question of law referred for opinion of this Court in real scene must be a disputed or disputable question of law. We may further observe that the questions of law referred for opinion by this Court must be formulated in such a manner that the reply to such question referred to this court may be either in affirmative or negative and it should normally settle a pattern of guidance both for the Revenue as well as the assessee. Factual, controversies should not be allowed to be converted into legal issues only by employing legal language in such a manner which is usual to the forming of such questions. References in this regard can be made to the case of Commissioner of Income Tax v. Messrs Immion International, Lahore 2001 PTD 900 and Japan Storage Battery Limited v. Commissioner Income Tax 2003 PTD 2849. Further reliance can be made to the cases reported as Collector of Customs, Port Muhammad Bin Qasim, Karachi v. Kaghan Ghee Mills (Pvt.) Ltd. reported in 2008 SCMR 1538 and Collector of Customs v. Qasim International Container Terminal (Pak.) Ltd. reported in 2013 PTD 392 (SHC)."

5. Under the circumstances, we decline to exercise our jurisdiction. Reference application is decided against the Applicants.

6. Office shall send a copy of this order under seal of the Court to the Appellate Tribunal as per Section 196(5) of the Act.

4. This is a Reference under Section 133 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001.

5. Following question of law is proposed for our opinion, which is asserted to have arisen out of order dated 12.12.2006 passed by the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal Lahore Bench, Lahore ("Appellate Tribunal"):--

"Whether on the facts and circumstances of the case the term "Industrial Undertaking" as used in Rules 5A, 5B and 5C of the Third Schedule to the RO, 1979 includes an "AOP"?

6. The impugned order finds that Rule 5B of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979 ("Ordinance") is applicable to industrial undertakings. Therefore since the Respondent is an industrial undertaking, the Assessing Officer was not justified to hold that the facility could not be availed by the Respondent. With respect to Rule 5C of the Ordinance, the impugned order finds that the benefit is available to only those industrial undertakings as referred to in Rule 5A of the Ordinance. Rule 5A is applicable only to the industrial undertakings owned and managed by a company. Since the Respondent was not a limited company, therefore, it was not entitled to the benefit of Rule 5C of the Ordinance.

7. We have heard the learned counsel for the Applicant and find that the question of law as argued by the Applicant does not arise in this case as the interpretation given by the Appellate Tribunal is clearly in accordance with law.

8. Under the circumstances, we decline to exercise our jurisdiction. Reference application is decided against the Applicant Department.

ORDER

This is a Reference under Section 133 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance").

"Whether on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the learned Appellate Tribunal has misdirected itself in upholding the addition under sections 21(c) and 21(m) of the Ordinance, by ignoring firstly that the tax payer/petitioner enjoys special tax year, secondly that the accounts are maintained on accrual basis as required under section 32 of the Income Tax Ordinance and thirdly that the statements furnished under section 149 record tax deduction on actual payment and financial year basis?"

3. The basic facts of the case are that the accounts of the Applicant were subject to audit, after which a show-cause notice was issued to the Applicant for amendment in the assessment. The Applicant contested the demand made after amending the assessment order and the Deputy Commissioner Inland Revenue (Audit), Lahore vide order dated 28.1.2013 dismissed the objections of the Applicant and assessed the total tax payable. Against this order, the Applicant filed an appeal before the Commissioner Inland Revenue (Appeals), Lahore who dismissed the appeal of the Applicant vide order dated 18.11.2014 on the ground that the Applicant did not produce any documentary evidence in support of its contentions. The Applicant filed an appeal before the Tribunal which also dismissed the appeal of the Applicant vide order dated 23.5.2016 for the same reasons.

4. The grievance of the Applicant is that there was a differential on the tax paid with reference to the salary and wages. The differential was explained with reference to the special tax year enjoyed by the Applicant and that the Applicant works on accrual basis under Section 32 of the Ordinance. This was clearly reflected in the statement filed by the Applicant under section 149 of the Ordinance where all deductions were evidenced. Therefore there was a plausible reason explaining the tax differential. Learned counsel for the Applicant has essentially stressed on the fact that both these points have not been duly considered by the Respondents.

5. On behalf of the Respondents it was argued that the matter in issue is factual requiring appraisement of evidence. The Applicant was unable to justify its claim on the basis of the reasons evidenced before this Court. Therefore the Applicant is not entitled to the relief claimed.

6. We have heard the learned counsel at length and gone through the record and find that not only were both grounds agitated repeatedly before all forums but they were considered in all the orders. We also note that the Applicant could not justify the differential in the salaries and wages on the basis of the special calendar year and so far as the argument that it works on actual basis it is not relevant for the purposes of salaries and wages. Therefore we are of the opinion that no question of law is made out.

7. Under the circumstances, we decline to exercise our jurisdiction. Reference application is decided against the Applicant.

Javed Athar for Applicant.

This is a Reference under Section 196 of the Customs Act, 1969 (the "Act").

2. Following question of law is proposed for our opinion, which is asserted to have arisen out of order dated 06.09.2016 of the Customs Appellate Tribunal Bench-II, Lahore (the "Appellate Bench"):--

QUESTION OF LAW

Whether in the, facts and under circumstances of case, the learned Customs Appellate Tribunal was justified to hold that substantive right of the respondents to claim refund of the recovered/ retained money by the state flows automatically as an absolute right whereas the application filed by the respondent for issuance of refund was barred by time limitation by 05 years, 01 month and 28 days?

3. Brief facts of the case are that the Respondent imported a consignment from Malaysia and filed G.D. dated 20.05.2007 declaring the 'goods as Paper Board valuing 11780 US $. Representative samples were sent to the Lahore Dry Port Laboratory for test in which variations were found. A show-cause notice was issued to the Respondent for recovery of Rs.13,60,025/- along with sales tax etc. for mis-declaration. After adjudicating proceedings Order-in-Original was passed and the goods were put to auction by the Custom Authorities. Feeling aggrieved thereby the Respondent filed writ petition before this Court which issued restraining order dated 13.04.2010 despite that the goods were delivered to the bidder vide delivery Order dated 10.04.2010. The Respondent then filed claim of refund of the sale proceeds vide application dated 08.06.2015 which was dismissed due to barred by time and appeal thereagainst was also dismissed. The Respondent then filed an appeal before

4. Arguments heard record perused.

5. We agree with the findings of the learned Appellate Bench which in the impugned order in paragraph 16 has observed that subsection (1) of Section 33 of the Act creates an exception with regards to customs duties or charges inadvertently paid or over paid while keeping a statutory silence over the other species of refunds. It was further observed that in case the Appellant is denied refund, the retention of illegally retained money by the State would tantamount to violation of the constitutional mandate enshrined under Article 77 of The Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973, thus Appellant's right to refund cannot be diluted or affected by any plea such as the application of objects of limitation envisaged under Section 33 of the Act.

6. The Honourable Supreme Court in Pfizer Laboratories v. Federation of Pakistan, (PLD 1998 Supreme Court 64) has held that if one party under a mistake whether of fact or law paid some money to another party (which includes a Government Department) which was not due by law or contract or otherwise, that must be repaid in view of section 72, Contract Act, 1872. If, however, the customs duty or any other levy was realized and its realization was outside the Statutory Authority, the provision providing limitation of six months was not attracted.

7. We have heard that learned counsel for the Appellant and find that the question of law as argued by the Applicant does not arise in this case as the interpretation given by the Appellate Tribunal is clearly in accordance with law and the judgment of the Pfizer case supra.

8. Under the circumstances, we decline to exercise our jurisdiction. Reference application is decided against the Applicant Department.

9. Office shall send a copy of this order under seal of the Court to the Appellate Tribunal as required under the law.

KMZ/C-4/L Order accordingly.

Constitution of Pakistan---

----Art. 199---Constitutional jurisdiction of High Court---Scope---Show-cause notice---Petitioner had impugned the order whereby his Constitutional petition against show-cause notice issued by authorities was dismissed---Validity---No adverse order had been passed against the petitioner and the petitioner should have filed reply and legal objections to the show-cause notice, which would be decided by the authorities---Apprehension that under garb of show-case notice, coercive action would be taken against the petitioner was nothing but an apprehension and High Court in its Constitutional jurisdiction did not act upon mere apprehension---Show-cause notice was just a notice and no substantive right had been infringed---Intra-court appeal of petitioner was dismissed, in circumstances.

Deputy Commissioner of Income Tax/Wealth Tax, Faisalabad and others v. Messrs Punjab Beverage Company (Pvt.) Ltd. 2007 PTD 1347 rel.
Basharat Ali Janjua for Petitioner.

ORDER

Through this ICA, the Appellant has impugned order dated 19.1.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.1521/2017.

2. The basic grievance of the Appellant is that show-cause notice was issued to the Appellant on 19.5.2016 which show cause notice as per the arguments of the learned counsel was illegal and could not be issued.

3. At the very outset, learned counsel was confronted with the fact that it is just a show cause notice in which the Appellant was asked to submit his reply and relevant documents. Learned counsel argued that the reply and relevant documents have been submitted, however the matter is still pending.

4. Under the circumstances at this stage no adverse order has been passed against the Appellant. The Appellant should file his reply and any legal objection that he may have can be decided by the Respondents. The Appellant apprehends that under the garb of show cause notice, the Respondents will take coercive action against the Appellant. This is nothing but an apprehension by the Appellant and this Court in constitutional jurisdiction does not act upon mere apprehension. Furthermore it is just a notice and no substantive right is being infringed. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has held in the case titled Deputy Commissioner of Income Tax/Wealth Tax, Faisalabad and others v. Messrs Punjab Beverage Company (Pvt.) Ltd. (2007 PTD 1347) that tendency of by-passing the remedy provided under law, and resort to Constitutional jurisdiction of High Court was deprecated. In view of the contents of the notice the Department only contemplates to take action against them. The petitioner instead of rushing to the High Court and consuming sufficient time should have submitted reply before invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court. We have held in the judgment that such practice is to be deprecated because if merely on the basis of show-cause notice proceedings are started then in such position department would never be in a position to proceed with the cases particularly the recovery of revenue etc. Thus keeping in view the circumstances of the case we are of the opinion that respondent had wrongly availed remedy under Article 199 of the Constitution.

5. Under the circumstances, the instant appeal is dismissed. The impugned order dated 19.1.2017 passed by the learned Single Judge is maintained.

Punjab Local Government Act (XVIII of 2013)---

----Ss. 87, 2(ss), 115 & 141---Punjab Local Government (Commercialization) Rules, 2004, R.5(2)---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 140A---Local Government---Functions of Metropolitan and Municipal Corporations---Local Government Taxation---"Public place", definition of---Setback requirements for the roads selected for commercialization---Regulation of parking fees by Local City District Government through the local Parking Company established by City District Government---Petitioners, who were private contractors running various parking stands within or around commercial buildings, inter alia, impugned notification issued by Local City District Government, whereby parking fee rates to be charged by petitioners were notified and fixed---Contention of the petitioners was that being private contractors, they could not be regulated by the Local City District Government or its Parking Company---Validity---"Public place" was defined under S. 2(ss) of the Punjab Local Government Act , 2013 to mean any building, premises or place to which the public had access and said definition clarified that the same would include a private place to which the public had regular and continuous access---Any place where the public would have a right of access on a regular and continuous basis fell within the meaning of "public place", hence parking in public places fell within the scope of the Local City District Government and its Parking Company---Private parking-stand operating in a public place was bound to collect parking rates notified by the City District Government and would be regulated by the Local City District Government Parking Company, since it controlled and monitored parking at public places---All parking stands, in the present case, were located in public places as they were either shopping malls, business centers or hospitals and such areas which were accessed by the public, regularly on a daily basis within which the facility of parking must be provided, therefore the argument that the petitioners were private contractors operating parking spaces within private premises was factually and legally incorrect---Test as per the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 was whether the parking space fell within the meaning of a "public place"---Punjab Local Government (Commercialization) Rules, 2004, provided that building owners were required to provide proper provision for parking within the building premises, and the "setback area" had been surrendered in favour of the City District Government for such purpose and thus so far as the setback area was concerned: the same fell within the regulatory control of the Local City District Government---High Court observed that moving forward local City District Government established Parking Company shall devise a parking policy and plan parking spaces within the city, which policy must be robust and was not reactive in nature, but catered to the requirement of the city and furthermore, that the same should change and evolve with changing patterns in the usage of private and public vehicles and would consider the traffic issues; and furthermore, that the Parking Company shall work in close liaison with the traffic police so that parking spaces had the least impact on the flow of traffic---Constitutional petitions were disposed of, accordingly.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---This single judgment decides upon the issues raised in the Writ Petitions detailed in Schedule "A" appended with this judgment as common question of law and facts are involved in these petitions.

2. The basic and common issue in all these petitions pertains to parking stands within the City of Lahore. The Petitioners are private contractors who run parking stands within or around commercial buildings and their case is that they cannot be regulated by the City District Government, Respondent No.1 or by the Lahore Parking Company, Respondent No.8.

Facts

3. The Petitioners before the Court are all contractors, who have been contracted to run a parking stand within private premises. The parking stands are located in commercial buildings such as Pace Mall, Hafeez Centre, Siddique Trade Centre, Chen One as well as Hospitals like Surgimed. The case of the Petitioners is that they manage the parking stands within private premises, hence they are not obligated to pay the parking fee levied by the City District Government.

4. The issue is of immense importance and in the interest of the public at large. There is a large increase in the number of cars and motorbikes and a shortage of parking spaces be it public or private, within the city. Also parking is not properly regulated hence the problem of availability of parking, wrong parking and encroachments have multifolded.

The Arguments

5. The Petitioners are aggrieved by the notification dated 02.04.2014 issued by the City District Government, Lahore wherein they have notified the parking fee rates to be charged at the notified places. The case of the Petitioners is that they run private parking stands in private premises and therefore, cannot be regulated by the City District Government or Lahore Parking Company ("LPC"). It is also their case that the revised rates which have been fixed by the City District Government are not applicable to them. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the Petitioners are all contractor, who have been given parking contracts in private areas. They have agreed upon an annual amount for the parking area they manage and are responsible for managing the parking stands and providing the required facilities within the parking stands. Therefore, the rates fixed by the City District Government are not applicable to the Petitioners. Hence they have filed the instant petitions.

6. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the City District Government. On behalf of the City District Government, it is argued that parking falls within the jurisdiction of City District Government under Section 115 of the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 ("Act"). It is further argued that the owners of the buildings are required to maintain mandatory parking space for the public. Further they provided affidavits to the effect that the setback area is surrendered in favour of the Tehsil Municipal Administration, Town Municipal Administration or City District Government, as the case may be, for the purposes of regulating the said space under the notification dated 02.10.2012. Learned counsel further argued that the rates are fixed for the benefit of public at large, hence all contractors whether they are running a private parking stand/place or public parking stand are required to apply the rates. He explained that parking is a serious issue in the metropolis and requires regulation. It is their case that the City District Government is fully empowered under the Ordinance to regulate parking and fix its rates.

7. Report and parawise comments on behalf of LPC have also been filed. It is their case that LPC is a public limited company established under the Companies Ordinance, 1984 wholly owned by the City District Government, Lahore. The basic purpose for establishing the company is to provide comprehensive management and operations of parking facilities in order to resolve parking problems in the city of Lahore and to ensure that parking arrangements are made available to the public for their benefit. It is also their case that they can collect the parking fee fixed by the City District Government and utilize amounts to improve parking in Lahore. It is their case that since they are a regulatory body, they are required to ensure that parking facilities are available to the public at large and to regulate all parking spaces whether public or private.

8. A report was called for from Chief Traffic Police Officer, Lahore on 03.06.2015. In terms of the report filed on 13.06.2015 it was pointed out that one of the core issues within the City of Lahore is of wrong parking and encroachment in pursuance thereof. The traffic police has taken action against wrong parking by issuing tickets and taking action against encroachers. However, with the unprecedented growth of motor vehicles in the Provincial Capital there is a lot to be done to monitor and supervise parking. In this regard as per the report, certain recommendations have been provided for matters which fall within the domain of the Traffic Police. However, the recommendations do not relate to the authority of the City District

Government to fix parking fee for parking stands. The report highlights the lack of coordination with the Traffic Police while earmarking parking spaces. Consequently wrong allocation of space as parking stands is a major factor contributing to heavy traffic in certain areas.

The Law

9. The basic issue involved in these Petitions is with respect to the powers of City District Government to regulate parking stands established within private premises. The relevant law on the subject is as follows:-

Section 87 of the Act

87. Functions of Metropolitan and Municipal Corporations.-(1) The Metropolitan Corporation and a Municipal Corporation shall-

(a) approve spatial plans, master plans, zoning, land use plans, including classification and reclassification of land, environment control, urban design, urban renewal and ecological balances;

(2) The Metropolitan Corporation and a Municipal Corporation may entrust any of its functions to a person, an authority, agency or company through a contractual arrangement, on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed.

Item 99 of Eighth Schedule (Section 148) of the Act:

(2) All local government may provide for parking motors on such public places as may be determined by it.

Section 148 of the Act. Notwithstanding any specific provision of this Act, a local government shall perform its function conferred by or under this Act and exercise such powers and follow such procedure as are enumerated in Eighth Schedule.

Section 115. Taxes to be levied.-(1) Subject to this Act, a local government may, by notification in the official Gazette, levy and tax, fee, rate, rent, toll, charge or surcharge specified in Third Schedule.
(2) The Government shall vet the tax proposal prior to the approval of the tax by the local government in order to ensure that the proposal is reasonable and in accordance with law.
(3) The Government shall vet the tax proposal within thirty days from the date of receipt of the proposal failing which it shall be deemed to have been vetted by the Government.
(4) A local government shall not levy a tax without previous publication of the tax proposal and inviting and hearing public objections.
(5) A local government may, subject to provision of subsection (1) increase, reduce, suspend, abolish or exempt any tax.

The Legal Frame Work

10. The power of the Local Government is provided for under Article 140-A of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973, which is reproduced below:-
"140A. (1) Each Province shall, by law, establish a local government system and devolve political, administrative and financial responsibility and authority to the elected representatives of the local governments.
(2) Election to the local government shall be held by the Election Commission of Pakistan."
In terms thereof, the local government is the competent constitutional system of government to provide for the effective delivery of services, including parking and traffic planning as provided under Section 87 of the Act. Over the years urban growth and development has moved at a fast pace due to the changed occupational pattern within communities. Resultantly, urbanization and urban population growth required planning and regulation at the local level so that citizens are facilitated and enjoy quality living. Parking is an essential component of the transportation system and with a rise in the number of vehicles it is necessary to have a planned parking policy which aims to increase the capacity of public transport, reduce traffic levels especially at specified times of the day when traffic congestion is at its peak and finally encourage and develop the use of different modes of transportation. In this regard, public transport, traffic management and parking policy are interlinked and may serve the wider environment, social and economic objectives. Section 87 specifically provides that the metropolitan and municipal corporation shall make rules to regulate traffic and roads, to plan traffic and all related matters such as traffic signals, sign on the roads and parking places. Therefore, parking falls squarely within the ambit of the City District Government, Lahore.

11. The City District Government is also empowered to levy and revise the rate of parking fee. Therefore, not only it can allocate areas for parking purposes but it can also levy parking fees. Section 115 of the Act empowers a Local Government to impose taxes and fees specified in the third schedule. The third schedule Part-1 (11) provides for the power to levy parking fee. Therefore, the competent authority to levy parking fee is the City District Government.

12. Section 141 of the Act allows for the making of a legal entity to act as an agent of the Local Government for performance of any of its functions. In pursuance thereof the LPC Respondent No.8 was established in the year 2012 by the City District Government. As per the Memorandum of Association of the Company, its main objective is the development of parking for the benefit of people living within the territorial limits of Lahore City and to provide sustainable, efficient and affordable parking services for the citizens of Lahore. Essentially it is required to provide facilities which improve the existing parking system and related facilities. They have also been authorized to collect parking fees through tickets and other means so as to utilize the fees to improve parking spaces and facilities. In this regard the City District Government has transferred all its obligations and functions to the LPC for operating and collecting revenue from the parking sites in Lahore vide agreement dated 19.12.2012. Whereafter the LPC has taken over all parking sites within Lahore city to achieve its objectives. In terms of the understanding between the City District Government and the LPC parking fee is to be collected against public parking and a list of public parking sites has been handed over to the LPC to regulate it. The City District Government delegated its function to collect parking fees to the LPC means that while the City District Government can notify the parking fees, the LPC can collect the fees from the users of the parking spaces and use the amounts to improve parking in the City of Lahore

Decision

13. The question that has arisen in these petitions is whether private parking spaces can be regulated by LPC and whether the operators of private parking stands are bound to charge the parking fee at the notified rate of the City District Government. The Petitioners have impugned the notification dated 02.04.2014 issued by the City District Government challenging the levy of parking fee on the ground that it is not chargeable or payable by the Petitioners, who are a private contractors running parking stands within private premises. Hence they argued that they are not required to pay parking fee nor can the LPC regulate them or private parking spaces. The first question that arises is whether the competent authority can regulate private parking stands and private contractors such as the Petitioners. Secondly whether the Petitioners are required to collect parking fee at the notified rate. Public place is defined under Section 2(ss) of the Act to mean any building, premise or place to which the public have access. A bare reading of the definition of public place clarifies that it is a place to which the public has access, which will include a private place to which the public has regular and continuous access. Therefore any place where the public will have a right of access on a regular and continuous basis falls within the meaning of public place. Hence parking in public places falls within the scope of the City District Government and LPC. Furthermore, a private parking stand operating in a public place is bound to collect parking rates notified by the City District Government and will be regulated by the LPC because they control and monitor parking in public places. In the instant cases, all the parking stands are located in public places as they are either shopping malls, business centers or hospitals. These are areas which are accessed by the public, regularly on a daily basis within which the facility of parking must be provided. Therefore the argument that the Petitioners are private contractors operating parking spaces within private premises is factually and legally incorrect. The test as per the Act is whether the parking space falls within the meaning of a public place. In the cases before the Court all the Petitioners are operating parking stands in public places, hence they are bound by the notifications of the City District Government to charge parking fees at the notified rate and are bound by the parking policy of the LPC.

14. In this regard it is also noted that the builders or owners of the commercial complex at the time of approval of site plans agreed to provide public parking within its premises. Counsel for the LDA submitted that this is a mandatory requirement for commercial buildings and within this parking space the owner of the building is required to provide free and accessible parking to the public. Furthermore, Notification No.SOV(LG)35-1/2003 dated 02.10.2004 issued by the Government of the Punjab, Local Government and Rural Development Department notifying the Local Government (Commercialization) Rules, 2004 ("Rules") under Section 5(2) provides that the owner shall submit an affidavit to the effect that the area under setback stands surrendered in favour of the Tehsil Municipal Administration, Town Municipal Administration or City District Government, as the case may be. Section 6(3) of the Rules provides that the respective Tehsil Administration, Town Municipal Administration and City District Government shall maintain a separate head of account and the income thus generated shall be utilized exclusively for the development of parking sites and parking plazas in close proximity of the area mentioned in sub-Rule (1). Therefore even under the provisions of these Rules the building owners are required to provide proper provision for parking within the building premises, and the setback area has been surrendered in favour of the City District Government for this purpose. Hence, under the Rules the setback area, if used for parking by the Petitioners will be regulated by the City District Government and the LPC. In the Petitions before the Court the parking stands are located within the building premises for public use and along the boundary walls and within the setback area. The owners of the buildings/plazas/hospital cannot use the land earmarked for parking in contravention to the approved building plans and so far as the setback area is concerned that falls within the regulatory control of the City District Government and therefore, the control of the LPC. It is noted that under the Fourth Schedule of the Act using the setback area for purposes not approved is an offence under the Act.

15. The LPC in its arguments before the Court has stated that due to lack of cooperation and clarity, they are only managing and regulating parking as per the list of public parking spaces given by the City District Government. They further explained that they have not devised any mechanism to register parking contractors to standardize their function nor do they have control over private contractors and private parking spaces. In this regard it is clear that LPC is to control and regulate parking in public places. Therefore, any contractor working within a public place is bound to conform to the requirements of the LPC. Given that the issue of parking and allocation of parking space is serious and in the public interest LPC must adopt a move vigorous and durable approach to parking within Lahore. Due to scarcity of parking spaces they must formulate a parking policy which addresses this issue and devise a mechanism to regulate contractors operating in public places. The report filed by the Chief Traffic Officer, Lahore outlines the gravity of the problems and highlights the lack of coordination between the Traffic Police and the City District Government and LPC. As per the Report, parking stands in many areas have created serious hindrance to the smooth flow of traffic as they have been given space in congested areas where the flow of traffic and given amenities do not justify the operation of the parking stand. It was also pointed out that parking contractors often encroach upon public space, side walls, side roads, service areas and empty plots to allow parking, which is neither permitted nor conducive to the flow of traffic. The City District Government and LPC should contribute efforts with the traffic police and have regular meeting so as to stay abreast with the traffic issues.

16. World over parking is an issue which requires constant regulation and monitoring. There are mobility plans devised to appreciate the flow of traffic and people in terms of the mode of transport used and parking policies devised which regulate parking issues. Road side space is planned not only from the parking aspect but also based on other usages such as buses, taxies, plantation, public crossing etc. In the same way parking spaces are allocated based on traffic flows, area and other modes of transport in order to effectively regulate parking. Hence parking along road side spaces and in public places must be based on some mobility plan and parking policy. In the same way rationalizing parking based on area, usage and public need is vital so as to make available sufficient parking spaces within the city and thereafter to charge parking fee based on some pricing policy. In this regard parking rates at specified times of the day or days of the week for specified duration can vary for efficient parking management instead of aiming to simply generate revenue by prescribing a flat rate. These functions of planning and regulating fall within the scope of the City District Government under Section 87 of the Act which function has been delegated to the LPC. Moving forward LPC shall devise a parking policy and plan parking spaces within the city of Lahore, which policy must be robust and is not reactive in nature, but caters to the requirement of the City. The policy should change and evolve with the changing patterns in the usage of private and public vehicles and should consider the traffic issues of the city of Lahore. In this regard, the LPC shall work in close liaison with the traffic police so that parking spaces have the least impact on the flow of traffic.

17. In W.P. No.7550/2015 the grievance of the Petitioner is that the service road is being used for parking which has blocked the entire road and causes difficulties to access the buildings. With respect to the prayer in W.P. No.7550/2015 the City District Government should consider the grievance of the Petitioner in consultation with the traffic police and determine whether the parking stand is causing any hurdle in the flow of traffic. This petition is disposed of in the above terms.

18. In view of the aforesaid, W.Ps. Nos.10795, 7550, 12483, 26939, 13551, 11861, 11689 of 2015, 671 of 2016 and 1672 of 2014 are dismissed being devoid of merits.

ORDER

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this petition, the Petitioner seeks proforma promotion and pensionary benefits.

2. The case of the Petitioner is that he was not promoted in the year 2014 whereas Respondents Nos.2 and 3 were promoted as Deputy Registrar ("DR") who were junior to him. The Petitioner filed a representation which was heard and declined without assigning any reason. Thereafter, the Petitioner retired from service without being promoted. The Petitioner now prays that the seniority of Respondents Nos.2 and 3 be readjusted and he be given proforma promotion.

3. At the very outset, the question of maintainability of the instant petition was put before the learned counsel. He argued that the petition is maintainable on the strength of the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in Constitution Petition No.03 of 2014 and C.M.A No.8540 of 2015. He argued that in the stated judgment it is held that a writ against the High Court is maintainable and that the earlier law laid down in the cases titled "Asif Saeed v. Registrar Lahore High Court" (PLD 1999 Lahore 350) and "Muhammad lqbal and others v. Lahore High Court through Registrar and others" (2010 SCMR 632) has been declared as per incuriam.

4. The judgment relied upon essentially looked at the process for appointments, absorptions and transfers made in the Islamabad High Court, which was stated to be in violation of the Service Rules of the Islamabad High Court. In that case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that a writ may lie against an administrative/ consultative/ executive order passed by the Chief Justice or the Administration Committee, involving any violation of the Rules framed under Article 208, causing infringement of the fundamental rights of a citizen. Admittedly, the case at hand deals with the terms and conditions of service as the Petitioner is seeking proforma promotion. His case was considered and rejected by the Hon'ble Chief Justice of this Court. No rule has been violated nor any fundamental right has been infringed. Reliance on the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan is also misplaced as the judgment of the august Supreme Court of Pakistan does not declare that every administrative order is amenable to writ jurisdiction. The judgment considered the violation of the High Court Rules and the powers exercised thereunder and found the petition to be maintainable on the ground that there was illegal exercise of power which impinged upon the statutory rights of the citizens and employees of the High Court. The case of the Petitioner is not only distinguishable but also against the dicta laid down in the case titled "Abrar Hussain v. Government of Pakistan and another" (PLD 1976 SC 315) wherein it was held that all actions and orders taken by the High Court or Supreme Court or by any Judge thereof in the exercise of the functions and powers of his office are not amenable to writ jurisdiction.

5. Petition is dismissed.

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- Through this ICA, the Appellants that is the Government of Punjab has impugned judgment dated 10.10.2011 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.5259/2011.

2. The relevant facts of the case are that the Respondent who is a member of the Establishment of the Lahore High Court, Lahore applied for the allotment of official residence in the year 2001 while he was serving as Assistant Registrar BS-17. At that time when he applied he was at Serial No.743 of the waiting list in 3-4 rooms category. Over a passage of eight years, the Respondent reached Serial No.396 in the year 2008. On 14.1.2008 the post of Assistant Registrar was up graded to BS-18. Consequently the Respondent was entitled to 'C' category residence under the Allotment Policy of S&GAD, 1997 ("Allotment Policy"). On 19.1.2009, the Appellants amended the Allotment Policy ("Amended Policy"), such that the Respondent and other employees of Lahore High Court who had applied prior to the Amended Policy were no longer entitled to 'C' category residences. The Respondent along with others were asked to get themselves registered afresh for allotment of residences under the Amended Policy. The Respondent applied afresh on 1.4.2015 when he was placed at Serial No.800 in the 'C' category residence waiting list. It is noted that at this time the Respondent was promoted to BS-19 as Deputy Registrar and under the Amended Policy became entitled to 'C' category residence. The Respondent being aggrieved challenged the retrospective effect of the Amended Policy before this Court, since he was placed at the bottom of the list for allotment of residence despite the maturity of his turn.

3. The grievance of the Appellants is that the impugned judgment declared that the Respondent has a vested right for the allotment of official residence under the Amended Policy and consequently directed the Appellants to grant 'C' category residence to the Respondent and all other employees who have registered themselves prior to the Amended Policy on the basis of the maturity of their turn since 2001. Learned Law Officer argued that the Respondent does not have a vested right for allotment based on clause 15 of the Allotment Policy of S&GAD 1997, amended on 19.1.2009 which categorically provides that the Provincial Government has no legal obligation to provide residential accommodation to any Government servant and no Government servant has any vested legal right or claim to the allotment of Government owned residential accommodation. In this regard, he has also relied upon the judgment of this Court cited at Agha Nadeem v. Additional Secretary Welfare and 3 others (2014 PLC (C.S.) 268). It is their case that the Respondent is entitled to residence on maturity of his turn and not before that. Currently he is placed at Serial No.720 of the waiting list and must wait his turn for residence.

4. Learned counsel for the Respondent pleaded that the Respondent applied for official residence under the Allotment Policy in the year 2001. The Respondent's entitlement accrued over the years under the Allotment Policy and was placed at Serial No.396 in the year 2008 from Serial No.743. Learned counsel argued that the Respondent has been waiting for 16 years for official residence and under the garb of an amendment to the Allotment Policy, the Appellants deprived the Respondent of the maturity of his turn on the waiting list and required him to apply afresh under the Amended Policy. Learned counsel referred to I.C.A. No.592/2011 titled Chief Secretary, Punjab, Lahore and others v. Mr. Fazal Karim, wherein the same Amended Policy was under challenge and the Appellants accepted the case of the respondent in that case and made a statement before the Court that they are ready, to provide the respondent, Reader of the Lahore High Court, official residence. Learned counsel submitted that the policy in question was the same, the right to allotment was the same. In that case the Appellants agreed to the allotment as per the prayer of the respondent yet are discriminating against the present Respondent. Learned counsel submitted that the Appellants cannot be allowed to take up two different positions in a similar case to the detriment of the Respondent.

5. Heard and record perused.

6. The judgment under challenge in the instant case has declared that the Amended Policy will apply prospectively and not retrospectively, hence will not be applicable to those employees who applied prior to the proclamation of the Amended Policy. The Appellants have challenged this declaration on the ground that the Respondent does not have a vested right for government residence under the Amended Policy. We are of the opinion that the declaration with respect to the effectiveness of the date of the amendment made in the Amended Policy is in accordance with law and the Amended Policy will have prospective effect and will not apply retrospectively. This means that the maturity of turn accrued under the Allotment Policy is not washed away by the Amended Policy and will carry forward under the Amended Policy. Consequently the Respondent will retain his maturity in turn on the waiting list under the Amended Policy. Even otherwise, there is nothing in the Amended Policy which provides that it will have retrospective effect, hence by way of an amendment, the period of waiting spent under the Allotment Policy cannot be denied because the maturity of turn under the Allotment Policy is a right which has accrued in favour of the Respondent. The said right recognizes and protects the time spent in waiting for his turn to mature under the Allotment Policy. This right cannot be vitiated simply because of an amendment because if that were the case then with every amendment, the Government could deny and deprive employees of their turn for allotment of residence. Such an interpretation would prejudice the rights of employees whose turns have matured under the Allotment Policy after waiting for considerable number of years. In this case, the Respondent applied for official residence in 2001 and his right to be given official residence under the policy matured over a period of time, such that he was placed at Serial No.396 in the year 2008. The Amended Policy required fresh applications to be made for allotment of government residence. Essentially the Appellants nullified the waiting period of nine years whereby the Respondent had acquired maturity of his turn. Furthermore the right of maturity of turn is different from a vested right as argued by the learned Law Officer. The Respondent was not agitating based on a vested right for allotment of government residence. He wanted the maturity of turn accrued in his favour to be retained under the Amended Policy. This maturity of turn cannot vitiate with every amendment as it would give the Government the ability to deprive officers of residence and could also mean that those who apply for the first time under the Amended Policy could get government residence before someone who has been waiting for long fifteen years. Furthermore, the judgment relied upon by the learned Law Officer 2014 PLC (C.S.) 268 (supra) is distinguishable as it is based on different facts. In that case the issue was with respect to retaining official residence whereas in the instant case the Respondent claims maturity of his turn in the relevant category for provision of official residence under the Amended Policy.

Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the case of the Respondent does not fall under clause 15 of the Amended Policy but the maturity of turn is a right which has accrued in his favour on account of the Allotment Policy itself. By amending the Allotment Policy the Appellants deprived the Respondent of the maturity of his turn which they could not do. The period of time spent waiting under the Allotment Policy could not be vitiated by the Amended Policy and the right that has matured under the Allotment Policy for grant of residence cannot be taken away.

7. The next question that arises is what type of residence the Respondent is entitled to under the Amended Policy. The basic grievance of the Respondent was that he is entitled to 'C' category residence since 2008 but is being denied the same. The Appellants contended that he is not entitled to 'C' category residence on account of the Amended Policy. The position today is that admittedly the Respondent is entitled to 'C' category residence under the Amended Policy, however, on account of the fresh applications made on 1.4.2015, he was placed at Serial No.800 and at present is at Serial No.720 meaning thereby that he has to wait till his turn matures for the residence which may take several years. In this regard, the learned Law Officer explained that the Respondent is on the waiting list and will be allotted 'C' category residence when his turn will come. We have already held that the Amended Policy cannot take away the maturity of turn. Therefore, the Respondent is entitled to get 'C' category residence based on the maturity of his turn which has accrued in his favour since 2008.

8. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. The appeal is dismissed and impugned judgment dated 10.10.2011 passed by the learned Single Judge is maintained.

ORDER

Through the instant Intra Court Appeal the Appellant has called in question the legality of impugned order dated 09.10.2015 passed in Writ Petition No.24435/2015 by the learned Single Judge as well as orders dated 29.04.2015 and 29.06.2015 passed by the Respondents Nos.1 and 2. The Appellant has also sought a direction to the Respondents Nos.2 and 3 for extension in his contract period.

2. Brief facts revealing from the instant Appeal are that the Appellant was appointed as Veterinary Officer (H) through Punjab Public Service Commission on contract basis on 22.11.2007. However, the service of the Appellant was terminated vide order dated 28.06.2008 due to his absence w.e.f. 31.05.2008 but later on the termination letter was rescinded on 27.01.2009 and his absence period was converted into leave without pay. The Responded No.4 sent recommendations for extension of contract period of the Appellant vide letters dated 05.05.2009, 17.06.2009 and 01.07.2009 but the matter was kept pending by the Respondents Nos.2 and 3. The Appellant also sent written requests in this regard but ultimately the contract of the other colleagues of the Appellant was extended but the Appellant's request was declined on 10.02.2012. The Appellant assailed the said order before this Court which directed the Respondent No.2 to pass a speaking order after affording opportunity of proper hearing to the Appellant who dismissed the application of the Appellant vide order dated 29.04.2015 against which the appellant filed representation before the Respondent No.1 which also met to the same fate. Feeling aggrieved thereby the Appellant filed W.P. No.24435/2015 which was dismissed vide the impugned order dated 09.10.2015. Hence, the instant Appeal.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the learned Single Judge in Chamber in the impugned judgment has not appreciated the fact of discrimination as the contract period of the other colleagues of the Appellant has been extended while the Appellant has been deprived of the same. Learned counsel also argued that despite order of this Court the Respondent No.2 has not given him proper hearing, as such he has been condemned unheard on the basis of mala fide. Learned counsel also contended that the learned Single Judge has not applied its judicious mind and solely rely on the comments submitted on behalf of the Respondents, as such, the impugned order is liable to be set aside. Learned counsel further pointed out that the fact of absence of the Appellant has been made basis in the impugned order but the Respondents had badly failed to prove the same. Learned counsel also laid much stress on the point that the Respondents have never ever sought any explanation regarding the absence of the Appellant.

4. We have heard the arguments of the learned counsel for the Appellant and learned AAG who supported the impugned orders and examined the record available with this Appeal.

5. The main grievance of the Appellant is that his contract period be extended. The Appellant was appointed on purely contract basis in the Respondents/Department vide appointment letter dated 22.11.2007. The Appellant after accepting the terms and conditions of his contract employment submitted his joining report. Clause-7 of the employment contract, containing certain terms and conditions, explicitly reveals that the services of the Petitioner can be terminated without assigning any reason, hence the Appellant has no right to claim extension in his contract period as a vested right. Moreover, allegedly the behavior of the Appellant remained unsatisfactory toward his superiors which resulted into his termination.

6. It is an established principle that where employment is on contract, there is a relationship of master and servant and in such like cases the Constitutional petition under Article 199 of the Constitution is not maintainable. In case titled Lt. Col. Rtd. Aamir Rauf v. Federation of Pakistan through Secretary M/o Defence and 3 others (2011 PLC (C.S.) 654), it has been held that if an employee working on contract basis is aggrieved of his termination the only remedy available was an action for damages and no direction could be issued to force the unwilling employer to keep the Appellant in service. Similar principle was laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in case titled Nadeem Ahmed v. Pakistan State Oil Company

Limited and another (2005 PLC (C.S.) 1447). In view of the settled principle, the learned Single Judge has rightly held that the Appellant has no vested right on the basis of which he was entitled to relief in a Constitutional petition by holding in paragraph 6 which reads as follows:

"Perusal of the above observations indicates that the Petitioner has started his private business at Sheikhupra and is continuously engaged in the private business. Even otherwise the above findings/ record also clearly establish that he is a habitual absentee. Learned counsel for the Petitioner could not satisfactorily rebut the above factual position. The case of the Petitioner, on the face of it, is distinguishable from his other colleagues. Question of mala fide and discriminatory treatment was not made out in the circumstances. Therefore, the Petitioner cannot seek shelter behind the provisions of Article 25 of the Constitution."

7. We see no illegality or legal infirmity in the impugned order which has been passed by the learned Single Judge in consonance with the spirit of law, as such does not warrant any interference by us.

8. In view of above, the instant Appeal is devoid of any merit and is accordingly dismissed in limine.

Rana Ijaz Ahmad for Appellant.

ORDER

Through the instant Intra Court Appeal filed under Section 3 of Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 the Appellant has called in question the legality of impugned judgment dated 11.12.2015 passed in Writ Petition No.25930/2011 by the learned Single Judge and also sought a direction to the Respondents Nos.1 to 3 to allow the Appellant to join the service on the basis of previous valid medical report w.e.f. 07.07.2011.

2. Brief facts revealing from the instant appeal are that the Appellant was initially appointed as Assistant Line Man (BPS-3) in the Respondents Department under the Employees Children Quota (Category-III) on contract basis vide the Respondents' Memo dated 06.01.2010 and the Appellant gave his joining after being declared medically fit for the job vide medical report issued by the Respondent No.4 dated 27.01.2010. The appointments of the Appellant and others were challenged before this Court through I.C.A. No.602/2010. However, on 18.10.2010 the same were declared ultra vires and directions were issued by this Court to the Respondents to fill the vacancies through transparent process. Therefore, the services of the Appellant along with others were terminated on 06.06.2011, after about one year and six months. When second time advertisement for the said posts was made the Appellant again qualified and advised to get medically examined from the Respondent No.4 vide Memo dated 07.07.2011 and in pursuance of which the Appellant appeared before the Respondent No.4 who declared the Appellant unfit for induction in service and under the certificate the Respondents Nos.1 to 3 refused the Appellant to join in service. Hence, the instant Appeal.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the learned Single Judge in the impugned judgment has not appreciated the fact that in the first round the Appellant was appointed on the basis of a valid medical certificate, therefore, declaring the Appellant unfit in the second round for the same post shows mala fide of the Respondents. Learned counsel also argued that the Appellant was terminated verbally without any written order, as such, the act of the Respondents cannot be said to be legal. Learned counsel also pointed out that the Respondents Department was bound to take the joining of the Appellant without getting second medical report by virtue of A&CS, Rules, 1974 No.SOR.IV(S&GAD)-5-16/84 dated 18th April, 1984 (page-20 of the ICA) (the "Rules") as the same provides that All the appointing authorities are, therefore, advised not to insist on the production of medical certificate of fitness on subsequent appointments in cases where a government servant has already produced medical certificate on his first entry into government service provided that there is no break in his service. Learned counsel also contended that there was no break in service of the Appellant whereas the Respondents have technically retrenched the services of the Appellant and principle of locus poenitentiae apply in the case of the Appellant as the first appointment of the Appellant taken the legal effect and in such circumstances the legal act which is in motion cannot be rescinded. Learned counsel also laid much stress on the point that at the time of first appointment the Petitioner was medically fit but second time he was declared unfit for service, as such, the same creates serious doubt. Lastly, learned counsel maintained that the impugned judgment is liable to be set aside as the same did not deal with the issue of mala fide on the part of the Respondents.

4. We have heard the arguments and examined the record available with this Appeal which shows that the Appellant was firstly appointed as Assistant Line Man under Employee's Children Quota on contract basis (Category-III) by the Respondents Department but after his termination under the decision of this Court, fresh advertisement was made in which he again qualified and was issued employment letter dated 07.07.2011. In clause (ii) under Note: of the said letter it is specifically mentioned that you should appear before Medical Superintendent WAPDA Hospital, Faisalabad to obtain Medical Fitness Certificate during 27.07.2011 to 30.07.2011. It was necessary for the Appellant to get himself medically examined and obtain Medical fitness certificate but the same was issued declaring the Appellant unfit for service, as he had suffered from Hepatitis B, at the time. The contention of the learned counsel for the Appellant, that there is serious doubt in the medical report being contradictory to the previous one cannot be given weightage, as he admittedly was unwell at the time of his medical examination.

5. From the above Rule it is crystal clear that although an employee is not required to produce a fresh medical certificate of fitness in case he is seeking subsequent appointment, however, the same is subject to the condition that there must not be a break in service of the employee. In this regard, none else but the Appellant himself has admitted and sought in his prayer clause that the Respondents Nos.1 to 3 may be directed to allow the Appellant to join the service on the basis of previous valid medical report w.e.f. 07.07.2011. It is worth mentioned that, admittedly the Appellant's services were terminated on 06.06.2011, whereas his subsequent/new employment letter was issued on 07.07.2011, as such there was a break in his service of about one month, when such is the situation then how can the Appellant say that there is no break in his service, therefore, he cannot be benefited of his own reliance i.e. the Rules, which itself goes against him. We, therefore, fully agree with the finding of the learned Single Judge in which he has rightly held at paragraph 6 of the impugned order which reads as follows:
"It is not denied by the Petitioner that he was not suffering from Hepatitis B at the time of first entry medical fitness on 30.07.2011. No ill-will or malice is found on part of Respondent authority in not allowing Petitioner to join the post in question. Even otherwise, qualitative PCR for HBV -- DNA has conclusively proved the diagnoses of Hepatitis B. Qualitative PCR is needed for initiation and monitoring of treatment, which the Petitioner had not opted for."

6. We do not see any illegality in the impugned judgment which has been passed strictly in accordance with law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the Appeal in hand, being devoid of any merit is hereby dismissed in limine.

Nemo for Respondent.

ORDER

The Appellants are aggrieved by the judgment dated 16.10.2009 passed by learned Single Judge in W.P. No.11117/2008 on the ground that interpretation given to the exercise of authority under Section 33 of the Punjab Agricultural Produce Markets Ordinance, 1978 ("Ordinance") is contrary to the law.

2. The basic facts of the case are that the Respondent was appointed as Administrator, Market Committee, Gujrat on 19.11.2005 until the constitution of a new Market Committee. He continued to work as Administrator until the issuance of notification dated 23.04.2008, which was impugned in the writ petition. The grievance of the Respondent was that he was functioning as per law as Administrator and there was no justifiable reason for the Government of Punjab to remove him from the office by exercising power under Section 33 of the Ordinance.

3. Learned counsel for the Respondent was not available on the last date of hearing and not even today. This is an old case, therefore, we are inclined to proceed with the matter on the basis of available record.

4. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the Respondent was appointed on temporary basis on account of political consideration. The Government of Punjab exercised its power under Section 33 of the Ordinance and removed all Administrators from their post and replaced them with officers of the Agriculture Department in order to ensure the smooth working of the market committee. In the instant case, District Officer, Agriculture (Extension) Gujrat was nominated as Administrator. Learned counsel argued that power under Section 33 of the Ordinance can be exercised in emergency situations where the purpose of the Ordinance was not carried out. Learned counsel further argued that the learned Single Judge failed to take into consideration the record and the facts wherein it is evident that the Respondent along with other Administrators were appointed purely for political consideration and it was on approval of a summary from the Government that their removal was required. Learned counsel argued that all the Administrators at the time were removed in anticipation of reconstitution of the market committee with the help of officers appointed from Agriculture Department. Meaning thereby that the Government removed all political appointees.

5. Vide impugned judgment the learned Single Judge on examining Section 33 of the Ordinance concluded that power could only be exercised in an emergency situation and in the instant case, nothing has been placed on record to justify the exercise of power under Section 33 of the Ordinance. The impugned judgment further held that there is no reason or allegation or illegality having been committed by the Respondent which justifies his removal. Reliance was placed upon the case titled "Mian Tajammal Hussain and 7 others v. Province of Punjab through Secretary, Agriculture Department" (1990 MLD 570).

6. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the impugned judgment. The basic contention of the Appellants, Government of Punjab is that it is duly authorized to exercise power under Section 33 of the Ordinance if it feels that the purpose of the Ordinance is not carried out. In this case, the justification brought forward is that Administrators were appointed for political consideration including the Respondent and until the constitution of a new market committee in Punjab, the function of the Administrators in the market committee was to be performed by the officers of Agriculture Department. This was stated to be in the public interest to ensure smooth functioning of the market committee. The record shows that at the time when the Respondent was appointed, the funds of the market committee were frozen and could only be utilized or released, with the approval of the Government. The notification itself provided that the appointment was an interim arrangement till the constitution of the market committee. On 23.04.2008 a notification was issued wherein the function of the Administrators was to be performed by the officers of the Agriculture Department such that all private persons were removed from the market committee in the public interest. Based on the record, we are of the opinion that the writ petition was not maintainable as the Respondent did not have any vested right on the basis of which he could claim his entitlement to hold office of Administrator. The notification dated 19.11.2005 itself stated that the appointment was in interim measure until the constitution of a market committee. The Government of Punjab in pursuance of policy and in the public interest removed all Administrators, who were all private persons and brought the office of the Administrators under the control of Agriculture Department for smooth functioning by constituting a new market committee.

7. Under the circumstances, this Intra Court Appeal is accepted and the judgment impugned dated 16.10.2009 of the learned Single Judge is set-aside.

ZC/G-1/L Appeal allowed.

(a) Punjab Environmental Protection Act (XXXIV of 1997) [as amended by Punjab Environmental Protection (Amendment) Act (XXXV of 2012)---

----Ss. 16, 22 & 23---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 199---Constitutional petition---Jurisdiction of High Court---Environment Protection Order---Alternate remedy---Statutory appeal---Scope---Question before the High Court was whether a Constitutional petition impugning actions of Provincial Environmental Protection Agency in pursuance of an Environment Protection Order; was maintainable in view of remedy of appeal available to the petitioner under Ss. 22 & 23 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997---Held, that question raised in the Constitutional petition related to interpretation of S. 16 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 and powers of the Provincial Environmental Protection Agency versus power of the Environmental Tribunals to enforce the Environment Protection Order (EPO); and therefore the remedy of appeal under Ss. 22 & 23 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 was not efficacious---Constitutional petition was therefore, maintainable.

(b) Punjab Environmental Protection Act (XXXIV of 1997) [as amended by Punjab Environmental Protection (Amendment) Act (XXXV of 2012)---

----Ss. 16, 17 & 21---"Rio Declaration on Environment and Development", United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, ratified by Pakistan on 1.6.1994---Environment Protection Order ("EPO")---Interpretation of S. 16 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997---- Nature of powers of the Environmental Protection Agency to seal a premises for non-compliance of the Environment Protection Order---Precautionary principle in cases of environmental harm---Obligations of the state---Scope---Spirit of S. 16 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 was based on the precautionary principle, which required a relevant agency to anticipate the danger and take immediate steps to prevent harm or danger to the environment---Precautionary principle was essentially a tool for ensuring sustainable development and focused on empowering regulators to act in anticipation of environmental harm and ensure that the same did not occur---Pakistan's commitment to uphold sustainable development and the Precautionary Principle was affirmed through ratifications of the "Rio Declaration" and several other international instruments---Certain activity if allowed to go ahead, may cause irreparable damage to the environment and if it was stopped, there may be irreparable damage to economic interest and in case of doubt protection of environment would have precedence over the economic interest---Precautionary principle required anticipatory action to be taken to prevent harm and such harm could be prevented even on a reasonable suspicion and it is not always necessary that there should be direct evidence of harm to the environment---State and its officers must employ measures to achieve environmental justice and preserve the environment---Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 emphasized on immediate measures empowering the EPA to protect the environment where there was imminent threat to the public or cause to believe environmental degradation/pollution would be irreversible and in such cases, enforcement mechanism must act immediately to effectively control the harm and prevent any further degradation---Without said power of enforcement; the issuance of an EPO under S. 16(2) of the Act specifically would become redundant and if the EPO required immediate stoppage or immediate removal of the pollutant then allowing the harm and pollution to continue would defeat the purpose of S. 16(2) of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997.

----Ss. 16, 21, 20 & 17---Constitution of Pakistan, Art. 10A---Environment Protection Order ("EPO") issued under S. 16 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997---Right to fair trial and due process of law---Jurisdiction and powers of Environmental Tribunals---Precautionary actions in cases of environmental harm---Scope---Petitioner impugned sealing of petitioner's premises for non-compliance of Environment Protection Order issued under S. 16 of Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 on the ground that the same violated his right to fair trial under Art. 10A of the Constitution---Validity---Said contention was not sustainable because public safety, public health and the environment must be protected from irreparable harm and in the present case, the issue of noise pollution and vibrations were exceeding the National Environmental Quality Standards (NEQs), hence the same required immediate action to secure public health and safety especially since the petitioner had failed to rectify the cause of the harm in any manner whatsoever---Contention that power of sealing lay only with the Tribunal and that the Environmental Protection Agency was required to file a complaint under S. 21 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 was misconceived since the same provided that an application could be filed by any officer authorized by the Director General of the EPA if there was reasonable suspicion of his having been involved in contravention punishable under S. 17(1) of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 which was available to the EPA in addition to the power it had to execute the measures provided in S. 16(2) of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997---In the event that there was non-compliance of S. 16(2) of the Punjab Environmental Protection S.16(3) of the same enabled the Environmental Protection Agency to itself take the measures that were prescribed in the Environmental Protection Order---Use of the words "itself take or cause to be taken" in S. 16(3) of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 were for the benefit of the environment and empowered the Environmental Protection Agency to enforce its orders in order to stop pollution which caused imminent danger to the people and the locality---High Court held that there was no violation of Art. 10A of the Constitution.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Petition, the Petitioner has impugned order dated 11.1.2017 issued by Respondent No.5 whereby the Deputy Director, Environmental Protection Agency, Punjab, Gujranwala ordered for the sealing of the plant of the Petitioner in order to implement the Environmental Protection Order issued on 6.11.2015.

2. The facts of the case are that the Petitioner runs a business in the name of Ali Steel Works in Allama Iqbal Colony, Street No.2, Gujranwala. The residents of the area filed a complaint against the business of the Petitioner on the ground that it causes air pollution as well as noise pollution and vibration which is hazardous to the environment and to the health of the residents of the area. The District Officer (Environment), Gujranwala inspected the unit of the Petitioner on 14.5.2015 and found that it had been established without obtaining the environment approval from the Environment Protection Agency, Punjab ("EPA") and that the noise pollution exceeded the National Environment Quality Standards ("NEQS") limits. The Petitioner was issued Environmental Protection Order ("EPO") on 6.11.2015 under section 16 of the Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 ("Act") after being given two opportunities, one on 11.6.2015 and the other on 22.6.2015 to controvert the allegations raised against him. Since the Petitioner was unable to do so, EPO was issued on 6.11.2015. The EPO stated that the Petitioner should, "Immediately stop operation of your unit till its regularization from competent forum to ensure compliance of section 12 of Punjab Environmental Protection Act, 1997 (amended 2012).

No appeal was filed against the EPO and the Petitioner continued its business without compliance of the EPO. Thereafter the complainant filed W.P. No.31185/2016 in which a direction was issued on 5.10.2016 that he should avail remedy under section 17 of the Act for compliance of the EPO. In the meanwhile a follow up inspection was carried out and it was found that the Petitioner had not complied with the EPO, hence the Deputy Director, Environmental Protection Agency, Punjab, Gujranwala while invoking the powers under section 6(1)(a) of the Act sealed the unit of the Petitioner on 11.1.2017. Hence this Petition.

3. The basic issue before the Court, as raised by the Petitioner is the power of the Deputy Director, Environmental Protection Agency, Punjab, Gujranwala/Respondent No.5 to pass a sealing order. Learned counsel for the Petitioner argued that Respondent No.5 did not have any power to seal the unit of the Petitioner. The power of sealing lies exclusively with the Environmental Protection Tribunal ("Tribunal") under section 17(5)(c) of the Act. Learned counsel further argued that the order of sealing was done without following due process and without notice to the Petitioner. Learned counsel further submitted that the complainant filed W.P. No.31185/2016 before the Court wherein a direction was issued on 5.10.2016 that he should approach the Tribunal, therefore the act of sealing was in derogation to the said orders of this Court. Learned counsel places reliance on the case titled Messrs Mega Steel Mills Private Limited v. Government of Punjab through Secretary, Environmental Protection Department, Punjab, Lahore and 6 others (2016 CLC 1095) in support of his contentions.

4. Learned Law Officer argued that sufficient notice was given to the Petitioner before issuance of the EPO and the Petitioner was unable to refute the allegations that the noise level exceeded the NEQS limits. Furthermore despite the EPO, the Petitioner made no effort to control the noise and vibration level and continued with his business. Learned Law Officer further argued that the EPO dated 6.11.2015 issued under section 16 of the Act was not complied with and on 11.1.2017 an order was passed in terms of the powers vested with the EPA to seal the unit of the Petitioner. Learned Law Officer argued that the EPA has power to implement its orders under section 16(3) read with section 16(2) of the Act. She argued that when a person does not comply with the order of the EPA, the EPA can initiate action under the Act and can also take necessary measures to ensure that the direction given in the EPO is implemented. In this case an immediate stop order was passed on 6.11.2015, subsequent inspections were carried out and it was seen that the Petitioner was not compliant with the EPO. Sufficient warnings were given to him, opportunity of hearing was provided and ultimately in order to prevent the continuation of the environmental hazardous, sealing order was issued on 11.1.2017. Learned Law Officer has placed reliance on the case titled Ms. Imrana Tiwana and others v. Province of Punjab and others (2015 CLD 983) to urge the point that right of appeal is provided for under the Act and remedy of a second appeal is also available before a Division Bench of this Court. However, the Petitioner has failed to avail the said remedy provided for under the Act, hence the instant Petition is not maintainable.

5. Arguments heard and record perused.

6. On the issue of maintainability the question before the Court is with reference to the power exercised by the EPA under section 16 of the Act. Learned Law Officer further argued that since the remedy of appeal is available to the Petitioner, the instant Petition is not maintainable. However given that the question involved relates to interpretation of section 16 and the powers of the EPA versus power of the tribunal to enforce the EPO, the remedy of appeal is not efficacious. Hence the instant Petition is maintainable.

7. The basic question raised in this Petition is whether the EPA has the power to seal a unit which is not compliant with the EPO. Section 5 of the Act authorizes the Director General to carry out all powers and functions of the EPA and section 5(5) of the Act allows the Director General to delegate any of his powers. By way of Notification No. 176/F-02/LS dated 21.08.2007 and 503/F-02(VII)/LS/EPA dated 27.02.2008, the powers and functions under the EPA were delegated by the Director General with respect to the different provisions of the Act. The Notification mentioned above delegates powers to the Deputy Directors in matters pertaining to section 16 of the Act. Section 16 of the Act being the relevant provision is reproduced hereunder:-

Environmental protection order. (1) Where the Provincial Agency is satisfied that the discharge or emission of any effluent, waste, air pollutant or noise, or the disposal of waste, or the handling of hazardous substance, or any other act or omission is likely to occur, or is occurring, or has occurred, in violation of any provisions of this Act, rules or regulations or of the conditions of a licence, or is likely to cause, or is causing, or has caused an adverse environmental effect, the Provincial Agency may, after giving the person responsible for such discharge, emission, disposal, handling, act or omission an opportunity of being heard, by order direct such person to take such measures as the Provincial Agency may consider necessary within such period as may be specified in the order.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such measures may include-

(a) immediate stoppage, preventing, lessening or controlling the discharge, emission, disposal, handling, act or omission, or to minimize or remedy the adverse environmental effect;
(b) installation, replacement or alteration of any equipment or thing to eliminate or control or abate on a permanent or temporary basis, such discharge, emission, disposal, handling, act or omission;
(c) action to remove or otherwise dispose of the effluent, waste, air pollutant, noise, or hazardous substances; and
(d) action to restore the environment to the condition existing prior to such discharge, disposal, handling, act or omission, or as close to such conditions may be reasonable in the circumstances, to the satisfaction of the Provincial Agency.

(3) Where the person, to whom directions under subsection (1) are given, does not comply therewith, the Provincial Agency may, in addition to the proceedings initiated against him under this Act or the rules and regulations, itself take or cause to be taken such measures specified in the order as it may deem necessary and may recover the costs of taking such measures from such person as arrears of land revenue.

8. Section 16 of the Act governs the procedure and powers related to an EPO. An EPO is a written order that is designed to protect the environment. It is issued to secure compliance by a person who is causing harm to the environment in order to protect human health and the environment. It specifies the sensation of the harm and provides for the methods to cure or stop/prevent the harm within a given time frame. Essentially the EPO provides the action that needs to be taken and the timeframe during which it must be taken, to rectify the wrong. In terms of section 16(1) of the Act, the EPA has to satisfy itself that there is discharge or emission of any waste or pollutant or noise in violation of the Act. Once satisfied it must give an opportunity of hearing to the person causing the pollution and can then pass an order directing the person to take necessary measures to cure the problem. However, the EPO can also direct measures requiring immediate action. The measures under section 16(2) of the Act require instant or emergent action, such as immediate stoppage or immediate control of the equipment or thing causing the pollution or removal or disposal of the hazardous or pollutant substance or action that helps to restore the environment to the condition it was in before the pollutant. While the EPO under section 16(1) of the Act provides for remedial or corrective measures to cure pollution or stop further pollution; Section 16(2) of the Act lays down preventative measures that require immediate action for an immediate effect. Therefore the distinction between section 16(1) and (2) is essentially that the latter acknowledges the need for immediate action as a necessary response mechanism to imminent threat or irreparable damage to the environment.

9. The vital question is whether the EPA can enforce its orders under the EPO where a person fails to comply with the measures prescribed by the EPA. In terms of section 16(3) of the Act, the EPA can either proceed against the person under the Act which could mean proceeding under section 17 of the Act to impose penalties or proceeding under section 21 of the Act where it can file a complaint against the person disobeying the EPO or it can itself take or cause to be taken such measures necessary in the order to implement its EPO. Therefore section 16(3) of the Act itself provides for an enforcement mechanism which is in addition to remedy under the Act. The mandate of the law under Section 16(3) of the Act is very clear. An EPO can be passed to prevent any form of pollution be it air, water, noise or waste or handling of hazardous substance. Section 16(3) of the Act is an enabling provision to ensure compliance with orders under section 16(1) and (2) of the Act, enabling immediate action by the EPA to enforce orders where necessary. The need to provide for enforcement powers in the EPA is essential given that immediate measures may be required to prevent environment degradation. The purpose and overarching objective of the Act to protect the environment and promote sustainable development would be rendered redundant if such powers did not exist.

10. The spirit of section 16 of the Act is based on the Precautionary Principle. The Precautionary Principle requires the relevant agency to anticipate the danger and take immediate steps to prevent harm or danger to the environment. The Rio Declaration and Agenda 21 in 1992 adopted the Precautionary Principle as a necessary mechanism in the following terms:
to protect the environment, the precautionary approach shall be widely applied by States according to their capabilities. Where there are threats of serious or irreversible damage, lack of full scientific certainty shall not be used as a reason for postponing cost effective measures to prevent environment degradation. (Article 15, Rio Declaration)

Essentially, the Precautionary Principle is a tool for ensuring sustainable development. The court in M.C. Mehta v. Union of India Court (1997 (2) SCC 353: AIR 1997 SC 734) affirmed that, "The Precautionary Principle" and "The Polluter Pays Principle" are necessary tools for sustainable development. The court elaborated on this, holding that:

If an activity is allowed to go ahead, there may be irreparable damage to the environment and if it is stopped, there may be irreparable damage to economic interest. In case of doubt, however, protection of environment would have precedence over the economic interest. Precautionary principle requires anticipatory action to be taken to prevent harm. The harm can be prevented even on a reasonable suspicion. It is not always necessary that there should be direct evidence of harm to the environment.

The Precautionary Principle was further recognized by the G8 Ministers in 2002 as a means to safeguard the protection of the environment. Therefore the Precautionary Principle focuses on empowering regulators to act in anticipation of environmental harm and ensure it does not occur. Pakistan's commitment to uphold sustainable development and the Precautionary Principle was affirmed through ratification of the Rio Declaration (ratified 01-06-1994) and several other international instruments (United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (ratified 01-06-1994), The Biodiversity Convention (ratified 01-06-1994), etc). The Bhurban Declaration 2002 further emphasized the need to take immediate action and employ the Precautionary Principle to protect life and nature for present and future generations.

11. Since the Ms. Shehla Zia and others v. WAPDA case (PLD 1994 SC 693), superior courts have taken an active approach in accepting environmental justice and recognized the Precautionary Principle as an integral issue. In the cited case the court held that:

The rule of precautionary policy is to first consider the welfare and safety of the human beings and the environment and then to pick up a policy and execute the plan which is more suited to obviate the possible dangers or make such alternate precautionary measures which may ensure safety. To stick to a particular plan on the basis of old studies or inconclusive research cannot be said to be a policy of prudence and precaution.

Following this, several cases have acknowledged the Precautionary Principle and its importance as an enforcement mechanism for protection of the environment and sustainable development. The Supreme Court in Adeel-ur-Rehman v Federation of Pakistan held that:

It is the duty of the State to see that the life of a person is protected as to enable him to enjoy it within the prescribed limits of law. Pollution, environmental degradation and impure food items also fall in the category of deprivation of life. [2005 PTD 172]

In Imrana Tiwana v. Province of Punjab (2015 CLD 983), the court took this further and established environmental justice as a concept that fell within the scheme of the Constitution,

To us environmental justice is an amalgam of the constitutional principles of democracy, equality, social, economic and political justice guaranteed under our Objectives Resolution, the fundamental right to life, liberty and human dignity (Article 14) which include the international environmental principles of sustainable development, precautionary principle, environmental impact assessment, inter and intra-generational equity and public trust doctrine. Right to environment that is not harmful to the health or well-being of the people and an environment that protects the present and future generations is an essential part of political and social justice and even more integral to the right to life and dignity under our Constitution.

In Ali Steel Industry v. Government of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and another (2016 CLD 569) the need to use precautionary and preventative measures to ensure the protection of rights under Articles 9 and 14 of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 was reaffirmed. The court found no illegality with respect to the sealing of the premises or the direction of stoppage to the petitioner even though the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Environmental Protection Act, 2014 did not extend to PATA. The court stressed on the duty to combat environmental degradation, again pointing towards the need for immediate enforcement mechanisms.

12. Therefore it is clear that the state and its officers must employ measures to achieve environmental justice and preserve the environment. With the growth of jurisprudence on the establishment of environmental justice in Pakistan, it is necessary to now shift the focus on enforcement mechanism especially where certain kinds of harm or pollution which require immediate stoppage, must be stopped. The Act emphasizes on immediate measures empowering the EPA to protect the environment where there is imminent threat to the public or cause to believe environmental degradation/pollution will be irreversible. In such cases, the enforcement mechanism must act immediately to effectively control the harm and prevent any further degradation without this power of enforcement the issuance of an EPO under section 16(2) of the Act specifically would become redundant. If the EPO requires immediate stoppage or immediate removal of the pollutant then allowing the harm and pollution to continue would defeat the purpose of section 16(2) of the Act.

13. Another aspect of the case is the argument that due process was not followed. In this case notices were issued but since he did not appear, no hearing was given prior to the sealing of the unit. While due process and the right to a fair trial are embedded in Article 10A of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973, the objective of the constitutional protection is to achieve justice. In cases of strict liability, where damage to the environment is irreversible and permanent, immediate action is fortified in order to prevent irreparable damage. In such cases it is necessary to take precautionary measures, which do not immolate or infringe the right to fair trial or due process, but simply ensure that a harm or hazard does not continue during the time spent in due process. The august Supreme Court of Pakistan held in the case titled Warid Telecom (Pvt.) Limited v. Pakistan Telecommunication Authority (2015 SCMR 338) that where actions are taken to stop more injustice from happening then such actions should not be seen as a violation of the right to fair trial or due process. In this case the august Supreme Court of Pakistan quotes Karnataka Public Service Commission v. B.M. Vijaya Shankar (AIR 1992 SC 952):

When meeting the requirement of notice and providing an opportunity of hearing will cause "more injustice than justice" or it is not in the "public interest" the same may be withheld.

Was natural justice violated? Natural justice is a concept which has succeeded in keeping the arbitrary action within limits and preserving the rule of law. But with all the religious rigidity with which it should be observed; since it is ultimately weighed in balance of fairness, the courts have been circumspect in extending it to situations where it would cause more injustice than justice. Even though the procedure of affording hearing is as important as decisions on merits yet urgency of the matter, or public interest at times require, flexibility in application of the rule as the circumstances of the case and the nature of the matter required to be dealt may serve interest of justice better by denying opportunity of hearing and permitting the person concerned to challenge the order itself on merits not for lack of hearing to establish bona fide or innocence but for being otherwise arbitrary or against rules.
The Petitioner's contention that the right to due process and Article 10A of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 was violated is not sustainable because public safety, public health and the environment must be protected from irreparable harm. In this case, the issue of noise pollution and vibrations were exceeding the NEQS, hence it required immediate action to secure public health and safety especially since the Petitioner had totally failed to rectify the cause of the harm in any manner whatsoever. Thus, there is no violation of Article 10A of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973.

14. In this case the EPA acted strictly in accordance with law. In fact it complied with the requirement of due process and gave the Petitioner sufficient time to comply with the EPO dated 6.11.2015. However, not only was the Petitioner unable to provide any mechanism to control the noise pollution but he blatantly and flagrantly disobeyed the EPO and once action was taken against him, he challenged the legality of the order. More than one year lapsed after the issuance of the EPO yet on successive inspections of the unit it was noted that no effort was made by the Petitioner to rectify the noise pollution or the vibration, nor did Petitioner attempt to comply with the EPO. The argument of the learned counsel that the power of sealing lies only with the Tribunal and that the EPA was required to file a complaint under section 21 of the Act is totally misconceived. Section 21(7) of the Act provides that an application can be filed by any officer authorized by the Director General of the EPA if there is reasonable suspicion of his having been involved in contravention punishable under section 17(1) of the Act which was available to the EPA in addition to the power it has to execute the measures provided in section 16(2) of the Act. In the event that there is non-compliance of section 16(2) of the Act, section 16(3) enables the EPA to, itself take the measures that are prescribed in the EPO. The use of the words itself take or cause to be taken in section 16(3) of the Act are for the benefit of the environment and empowers the EPA to enforce its orders in order to stop pollution which causes imminent danger to the people and the locality.

15. Learned counsel for the Petitioner has also placed reliance on the case cited at 2016 CLC 1095 (supra) wherein it was held that the department did not have the power to seal the property. The said case is distinguishable on the facts. In this case an order was passed by the Tribunal with regard to the pollution caused by the factory of the appellant. The appellant filed an appeal before the EPA which was first dismissed and then subsequently restored. However, during the process of restoration the officials of EPA sealed the factory of the appellant for non-compliance of the EIA. The issue in that case was with reference to the sealing carried out under Regulation 20 of the Pakistan Environmental Protection Agency (Review of IEE and EIA) Regulations, 2000 whereas in the instant case the unit was sealed for non-compliance of the EPO. Therefore the case is distinguishable and not applicable to the facts of this case.

16. Under the circumstances, no case for interference is made out. Petition is dismissed.

SNGPL v. Wafaqi Mohtasib 2015 MLD 1029 ref.
Appellant in person.

ORDER

Through the instant Intra Court Appeal filed under Section 3 of Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 the Appellant has called in question the legality of impugned order dated 09.06.2016 passed by the learned Single Judge in W.P. No.20196 of 2016 whereby writ petition filed by the Appellant challenging the vires of Section 18 of the Federal Ombudsman Institutional Reforms Act, 2013 (the "Act") has been dismissed.

2. The Appellant argued that the findings of the learned Single Judge in the impugned judgment are not in consonance with the provisions contained in Section 18 of the Act; that refusing the prayer of the Appellant in the petition tantamount to violation of Article 4 of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (the "Constitution"); that the impugned order suffers from legal infirmity as the fact that the legislature was not competent to make any amendment to the Constitution that was in defiance of the nine commands mentioned therein, has not been taken into consideration; that the reasoning given by the learned Single Judge are not convincing, as such the same is liable to be set aside.

3. We have heard the arguments of the Appellant and examined the record available with this Appeal.

4. The Appellant in the writ petition had challenged the vires of Section 18 of the Act. The Act has been made to make institutional reforms for standardizing and harmonizing the laws relating to Federal Ombudsmen institution and the matters ancillary or akin thereto. The purpose of which is to provide speedy and expeditious relief to citizens by redressing their grievances to promote good governance. The contention of the Appellant that the legislature was not competent to make any amendment to the Constitution that was in defiance of the nine commands mentioned therein, is not instructive.

5. We fully agree with the findings of the learned Single Judge that the Parliament has, under the Constitution, power to set up administrative tribunals and other quasi-judicial forums for the adjudication of disputes and Section 18 of the Act does not mean any amendment in the Constitution rather it only bars the jurisdiction of other forums in the matters exclusively fall within its domain. For the sake of brevity said Section is reproduced herein below:
"Bar of jurisdiction.--- No Court or authority shall have jurisdiction to entertain a matter which falls within the Jurisdiction of an Ombudsman nor any Court or authority shall assume jurisdiction in respect of any matter pending with or decided by an Ombudsman."

6. Reliance in this regard can be placed on the case titled in SNGPL v. Wafaqi Mohtasib, (2015 MLD 1029) in which this Court held as under:
"The intention and purpose of setting up these special bodies was very clear and admitted of no ambiguity. These were to deal with all matters relating to special laws, including adjudication of complaints and disputes within their remit. There was no scope for bifurcation of those powers and the sharing of some of those with the Wafaqi Mohtasib. The entire concept would be eroded if parallel proceedings were allowed to be held or continued at the two different forums. There are a myriad of scenarios which could arise leading to extremely awkward and mutually contradictory situations. Courts and agencies would be confronted with the unsavory situation of which order to follow and of which forum.

7. We do not see any illegality in the impugned order which has been passed strictly in accordance with law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the Appeal in hand, being devoid of any merit is hereby dismissed in limine.

Income Tax Ordinance (XXXI of 1979)---

----Ss.30, 136 & Second Sched.---Reference to High Court---Income from other sources---Interest income---Applicability of S.30 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979 to "interest income on business activities"---Scope---Question before the High Court was whether "interest income earned by taxpayer on security deposit which was held with a Bank for purpose of obtaining Bank guarantees was part of the business income and exempt from tax and accordingly not taxable under S.30 of Income Tax Ordinance, 1979"---Held, that S.30(2)(b) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979 dealt with "income from the sources" and was only applicable where investment of money by a company had not been made as part of its business activity but where such money had been invested by a company in its business, as in the present case, profit generated on such investment, for all intents and purposes, would be considered to be profit earned from business and not from any other source---Reference was answered, accordingly.

ORDER

This is a Reference under section 136(1) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979 ("the Ordinance").

2. Following questions of law are pressed for our opinion, which are asserted to have arisen out of order dated 20.11.2003 passed by the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Lahore Bench, Lahore ("Appellate Tribunal"):

QUESTIONS OF LAW

1. "Whether on the facts and circumstances of the case, the learned ITAT was justified to hold the interest income earned by Appellant in question on security deposit held with bank for obtaining guarantee is part of assessee's business income and exempt from tax whereas interest income is the income under the head income from other source assessable under section 30 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979?"

2. Whether on the facts and circumstances of the case, the learned ITAT was justified to delete the charge of Worker Welfare Fund on interest income as well as presumptive whereas the same is chargeable on the total income as per section 2(f) of WWF Act, 1971?"

3. Notice was issued to the Respondents and in pursuance of which they are being represented through their counsel.

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at length and have gone through the order dated 20.11.2003 passed by the learned Appellate Tribunal and find that no questions of law arose in the instant Reference. The questions of law that have been framed in the Reference do not raise any substantive questions of law arising out of the order of the Appellate Tribunal. The Applicant disputes the order of the learned Appellate Tribunal which allowed the appeal of the Respondent on the ground that the assessee's income from interest is exempted from tax and the levy of the WWF imposed by the assessing Officer is not sustainable.

5. We agree with the findings of the learned Appellate Tribunal regarding question No.1 which in the impugned order, in detail, has held that the interest income earned by the Respondent in question on security deposits held with Askari Bank for obtaining bank guarantee as part of assessee's business income and is exempt from tax under Clause (176) of the Second Schedule to the Ordinance as it is not an income from other source under section 30 of the Ordinance. So far as the question No.2 is concerned, the Appellate Tribunal has rightly held that as since the assessee's income from the interest has been exempted from tax, levy of WWF cannot be sustained. The Hon'ble apex Court has held that the income exempt from tax under any clause of the Second Schedule to the Ordinance does not attract the levy of WWF. Furthermore, recently the Honourable Supreme Court of Pakistan in Luck Cement Limited v. Commissioner Income Tax, (2015 SCMR 1494) held that the section 30(2)(b) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 1979 [since repealed] which dealt with 'income from other sources' was only applicable where the investment of money by a company had not been made as part of its business activities. But where money had been invested by a company in its business, as in the present case, and profit was generated on such an investment, that profit shall, for all intents and purposes, be considered to be the profit earned from business and not from other sources.

6. In view of above, the impugned order does not suffer from any factual or legal infirmity as the same has been passed after scrutinizing the relevant record as well as on the basis of valid reasons.

7. Therefore, Reference application is decided against the Applicant.

The applicant has filed both these applications, one for restoration of the main Appeal which was dismissed due to non-prosecution vide order dated 21.05.2015 and the second for condonation of delay on the ground that the delay was not deliberate rather the previous counsel never notified the Department regarding dismissal of Appeal on account of non-prosecution. The applications are supported by affidavits. In the interest of justice, the same are allowed for the reasons mentioned therein as the matter should be decided on merits not on technicalities.

2. The main Appeal is to its original number.

Main Appeal

3. This is an Appeal under section 27 of the Wealth Tax Act, 1963 (the "Act").

4. Following question of law is pressed for our opinion, which is asserted to have arisen out of order dated 13.05.2002 passed by the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Lahore Bench, Lahore ("Appellate Tribunal"):

QUESTION OF LAW

Whether on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the ITAT was justified to hold the charge of penalty as unjustified for the reason of uncertainty, whereas, the august Court of the country in its authoritative judgment, in I.C.C. Textile Case (2001 PTD 1557) has declared the penalty or additional tax as justified?

5. We have heard the learned counsel for the Appellate at length and have gone through the order dated 13.05.2002 passed by the Appellate Tribunal and find that no question of law arose in the instant Appeal. The question of law that has been framed in the Appeal does not raise any substantive question of law arising out of the order of the Appellate Tribunal. The Appellant disputes the order of the Appellate Tribunal which partially allowed the appeal of the Respondent. We agree with the findings of the Appellate Tribunal which declared the penalty of Rs.12,13,000/- unjustified and restricted the additional tax charged under section 12(8) on two grounds viz: firstly that in the earlier order the assessing officer has not charged the same perhaps for the reason that he was satisfied that assessee has not defaulted and secondly that even otherwise, the Appellate Tribunal has considered the charge to be as unjustified in other cases. We see no reason to disbelieve the impugned order which does not suffer from any factual or legal infirmity as the same has been passed after scrutinizing the relevant record as well as on the basis of valid reasons.

6. Therefore, the Appeal is decided against the Appellant.

7. Office shall send a copy of this order under seal of the Court to the Appellate Tribunal Inland Revenue as per section 27(5) of the Act.

4. This is a Reference under section 133(1) of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 ("Ordinance").

5. Following questions of law have been proposed for our opinion, which are asserted to have arisen out of order dated 18.12.2009 passed by the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Lahore Bench, Lahore ("Appellate Tribunal"):--
i) "Whether the learned ATIR was justified to extend the scope of powers of rectification to a mistake that is detected from a judgment of a Court in another case announced subsequent in time to the order sought to be rectified?

ii) "Whether the learned ATIR was justified to accept the appeal against refusal of the Taxation Officer to rectify the order for levy of WWF when there was no mistake apparent from record?
iii) "Whether an order by an assessing authority that is at variance with a subsequent appellate order constitutes a mistake in terms of section 221 of the Income Tax Ordinance?

6. The Applicant contests the decision of the Appellate Tribunal on the ground that the decision of the Peshawar High Court came after the Respondent was charged with WWF, even though he paid minimum tax under section 80DD of the Ordinance.

7. We have heard the learned counsel and gone through the record and find that no question of law arises in the instant Reference. The issue involved is whether WWF can be imposed in the case where tax was deducted under section 80DD. The Appellate Tribunal has rightly concluded that the judgment of the court had to be followed, especially where the department had taken a wrong decision by imposing WWF, even though it was not permissible under the circumstances. The decision of the Appellate Tribunal does not call for interference.

8. Under the circumstances, we decline to exercise our jurisdiction. Reference application is answered in negative.

9. Office shall send a copy of this order under seal of the Court to the Appellate Tribunal as per section 133(5) of the Ordinance.

ORDER

Through this order we intend to decide the instant Intra Court Appeal as well as I.C.A. No.1467/2016, I.C.A. No.1468/2016, I.C.A. No.1469/2016 and I.C.A. No.1470/2016 as all the same are outcome of impugned order dated 15.10.2016 passed in W.P. No.31144/2016 by the learned Single Judge whereby the Appellants' petitions were dismissed on the ground that alternate remedy in the shape of appeal was available to the Appellants.

2. Learned counsel for the Appellants submitted that the impugned order is liable to be set aside on the grounds that the same is illegal and has been passed against the facts on record; that a discriminatory attitude has been adopted against the Appellants as the Respondent No. 3 has not taken any action against the other similarly placed persons (Ada Owners), as such mala fide is surface on the record; that although the law provided remedy of appeal against the order aggrieved by the Appellants but in view of violation of Article 25 of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 (the "Constitution") the writ petitions were filed; that the order dated 25.07.2016 and notice dated 29.09.2016 passed by the Respondent No.3 directing the Appellants to submit income tax returns were without jurisdiction; that the learned Single Judge while passing the impugned order has totally ignored the facts of violation of Article 25 of the constitution.

3. Learned Law Officer vehemently contested the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Appellants and prayed for dismissal of all the appeals on the ground that there is no illegally or perversity in the impugned order; that in presence of alternate remedy the writ petitions were not competent before this Court.

4. Basically the Appellants are aggrieved of order dated 25.07.2016 passed by the Deputy Commissioner Enforcement-II of the Punjab Revenue Authority ("PRA"). The perusal of said order reveals that appeal lies against it to the Commissioner (Appeals) of the PRA within 30 days under section 63 of the Punjab Sales Tax on Service Act, 2012 read with Punjab Sales Tax on Services (Adjudication and Appeals) Rules, 2012. For the sake of brevity said section is reproduced herein below which is as follows:--

63. Appeals.---(1) Any person, other than the Authority or any of its employees, aggrieved by any decision or order passed under section 60 by an officer of the Authority other than Commissioner may, within thirty days of the date of receipt of such decision or order, prefer an appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals).

(2) An appeal under subsection (1) shall--

(a) be in the prescribed form;

(b) be verified in the prescribed manner;

(c) state precisely the grounds upon which the appeal is made;

(d) be accompanied by the fee specified in subsection (3); and

(e) be lodged with the Commissioner (Appeals) within the time set out in subsection (4).

(3) The prescribed fee shall be--

(a) Where the appellant is a company, one thousand rupees: or

(b) Where the appellant is not a company, two hundred rupees.

(4) An appeal shall be preferred to the Commissioner (Appeals) within thirty days of the receipt of the decision or order passed under section 60.

(5) The Commissioner (Appeals) may, upon application in writing by the appellant, admit an appeal after the expiration of the period specified in subsection (4) if the Commissioner (Appeals) is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from lodging the appeal within that period.

5. From the above it is clear that against the decision of the Respondent No.3 a remedy of appeal is provided, as such the order dated 25.07.2016 was appealable and the Appellants have never challenged the same in appeal before the competent forum. Therefore, we see no illegally or jurisdictional error in the impugned order which has been passed in accordance with law and hence, does not warrant any interference by us.

6. Furthermore, the instant Intra Court Appeal is filed under section 3 of the Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 whereas the object of proviso to subsection (2) of section 3 of the Ordinance bars the remedy of Intra Court Appeal in those cases in which the relevant law provides the remedy of appeal, revision or review. It is important to note that on the first page the order dated 25.07.2016 it is clearly mentioned that appeal against this order lies before the Commissioner (Appeals) Punjab Revenue Authority, Lahore, within thirty days of the date of its receipt in the manner prescribed in section 63 of the Punjab Sales Tax on Services Act, 2012 read with the Punjab Sales Tax on Services (Adjudication and Appeals) Rules, 2012. Reliance in this regard is placed on the case titled Muhammad Aslam Sukhera and others v. Collector Land Acquisition, Lahore Improvement Trust, Lahore and another (PLD 2005 Supreme Court 45) wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has held as under:--

"7. There is no doubt in our mind that the award by the Tribunal is treated to be an original judgment and decree within the meaning of section 26 of the Act. Being an original decree, the award has been specifically made appealable before the High Court and then before this Court under section 54 of the Act of 1894. In view of express provisions of section 54 of the Act it is not possible for us to hold otherwise. It cannot be said that the award by the Tribunal is not an original order for the purposes of bar contained in proviso of section 3(2) of the Ordinance. Therefore, it is not necessary for us to determine as to whether the award made by the Collector could also be treated to be an original order or not. The object of proviso to subsection (2) of section 3 of the Ordinance, 1972 seems to be to bar the remedy of Intra Court Appeal in those cases in which the relevant law provides the remedies of appeal, revision or review."

7. In view of above, the instant appeal as well as the abovementioned appeals are not maintainable; consequently the same are hereby dismissed.

ORDER

Through this Intra Court Appeal, the Appellant has called in question judgment dated 11.10.2010 which subsequently was announced on 29.11.2010 (the "Impugned Judgment"), passed by learned Single Judge in Chamber, whereby constitutional petition filed by the Appellant was dismissed.

2. Facts briefly for the disposal of this Intra Court Appeal are that the Appellant purchased property measuring 10-marlas, comprising khasra No.774/81, Khatooni No.619, Khewat No.290, situated at Hadbast Mouza, Jogeenpura, Tehsil Cantt, formerly bearing property No.101-A, Bock-D, situated at Campus View Town, Lahore, but presently bearing House No.699-A/F-II Johar Town, Lahore (the "Property"), for total consideration of Rs.17,00,000/-. For the purpose of execution of the sale deed in respect of the Property, the stamp paper valuing Rs.34,000/- @ 2% of the said value was purchased on 03.06.2010 and the same after its completion was presented before the Respondent No.1 on 07.06.2010 on the understanding that the Property falls under Mouza Jogeenpura. After completing the documents from Local Commission, the same were resubmitted on 30.06.2010. Whereupon Respondent No.1 refused to register the same on the ground of insufficient stamp duty by applying the rate of Johar Town and not Mouza Jogeenpura. Therefore, the Appellant paid the stamp duty under protest at the rate of Johar Town, and presented before the Respondent on 07.07.2010. However, the Respondent again refused to register the sale deed with another objection that CVT is applicable on sale of the Property after coming into force of the Punjab Finance Act, 2010 (the "2010 Act"), having effect from 01.07.2010.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellant has argued that the Property is situated in Mouza Jogeenpura, and the Respondents cannot charge the stamp duty at the rate of Johar Town Scheme. Similarly, the Appellant contended that he has submitted documents much prior to enforcement of the 2010 Act, hence, demand of payment of CVT by the Respondents is also unlawful and illegal. He stated that the learned Single Judge in Chamber has dismissed the writ petition without application of his independent mind and law laid down in an authoritative judgment of this Hon'ble Court titled Farman Ali and others v. The State (PLD 2007 Lahore 495), which is fully applicable to the facts and circumstances of the instant case. He further argued that judgments relied upon by learned Single Judge in Chamber i.e. Messrs Mehran Associates Limited v. The Commissioner of Income-Tax, Karachi (1993 SCMR 274), and City District Government, Karachi v. Muhammad Irfan and others (2010 SCMR 1186), were initially relied upon apart from Farman Ali ibid case, which is basic judgment upon the matter in issue.

4. On the other hand, learned Law Officer has supported the impugned judgment and requested for dismissal of the Intra Court Appeal. He stated that after affixing the deficient stamp duty, the Appellant resubmitted the documents for registration on 7.7.2010 after coming into force of Punjab Finance Act, 2010, hence the Appellant was required to pay CVT @ 2%. The counsel of the Respondent relied on the judgment titled District Officer (Revenue) Lahore and others v. Raja Muhammad Yousaf and others (2016 SCMR 203) to support his contention.

5. Arguments heard and record perused.

6. Before rendering any decision on instant Intra Court Appeal and examining the arguments urged by the parties, following moot points are essential for consideration and determination by this Division Bench, arising out of this Intra Court Appeal:

a) Whether the Property of the Appellant fall under the scheme of Johar Town or Mouza Jogeenpura, upon which the stamp duty would be applicable and determined?

b) Whether CVT is payable by the Appellant in respect of the Property, provided that the Appellant re-submitted documents after enforcement of the Punjab Finance Act, 2010?

7. For determination of the first moot point, it is essential to note from the record that the Appellant has himself mentioned two addresses of the same Property in the Sale Deed, and for the purpose of avoiding the higher rate of stamp duty of Johar Town, the Appellant is pressing that the Property falls in Mouza Jogeenpura. However, to effectively dilate upon this question, it is essential to examine the record and to call for evidence on this specific issue to resolve the present factual controversy. However, it is pertinent to note that the constitutional jurisdiction of High Court could not be exercised for the purpose of examining factual controversy, which has to be adjudicated upon by the competent authority under the law. The scope of Article 199 of the Constitution of Pakistan, 1973 (the "Constitution") is dependent on the questions which are devoid of factual controversy and writ jurisdiction in matters of factual controversy is barred. The reliance can be placed on Amir Jamal and others v. Malik Zahoor-ul-Haq and others (2011 SCMR 1023) and Pervez Alam v. Pakistan Dairy Products (Pvt.), Limited, Karachi and 2 others (2005 PLC SC 366).

8. Further, in the case of Abdur Rahman and 5 others v. Rifatullah and 8 others (2016 CLC 35) [Peshawar]), the Division Bench of the High Court has clearly held in para 6 that:--

"6. It is settled by now up to the august Supreme Court of Pakistan that factual controversy cannot be gone into in a Constitutional jurisdiction of the High Court and it is the prerogative and privilege of the Civil Court to examine the disputed question of fact undertaken in the Constitutional jurisdiction of this Court. The superior Courts should not involve themselves into investigation of disputed questions of facts, which necessitate taking of evidence. This can more appropriately be done in the ordinary civil procedure for litigation by a suit and that can only be determined by Courts having plenary jurisdiction in the matter. In such an eventuality Constitutional petition is incompetent. In this regard, reliance is placed on Khairuddin v. Settlement Commissioner (1988 SCMR 988), Colonel Shah Sadiq v. Muhammad Ashiq and others (2006 SCMR 276), Muhammad Asghar v. The State (PLD 2006 SC 326), Faiz Bukhsh and others v. Deputy Commissioner/LAC and others (2006 SCMR 219) and Dr. Sher Afgan Khan Niazi v. Ali S. Habib and others (2011 SCMR 1813)."

9. In the instant case, this Court agrees with the decision rendered in the Impugned Judgment on the first moot point, which can only be determined by recording evidence of the parties, and the law does not permit to a High Court for recording evidence in writ jurisdiction. When there is a factual controversy between the parties, the learned High Court abstains to exercise its jurisdiction under Article 199 of the Constitution.

10. For the purpose of rendering decision on second moot point, section 6(5) of the 2010 Act is applicable law, and is reproduced as follows:--

> "The tax shall be collected by the person responsible for registering or attesting the transfer of the immovable property in respect of which the tax is payable, at the time of registering or attesting the transfer."

It is clear from the above mentioned section that tax has to be collected by the concerned person at the time of registering or attesting the transfer. Admittedly, the Appellant has re-submitted documents for registering on 07.07.2010 after complying with all laws, when the 2010 Act was in force, and CVT was imposed through the same. Therefore, the Appellants submitted documents before the concerned person responsible for registering or attesting the said aid transfer of immovable property after coming into force, of the 2010 Act, and the Respondents are justified in collecting 2% CVT from the Appellant, under the Act, 2010.

11. The Appellant has relied on the case titled Messrs Mehran Associates Limited v. The Commissioner of Income-Tax, Karachi (1993 SCMR 274), in which it was held at Para 12 that "the cardinal principles of interpretation of a fiscal statute seem to be that all charges upon the subject are to be imposed by clear and unambiguous words. There is no room for any intendment nor there is any equity or presumption as to a tax. A fiscal provision of a statute is to be construed liberally in favour of the tax-payer and in case of any substantial doubt the same is to be resolved in favour of the citizen." However, it is to be noted in the instant case that section 6(5) of the 2010 Act is clear and not ambiguous, and the same clearly highlights that the tax shall be collected at the time of registering the transfer.

12. Similarly, the Appellant has also relied on the case titled City District Government, Karachi v. Muhammad Irfan and others (2010 SCMR 1186), in which it was held that, rights of parties would be governed/decided as per law prevailing at the time when cause of action had accrued, particularly in the matters pertaining to fiscal disputes) unless manifestly intention of law was otherwise. Instrument dealing with fiscal matters was to be construed strictly because it imposed burden in terms of money upon the person who claimed relief under said law. Therefore, in view of the above referred case law, it is to be noted that cause of action for the second moot point occurred when the Appellant re-submitted his documents again on 7.7.2010 and the Respondent refused to accept the same without payment of CVT @ 2% after enactment of the 2010 Act. Therefore, in stricto senso, the Appellant is liable to pay CVT under the terms.

13. Moreover, it has been held in the case of District Officer (Revenue) Lahore and others v. Raja Muhammad Yousaf and others (2016 SCMR 203) at Para 12 that the registration officer is only concerned with determining the applicable stamp duty on the date when the document is presented for registration.

14. The judgment titled Farman Ali and others v. The State (PLD 2007 Lahore 495) may be distinguished being the murder reference.

15. In view of the above mentioned discussion, law and the case laws, this Court agrees with the decision of the learned Single Judge in Chamber in deciding that no illegality has been pointed out by the learned counsel of the Appellant/Petitioner for payment of CVT @ 2% for transfer of the Property.

16. In view of the above, this Intra Court Appeal being devoid of merits, is hereby dismissed.

ORDER
Through this appeal the Appellant has challenged the legality of impugned order dated 04.05.2016 passed in W.P. No.27617/2015 by the learned Single Judge whereby the Appellant's petition was dismissed being without any merit.

2. Learned counsel for the Appellant submitted that the impugned order is liable to be set aside on the grounds that the same is illegal and has been passed against the facts on record, that the learned Single Judge has failed to take into consideration the fact that the Respondents have acted in violation of regulations which were binding on them; that the Convener of the Assessment has not conducted any audit of the assessment made by the Paper Assessor, as such he has violated the Rule 4 of Appointment/Duties of Paper Assessors; that the career of the appellant is at stake and if the impugned order is not set aside and the directions are not given to the Respondents for enhancing the marks in Anatomy paper, the Appellant may suffer an irreparable loss.

3. Learned Law Officer vehemently contested the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the Appellant and prayed for dismissal of the appeal on the ground that there is no illegally or perversity in the impugned order; that the Court cannot substitute its findings over the assessments of experts in the relevant field; that the appellant has now developed his case by raising new points which have not been agitated before the learned Single Judge as such the appeal in hand is liable to be dismissed. Learned counsel for the University of Health Sciences has also contended that the instant appeal is not maintainable in view of the pronouncements of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan and has relied upon the case titled Muhammad Farooq Wajid v. FPSC and others (PLD 2015 Lahore 457), Muqarab Akbar v. Bahauddin Zakariya University, Multan through Registrar and 2 others (2006 MLD 1776), Abdul Hakim Hashmi v. Federal Public Service Commission through Chairman and 8 others (2002 SCMR 504) and Board of Inter-mediate and Secondary Education Lahore through its Chairman and another v. Mst. Salma Afroze and 2 others (PLD 1992 Supreme Court 263).

4. We have heard the arguments of both the sides and have perused the record.

5. Learned Single Judge in the impugned order has observed that that superior courts do not interfere in matters pertaining to marking of answer sheets by officers of colleges and universities who are expert in their field and this Court cannot substitute its findings for that of the persons skilled in their task. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan in case titled Tahir Saeed Qureshi v. Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Sargodha and others (1996 SCMR 1872) held that this Court cannot go beyond the scope of the prescribed Rules in constitutional jurisdiction. Reliance can also be placed on the case titled Abdul Hakim Hashmi v. Federal Public Service Commission through Chairman and 8 others (2002 SCMR 504) and Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education Lahore through its Chairman and another v. Mst. Salma Afroze and 2 others (PLD 1992 Supreme Court 263). In the Abdul Hakim Hashmi' case supra the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan has held as under:-- "Re-checking/re-evaluation of answer book. The answer books are secret documents, which cannot be seen by the candidates or their representatives nor re-examination thereof can be allowed in any circumstance. The marking of numbers on the answer book was a technical job which High Court was not expected to undertake in exercise of its powers of judicial review under Art. 199 of the Constitution. The High Court in Constitutional jurisdiction, cannot go beyond the scope of prescribed Rules regarding re-examination/re-evaluation of answer books. The Supreme Court has disapproved the practice of summoning answer books by High Court in its Constitutional jurisdiction.

6. Furthermore, learned counsel for the Appellant has failed to convince us with co-gent reasons to set aside in the impugned order and to show any illegality or perversity in the same which warrants any interference by us. We agree with the impugned order as the same has been passed in accordance with law and the dictum laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan.

7. In view of above, the instant appeal, being devoid of any merit, is hereby dismissed.

ORDER

This is a review application filed by the Applicant seeking setting aside of the order dated 03.05.2013 passed by the learned Single Judge in C.M. No.340/2012 in W.P. No.11359/2007 whereby his application for restoration of main petition, which was dismissed as withdrawn, was dismissed.

2. Learned counsel for the Applicant submitted that the counsel who had withdrawn his writ petition, infact was not his counsel; that as and when any criminal matter is withdrawn the physical appearance of the Petitioner is necessary but the Applicant was not present at the relevant date when the case was withdrawn; that the matter should be decided on merits and not on technicalities; that if the impugned order is not set aside the Applicant may suffer an irreparable loss, as such the impugned order dated 03.05.2013 is liable to be set aside.

3. On the other hand learned AAG has vehemently contested the arguments of the learned counsel for the Applicant and contended that there is no illegality in the impugned order which has been passed in accordance with law, hence the instant review petition merits dismissal; that the Applicant after withdrawal of the writ petition has the remedy of private complaint, as such now he cannot reopen the matter which has been dismissed as withdrawn.

4. We have heard the arguments of learned counsel for the parties and have perused the record. The bare perusal of impugned order dated 03.05.2013 reveals that the power of attorney of the counsel who had withdrawn the writ petition on behalf of the Applicant, was available on record and he did not withdraw the petition simpliciter rather with the condition that the Applicant intends to file private complaint.

5. The principles upon which a review can be granted are well settled and elaborated i.e. there must be some new point based upon discovery of new evidence which could not with diligence, have been found out on the previous occasion. A review petition is not competent where neither any new and important matter or evidence has been discovered nor is any mistake or error apparent on the face of record. Such error may be an error of fact or of law but it must be self-evident and floating on surface and not requiring any elaborate discussion. Orders based on erroneous assumption of material facts, or without adverting to a provision of law, or a departure from undisputed construction of law and Constitution, may amount to error apparent on face of the record. On the other hand, error must not only be apparent but must also have a material bearing on the fate of the case and be not of inconsequential import. If judgment or finding, although suffering from an erroneous assumption of facts, is sustainable on other grounds available on record, review is not justifiable notwithstanding error being apparent on the face of record, the review petition is not competent. Reliance in this regard can be placed on the judgment of Division Bench of the Court in Shabbir Ahmed Zafar v. MBR and others, (2016 CLC 1655).

6. In view of above situation, the learned counsel for the Applicant has failed to convince us that there is an error of fact or of law on record to interfere in the same which has been passed in accordance with law. Hence, the instant application being devoid of any merit is hereby dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--- The appellant initially filed the instant ICA in the year, 2010 which was dismissed vide order dated 18.9.2012 on the ground that the ICA was not maintainable. However, the august Supreme Court of Pakistan vide order dated 28.2.2013 remanded the matter to this Court holding that the ICA was maintainable and case may be heard on its merit. Therefore, we have proceeded to hear the matter on its merit.

2. The case of the Appellant is that he retired from service as Senior Executive Vice President ("SEVP") on 6.9.2005 from the Respondent National Bank of Pakistan. At the time of his retirement he was given 10% increase in his salary as SEVP. The Appellant is aggrieved by the 10% increase in his salary on the ground that he was discriminated against as others including one Muhammad Sardar Khawaja who retired on the same date was given a 100% increase. And he was given a much higher increase in salary although both the said Muhammad Sardar Khawaja and the Appellant have been retired as SEVP on the same date. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the Appellant is entitled to the same benefit as was given to Muhammad Sardar Khawaja since both retired as SEVP at the same time. Learned counsel relied upon letter dated 21.6.2005 issued by EVP/Group Chief (HRM&AG) National Bank of Pakistan to urge the point that basic pay scale of Muhammad Sardar Khawaja was revised to Rs.1,26,348/- whereas the basic Pay Scale of the Appellant is only Rs.88,042/-. He submitted that the case of the Appellant is at par with that of Muhammad Sardar Khawaja and he is entitled to the same treatment.

3. Learned counsel for the Respondent bank has produced office note dated 27.1.2004 to show that Muhammad Sardar Khawaja was promoted to SEVP with effect from 1.1.2002 and at that time his basic pay was Rs.88,000/-. Further argued that at the time of retirement basic pay of Muhammad Sardar Khawaja was Rs.99,330/- whereas the basic pay of the Appellant was Rs.90,330/-. He also submitted that the Appellant was retired on 7.9.2005 while Muhammad Sardar Khawaja was retired on 6.9.2005, with a difference of one day. Learned counsel submitted that the other persons with whom the Appellant is comparing himself were promoted as SEVPs in the year, 2002 whereas the Appellant was promoted one day before his retirement as a special concession. Learned counsel argued that since those persons have been working as SEVPs for some time, their basic pay had increased over the years whereas the Appellant had done no work as SEVP and is not entitled to any increment. He further clarified that some of the persons mentioned in the list as annexed by Respondent No.1 in the report are still working as SEVP with the bank, hence there can be no comparison with them either.

4. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record. The basic issue in this appeal is whether the Appellant is entitled to the same pay as Muhammad Sardar Khawaja which grievance as stated was not properly attended to by the learned Single Judge in the impugned order 28.6.2010 passed in W.P. No.14069/2010. The record shows that some of the persons against whom the Appellant claims he is being discriminated against were promoted earlier in time than the Appellant and some continue to serve as SEVPs even today. In terms of paragraph 2 at page 4 of the writ petition the Appellant himself stated that Muhammad Sardar Khawaja was promoted as SEVP in 2004 with effect from 1.12.2002 whereas he was promoted on 6.9.2005 and thereafter retired the very next day. In terms of the record the Appellant requested for promotion as SEVP from 1.12.2002 instead of 6.9.2005. In response to this request the Respondent Bank informed the Appellant vide letter dated 25.5.2010 that he is not entitled to promotion from 2002 as SEVP as he was not qualified for the promotion. With regard to increase in his pay scale, which by 2010 had become Rs.126,642, the record shows that the Appellant was promoted one day before retirement as a special concession whereas all other persons against whom discrimination is alleged were promoted as SEVP in 2002. This is evident from the 'office note' dated 27.1.2004 wherein the name of Muhammad Sardar Khawaja is also listed along with others. The basic pay scale of all SEVPs was Rs.88,000/- and with the passage of time it increased. The Appellant was promoted on 5.9.2005 and he retired on 6.9.2005 having not worked even one day as SEVP. Muhammad Sardar Khawaja with whom the Appellant is primarily aggrieved became SEVP on 1.1.2002 and retired on 6.9.2005 having served as SEVP for at least three years. Therefore, no case of discrimination is made out.

5. Under the circumstance, the instant ICA is dismissed.

Ms. Nudrat Sultana for Appellant.

ORDER

Through the instant Intra Court Appeal filed under Section 3 of Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 the Appellant has called in question the legality of impugned order dated 09.12.2016 passed by the learned Company Bench of this Court in C.O. No.51/2003 whereby he was relieved of his duties as Official Liquidator on the basis of alleged allegations against him by the Auction Purchaser and he was further directed to be present on each date of hearing.

2. The learned counsel for the Appellant argued that the observations made in the impugned order with regard to allegations are not supported from the record, as such the same are liable to be struck down; that mere on the allegations against the Appellant the order for his appearance on every date is also nullity in the eye of law and liable to be set aside; that although removal of an Official Liquidator is prerogative of the Hon'ble Company Bench but dispensing with the duties mere on the basis of allegations without proof is illegal.

3. Arguments heard and record perused.

4. From the perusal of record it transpired that the Company Bench in the impugned order dated 09.12.2016 has observed that in view of serious allegations against the Official Liquidator in C.M. No.37/2016 filed by the Auction Purchaser on 22.01.2016, the services of the Appellant are dispensed with and he is ordered to be present on each date and the case was adjourned to 13.01.2017 (now fixed on 21.02.2017). The record further reveals that the Appellant has filed reply to the said C.M. No.37/2016 on 20.09.2016 denying all the allegations levelled therein and praying for its dismissal with cost. As the Appellant has taken the same stance in reply to C.M. No.37/2016, therefore, the instant appeal is pre-mature without waiting the decision of the said application which is still pending adjudication and the next date of hearing before the Company Bench is 21.02.2017. The Appellant may establish his case before the Company Bench where he will be afforded full opportunity of hearing and he cannot be allowed to bypass the same through the instant appeal to set aside the directions of the Company Bench. Without touching the merits of the impugned order, it is observed here that the Appellant should better agitate the matter before the learned Company Bench where C.M. No.37/2016, on the basis of which the impunged order was passed, is pending and reply thereto was also filed by the Appellant.

5. In view of above, the instant appeal is not maintainable; consequently the same is hereby dismissed in limine.

Mian Luqman for Appellant

ORDER
Through the instant Intra Court Appeal filed under Section 3 of Law Reforms Ordinance, 1972 the Appellant has called in question the legality of impugned order dated 23.06.2015 passed in Writ Petition No.13117/2012 whereby the learned Single Judge has dismissed the writ petition filed by the Petitioner being not maintainable.

2. Brief facts revealing from the instant appeal are that the Appellant was appointed as Area Manager on 31.08.1978 but due to his ill health he resigned from services on medical ground on 16.07.1989. Thereafter the Appellant applied for his pensionary benefits which were, declaimed on the ground that his resignation was accepted without recommendations of the Medical Board. Feeling aggrieved thereby he moved complaint before the Federal Ombudsman in the year 2011 which later on was withdrawn by the Appellant and filed the Writ Petition No.13117/2012.

3. Learned counsel for the Appellant submitted that the impugned order is against law and facts and is liable to be set aside on the grounds that the learned Single Judge has failed to appreciate fact that the Appellant applied for retirement on medical ground and was entitled to pensionary benefits but the same has been misinterpreted as resignation; that it was the department who was duty bound to send the matter to Medical Board which it did not, hence the Appellant should not suffer due to the wrong of the department; that the learned Single Judge has also ignored the fact that the Appellant had completed his 10 years of service before retirement on medical ground.

4, Arguments heard and record perused.

5. From the perusal for record it reveals that the after denial of pensionary benefits from the Respondents the Appellant approached the Federal Ombudsman in the year 2011 through a complaint which was subsequently withdrawn on 17.01.2012 through an application (Annexure-J) appended with the writ petition, to avail the remedy before the Civil Court in Civil Suit No.F-1411/2011. We agree with the findings of the learned Single judge who in the impugned order has rightly observed that when the Appellant has already availed an alternate remedy to get the same relief by filing civil suit, the writ petition was not competent before this Court. Learned Single Judge has also rightly observed that the writ petition was hit by laches as the Appellant approached this Court in the year 2012 against his grievance arose in the year 1989. Recently, the Honourable Supreme Court in Civil Aviation Authority v. Zulfiqar Ali, (2016 SCMR 183) set aside the Order of the High Court in allowing the delayed writ of the Respondent, who was an employee of Civil Aviation Authority, was de-hired from service on account of his illness. Ten years after his de-hiring the Respondent filed the constitutional petition before the High Court for regularization of his service which was allowed by the Court. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of Pakistan held that the said petition suffered from laches and ought to have been dismissed for having been filed after a lapse of about 10 years and that too without any justification or explanation for such delay.

6. We do not see any illegality in the impugned order which has been passed strictly in accordance with law, as such does not warrant any interference by us. Consequently, the Appear in hand, being devoid of any merit is hereby dismissed in limine.

ORDER
' The Appellant is aggrieved by the judgment dated 23.06.2016 wherein the leaned Single Judge accepted the petition of Respondent No,1 and awarded her the pension along with service benefits that her deceased husband was entitled to.

2. Learned counsel for the Appellant argued that Respondent No,1 had remedy before the Compensation Tribunal under the Workman Compensation Act, 1923 ("Act") and therefore, the writ petition was not maintainable.

3. The preamble of the Act provides that the Act has been promulgated to compensate an employee who has been injured during the course of his employment. The case of Respondent No,1 was not of compensation but was for grant of pensionary benefits, which she was denied on account of the fact that disciplinary proceedings have been ordered against her deceased husband on 21.08.2002 by the Appellant Department after the death of her husband on 20.08.2002. Therefore the jurisdictional objection not only is without merit but is also misconceived as the basic question addressed in the impugned judgment by the learned Single Judge is whether the disciplinary proceedings could continue after the death of an employee.

4. The facts of the case are that husband of Respondent No,1 while working as Senior Commercial Assistant (Parcel) Railway, Lahore was issued a show cause notice under the Removal from Service (Special Powers) Ordinance, 2000 ("Ordinance") on 01.02.2002. Ultimately, order dated 21.08.2002 was issued wherein major penalty of dismissal from service was imposed upon him w,e,f, 06.08.2002 however, the husband of Respondent No,1 died on 20.08.2002. Respondent No,1 applied for all service benefits along with pension of her deceased husband, which application was ultimately declined. The learned Single Judge held that disciplinary proceedings can only be initiated against an employee for his non-performance or ill-performance of his duties, who is alive and in the service of the organization/department. The impugned judgment further finds that if an employee dies during the pendency of disciplinary proceeding then such disciplinary proceeding will abate after the death of the employee. In the case before us the husband of Respondent No,1 died on 20.08.2002 and the disciplinary proceedings were ordered on 21.08.2002 after his death. Since the husband of Respondent No,1 died, the disciplinary proceeding abated and as such no order could have been passed against the deceased employee. As such no illegality has been made out against the impugned judgment. We are in agreement with the findings of learned Single Judge. Appeal is dismissed.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.---Through this Writ Petition, the petitioners have impugned order dated 13.12.2016 issued by Respondent No.1, Election Commission of Pakistan, Islamabad ("ECP") along with notification dated 17.3.2016 declaring Respondents Nos.5 and 6 to be the returned candidates as Chairman and Vice Chairman in Union Council No.74, Jhamra of District Council Faisalabad.

The facts:

2. The basic-facts in this case are that the Petitioners contested the elections for the seat of Chairman and Vice Chairman of Union Council No.74, Jhamra of District Council Faisalabad in the local government elections held on 31.10.2015. On 2.11.2015 Respondents Nos.5 and 6 moved an application for recount of votes. The said application was not accepted and the result was consolidated and notified on 21.12.2015 declaring the Petitioners as returned candidates. The Petitioners took oath of their office on 14.1.2016. In the meanwhile, Respondents Nos.5 and 6 moved another application before the ECP for recalling the election results in Union Council No.74 which petition was accepted by the ECP on 4.1.2016 by calling for a report on the recount of votes and directing the Returning Officer to recount the votes. On receipt of the report, the ECP 'passed its short order dated 14.3.2016 declaring Respondents Nos.5 and 6 as the returned candidates without giving any reasons for this decision. The short order was challenged in W.P. No.9148/2016 and the impugned order of 14.3.2016 was set aside by this Court. The matter was sent back to the ECP to decide upon the issues raised afresh through a speaking order after hearing all necessary parties. The case was heard by the ECP and order dated 13.12.2016 was passed by the ECP which has been impugned in the instant Petition. In terms of the impugned order, Respondents Nos.5 and 6 have been declared as the returned candidate against the seat of Chairman and Vice Chairman, Union Council No.74, Jhamra of District Council Faisalabad and the Petitioners were denotified.

The arguments:

3. The question before the Court is whether the ECP could set aside the notified result of the election held on 31.10.2015 after calling for recount of votes, based on an application moved by the losing candidate. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the ECP was not authorized to set aside the notified result of the election nor does the ECP have jurisdiction in the matter hence it could not recall the notified election results. Learned counsel further argued that the power to recount votes is under Rule 36(5) of the Punjab Local Government (Conduct of Election) Rules, 2013 ("Rules"). This power can be exercised before the consolidation of results and not after the consolidation of results. In this case, Respondents Nos.5 and 6 moved an application for recount of votes which could not be entertained as the result had already been consolidated and notified on 21.12.201'5. Learned counsel argued that in terms of Rule 62 of the Rules read with Sections 38 and 39 of the Punjab Local Government Act, 2013 ("Act") no election can be called into question except by way of an election petition made by a candidate for that election. He argued that the only remedy available to Respondents Nos.5 and 6 was in the form of an election petition before the Election Tribunal and as such there is no remedy available before the ECP. Learned counsel argued that the ECP is not the Election Tribunal and it has no jurisdiction or authority to denotify an elected candidate. In this regard, he has placed reliance on Ch. Muhammad Abdullah v. Ch. Abdul Wakil and others (PLD 1986 SC 487), Election Commission of Pakistan through its Secretary v. Javaid Hashmi and others (PLD 1989 SC 396), Jam Madad Ali v. Asghar Ali Junejo and others (2016 SCMR 251) and Muhammad Mamoon Tarar v. Election Commission of Pakistan and others (2016 CLC 1708).

4. Learned counsel for Respondents Nos.5 and 6 argued that the ECP has acted in accordance with law on the basis of the powers that have been specifically provided under the Rules. He has relied upon Rule 78(b) of the Rules wherein he argued that the power of review has been given to the ECP to pass any order including rejection of ballot papers. Learned counsel argued that on the basis of this power the ECP is fully authorized to review any order passed by an officer under the Act or under the Rules including an order rejecting a ballot paper. In such cases, the ECP can denotify a candidate and set aside the election results if it deems it appropriate. Learned counsel further argued that these powers have been given to the ECP to ensure that the elections are carried out justly, fairly and in accordance with law. In this case, the count of votes had not been carried out in accordance with law and on account of the illegalities carried out by the Petitioners a wrong notification was issued declaring them to be the winning candidates. It is their case that there was a thin margin between the votes of the Petitioners and that of Respondents Nos.5 and 6 which necessitated recount of the ballot papers to verify the result. Learned counsel argued that the Returning Officer while consolidating the election results did not comply with the mandatory provisions of Rule 36(2) of the Rules which required him to examine the ballot papers excluded from the count by the Presiding Officer. The grievance of Respondents Nos.5 and 6 was that the Returning Officer did not examine the ballot papers of the rejected votes in the presence of the contesting candidates or their agents at the time of consolidation of results, hence they challenged it. This act of the Returning Officer gave rise to the genuine apprehension that the rejected votes contained valid votes on the basis of which they would become the winning candidates. Learned counsel argued that this argument was accepted by the ECP which relied upon the reports submitted by the Returning Officer with respect to ballot papers of four polling stations. In terms of the report, out of 34 rejected votes only 27 votes were actually rejected votes in Polling Station No.72 of Ward No.2. In the same way in Ward No.5 of Polling Station No.74/7 one valid vote was rejected and in polling station No.74/8 of Ward No.5 three more votes were added in favour of Respondents Nos.5 and 6. In this way Respondents Nos.5 and 6 were declared the winning candidates on account of the wrong counting and rejection of valid votes by the Returning Officer. In terms of the impugned order, the ECP has exercised its powers under Rule 78(c) of the Rules which authorizes it to order for a recount where certain illegalities have been committed. Learned counsel argued that similar question was raised before the august Supreme Court of Pakistan in Civil Appeal No.190 of 2016 titled Mubashir Khalil Ansari and another v. Election Commission of Pakistan, Islamabad and others vide order dated 15.2.2016 which was ultimately decided on 1.6.2016 where the august Supreme Court of Pakistan decided the issue in favour of the ECP with respect to the provisions of Rule 78 of the Rules and in W.P. No.429/2016 titled Syed Khurram Abbas Bukhari and another v. Election Commission of Pakistan and others with reference to the same Petitioners before this Court where this matter was also decided in favour of the ECP vide order dated 11.11.2016.

5. Learned counsel for Respondent ECP argued that the ECP is empowered under the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution") to organize and conduct elections and make all arrangements that are necessary to ensure that the elections are held honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law. In this regard, learned counsel argued that the ECP had extensive powers to regulate the process of elections which included the power to denotify a successful candidate if his success was consent to illegalities in the process of election. Learned counsel argued that the ECP was empowered to make all such orders as were necessary to ensure that the elections were carried out fairly and honestly and that these powers allowed the ECP to pass any order even after the notification of the election results. In this regard, he has relied upon the case titled Workers' Party Pakistan through Akhtar Hussain, Advocate, General Secretary and 6 others v. Federation of Pakistan and 2 others (PLD 2012 SC 681). Learned counsel further argued that the bar of Article 225 of the Constitution does not oust the jurisdiction of the ECP which can take notice of any irregularities or illegalities committed during the process of election in appropriate cases. Learned counsel argued that even otherwise the elections to the Local Government are not covered under the bar of Article 225 of the Constitution. Learned counsel argued that Rule 78 of the Rules gives sufficient powers to the ECP to rectify an illegality or irregularity caused during the election process in order to ensure that proper and honest result is announced and that in order to ensure fair elections the ECP can interfere in matters before or after the issuance of a notification of the result of elections. In this regard, he has relied upon the case titled Aftab Shahban Mirani and others v. Muhammad Ibrahim and others (PLD 2008 SC 779).

The law:

7. The ECP derives its power to carry out local government elections from Article 140-A of the Constitution which provides as follows:-

> 140A. (1) Each Province shall, by law establish a local government system and devolve political, administrative and financial responsibility and authority to the elected representatives of the local government.
> (2) Election to the local government shall be held by the Election Commission of Pakistan

Article 218 of the Constitution is also relevant as it lays down the duty of the ECP as under:

> 218. (1) For the purposes of election to both houses of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), Provincial Assemblies and for election to such other public offices as, may be specified by law, a permanent Election Commission shall be constituted in accordance with this Article.
> (2) The Election Commission shall consist of,-
> (a) the Commissioner who shall be the Chairman of the Commission; and
> (b) four members, each of whom has been a Judge for a High Court from each Province, appointed by the President in the manner provided for appointment of the Commissioner in clauses (2A) and (2B) of Article 213.
> (3) It shall be the duty of the Election Commission to organize and conduct the election and to make such arrangements as are necessary to ensure that the election is conducted honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law, and that corrupt practices are guarded against.

Therefore elections for the local government are organized and conducted by the ECP, having the primary responsibility to ensure that the elections are held honestly, justly and fairly as per law.

8. The local government elections are regulated by Chapter V of the Act. Section 19 of the Act provides that the Election Commission shall conduct local government elections and shall by notification in the official gazette declare the election schedule under the Act. The ECP shall also make provisions for the conduct of, local government elections and in terms of Section 21 it shall prepare the election rolls. Section 37 of the Act provides that every election or removal of an elected body shall be notified by the ECP. Section 38 of the Act provides that an election to the office of local government shall not be called in question except by way of an election petition. Section 39 of the Act requires the ECP to appoint an Election Tribunal to hear all election disputes. An appeal against the order of the Election Tribunal lies before the High Court under Section 46 of the Act. In terms of Section 41 of the Act the Election Tribunal is vested with the power to declare the election of a returned candidate to be void and to declare any other contesting candidate as the duly elected candidate. It can also declare the entire election as void and the grounds for declaring election as void are given in Sections 42 to 44 of the Act. Therefore the Act contemplates that all election disputes shall be decided by an Election Tribunal on the basis of the grounds provided for under the Act.

9. In exercise of powers under Section 144 of the Act, the Punjab Local Government (Conduct of Election) Rules, 2013 were made. Rule 3 of the Rules provides for the powers and functions of the ECP to conduct the elections. In terms of Rule 38 of the Rules, the Returning Officer shall consolidate the result and submit it to the District Returning Officer who shall send the result to the ECP. The ECP shall publish the result in the official gazette. In the instant case, the elections were held on 31.10.2015. The result was consolidated on 2.11.2015 and notified on 21.12.2015. After the notification of the result, Respondents Nos.5 and 6 moved an application before the ECP wherein they prayed for recalling of the election in Union Council No.74, Jhumra of District Council, Faisalabad and re-polling in Polling Station Jungle Sarkar (74/5) and Polling Station G.G.P.S Saiky (74/4).

Essentially they required recount of votes on account of the fact that the victory of the Petitioners was on the basis of a very small margin of only three votes. In this regard Rule 38 specifically provides that there shall be no recounting of votes after the consolidation of the results, hence the Returning Officer can recount valid ballot papers before the consolidation of results but not after consolidation. In this case, the Returning Officer rejected the application before consolidation of the result. However, the Respondents moved another application after consolidation of the result before the ECP, who set aside the notification of the Petitioners essentially on the ground that the mandatory provisions of the Act and the Rules were not followed.

10. The question before us is whether the ECP had powers under Rule 78 of the Rules to direct for a recount of votes after the notification of the returned candidate, thereafter, denotify the winning candidate and notify the other candidate as the winning candidates. In this regard, Rule 78 of the Rules is reproduced below for facility of reference:-

> (a) stop the polls at any stage of the election if it is convinced that it shall not be able to ensure the conduct of the election justly, fairly and in accordance with law due to large scale malpractices, including coercion, intimidation and pressures, prevailing at the election:
>
> (b) review an order passed by an officer under the Act or the rules, including rejection of a ballot paper; and
> (c) issue such instructions and exercise such powers, and make such consequential orders, as may in its opinion, be necessary for ensuring that an election is conducted honestly, justly and fairly, and in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the rules.

Learned counsel for the ECP argued that on the basis of the powers under Rule 78 of the Rules, the ECP has an overarching power to interfere with election results even after the notification is issued under Section 37 of the Act. It was also argued that this power of the ECP is over and above the power and remedy available before the Election Tribunal. We have heard the learned counsel and find that this argument is totally misconceived and against the statute. Rule 78 of the Rules prescribes the executive functions of the ECP to ensure that elections are carried out justly, fairly and in accordance with law as per the mandate of Article 140-A read with Article 218 of the Constitution. The exercise of power under Rule 78 of the Rules is to be exercised in relation to the conduct of the elections and not to adjudicate on election disputes. As per the Act once the election result is notified under Section 37 of the Act, any election dispute that arises thereafter must be referred to the Election Tribunal. This includes any dispute with respect to the recount of votes. This is the specific mandate of the Act creating a specialized tribunal to decide election disputes. There is no provision in the Act which gives the ECP the power to adjudicate on the election disputes. In this regard, Sections 38 and 39 of the Act specifically provide that an election dispute shall only be called into question by an election petition which is to be filed before an Election Tribunal.

Hence the authority to settle election disputes vests with the Election Tribunal and not with the ECP. In this regard, it is clarified that an election dispute is one which requires resolution after the result is declared and the returned candidates are notified. In this way, the ECP completed its function of conducting the election and any dispute related to the manner in which the election was carried out or votes were counted will be referred to the Election Tribunal and not the ECP.

11. Furthermore we find that Section 41 of the Act specifically authorizes the Election Tribunal to declare the election of any returned candidate to be void and to declare any other contesting candidate as duly elected. In the same way the Election Tribunal can declare the election to be void on the grounds given in Sections 42 to 44 of the Act. Section 44 of the Act gives the Election Tribunal the power to declare the election as a whole void if it is satisfied that the provisions of the Act or the Rules have not been complied with. Therefore the power of declaring any election of any returned candidate to be void and the power of declaring any other contesting candidate to have been duly elected vests solely with the Election Tribunal and not with the ECP. We also find that the power relied upon by the Election Tribunal emanates from the Rules which Rules are delegated authority in terms of Section 144 of the Act. The power given to the ECP under the Rules are to ensure that the substantive powers under the Act are given effect meaning that the elections are carried out in the prescribed manner fairly justly and in accordance with law. The Act does not envision any overarching power with the ECP nor does it create a parallel adjudicatory body to adjudicate on election disputes. The spirit of the law is that the entire election process should be concluded before any challenge to the election process begins. This ensures that the election process is completed, before disputes arise contesting the result. The ECP is empowered under Rule 78 of the Rules to issue all necessary instructions and pass necessary orders so that the election is conducted honestly, justly and in accordance with law as per the provisions of the Act. If there is any issue during the process the ECP can look into the matter to ensure that the elections are carried out smoothly. However, once the result of the election is notified, any dispute arising thereafter must be placed before the Election Tribunal who is authorized under the Act to decide upon election disputes. Hence if the name of the returned candidate is published in the official gazette, an election petition has to be filed under Section 38 of the Act read with Rule 62 of the Rules before the Election Tribunal and the ECP cannot denotify any candidate on account of the fact that there is a dispute on the counting of the votes. The grounds for declaring the election of the returned candidate as void are provided for in Sections 41, 42, 43 and 44 of the Act which grounds must be invoked by the Election Tribunal and Section 44 of the Act specifically deals with the issues where the provisions of the Act or Rules have not been followed.

12. In this case the ECP interfered in the matter on account of the procedural flaws urged by Respondents Nos.5 and 6. Furthermore, Respondents Nos.5 and 6 were aggrieved due to the small margin of victory in favour of the Petitioners. The issue squarely falls within the domain of an election dispute which could be heard by the Election Tribunal. The ECP could not have interfered in the matter as the Petitioners were the declared winning candidate for Union Council No.74, Jhamra of District Council Faisalabad and any dispute in relation to his victory had to be raised before the Election Tribunal as that is the remedy prescribed under the law. Therefore this act of the ECP was totally without jurisdiction, hence illegal.

13. Under the circumstances, this petition is accepted and impugned order dated 13.12.2016 passed by Respondent No.1 as well as notification dated 17.03.2016 declaring Respondents Nos.5 and 6 to be, the returned candidates as Chairman and Vice Chairman are set aside. Consequently the notification dated 21.12.2015 is revived along with the oath of office taken by the Petitioners on 14-1-2016.

JUDGMENT

AYESHA A. MALIK, J.--Through this Petition, the Petitioners have challenged the vires of Clauses (c) and (ca) of Section 13(1), Subsections (3), (4) of Sections 40 and 52 of the Punjab Food Authority Act, 2011 ("Act") being ultra vires of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan, 1973 ("Constitution").

The Case

2. The basic facts of the case are that Petitioner No.1 is a restaurant by the name of Lung Fung Chinese Restaurant located at 8-B, Kashmir Block, Lahore. On 8.8.2015 the Food Safety Officer ("FSO"), Respondent No.4 along with other officials entered into the premises of the Petitioner Restaurant and sealed it. The Restaurant was de-sealed on 17.8.2015 after the Petitioners removed the objections noted by Respondent No.4 at the time of sealing of the premises. The Petitioners are aggrieved by the act of sealing as carried out by the Respondents on the ground that it was done in contravention of the principles of natural justice and due process and that Section 13 of the Act is unconstitutional being against the principle of natural justice and due process. The Petitioners have also challenged the constitutionality and legality of Sections 40 and 52 of the Act on the ground that Section 40 is against the doctrine of trichotomy of powers under the Constitution as it gives the executive the power to recommend the names of judges who will be working under the Act, which encroaches upon the independence of the judiciary. So far as Section 52 of the Act is concerned, the grievance of the Petitioners is that the stated Section is unconstitutional because it encourages efficiency on the basis of monetary benefits meaning thereby that it will encourage greed and wrong doing under the garb of receiving a reward from Punjab Food Authority ("PFA"). Section 52 of the Act is also challenged on the ground that it is discriminatory because it can be used in a discriminatory manner to oppress people in the business of food services.

The Arguments

3. Learned counsel for the Petitioners argued that the act of sealing was carried out without any notice to the Petitioners; without affording opportunity of hearing; and most importantly without any warning of the inspection or the consequence of sealing. Learned counsel argued that Section 13 of the Act violates Article 10-A of the Constitution whereby it is the fundamental right of every citizen to be heard, to be treated in accordance with law and due process. Learned counsel further submitted that at the time of sealing, the Petitioners should have been informed of the defects, if any, and in terms of Section 16 of the Act be served with an improvement notice. Thereafter they should have been given time to correct the wrong if any, before the oppressive act of sealing could materialize. In this case, he argued that the Respondents acted prematurely, in haste with mala fide intent, infringing upon the fundamental right of due process thereby causing embarrassment and humiliation for the Petitioner Restaurant. Learned counsel argued that as soon as the act of sealing took place, information to this effect is placed on the social media and an entire campaign commenced against the Restaurant and its owners. He further argued that this brings a bad name to the reputation of the Petitioners and the people involved in the industry, without giving them an opportunity to refute any of the allegations raised against them. Learned counsel further argued that regulations for sealing and de-sealing issued in 2016 are in excess of the power authorized under Section 13 of the Act and therefore is a case of excessive delegation of power to the Respondents. He clarified that at the time when the Petitioner Restaurant was sealed, there were no regulations in the field.

4. With respect to the challenge to Section 40 of the Act, learned counsel submitted that similar matters challenging the right of the Executive under the Constitution to nominate and appoint Judges to Tribunals is pending before a learned Full Bench of this Court. Therefore, the Petitioners may, if desire raise this issue before the learned Full Bench through a fresh petition and do not press the issue in the instant Petition. As to the reward offered under Section 52 of the Act, learned counsel argued that the Section propagates greed and foul play because on the basis of the reward offered by the PFA, Food Inspectors are encouraged to seal the restaurants and businesses in order to collect reward money. Learned counsel further argued that the provision will encourage colourful exercise of powers by the Respondents which will render the acts under the Section not only as discriminatory but also as oppressive. In support of his arguments, learned counsel has relied upon the cases titled Khawaja Ahmad Hassaan v. Government of Punjab and others (2005 SCMR 186), Messrs Pearl Continental Hotel, through Executive Manager, Khyber, Peshawar v. Government of N.W.F.P through Secretary Excise and Taxation of N. W.F.P, Peshawar and 3 others (PLD 2005 Peshawar 25), Mst. Afsana v. District Police Officer (Operation), Khairpur and 5 others (2007 YLR 1618) and Government of KPK and others v. Khalid Mehmood (2012 SCMR 619).

The Respondents' Case

5. Report and parawise comments have been filed by the PFA being Respondents Nos.1 to 4 as well as on behalf of Secretary Food Department, Government of Punjab being Respondent No.7. In terms of the report and parawise comments filed, a visit was made to the Petitioners' premises on 8.8.2015 and during the visit it transpired that the Restaurant's workers were not wearing caps; the washing area was dirty; stagnant water was present on kitchen floor; raw and cooked food was placed together in the freezer; and expired bread was found at the premises. Flies were also seen on the uncooked food. Consequently, Respondent No.4 sealed the premises under the provisions of Section 13 of the Act and issued sealing form (Form 18) wherein all the issues and reasons for sealing the Restaurant were informed to the Petitioners. The Petitioners removed all the objections, corrected the defects and thereby on another visit after checking the premises, the Restaurant was de-sealed on 17.8.2015.

The Arguments

6. Learned Law Officer argued that the PFA was established to protect public health and provide safe and healthy food to the public at large. Section 13(1)(c) of the Act empowers the FSO to enter or seal any premises if he believes that any food which is prepared, preserved or stored, is operating and maintaining itself in contravention to the requirements of the Act. Learned Law Officer further argued that the Petitioners do not deny any of the objections raised against the cleanliness and maintenance of food at the Restaurant but are aggrieved by the manner in which the act of sealing took place. She argued that as an emergent measure, in order to prevent imminent danger or injury to the public, the PFA can seal the premises without any notice at the time. She argued that the power of seizure and the power of imposition of fine falls within the ambit of strict liability for which hearing and mens rea are not required. She further argued that the right to fair trial has not been denied or deprived to the Petitioners. This right is available to the Petitioners, however, the law empowers the FSO to take immediate action which power is not in derogation of Article 10-A of the Constitution.

7. So far as the argument that an improvement notice must be given before taking any action, she argued that the objective of the Act and the powers under Section 13 of the Act are to ensure that certain standards of cleanliness and health are maintained by persons providing services in the food sector to protect public health and safety. Therefore, she argued that there is no requirement of informing the Petitioner of the visit or to give the Petitioners an opportunity to explain why food was not being maintained in a proper and hygienic manner. She argued that there is no bar in the law preventing the FSO from carrying out such visits and in fact it is in furtherance of the mandate of the law that these actions are taken. So far as the grievance of the Petitioners that the matter is placed on Face Book and other social media, she explained that this has stopped and now the matter is totally regulated under the Sealing and De-sealing of Food Business Premises Regulations, 2016 ("Regulations"). So far as the objections to the reward given under Section 52 of the Act, she argued that it was lawful and in accordance with international best practices. Hence requests for dismissal of the Petition.

8. Heard and record perused.

The Law

9. The relevant law on the subject being the sections impugned before this Court are Sections 13, 40 and 52 of the Act. And for ease of reference Section 16 of the Act regarding improvement notice is also relevant. These sections are reproduced below:
